BRIEFS

Spring concert Sunday

SANFORD — The Seminole Community Chorus, now completing its 22nd season, will present its spring concert in the Fine Arts Concert Hall on the campus of Seminole Community College in Sanford on Sunday, April 23 at 3 p.m. The public is cordially invited and admission is free.

The choral concert will be preceded by a 2 p.m. performance of the SCC Jazz Band, under the direction of John Pastin. This, too, will be a free concert in the Fine Arts Concert Hall.

School plans auction

LONGWOOD — The Pace Private School 22nd Annual Spring Auction 'Jive with Auction '95' will be held May 13 at the Sheraton Orlando North Hotel in Maitland at 7 p.m. with auctioneer Art Grindle. Tickets are $20 per person and may be purchased in advance by calling PACE School at 869-8882 or at the door the night of the auction. The cost includes a tantalizing buffet of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres. 1950s or casual attire is encouraged.

All proceeds will benefit PACE School, a school for children with learning disabilities which has been serving Central Florida for 24 years.

Visioning workshop tonight

SANFORD — Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commission members will peer into the future tonight at a "visioning workshop" to see what may be in store for the Northwest Interstate 4 corridor.

The workshop will begin at 7 p.m. in room 3000 of the Seminole County Services Building, 1101 East First Street.

Summer programs set

SANFORD — Beginning Monday, six to 12 year olds in Seminole County can begin registering for Summer programs at the Boys and Girls Clubs.

There will be four one-week sessions at each of the clubs' branches from June 12 through July 7.

The cost is $5 per week. The fee includes movies, field trips, and lunch.

For more information, contact the Boys and Girls Club (West Sanford Branch) at 330-2456, their extension program at Midway Elementary School at 324-5681 or at the East Altamonte extension program at 834-4959.

Holy midge eaters, Batwoman!

File Photo

Ken Glover, a bat expert at the University of Florida, stands beside the college's bat house which can house 250,000 of the mammals. While there are no bat houses even approaching that size here in Seminole County, there are several empty homes waiting for residents to move in.

Focus: Relocating bats from college rafters to new homes

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — There are too many bats living in the rafters at Seminole Community College. And, some say, not enough of them on the Sanford waterfront.

Thousands of bats are roosting under the rafters of two of the buildings at SCC.

They bother no one and they even make the college a more pleasant place in the evenings because the bats eat hundreds of thousands of insects each night.

Chances are, even those who take night classes at the college have never seen them.

However, the smell of the guano (bat droppings) is getting very strong along the outside corridors of the buildings and occasional pellets of the stuff fall to the floor from the tiny crevices along the edges of the facility.

And so, the college feels that in a world where many are still guided more by medieval myths than fact with regard to bats it would be in everyone's best interest to remove the bats from campus buildings.

That's where Laura Seckbach Finn comes in.

Finn wouldn't mind a bit if you said she was "batty"...she might even take it as a compliment.

A graduate student at the University of Central Florida, Finn is doing research on bats and their

Lake Mary fine-tunes sign regulations

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Like the proverbial prodigal son, sign regulations in the city of Lake Mary kept returning.

Several times in past meetings, the city commission has attempted to enact the ordinances only to have last minute questions come up causing final decisions to be postponed.

The three separate ordinances, 735, 737, and 748, were all scheduled for second and final readings at the April 6 commission meeting. At the very start however, all of them were postponed.

The delay was reportedly to allow the city staff to address three particular issues concerning electronic message centers, reader boards, and political flags.

In preparation for this Thursday night's meeting, City Planner Matt West, through City Manager John Litton, has supplied documentation explaining the various sign situations.

Regarding the political flags, West said the City Attorney has taken a position that the courts will not allow the city to regulate them. At times they

Longwood: Wide road ahead?

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Words like coerced, bullied and blackmailed were flying in the city commission chambers Monday night, as a small but vocal group of citizens vented their frustrations over the proposed Rangeline Road construction.

Under discussion was approval of the negotiated final design, construction administration fee and scope of services for Professional Engineering Consultants (PEC). The payment was not to exceed $243,450. After two other motions died for lack of a second, city commissioners Ron Sargent, Bill Winston and Jim Carico rejected a motion by Mayor Iris Benson to pay the lump sum fee. The commissioners then requested the firm to return with a phased cost breakdown including engineering fees for each phase.

The county set aside $800,000 for Rangeline Road from the penny gas tax earmarked for transportation projects. Numerous hearings have been conducted trying to get a viable design which would meet county standards while placating residents who objected to any widening of the road.

The road design features 12-foot medians along portions of the road with center turn lanes in some areas.

During public participation, several residents voiced objections heard at earlier sessions. Many residents see any change in the road as an invitation for more traffic funneling between Lake Mary and State Road 434.

It's time to stand up and tell the county to SANFORD — Sanford police are searching today for three men following a shooting Tuesday night near Fourth Street and Avocado Avenue. Alton Isaac, 26, was reportedly hit by only one bullet although police say as many as 20 rounds may have been fired.

According to police Commander Dennis Whitmire, Isaac and another man were walking on Fourth Street shortly before 9 p.m. last night, when Isaac was struck in the back of the head and knocked to the ground. Whitmire said officers have determined he was hit with brass knuckles.

Police believe there were three men involved in the attack against Isaac.

No injuries reported in jet incident

MIAMI — A jet with engine trouble returned to Miami International Airport shortly after takeoff, dumping some fuel and parts which caught fire in a nearby field, officials said.

There were no reports of injuries in the Tuesday incident.

The L-1011 operated by Faucett Airlines was headed to Lima, Peru, with 181 passengers and 14 crew members aboard. It returned to MIA after less than 15 minutes, said Manuel Fernandez, passenger service representative.

The jet lost fuel and parts from the faulty engine, according to airport spokesman Marc Henderson.

"I understand some of them fell just east of the airport and started a grass fire, a brush fire," he said. Metro-Dade fire officials said the blaze was quickly contained.

Fernandez said the airline has had no unusual problems with its planes and inspects them according to the FAA schedule, though he didn't know how often that was.

"This can happen to anyone," he said.

Language changes in court

MIAMI — The language in U.S. District court changed to Italian as a convicted U.S. drug dealer identified a man accused of Mafia associations for a three-judge panel from Sicily.

Aldo Madonia, 31, an Italian being prosecuted in Palermo, was lined up by the jury box Tuesday with three similar-looking U.S. court personnel for viewing by Joseph Cuffaro.

When Cuffaro pointed out Madonia, one of the Italian judges asked for a physical description of the defendant.

The proceedings were conducted in Italian with some English translations.

The lineup was created to meet Italian legal requirements for "more than just one-on-one identification," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Diana Fernandez.

Cuffaro, who was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison on a drug conspiracy conviction in West Palm Beach, testified he met Madonia in Palermo in 1988 to discuss a 600-kilogram cocaine shipment.

The purpose of the two-day hearing here was to establish Cuffaro's identification of Madonia, and photographs were taken of the lineup to support the court record.

Plane lands safely after bomb threat

TAMPA — A Delta Air Lines flight from Fort Lauderdale to Dallas-Fort Worth landed safely in Tampa after the carrier received a report of a bomb threat.

About 185 passengers on Flight 885 were evacuated Tuesday morning while explosive-sniffing dogs searched the Boeing 767. Nothing was found, and they reached their destination 2 1/2 hours late.

"The pilot came on over the speaker and let us know there had been a threat to the aircraft, and as a result we were going to be turning and landing back in Tampa," said passenger Greg Eisenhauer.

The jet was about 30 miles out over the Gulf of Mexico when the pilot turned back to Tampa International Airport, said Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Christy Williams in Atlanta.

Delta spokesman Todd Clay had no comment other than giving the flight number, saying, "We don't talk about any emergency procedures for security reasons."

Pistol range under court mandate

TAMPA — A pistol range was put under a court mandate to keep shooters from using portions of the facility after a bullet struck a house in a subdivision.

The court mandate, signed late Monday afternoon, prohibits the Tampa Police Pistol & Rifle Club from using the ranges that are not covered by baffles — concrete slabs suspended over the firing lines to keep bullets from escaping.

Hillsborough County sheriff's officials had asked the range to voluntarily stop all shooting after a bullet struck a house last Friday.

Amputee's lawsuit settled

TAMPA — A woman who lost her leg in a freak accident at a convenience store has settled her lawsuit for $5.3 million.

Michelle Koenig, 39, had stopped at her husband's restaurant next door to the drive-thru Majik Market in Brandon in September 1993. As Koenig walked to the market, an Aerostar van jumped the curb and struck her, sending her through a plate glass window and pinning her legs to a wall.

Her right leg was amputated at the knee. Her left leg was crushed.

Over 18 days at Tampa General Hospital, Koenig underwent six operations. She returned for two more surgeries in the following 18 months.

Last month, Koenig settled her case against E-Z Serve Convenience Stores, which owns Majik Market, for $4 million. She also settled with the driver of the Aerostar, Luz Teran, for $100,000. On Friday, the owner of the store location, Business Properties Ltd., settled for $1.2 million.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

FSU's foot locker scandal Bill aims to prevent repeat of actions

By ADAM YEMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers want to tighten regulations of sports agents to prevent a repeat of the embarrassing Foot Locker scandal that tarnished Florida State football.

Athlete agents would be required to pass an examination before the state licensed them under the bill (SB 2338) approved Tuesday by the Senate Governmental Reform and Oversight Committee.

The bill is headed next to Senate Ways and Means. A similar House bill (CS-HB 1807) sponsored by Rep. Jim King, R-Jacksonville, is in House Finance and Tax and will then go to Appropriations.

Sen. Ken Jenne, D-Fort Lauderdale, said the legislation might not have stopped the controversy at Florida State that resulted in the arrests of five would-be agents, who provided gifts and cash to Florida State players during the team's 1993 national championship season.

"I don't want to see for a university like Florida State another embarrassment," said Jenne, who sponsored the bill. "I think the state needs to respond to it and respond very well."

"Does it solve all the problems? No. But does it put people on notice? Absolutely."

A group of would-be agents took players on a $6,000 shopping spree at a Foot Locker store at a Tallahassee mall in late 1993, providing cash and other gifts.

A handful of players, including All American linebacker Derrick Brooks, were suspended for several games at the start of last season.

The legislation would require prospective agents to be 18 or older, have a high-school diploma and pass an examination about NCAA rules and other laws and regulations.

They also would face a criminal records check and have to post a $15,000 bond with the state.

The bill allows a university or college to sue an agent who violates the proposed law.

It also increases the penalty on student athletes who fail to provide the required notification of entering a contract with an agent from a first-degree misdemeanor to a third-degree felony, punishable by up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

"Today, anybody here in this building can be an agent as long as they can find a client. They have to know nothing about what they're doing," said Chuck Ehrhardt, Florida State's faculty representative to the NCAA. "People's financial well being and their professional future really are in the hands of incompetents."

Oratorical contest zone winners

Four area contestants were the winners in the Optimist Oratorical Zone Contest held Saturday at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. These contestants will advance to regional competition to be held Saturday, at 2 p.m., at the chamber. Regional winners will go to Tallahassee in May to compete in the district finals for $1,500 scholarships. Zone winners are (from left): Tarry McKinny, Lakeview Middle School, Sanford; Ben Peltonson, Rock Lake Middle School, Longwood; Erin Dyer, Rock Lake; and Shannon Fauvier, Lakeview.

Health care companies unite in deal

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — The rapid consolidation of the health care industry continued with the announcement that Coram Healthcare Corp. will buy Lincare Holdings Inc. for $1.1 billion in stock.

Coram, based in Denver, is the national leader in home intravenous care, the administration of home drugs and liquid nutrition to patients with cancer, AIDS and other serious illnesses. It also provides other home care services such as nursing and medical equipment.

Lincare, based in Clearwater, west of Tampa, is the second largest provider of home respiratory therapy — oxygen, ventilators and drugs.

James M. Sweeney, Coram's chairman and chief executive officer, predicted Tuesday the combined company will have annual revenues of $1.5 billion by next year.

The deal continues an industry trend of acquisitions and mergers among health care providers as they seek to offer more competitive deals to managed care groups, such as health maintenance organizations.

HMOs, which provide comprehensive care for a flat annual fee, demand discounts from drug companies, doctors, hospitals and other care providers with whom they do business.

HMOs prefer caring for patients at home because it's cheaper than hospitals, but historically the home care industry has been scattered among numerous small providers, making large contracts at discount prices difficult.

Coram was created last year through the merger of four health care companies. It took the lead in home intravenous care in January when it bought Caremark International's intravenous business for $310 million. At the time, Coram predicted annual revenues of $900 million, up from $450 million in 1994.

Lincare is a former subsidiary of Union Carbide Corp., which formed it in 1972. It achieved independence in 1990 in a management buyout.

On Tuesday, Sweeney said the Lincare acquisition will enable Coram to expand its treatment programs beyond cancer and AIDS to diseases that include respiratory problems.

"We've got the scale to have a seat at the managed care table," said Sweeney.

Lincare, which provided respiratory services to 60,000 patients in 35 states, will be able to expand its presence to more than 96 percent of the country, which is currently served by Coram, the companies said.

Lincare, which had revenues of about $200 million last year, will act as a subsidiary of Coram.

"We have a real win-win situation here from the standpoint of the marketplace," said James Kelly, chairman of Lincare, who will become vice chairman of Coram. For instance, the company will be better able to serve those with complex respiratory diseases such as asthma and cystic fibrosis, he said.

"Patients with these diseases need intravenous drug and nutritional therapies as well as respiratory therapy," he said.

Under the deal, Coram would give Lincare stockholders 1.54 shares for every share they own. At Monday's closing price of $25 a share for Coram, that values Lincare at $38.50 a share or nearly $1.1 billion.

The transaction, expected to close in July, is subject to regulatory approval and the stockholders of both companies.

The deal comes less than two months after another big home health care merger. On March 2, Homedco Group Inc. and Abbey Healthcare Group, both in California, announced a merger to create a $1 billion a year company that would be the largest home respiratory care provider.

POLICE BRIEFS

Pot possession

Erakine Jermaine Howard, 22, 2450 W. 18th St., Sanford, was charged with possession of cannabis with intent to distribute by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Friday.

Deputies said Sheriff Don Eslinger, acting as an assisting unit, was making a traffic stop when he told the occupants he could smell marijuana in the car and he asked them to exit the vehicle. He reported Howard concealed something in his pants.

Deputies found money and nine baggies containing a green leafy substance hidden there.

The substance later tested positive as marijuana. Howard was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $3,000 bond.

Schools hit

Five separate incidents at area schools brought sheriff's investigators out in the past week.

Monday, a teacher at Woodlands Elementary School in Longwood reported her wallet, valued at $85 had been stolen from her classroom.

Attempts to break in to two separate classrooms were reported Monday at Rock Lake Middle School in Lake Mary. Both doors were damaged but no entry was believed to have been made.

A purse with papers valued at $105 was reported stolen Monday from the multi-purpose room of Lake Mary High School.

Last Thursday, a calculator was reported stolen from a student's book bag at Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary.

Last Tuesday, students were found shooting water balloons with a slingshot, at Rock Lake Middle School near Longwood.

Major burglary

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a burglary and robbery at a home Monday in the 400 block of S. Winsome Court near Lake Mary. Deputies said the home had been ransacked with an estimated $23,030 in items reported missing. The burglar also stole a white 1994 Toyota pickup, license number QK-898, parked in the garage of the home.

Wrong name - 1

On April 14, Sanford police arrested a man at 314 Rachelle Avenue identified as Hal Laveen Cook, at his residence, following a domestic dispute. He was arrested for battery, domestic violence. Monday however, sheriff's deputies discovered he had reportedly given his brother's name during the arrest and the man's real identity was Art M. Cook. Police located him at his residence Monday and returned him to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was re-booked under his true name on a charge of battery, domestic violence. He was also charged with obstruction by disguise.

Wrong name - 2

Sheriff's deputies re-arrested Daryl Curtis Horne, 35, of 101 Denise Street, Oviedo on Monday. During an undercover drug sting on April 12, deputies arrested a man originally identified as Curtis Johnson, on a charge of sale and delivery of counterfeit controlled substance.

Monday, deputies discovered the man's true identity was Daryl Curtis Horne rather than Curtis Johnson. Deputies have since re-filed his arrest report with the true identity. He has now been given an additional charge of obstruction of justice by a disguised person.

Thief drugs

Longwood police arrested Rosalia Beltran, 24, of Brooklyn, N.Y., at a store on U.S. Highway 17-92 on Monday. She had been accused of attempting to take $28.96 in various sun tan products from the store without paying. During a search of her purse, officers said they uncovered a white powder, which ultimately proved to be cocaine. She was charged with petit theft, and possession of a controlled substance (cocaine).

Traffic stops

Ricardo Rodriguez, 35, 155 Bedford Court, Sanford, was stopped by Longwood police Monday on CR-427. She was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license. Police said his license had been suspended or revoked a total of ten times since December, 1990.

Shadrack Benedict Prieth, 26, of Hobe Sound, was stopped by Lake Mary police on Third Street Monday. He was found to have had his license suspended or revoked a total of seven times. He was also charged with attached tag not assigned, and having no proof of insurance.

Leon Michael O'Quinn, 49, 911 Iron Bend Trail, Osteen, was stopped by Oviedo police on Station Street Monday. His license proved to have been suspended eight times. He was also charged with possession of cocaine and attached tag not assigned.

Missing girl, 12 found with man, 51

By CATALINA ORTIZ
Associated Press Writer

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Salvation Army Maj. Moses Reyes had no reason to think anything was out of the ordinary when a middle-aged man and a girl he said was his daughter asked him for help.

"She didn't look threatened or afraid," Reyes said. "It didn't seem she was with him against her will."

The pair attended the Salvation Army's Easter service and Sunday school class in Pomona. Saying he had rescued his daughter from the abusive home of his divorced wife, the man asked for food and a place to stay. The Salvation Army put them up at a motel and gave them food coupons and cab vouchers.

Then Reyes heard about a 12-year-old girl who had been missing from San Jose for nearly two weeks, and about her 51-year-old companion, a wanted man who had met the girl by way of a wrong number.

A tip from Reyes led police to the motel Monday night, where they found the girl, Tran Anh Vo, and Phillip Kent Phiko — who both said they were just friends.

Phiko remained in the Pomona jail Tuesday in lieu of $125,000 bail on a warrant charging him with felony child enticement. He faces up to a year in prison if convicted.

San Jose police flew to Pomona, 370 miles to the southeast, on Tuesday to bring back Tran, who was in good condition. She was in protective custody as a runaway and possible crime victim.

Tran is a middle school student from San Jose whose Vietnamese family describes her as shy and having few friends. Phiko is a sheet-metal worker from nearby Campbell. They became friends over the phone after he mistakenly dialed her number, police said.

Both Phiko and the girl said their relationship is platonic. "She's not been harmed or molested," Phiko said in a broadcast interview Monday night. "We're an odd couple. We are the oddest couple around."

He said that as the two became friends, Tran complained that she was "being hit." "She called one night, she just said 'Will you come and get me?'" Phiko said. "It was kind of simple like that."

Tran told Pomona police on her own that she and Phiko were only friends, said Lt. Larry Todd.

A San Jose police spokesman, Louis Quesada, would not comment on Phiko's allegation that Tran's family beat her — which the family denies — or on published reports that the girl told friends of unspecified problems at home. He said investigators were making sure there were no problems at the Vo house before returning Tran.

Tran disappeared April 5. She had told friends that she had a "secret admirer" named Kent, according to San Jose police.

When police began investigating, they found a phone number for Kent in one of Tran's notebooks and programmed into her pager. They called the number and got Phiko's wife.

She told investigators her husband recently left home after telling her about Tran. Last week, Phiko called his wife to tell her he was "protecting" a young girl and would not be coming home.

But when someone told Reyes about a missing San Jose girl who might be with an older man, he remembered the supposed father and daughter he had helped and called police.

Reyes said in a phone interview that Phiko gave him his real name, and that Tran identified herself as Kit Phiko. Phiko told him he and his wife had adopted the girl several years ago, but had since divorced. His former wife, he said, was in a relationship with a man who was abusing the youngster.

"So he wanted to get her out of that, and he was bringing her to friends, but he couldn't contact his friends as he thought and was out of money," Reyes said.

On Tuesday, Tran's relieved family prepared to celebrate her homecoming. They hung a "Welcome Home" banner on the front of their house and prepared a feast.

"They're very happy ... and excited that they heard news from Tran again," said her 17-year-old cousin, Thanh Lam. "They didn't know if she was alive or if anything happened to her."

"Now they just can't wait to see Tran again."

Making the most of surroundings

People who live in Florida are blessed. People drive hundreds and thousands of miles just to visit the tourist attractions we have.

In the Sanford area, we perhaps have even more to be pleased about in attractions. We are almost in the center of a triangle between the Disney attractions, the Space Coast attractions, and Daytona Beach's "Worlds most famous beach."

But let's face facts. Except for going to the beach, almost everything else costs a great deal of money. In some cases, more than relatively low income people can afford.

It has been discussed many times, a family of five visiting an attraction such as Disney World may spend as much as $1,000 per day including food and lodgings.

Some families save for a whole year just to take the young 'uns there for a few days.

But for some who think and plan on family outings, there are many things to do which are either free or cost only a small amount of money.

Museums and the zoo come to mind immediately. This is not only entertainment for everyone in the family, but it's an excellent form of education. Children as well as their parents can learn a great deal about nature at the zoo, and about history at the museums.

We have two excellent museums in Sanford, the Sanford Museum on East First Street, and the County Museum at Five Points.

We can't overlook water activities. There are several places locally to launch boats. If a family doesn't own one, there are boats and canoes for rent with prices most reasonable.

Within just a few miles, there are many parks to visit. Some charge a small entrance fee. Others are free. Most of them have excellent facilities for the entertainment of the very young as well as barbecue pits and picnic tables for everyone.

Scenic drives are also relatively inexpensive. We have several scenic destinations accessible from here.

How long has it been since you drove on the northern shore of Lake Monroe on Enterprise Road through the scenic drive, or dared to venture from Osteen to the east coast beaches by taking the unpaved Maytown Road from Osteen?

There are many roads in Seminole County which also offer an adventure in motoring as well as many surprises along the route.

For those who can afford it, we are pleased to be in the center of some of the finest tourist and visitor attractions in the entire nation. But for those who can't, all it takes is some innovative ideas and just a little money, and we can create our own favorite tourist spots.

We are blessed with what we have. Enjoy life in this area of Central Florida. It doesn't have to cost hundreds of dollars a day.

Salaried politicians

It was with great anger that I read that some fool on the city charter committee recommended that commissioners and mayor be paid a full-time salary.

With the city needing at least 20 to 30 more police officers to patrol our streets and answer calls, I find it galling that some nut is pushing for such a change. Everyone in this city knows that our commissioners and mayor do little enough for the money they do receive without them trying to live off the public purse. One can only assume that whoever floated this piece of dung has more than just a passing interest in its outcome.

In this day when people are so sick and tired of this kind of theft from the public coffers, it is a wonder that the citizens do not string up such individuals from the corner light pole.

What the charter committee should be considering instead is cutting the existing salary the commissioners and mayor receive in half, and have an age cutoff of 70 years to run for office. For these people to sit around on their duffs and act like a bunch of vampires sucking the lifeblood out of our community is unconscionable. We citizens pay the highest of taxes, and these taxes are not to be used as if they were these people's private piggy banks. Whoever tabled this idea sorely needs a lesson in moral responsibility, and should remember that nothing which is morally wrong can ever be politically right.

The sordid tales statistics tell

"There are three kinds of lies," Mark Twain famously remarked. "Lies, damned lies and statistics."

The humorist's observation comes to mind this week after reading news stories quoting a report in which two University of Massachusetts physicians claim that the yearly deaths of nearly 6,000 babies and 115,000 fetuses are attributable to mothers who smoke.

This report, authored by Drs. Joseph DiFranza and Robert Law, and published in this month's Journal of Family Practice, borders on fraud.

According to the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, roughly 31,000 fetuses die before delivery each year and 22,000 newborns. Even if every one of these deaths is smoking-related, they would not add up to the figures cited by DiFranza and Law.

That's not all. The Institute published a study this year that compared the survival rates of low birth-weight babies of smoking and non-smoking mothers. It found that the babies of smoking mothers actually had a HIGHER survival rate.

DiFranza and Law might have learned this if they had done some genuine research. But in concocting their report, they didn't bother to examine even one mother or baby. Instead, they arrived at their statistical findings by sifting through studies that other researchers have done over the past 40 years or so.

It seems clear that DiFranza and Law have ginned up their exaggerated figures to provide the anti-smoking lobby with more ammunition to use against the tobacco industry. But even those of us who don't smoke, who are persuaded that smoking poses a serious health risk, have to be put off by the questionable use of statistics to make the case against tobacco.

This is not the first time we have seen statistics misrepresented to advance political causes. Indeed, in recent years, liberal groups in particular have made a cottage industry of contrived statistics.

Even if every one of these deaths is smoking-related, they would not add up to the figures cited by DiFranza and Law.

In 1993, for instance, gun-control advocate Arthur Kellermann, of Aitania's Emory University, published a study in the New England Journal of Medicine, which not only concluded that guns afford their owners "no protective benefit," but also that they pose a danger to members of a household.

Kellermann based his findings on 388 households in which gun-related homicides took place. His study conveniently ignored the fact that homicides do not take place in the vast majority of gun-owning households.

Date rape also has been the subject of an alarmist survey, authored by feminist Mary P. Koss, a professor of psychology at the University of Arizona.

Koss's survey, sponsored by Ms. magazine and funded in part by the National Institute for Mental Health, claimed that one in four college co-eds had been the victim of a rape or attempted rape on at least two occasions by the time they turned 21 years old. She also estimated that one of six female collegians suffer a rape or attempted in the course of a school year.

If those numbers sound too high to be true, it's because they are.

These are authentic social problems. They needn't be exaggerated by misleading statistics.

Concern with quality of marriage

NEW YORK — Have you heard the one about the 95-year-old couple who went to divorce court after 70 unhappy years of marriage? The judge asked them why they hadn't split long ago? The couple said, "We were waiting for the children to die."

It's a joke that made the rounds back in the 1970s, when cultural barbs were pointed at people who stayed together "for the sake of the children." But when I recycled this oldie to luncheonates at a recent conference on marriage held by the Council on Families in America, they'd never heard it.

What does it mean when an old joke gets new laughs? That we've probably passed through an entire generation of humor, a full cycle of attitudes, a whole swing of the pendulum.

It turns out that "staying together for the sake of the children" is very much on the minds of council members — an impressive collection of scholars, think tankers, and culture watchers who range politically from mid-left to mid-right. Together, they have cobbled together a report on "Marriage in America" which is also a report on unmarried in America.

Their central point is that "the divorce revolution — the steady displacement of a marriage culture by a culture of divorce and unwed parenthood — has failed." It's failed children. And it's time to turn our attention back to strengthening marriage.

In many ways this report constitutes a brave leap into the mainstream, middle-class heart of the family matter. In the ongoing family values debate, Americans have so far pointed their collective finger at relatively easy targets like unwed mothers and disappearing dads. Indeed two of the council's members — Barbara Whitehead who wrote the provocative "Dan Quayle was Right" piece for the Atlantic and David Blankenhorn, author of "Fatherless America" — helped create that consensus.

But in sheer numbers, divorce is the chief culprit in the breakup of the family and the deteriorating well-being of children. And we have indeed been, as the report says, "curiously silent on the subject of marriage."

In an era when every other marriage ends, the extent of divorce has served to stifle us. Even Dan Quayle, in a second "Murphy Brown" speech last fall, insisted "I'm not talking about a situation where there is a divorce. ... His own grandmother was divorced, he demurred, as were half of his cousins. Not to mention an entire roster of "pro-family" Republican leaders from Gramm to Dole to Gingrich.

We're also silent because divorce strikes at a central conflict between two sets of American values. One is the value we place on individual freedom, on striking out and starting over, on the pursuit of happiness. The other is the value we place on commitment, building communities and stable families.

The report on marriage is unequivocally and unapologetically written from the perspective of children. The stated goal is to increase the number of children growing up with both parents.

But what's missing from this pro-marriage advocacy is the view of marriage as a relationship as well as a child-raising institution. It's worth noting that in the entire treatise, the word "love" only comes up once in a bloodless reference to "the love attachments of marriage."

At the conference, Sylvia Hewlett of the National Parenting Association acknowledged, "There is a real trade-off between adult choice and child well-being." But the report tiptoes around this trade-off by talking about divorces that "may occur simply because one partner is unhappy or because a better partner has been located."

William Galston, an outgoing member of the White House Domestic Policy Council, praised the authors of the report for having "the courage to say that middle-class parents who blithely divorce" are every bit as damaging to their children as unwed 17-year-olds.

At the height of the "divorce revolution" Americans may have falsely comforted themselves with the idea that children were better off in broken than warring homes. In the counterrevolution, we can't wish away marital problems as trivial.

There is more than enough intellectual firepower among the council members to jump-start an important national conversation about marriage and how society can support it. Their laundry list of recommendations ranges from the worthy to the wishful, from a simple plea that the entertainment industry stop glamorizing infidelity to a controversial suggestion that legislators reconsider no-fault divorce laws.

But if we're to rebuild a culture of marriage that works for adults and children, we have to be as concerned with the quality as with the longevity of marriage. One of the scholars here said, "We decided to put relationships between men and women off to the next report." That may not be so easy for the men and women themselves.

It turns out that "staying together for the sake of the children" is very much on the minds of council members.

Earth Day is embarrassing for Clinton

WASHINGTON — Earth to President Clinton: Your environmental bureaucracy needs a reality check.

The 25th anniversary of Earth Day is less than a week away. Yet two memos we've obtained — from different corners of the administration's environmental world — suggest that planning for the event has ranged from sloppy to surreal.

The first memo comes from the Environmental Protection Agency, which has come under largely unjust criticism from congressional Republicans for overzealous regulatory practices. The memo, a five-page legal opinion citing case laws and environmental statutes, was drafted by agency lawyers in response to a pressing dilemma: Whether to buy pencils or mugs bearing the EPA logo for public distribution on Earth Day.

Earth to President Clinton: Your environmental bureaucracy needs a reality check.

Involving the Clean Air Act, the National Environmental Education Act and the Pollution Prevention Act, EPA's legal eagles finally determined that the agency is, in fact, allowed to buy pencils, pens, magnets, posters and other trinkets for the public. The same permissiveness does not extend to mugs, T-shirts, scarves or tote bags.

It seems pencils — but not mugs or scarves — meet the so-called "necessary expense" test because they're cheap and "convey a message or information in an authorized Agency function." Although the other items would also convey an appropriate, or "authorized" message, they were disallowed because the agency thinks it's a waste of money to buy something that the public actually might want.

"The link to a legitimate function of the Agency becomes more attenuated with respect to mugs and T-shirts because of their higher cost and the fact that they have a useful purpose separate from the message they convey," the opinion reads. With that weighty issue now settled, agency officials have issued new pencil-purchasing guidelines in preparation for Saturday's events.

Clinton administration officials might have avoided an embarrassing mishap had they devoted the same loving attention to donor solicitation as the EPA did to the mugs-vs.-pencils debate.

Three weeks ago, we reported on an administration memo inviting corporate contributors to give $100,000 to "Project Earthlink" in support of the administration's "Technology for a Sustainable Future" initiative. In return for their generous gifts, contributors were promised various goodies ranging from corporate name/logo recognition to inclusion in White House events.

White House officials told us they had not seen the memo before it went out, and quickly disavowed any notion that the Clintons were putting Earth Day up for sale to the highest bidder. "There is no one authorized to sell face time at White House events, period," a White House spokesman told us.

An official of Project Earthlink, a public/private partnership of 13 federal agencies and outside organizations, told us the memo was never reviewed by any of the four ethics attorneys who help oversee the partnership.

Alas, the solicitation went unheeded. A spokeswoman for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which helps run Project Earthlink, says that no $100,000 donations were received.

This is small comfort to some.

Bats

habitats, including man made houses. She has built houses at various locations in Seminole, Volusia and Orange counties, including SCC, the Central Florida Zoo, Oviedo High School, the University of Central Florida and various private homes. One house, with several hundred bats, is occupied in Orange City. The others remain empty, save for an occasional family of squirrels or swarms of palmetto bugs.

Another of her habitats, at the University of Florida in Gainesville, has attracted some 2,500 residents.

Finn and her husband plan to begin the process of excluding the bats from their current habitat this weekend. They will begin installing gates through which the bats will be able to exit, but through which they won't be able to re-enter.

"I just hope the bats will move into the houses we have built (on north side of the SCC campus) for them," Finn said.

If they don't, she added half-jokingly, they may take up residence in the attics of some of the expensive homes just to the south and west of the college.

It will be several weeks before the exclusion is complete. They want to wait until the break between Spring and Summer classes before they completely seal off the habitat, for fear the displaced bats will be flying around the building in search of an entry and that they might be harmed by a frightened human.

"Until we can educate humans about bats, they will be afraid of them," Finn said.

Bats, especially at this time of year, are very particular about their habitat. With the summer, pups are on the way. To grow properly and quickly, the pups must have a home that is not too cool and not too warm.

"It has to be at least 90 degrees in there," she said.

Temperature probes hang from all quarters in the houses she has built. Attached to a computer, the probes give her important information about the homes. She is trying to regulate the temperature by leaving some homes the natural color of the wood, by painting some white and by staining some varying colors of brown. Some homes have been built with tin roofs.

To make the houses smell more like home, Finn has been hanging small bags of guano made from old panty hose, from the houses.

"We're just trying to find what works best," she explained. She hopes the bats, once they are completely excluded from the campus buildings at SCC will find the houses suitable and that they will move in.

Meanwhile, on the shores of Lake Monroe near the downtown business district, midges (small, blind mosquitoes) are beginning to hatch. At the height of the season, the bugs will swarm in such great numbers they will form living walls moving along the waterfront. Those who walk through the area at night will find midges in their hair, in their noses and in their mouths.

"The bats would love them (the midges)," Finn said.

Bob Casella, a member of the Sanford Historic Trust, suggested that the Trust erect bat houses along the waterfront. The bats, he said, would be an economical, environmentally sound way to deal with the pest problem that threatens any sort of waterfront development.

"The city tried the Martin houses," Casella said of the white bird houses erected along the water. "That didn't work. It's just insane that the city hasn't thought of an alternative."

The Martin houses were occupied for one season, but when the babies began learning to fly, many stumbled into the roadway on Seminole Boulevard and were hit by cars. The other Martins did not return after that.

Casella believes the Marina Hotel would have sold a lot more quickly if the midges did not cast such a shadow over the area.

"People come here and experience those things," he said.

"That's all they remember. The bats would get rid of that problem."

Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, said he does not believe bats are a solution to the midge infestation along the waterfront.

"Based on what I understand from the experts," Farr said, "in order to have a sufficient number of bats to consume a sufficient number of midges, you'd have bat feces everywhere. And (while bat guano is a fine fertilizer) you can't train bats to poop in a bag."

Farr also notes that bats on the waterfront would discourage visitors from coming to Sanford. Ignorance of the docile creatures, he said, would drive potential visitors out of town.

"I'm not sure we want to be known as the bat capital of the world," Farr said.

He did say that other chemical alternatives are being explored in an effort to rid the area of the midges.

Casella brought the bat idea to the Trust when he felt the city was not taking appropriate action to do something to get rid of the midges.

"The city should have done something like this a long time ago."

Jimmy Strachla, president of the Sanford Historic Trust, could not be reached for comment about the bat house proposal.

"I've got plans they can use," Finn said. "I'm just waiting for a call."

Finn said a bat house can be constructed for about $15. That, Casella said, is far less than the city spent on the Martin houses, which remain unoccupied.

Signs

include an American flag. The only regulations would have to be on flag pole heights.

As a result, the new ordinance being presented is silent on the political flag situation, except to limit the size of each political flag to a maximum of 50 square feet. Even so, West said the city attorney is not convinced that a square footage limitation would hold up in courts.

Reader boards have already been banned city wide, except in the case of theaters, gas stations, convenience stores and drive through restaurant menu boards.

In its present form, the new ordinance does not allow churches to have reader boards, although Grace United Methodist Church and Celebration Church presently have them. Grace United has submitted a request to the city supporting the allowance for churches to have reader boards.

On the electronic message signs, they will be permitted in C-1 and C-2 (commercial) zones with a maximum of one double-faced sign per parcel.

Various other sections of the originally presented ordinances have been stricken from this week's proposals. They include eliminating the requirement for a planter structure enclosing the foot of the base on ground signs. In its place, the ordinance calls for a low-maintenance finish which is compatible with the architectural style of the principal building.

Several additional businesses will also be allowed to exhibit reader boards, including auto service stations.

Ordinance 737 has actually been considered and tabled and postponed since November 1994. West has also submitted a number of changes on it, regarding the signs on the Lake Mary Boulevard Gateway Corridor.

All of the ordinances are again scheduled to be heard during this Thursday's commission meeting.

In a separate matter, the city commission will consider Resolution 509, urging the Seminole County Commission to maintain its amortization date of June 1, 1995 for all billboards which are nonconforming, as to height, size or construction requirements.

Lake Mary already has similar ordinances enacted, and plans to begin enforcing them on the June 1 date.

Prior to the regular meeting, the city commission will hold a special meeting beginning at 5:30 p.m., to hear a presentation and discuss the preliminary downtown redevelopment plan.

The regular meeting will begin at 7 p.m., or as soon as possible after the earlier meeting.

Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road.

Road

leave our streets alone," Daniel Burke commented.

City resident Nelda Pryor contended PEC had violated the terms of the original contract by submitting a proposal which is in excess of the $800,000 allocated for the project. The proposed design would cost $1,037 million, however, city engineer Fernand Tibbler noted $30,000 could be cut because a signal light which was left in the plan by mistake is no longer planned. By investigating alternative drainage and saving the existing pavement, Tibbler suggested an additional $300,000 could be shaved from the final figure. However, PEC said it would cost the city $17,704 for the drainage design which would not be paid from the county allocation.

Highland Hills resident Nadine Tolos requested a place on the meeting agenda to discuss Rangeline Road so she would not be held to the three-minute time limit of those voicing their views during the public participation period. She urged additional efforts be made to get an interchange from Lake Emma Road onto Interstate 4 to relieve the traffic on Rangeline.

As Lake Mary and Seminole County continue to approve subdivision developments and business expansion on Lake Emma Road, Highland Hills resident Joanne Rebello stated, the traffic problem will worsen, even with the planned four-laning of Lake Emma Road.

Some residents noted the county will try to force the city to widen Rangeline in the future to accommodate the traffic volume.

Benson suggested the engineering firm meet with city staff to discuss alternatives.

Tom Kelly, a co-founder of PEC, said the company would work with the city.

Frank Van Pelt, a county engineer noted Longwood's own comprehensive plan calls for the road to be three-laned by 1996 and four-laned by the year 2005. He said the $800,000 in county funding will be available until 1996. However, if the project is not underway by that time, it might be moved to the second half of the 10-year program with no guarantee the money will be available to complete the project.

In explaining his support of the engineering design, Tibbler noted, "I couldn't recommend it if I didn't feel it was in the best interest of the city."

The city commissioners noted the process has begun to amend the city's comp plan to remove any Rangeline Road widening. However, the plan would have to be OK'd by the state, which some people feel is unlikely.

explained that Operation Safe Journey was designed to remove dangerous drivers from the state's highways. One of the features of the effort was the DUI sobriety checkpoints. Other activities involved aircraft enforcement operations targeting high speeds and reckless drivers, and roadside checkpoint operations for various violations.
Over 130 FHP Auxiliary and Reserve officers worked with regular troopers to bolster the operation during this past holiday weekend. The following results were reported state-wide in the period from 8 p.m. Friday,

April 14, through midnight Sunday:

• A total of 32 arrests were made for driving under the influence (DUI) at eight specific sobriety checkpoints. At other locations, there were an additional 131 DUI arrests made.

• Uninsured motorist arrests - 843.
• Unlicensed or suspended drivers arrested - 427.
• Improper vehicle registration arrests - 142.
• Truck enforcement program arrests - 35.
• Other citations for various traffic offenses - 5,441.

• Written warnings for various traffic offenses - 2,014.
• Faulty equipment notices issued - 1,845.

Considering these figures, Col. Grimm commented, "Operation Safe Journey should prove to be a successful enforcement initiative if the first three days of the program are any indication."
The operation is to continue through May 29, through the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Most of the strong crackdowns were planned to be conducted during the two holiday weekends. The FHP has limited vacation time, suspended office work, and reassigned many special duty troopers. Everyone available was placed on patrol duties with others called in to assist.

The figures reflect only the results of this special project by the Florida Highway Patrol. A great many other arrests on traffic related charges were also made by various law enforcement agencies during this past holiday weekend.

Shots

"As Mr. Isaac was on the ground," Whitmire continued, "one of the men said 'what are you going to do now?'" The other man with Isaac reportedly had fled from the area.

Isaac reportedly got up and began to run toward his home in Lake Monroe Terrace. Whitmire said eight to 10 shots were fired at him as he began to run, by one, two, or possibly all three of the men.

The men eventually got into a car and continued to chase Isaac. Isaac reportedly was placed on patrol duties with others called in to assist.

Only one of the shots hit Isaac. He was struck in the lower right calf.

Whitmire said police believe they know at least two of the men who were involved in the shooting, and were launching a search for them this morning.

Teen driving restrictions hit wall of opposition

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Sen. Malcolm Beard said he would try to make repairs on his bill to keep teen-agers from behind the wheel at night after running into a wall of opposition from other lawmakers.

"It's been watered down so much I'm not even going to vote for it," Beard said Tuesday, asking the Senate Criminal Justice Committee to temporarily pass over the measure (SB 286).

Beard said he would work with the sponsor of a similar proposal (HB 2441) pending in the House Appropriations Committee to try to come up with a stronger compromise lawmakers can go along with.

The senate panel had excised new night-driving restrictions for 17- and 18-year-olds, and was grilling Beard on why 16-year-olds should face stricter limits.

The bill would have let 16-year-olds drive only from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. unless accompanied by someone over 21 who had been licensed at least four years. Currently, many 16-year-olds are eligible for regular licenses.

"The kids will respect it. I think they will cherish their license," said Beard. R-Seffner, a former Hillsborough County sheriff.

Backers, including Sandra Lambert of the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles, cited statistics showing 16-year-old drivers have twice as many crashes as any other age group, with most of the accidents occurring between 4 p.m. and midnight.

But Sen. Daryl Jones, D-Miami, said he would feel hypocritical voting for the measure when he recalled the thrill of getting his driver's license on his 15th birthday in Mississippi.

"That night my father sent me out to get him some hot dogs. It was a show of trust, but I was out, at age 15, driving around Jacksonville, Miss.," he said.

Jones said he would support tough measures.

even license revocation, for teens cited for driving violations. Sen. Ron Silver, D-Miami, backed that approach.

"I'm just troubled by the carte blanche approach that everyone 16 years old isn't qualified," said Silver.

Tiffany Bailey, 17, of Tallahassee, told the panel, "If you work at Winn Dixie, if you're under 18, you have to stop at 10 p.m. And what about the prom?"

"You're effectively telling every 16-year-old they can't be a waiter or waitress or busboy. They can't be a bag person at Winn Dixie because they don't close until 10 p.m.," said Sen. Robert Wexler, D-Boca Raton.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

UCF ties own state mark

ORLANDO — Alex Morales' single to centerfield in the bottom of the seventh inning drove in Brad King with the go-ahead run to lift the University of Central Florida to a come-from-behind 3-2 victory over South Florida at the UCF Baseball Complex on Tuesday evening before a season-high 1,114 fans.

UCF (39-8) won for the 28th consecutive time, which tied the school and state of Florida record that the Golden Knights originally set back in 1988. UCF will look to set the record at home against TAAC (Trans-American Athletic Conference) foe Mercer this Friday night at 7 p.m.

UCF will play its final home games with a doubleheader with Mercer at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Lake Howell graduate Brian Scutero (7-1) earned the victory in relief of starter, and fellow former Silver Hawk, Brian Gomes.

AROUND THE STATE

Grissom leads Braves

WEST PALM BEACH — Marquis Grissom singled home two runs in the fourth inning to finish off the Atlanta Braves' biggest inning of the spring in a 5-0 win over the Florida Marlins.

The Braves scored five runs on six hits and two Marlin errors. Singles by Chipper Jones, Fred McGriff, Dave Justice and Ryan Klesko produced two runs and a sacrifice fly by Charlie O'Brien got the third run home.

Lightning shock Devils

ST. PETERSBURG — Roman Hamrik scored his 12th goal, best among defensemen, and Cory Cross scored his first goal as the Tampa Bay Lightning kept their slim playoff hopes alive with a 3-2 victory over the New Jersey Devils.

Tampa Bay improved to 18-22-3, good for the 11th spot in the eastern Conference.

Randy McKay scored both goals for New Jersey (20-15-7), which remained in the fourth position in the Eastern Conference playoff race.

Panthers caged by Flyers

MIAMI — Eric Lindros scored a goal and had two assists as the Philadelphia Flyers handled Florida 3-1 to win their seventh straight.

Goaltender Ron Hextall remained hot for the Flyers, winning his sixth straight start, though he was hardly tested as the Panthers managed only seven shots in the first two periods.

AROUND THE NATION

"King" has surgery

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Retired racing great Richard Petty was listed in good condition Tuesday after surgery for prostate cancer.

Petty, 57, underwent about a two-hour operation at The Moses H. Cone Regional Cancer Center. His urologist, Dr. Ronald Davis, said there were no complications.

"I am pleased with the outcome of Mr. Petty's surgery," Davis said. "At this time, there is no evidence that the cancer has spread to other parts of his body."

Montana hangs it up

SAN FRANCISCO — Joe Montana didn't retire because of his wife's nagging or Marty Schotzenheimer's tough practices or the slim chances of getting to the Super Bowl, or anything to do with advancing age or declining ability.

For all the pundits who tossed around reasons why he quit, or should have quit sooner, Montana offered his own answer Tuesday.

"I reached the point where the day comes and you wake up and you realize it," Montana said. "It just came upon me all of a sudden. I wasn't as fired up about working out, I just wasn't looking forward to it as much. There were signs that said things aren't the same any more."

SAC champions again

'Hounds win 4th consecutive title

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Freshman second baseman Miranda Schultz's two-run triple highlighted a six-run sixth inning rally that sealed Lyman's 13-7 win over the Oviedo Lions and wrapped up the Seminole Athletic Conference softball championship for the Greyhounds.

It was the fourth consecutive SAC title for Coach Christy Tibbitts Bryce and the Greyhounds.

"We've been an up-and-down team all season and that scares me," said Tibbitts Bryce, who was married during last week's spring break. "I don't know what they're going to do."

"We have a tendency to play to the level of our opponent. And Oviedo is a good opponent. We expected a battle today and we got it. Fortunately, we finally started swinging the bats."

Through the first three innings, the Greyhounds had trouble with the offspeed deliveries of Oviedo starting pitcher Nicole Cooper. But in the top of the fourth inning, Cooper was hit in the left shoulder by a throw from the outfield as she reached first base on a single.

□ See Champions, Page B5

Lyman helped itself in its conference championship-clinching win over Oviedo Thursday with several key defensive plays. Leading 5-4 in the fourth, Lyman first baseman Anna O'Connor took a throw from catcher Jamie Sharp and caught Erika Rothschild (No. 21) off first base.

Balanced Rams rally by Leopards

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Carlos Colon and Rob Gaffert combined on a six-hitter and all nine batters in the Lake Mary lineup had a hit as the Rams rallied to defeat the Brooksville-Hernando Leopards 10-5 in a non-conference baseball contest Tuesday night.

Hernando (18-7) took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning and broke a 1-1 tie with two runs in the fourth inning.

But Lake Mary's offense came alive in the fifth inning as the Rams exploded for six runs. The local squad then tacked on three insurance runs in the sixth inning.

Colon (5-3) left the game in the top of the seventh inning when the Leopards got their final two runs and Gaffert came on to finish out the win.

On offense, all nine batters in the Rams lineup had one hit each, with Robert Veasey's solo home run being the big blow. Veasey finished the night 1-for-1 with two runs scored and one RBI.

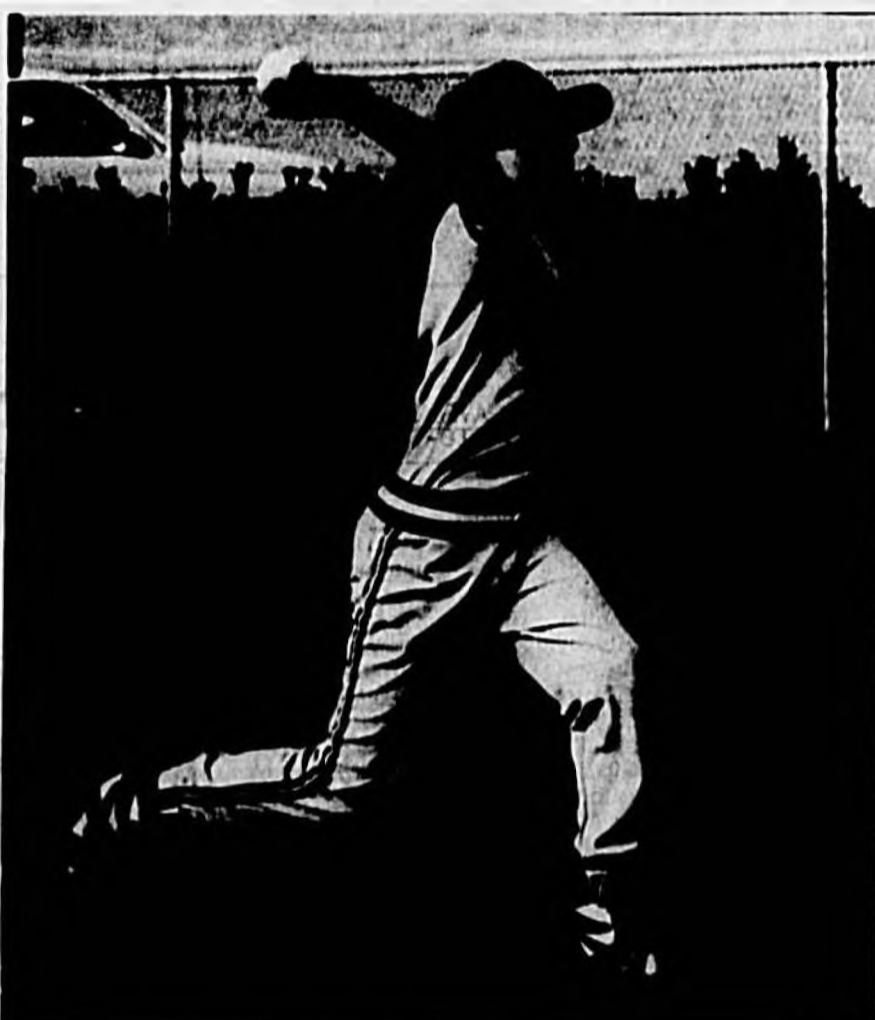

Nick Soza continued to carry a hot bat for Lake Mary as the big junior went 1-for-2 with a double, one run scored, and an RBI. Mike Buky also had a double in two at bats and scored a run. Luis Rivera doubled in three at bats and drove in two runs.

Also contributing to the Rams' attack were Carey Hobbs and Jay Reynolds (1-for-3, two runs scored and one RBI each), Scott Bryan (1-for-3, run, RBI), Rene Pores (1-for-3) and Chris Keibel (1-for-4, run).

Lake Mary, which improved to 13-10 with the victory, will host co-Seminole Athletic Conference-leading Lake Brantley in a conference game tonight at 7 p.m.

LM leaders post 7th wins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The D.A.V. Royals and Rinker Material Dodgers became the first seven-game winners in the Sanford Recreation Little Major Baseball League with crushing victories Tuesday night.

The Royals trounced the winless Fisher, Laurence, Deen & Fromang Blue Jays 11-2 at Roy Hollar Field, while the Dodgers exploded for 14 runs in the third inning to turn a 1-0 game into a 15-0 mercy-rule win over the United Trophy Expos at Lakeside Field.

In other games, the two-time defending city champion Sunniland Corporation Red Sox blasted the Cook Construction Indians 22-7 at Roy Hollar while at Lakeside, the Marlins broke a 5-5 tie with three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning and went on to trim the Enterprise Trucking Braves 9-5.

The Royals (7-1) lead the American League.

Raiders take deuce from Pasco-Hernando

From Staff Reports

NEW PORT RICHEY — Lisa Milanes delivered run-scoring doubles in both games of Seminole Community College's fastpitch softball doubleheader sweep, 5-3 and 10-2, of Pasco-Hernando Community College Tuesday afternoon.

The wins were the third and fourth in a row for SCC. Milanes, a graduate of Tampa-Leto High School, drove in one run with a double in the sixth inning of the first game and hit a two-run double during SCC's four-run rally in the first inning of the nightcap.

Also contributing in the first game were Amy Hamper (three singles, run, two RBI); Lake Brantley graduate Anne Freeburg (single, two runs); Angie Woessner (single, RBI); Lyman alumna Jamie Beland and Heather Hutchinson (one single each); and Michelle Cairns and Lake Howell product Tina Leman (one run each).

Hitting in the second game were Freeburg (two singles, three runs); Hamper (two singles, two runs); Jean Spanarelli (double, run, RBI); Beland (single, two

Gould notches second Bomber victory with late pass

By PAUL MARABELLA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — With two laps to the checkers, Darren Gould passed Bill Gibbons on the back straightaway to win the Bomber headliner last Friday night, April 14, at Orlando Speedworld.

Gibbons and Dave Waddell battled for the top spot from the drop of the green flag, Gibbons gaining the advantage on lap three. Two laps later, Waddell got around Gibbons and took over the point.

After several more laps of side-by-side racing, Gibbons regained the lead, only to lose it to Gould racing for the white flag.

Gould, who picked up his second win of the season, led Gibbons, Waddell, Rick Schlimmer, and Glen Castro to victory lane.

Bobby Sears led every circuit in the Limited Late Model main event to secure his ninth win of the year. Sears took the checkered flag 10 car-lengths ahead of Mike Todd, who finished in front of Paul Colgan, Timmy Todd, and Claude Collignon.

Wayne Clark, driving a Mini-Stock he bought from Bobby Sears, also led every lap as he raced to his first-ever feature victory. Kevin DiMeco held off a late-race charge by Keith French and R.J. Arnone to finish second. Jared Allison rounded out the top five.

Gary "Hot Shoe" Balough, piloting a new Late Model, the Ico Tire Co./T & H Electrical/Dunn Benson Ford, appeared to be well on his way to victory lane in the Late Model feature when he dropped a drive shaft with one lap remaining in the race.

Jimmy Britts, who had been running in the second position since the second lap, inherited the lead on the white flag lap and held off Bruce Everett to claim the win.

In tow behind Everett were Glen Carter, Eugene Anderson, and Craig Boyd.

Wayne Parker edged Kelly Jarrett at the flag stand by less than a car length to win the Modified headliner. Wesley Beggs was third ahead of Skip Honaker and John Wills.

Other feature event winners were Barbara Pierce (Sportsman), David Steele (Winged Sprints), Hank Sanders (Run-Abouts), and Chris Meyers (Mini-Kombers).

 Kami Lentus went to the mound and was roughed up by the Greyhounds for eight runs on nine hits over three innings.
 "They just started hitting the ball," said Oviedo coach Anna Hollis with a shrug. "I think having to change pitchers affected us. Nicole was doing well until she was hit with the throw. Kami's pitched well for us this season, but Lyman is a good fastball-hitting team."
 One run away from beating the Lions by the 10-run mercy rule, the Greyhounds had to work through a three-run rally by Oviedo in the top of the

What's Cooking?

Savor rich, creamy taste without guilt

Love cream cheese, but concerned about the fat? Well, now, you can have all those decadent cream cheese delights without the fat.

Kraft Foods Inc. has come up with a marvelously smooth and great-tasting cream cheese made from skim milk that is especially designed for lower fat cooking and baking. Yum yum! You'll think you have died and gone to heaven after tasting the following recipes which have been kitchen-tested by Kraft Foods Inc.

PHILLY FREE 8-STEP CHEESECAKE

Prep. time: 10 minutes
Cooking time: 45 minutes
3 pkg. (8 oz. each) Philadelphia Brand Free fat-free cream cheese, softened
¼ cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
3 eggs
¼ cup graham cracker crumbs
1½ cups strawberry slices or assorted fruit
Mix cream cheese, sugar and vanilla with electric mixer on medium speed until well blended. Add eggs; mix just until blended. Do not overbeat after adding eggs. Spray 9-inch pie plate with no stick cooking spray; sprinkle bottom with crumbs.
Four cream cheese mixture into prepared pie plate. Bake at 325°F for 45 minutes or until center is almost set. Cool. Refrigerate 3 hours or overnight. Top with fruit; drizzle with 2 tablespoons melted strawberry jelly, if desired. Makes 10 servings.

Variations:
Pumpkin: Mix ¼ cup canned pumpkin, ¼ tsp. ground cinnamon and a dash each of ground cloves and nutmeg in with cream cheese. Omit fruit.
Cherry: Omit fruit. Top with 1 can (20 oz.) reduced calorie cherry pie filling before serving.
Raspberry Swirl: After pouring mixture into pie plate, dot top of cheesecake batter with ¼ cup red raspberry preserves. Cut through batter with knife several times for marble effect. Omit fruit.

MARBLE BROWNIES
Prep time: 30 minutes
Cooking time: 40 minutes
1 pkg. (20½ oz.) light/reduced calorie brownie mix
1 pkg. (8 oz.) Philadelphia Brand Free fat free cream cheese, softened

7-LAYER MEXICAN DIP
Prep time: 10 minutes plus refrigerating

1 Tbsp. taco seasoning mix
1 cup each canned black

Try this fat free cheesecake.

¼ cup sugar
1 egg
¼ tsp. vanilla
¼ cup semi-sweet real chocolate chips
Heat oven to 350°F. Prepare brownie mix as directed on package. Pour into greased 13x9-inch baking pan. Beat cream cheese and sugar in small bowl with electric mixer on medium speed until well blended. Add egg and vanilla; mix well.

Four cream cheese mixture over brownie mixture; cut through batter with knife several times for marble effect. Sprinkle with chips. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until cream cheese mixture is lightly browned. Cool; cut into squares. Makes 16.

SPRING HAM LOAF
¼ cup packed brown sugar
¼ cup chili sauce
3 Tbsp. mayonnaise
1 lb. ground ham (about 4 cup)

2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup rolled oats
¼ cup milk
2 Tbsp. finely chopped onion
¼ tsp. pepper
Combine brown sugar, chili sauce and mayonnaise in small microwave dish; mix well. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 1½-2 minutes or until mixture boils and flavors are blended stirring once. Set aside. Combine ham, eggs, oats, milk, onion and pepper in mixing bowl; mix well. Press into ungreased 9x5-inch microwave loaf dish. Spoon about half of sauce over loaf, spreading to coat evenly. Cover with waxed paper.

Microwave (100 percent) 9-10 minutes or until center is set. Let stand 5 minutes. Remove to serving plate. Spoon remaining sauce over loaf; slice for serving.

LEMON PARLIED POTATOES
1 lb. new potatoes, scrubbed
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
Dash hot pepper sauce
1 Tbsp. snipped fresh parsley
Pare 1-inch strip around center of each potato. Place in 1-quart casserole. Add margarine. Cover. Microwave (100 percent) 7-8 minutes or until just about tender, re-arranging once. Add lemon juice, salt, pepper sauce; mix lightly. Cover and let stand

beans, salsa and shredded lettuce
1 cup (4 oz.) fat free shredded natural non-fat cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped green onions
2 Tbsp. sliced pitted ripe olives
Mix cream cheese and seasoning mix. Spread on bottom of 9-inch pie plate or quiche dish. Layer remaining ingredients over cream cheese mixture. Refrigerate. Serve with low fat tortilla chips. Makes 10 servings.

SPINACH DIP
Prep time: 10 minutes plus refrigerating
1 pkg. (8 oz.) Philadelphia Brand Free fat free cream cheese, softened
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed, well drained
1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained, chopped
1 cup chopped red pepper
1 cup nonfat sour cream
1 envelope Ranch salad dressing mix
Mix cream cheese with electric mixer on medium speed until

ready-to-eat pound cake
3 Tbsp. orange liqueur, optional
1 cup sweetened whipped cream or topping
Combine rhubarb, sugar, cornstarch and orange juice in 4-cup glass measure; mix well. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 5-6 minutes or until rhubarb is tender, stirring once. Stir in strawberries and a few drops red food coloring as needed. Set aside. Cut pound cake into 1-inch cubes. Arrange cubes in individual serving dishes or a 1-quart serving bowl. Sprinkle cake with liqueur. Spoon sauce over cake. Refrigerate several hours. Top with whipped cream just before serving. About 6 servings.

ASPARAGUS WITH ORANGE GLAZE
1½ lbs. fresh asparagus
1 Tbsp. water
1 Tbsp. honey
2 tsp. cornstarch
¼ cup orange juice
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Snip off tough ends of asparagus spears and discard. Wash spears and place in 10x6-inch or 9x5-inch microwave baking dish. Add water. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave (100 percent) 5-6 minutes or until tender. Drain and set aside. Combine honey, cornstarch, salt and orange juice in 1-cup glass measure. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 1-1½ minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Stir in butter. Spoon sauce over asparagus just before serving. About 5 servings.

Rhubarb is a harbinger of spring. Most anywhere north of Florida, rhubarb is grown in the backyard. It is available in our grocers now. This quick and easy dessert can be served in 30 minutes but flavor is even better if made ahead and refrigerated for several hours.

Combine brown sugar, chili sauce and mayonnaise in small microwave dish; mix well. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 1½-2 minutes or until mixture boils and flavors are blended stirring once. Set aside. Combine ham, eggs, oats, milk, onion and pepper in mixing bowl; mix well. Press into ungreased 9x5-inch microwave loaf dish. Spoon about half of sauce over loaf, spreading to coat evenly. Cover with waxed paper.

Microwave (100 percent) 9-10 minutes or until center is set. Let stand 5 minutes. Remove to serving plate. Spoon remaining sauce over loaf; slice for serving.

LEMON PARLIED POTATOES
1 lb. new potatoes, scrubbed
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
Dash hot pepper sauce
1 Tbsp. snipped fresh parsley
Pare 1-inch strip around center of each potato. Place in 1-quart casserole. Add margarine. Cover. Microwave (100 percent) 7-8 minutes or until just about tender, re-arranging once. Add lemon juice, salt, pepper sauce; mix lightly. Cover and let stand

beans, salsa and shredded lettuce
1 cup (4 oz.) fat free shredded natural non-fat cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped green onions
2 Tbsp. sliced pitted ripe olives
Mix cream cheese and seasoning mix. Spread on bottom of 9-inch pie plate or quiche dish. Layer remaining ingredients over cream cheese mixture. Refrigerate. Serve with low fat tortilla chips. Makes 10 servings.

SPINACH DIP
Prep time: 10 minutes plus refrigerating
1 pkg. (8 oz.) Philadelphia Brand Free fat free cream cheese, softened
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed, well drained
1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained, chopped
1 cup chopped red pepper
1 cup nonfat sour cream
1 envelope Ranch salad dressing mix
Mix cream cheese with electric mixer on medium speed until

ready-to-eat pound cake
3 Tbsp. orange liqueur, optional
1 cup sweetened whipped cream or topping
Combine rhubarb, sugar, cornstarch and orange juice in 4-cup glass measure; mix well. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 5-6 minutes or until rhubarb is tender, stirring once. Stir in strawberries and a few drops red food coloring as needed. Set aside. Cut pound cake into 1-inch cubes. Arrange cubes in individual serving dishes or a 1-quart serving bowl. Sprinkle cake with liqueur. Spoon sauce over cake. Refrigerate several hours. Top with whipped cream just before serving. About 6 servings.

ASPARAGUS WITH ORANGE GLAZE
1½ lbs. fresh asparagus
1 Tbsp. water
1 Tbsp. honey
2 tsp. cornstarch
¼ cup orange juice
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Snip off tough ends of asparagus spears and discard. Wash spears and place in 10x6-inch or 9x5-inch microwave baking dish. Add water. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave (100 percent) 5-6 minutes or until tender. Drain and set aside. Combine honey, cornstarch, salt and orange juice in 1-cup glass measure. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 1-1½ minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Stir in butter. Spoon sauce over asparagus just before serving. About 5 servings.

Rhubarb is a harbinger of spring. Most anywhere north of Florida, rhubarb is grown in the backyard. It is available in our grocers now. This quick and easy dessert can be served in 30 minutes but flavor is even better if made ahead and refrigerated for several hours.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB TRIFLE
2 cups sliced rhubarb
¼ cup sugar
1 Tbsp. cornstarch
¼ cup orange juice
2 cups sliced strawberries
Red food coloring, if desired
1 package (10½ oz.)

Cooking

2 to 2½ pounds turkey thighs, skin removed

Recipes follow for: Black Beans, Spicy Rice, Plantain.

In regular size oven cooking bag. coated with flour, add tomatoes, onion, garlic, cumin and salt. Squeeze mixture to combine. Add turkey, turn bag and squeeze to coat. Using plastic twist tie, close bag securely and place bag in 2-quart microwave-safe dish. Cut six ½-inch slits in top of bag. Cook in microwave oven at Medium-High (70 percent power) 25 to 30 minutes or until meat thermometer reaches 180 degrees F. when inserted into thighs. Turn dish halfway through cooking time.

Remove dish from microwave and allow to stand 10 to 15 minutes to allow heat to equalize. Transfer turkey and tomato mixture to bowl. Using two forks, shred turkey meat from bone; reserve turkey meat and discard bones.

To serve, place turkey in center of large platter. Alternate mounds of black beans and rice around turkey and garnish with plantain slices.

Black Beans:

1 can (16 oz.) black beans, drained and rinsed
½ cup reserved tomato juice
2 Tbsp. chopped fresh cilantro
1 Tbsp. each green pepper flakes and instant minced onion
½ tsp. dried instant garlic
In small saucepan, over medium heat, combine beans, juice, cilantro, green pepper flakes, onion and garlic and cook 10 minutes or until heated throughout.

Spicy Rice:
2¼ cups instant rice
2 tsp. olive oil
2¼ cups water
1 tsp. each instant minced onion and green pepper flakes
½ tsp. salt

In medium saucepan, over medium-high heat, saute rice in oil 3 minutes or until golden brown, stirring constantly. Remove pan from heat and slowly add water, onion, green pepper and salt. Return pan to heat, cover and bring to boil. Remove pan from heat and allow rice to stand 5 minutes or until all liquid is absorbed and rice is fluffy.

Plantains:

2 ripe plantains, peeled
Vegetable cooking spray
Cut plantains in half crosswise and cut lengthwise into ¼-inch slices.

Arrange plantain slices on 10-x15x2-inch baking sheet, lightly sprayed with vegetable cooking spray. Spray top of plantains with vegetable cooking spray. Bake at 425° F. 15 minutes or until lightly browned and crisp.

TURKEY IN SPICY NUT SAUCE

(Serves 6)
1 Tbsp. flour
1 cup chopped onion
1 tsp. minced garlic
2 to 2½ lbs. turkey thighs, skin removed
¼ tsp. cayenne pepper
1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) potatoes, drained and cut into ¼-inch slices
1 can (10 ounces) mild enchilada sauce
1 can 4 ounces) chopped green chilies
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
1 can (4 ounces) sliced black olives, drained
¼ cup chopped walnuts
1 egg, hard cooked, peeled and quartered

In regular size oven cooking bag, coated with flour, add onion, garlic, turkey and pepper. Place bag in (9-inch) square microwave-safe baking dish. Using plastic twist tie, close bag securely. Cut six ½-inch slits in top of bag. Cook in microwave oven at Medium-High (70 percent power) 30-35 minutes or until meat thermometer reaches 180 degrees F. when inserted into thighs. Turn dish halfway through cooking time. Remove from microwave and allow to stand 10 to 15 minutes for heat to equalize. Remove turkey from bone and cut into ½-inch cubes; discard bones.

In (7x11-inch) microwave-safe dish layer potatoes and turkey. In 5-quart saucepan, over medium-high heat, brown thighs in oil about 3 minutes per side. Remove and set aside. In same saucepan, saute onions 2 to 3 minutes, or until translucent. Add red pepper, salt, coconut, broth, tomatoes, black beans, squash, sweet potatoes and turkey thighs. Bring mixture to boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer 1¼ to 1½ hours, or until turkey thighs register 180-185 degrees F. in thickest portion. Ten minutes before serving, remove turkey thighs from stew and strip meat from bones with fork; return meat strips to stew. Heat throughout. To serve, spoon stew into bowls and garnish with bananas, green onions and coconut. Squeeze juice of lime over top.

CARIBBEAN TURKEY STEW

(Serves 6)
2 lbs. turkey thighs, skin removed
1 Tbsp. oil
3 cups thinly sliced onion
½ tsp. each red pepper flakes and salt
¼ cup sweetened flaked coconut

1 cup turkey broth or reduced-sodium chicken bouillon
1 can (16 ounces) each stewed tomatoes and black beans, drained
1 lb. each butternut squash and sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into 1-inch cubes

Condiments:
2 medium bananas, sliced
1 bunch green onions, sliced
½ cup sweetened flaked coconut
1-2 limes, cut in wedges

In 5-quart saucepan, over medium-high heat, brown thighs in oil about 3 minutes per side. Remove and set aside.

In same saucepan, saute onions 2 to 3 minutes, or until translucent. Add red pepper, salt, coconut, broth, tomatoes, black beans, squash, sweet

Wife's porn prohibition may hide her inhibition

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the woman who refused to watch a porn movie with her husband in a motel was a bit flip. Speaking as a mere man, it occurs to me that the woman might have some problems.

Most so-called "porn" movies that you can rent in motels usually involve nothing more than sex between a man and a woman. Is sex between a man and a woman always porn? Since the wife considered it such, I suspect she's a little inhibited. (I noticed that she couldn't bring herself to say that her husband wanted sex. She had to use the euphemism "get affectionate.")

Maybe she's one of those women whose mother told them that sex is dirty. And maybe, out of desperation, her husband thought a sex movie might stimulate her. Instead, she was turned off by the "dirty" movie.

Since she considered the porn movie degrading to women, is it possible she considers sex between a man and his wife degrading to the wife? If so, she's got a problem.

Was he pouting, as you suggested? Or was he withholding conversation, which his wife enjoyed as she was withholding sex — which he needed and enjoyed? And how come he's wrong to withhold what she wanted, but it's OK for her to withhold what he wanted? I think your answer skipped quite a few possibilities.

A MERE MALE IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR MALE: You raise some interesting questions. I have always said that what goes on between adults in private, providing it is mutually agreeable, is all right. And some couples find that adult entertainment enhances their marriage. But not everyone is turned on by the same thing.

Many women are threatened by porn films, believing they do not measure up to the good-looking bodies on the screen. It makes them more inhibited, not less.

Communication is essential for a successful marriage. How can there be closeness if husbands and wives cannot honestly discuss their feelings and their needs? Ideally, couples should be friends as well as lovers. However, if they cannot find a mutually agreeable solution to their problems, perhaps the impasse can be resolved through marriage counseling or some sessions with a sex therapist.

grandmother of the illegitimate child, really hit home.

After having four children from the first marriage, my mother had three illegitimate children. That was 47 years ago, when it wasn't as common as it is today. She raised us without child support or welfare payments.

We had friends whose parents didn't consider us as good as their children because we were born out of wedlock.

So, I really appreciated your answer, saying that "there are no illegitimate children — all children are legitimate in God's eyes."

Thanks a million.

Clinton argues case for re-election

WASHINGTON — Playing to television's equivalent of a near-empty house, President Clinton earnestly argued his case for re-election and disputed the notion that he's irrelevant in the Republican-dominated political debate.

"The Constitution gives me relevance, the power of our ideas gives me relevance, the record we have built up over the last two years and the things we're trying to do to implement it give me relevance," Clinton said forcefully at a news conference Tuesday night when asked about the major TV networks' lack of interest in the East Room event.

"I am willing to work with Republicans. The question is, are they willing to work with me," said Clinton, who has been eclipsed by the burst of activity from the GOP-led Congress in its first 100 days.

To the disappointment of the White House, CBS was the only one of the "Big Three" networks to carry his prime-time news conference live; CNN and C-SPAN did too. ABC and NBC showed hit sitcoms, instead, on grounds that Clinton's East Room appearance wouldn't be particularly newsworthy.

Global arms control

UNITED NATIONS — American diplomats dug in today for an "intense effort" in the coming weeks to turn the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty into a permanent, unchangeable charter of global arms control.

They will have to contend with Third World advocates, like Indonesia's Izhah Ibrahim, who first want to use the treaty — designed to stop the spread of atomic arms — to force the big powers to reduce their own arsenals.

Making the 25-year-old pact a permanent document "would mean the permanent legitimization of nuclear weapons," the Indonesian ambassador complained Tuesday in the second day of a historic, month-long U.N. conference to renew the treaty.

"It will thus lead to a permanent division of the world into nuclear haves and have-nots."

Vice President Al Gore topped the U.N. agenda today with a speech to reassure Third Worlders that the Clinton administration is committed to arms control, and to warn against loading down the treaty with new strings.

Trial goes behind closed doors

LOS ANGELES — Testimony stopped and the O.J. Simpson trial went behind closed doors as the judge ventured into the sequestered world of Simpson's jurors, quizzing them about personal and racial rifts.

With attorneys present but Simpson excluded, Judge Lance Ito moved proceedings into his chambers Tuesday and began hearing from jurors one at a time about reports of animosity raging within their cloistered domain.

With only four jurors questioned and 14 more to go today, the judge suspended all testimony until Thursday. He was also speaking with sheriff's deputies assigned to guard the predominantly black jury who have been accused of favoritism toward white jurors.

The inquiry into the jurors' conflicts was sparked by comments from dismissed juror Jeanette Harris about racial disputes and squabbles over trivial matters.

Pulitzer Prizes prized

NEW YORK — Tony Horwitz says he and Ron Suakind would have been voted least likely to win journalism awards back when they were roommates in grad school.

On Tuesday, the two Wall Street Journal reporters were awarded journalism's most prestigious honor — the Pulitzer Prize.

The other organizations that won two Pulitzers this year were The Associated Press, Newsday and The Washington Post.

The Pulitzer gold medal for public service went to The Virgin Islands Daily News, a 16,400-circulation paper on St. Thomas, for a series that explored the U.S. territory's high crime rate and exposed rampant corruption in its criminal justice system.

Horwitz, honored for national reporting, went to work on the "kill floor" of a chicken plant to report on "low-wage America." Suakind, Horwitz's colleague from the 1983 class of Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, won the feature-writing award for his look at the struggles and achievements of honor students at an inner-city high school in Washington, D.C.

Babysitter pleads guilty in child's death

DANVILLE, Ill. — A baby sitter who admitted feeding prescription sedatives to four children, including a toddler who later died, has pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter.

Christine Long, 25, also pleaded guilty Tuesday to child endangerment. The plea agreement guaranteed that Long would spend no more than five years in prison. Sentencing was set for June 23.

"She deserves more than that," said the children's mother, Robin Quillen. "Drug dealers get more than that."

Without the agreement, Long could have received up to 10 years in prison if convicted.

Quillen and her husband came home Jan. 2 and found their children sick. The youngest, 19-month-old Cory Cudney, was pronounced dead at a hospital.

Long and the other children — aged 2, 3 and 6 — were hospitalized several days for observation. Authorities first suspected carbon monoxide, then methane gas poisoning or viral infection.

Panic spread through the community as some people feared the children were sickened by an exotic, unknown illness. A few days later, Long admitted giving the children phenobarbital to calm them down.

Sweating out a long life
Latest study: Vigorous exercise extends life

By BRENDA G. COLEMAN
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO — To have a better life, get a little exercise. To have a longer life, sweat a little more — and step up the pace, researchers reported today.

The latest in a spate of seemingly conflicting studies found that to extend your life, you must exercise vigorously, not just in moderation.

For years, that was exactly what fitness gurus preached. Then research began showing that moderate activity helped people's health. Many exercise advocates — including the government's Centers for Disease Control and Prevention — started encouraging millions of couch potatoes to get up and do anything at all.

Now a study in today's issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association says moderate activity won't boost longevity.

Researchers examined 26 years of data on 17,321 healthy male Harvard alumni who graduated between 1924 and 1954.

"We found that only vigorous exercise was associated with lower mortality, and nonvigorous exercise did not at all reduce mortality rates," said Dr. I-Min Lee, an assistant professor of medicine at Harvard.

Vigorous exercise was defined as exertion requiring at least six times as much energy as resting. That included walking 4 to 5 mph, jogging, swimming laps, playing tennis or even doing heavy chores around the yard — if they truly were heavy chores, like building stone fences, "not just putting around," Lee said.

Men who had the lowest risk of death burned at least 1,500 calories a week on vigorous activities. That's equivalent to walking briskly 4 to 5 mph for at least 45 minutes a day, five days a week, or jogging at least an hour three times a week, Lee said.

Lee hastened to add that moderate exercise has many other benefits — improving quality of life, promoting physical well-being, enhancing the ability of older people to accomplish daily tasks, regulating blood pressure and averting diabetes.

"I don't want to dissuade couch potatoes from exercising," Lee said in a telephone interview. "I strongly believe that any exercise is better than no exercise. But for persons who can exercise at a higher level, why not do that? Because our data indicate they might live longer than other people."

In the study, the most active group of men had a 25 percent lower risk of dying over the 26 years than the least active men, Lee said. The researchers took into account differences in age, smoking habits, high blood pressure, diabetes and the early death of parents.

A 25 percent reduction in death risk equals the difference in risk between a pack-a-day smoker and a nonsmoker, or between a person who is 20 percent overweight and a person of ideal weight, Lee said.

Harold W. Kohl III, an epidemiologist for the Cooper Institute for Aerobics Research in Dallas, said the study "fits in nicely with 40 years of research on physical activity and health."

But Kohl was not entirely convinced that moderate activity doesn't extend life, even though this particular study fails to show it.

The CDC and the American College of Sports Medicine issued new recommendations in February emphasizing the benefits of even intermittent and moderate activity in reducing the risk of heart disease and promoting health. That includes climbing a few flights of stairs, gardening or playing with children.

Brisk walking — a vigorous activity in the Harvard study — is a "moderate" activity in the CDC recommendations. "Moderate to one person is not moderate to another," Kohl noted.

The CDC recommendations also said more vigorous activity is likely to have greater benefits.

Treading gently on issue fraught with risks

By YON RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's knottiest issue is affirmative action. No matter which way he turns, he threatens to anger an important constituency group. And that's why he can't seem to make up his mind.

For months, Clinton has been bobbing and weaving on the emotionally charged subject, one day defending the proud Democratic history of support for minority preference programs, the next day appealing to party liberals to be more sensitive to "angry white males."

One day he seems headed toward giving the entire matter over to a blue-ribbon panel. The next day not.

One day he suggests he's ready to jettison programs that are no longer effective and that encourage reverse discrimination. The next day aides suggest he's only talking about nibbling around the edges, and that it's unlikely he'll cut any of the more than 100 specific programs.

Clinton is trying to pre-empt a fierce GOP attack on set-asides and other affirmative action programs. But the path for him is filled with political risk.

He can't afford to alienate women and minorities who have benefited the most from these programs and who make up a major part of the Democratic core.

But as he seeks to regain his mantle as a moderate, conservative "New Democrat," he wants to avoid offending conservatives who are stoking the backlash against affirmative action, including those "angry white males."

Where he finally comes down on the subject will have a major bearing on 1996 election politics.

Clinton said during a prime-time news conference Tuesday night that the wrapup of the review he ordered "won't be long." But he once again displayed his apparent ambivalence on the subject.

"The earnings of male workers, including white male workers, have been declining when measured against inflation for years now," he said.

"On affirmative action, your principle should be we're all better off if everybody's got an even chance. If there is no discrimination, if people have the opportunity to live up to the fullest of their ability. But the government should never give someone who is unqualified anything over someone who is qualified."

Public opinion polls show definite support for programs that seek to eliminate present discrimination in the workplace, in education and housing, and in obtaining government contracts.

But there's less support for programs that seek to redress examples of past discrimination.

Affirmative action wasn't even an issue in the 1994 midterm congressional elections, nor was it part of the House GOP's "Contract With America."

But it was stirred up by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, right now the front-runner among those seeking the GOP presidential nomination. Dole, R-Kan., called for outright elimination of many affirmative action programs — putting the issue squarely on the list of 1996 presidential campaign issues.

High Court to review election districts with black majority

By LAURIE ASSO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The success of black and Hispanic candidates who run for Congress could be on the line in the Supreme Court's latest look at election districts drawn to give racial minorities more clout.

Disputes over black-majority election districts in Louisiana and Georgia have led the justices to clarify what they meant two years ago in ruling that election districts designed to help minorities may violate white voters' right to equal protection.

Federal courts relied on that 1993 decision when they struck down minority-dominated election districts in the two states last year as an unlawful racial gerrymandering.

The Clinton administration is supporting Louisiana and Georgia officials in arguing that states must be free to take race into account as a remedy for past discrimination and lingering racially polarized voting.

After today's arguments in both cases, the Supreme Court will issue a ruling by July that could have a major impact on future election districts for Congress as well as state and local governments.

The mostly white voters who challenged minority-dominated election districts in Louisiana and Georgia say such districts represent illegal racial stereotyping that harms minority voters as well as whites.

But civil rights lawyers say a decision invalidating those districts could spell the end of other minority election districts across the nation and a return to an almost all-white Congress.

The Louisiana case involves the 1994 map drawn for the congressional district served by Rep. Cleo Fields, a Democrat.

A three-judge federal court in Shreveport, La., threw out the district configuration last year, saying its "bizarre and irregular shape ... raises the inference that the Louisiana Legislature classified its citizens along racial lines."

Fields' district runs from northwestern Louisiana diagonally to the southeastern part of the state. About 63 percent of its voters are black.

The court substituted its own district that would place Fields in a white-majority district. The Supreme Court postponed enforcement of that ruling and allowed last November's election to be held using the state-drawn district.

Louisiana, with seven House seats, has long had one black-majority district in New Orleans. Fields' district was created to comply with the federal Voting Rights Act, and he was only the second black elected to Congress from Louisiana since Reconstruction.

The Georgia district now served by Rep. Cynthia McKinney, a Democrat, was challenged by white voters who said its unusual shape unconstitutionally took race into account.

A three-judge federal panel agreed, but the Supreme Court postponed that ruling's effect so last fall's election could be held under the invalidated plan.

McKinney's district stretches 250 miles across east-central Georgia with extensions reaching into Atlanta, Augusta and Savannah to bring in black voters.

Train passengers overcome by fumes

YOKOHAMA, Japan — More than 250 people were sickened today by a mystery gas released in an underground corridor at the main train station in Yokohama. Police said they believed it was a deliberate attack, but named no suspects.

The gas release came exactly 30 days after a nerve gas attack on Tokyo's subways killed 12 people and sickened 5,500.

Japan has been on edge since that attack. The religious cult that is the chief suspect, Aum Shinri Kyo, denied any involvement in today's case, and police haven't named any suspects.

At least 254 people were taken to hospitals when they complained of stinging eyes, coughs and dizziness after smelling a foul chemical odor at the train station, police said. Dozens of others also complained of illness.

Police, firefighters and chemical weapons experts — some in gas masks — checked the station, where hundreds of people reported foul chemical odors.

Kyodo News Service said a white liquid was found in a corridor, and a college student, Yuka Takaoka, said she saw firefighters clad in protective gear gingerly removing 20 or 30 small cardboard boxes from the station.

Officials said sarin, the nerve gas used in the Tokyo attack, was not believed to be involved today because the victims' symptoms were different.

Gaining weight the healthy way

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 14-year-old female, tall and skinny. I've tried every way possible to gain weight so I don't look so bad, but can't seem to accomplish this. I've eaten junk foods, fatty high-cholesterol foods, and have even tried to accept myself the way I look. Nothing seems to work and I'm really unhappy.

DEAR READER: During the growth spurt in adolescence, young people often appear thin and gangly, until muscle development and fat deposits catch up to the rapidly enlarging bones. This age is also one of high physical activity, so calories not used in the growth process are readily burned for energy.

If you're patient, your body proportions will eventually stabilize. However, in the meantime, you might be able to gain some weight by using a supplement, such as Carnation Instant Breakfast.

When mixed in a glass of milk, this product provides all the nutrition and calories of a complete meal. Use Instant Breakfast as a supplement, not in place of a meal. One or two glasses a day may be all that is needed. Such supplements are also available in ready-mixed forms, such as Ensure.

If, within a few weeks, you haven't started putting on weight, check with your doctor to make sure that a metabolic disturbance, such as an overactive thyroid gland, isn't the cause of the problem.

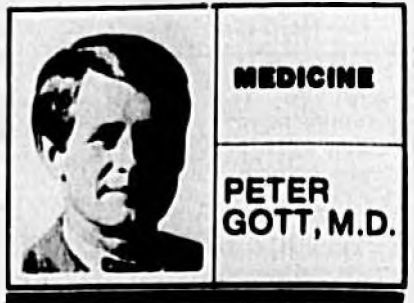

Remember that junk food may contain extra calories but, because of excess fat and salt, it is not healthful to consume in quantity. You'd be better off using a balanced nutritional supplement.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I dream all night long, often five or six dreams, one after another. I remember them all, down to each minute detail. Is this common? I often awaken exhausted from this old habit.

DEAR READER: All of us dream regularly; this is believed to be Nature's way of providing a problem-solving device while we sleep. Of course, we rarely remember our dreams in detail. Once we awaken, the dreams become merely forgotten thoughts.

However, some people appear to be able to recall their dreams in detail, especially if the dreams were particularly frightening or memorable. I don't know the reason for this, but it does not

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
In a movie, a scantily clad woman moves toward a closed door. If there is no danger, the music will be light and airy. But if she is in jeopardy, the soundtrack is appropriately tense. The audience is forewarned.

At the bridge table, half the cards are there for you to see and half are hidden. The snag is that no one supplies background music. You must watch for impending danger unassisted.

North opened one no-trump, as would all of us. South jumped straight to game, as would many of us.

West led the spade jack. After winning with dummy's king, declarer immediately played the ace and another heart. At this point, East rose to the occasion. He went in with the heart king and, in answer to his partner's accurate diamond-nine discard, switched to the diamond seven. Now declarer was dead, destined to lose four tricks: two hearts, one diamond and one club.

True, South was slightly unlucky, the trump break being bad and the defense good. But declarer might have tried to avoid a diamond loser. (Music played allegretto.) Taking the risk of a bad black-suit break, South should have won the first trick in hand and immediately taken a club finesse.

Let's suppose East wins with the club king and switches to a low diamond. Declarer wins in the dummy, plays a spade to hand and takes a second club finesse. When that wins, South discards his diamond loser on dummy's club ace. Then comes the ace and another heart. With this layout, the orchestra plays maestoso.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 30, 1995

Some interesting changes could come your way in the year ahead which you might initially resist. However, with time, you'll be happy things happened the way they did.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) To achieve your objectives today, you might be much more intense than usual. Temper your behavior and your words so as not to appear too dictatorial in the eyes of others. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail 02.27 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might feel an urgency today to liberate yourself from restrictive situations and arrangements. To do so, you might behave erratically.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extremely cautious today in any situation requiring a financial investment, even if it involves close friends. Red flags are up in this area.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to let outside influences sway your judgment today, especially in situations where you have to make decisions under pressure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even though you'll intend to get a lot accomplished today, it isn't likely that you will. Too many disruptions may distort your agenda.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Avoid calling upon someone you know socially to do favors for you in the business world. This person might feel you are taking advantage of him/her.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you do things in fits and starts today, you might not even complete an endeavor you should be able to take care of rather easily.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) It isn't unusual for you to take other people's ideas and improve upon them. Today, however, this might not work, and you could make things worse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Splurging, whether it's for yourself or for someone you love, should have its limits today. You mustn't go overboard to gratify a whim.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may be tempted to renege on a promise today that you made to a person who helped you recently. You won't like yourself later if you do.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you aren't careful today, you might unconsciously reveal confidential information to a probing acquaintance. What you say could be misused.

ARIES (March 21-June 20) Make a shopping list before leaving home today, even if you're just going to the local store. You may be inclined to buy things you don't really need. ©Copyright 1995 by NEA, Inc.
