Cops in 'copters spot pot

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Senice Staff Writer

SANFORD - Helicopter surveillance of the area has greatly reduced the amount of marijuana grown here, Seminole County Sheriff's Office officials said.

Three fields containing about 40 plants have been spotted in Geneva. Chuluota and Oviedo over the last two days. At the Chuluota Home of attorney Faith Keating and her husband Scott, approximately 20 plants were spotted from the air.

Faith Keating, 35, and Scott, 34, of 1311 Bob White Trail, were arrested for cultivation of marijuana plants. A search of their home also found cocaine, some marijuana cigarettes, some drug parabernalia and a bag of two pounds of mari-Juana drying in the home.

The two were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility were they were later released on $5,000

Survey: Teen abortions down slightly

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A survey found six in 10 women who have had abortions saying they didso after using contraceptives that failed.

The Alan Guttmacher Institute study published today offers the most extensive look at who gets abortions since the nonprofit organization's last

While government data show 1.3 million

Americans have abortions every year, it provides very little detailed information.

The Guttmacher report confirms that white, middle-class women get the bulk of abortions -because they make up the bulk of the nation's women of childbearing age.

Young women are most likely to get abortions - but the teen-agers' share has dropped, from 25.5 percent in 1987 to 21.5 percent last year, Guttmacher researchers discovered

"We can't entirely account for that," said study author Stanley Henshaw, who noted that the overall U.S. abortion rate has dropped about 10 percent in recent years while the rate of teenagers who gave birth rose. Of the abortion recipients surveyed, 57.5 percent said they were using a contraceptive the month they became pregnant. That's a rise from the 51.3 percent in 1987, and the increase was Bee Abortion, Page 5A

Chamber puts Lake Mary, Heathrow on the map

By SHARI BRODIE Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - It might not seem like that big a deal to the average person, but to Diane Parker, executive director of the Lake Mary/ Heathrow Chamber of Commerce It's a major accomplishment.

At Wednesday's August breakfast meeting, at Heathrow Country Club, Parker unveiled the official chamber road map, printed in cooperation with Universal Map and Mary Gersh. Parker has wanted a new map of the area since coming on board as the chamber exec in 1990. Because the chamber is a source of information to people and companies relocating to the area, a current map is a vital resource, Parker said.

The road map updates 5,800 streets, roads. avenues, courts and ways in the Lake Mary area. Heathrow, Sanford and part of Longwood. It also includes a state road map for Florida from Ocala to Sebring and coast-to-coast.

The map was only one of the accomplishments enumerated by Parker at the breakfast meeting. The chamber has now been in its new office for one year and celebrated by inviting all members to an open house following the meeting. Probably the oldest chamber in the state of Florida, charted in 1922, the chamber has grown from 96 members in the 1920s to 600 member businesses and individuals, located from Daytona Beach to Kissimmee.

Men adrift rescued

KEY WEST - Five men adrift for three days after their sportfishing boat sank returned here after being rescued by a Coast Guard cutter.

A lookout on board the Northland spotted the men waving a white shirt Wednesday as they and bailed water out of a 14-foot fiberglass dinghy.

The men left the Miami River early Thursday morning on their way to Ceiba, Puerto Rico, to begin a sportfishing business. Their 36-foot Omega sportfishing boat started taking on water Saturday, said Coast Guard spokesman Mark Mackowiak.

"They had some kind of mechanical difficulty near the stern tube, by the propeller," Mackowiak said. "Then the boat sank stern first."

Salvador Carmente, 46, Ramon Suarez, 42, Rafael Fon-tanilla, 33, Andres Morales, 42, and Ramon Rodriguez, 31, all of Hialeah, were checked by medical personnel aboard the Northland. They were in good condition.

Murder sentence to be appealed

SHALIMAR - An attorney for a Louisiana prison escapee convicted of murder in Florida says he will appeal a death sentence because the state's case was based almost exclusively on testimony from witnesses who claimed the defendant confessed the crime to them.

Samuel Williams was sentenced Tuesday to die in Florida's electric chair for the slaying of retired State Attorney's Office investigator Bobby L. Burke in Creatview Sept. 27, 1994.

Burke was shot outside his home at night as he took out the trash and carried some food scraps outside for neighborhood cats. The prosecution says he was murdered during an attempted robbery.

Williams, now 20, had escaped from a Louisiana juvenile prison where he was serving a term for robbery. Okaloosa Circuit Judge Robert Barron handed down the death sentence for Burke's murder. The sentence was recommended by the trial jury in an 8-4 vote. The defense says that not only was the state's case based on testimony that Williams had confessed, but that the 22-caliber murder weapon was never found, that there was little physical evidence and that the only person who claimed to be an eyewitness admitted in court he "can't see very far."

said Karen Kerr, a spokeswoman for the Police Department. The SWAT team was then called in and, after negotiators were unable to reach anyone inside, they entered the apartment about 2 a.m. Wednesday. No one was inside. "He's believed to still be in the Long Beach area, and he's to be considered armed and dangerous." Kerr said.

Several gunmen, possibly linked to Jamaican drug gange, opened fire in 1992 at the Taste of The Islands nightclub in Miami, where about 75 people were celebrating a young woman's 17th birthday.

Crist wants chain gang law tougher

ST. PETERSBURG - State Sen. Charlie Crist wants to add tougher links to his chain gang law, thus ensuring that prison road crews work along major highways so they are highly visible to motorists.

'The purpose of chain gangs is to provide appropriate punishment and serve as a deterrent. It can only be a deterrent if people know about them. You have to see them to know they exist." Crist said Wednesday, standing near a major artery in this Gulf Coast city.

Closing arguments are set for today in cigarette addiction trial

JACKSONVILLE - Was Grady Carter a man so addicted to cigarettes that he continued smoking until he developed lung cancer or did he just lack the will or the desire to quit puffing?

That is the issue to be placed before the five-man, one-woman jury today in the Orange Park man's tobacco liability lawsuit against the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Co.

The case has some similarities to John Grisham's recent best seller, "The Runaway Jury."

The jury has been hearing testimony from experts on both sides during the trial which has lasted almost three weeks. Carter's attorney, Norwood Wilner, claims the tobacco company produced a product it knew was dangerous and should pay for his suffering, because it did not warn him.

Carter, 66, a retired air traffic controller, quit amoking in 1991 when cancer was detected in his

Bruce Sheffler, an attorney representing the tobacco comny, claims Carter is not an addict, but an educated smoker who knew the risks and chose to

The case ended with the jury viewing television tobacco advertisements from the early 1950a.

Early in the trial. Wilner was able to introduce several hundred pages of excerpts from company memos through 1972. Wilner claims the memos support his claim that Brown & Williamson misled the public about nicotine's dangers.

Carter, who smoked Lucky Strike cigarettes for more than a quarter century, testified he tried to quit smoking several times, but would succumb to his cravings and light up again.

"I knew if I lit that little cylinder, everything would be fine," he said.

Carter and his wife, Millie, are seeking unspecified damages from the tobacco company.

The case is being watched closely by an industry that spends millions of dollars in legal defense. A win for Carter could have a domino effect on other cases.

It is the first of several similar trials scheduled for this year and next year in Duval Circuit Court. At least one trial a month is expected to be under way through the rest of 1996 and into much of 1997. Wilner represents 60 clients with suits against tobacco companies.

Seminole County sheriff's investigators are looking into a compleint of a hate crime which reportedly occurred Tuesday evening at Sun Lake Apartments just south of Lake Mary of Lake Emma Road.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, a 44-year-old woman called the sheriff's office late Tuesday reporting that she had found a threatening letter attached to her front door. The words "Jew" and "Go home" and a star of David were drawn on the door. The words "NY'ers go home" was acratched by a key into the woman's car.

The woman and her teen-age daughter are Jewish, and recently moved to Lake Mary from New York.

McDonough said Florida law requires that any crime committed as a result of the victim's race, religion, national heritage or sexual orientation may be charged at one level higher than the reported crime.

School board candidate Larry Purlong has also offered a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest of the perpetrator.

Pailet problem

Seminole deputies were called to a retail store Wednesday. on Jamestown Bivd., off SR-434 in Altamonte Springs, regarding two persons seen taking pallets from behind the store. Officers said as they were discussing the matter with the store manager out front, a pickup truck containing the pallets presed them.

Officers conducted a traffic stop on SR-434. They said Pedro Lopez, 36, was the driver, with Yolanda Lopez, 29, a passenger. Both were from Astatula.

Because of a language difficulty, a Spanish speaking officer was called to the scene.

Deputies said the vehicle contained 13 pallets, each reportedly valued at 850. They said they also uncovered a business card in the pickup, which identified the two as being in the Pallet Repair Service.

Each was subsequently charged with grand theft.

Traffic stop

Lake Mary police stopped Michael Edward Lincoln, 21, of Orlando, on Interstate-4 Tuesday, when he reportedly was clocked driving at 91 miles per hour in a 65 mile per hour sone. Lincoln was charged with driving with a restricted/ suspended license, and driving under the influence.

Back to family values

Parents, especially those with teen-age children are all too familiar with the following sentences: "Leave me alone, you've got no business messing in my affairs," "Who are you to look through my things?" "I'm old enough to do what I want to without you butting in." "Get off my back."

Most parents, regardless of the family values they have tried to instill in their youngsters at very young ages, have heard these, or comments similar to them, at least

If parents are able to give a logical reply, there may be no further difficulty. But this is becoming more and more difficult.

One of the problems is the increase in the number of single-parent homes where the parent must be out earning a living, trusting the youngsters to fend for themselves. This can be managed, but it is extremely difficult.

Another problem is the constant strengthening of what can be called "kids rights." Parents no longer can scold their youngsters without fear of retribution. The HRS, or local law enforcement will be called for even the most minor situation. No parent wants the embarrassment or the fact that, even if they are determined to be innocent, their names will go on "bad parents" lists with the local authorities.

But what if this were changed? Parents would have the right to go into their youngsters' rooms occasionally, and smell for marijuana or look in a few drawers. This would certainly go a long way at thwarting drug abuse before it has an opportunity to become unstoppable.

What if parents were able to determine if their children had obtained firearms? How about staying out late, what if you could set a curfew and have it followed to the letter.

What we are proposing in our society today is a pure Utopia. We have reached that state of "civilization" where parents no longer have much authority.

More and more juvenile crime stories are coming out these days. Children as young as four or more are getting charged with murder or aggravated assault, even against their own parents.

Arrest reports indicate many teen-agers taken to jail for drug possession or sales. Name a crime, and any more, it is possible to find one which was accomplished by someone under age 18.

We can talk about more law enforcement and stricter jail sentences all we want, but we probably aren't going to accomplish much until we are able to return to the old system of family values. Parents must be allowed to control (not beat up) their youngsters. Putting them in fear of doing so may be saving some youngsters from spankings, but it isn't doing our society much good.

Same Sex Marriage

Gays who complain about new federal laws prohibiting same sex marriages don't realize that although it may seem discriminatory, that's it's to their advantage to not be able to get legally married.

After having spent the last two years in discrete court. The course to realize that what is divorce court, I've come to realise that what is called marriage in America is nothing more than a license you give the government that allows thieving opportunistic lawyers to steal everything you own. No same person who understands what a marriage contract really is would ever set marriage.

would ever get married.
So I say to the gay community, you don't want what you are trying to get. Go back and fight over job discrimination rather than the right to be robbed blind by crooked lawyers like we heterosexuals have. When it comes to marriage, you're better off without it.

What's the matter with Dole's staff?

Proposition 209 on the California ballot this November is the famous California Civil Rights Initiative (CCRI), which would amend the state constitution to provide that "The state shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to, any individual or group on the basis of race, sex, color, ethnicity, or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education, or public cuntracting."

The proposition's chief effect would be to eliminate preferences that are currently being given to favored racial and ethnic minorities (over other applicants better qualified) when it comes to college admission, public jobs and public contracts.

Sen. Dole has not only endorsed the proposal but co-sponsored (with Rep. Charles Canaday of Piorida) a bill in Congress that would piace similar restrictions on the federal government. And in recent weeks he has been government. And in recent weeks he has privately made it clear to various friends that he won't "walk away" from the issue. This is critically important, because Democratic voters are deeply split on preferences and President Clinton has taken refuge in a typically wafflish slogan: "Mend it. don't end it."

But many Republican politicians, including some on Sen. Dole's campaign staff, are afflicted with doubts, and the staffers have thus far succeeded in preventing him from highlighting with Mr. Clinton on the teaue. On July 31 the San Francisco Chronicle reported from Washington that California Gov. Pete Wilson, who to his credit is solidly behind the initiative. had failed to obtain a speaking slot at the San Diego conven-tion for Ward Con-nerly, the black University of California regent who is leading the pro-CCRI campaign.

Quoting officials familiar with the thinking of the Dole staff, the article asserted that the ballot initiative is "considered poison by the Dole campaign. 'You won't even hear the word CCRI,' one official said. 'People in the party are scared to death of the lesue."

The propoeltion's chief et-tect would be to Comically enough, a poll sponsored by the ultra-liberal San Francisco Examiner and published just five days earlier showed that the initiative is supported overwhelmingly by California voters. The survey, conducted for the Examiner on July 19-21 by Mason-Dixon Political/Media Research of Washington (with a 3.5 percent margin of error), showed supporters outnumbering opponents by 60 percent to 32 percent, with only 8 percent undecided. Even Democrats favor it, 48 percent to 43. Among Republicans, it's 72 percent to 23; among independents, 68 to 18.

dependents, 68 to 18.

Since the most recent Los Angeles Times poll shows Bob Dole trailing Bill Clinton in California by 27 percentage points, the real question may arguably be, not whether Dole can afford to be associated with CCRI, but whether CCRI can afford to be associated with Dole.

What's the matter with Dole's campaign staff?

Can't they recognise an overwhelmingly popular hot-bution issue when they fall over it?

One explanation may be the close relations between Republican politicians and the heads of major businesses, who constitute an important source of campaign contributions. Certain big corporations have been up to their eyebrows in race preferences and quotas for years, to ward off accusations of "racism." While CCRI and the Dole-Canaday bill apply only to the state and federal governmenta respectively, some businesemen feel uneasy about supporting them in view of their own companies' unappetizing re-

Olympic snobs headed for Sydney

ATLANTA - Juan Antonio Samaranch, ATLANTA - Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), has issued a decree. Having witnessed too many tacky vendors selling too many tacky T-shirts in tacky America, having observed greedy global corporate sponsors who actually went committee for their $40 million fee, deeply disappointed in the carnival-like atmosphere of the Olympic games in Atlanta, he says, "I think we need commercialisation, but this commercialisation must be directed by the Olympic committee or by the directed by the Olympic committee or by the Samaranch, 76, is a banker and real-estate developer who won his gold medal playing Monopoly. Now he has apparently won his battle against progress and markets. Sydney, Australia, host of the year 2000 games, has already announced acquiescence to the IOC's kangaroo court. Matilda may waitz with commerce, but rocking and rolling will draw Olympic penalty points.

Olympic penalty points. Samaranch is echoing the views of other statists on the IOC, including Canadian tax lawyer and accountant Dick Pound, who says Atlanta offered a "two-bit program," and promises that in the future the IOC will more carefully gertify exactly what good taste is. Snotty global clitists have joined in the commerce-bashing. These include energy commerce-bashing. These include sportswriters, and American ones at that, who wrote of "visual and aural insult," "overcommercialised embarrasement," "achlock" and "a five-and-dime store during a red-tag sale." (Once upon a good old time, "elitist

Just what is it about this commercialism that is so troubling? It's when lots of people who want to sell stuff compete with one another to sell stuff to lots of people who want to buy stuff. In theory, and usually in practice, commercial competition keeps the price-quality-quantity-timing equation in consumer-friendly territory. It is the system of commercial competition ("markets") that created sufficient global wealth so that 9 million tickets could be sold to Olympic events, allowing fans to see athletes from 197 countries competing to get on the road to fame and fortune. Commerce dosen't work well without competition.

Commercial competition, as you may have noticed, is not unique to athletics. Journalists compete for fame and fortune in their own venue. So do bankers like Samaranch and lawyers like Pound. Gold medal competitors were not only on the playing fields. They were in the stands and in the streets. The CEOs. whose corporations put up big bucks, have been successful commercial competitors. Their best salesmen and their best customers, successful commercial competitors, were given Olympic vacations and tickets as a reward.

And on Atlanta streets, including some of the meanest ones, there were vendors and hustlers at work, loudly hawking their wares, competing commercially, to sell T-shirts, towels, irozen lemonade, parking spots, bottled water, amusement rides, hats, totes, skirts and ashtrays, typically marked with the words "Atlanta," "Olympics," "1996," and showing American flags in every conceivable mode. An Elvis impersonator sold raspberry alurpees. Yes, it was a carnival, and I have a dozen American flag cap souvenirs to prove it. It is true, many of these items and peddlers were neither regulated nor licensed by the Olympic firm of Samaranch & Pound. Their delicate sensibilities have been offended, poor dears. So many billboards, so much noise, so much sweat, so much peddling, so many flashbulbs.

broad and bold signs of freedom. Ideologies also compete. The recent global competition called the Cold War was not won by the forces of statism. Monopoly and regulation are not the wave of the future. Liberty and markets won out, driving wealth, creativity and consumerism most everywhere. Such a system is not always pretty and demure. But it helps make life a ing hell about Amway Corp.'s plan to bankroll the Republican convention.

In case you missed it, the household-products company has given $1.5 million to the San Diego tourist bureau to underwrite television coverage of the Republican Party's quadrennial blowout and balloon show. It will be produced by "GOP-TV," the party's television operation, which was launched in 1994 with a $2.5 million donation from Amway. The event will be broadcast. "un-Amway. The event will be broadcast, "un-filtered," on Parson Pat Robertson's Family Channel

If that's not political incest, pray tell me what is.

It is also a wicked acheme, in my judgment, to evade the regulations that govern corporate donations to political parties by laundering money through tangential partici-

Youmay remember the Republican convention that was planned for the same city in 1972. I was working for columnist Jack Anderson and can recall in vivid detail the memo we obtained that had been written by a lobbyist for the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. named Dita Beard. It outlined a scheme for ITT to subsidize the GOP's San Diego convention to the tune of $400,000, in return for the Nizon administration's settlement of several antitrust suits. The public protest was deafening, and the story put my boss on the cover of Time magazine.

Amway Corp. has been in trouble with government regulators from time to time, but as far as anyone knows, there is no quid pro quo for its recent donation. Still, one wonders how tough a Dole administration would be with their corporate benefactor.

Why such cutmate in 1972 and none need. Why such outrage in 1972 and none now?

I have a theory. I think everyone is waiting for someone to say it's a joke.

Like the April Fool's prank that Taco Bell Corp. pulled on us. Remember that one? The fast-food chain took out full-page ads in five large newspapers to announce that it had purchased the Liberty Bell. They were just doing their part, Taco Bell said, to make sure the historic symbol of American freedom remained immune to the government shutdowns brought on by congressional gridlock. The company said it would rename the national treasure the "Taco Liberty Bell."

Thousands of citizens - including staffers for members of Congress - called the National Park Service and Taco Bell's Southern California headquarters to protest. Then a company spokesperson said never mind, it was a joke, ha ha.

We fell for it hook, line and burrito because it was so believable. Everybody suspects corporations are taking over the world. It used to be billboards and ballpark fences. Now you can't even go to the John without being assaulted by ads.

This is not a joke: Advertising agencies are doing a bang-up business placing ads over urinals and inside totlet stalls. They call it a 'new revenue stream." No, no, that's no joke, either.

It's not too much of a stretch to imagine that in a Dole administration, Amway Corp. might get some unique copyright and trademark rights. I mean, we could be saluting the Amway American flag and singing the Amway U.S. national authom and watching our leader in the Amway White House reject regulations on household-products companies with an official Amway Veto Pen. Why is that not funny?

WASHINGTON — Mars. The Red Planet. Named after the god of war. Home of those enigmatic canals. Maybe even Little Green

Now, scientists say, the fiction writers and stargasers and lievers of other sorts may have been right — sort of — all along.

There may have been life on lars. And it was little. And if it had any color, it might have been green.

Big deal for scientists. No surprise to anyone who's been to the movies.

It was 1953 when Gene Barry starred in the Occar-winning film adaptation of H.G. Wells'
"War of the Worlds," a tale of Martian invasion already familiar to two generations of Amer-

Producer-director Orson Welles gave the nation a sound scare in 1938 with the same story, a radio show that fixed the idea of invaders from Mars firmly in the minds of the public.

Of course Welles' Hallo broadcast of the classic 1898 book opened with a disclaimer that it was just fiction, but thousands of listeners tuned in late and were convinced that aliens were attacking.

The movie didn't have that problem, but special effects reinforced what was a real belief by many that life could exist elsewhere, regardless of reports by scientists that none had been

Researchers at the National Aeronautics and Space Adminreported Wednesday that they have found in a rock from Mars organic compounds that they asy were deposited billions of years ago by primitive life forms before the rock was blasted into space and sent on a 15 million-year voyage to Earth.

In "War of the Worlds" earthly bacteria kill the fictional invaders from a planet we now learn once may have had microbes of its own.

Another classic Martian tale is Ray Bradbury's "Martian Chronicles." In that story. humans are the alien invaders on Mars. As in Wells' novel, the Martians are killed by terrestrial bacteria. But this time the Martians are a beautiful, wise and ancient civilization.

It became a 1979 TV miniseries, "The Martian Chronicles," starring Rock Hudson, Roddy McDowall and Bernadette Peters. That was followed in 1993 by "Ray Bradbury Chronicles: The Martian Episodes," starring David Carradine, Hal Linden and others.

In the movies and elsewhere Mars long has been the center of speculation about life on other worlds. Two men probably share the credit, or blame, for much of Americans' popular view of life on Mars: Welles and Percival Lowell.

While Mars has been a popular object of observation, speculation and even veneration throughout history, it was 1877 that the idea of life on the fourth planet from the sun got a big

Mars was close to Earth about 35 million miles - that year when Italian astronomer Giovanni Schiaparelli trained his telescope on the planet. Schiaparelli saw a network of dark lines joining dark patches.
These lines later became famous as "canals" and led Schiaparelli to speculate that they indicated e form of organization had built them.

Lowell popularised this finding and even built the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., to study the planet. Turns out there were no canals; the telescopes of the time weren't strong enough to see that dark spots of mountains and valleys really didn't run together.

"It's hard to speak for him. · but he would have been happy at the discovery of life on Mars. Robert L. Millis, current director of the Lowell Observatory, said.

"He thought he was observing a civilization that existed at the time he was making the obser-vations, but he would have been gratified by any evidence that life might have existed." Millis

The movie, "War of the Worlds," is thought among the best of science fiction films, though far from the only cinematic encounter of the Martian kind.

In 1960 there was "Angry Red Planet." a low-budget tale of a spaceship returning from Mars that is attacked by unusual

Five years later John Carradine starred in "Horrors of the Red Planet," in which astronauts meet strange aliens on our neighboring planet.

Taking itself less seriously was the 1968 epic "Mars Needs Women." You guessed it, Mar-tians come to Earth to steal women. "Martians Go Home" in 1990 was also a lighthearted effort, with Randy Quaid accidentally bringing Martians flocking to

On a more serious front came the classic story by Robert Heinlein, "Stranger in a Strange Land," published in 1961.

Valentine Michael Smith, born on Mars, was the sole survivor of the first manned mission to the planet. Subsequently, he was raised and educated by Mar-tians. When Smith returned to Earth as a young man, he has human instincts but an alien perspective and superhuman

NTSB: Missing bodies from TWA explosion unlikely to be found

EAST MORICHES, N.Y. from TWA Flight 800 is unlikely because large pieces of wreckage that might conceal them have already been recovered, the head of the investigation said.

There are not the kinds of pieces of wreckage out there any more where we can expect to find bodies," Robert Francis, vice chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, said Wednesday.

"It's not fair to people to think there's a huge piece of wreckage down there that's going to be covering up" bodies. He said divers Wednesday raised a fire-damaged 75-foot length of the plane's right wing, which is so large it has to be cut in half before being brought ashore. Crews did manage to bring ashore the cockpit's sheared-off windshield, a piece of fuscings with nine windows. and a stainless-steel toilet, among other items.

The remains of 195 of the 230 people killed in the July 17 ex-plosion have been recovered, but none were found in the last two days. The Suffolk County med-ical examiner, Dr. Charles Wetli, has closed a temporary morgue that had been set up in a Coast Guard station near the recovery for hading the remaining bodies, Francis said: "Increasingly unlikely. ... In fairness to the families that are out there waiting. time is not something that is helping." In an interview Wednesday, Wetli said a majority of the victime died when their necks were broken in a "massive whiplash" during the explosion.

The moment the jet exploded, violent forces and a sudden drop in barometric pressure in the cabin acted to "sever a ligament that attaches the skull to the spine," Welti said on ABC's Primetime Live."

investigators' prime theory is that a bomb was placed in the front cargo hold, where passenger luggage is stored. But they have not ruled out mechanical failure or a missile.

If a mechanical failure brought down the Boeing 747, in-vestigators have said the most likely scenario would be an ex-plosion set off by vapors in an empty fuel tank at the center of the plane. The Washington Post reported today that one possibility being investigated is that an engine fuel motor sparked such an explosion.

Investigators have found no evidence to back up the theory. but a small fire started by a leaking fuel pump motor on a hatred in the world."

747 in Singapore last year prompted the Federal Aviation ding the remaining bodies. Administration on Wednesday to announce a proposed rule to require inspections of the Boeing Still attached to the wing raised Wednesday were seven of the eight fuse pins that hold the engines on, Francis said. The fuse pins are designed to break and allow the engines to fall away in case of trouble, but the attached pins could mean the engines separated in some other way. Investigators will have to figure out how that happened.

Francis said the left wing has also been located underwa under the Navy salvage ship USS Grasp. He said it would probably be raised soon along with two engines and a piece of a third that have been found. He estimated that 30 percent of the aircraft has been retrieved so far.

Meanwhile, the top FBI agent in the probe said that no one has taken responsibility for the ex-plosion, but that "It doesn't matter whether anyone claimed credit or not.

"The event in itself is a public statement," Assistant FBI Director James K. Kallstrom told The Associated Press. "No one claimed credit for Pan Am 103. If it is a bomb, the public statement is that there is tremendous animosity and Barbara Lyman said lawyers must ensure that "in the rush to protect ourselves from this threat, we don't sacrifice our constitutional rights in the process. I think there's some risk of that."

Ms. Mager warned against "a rush to judgment."
Asked about the unethical practices of lawyer-solicitation of victims of natural disasters and terrorist acts, McNeil said this was a major reason why lawyers are losing the public trust.

Milk additive with out nour

NEW YORK — A low-cholesterol mix of nonfat milk and out flour could be on dairy shelves this fall. The New York Times reported Thursday.

The development of the fortified milk is set to be announced in Washington on Thursday by Golden Jersey Products, a research and development company in Vero Beach, Fla.

The milk's new ingredient, called Replace, is made from thickeners and stabilizers as well as Ostrim, which was developed by the Agriculture Department from hydrolyzed outs. Replace will be sold directly to dairies to be mixed with skim

The mixture is expected to contain .05 grams of fat in each eight ounce serving, compared with 0.5 grams for skim milk and five grams in 2 percent milk.

A gallon of milk with Replace is expected to cost about 21 percent more than regular milk, according to Joseph Diffruno. president of Golden Jersey Products.

America Online goes off-line

SAN FRANCISCO — In what appears to have been the largest online outage ever, 6.3 million American Online customers worldwide were left stranded when the system crashed for almost 19 hours.

Service at the nation's largest online service resumed at 10:45 p.m. EDT Wednesday, 18 hours and 45 minutes after it was taken off-line for what was supposed to be routine maintenance to install neo software.

The technical glitch left furious customers without their e-mail or access to their favorite Web sites. During the outage, frustrated users who had accounts on other online systems commiserated on a popular Internet bulletin board devoted to complaining about America Online.

The problem was different from a software glitch that brought down AOL's e-mail system for an hour on June 19. company spokeswoman Pam McGraw said. This time, it involved new host software, essential to the network's operating systems. The company also has had several other minor system outages over the past year.

Scientific assault on Mars planned

WASHINGTON - Electrified by research suggesting that Mars may once have harbored life, America's space agency is gearing up for a scientific assault on the red planet and inviting the world to help out. Daniel Goldin, who heads the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Wednesday he was calling on the international science community to offer suggestions and guidance for a "robust program of exploration" of Mars.

Two American spacecraft, a lander and an orbiter, were planned for launch this fall, and Goldin said eight more craft - two every other year - will rocket toward Mars within a

It is too late to modify hardware on the spacecraft to be launched this year, but Goldin said the later missions could be revised to take into account the new Mars data.

Dole compromises on abortion issue

SAN DIEGO - An abortion compromise between warring Republican factions will prevent a damaging floor battle during next week's convention and let presidential hopeful Bob Dole focus on the economy and other themes, party leaders say.

We certainly didn't want to have the abortion issue define the Republican convention." anid a relieved Paul Manafort, who is managing the convention for Dole. "We've created the opportunity to have our issues heard without any distrac-

The agreement retains the party's anti-abortion stance in its platform but also lists the changes that abortion-rights tenublicans unsuccessfully sought. In so doing, it allow sides to claim unity after three days that began with convention delegates delivering an embarrassing rebuke to their all-but-certain nominee, as they rejected Dole's proposed statement of tolerance for abortion-rights views.

Fortress San Diego

SAN DIEGO - The concrete dividers are up, the main drag outside the convention center is closed and police will be on double duty starting this weekend.

Welcome to Fortress San Diego, where security has become a way of life for downtown workers and residents gearing up for the Republican National Convention next week.

With the Olympic bombing in Atlanta still fresh on the minds of San Diegans, everyone from the mayor to the graffiti cleanup crew at the downtown trolley stop has become more security

Flights canceled in safety dispute

CARACAS, Venezuela — The word "canceled" appeared eight times on the big board at Simon Bolivar International Airport today.

All of the flights were to Miami or New York, grounded in a safety dispute between U.S. and Venezuelan aviation officials that has left hundreds of passengers stranded on both sides of

"I'm just trying to get home," Miami high school teacher Jose Perdomo, 67, said at the airport, which overlooks the southern edge of the Caribbean Sea. "My wife is old. She needs

He and several dozen tourists, businessmen and other travelers were spending the night at the airport with hopes of catching a flight to the United States today on airlines that are neither American nor Venezuelan.

Most flights between the two countries were grounded Wednesday. Neither government clearly explained why, but it apparently had to do with recent Federal Aviation Administration rulings that Venezuela must tighten its airline safety procedures.

Another black day predicted

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland -dBritish troops have slung barbed wire and set up barricades across the historic route of a planned Protestant march, trying to pre-empt street fights in this bitterly divided town.

But Protestants predict "another black day in Northern ireland" if they aren't allowed to march their full route Saturday along Londonderry's 17th-century walls. Many Catholics said they, too, expect trouble. Sir Patrick Mayhew, the British minister responsible for Northern Ireland, ordered several hundred soldiers to part of the wall Wednesday as fear rose of a repeat of the widespread violence started by a Protestant march in July.

The disputed part of Saturday's march is a quarter-mile stretch of wall overlooking the Catholic Bogside neighborhood. where soldiers patrol in armored cars and police carrying assault rifles are posted in flak jackets.

Trends moving in Clinton's direction

By MIKE MOKRZYCKI Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - President Clinton has some vulnerability but Bob Dole and the Republican Party must overcome many striking weaknesses to make the White House campaign a contest, three new national polls suggest.

A CBS-New York Times survey found Democrata getting their best overall assessment - 55 percent viewed the party ravorably - since their 1992 national convention.

Clinton's approval rating. meanwhile, was at 58 percent. its highest since the earliest days of his presidency, and in the three new polis he held leads over Dole ranging from 15 to 23 points.

UNDERSOLD

The CBS-Times survey also found Democrate opening a 7point lead over Republicans in a question asking registered voters which party's candidate they would support if the U.S. House election were today. The GOP had pulled statistically even in a CBS-Times poll and at least two other national surveys last month.

Yet job approval for the Republican-controlled Congress improved significantly in that poll and a new ABC-Washington Post survey after lawmakers passed welfare legislation and other bills in the last two weeks.

The ABC-Post poll provided the latest evidence that Clinton is succeeding in traversing to the ideological middle - where the most voters are — and getting the upper hand on traditionally OOP tesues, including welfare, the economy and crime. Americans perceive Dole as moving to the right.

And an NBC-Wall Street Journal survey found that Americans are growing happier about the country's direction: 37 percent say things in the nation generally are headed in the right direction and 43 percent said things are off on the wrong track, the most positive seament in at least a year.

The surveys were mostly or entirely conducted before Dole announced a major plank of his campaign Monday, a 15 percent across-the-board tax cut, so its effect could not be gauged directly. Earlier results suggest mixed reaction to the idea, though.

As many previous polls have suggested, Clinton remains vulnerable on issues of character, morality and ethics. And he is considerably weaker now among the middle class, a key to his 1992 victory, while Dole maintains a favorable image as a tax- and deficit-cutter.

But the new surveys provide strong evidence that Dole has yet to make a compelling case to voters on why he should be president.

For example, only 24 percent in the CBS-Times poll said Dole has made clear what he wants to accomplish, down from 34 percent in March. Republicans were just as critical of Dole as Democrats and independents.

On economic issues, nearly six in 10 in the CBS-Times poil say Clinton should do more to help the middle class, which Dole is trying hard to woo back into the QOP camp. A Pew Research Center poli last week also found Clinton only tied with Dole among middle-income voters. whereas his lead overall ranges from 11 to 24 points in recent

The CBS-Times survey also found two-thirds of Americans feel the next generation will have a harder time realizing the "American Dream." Yet 63 percent say the economy is in good shape today, compared to just 21 percent at this time four years ago.

Polls consistently find Dole rating higher than Clinton on ability to cut the federal deficit. But Clinton has room to gain strength here: Nearly half in the CBS-Times poll think the deficit has increased every year since Clinton became president, when in fact it has decreased every

While many polls have found a large gender gap in the presi-dential race, with women far less likely than men to support Dole. the GOP has faced smaller gaps at least since 1980.

The ABC-Post poll was conducted Aug. 1-5 among 1,514 adults; NBC and the Journal surveyed 1,102 registered voters Aug. 2-6; and the CBS-Times poli interviewed 1,166 adults

Czech javelin thrower tries out with Braves

By PAUL MEWS AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — For Leo Massone, who's usually coaching the best pitching staff in the major leagues, this was a lesson in Baseball 101.

"Wind and step," the Atlanta Braves pitching coach said, as if talking to a Little Leaguer.

"Don't step back so far. Use a shorter step when step with the stage of the step when the stage of the step with the stage of the step when the stage of the step when the stage of the you're winding up."

Jan Zelezny listened intently. But you'll have to excuse him if this pitching thing seems a little foreign: after all, he's never thrown a baseball in

Four days after winning his second straight gold medal in the javelin at Olympic Stadium, Zelezny walked across the street to Fulton County Stadium to take the first step towards what he hopes will be a new career: pitcher for the World Series champion Atlanta Braves. "I like baseball very much," the native of the Czech Republic said through a translator. "I have achieved very much in track and field, and it would be a big challenge for me to start something new. I would like a new aim for my life."

In an event that looked more like a publicity stunt than a legitimate tryout, Zelezny spent 25 minutes throwing under the watchful eye of Mazzone, several Braves officials and about 40 members of the media.

At age 30, Zelezny faces nearly insurmountable odds if he is serious about playing baseball. Michael Jordan had at least played baseball in high school when he tried to make the switch from the NBA to the major leagues, whereas Zelezny's experience is limited to watching a few games on television and tossing a ball with his 7-year-old son in the backyard. But Bill Clark, the Braves' international acout, believes the idea is worth pursuing since the motion of throwing a 1-pound javelin is similar to throwing a 5-ounce baseball.

"If this had happened in 1989, you could say we did it because we needed to get you here," director of scouting Paul Snyder told reporters, referring to a time when the Braves were a last-place team instead of a champion. "But this is 1996, and I don't think it's necessary.

"This is not a publicity stunt. This is not a

I, Zelesny's lack of baseball knowledge was ty apparent. Massone had to instruct him on even the most rudimentary aspects of pitching, including the grip and three-step process for delivering the ball. Then Zelezny's third pitch sailed over the head of bullpen catcher Ned Yost—and over the 8-foot-high screen behind Yost.

A few feet away, four-time Cy Young pitcher Greg Maddux watched the tryout sitting on a bucket of balls. He didn't seem the least bit concerned that his toh was in tecessity.

concerned that his job was in jeopardy.

"We're not disappointed with what we saw at all." Snyder insisted afterwards. "It's going to take something lengthier than a 15-minute tryout, obviously. But if he could do that every other day for, say, 20 or 30 days, imagine what

The Braves said they would invite Zelezny to spring training next year, and the javelin thrower lans to be there. For the rest of this year, though, it's back to Europe to continue his financially rewarding track and field career.

Zelezny eventually managed to get good velocity on his pitches — probably in the mid-70 mph range — but nothing close to major-league calibre. And the intricacies of pitching breaking balls, changing speeds — are completely foreign to him.

His uniform was a bit unorthodox, too: red athletic tights trimmed in gold and black, a Tshirt and no cap.

"For someone who hasn't thrown a baseball a whole lot, I thought he did all right," Mazzone said. "When I told him to pop one in there good.

he did it." Of course, another time when Zelesny tried to muscle up on a pitch, it went sailing over the screen and nearly hit a cameraman filming the event alongside the dugout. "A little high cheese," Mazzone said, unable to keep himself from cracking up. "That's all right. Don't sacrifice stuff for location."

In the clubhouse, the Braves players chuckled privately about Zelezny's tryout, though a few were impressed with his final throw, this one using his running javelin technique. Stepping off from behind the right-field foul line, he unleashed a towering throw that sailed over the wall in left-center, an estimated 275 feet.

Afterwards, Zelezny donned a Braves cap and stayed around to watch Atlanta play the Philadelphia Phillies.

"It was a great experience for me," he sa hope I didn't disappoint anyone."

DAVIE - Chicago's Bryan Cox tries to build up hatred for op-ponents, but he's finding it dif-ficult this time around.

Cox will be playing against his ermer teammates on the Miami Dolphins. They meet Sunday for a presenson game in Chicago. But when talking about his ans for Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino, the three-time Pro Bowl selection said: "I'd like to hit him. I don't know about knocking him into next week. but I'd like to hit him so that I can talk and make some noise."

Dolphins coach Jimmy Johnson chose not to spend big bucks on Miami's free agents. Miami defensive end Marco Coleman ended up with San Diego and cornerback Troy Vincent went to Philadelphia.

Owners authorize "final" offer

By ROMALD BLUM AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK - In a step likely to lead to another angry court confrontation, baseball owners authorized a "last and final" offer to players, eliciting a new round on angry statements from the union.

Following meetings of the owners' ruling ex-ecutive and labor committee in Milwaukee on Wednesday, management negotiator Randy Levine said he probably will present the final offer next week. Talks are scheduled to resume Friday in New York.

""Last' and 'final' suggests an absence of a willingness to continue negotiations," union head Donald Fehr said. "I hope they still want to negotiate it."

After more than a year of quiet, it appears baseball's labor talks will once again shift into public acrimony.

If a deal isn't reached in the week or so fol-lowing the "final offer," owners intend to ask U.S. District Judge Sonia Sotomayor to lift the injunction keeping the rules of the expired labor agreement in force, management officials said on the condition they not be identified.

If Sotomayor grants the request, owners could declare an impasse and unilaterally impose new work rules.

'It has been clear for some time that they're more interested in rattling sabers and issuing last-and-final things than they are in trying to reach an agreement." Fehr said. "That's too

If owners successfully impose new work rules, the union would consider striking again. How-ever, this time it appears unlikely that players would walk out.

"Nothing is impossible in baseball, but I'd say another strike is remote," Atlanta pitcher Tom Glavine, the National League player representative, said Tuesday night. "Honestly, I have no idea. Personally, I hope we don't even get close to that point. The players - and owners - have seen the consequences and no one I know wants to see it happen again."

Players ended their strike after 232 days when Sotomayor issued the injunction on March 31. 1995. The strike wiped out the 1994 World Series and the first three weeks of the 1995 season.

Attendance dropped 20 percent following the strike and has rebounded just 5.9 percent this runs in the top of the seventh inning to take an 8-4 lead and held off the Renegades to win the first game of the evening 8-6, forcing the tie.

The playoff contest was never really close as 3 Webbs & Son built leads of 8-0 and 11-4 and cruised to a title clinching 13-5 victory.

The final standings in the league were: 3 Webbs & Son (9-4). Renegades (8-5), Sanford Magic (7-5), C.A. Sales (6-6) and Sixma's Window Tint (1-11).

Members of 3 Webbs & Son were manager Tina Hill, assistant manager Shannon Hill, Terri Hirt, Robin Brown, Chris Clark, Cindy Decker, Rebecca Hoppe, Michelle Allman, Susie Blaile, Chris Chinchor, Rori Hogue, Vicki Miller, Chantel Schwartz, Gina DeLong and Shannon Churms.

The Sharks did 3 Webbs & Son one better in winning the Chase title with a 9-2 winnertake-all playoff victory over Sunniland Corporation.

That win capped a super comeback effort by the Sharks, who opened the season by dropping its first two games and stood 2-4 after the first game on June 18. After that first game the Sharks went on a seven game winning streak that ended with the championship.

season with a 9-4 record, while Sunniland Corporation was 8-5. Completing the standings were the She Devils (7-5), Club Paradise (4-8) and the Blue Angels (2-10).

In the playoff game, the Sharks did all of their scoring in the bottom of the first inning. sending 14 batters to the plate and collecting half of its 12 hits it had for the game.

Sunniland Corporation also had 12 hits, but it was never able to really mount a challenge to the Sharks as it did not score

Prayer of farmers reveals the tough road they hoe

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in DEAR ABBY: I am writing in behalf of all farmers and our embettled farming industry. Farming is one of the hardest, most labor-intensive occupations in this country. This year has been particularly difficult because a very wet spring and summer have prevented many of us from planting all of our crops. Consequently, many individuals are uncertain about the future of dairy farming in our state.

In addition, the Southern states have suffered severe drought. This has also affected crop production, so you can bet that soon customers will be complaining about the price of food. Fortunately, in our great country we are blessed with the quantity and quality of our food

"Dear God, I'm grateful for the generous bounty which you have bestowed upon me, but I must ask one more heavenly favor: Grant me the wisdom to understand why a pound of T-bone steak is considered too high at $3.50 while a 3-ounce cocktail at $2.25 is not, and people pay $1 for a soft drink at the convenience store without blinking, but insist that a 15-cent glass of milk is inflationary.

"Help me, teo, my Lord, to com-shend why $6 movie tickets are a normal expense, but $3.50 for a 60-pound bushel of wheat is unimaginable; why cotton is overpriced at 60 cents a pound but a $20 cotton shirt is a "bargain"; and why corn is too steep when 3 cents fills a bowl, but no one bats an eye paying $1 for a serving of flakes in a restaurant.

Lend me your divine insight that I may perceive the justice in being forced to grant an easement to the utility company so they could cross my property with their gas lines, then double the price they charge me for their gas. And finally, grant me the strength to endure without bitterness the consumers who scoff at me for shelling out $10,000 for a piece of farm equip-ment that they were paid to build, so they can afford the cars they drive on their vacations down the end that used to be my acreage efore it was stolen for the right-of-

please be seated - and let us go behind bathroom doors. The issue today is tissue. Are there emergencies in your home? Can we talk?

On the average, American families take measures against tissue emergencies by storing rolls of totlet paper in their homes.

Still, many households run out of their you-know-what.

Young adults lead the way--54 percent as compared to 40 percent by their elders, who know better about run-outs.

In households of married couples, 46 percent of the men blame their wives for using up toilet tissue. Only 25 percent of the women blame their husbands.

And how do you roll your

Over the top? Under the bottom? Far and away, most folks prefer over the top. "It's easier says a woman from Plushing, N.Y.

"It's weird the other way." says a man named Bowl.

Ann Landers tells us "Over the top is the way it should be."

Larry Seeley, the grocery manager at Albertson's in Lake Mary, says the store has to restock 40 new cases (24 packs to a case, four rolls to a package) each day.

That's enough tollet tissue to stretch to Key West. Seeley says the store carries nearly a dozen brands of paper.

Ninety-nine percent is white;
a roll or two is teal; one is light

"Some people are allergic to colored rolls," Seeley said. Most rolls are unscented. All claim to be soft and longer lasting.

Most are hypo-allergenic. One says "Don't Squeese." Another is called "Good Day."

Facta:

More than 60 percent of American adults prefer some kind of supplemental cleansing in addition to using dry bath tissue alone.

The first paper towels were produced in 1907.

Color tiesue hit the market in 1956 (so did Elvis).

Recycled waste paper has been used for pulp in most paper-based products since 1969 (Thank President Nixon, maybe.)

At least one tissue company prohibits the use natural tropical rainforest wood in its products (how thoughtful). The job to never done until the paper work is through. (Old saying.)

complain most tollet rolls are positioned on the wrong side of the toilet. (No kidding?)

Irvin and Clarence Scott launched paper distribution business Philadelphia in 1879. (So thats why it's called the City of Brotherhood).

Nobody we know collects the cardboard "tup-de-do" when their roll is through. Former Miss America contestants say they used totlet tissue for cleavage.

Yet another hotly debated issue on bathroom etiquette is whether the toilet seat should be up or down.

Why not?

The vast majority of households--75 percent--prefer the totlet seat down when not in use.

As might be expected, 85 percent of the females prefer the seat down.

The percentage of men who favor down to 62 percent.

Thank you for your attention. Consider yourselves enrolled in the College of Tissue Displeased? How to be a squeaky wheel

Have you ever paid good money for a product or service and been genuinely disappointed in the result? Whether it's a small appliance that doesn't work, a shirt with seams that unravel in a week, or the bad attitude of the waiter at a nice restaurant, you're not alone.

In these situations, the only way to make the situation right. is to complain, effectively and loudly if need be.

Unfortunately, many people never any a word because they just, aren't, comfortable complaining. They feel it's rude, or they don't like confrontation. However, when you receive a bad product or poor service, you've essentially been lied to. Making a purchase of any kind carries an implied agreement between you and the merchant-the merchant agrees to provide a quality product or service, and you agree to pay money in return.

So, if you've held up your end of the agreement and the merchant hear't, you have the right to complain. And rest assured, for the most part, these situations result from honest mistakes, and most business owners truly want to know if you're unhappy, so it's really not rude and rarely becomes a confrontational situation.

Personal finance

The first step in complaining effectively is having the facts straight. Before talking to the merchant, have a clear knowledge of the precise dates, times prices and method of payment. And have as much documentation as possible, including receipts, packaging, and advertisements. You should also take notes of all telephone conversations regarding your complaint, including the time and date of the call and who you spoke with, and keep them in a safe place as well. All this preparation will help you feel more self-assured while securing the matter.

The next step is to meet with the salesperson or store manager and calmly describe the problem. Be polite and friendly in your demeanor, while being firm and specific about what you expect, whether it's a refund, replacement or repair. And give them a deadline as added motivation to resolve the pro-next step is to write to the company president, assuming they haven't been involved to this point. Always write to the president, and never the customer relations department. You can usually get the names and addresses you need from the and addresses you need from the Thomas Registry and Standard & Poor's Register of Corporations, both of which are available at most public libraries.

If that doesn't work, there are numerous consumer advocacy groups, including the Better Business Bureau. By the time you get to this step, it's less likely that you'll get your refund or replacement, but at least you can include your complaint in the company's public file for others to see. And chances are, if you were treated badly, others you were treated badly, others have been as well and that file will get pretty thick, which is a problem they will have to address in the long run.

Bone marrow transplants cure some cases of sickle cell anemia

By DAMEL Q. MANEY AP Medical Editor

BOSTON - Bone marrow transplants can cure sickle cell anemia, a study found, but experts caution the treatment is too hazardous and difficult for most cases.

The international study found that the transplants — long a mainstay of cancer treatment — can cure sickle cell in about three-quarters of patients, saving them from a lifetime of suffering.

However, another 10 percent die from the therapy. Because of the risk, doctors say the treatment must be reserved for the most severe cases — something that often is hard to determine until damaging complications have already occurred.

"The bottom line is this is a significant advance, but patients should not think this is a cure for all," said Dr. Ronald Nagel of Albert Einstein

College of Medicine in New York City.

About 80,000 Americans, most of them black. have sickle cell disease and several million others worldwide are afflicted. Dr. Helena Mishoe of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute estimated that the new treatment will be appropriate for less than 1,000 of the U.S. cases.

Besides the risks, the treatment has another significant drawback: The transplanted bone marrow must come from a genetically similar brother or sister. Only an estimated 18 percent of sickle cell patients have a suitable marrow donor.

The radical approach involves using chemotherapy drugs to destroy the patient's own blood-producing bone marrow, then substituting marrow from a sibling.

The word "cure" is being used "with a great degree of consideration and advisement," said Dr. Keith M. Sullivan, an author of the study. "But these patients have been observed for a long period, and they have no evidence of sickle cell

Sickle cell disease results from an inherited genetic flaw that causes oxygen-carrying red blood cells to take on a sickle shape. They get stuck and clog tiny blood vessels, cutting off the blood supply. Organ damage and bouts of severe pain may result.

About one in every 400 American blacks is born with sickle cell anemia. On average, the disease shortens their lives by about 30 years, although the severity varies widely from person to person.

In the study, published today in The New England Journal of Medicine, doctors from more than 30 hospitals in the United States and abroad gave bone marrow transplants to 22 children with severe symptoms of sickle cell anemis. Sixteen were cured, two died, and the treatment later in life as a result of the treatment.

The transplants cost $150,000 to $180,000.

But the medical bills for three to five years of treatment without transplants could add up to this much.

Sullivan,ta doctor at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Scattle, said that only about 6 percent of sickle cell patients are as clearly ill as those enrolled in the study.

The patients ranged in age from 3 to 13. Half had already suffered strokes because of their disease. Others had lung problems or frequent

"We think this is an important first step in looking at potential cures, but without the ability to identify patients who are at significant risk for complications, a lot more work needs to be done," Mishoe said.

Sullivan said doctors are working on brain scans intended to spot small areas of brain damage that are ominous signs of strokes to come.
