

Sanford Squad Is Practicing Hard; Meets Ocala Next

16 Fans Have Won Tickets In Herald - Milane Contest

11 Names Added To Original List Of Five Winners

Chance Left To Even Score If Team Can Jar The Jinx Loose

With four defeats in the background, the Sanford Celery Feds still have a chance for a better than 50-50 break, as there are five games yet to be played with Ocala, Orlando, Landon in Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Leesburg.

The game against Ocala is scheduled for Friday of this week, and the squad is to put in a hard week's practice, Coach McCluskey told his bunch of players yesterday after the scrimmages work on the field during the afternoon. The coach told them they must win this next game and that they will if every man works hard and doesn't let any grass grow under his feet.

Stoinoff, left halfback, will probably not be able to play in the Ocala game, the coach said, but unless some of the other players are injured during scrimmages on the local field during the week "we will have a good chance to win," he declared.

The game with Ocala is to be played in Ocala Friday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. The squad will leave at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in order to get in a little practice work on the Ocala field and rest up before the battle. Seminole High School will not be adjourned any earlier than usual Friday because of the game, as there will be plenty of time for student body fans to get to Ocala between the regular hour for school adjournment and the hour for the game, school authorities said today.

Two Tickets Won By George McRory At Some Expense

George McRory won two 35-cent Herald-Milane tickets by picking the right winners on the football gridiron, but they cost him plenty, both in time and money.

In order to prove that his team won, Mr. McRory bought Sunday issues of the Miami Herald, Jacksonville Times-Union and Tampa Tribune, at 10 cents each, and the New Orleans Times-Picayune, New York Herald-Tribune, New York Times and the Birmingham Age-Herald, at 15 cents each. Total 90 cents.

But none of those papers decided one crucial point. He picked Cincinnati to defeat Baltimore, and finally journeyed clear to Jacksonville where he got hold of a copy of the Cincinnati Enquirer (cost 15 cents) and learned from it that Cincinnati won, making his contest selections complete.

But Mr. McRory was still trying to figure out whether he had won or lost.

Life Termer Escapes From State Hospital

TALLAHASSEE, Oct. 29.—(AP)—J. B. Trawick, double sentence life term for the murder of his wife and mother-in-law, escaped from the state hospital at Tallahassee where he had been transferred from the State Prison for medical treatment.

Trawick was reported to have escaped from the hospital during the first few weeks of this contest. Due to the short time given last week there was no limit as to the number of winners. In the future tickets will be issued to the first 10 persons submitting perfect scores. The tickets will be at the Herald office each Tuesday morning and they will be good for the Wednesday picture.

While one of the principal features of this new contest is to allow fans to choose their 10 selections from the entire nation's Saturday football games, nevertheless contestants are urged to choose teams which are of enough importance to merit the publishing of their scores in one or more

Alaska Colony Mostly Housed Says Hopkins

163 Homes Have Been Built And Nearly All Families Are Settled, Is Report

Forty Families Return To U. S.

League Calls Colony In The Far North "Tragic Failure"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The F. E. A. Matanuska Valley colony in Alaska, where pioneers of the depression from Minnesota and Wisconsin sought to make new homes this last summer amid confusion of government plans, has 163 houses built now and most of the colonist families are settled, it was announced by Harry L. Hopkins, Relief Administrator. The pioneers were housed at first in a tent village without proper tools, materials or skilled workers to put up the houses, according to previous reports from Matanuska. A race against the arrival of the rigors of an Alaskan winter had to be staged. Fearing real trouble, the F. E. A. sent up new managers of the project and made facilities for action available. Now, 850 persons, of whom 500 are under the age of 21, are housed in permanent homes, the Hopkins report stated. News received by radio from Lieutenant Colonel L. P. Hunt, U. S. M. C. director of the Alaska Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, makes a happier picture of the situation than previous reports. Meanwhile the American Liberty League called the colonization project a "tragic failure."

"According to the plans as announced," the league said, "200 families, including about 1,000 persons taken from the relief rolls of northern Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, were to be given an opportunity to rehabilitate themselves as homesteaders in the Matanuska Valley in Alaska. The 200 families, some of whom had little or no experience on farms, were shipped to Alaska, where they found confusion, poor planning, inefficient management, hardships, discouragement, and discouraging prospects. About forty of the families have returned to the United States. The Matanuska Valley is a fertile area, but the..."

Injunction Hasn't Stopped Slot Machines In Sanford

No Notice Received Here To Put Them Out Of Commission

Slot machines are allowed to operate in the City of Sanford, despite the injunction prohibiting their licensing issued by Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson in Miami several days ago. The injunction was served on Comptroller J. M. Lee in Tallahassee, but Chief of Police Roy Williams said that no notice of it has been received in Sanford, and the coin-operated devices—more than 20 of them—are permitted under provisions of a special licensing ordinance passed by the City Commission on Oct. 19. Advice from the state capital says that serving of the court injunction on the State comptroller has halted preparations to license and tax the machines as proposed by the 1935 Legislature to raise an estimated million dollars annually for the state. When copies of the temporary injunction and Judge Atkinson's opinion were received at the attorney general's office, counsel for the comptroller immediately started a study of them to determine what procedure would be followed in appealing the case. A decision was delayed, however, and the county officials were asked to send copies of the bill of complaint and the testimony on which the injunction was granted. The new injunction followed the claims by the City of Miami that operation of slot machines constitutes an evil influence affecting all the residents of a community. In recently holding the slot machine law valid, the Supreme Court said the machines, as such, were not lotteries, as are prohibited by the constitution, but might become lotteries by the method used in operating them. This matter was left for decision upon a specific case being presented.

Ocala Friendship Extended Sanford By Official Group

Commerce Secretary Offers Assistance With Any Program

Stating that it will be a "pleasure to unite with other sections of the State in the development of some program in which Sanford will want the assistance of Ocala, Secretary Horace L. Smith of the Marion County Chamber of Commerce writes the editor of The Sanford Herald that he wishes "to extend the hand of friendship and goodwill to your paper and city." He adds that the Ocala organization, in all its contacts, "will endeavor to have our visitors (100,000 of them) learn of your splendid city, the friendliness of your citizens, the appointments of your hotels, the recreational facilities you have provided, together with additional evidences of your thoughtful consideration as to the pleasure of your guests." Secretary Smith's letter addressed to the editor of The Herald reads: "Editor, Sanford Herald, 'Sanford, Florida.' 'Dear Mr. Dean: 'At this season of the year, we consider it a privilege to pledge anew our spirit of cooperation with you and the city of Sanford. 'For a great many years, we have made it a part of the plan..."

Close To $1,000 Given To Charity By Kiwanis Club

Sustenance provided for and services given to underprivileged children in Sanford by the Kiwanis Club last year approached $1,000 in value, according to final tabulations of the year's work conducted under the direction of a committee composed of Julius Dingfelder, chairman, and Drs. H. D. Smith, H. D. Caswell and Harry S. Woodruff. Following the reading of the report the Kiwanis Club at its luncheon in the Montezuma Hotel today noon extended a vote of thanks to the committee and also to Dr. G. Selman, A. W. Knox and J. T. Denton, who with the physicians on the committee donated services. The true value of the services given by the Kiwanis Club totals $963.70, but the actual cost of the Club was only $138.70, as the tabulation shows that most of the services were donated. These services included removal of tonsils, dental work, eye, ear, nose and throat treatment, providing Christmas baskets for the needy, food and milk for under-nourished children, and assistance to school students. Today's program at the club's luncheon session was presented by Girl Scouts, under the direction of Mrs. D. G. Scott, Mrs. Russell Mason, Mrs. J. M. Stinescoper and Miss Sarah Maxwell. The girls repeated the scout motto, oath, law and pledge of allegiance to the flag, and sang several scout songs, and Ethel Root, a member of the troop, told of camp life in Camp Juliet Lewis at Cloudland, Ga., this last summer. The one Girl Scout troop in Sanford is sponsored by the Women's Club, but the Kiwanis Club today voted to offer to sponsor another troop.

Pedestrian Is Fatally Hurt By Boy's Bike

William Lossing Dies Soon After Being Struck By Vehicle Early Last Evening

Fracture of the skull received when he fell to the pavement after he was struck by a bicycle ridden by a 14-year-old boy early last evening caused the death within an hour of William Lossing, 69, a resident of Sanford for the last 10 years. Funeral arrangements, in charge of the Erickson Funeral Home, will be held Thursday at 2:00 o'clock at the First Christian Church, with the Rev. Herman W. Forbes, pastor, in charge of the services. The body will be taken to Tallahassee, Tenn. on the 4:10 train where burial will be made. A coroner's jury impaneled this morning by J. C. Roberts, justice of the peace, was advised by the sheriff's office and the police department, both of which investigated the accident, that Mr. Lossing was struck by a bicycle ridden by Tommy Jones, who was also painfully injured when thrown to the pavement. Mr. Lossing was walking along Sanford Avenue near the intersection of Geneva Avenue when struck by the wheel. He was rushed to the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital, but died within an hour without regaining consciousness. Sheriff J. F. McMillan reported that a witness of the accident said that when struck by the wheel Mr. Lossing lost his balance, tumbled backward and struck his head against the curb. Mr. Lossing was connected with the Loring Transfer & Storage Company in Sanford, a business (Continued On Page Three)

Legal Way To Issue $3 Auto Tag Is Sought

Nearly Two Million Dollars Impounded In South Carolina By Executive Order

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 30.—(AP) Governor Olin Johnston concentrated today on finding a valid method of putting $3 automobile tags on sale after ousting an inimical road administration, placing its 2,000 employees on probation, and impounding $1,871,352 in highway funds under a military edict. The flat $3 fee would apply to all privately owned cars, now licensed at an average fee of $4 annually, and to trucks of not more than one and one-half tons, a size largely used by farmers hauling their produce to market. The 36-year-old executive had promised to give South Carolina $3 tags, as Governor Eugene Talmadge had done in Georgia, in his campaigns and made an unsuccessful effort to have the Legislature enact them in a form acceptable to him. There were unconfirmed reports that members of the disbanded commission might seek court action on grounds the governor had usurped a legislative function if he provided $3 license by executive action. The governor, apparently undaunted, had troops under Major Frank H. Harnwell seize $1,871,352 in highway funds in three banks here under terms of his proclamation. It was a detour from the road program he could spend without the sanction of the Comptroller General if the administration wished.

Colder Weather Is Predicted By End Of The Week

By The Associated Press

Blistering winter weather covered most of the West today as the East remained unseasonably warm. Below zero weather was reported by the Alaska Weather Bureau in western and central Montana, with traces extending as far south as northern Arizona and New Mexico. Blizzards, however, moderate and high, checked continued, but a reading of eight below, the record low for this early in the season. The western cold front was due to extend over a great deal of the country by the end of the week.

Falling Plane Kills One, Injures Four

DAYTON, Oct. 30.—(AP) Major P. P. Hill, chief of the flying branch at Wright Field, died this afternoon of injuries received in the crash of a Boeing Bomber bomber was one of the largest planes in the United States. Four other men were injured in the crash, one of them seriously. The giant four motor plane crashed on the takeoff and caught fire. Wright officials said lives of the plane occupants were probably saved by the heroic action of Lieutenants R. K. Goswami and L. F. Harman. The two men rushed into the burning plane and carried out five men.

Ah Ha! Here Is The Oldest Coin Of All

Maybe, this report will write "flair" to the old coin rivalry which has been consuming considerable newspaper space the last week. For here is what appears to be the oldest coin ever minted in the United States. E. B. Stone, living on Cameron Avenue, Sanford, brings to The Herald office a piece of alloy money about the size of a half dollar issued by the then Colony of Massachusetts in 1652, and that's 283 years ago. Working on the old coin is plainly legible, and this name the piece of money as the "Pine Tree Shilling." The face of the coin shows another coin only 121 years old (a half dollar) owned by E. L. Irvin, 1216 West Thirteenth Street, looks much like the 60-cent piece in circulation today, though there are only 13 stars on it. It was minted in 1814.

Syndicated Articles On Canal Give City Much Wide Publicity

Many inquiries from northern residents, some of whom state they are owners of property in Florida, are reported coming to the office of the Central & South Florida Water Conservation Committee asking for information concerning the committee's opposition to the cross-state canal since the recent appearance of Frank Kay Anderson's feature articles in both the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune. According to Geo. S. Witmer, member of the committee, this took an added interest with receipt of a letter from Moberly, Missouri, stating that the writer had read an article on the subject in the St. Louis Post Dispatch, inquiry developed the fact that the New York Herald Tribune had syndicated the illustrated story and it ran to a considerable number of large newspapers in other sections of the country. Thus the canal opposition has come in for national publicity. "Incidentally, Mr. Witmer said, 'the fine photographs used as illustrations make this an excellent publicity for Central and South Florida, and Sanford as the main headquarters for the water conservationists come in for its share of the limelight.'"

DUM DUMS

By The Associated Press

The dread dum dum bullet figures in war dispatches from Ethiopia. It is a soft-nosed, half-covered steel-cased bullet that churns through a wound when it strikes and "mushrooms," making a gaping hole. It gets its name from Dum-dum, near Calcutta, where ammunition for the Indian army is manufactured. The majority of the International Peace Conference of 1899 decided against its use in warfare. Modern marching gun bullets are made with whole metal jackets. To make dum dums of them their tips would have to be ground to expose the soft lead beneath. Steel-jacketed bullets go through an object without changing shape, leaving a clean wound.

'MR. SAWYER IS NOT IN TODAY'

That, in words to the same effect, is what National Guardsmen are telling callers at the state highway department in Columbia, S. C., after Gov. Olin D. Johnston ordered them to remove the commission headed by his bitter political enemy, Ben M. Sawyer. After the board members were ousted, Johnston appointed a commission of his own choosing to carry out his road program. (Associated Press Photo)

No Appropriation Of Local Funds Made, City Clerk States

Municipal authorities are still hesitantly awaiting an appropriation of federal funds for improving East Street and Park Avenue, but each funds have not as yet been allocated and the City has made no appropriation for the project, City Clerk F. S. Lamson stated today. A report circulated today that the City Commission had authorized the clerk to "make out checks" which would find the City living up to its promise as the "improving agency" is erroneous, the clerk stated. According to Mr. Lamson, the City of Sanford never agreed to give any real cash for the proposed street improvement project and therefore no checks of the City treasury are to be issued. A local sponsor, the City promised to furnish certain materials and labor in furthering the improvement work, with the federal government putting up the cost. (Continued On Page Three)

Concession To Mussolini Is To Be Talked

Latest Peace Plans Will Be Discussed By The League In Geneva Tomorrow

France, Britain Will Co-Operate

Campaign Planned In Mediterranean To Enforce Sanctions

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Concession to Mussolini to end his invasion of Ethiopia, high British sources said today, would be discussed at Geneva tomorrow when the League of Nations' sanctions staff meets to fix the deadline for imposing economic penalties against Italy. Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign minister, who will go to Geneva to survey the possibility of peace with Premier Benito Mussolini, declared, however, that any basis of peace must be "an honorable settlement of the dispute acceptable to the French parties concerned, the League, Italy and Ethiopia." At Paris, Laval was reported by cables close to the foreign office to have let Mussolini understand that peace terms must come from H. Dues and be submitted to the League of Nations. Simultaneously, French officials declared that British and French navy, army and air leaders were preparing a campaign of full scale sea-sweep in the Mediterranean to enforce the League's sanctions. Mr. Samuel vigorously proclaimed there had been no change in British policy. Other British sources saw a change, however. (Continued On Page Three)

Edison's Widow And Childhood Friend Wed

CHAUTAQUA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Mina Miller Edison, widow of the inventor, and Edward E. Hughes, of Franklin, Pa., childhood friends, were married at noon today, to strains of a wedding march that floated in over trees from Chautauqua's ball tower. Mr. Edison vigorously proclaimed there had been no change in British policy. Other British sources saw a change, however. (Continued On Page Three)

Government By Force

The growing tendency of high government officials to resort to the use of state militia in order to carry out their schemes or get control of some other branch of government, which they are not supposed to control, is but added evidence of the radical changes which are daily taking place in what has been known as the American form of government and which are steadily transforming this country from a nation governed by laws to a people ruled by men.

It is admitted that occasions are bound to arise when it becomes necessary to call out the National Guard to prevent riots or put down insurrection against the government. Troops have always been resorted to for this purpose and it is their logical function. But in recent years it has become the practice for one faction of the government to use the National Guard against another faction of the government.

We have at present the illustration presented by the State of South Carolina where Governor Johnston has taken over the State Highway Department and its special fund amounting to some $1,871,352 by the use of machine guns and fixed bayonets. Getting control of the road department is tantamount to the possession of the biggest political machine in the state, and control of the National Guard gives the governor the power if he desires to use it.

This is the system which the late Huey Long used so effectively in Louisiana. Anyone, even those not subject to his orders, who resisted his orders, were apt to be confronted by his bristling guardsmen before the day's sun had set. Troops were called out indiscriminately, not to prevent riots, not to avert rebellion, but to enforce his political decrees against other branches of the government.

The practice has been used to somewhere near the same extent in Oklahoma, Texas, Georgia and a number of other states. In the chief executive of the state lies the power to call out the National Guardsmen (someone has to have this power) but he is not supposed to use them for political advantage, to seize control of the polling places, to usurp the power of the courts or local authorities, or to hinder the enforcement of federal statutes.

This militaristic spirit under which martial law is declared upon the slightest pretext has its origin in various European countries where hordes of helmeted soldiers armed to the teeth parade the streets day and night under constant orders of some high and mighty dictator to make sure that no political opponents show their faces or open their mouths. Every citizen, be he in politics or not, must make his bow to Gessler's cap.

American citizens who believe in the orderly processes of law, who like to think of their government and the officials of the government as servants of the people, who believe in freedom of thought and action, who like to think that the American system of government as we have known it during the past 150 years is the best government on earth, and that the military dictatorships of Europe are not compatible with American ideals of liberty, must be constantly on their guard against this promiscuous resort to martial law.

Common Colds

When asked what is the best thing to do for a common cold, one of the foremost authorities in the country on respiratory diseases replied: "Stay home—go to bed."

With the approach of the late Fall and winter season, bringing with it as it does, changing temperatures, chilly winds, and sometimes freezing weather, it is well to give this matter of the common cold a little thought. It is estimated by credible authorities that more actual working hours are lost in the United States every year on account of colds than from any other single cause.

The trouble with colds is not only that they so frequently develop into influenza, pneumonia, or other serious ailments, but also because in themselves they are usually not serious. People are inclined to regard a cold as if it were a sore thumb, a headache, or the itch from a mosquito bite, something which doesn't amount to much, is hardly worth bothering with, and will pass away in a day or two.

Many times this is the case, and because a person has been successful many times before in "riding out a cold," or "just worrying along with it," he thinks he can always do so again. But it happens all too frequently that people who figure this way are the very ones who sooner or later run into serious difficulties by not taking their minor colds in hand.

Beware of the cold that hangs on. This advice has been given millions of times, and as often has been ignored. Paying no heed to this suggestion is the primary cause of the large death rates from pneumonia and influenza. Colds which hang on are dangerous not only in themselves but also as an indication of a weakened constitution in the individual.

When you feel a cold coming on, do something about it. Remember that the best thing to do is to go to bed and stay there until you get over it. If you can't go to bed, take something for it. And if it hangs on, see a doctor.

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

Announcement of the marriage of W. J. Thigpen of this city to Miss Frances Wilkie of Chattanooga caused a surprise to the many friends of the groom here. In a letter from the bride's friends here the statement was made that they were married last Wednesday at 5:00 o'clock in Chattanooga. The bride is a young lady prominent in Chattanooga, being of the old Randolph family of Virginia. She has been spending her winters in Lakeland but last year came to this city to be with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Thigpen, and while visiting here met her fate in the shape of W. J. Thigpen, cousin of W. M. Thigpen. The groom is one of the most popular young business men of Sanford where he has large property interests and has been identified with the progress and up-building of the city for the past eight years. Mr. and Mrs. Thigpen expect to arrive home in about 10 days and will make Sanford their future home. Both of them will receive a warm welcome from their many friends.

Word has been received that Alexander McClintock, who last winter was employed as clerk at the Sanford House, has gone to join the British Army.

The cabinet dinner on Tuesday evening at the Woman's Club rooms under the auspices of the Social Department was a brilliant social success and one of the most enjoyable entertainments given by this popular department. Mrs. W. E. Carter, hostess of the evening, is a gracious, charming hostess and has made a record during the October programs with some of the most delightful affairs of the season. Mrs. J. B. Starling and Mrs. John T. Brady had charge of the candy tables and those assisting in serving were: the Misses Lillian Herring, Sadie Williams, Eleanor Herring, and Vera Turpin.

D. B. Babick is having a nice home erected on his property on Sanford Heights. The home will face Sanford and Central Avenues and will be two stories in height and have all modern conveniences.

THE COMPASS

Holding Companies and the TVA By Arthur Dunn

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 30. — Litigation by power interests in opposition to TVA has been much in evidence in this state, nevertheless I find that huge enterprises very popular both in Tennessee and Alabama.

It has crystallized two issues—should the federal government be in the utility business? and should utility holding companies be abolished? Those in opposition contend (1) that government ownership and operation is unfair competition; (2) that government construction costs are more expensive (3) that government operation is wasteful.

If government owned and operated utilities are to serve as a yard stick to measure what the privately owned ones should charge, both must be subject to the same taxation and the same standards in fixing rates. When such is the case (and Dr. Arthur Morgan told me it was true of TVA), the three objections stated above cannot all be true.

It may be admitted, for sake of argument, that the cost of TVA will exceed the real cost of construction by private ownership. Likewise, government operation of all its undertakings is apt to be looser and more expensive than that managed by the best class of private business. Then, if the government investment is unduly high, and its management extravagant, private ownership and operation should have nothing to fear from federal competition.

The state laws usually provide that the rates charged consumers by privately owned public utilities must yield only sufficient profit to pay a fair return on the actual cost of the plant after deducting operating expenses and taxes. In practice such is not the case. Usually the apparent cost of the plant greatly exceeds the real cost, and the apparent expenses of operation are much greater than the real expenses of operation, and the greater the investment and expenses appear, the higher the rates they may charge.

The best legal and financial talent has been drafted to best advantage by the instrument by which they accomplish it is the holding company. Now, holding companies in competitive business often make for efficiency of operation, and decrease in cost of production and distribution. Competition forces the management to pass these benefits on to the customers. In the case of monopolies, such as utilities, holding companies may make for decreased costs, but, as operated, they are primarily devices to increase prices to the consumer.

The following is a fair description of their devious corporate structures. Let us suppose Company A is the company selling electricity in a given territory. Company B is a construction company which builds the plant of Company A. The real cost of the plant should be ten million dollars, but Company A agrees to pay Company B fifteen millions. When the plant is completed, A contracts with Company C for management at a high cost; with Company D for repairs and maintenance at exorbitant charges; with Company E for research work; with F for financing; and with G for fuel or water power.

The stocks of Companies A B C D E F G are owned by H—known as the Holding Company, and the profits of all find their way into the holding company treasury. But profits of A are what remain after A pays B C D E F G these fictitious costs and charges, and must be sufficient to pay dividends on the apparent investment of 15 millions, instead of on the real investment of only 10 millions.

The new Hays Super-holding Company X, which owns the stocks of H, and two or three other corporate structures similar to H—primarily for the purpose of combining enough influence in one organization to combat or weaken government regulation, and its effort to establish a yard stick like TVA.

A yard stick seems imperative for profits based on this man of inflation can no longer be used as a standard for fixing rates to be charged consumers.

What would we think of Henry Ford if he had his subsidiaries (coal, glass, steel companies) balloon their charges to Ford Motors?

It is not surprising that the holding company structure is so popular in the utility industry. It is a device to increase the price of the utility's stock and to reduce the price of the utility's service to the consumer.

WINTER PARK, Oct. 30. — Some of the speakers who will participate in the semi-centennial program on Nov. 2, 3, and 4, when Rollins College commemorates its opening 50 years ago as the first standard college in Florida are:

Dr. Katherine Rogers Adams, St. Louis, Mo., a high official in the American Association of University Women, who will discuss "The Role of Women in the Modern State," at the opening meeting Saturday morning, Nov. 2, in the Annie Russell Theater; Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, who will speak on "Education for True Patriotism," at an evening meeting Saturday, Nov. 2; Dr. Everett C. Herrick, president of Andover Newton Theological School, who will speak, with Governor Dave Sholtz, at a meeting Sunday night, Nov. 3; and Superintendent W. F. Cawthon of the Florida State Department of Public Instruction, who will be one of the speakers at a luncheon Monday, Nov. 4, in honor of the charter students of Rollins College.

WINTER PARK, Oct. 30. — William W. Lloyd, one of the five members of the charter faculty at Rollins College 50 years ago, will be a guest of honor of the College at the semi-centennial celebration on Nov. 2, 3, and 4, commemorating the opening. It was announced today.

Mr. Lloyd, who lives in Chicago, Ill., is the only surviving member of the charter faculty. The others were President Edlers in order to increase the price of his car? Such method in the distribution of power is equally unsound and absurd. Not the holding company itself, but the use made of it by utilities has brought it into disrepute.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover Urges Girl Scouts To Be Good Neighbors

PALO ALTO, Calif., Oct. 30. — (AP) — In a Girl Scout week message, Mrs. Herbert Hoover urged America's younger generation today to be "good neighbors" individually, in the family, in the community, and among nations. Neighboring herself, Mrs. Hoover stressed that phase of Girl Scout activities.

"Being good neighbors has always been one of the emphasized qualities of Scouts—good neighbors individually, good neighbors in the family, good neighbors among nations," she said. "Doubtless that is the most important factor connected with Girl Scout Week. It is a time when the girls try definitely to help their neighbors learn more about them; learn that they are ever ready to be useful, friendly, cheerful, and also ready for fun when sterner duty does not call.

"To let the neighbors, in city or country, know the Girl Scouts better, and to encourage the girls to know themselves better, is the reason for Girl Scout Week." The former "First Lady" said: "Since the custom is popular for designating days or weeks for the purpose of remembering certain persons, events, or organizations, the Girl Scouts liked the idea of having a week of their own. So one was adopted, beginning this year on Oct. 27."

Mrs. Hoover broke her rule against interviews to voice her ideals for the organization, which recently named her president of its national council. "It is a week in which a Girl Scout may determine to think more seriously and more joyously over the significance of her scouting," she declared. "It is a week in which patrols or troops or whole communities of Girl Scouts and the grown-up members of their organization may consider together what scouting does mean to them and what they are trying to make, it seem to their friends and neighbors."

Girl Scouts Give "Silver Tea" Party

With a large gathering of friends and interested persons in attendance, the Troop Committee of Troop Number One, Sanford Girl Scouts, entertained with a "silver tea" Tuesday afternoon at the Scout Hut in observance of National Girl Scout Week. The proceeds of the affair will be used for local Scout work.

Guests were received during the afternoon by Mrs. Ralph A. Smith, Mrs. J. M. Stinescoper, Mrs. C. R. Mason, Mrs. Walter I. Cooper, and Miss Sarah Maxwell. Entertainment was furnished by the three patrols and refreshments were served by Katherine Hurt and Ellen Meriwether.

Boris McCall, representing the Ethel Root, representing her patrol, gave a talk on her experiences at the Girl Scout Camp and explained how the girls read the symbols found on her Indian blanket. Evelyn Stiles of Muriel Knox's patrol rendered a tap dance.

WOMAN COMMITTEE SCHEDULE

MIAMI BEACH, Oct. 30. — (AP) — The body of Mrs. Mary Clark 44, of Chicago, was found in a one-bedroom apartment here yesterday, and Detective St. Elmer Fox reported the case apparently had taken her life because of worry.

County Council presented plans for registration, badges, and awards to the Scouts and announced that all the Sanford Scouts have been registered.

Among the guests in attendance were the entire troop and troop committee: Gail Lake, Mary and a large number of Sanford Boy Scouts. The Hut was decorated for the occasion with black and gold crepe paper, Halloween novelties, and vases and bowls of sinlets, sanseveras, goldenrod, and purple spikes.

slight. In renewal of the discussion, for settlement. The Fascist dictator's armies, defiant of impending economic isolation, is reported to have advanced farther into the Ethiopian interior today. On the northern front, the advance has been so powerful in the Aduwa-Adigrat sectors that Italian commanders felt the mountain pass at Makala would fall without a battle.

To the west of Adawa, in the isolated Setit River region where Eritrea and Ethiopia border on British Somaliland, fierce fighting has been waged daily. Ethiopian tribesmen, Italian authorities said, have daily tried to cross the river and penetrate into Eritrea, but have been turned back.

American Lends World In Number In Jail

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. — (AP) — Attorney General Cummings said last night that "our great American underworld is armed to the teeth," partly with 2047 firearms and 273,326 rounds of ammunition stolen from National Guard armories since Jan. 1, 1933.

Alaska Colony Mostly Housed Says Hopkins

The more optimistic report from Colonel Hunt said that although the colony did not reach the Alaska valley until the latter part of June, 150 tons of foodstuffs were raised in the community gardens during the summer, with women doing most of the harvesting and canning. This supply of foodstuffs will augment the food issued during the winter by the commissary.

All of the houses have been equipped with radios and other conveniences. The morale of the colony is reported to be high. All families are now living within their budget and are reported to be showing a determination to make the fertile soil produce bumper crops next year.
