Governor Sholtz, who as a candidate last year for the highest office in the state of Fiorida made considerable mention of certain kinds of racketeers whom he called "political racketeers," has decided the case of Dan Hardie, ousted sheriff of Dady county. The Governor has decided that the former sheriff was, in fact, "mentally incompe-tent" for turning down the graft which was offered him last winter. We regret that the Governor evidently does not bear the same feeling against racketeers of the ordinary type as he professed against political racketeers.

The crime for which Dan Hardle was removed from of ice was simply that he chose to enforce the law. He could not be bought nor intimidated into allowing gangsters to continue to operate their gambling joints, liquor dives, and bawdy houses as they had for years before he was elected. He put the lid on and he put it on fight. He raided one place after another and slapped those criminals in Jail again and again just as fast as they stuck their necks out. They couldn't scare him and they couldn't buy him.

Now the majority of the people of Miami are law-abiding citizens and want to see the town cleaned up and the gangsters driven out. Time and time again they have gone to the polls and have elected as their sheriff a man pledged to enforce the law. "Pop" Lehman was a "reform" candidate in 1928 elected by an overwhelming majority. But he seld out shortly after he was elected and allowed everything to run wide open. He finally committed suicide just before his trial was scheduled to begin.

Again, in 1932 the people knew where Hardie stood on law enforcement. He had been their sheriff for two terms many years before and they knew when he said he would enforce the law that he would enforce it. They elected him over the chief deputy of Lehman's regime (incidentally the man who has been appointed to take Hardie's place) and over a number of other candidates. During the few months the Governor allowed him to remain in office, Hardle carried out his campaign promises.

There are a faw people down there who believe Miami's destiny as the leading resort in America depends upon its being a wide open town. People come down there to have a good time, they argue, and must be furnished with all kinds of amusements, even to gambling dens, wire-tapping schemes of all kinds, and vice resorts of every description. It is a poor tribute which this group of Miamians pays to its winter visitors, but nevertheless it seems to carry tremendous weight in political circles.

It is of course small consequence to the people of this community what happens in Miami, but it becomes of importance when their Governor views racketeers as any less baneful than his so-called "political racketeers."

Wherefore Lynch Law

"Calling attention to the fact that the Supreme Court has granted George W. Courson, a convict camp boss, convicted for the killing of Arthur Maillefert in a sweat box, a new trial on the grounds that since Higginbotham was acquitted and Higginbotham's guilt was "as much if not more than that of Courson," the latter should be given another chance, the Tampa Tribune concludes that another killing will probably be added to the long list of unpunished crimes in Florida.

It is just such things as this which provoke otherwise law-abiding people into taking the law into their own hand when some particular helious offense is committed applies the peace of the land. We don't believe any decent citizen approves lynching, but what are they expected to do when they see justice continually made a mockery of in this way? Punishment through the courts is, of course, the proper way of attaining justice in a civilized world, but if the world isn't yet civilized, the alternative is pretty likely to 'Maillefert was found dead in a sweat box in June, 1932," relates the Tribune. "Courson was convicted of manslaughter and, October 29, 1932, was sentenced to 20 years. Ills appeal was argued before the Supreme Court, September 13, 1933, and the Court decided the appeal December 5. The opinion was given by three Justices, with two dissent-

"Florida received much unfavorable advertising throughout the country as a result of the Maillefert case but that bad impression was largely removed when a Florida jury convicted the camp boss and a Florida Judge sentenced him to the limit. Now the 'anvil chorus' will be resumed as Courson proceeds on the usual way to freedom.

"In this connection, we note a plea to the Pardon Board for commutation for Larrimore, Marianna murderer, not that Larrimore is innocent or that any extenuating circumstances have appared in connection with his crime, but hecause 'he wants to do spiritual work among the prisoners at Raiford.' That's a new ground for clemency. Doubtless any person condemned to death would be glad to 'do spiritbeen the weakest point of the wall work' to escape the penalty of the law.
"We note another case—that of Farris, highway robber, whose sentence of 20 years was set aside by the Suto obey the law for patriotic preme Court on the customary 'technicality,' and who now but there are always plen- has his term reduced to six years, less five years served, which means that he will be out in one year, getting off with less than one-third of his original sentence.

"And so moves on the interesting process of criminal justice in Florida.'
