A Helping Hand

Resident Questions Fairness Of 10-Hour Board Meeting

A 10-hour meeting of Seminole County's Board of Adjustment Monday night set nerves on edge for both board members and citizen participants. That meeting, with a 48-item agenda, ran from 6 p.m. to about 4 a.m. Tuesday, and included at least four items that stirred great public interest, but were not considered until early morning.

As a result some county commissioners have suggested the board consider more frequent meetings to cut down on the length of the agenda.

At least one Sanford resident, Billie Covington, P.O. Box 1435, has said to conduct business at such late/early hours was "a grave miscarriage of justice."

In a letter to the Herald, Covington described the situation this way:

"The meeting started at 6 p.m. rather than 7 p.m., which is the normal starting time, due to a long agenda. Therefore many people did not have a chance to go home and eat before coming to the meeting. There was one Coke machine and a snack machine. The snack machine was 'out of order.'"

"The board room has a seating capacity of 120 people. The Fire Marshall would not allow more than 120 people in the room therefore 200 people were waiting out in the halls and parking area."

"The seating capacity in the hall was approximately 50 seats. Therefore 150 people had to stand and mill around. About 10 p.m. the Fire Marshall decided these milling people were a hazard and unless seated had to stay

Screams Echo Across Mexico City

At Least 250 Killed By Quake; Thousands Trapped Under Rubble

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Fires burned through the night, casting a hellish glow over the city as rescuers raced to free screaming victims from hotels and skyscrapers crushed by an earthquake that killed hundreds, perhaps thousands.

The quake, measuring 7.8 on the open-ended Richter scale, rocked central Mexico at 7:18 a.m. Thursday as millions headed to work or school in Mexico City.

A Mexico City television station, Channel 13, reported at least 250 confirmed deaths and thousands of injured while government officials, emphasizing it was too early to issue any accurate figures, estimated casualties at 5,000 injured and several hundred dead.

The death toll was expected to rise as some 50,000 workers dug through piles of debris in search of an estimated 1,000 people trapped beneath the rubble of about 250 major buildings crushed by the quake and untold numbers of smaller buildings.

At least 3,500 people spent the night in government shelters, according to a Mexican television station, Channel 2. Another 2,500 people who were injured spent the night in hospitals.

Twenty-five people were killed when a church collapsed during mass in Ciudad Guzman, 275 miles west of Mexico City, El Informador newspaper in Guadalajara said. The paper also reported "extensive damage" in the nearby city of Colima.

In San Sebastian, Spain, the director of Spain's special fishing radio link said today that Mexican and Salvadoran navy vessels had reported five merchant ships and four trawlers missing in the Pacific Ocean 135 miles west of Acapulco.

"The Spanish crew on a Mexican tuna trawler told us the sea was wild. They said they saw 20-meter (65-foot) waves rising from the ocean," said Jesus Ferreira of "Onda Pesquera."

Bodies were pulled from at least seven major downtown Mexico City hotels that were completely destroyed — the Regis, the Diplomatico, the Versailles, the Di Carlo, the Principado, the Juarez and the Montreal. Major

SEA Suggests Return To Bargaining

By Jim Searls
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board and the Seminole Education Association appear to be on the verge of returning to the bargaining table, both hopeful of bringing an end to their stalled contract negotiations.

According to Ernest Cowley, chief negotiator for the school board, a letter has been received by the school board from the SEA stating their wish to return to the contract talks that were halted Sept. 4. At that time Cowley and the school board were unable to agree on terms for the contract with the SEA and declared negotiations at impasse.

Cowley said he received the letter shortly after the last school board meeting, Sept. 11, stating they (SEA) were "willing to go back to the negotiating table if the school board was agreeable to that proposal." Cowley said he will return a letter to the SEA Thursday agreeing to re-open talks.

"We have been waiting for them to come back and talk," he said. "We have felt all along that if they (SEA) wanted us back they should ask us back, it was their turn to respond."

SEA Uniserve Director Nancy Wheeler, upon hearing Cowley's comments said, "The SEA is ready to negotiate a creative settlement but we are not ready to roll over and die."

The school board, according to Cowley, received another letter yesterday from the Florida Public Employees Relations Commission containing a list of seven names to be used in selecting a "special master" labor negotiator who will mediate the dispute. Both sides in these disputes get identical letters, Cowley said.

Cowley explained that

Visitors to the Seminole County Courthouse are greeted with this warning.

Courthouse Tightens Security

Bailiffs scanning visitors for weapons may soon be a familiar sight at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford.

Starting Oct. 1, four bailiffs with hand-held metal detectors will monitor public access through two courthouse entrances and watch for suspicious-looking people. The increased manpower is the beginning of a beefed-up security system that will probably increase as the courthouse is renovated, said Lt. Robert Kunkler in charge of the sheriff's courthouse's division.

The bailiff, who will not be armed, are to be trained to detect potentially dangerous persons, how to deal with such people, and how to use the detection devices, Kunkler said.

On Oct. 1 the courthouse's north and south entrances will be locked. Only judges and law enforcement personnel will have keys to the doors. Everyone else going to the courthouse between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., whether employee or visitor, will use the building's east and west entrances. After working hours, the building will be patrolled by private security guards. County employees will have to show a county identification to get in. Other situations, after notification, will be handled as they arise, Kunkler said, such as people who need to attend a trial that has continued beyond closing time.

Courthouse personnel are protected during work hours by several armed deputies and 11 unarmed bailiffs.

The security measure is part of a plan to increase protection at courthouse to decrease the chances of a shootout as occurred in Orlando, January, 1985. In that incident, a bailiff was killed and a correction officer and another bailiff seriously injured when a man opened fire in a courtroom.

Lake Mary Approves Budget, 6% Tax Hike

The Lake Mary city commission unanimously approved a $1.4 million budget for 1985-1986 late Thursday that includes a 6 percent increase in property taxes.

The property tax rate will be $3.99 per $1,000 assessed property value, up 24 cents from the 1984-85 rate. At that rate the property taxes are expected to net the city $483,052 during the budget year.

Approved expenditures are $178,299 for administration, $168,116 for central services and $378,283 for the police department.

Final approval was also secured for the water and sewer budgets expected to bring in a total $587,942. A utility tax, tentatively approved, would place a 10 percent charge on each utility used by all residents, not just property owners. To be taxed are bills for electric power, propane gas (natural liquidified or manufactured), water, sewer, telephone, and telephones.

A 7 percent tax on all other forms of communication, such as car phones and beepers, was added. The combined utility taxes are expected to generate more than $253,947 for the year.

Few citizens spoke up at the breezy three and a half hour session in contrast to past stormy encounters over property taxes, the utility tax and various other ordinances.

Port Wants Water Tests Done Again

A claim by Lake Monroe Utilities that the Seminole County Port Authority has reached its capacity of 19,000 gallons of water and sewage use per day met with further resistance from the port at its Wednesday afternoon meeting.

"There is no way we generate that much sewage," Dennis Dolner, port administrator, insisted. Dolner said the port has requested that the utility company repeat their tests on the SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Female workers in the Hall of Justice are upset because probation officer "Victor-Victoria" can now use the ladies' room even though his sex-change operation is not to take place until next year.

To prepare for the surgery, Victor-Victoria is currently taking female hormone shots and has permission to wear women's garb on the job.

Victor-Victoria, 39, is a 12-year veteran of the department. Officials have declined to disclose his last name.

"I'm very uncomfortable with this," said fellow probation officer Gennie Nunley. "I feel my rights have been violated. . . "I can't go to the ladies' lounge and relax because this person still has a male sex organ. He's still a man as far as I'm concerned."

"The women were not consulted as to how we feel about it — we were told that this is going to happen and it is non-negotiable."

Other women probation officers have charged the decision by their boss, Ariene Sauser, is violating their civil rights.

Ms. Sauser said that before making her ruling, she consulted with a psychiatrist, a psychologist, the city attorney's office, the U.S. Department of Justice and the Civil Service Commission.

"I'm told that I have a responsibility to protect this person's rights," she said.

Ex-Deputy Sentenced For Cocaine ... Again

Possession of cocaine for the second time has netted a former Seminole County sheriff's deputy his second probationary sentence.

Oscar Redden, 39, of 1010 Mellonville Ave., Sanford, is already serving 10 months in the county jail to be followed by 5 years probation from a cocaine possession conviction in February. Circuit Judge Robert McGregor ordered the latest 3-year probationary sentence to run concurrently with the earlier sentence.

Redden was arrested April 5 in the latter case and charged with possession of cocaine after Sanford officers raided his home. At the time, Redden was out of jail on bond awaiting sentencing on a possession of cocaine charge stemming from an Oct. 31 arrest.

Sanford officers searched Redden's truck that day and arrested him while he was at the State Farmers' Market, 1300 S. French Ave., Sanford.

He pleaded not guilty in that case but was convicted Feb. 19 by a five-man, one-woman jury.

Redden was a sheriff's deputy in the late 1970s.

In other court action, a Sanford man was sentenced to 5 years in prison for the manslaughter of a Sanford man and battery to the dead man's brother.

Morris Sella Freney, 21, of 6 Cowan Moughton Terrace, was sentenced by McGregor who ordered Freney to serve 10 years probation after the jail time. McGregor also stipulated that Freney serve at least three years before becoming eligible for parole.

Police charged Freney with murder following the Sept. 1 shooting death of Luke Pringle, 33, of 80 Seminole Gardens, Sanford.

However, a jury convicted Freney of the lesser charges of manslaughter and battery. It was the second time Freney went to trial on the charges. His first jury was dismissed after it could not reach a verdict. Its members said there wasn't enough evidence to convict Freney.

According to court records, Pringle died before reaching the emergency room of Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, following a 10:30 p.m. shooting at the Westside Recreation Center, 821 Persimmon Ave. Pringle had been shot once in the neck. His brother, Willie 24, of the same address, was wounded in the back. He was treated and released.

Freney shot at the brothers during a fight, records show. He surrendered to authorities the next day.

McGregor ordered Freney also to pay his special public defender $2,500. —Valerie Reneta Ward, of 4740 Chestnut St., Sanford, arrested July 11 on charges of forgery, uttering a forgery and grand theft. She pleaded guilty to forgery and could receive up to a year in the county jail when sentenced Nov. 8 by McGregor.

—Alan Rodriguez, 21, Jacksonville, arrested June 1 at Fern Park Station, Fern Park, pleaded guilty to possession of over 20 grams of marijuana. He could receive up to a year in the county jail when sentenced Nov. 8 by McGregor.

—Charles Carlton Sessions, 55, living in a camper at the Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters, Casselberry, arrested May 20 on charges of aggravated assault after chasing VFW patrons with an ax and fishing knife. He was sentenced by McGregor to 1½ years in prison with credit for 120 days served. The judge ordered Sessions to serve 3½ years probation after the prison time.

—Maxine Mae Page, 57, of 701 Briarcliff Ave., Sanford, pleaded guilty to trying to obtain a controlled substance by fraud. She tried July 7 in Sanford and Orlando to get medicine with forged prescriptions, court records show. She could receive up to a year in the county jail when sentenced Nov. 8 by McGregor.

Weinberger: U.S. Subsidizing Soviet Military Buildup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has acquired enough Western technology to help it develop 5,000 military research projects of its own each year, a Pentagon report says.

"What it really means is that we are subsidizing the military buildup of the Soviet Union and the costs have been staggering," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Wednesday.

Disclosures about Soviet acquisition of high technology equipment and documents from the United States and its allies, 90 percent of them unclassified, were detailed in a 33-page booklet published by a committee headed by the CIA from data collected by 22 government agencies.

"The benefits to the Soviet military research establishment from acquisitions of Western technology are far greater than previously believed," said the report.

"The ultimate goal should be to deny the Soviets access to Western documents, hardware and technologies that will accelerate their military programs and simultaneously cause Western defense efforts and costs to increase," it said.

The report appears two months before the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

But Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle, the Pentagon's arms control chief, denied the timing of the release was intended to "throw cold water" on Thursday's opening of the third round of arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland or on the November summit.

"It would have been artificial for us to suppress this" report, he said.

The publication updated a 1982 report to Congress and presented more details than disclosed before about the scope of Soviet efforts to obtain Western technology and documentation and the use to which Moscow puts it.

"By their own estimate, more than 5,000 Soviet military research projects each year are benefiting significantly from Western-acquired technology," Weinberger said, echoing what he termed the "very deeply sobering report."

In one Soviet estimate, the report said, the use of documentation for the Navy's F-18 fighter-bomber saved the Soviet aviation and radar industries the equivalent of $55 million in research, five years of development time and more than 1,000 man-years of scientific effort in "one of the most successful individual exploitations ever of Western technology."

"We're releasing this today," Weinberger said of the booklet, "to try to stop this dangerous flow of our main national asset in this field and that is, of course, our high technology — our superior technology."

"The problem has been a massive problem but we have a long way to go" before it can be controlled, Perle said. "Without Western technology, (the Soviets) would produce fewer weapons of lesser reliability and lesser capability."

The Soviets spent an estimated $1.4 billion a year between 1976 and 1980 to acquire "one-of-a-kind Western hardware and documents."

About 60 percent of the Soviet acquisitions were of U.S. origin — although not necessarily acquired in the United States.

AIDS Victims In Schools Creating Epidemic Of Fear

By Suzanne Trimel
United Press International

As schools opened across the nation this month, the possibility of young AIDS victims attending classes with healthy children has created an epidemic of fear among parents naturally protective of their offspring's well-being.

Although doctors and public health officials have sought to calm the fears by presenting overwhelming evidence that AIDS cannot be transmitted through casual contact, parents from Massachusetts to California have said that no matter how slight the risk, they are unwilling to expose their children to such a deadly virus.

Joyce Honecutt of Statesboro, Ga., mother of a 6-year-old boy, expressed a widely held sentiment last week: "I don't care what the doctors say, I would probably want to take my kid out of class. I wouldn't want to take the risk that he might catch it."

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, an incurable disease that cripples the body's ability to fight a host of infections and illnesses, has struck 12,932 Americans. Half the victims are dead and the other half are dying.

The federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta say there were 164 diagnosed cases of AIDS among children under age 13 as of Sept. 9. Of those 164 children, 115 have died.

The fears of parents were reflected last week in a New York Times-CBS poll that showed half of Americans questioned believe AIDS can be transmitted through casual contact and one out of four said affected children should be kept out of school.

"Their fears and their concerns are obviously quite understandable, but we must look at what we know," said Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

"There's no evidence the virus is spread by casual contact, by saliva, by coughing, by any of the normal contact children might have in the classroom setting."

Yet fear of the disease, fueled either by ignorance of how it is transmitted or skepticism of the evidence, has boiled over into what one education official called "hysteria" in some communities.

—In New York, parents kept 18,000 students out of 63 schools on the first day of classes last week to protest the city's decision to enroll a second grader who has AIDS. Nearly 1,000 parents and students set up picket lines outside schools in the borough of Queens and officials of the city's 32 community school boards went to the state Supreme Court to fight the admission of the unidentified girl, who had already attended kindergarten and first grade without incident.

—Nearly 700 parents packed an auditorium in Swansea, Mass., last week for a discussion on whether a teenager with AIDS should be allowed to attend junior high school. Many parents expressed compassion for the boy but still had misgivings about allowing him to attend school. "It's like allowing a kid to run around with a gallon of gas and a match," said a parent, Leonard Cabral.

—In Orlando, a 5-year-old kindergarten infected with AIDS has been banned from regular classroom attendance and instead is being taught at home.

During the last week of August, the CDC issued its first set of guidelines on how schools should handle children with AIDS. Noting that casual contact among schoolchildren appears to pose no risk of transmitting the disease, the CDC said most children with AIDS should be allowed in regular classrooms.

The CDC did stress, however, that each case should be evaluated by a team — the child's doctor, parents, school officials and public health staff — who take into account the child's "behavior, neurological development and physical condition." CDC spokeswoman Betty Hooper said.

"We feel there is no reason to fear your child sitting in a class with a child with AIDS," said Dr. Martha Rogers, a medical epidemiologist with the AIDS branch of the CDC.

The CDC said evidence indicates AIDS is transmitted only through intimate sexual contact, use of a contaminated hypodermic needle, transfusion of blood containing the virus — before recent screening virtually eliminated that danger — or in the case of infants, infection while in the womb or through nursing.

Is Syria's Assad The Key To Freedom For 12 Westerners Being Held In Lebanon?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Middle East analysts say the Rev. Benjamin Weir's release by Lebanese kidnapers underscored their view that Syrian President Hafez Assad holds the key to freedom for 12 other Westerners who vanished in Beirut and are supposedly being held in Lebanon.

Weir, 61, is believed to have been held by Shiite Moslem extremists based in or near Baalbeck, an ancient Roman city in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley of eastern Lebanon.

The release of the Presbyterian minister after a 16-month hostage ordeal revived questions about Syria's influence over the Shiite militants operating in the Baalbeck area.

Although Syria is known to rule eastern Lebanon with an iron grip, Western analysts say it is not clear whether the Syrians maintain total control over the many Lebanese factions there.

But Assad's intelligence network is considered so well informed that little in the Bekaa escapes its view. Thus, in the view of some analysts, Syria likely had a hand in Weir's release.

"I assume there's a Syrian role here," said an American diplomat who survived the 444-day U.S. hostage ordeal in Iran.

"I hope this is an indication of what we've all been hoping — that Assad has some influence on the situation that will be borne out by further movement," said the diplomat, who asked not to be named.

The mystery surrounding Weir's release raised the possibility that his abductors released him for humanitarian reasons or that they let him go to show their willingness to negotiate on a release of the remaining hostages — six Americans, four Frenchmen, a Briton and an Italian.

In any event, Middle East experts in Washington speculated that Assad was not likely to push for freedom for the others without exacting a price from the United States in its relationship with Israel.

Since Assad helped resolve the TWA hostage crisis in June, the Reagan administration is reported to have been pressuring him to gain the release of the other hostages held by pro-Iranian Lebanese Shittes.

"Because of the TWA incident, there've been lots of back-door contacts opened up with Assad," said Robert Kupperman, a terrorism expert at the Center for Strategic and International Studies at Georgetown University in Washington.

"I would imagine that we've been pushing through the Soviets, hoping to keep him positive, and I'm convinced of one thing with Weir's release — we're seeing some good-faith bargaining on the part of Assad now," he said.

"What our payment will be will be translated in Israel. We may see some U.S. diplomatic effort pushing Israel, which means we might have to take some fairly balanced action and not appear to back every endeavor they wish," Kupperman said. "Or, you may see some attempt at rapprochement with Iran."

The missing men vanished in Beirut from March 1984 to June 1985. Islamic Jihad, or Holy War, claimed responsibility and demanded the release of 17 Shittes jailed in Kuwait for terrorist bombings.

Islamic Jihad is thought to be a network of Shittes loyal to Iranian ruler Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Two groups — Islamic Amal and Hezbollah — have been named as being behind the kidnappings, but their leaders denied the accusation.

Middle East experts in Washington speculated that Assad was not likely to push for freedom for the others without exacting a price from the United States in its relationship with Israel.

Practicing What He Preaches Against?

Reagan Deducted More Than $188,000 In State And Local Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President and Mrs. Reagan deducted more than $188,000 on their federal tax forms the past four years for state and local tax payments, a kind of deduction he says is one of the "schemes" rich people use to make the tax system unfair.

The dollar amount the Reagans saved by deducting state and local income, property and sales taxes amounted to about one-third of the total figure of $188,248 because their tax bracket ranged between 30 percent and 40 percent during his presidency after other deductions.

Reagan has made public his tax returns every April since becoming president and they showed local and state tax deductions of $39,185 for 1981, $51,656 for 1982, $63,293 for 1983 and $34,114 for 1984.

"It's the law," said White House spokesman Rusty Brashear. "Certainly he uses the law like everyone else."

In a speech Wednesday in Concord, N.H., where there is no state income or sales tax, Reagan referred to the deductibility issue.

"Less than 40 percent of all taxpayers — usually the more well-to-do — use this writeoff. The majority use the short form and don't itemize, so you don't get advantage of that as a deduction."

But Reagan cautioned, "Now, let's not blame those who are using legal but unfair loopholes and write-offs. Let's just change the system so all of us are treated the same."

From the moment he unveiled his tax reform package in May — and every week since Labor Day as he stumped for passage — Reagan has assailed deductibility of state and local taxes, starting a feud with governors in big states where taxpayers can get some relief by deducting from federal tax payments their high state taxes.

Eliminating the deduction would save an estimated $40 billion to be applied to lower individual rates, and Reagan has said the deduction is simply a scheme by which fiscally irresponsible high-tax states are subsidized by low-tax states.

Woman Put In Leg Irons After Bar Fight

A woman arrested following a fight with another woman in the parking lot of a Casselberry bar was also charged with battery on police after allegedly kicking one officer in the chest, stomach and knee and hitting a second in the head, police reported.

The fight reportedly occurred at the ABC Lounge on U.S. Highway 17-92 at State Road 436, at about 1:40 a.m. Thursday, police said.

The woman fought with officers and had to be put in leg irons, a police report said.

In addition to the battery on police charges, Kimberly Anne Schuck, 20, of 548 Orange Drive #15, Altamonte Springs, was charged with resisting arrest with violence, battery and disorderly conduct. She was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

TRAFFIC CHECK POT
Two Winter Park men in a truck stopped by a Florida Highway Patrol trooper checking licenses have been charged with possession of marijuana after the trooper smelled burning pot, searched the vehicle and found two plastic bags of pot and other drug-related items.

Gordon Jennison Noice, 23, of 1780 Greenwch Ave., and John Sims Edwards, 22, of 2356 Barbados Drive, have been released on $500 bond each and are scheduled to appear in court Sept. 27.

been reported stolen and waited a few minutes for the man who allegedly offered the gun to return, a sheriff's report said.

Bobby Lee Black, 25, of Orlando, was charged with grand theft at 5:34 p.m. Wednesday at the auto company. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS
David Leon Sims, 40, of 1106 Cheetah Trail, Winter Springs, told sheriff's deputies two suits, a tennis racquet and two cans of tennis balls with a combined value of $685 were stolen from his car while parked at Zayre's Plaza, State Road 436, Casselberry, Wednesday.

A toaster oven, two strollers, a movie camera and other items with a total value of $400 were stolen from Gean's Place, 1400 Maitland Ave., Maitland, around midnight Wednesday, according to a report owner Jean Cansdale, 62, of Orlando, filed with Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

Anil B. Vagandoni, 66, of Valdosta, Ga., locked himself out of his car and left it parked at the Jai Alai fronton on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park, and went to call a locksmith at about 11 p.m.

Tuesday. When he returned to the vehicle with a locksmith he found a burglar had successfully opened his car and closed it again without leaving a sign of forced entry. The only way Vagandoni knew his car had been entered, sheriff's deputies reported, was because two cameras, an equalizer and a shaver with a total value of $390 had been stolen from inside the car.

A $175 camera and a briefcase and other items with a combined value of $210 were stolen from the car of Sharon and John Kent, of 3475 Seagrave Drive, Winter Park, while the vehicle was parked at their home between Sept. 14 and 16, a sheriff's report said.

A watch, television, rifle, camera, an answering machine, two video recorders, 50 video tapes, binoculars and jewelry were stolen from the home of Marcos A. Munoz, of 312 Sumnerville Ave., Sanford, on Tuesday, deputies reported.

Clara Mae Graves, 22, of 833 Dunbar St., Lake Monroe, reported to deputies a $400 video recorder was stolen from her home Tuesday.

Five wooden pallets with a combined value of $125 were stolen from behind Rawson's Pantry Pride, 401 State Road 436, Fern Park, at about 10 a.m. Monday, a sheriff's report said.

Tools worth about $1,000 were stolen from the vehicle of Kleu Van Nguyen, 35, of 1005

Park Drive, Casselberry, while it was parked at Stonewall Place in Longwood on Monday, a sheriff's report said.

Tips On Coping With Premenstrual Syndrome

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently I've had severe menstrual pains. I also have backaches and bloat up like a balloon around that time of the month. I'm 23 and have been off the pill for two years. Could these be side effects from the pill or does this just happen with age? I've never had these problems before.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Based on what you have said, I would conclude that you have a form of premenstrual syndrome. You are gaining unacceptable amounts of body water and your uterus is contracting forcefully under the influence of powerful body chemicals. I suggest you make an appointment with your gynecologist.

Until he or she can advise you, here are two treatments you might try. Stop eating salt for 10 days before your period. By doing this, you will be providing less salt for your body to retain; hence, less water will be retained and you will notice less bloating and aching. Second, use ibuprofen — now available over the counter as Advil or Nuprin. This drug blocks the uterine contractions that you perceive as cramps.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've begun to have difficulty swallowing, even saliva. I've been told that nothing can be done. I take Hydroxyzine Pamoate (25 mg.) after dinner, but it makes me very sleepy and I don't feel good the next day.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Swallowing problems (dysphagia) can result from irritation or blockage of the esophagus, as well as from a loss of efficiency of the swallowing mechanism. I assume you have had all the appropriate tests, such as an esophogram (barium swallow) and esophagoscopy (in which the doctor examines your esophagus with a lighted tube). Therefore, you probably need to see a gastroenterologist, a specialist who can proceed with more sophisticated examinations with which to evaluate the mechanics of your swallowing.

I think you should know that the medicine you have been taking (tradename: Vistaril) is a tranquilizer whose major side effect is a dry mouth. Ask your doctor if you can stop it, and then plan to see a specialist if your symptoms don't improve.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Penicillin is widely used in animal feed. How risky is this for those who are allergic to penicillin?

DEAR DR. GOTT — Although agricultural authorities reassure us that only trace amounts of penicillin contaminate animals raised on antibiotic-treated feed, some of the drug certainly enters our systems. I have never read of it causing allergic reactions in humans but, in theory, it could. Animals ingest other antibiotics.

chemicals and hormones. When we eat meat, we are nibbling on everything the animals ate. Short of becoming vegetarians, we cannot avoid eating a variety of compounds that are, in one way or another, added to our meats. It's a troubling realization.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
An important part of good bridge, when you are the declarer, is to give yourself the best chance to make your contract.

Although a lot of the right plays in this area have been catalogued, new variations keep cropping up. You can't memorize all the plays, but a little common sense should help you see them when they occur.

If the dummy in today's deal had included a diamond suit of A-J-10-9-8-7, I'm certain that declarer would have found the play of overtaking the king with the ace in dummy to force out the defenders' queen.

Then the king of hearts would be the entry for the remaining good diamonds. With A-Q-8-7-4-3 in dummy, that sort of play did not occur to declarer. Still, it should have.

If diamonds are 3-3, declarer may be going set anyway, but overtaking the king with the ace can win against any 4-2 division that includes the doubleton J-10, 10-9 or J-9. After playing the A-Q, the eight can force out the jack, and the seven can subsequently absorb the remaining six-spot in West's hand.

And that's what the game is all about: increasing the chances of making your contract.

Proper Spacing Of Plants Most Important Step In Landscape Design

Establishing an attractive landscape usually requires a sizeable investment of money, time and plenty of hard work. But, your efforts will pay off in pride of ownership and certainly an increased value to your home. You want to do the job right. This means obtaining some knowledge and careful planning.

Correct spacing of plants is probably the most important step in developing the most attractive outdoor setting for your home. For the best effect, the plants must be properly placed in relation to each other and your home. This requires an understanding of each plant's growth rate, ultimate height, and spread. Looking over the list of plants available for planting in our area can make this a complicated matter.

The eventual shape of a plant will be determined, to a large extent, on how it is used. If a plant is to become part of a hedge, it should be placed close to other plants in the row. Eventually all of them will grow together. If you want to retain a plant's individual shape, it should be kept far enough away from its neighbors to allow natural growth.

Spacing trees correctly is most important. They are the largest and most permanent of all landscape plants. If you're looking for a background screen, tall pines can produce a very good background screen. For screening, trees usually

Alfred Bessesen
Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 181

are spaced on 8-12 foot centers, depending on the anticipated mature size of the chosen species.

An oak planted on the west side of your lot will provide shade for your home. But, to insure that mature limbs will not eventually crowd the house, the young tree should be set about 30 feet from the foundation.

Mass plantings of dogwood, redbud and crape myrtle can be brilliant assets in your landscape. When these trees are spaced about 12 to 18 feet apart, the top foliage should meet in a few years. Then, when they bloom, you will have a beautiful display of concentrated color.

As you can see, you should learn as much as possible about the trees you select before planting them in your landscape. Depending on the species, trees may range from 10 to 100 feet in height, and vary as much in spread. As a "rule-of-thumb," a landscape tree should be set a minimum of one-half its mature canopy away from neighboring trees, the walls of your home, and other structures — even walks and drives that may be cracked by growing roots. For specifics, check with your favorite nurseryman or garden supply center.

The same principles apply to shrubs. Shrubs vary so much in form and use, that selecting the proper kinds for specific purposes and locations is difficult. Shrubs are used for hedges, informal borders, foundation plantings, and as single specimen plants. Some have narrow, upright growth; some are round and compact; others have loose spreading branches; and many produce colorful flowers. All of these points must be evaluated to create the balance necessary for an attractive landscape.

As with the trees, specific spacing recommendations depend on the particular type of shrub you select, and the way it will be used. Probably, the most common mistake in planting is setting them too close together, or too close to a wall. "Builder installed" plantings are generally very poor and should be redone as soon as possible after a new home is occupied.

Whatever type of shrub you're planting, make sure you allow enough room for its natural growth. That small shrub you bought in a gallon container at the nursery could eventually reach a height of 15 feet! If it's crowded in with other plants, much of the natural beauty will be lost.

The growth rate of shrubs depends a lot on how you take care of it. If planted properly, regularly watered and fertilized, insects and diseases controlled, it probably will need more space than shrubs growing under less favorable conditions. Never place shrubs directly under the drip line of your roof. Make sure there is some space between the plants and the water that will run off the roof.

Properly placed shrubs need only minimal pruning. Drastic pruning or shearing with a hedge clipper, destroys the natural form of shrubs. Most look better when allowed to grow into their natural shapes. Select plants that won't outgrow the spot where they're planted.

These are just a few suggestions that may help you. For recommendations on specific plant choices, check with your favorite nurseryman or garden center, or contact the Extension office in Sanford. In any case, be sure to plan before you buy. Decide where plants are needed and how much space is available. Select appropriate species that will not become too large at maturity. And, avoid planting your selections too close together, or too near your home. Proper spacing is the key to a good landscape. And, remember you plant trees for the next generation, and shrub plantings are not forever.

Happy gardening!

Hi, Shorty; Hello, Dolly

Dolly sang "Happy Birthday" to the honoree and presented him with a colorful balloon bouquet. Dolly's appearance was arranged by Smith's daughter, Pat Smith. A Sanford Lions Club member for the past 12 years, Smith laughed, "It was quite a surprise."

More Than Faith Needed To Bridge Religious Gap

DEAR ABBY: I am a devout Catholic girl in love with a strictly Orthodox Jewish guy, so I'm sure you know what we're up against.

My parents met Daniel just once, briefly. I had told them that he was Catholic because I didn't want them to be prejudiced against him before they got to know him. When they know him, I'm sure they will love him as I do, then I'll tell them the truth.

However, Daniel told his parents he was dating a gentle girl and they haven't asked to meet me yet, so it looks like I'm going to have a hard time getting them to accept me.

How can Danny and I improve our chances for acceptance of both sets of parents? We're talking about marriage in June of 1986, and would like to have both a rabbi and a priest. Two of my uncles are priests (one is a Monsignor). Daniel's grandfather is a rabbi. Please help us.

RELIGIOUS DIFFERENCES

DEAR DIFFERENCES: First, you must tell your parents that Daniel is Jewish. Since you are seriously considering marriage, you must share your plans with both sets of parents — then talk to a priest and a rabbi and seek their counsel. The more you learn about the other's religion, the better your chances for happiness together — if that is to be.

Dear Abby

It's up to you. Your chances for a successful marriage will depend on you — not your parents.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me with this problem. I'm 52 and look young for my age. My problem is my nose. I think it's too large for my face. I had plastic surgery on it about 25 years ago, and it didn't turn out the way I had hoped it would. In the meantime I got married and had three children, who are all grown now.

Do you think I'm silly to want to have cosmetic surgery at my age? My nose is on my mind morning, noon and night.

DREAMING

DEAR DREAMING: Silly? No way. If your nose is on your mind morning, noon and night, it's time to quit dreaming and make an appointment with a board-certified plastic surgeon.

DEAR ABBY: "Cliff" and I have been married for 23 years, and we've had what I consider a good marriage, but something bothers me. Before we met, Cliff was engaged to "Ellen," but he caught her with another man and broke off with her. Soon after, we met, fell in love and were married. Ellen is also married and lives in another state, and Cliff has kept in touch with her all these years. He's especially close to Ellen's son, who is being married next month.

Cliff plans to go to the wedding and says I am welcome to go with him, but I don't really want to go.

This has me so upset I can't think straight. I've always wondered why Cliff has taken such an interest in that boy. I've even wondered if the boy was his.

I don't know what to do! Should I go with him or not? Should I try to stop him from going?

AFRAID TO DIG DEEPER

DEAR AFRAID: Your signature shows you to be a very perceptive woman. Not knowing is worse than knowing. I think you should share your innermost feelings and nagging doubts with Cliff. You need to clear the air and put your mind at ease. Don't ask him not to go. Go with him.

Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.

Truth In Menus

When Restaurants Say It's 'Fresh' Or 'Butter,' It Better Be

Handler Decries Serious Sitcoms, Funny Dramas, p. 3

Getting What You Pay For

'We go by the book. We state on our menus we use nothing but real butter, just to inform our customers. We don't use the adjectives of 'fresh' or 'Florida' to describe our orange juice.

—Denny's manager

Herald Staff Writer*

Pick up a menu at almost any restaurant in town and you might find pictures of the various dishes in living color and glowing descriptions designed to set you to drooling like Pavlov's dog. But can you be sure the butter melting on the stack of pancakes isn't actually Parkay and the maple syrup isn't just maple-flavored?

Since the state Legislature passed a law demanding truth-in-menus several years ago, restaurants are less free with such descriptive adjectives as "Florida" orange juice, "maple" syrup, "fresh" vegetables or "baked" ham. When such words are used it is more likely to be the real thing being served, at least it better be. Describing one thing on the menu and serving another is a second-degree misdemeanor punishable by a possible $500 fine and/or 60 days in jail.

But the law isn't rigidly enforced and nobody looks too hard for violations.

In Seminole County, the responsibility of enforcing food service regulations in free-standing restaurants belongs to Rick Salemi, an inspector in the county Health Department's Environmental Health office. Responsibility for restaurants connected with hotels and motels goes to the Division of Hotels and Restaurants of the State Department of Business Regulation with a district office in Orlando.

Salemi said he does not bother to check the menus to make sure they jibe with what is actually being served when he makes his quarterly inspection of food service establishments in the county. Nor does he weigh steaks to make sure they are as advertised.

Salemi said he would make such checks if a customer complains. But apparently area consumers are satisfied with the food they are being served since Salemi said in the 12 years he has been in the job he has had no complaints, or they have been so infrequent he can't recall any.

Glenn Hartley, the district supervisor of the Division of Hotels and Restaurants, oversees 12 counties including Seminole. In the four years he has been here he said there have been no valid complaints concerning misrepresentation on menus. There was a complaint about a south Seminole restaurant a few years ago, but it proved to be unfounded, Hartley said.

According to Florida law, identity of food or food products is misrepresented if the description is false or misleading in any particular. The food can't be served, sold or distributed under the name of another food or food product or described by words, statements or other information not likely to be read and understood by the ordinary individual.

If the food is a fruit or fruit juice, it cannot be described in a false or misleading way or be served, sold, or distributed under the name of another fruit or juice. It is against the law to serve a synthetic or flavored drink under the guise of fruit juice.

The law terms "fresh juice" as a juice without additives and prepared from the original fruit within 12 hours or less of sale.

Local restaurateurs say they adhere to the letter of the law.

Doug Kersey, manager of Bahama Joe's seafood restaurant in Sanford, said, "We've been as true as can be. When we say 'fresh' fish, they are fresh. It says on our menu that occasionally it is necessary to freeze certain seafood to preserve it and customers should ask the waiter for the fresh fish of the day.

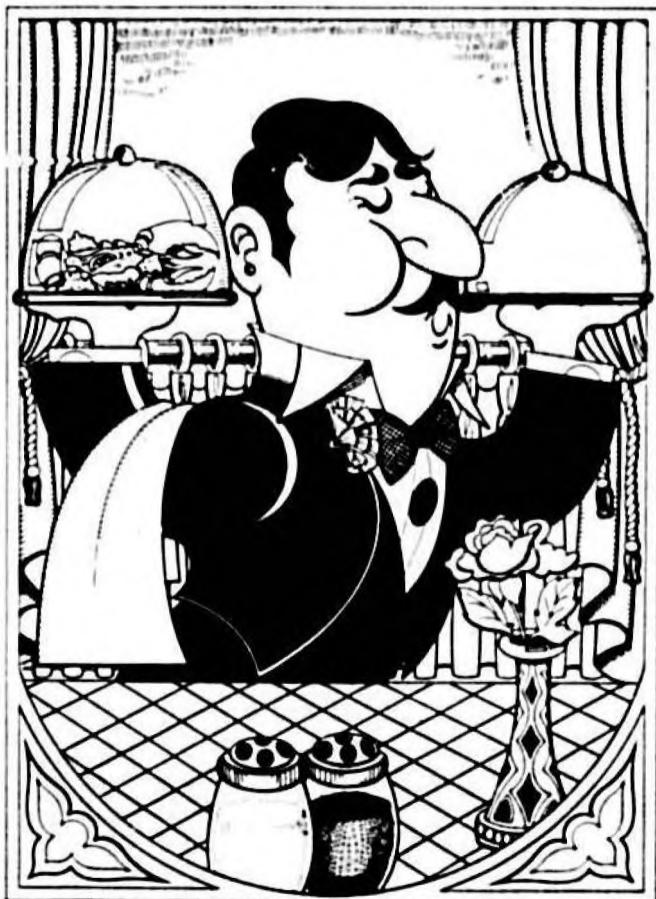

"All of our vegetables are fresh daily. When we say 'butter', it's butter, and when we say sour cream, it's the real thing.

"Since they changed the law, when you say drawn butter on the menu it better be drawn butter.

"Our live Maine lobsters are kept in a tank where the customers can see them and are always live, not frozen." Some of his competitors, Kersey claims, aren't so picky, advertising Maine lobster at bargain prices "but they are actually frozen."

Deanna Todd, manager of Christo's Classics in downtown Sanford, said the restaurant's menu describes its salads and sandwiches to a "T." "We use only fresh fruit and vegetables," she said. "We make most everything from scratch and our homebaked bread is baked fresh every night. We don't serve butter, we serve margarine, but neither is mentioned on the menu."

Anthony DePalma, one of the managers at Denny's in Casselberry, said he hasn't been with the company long enough to compare difference in menus prior to the change in the law, but added, "We go by the book. We state on our menus we use nothing but real butter, just to inform our customers. We don't use the adjectives of 'fresh' or 'Florida' to describe our orange juice."

It is possible that when you order Maine lobster and fresh vegetables at your favorite restaurant, what the waiter brings you is actually a Florida or African lobster and canned or frozen veggies. It's against the law to advertise one food item and sell another, but enforcement is something less than strict.

Expecting Tyne To Be In Every Episode

Dear Dick — I am a great fan of the "Cagney & Lacey" series. I heard Tyne Daly is pregnant. Could you tell me who is replacing her, how long she will be gone and when she will be back? — J., Deer Park, Texas.

You won't even know that Tyne is gone. The show, in a triumph of logistics, carefully planned for her pregnancy. First, they wrote a pregnancy into the show. Then they arranged for Tyne to shoot all her scenes, for six episodes, at one time. Now that her due date is upcoming and she is no longer able to work, they will film the balance of those six shows, using the other members of the cast. So she will be in every episode this season.

Dear Dick — In February of 1943, when I was in boot camp at the Marine base in San Diego, there were hundreds of us who marched on the parade ground for a whole day while a Hollywood crew filmed a scene that was to depict the awarding of a medal to a war hero. I am almost positive that the name of the picture was "Salute to the Marines." I think it starred Wallace Beery and Marilyn Maxwell. For years, I have been looking for it to show up on TV, but I have never seen it listed. Was it so bad that it was never released? — W.J.V., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Ask Dick Kleiner

It was pretty bad, but it was released in 1943, and it has been televised. You must have missed it. Chances of it showing up on TV at this late date are next to nil.

Dear Dick — Please explain how old movies are distributed to local television stations, because frequently several local stations have the same movie within a week of each other. There must be some kind of service that makes them available. — J., Abilene, Texas.

Television is a business and, like most businesses, relies on businesslike principles of commerce. And so there are, as you suggest, "some kind of service" that makes old films available. There are companies that peddle packages of movies to local stations. There may be as many as 30 or 40 films in a package. Sometimes stations rent them, sometimes they buy them outright. Some movie studios have their own divisions that sell or rent their products to the stations.

Dear Dick — I recently saw the Steven Spielberg movie, "The Goonies." I literally fell in love with Sean Astin. I would like to know how old he is and any other information you could give me would be greatly appreciated. — M.H., Albuquerque, N.M.

Sean is 15 now, and the son of Patty Duke and John Astin. This is the first acting he's done, professionally. His brother, Mackenzie, who is now on "The Facts of Life," is two years younger than Sean but started his acting career sooner.

Dear Dick — I was wondering if Michael (Stephanie's boyfriend) on "Newhart" is the same guy who played Henry on "Bosom Buddies." If he is the same guy, what is his name? — G.B., Merrill, Mich.

He is the same guy and his name is Peter Scolari.

Dear Dick — Out of the cast of "The Munsters," who is alive and who is dead? — H.P., Aledo, Ill.

Obviously, the Munsters are a hardy lot. Good genes. All of the principals — Fred Gwynne, Yvonne DeCarlo, Al Lewis, Butch Patrick, Beverly Owen and Pat Priest — are still living.

Miniseries And Movies Making TV Comeback

By Joan Hanauer
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reports on the death of the miniseries have been greatly exaggerated — at least for this year.

The miniseries once drew blockbuster ratings, but during the 1984-85 season audiences were underwhelming. The only real breakaway hit was NBC's "Fatal Vision," which attracted 47 percent of the viewers in its time period. There were mutterings that the networks would cut back sharply.

Each of the three networks, however, is scheduling about 40 hours of miniseries for the 1985-86 season, despite the fall-off in viewing.

"We anticipate moderate ratings, in general, for miniseries, in 1985-86, with a sharp reduction in this type of programming in the year following," the William Esty advertising agency reported to its clients.

The most ambitious project is ABC's 24 hours of John Jakes' "North and South." A 12-hour version will air during the November sweeps, starring among others Robert Mitchum, Johnny Cash as John Brown, Hal Holbrook as Abe Lincoln, Robert Guillaume as Frederick Douglass and Elizabeth Taylor as a madame.

Later in the season ABC will devote another 12 hours to Jakes' sequel, "Love and War." Biography is big among the miniseries. George C. Scott stars in NBC's seven-hour "Mussolini: The Untold Story," and Scott also will continue his portrayal of Gen. George Patton in a TV movie biography, "The Last Days of Patton," for CBS.

Also on the biography viewing list is "Peter the Great," a nine-hour NBC mini scheduled for February and starring Maximilian Schell with a cast that includes Vanessa Redgrave, Laurence Olivier, Omar Sharif, John Mills, Trevor Howard and 21 Soviet actors. NBC has scheduled five miniseries, with a promise that one or two projects may be announced later.

CBS is offering a total of seven miniseries totaling 40 hours, including three seven-hour projects and a musical.

The seven-hour minis are "Kane and Abel," based on Jeffrey Archer's best-seller and starring Peter Strauss and Sam Neill, with Veronica Hamil prettying up the picture; "If Tomorrow Comes," based on a Sidney Sheldon best-seller about international intrigue, and "Sins," a biggie about the Paris fashion world, with Joan Collins leading an all-star cast that includes Gene Kelly, Jean-Pierre Aumont, Marisa Berenson, Capucine, Arlette Dombasle, James Farentino and Lauren Hutton.

The musical is a four-hour version of "Alice in Wonderland," with a cast that reads like an all-star laundry list — it sounds like they were waiting in line to grab parts. Among the acting Lewis Carroll fans:

Steve Allen, Scott Balo, Ernest Borgnine, Beau Bridges and Lloyd Bridges, Red Buttons, Sid Caesar, Carol Channing, Imogene Coca, Sammy Davis Jr., Patrick Duffy, George Gobel, Eydie Gorme, Merv Griffin, Sherman Hemsley, Ann Jillian, Arte Johnson, Harvey Korman, Steve

Lawrence, Karl Malden, Roddy McDowall, Jayne Meadows, Donna Mills, Robert Morley, Anthony Newley, Donald O'Connor, Louis Nye, Martha Raye, Telly Savalas, Ringo Starr, Sally Struthers, Jack Warden, Jonathan Winters and Shelley Winters. My word.

Made for television movies will be a big part of the three-network schedule, and they cover a wide range of subjects, from a biography of John Lennon and Yoko Ono (NBC) to an Agatha Christie mystery starring Peter Ustinov as Hercule Poirot (CBS) to a remake of "The Defiant Ones" (ABC).

TV movies will continue to explore a problem of the week — from AIDS ("An Early Frost," NBC) to rape ("The Jeanne Eckmann Story," ABC, and "Silent Witness," NBC.

'Aid For AIDS' Concert Planned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — AIDS sufferers have joined victims of starvation in Africa and hard times in the American farm belt as beneficiaries of entertainment extravaganzas aimed at raising relief money.

Organizers of an entertainment industry committee to fight AIDS this week announced they are putting together a rock concert and telethon, billed as "Aid for AIDS," to raise money to find a cure for the deadly disease.

Definite plans for the event were not disclosed.
