Ten-year-old on trial for drugs

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. — A 10-year-old Long Island boy who police said peddled crack cocaine appeared fascinated at first by a court artist's sketch but erupted in tears when told his likeness would be shown on television.

Nicholas McCall, who faces a juvenile charge of criminal possession of a drug, sat impassively in Family Court Tuesday until his curiosity was piqued by a courtroom artist sketching him.

Young McCall asked his attorney, Douglas O'Connor, what the artist was doing and became upset when he was told he was being sketched for television. The child burst into tears.

"I don't want to be on no television!" he cried. The boy was ordered to return to court Wednesday for continuation of the trial.

Thief shot after wild bus chase

BOSTON — An unidentified man driving a stolen Greyhound bus led police on a wild chase through Boston late Tuesday night, destroying at least a dozen cars before police fatally shot him in the city's Jamaica Plain section, officials said.

The man stole the bus from a lot in either Bristol County or Rhode Island earlier in the evening then drove to Boston, where he was pursued by Boston and Metropolitan Police at about 11 p.m., said Boston Police spokesman Jim Jordan.

Would-be immigrants stopped

MIAMI — A Coast Guard cutter was enroute to Haiti Tuesday carrying 143 Haitians and one Dominican who were among 150 people who traveled by rickety sailboat to within seven miles of Miami's coastline before they were stopped, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The Coast Guard cutter Vigorous left for Haiti about 3:30 p.m. EST with 144 passengers.

The only illegal immigrants left behind were two men who were taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for treatment of dehydration, and a family of four because the mother and a 2-month-old daughter were in need of hospital care, the spokesman said.

More perfect Florida winter weather is in store for the next few days. Sunny skies are forecast today through Sunday with high temperatures in the low 80s. Tonight is predicted to be clear with a low temperature in the upper 50s.

Prosecution rests in molestation case against school teacher

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The prosecution rested its case against Albert McGoldrick Tuesday afternoon, after calling more elementary girls who testified McGoldrick had touched their bodies at Goldsboro School.

McGoldrick, 54, of 1999 Geneva Drive, Geneva, is charged with eight counts of lewd and lascivious acts against seven children. A ninth charge was dismissed by Judge O.H. Eaton

Tuesday after he ruled it would be hard for the jury to determine whether to believe one 10-year-old girl who changed her testimony.

Rand Saltzgaver, McGoldrick's attorney, asked Judge Eaton to dismiss several charges for insufficient evidence. He argued that if putting a hand on a student for a second is a crime, then many teachers, coaches and parents are violating the law.

The jury saw more girls testify via videotape Tuesday. The girls, all students at Goldsboro Elementary School last year, were interviewed last May by George Martin of the Child Protection Team.

Also called to testify were James McAuliff, Sanford police investigator who handled the investigation of McGoldrick, and Dr. Hortense Evans, administrative assistant to School Supt. Bob Hughes.

McAuliff said he was called to the school on May 18 by state Health and Human Services officials who were investigating a report that a SANFORD — Joey Olson, suspected of killing both of his parents at their Altamonte Springs home, was moved from a hospital to the Seminole County jail on Wednesday.

Olson, 28, who was shot in the abdomen when he was captured by Altamonte Springs police near State Road 434 on Jan. 19, was booked into the jail on four counts of aggravated assault with a firearm against police officers. He was moved there from Orlando Regional Medical Center.

The day he was wounded he was charged in connection with an armed confrontation with police, but he has not been charged in

State changes mind about Lake Sylvan development

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The state Department of Community Affairs has backed off its earlier opposition to the Mark Arnold planned unit development on Lake Sylvan, agreeing that it meets state requirements in the Wekiva River Protection Area.

But the chief state reviewer said the state's acceptance of the project won't set a precedent for permitting greater housing densities close to the Wekiva River.

In a related matter, Colleen Logan, a county planner, said most homeowners, environmentalist groups and state officials approve of changes the county is making to its comprehensive land development plan to meet the state requirements for Wekiva River protection. The county held a meeting for the groups to review the changes last night.

Logan said some homeowners county approval of commercial uses along State Road 46 and increasing densities in the fringe edges of the

Shuttle rollout delayed again

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Discovery's rollout to the launch pad fell yet another day behind schedule Tuesday, slipping from Thursday to Friday, amid growing concern the year's first shuttle flight is in danger of a major delay.

Discovery's rollout to launch pad 39B, already running four days behind schedule, had been set to begin at 12:01 a.m. EST Thursday, but officials said Tuesday it fell another 24 hours behind schedule overnight because of slow progress checking electrical and mechanical connections between the orbiter and its external tank and solid-fuel boosters.

A NASA spokesman said the latest rollout delay was not related to ongoing debate about replacing liquid oxygen turbopumps in the shuttle's engine compartment, a move that could push launch of the third post-Challenger flight to mid-March. NASA had hoped to launch Discovery around Feb. 23.

A meeting of top NASA managers was scheduled for 3 p.m. EST Wednesday to discuss the pump issue and whether or not Discovery can be launched in March without delaying the next flight in the sequence, the April 28 launch of Atlantis to carry a high-priority Venus probe into space.

Group seeks answers on boulevard proposals

By SANDRA BOUCHAHINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Members of the Lake Mary Boulevard Study Committee answered questions last night about the proposed boulevard improvement plan at a "fact-finding" meeting conducted by a new group concerned about the plan.

About 75 people crowded the city commission chambers to attend the meeting chaired by members of the Lake Mary Boulevard Alliance of Property Owners and Tax Payers. The group formed because it was concerned about the effect the proposed plan, set forth by the boulevard committee, would have on taxes and land use.

After an introduction of the property owner alliance and members of the boulevard committee, property owners in the audience asked questions regarding building setbacks, funding, and the proposed sound barriers.

The boulevard committee is made up of 12 developers, homeowners, elected officials and planners from Lake Mary, Sanford, and Seminole County.

The committee worked for one year to develop the plan that is intended to ensure an attractive, well-landscaped roadway with uniform, high-quality development. The gateway corridor runs along a 7.6-mile stretch from Markham Woods Road to Sanford Avenue and extends 320 feet on either side of the adopted centerline of a newly-widened boulevard.

Any property abutting the corridor would be required to abide by the development standards of the proposed plan. The recommended improvements, estimated to cost about $3.7 million, are set forth in a draft ordinance recently finalized by the committee.

The improvements, to be made in conjunction with the county's road widening project, involve such things as landscaping, irrigation, signage, building setbacks, buffer zones, parking lot layouts and burial of utility lines.

The first phase of widening construction from Markham Woods Road to Country Club Road (6-15) is expected to begin by the end of the year.

Larry Dale, a member of the boulevard committee, said, "We tried to merge three existing land development codes."

He explained to Wally Cross, one of the alliance members, that property 200 or more feet in depth would have a proposed setback of 60 feet and

Playground mail

Linda Castle, 26, of Lake Mary finds a way to get in on the fun at the playground while checking her mail. POLICE BRIEFS

Children accuse man of lewd assault

CASSELBERRY — A man accused of exposing himself to four children in woods behind the Seminole Skating Rink, off Casselcreek Boulevard, was arrested by Casselberry police Tuesday.

David Grimes, 25, of 2045 Sepler Drive, Fern Park, is charged with four counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child. Bond is $5,000.

The four pre-teenage children told police they met a man in the woods at about 3 p.m. Monday after they found some "playgirl" books and began to read them. The two girls and two boys said the man approached them and talked about sex. He undressed and asked the girls to kiss him and asked them if they wanted to make love, police reported.

They refused. The man re-dressed and asked the boys to kiss him. They refused and the man grabbed the boys' groins. When they were released the four children ran out of the woods and reported the incident to one child's mother. They described the suspect for police who went to the woods Tuesday where they met, questioned and arrested Grimes.

Manslaughter charged in DUI death

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The surviving driver in a fatal two-vehicle crash on State Road 430, Altamonte Springs, has been charged with DUI manslaughter.

Kenneth Stanley Baker, 33, of 1000 Douglas Ave., #15, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies at home at 1:10 p.m. Tuesday. Bond is $5,000.

In a Nov. 9 accident, in which Baker's car ran a traffic light and hit the pickup truck of Charles Van Wagoner, 28, of Altamonte Springs. Wagoner was thrown from his truck and killed. He was a physical education teacher at Rock Lake Middle School, rural Longwood.

Father charged with child abuse

SANFORD — Ernest Field, 38, of 1117 W. 2nd St., Sanford, has been charged with aggravated child abuse.

Sanford police alleged that on Monday night Field whipped his son Anthony Ware, 12, numerous times with a belt. The beating left scars on the boy's back and forehead, police said.

Field was arrested at 2:52 p.m. Tuesday following questioning at the police station. Bond is $5,000.

Man accused of fighting police

WINTER SPRINGS — A man stopped by two Winter Springs police officers for a traffic violation reportedly fought the two officers, injuring both and damaging a police patrol car.

The windshield of the car was broken in the fight and the car was scratched as police struggled with the suspect on the hood of the car, police reported.

Ronald Carl Swanson, 26, of 1116 Caravell Drive, Winter Park, was arrested at 12:41 a.m. today on Trotwood Court, Winter Springs. He is charged with two counts of battery on a policeman, resisting arrest with violence, criminal mischief, running a stop sign, and refusing to sign a traffic citation. Bond is $1,000.

Man arrested in burglary case

SANFORD — A man accused as the co-defendant of a juvenile in a Jan. 1 burglary to 2008 S. Summerlin Ave., Sanford, is charged with burglary, theft and dealing in stolen property.

Sanford police report that a video recorder was stolen in the burglary and sold by the suspects.

Samuel Andrea Copeland, 32, of 2315 S. Summerland Ave., was charged in the case at 10:29 a.m. Tuesday at the police station. Bond is $1,000.

Two arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

• Willard Ellis Megonigal, 25, of Bithlo, was arrested at 1:51 a.m. Tuesday on U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, after police stopped his car because it had a loud muffler.

• David Paul Eels, 41, of 193 S. Fifth St., Lake Mary, at 9:08 p.m. Tuesday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary.

Legislators schedule meeting with public

By LAURA L. BULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seven state legislators representing the Sanford area will meet with the public tomorrow in city hall at 9:30 a.m. to hear proposals for legislations and concerns about state government.

Speaking before the delegation tomorrow will be representatives from the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, Seminole Community College, Sanford Regional Airport, Oviedo City Council, American Association of Retired Persons, Seminole County Community Mental Health, and Health and Rehabilitative Services District Seven.

State representatives for the area are Frank Stone of Winter Park, Stan Bainter of Eustis, Tom Drage of Winter Park and Art Grindle of Altamonte Springs.

Senators on the delegation are Toni Jennings, Bud Gardner, and Richard Langley.

The delegation will meet again with residents from the area Jan. 22 at Casselberry City Hall. To be placed on the agenda for that meeting, call the delegation office at 321-9812.

Fired officers appeal removals

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

OVIDO — Two Oviedo policemen, fired in connection with unrelated allegations that they lied, are scheduled to appeal their firings.

The appeals of officers John Carson and Frank Baker are scheduled for Tuesday by separate three-member boards. The boards are called for by the Policeman's Bill of Rights, according to Oviedo Police Chief Dennis Peterson, who fired the pair. They can also make a second appeal to be returned to work by city officials.

"If they lie, what good are they as police officers," Peterson asked. "They can do other jobs. We live in glass houses," he said of police, and added that a police officer who lies has no credibility when testifying in court and can cause a great deal of "heartache" for juries, who learn that an officer has a record as a liar.

Carson, 41, who was fired Jan. 17, is accused of lying on his job application about his previous firing from the Orlando Police Department. In 1988, before Peterson was named Oviedo's chief, Carson was selected as the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce's police officer of the year.

On his Oviedo job application, Carson wrote he was fired from the Orlando department for filing one false work sheet. Another former Orlando police lieutenant, who joined the Oviedo force in the fall, was familiar with Carson's record and checked his background. In that check it was determined, Peterson said, that Carson was fired for allegedly falsifying a number of work sheets and for lying.

Baker, 29, who has been with the department about four years, and who worked with the youth Explorer Scout's division, was suspended Jan. 13 and subsequently fired after he lied about his involvement with a married woman. Peterson said Baker, who is also married, was ordered by Peterson to stop seeing the woman. Peterson said the relationship violated the standard of conduct rules for the department, which called for suspension. But Baker was fired for allegedly lying about the relationship and for insubordination, Peterson said.

The fired officers have been replaced by two officers who were previously assigned to reserve duty.

FAA orders over 700 Boeing jets to undergo inspection

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration ordered a sweeping airworthiness inspection of more than 700 Boeing aircraft Tuesday, saying it has found wiring problems in some Boeing jetliners.

"The FAA has decided that prudence dictates a check of all affected aircraft," the federal agency said in a two-page statement.

The FAA said it would require inspections of all Boeing 737-747, 757 and 767 aircraft built since 1980 for possible cross-wiring of engine and cargo compartment fire warning and extinguishing systems. The FAA said 741 Boeing aircraft were covered by the inspection order.

Airline analysts, and some former and current Boeing employees, have recently charged that the company has cut corners during aircraft construction in order to maintain rigorous production schedules.

The agency first issued an airworthiness directive on Boeing 737-300s and 737-400s models on Jan. 11, three days after the fiery crash of one of the planes in England that killed 44 people.

The crippled plane went down while attempting to make an emergency landing after the pilot turned off the wrong engine on the twin-engine aircraft.

Although British investigators are still attempting to determine the cause of that crash, a second FAA inspection directive, issued Jan. 13, found some wiring problems on the Boeing 757 and Boeing 737.

"The recently discovered problems were cross-wiring of a 757 that would result in an overhear indication for the wrong engine," the FAA said.

The agency said "cross-wiring on another 757" would cause the fire extinguisher for the wrong engine to go off and that an incomplete circuit in another 757 would prevent the fire extinguisher from activating.

In addition, the FAA said, its inspection found cross-wiring on a Boeing 737 that "would cause the fire extinguisher for the wrong engine to fire."

Responding to Tuesday's FAA action, Boeing spokesman Craig Martin said nearly 500 737-300s were checked worldwide after the first directive "and absolutely nothing wrong was found."

He said 208 of the 757s were checked after the second directive and some problems were found in nine aircraft; eight planes had faults in the plumbing of the cargo fire suppression system and one was found with an engine fire suppression system wired incorrectly.

Martin said Boeing worked with the FAA on developing the newest sweeping directive that requires inspections of the fire detection systems for the engines and cargo holds.

"If even one more (problem) is found, it will justify doing these examinations," Martin said. "The overall result will be to put to rest in people's minds whether there are these kinds of problems in Boeing airplanes."

The FAA said in its statement that the airline manufacturer "is studying the design, production procedures and functional testing of the affected systems."

Alaskan cold snap breaks pressure record

UPI report

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Frost-weary Alaskans, struggling to cope with the third strongest high pressure system ever recorded on Earth, faced another day Wednesday of dealing with a deadly cold wave.

The high pressure system, the strongest ever recorded in North America, and the vicious double-digit sub-zero temperatures were involved in the deaths of eight Canadian servicemen who died in a plane crash and the disappearance of a Seattle-based crab boat with six people aboard. Thirty-seven soldiers suffered frostbite in winter maneuvers.

Emergency supplies of food and fuel were flown Tuesday to a pair of villages cut off by a brutal cold wave.

The Coast Guard reopened the frigid wind-battered port of Valdez, terminus of the 800-mile trans-Alaska pipeline, and the first tankers allowed into port since Sunday were scheduled to leave at 12:30 a.m. AST (4:30 a.m. EST) Wednesday, loaded with crude oil for refineries on the West and Gulf coasts, said Tom Brennan, Alyaska Pipeline spokesman.

The National Weather Service said the barometric pressure at Northway was 31.85 — the third strongest high pressure system recorded on Earth, and the highest in North America. Two slightly higher readings occurred in 1900 and 1968 in Siberia.

Two tiny Alaska villages became so critically low on food and supplies Tuesday that the state Division of Emergency Services arranged to have planes fly in with supplies provided by the Red Cross and the Salvation Army, said Sgt. Dorothy Bradshaw of the Alaska National Guard.

Road will be closed Sunday

SANFORD — A portion of Celery Avenue will be closed most of Sunday for installation of a utility line under the road.

The road will be closed between 7:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday between Bay and Mellonville Avenues, according to Alan Crawford of Heuer Utility.

He said a conduit will be laid under the road, then the trench will be filled and asphalted.

Quayle faces first major test

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Dan Quayle faced the first major test of his vice presidency Wednesday with the start of a three-day trip to Latin America that administration officials hoped would help his image at home and abroad. Quayle carried few, if any, specific messages on the swing to Venezuela and El Salvador, but was described as viewing the journey as a chance to demonstrate he will be a full player in the Bush presidency.

Experts dispute Peary cover-up

United Press International

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Navigation experts came to the defense of the late Adm. Robert Peary Wednesday and attacked recent revelations that a lost document proved the Arctic explorer failed to reach the North Pole and was a fraud.

Last fall, historian Dennis Rawlins, of Baltimore, said his analysis of a navigational worksheet conclusively showed the "discoverer of the North Pole" actually missed his mark by more than 100 miles — and was aware of the fact and covered it up.

But at the request of the National Geographic Society, the non-profit Navigation Foundation took a second look at the document and concluded "Rawlins' analysis is clearly incorrect."

Rawlins based his claim that Peary committed "one of the biggest scientific frauds in history" on a single slip of paper found in 1947 among the files of Isiah Bowman, a former Johns Hopkins University president.

Eliminate bureaucratic bumbling in our food

An internal audit by the Department of Agriculture confirms what consumers have long suspected: That the federal government is no longer capable of guaranteeing meat and poultry to be free of dangerous pesticide residues.

A report by the department's Office of Inspector General says adulterated meat and poultry is being sold to the public. It describes the system that is supposed to assure the safety of foodstuffs as slipshod and sometimes ineffective.

Alarming, the report also asserts that the department's inspection agency, the Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS), has little authority to prevent food being marketed with illegal amounts of pesticides and other chemicals.

Last year a study showed that FSIS tests could detect only about 40 of 227 pesticides that may be found in meat and milk. Now we learn that even when illegal and harmful substances are discovered, the FSIS is unable to investigate the violations in 79 percent of cases.

This intolerable situation has arisen partly because of bureaucratic inefficiency and partly because inspectors reportedly have no way of tracing the producers of contaminated food.

In trying to dig itself out of this mess, the FSIS has asked the food industry to police itself by monitoring levels of illegal chemicals and ferreting out violators. Since June 1986, any company agreeing to upgrade its quality-control procedures has been exempted from routine monitoring by federal inspectors. In addition, the company is allowed to make claims on its product labels about the superiority of its service and products.

Undoubtedly, the vast majority of food companies guard against polluted products, jealously guarding their reputations. But requesting them to monitor themselves is asking too much.

The Department of Agriculture should immediately address public concern as expressed in a nationwide survey last year by the Food Marketing Institute, which found that consumers are more worried about pesticide contamination than about additives, salt, or any other component of food.

If the FSIS is to function as the consumers' watchdog, it needs a stouter heart and sharper teeth. It must eliminate the procedural bumbling that seems to be the only reason for its inability to detect the presence of so many pesticides and other chemicals in foodstuffs. Public confidence in the government's ability to protect food from chemicals capable of causing health problems such as cancer and birth defects will continue to erode until the FSIS shows itself to be capable of functioning efficiently.

Quotas, set-asides and knee-jerks

Knee-jerking is an equal opportunity reflex. Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals — all of us within George Bush's pantheon of diversity — usually react with Pavlovian swiftness if our ox is gored.

When I read the recent headlines about the Supreme Court decision declaring the city of Richmond's set-aside program for minority contractors unconstitutional, I groaned.

When I read the court's opinion, I concluded that it made sense — which is no way for a knee-jerk liberal in good standing to react.

Based on Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's majority opinion, I've decided that I'm really a knee-jerk egalitarian.

O'Connor used the 14th Amendment to throw out Richmond's minority contractor set-aside program. O'Connor said that the program violated the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment.

But 121 years after the amendment was ratified, blacks still don't enjoy equal protection under the law in any area of American life. Worse, their condition regressed under the Reagan administration.

Minority set-aside programs for contractors attempt to close the gap between protection and implementation by spelling out the methods for redressing what even O'Connor called a "sorry" record of racism. But the well-intentioned Richmond set-aside program did suffer from abuses.

Although Richmond never defined the sociological rationale for the 30 percent quota it reserved for minority contractors, O'Connor was in error when she wrote: "The 30 percent quota cannot in any realistic sense be tied to any injury suffered by anyone."

In a city that is 52 percent black with less than 1 percent of the public contracts held by blacks, only one of two inferences is possible: (1) Black contractors are inherently inferior and incapable of doing the work; (2) Black contractors have been systematically excluded from the opportunity to compete in the market place. (In fact, they are not short of bids because they cannot get bonded.) The disparity between percentages is indeed prima facie "direct evidence of race discrimination on the part of the city."

But O'Connor was brilliantly on target when she wrote: "In this case, the city does not even know how many (minority-owned businesses) in the relevant market are qualified to undertake prime or subcontracting work in public construction projects..."

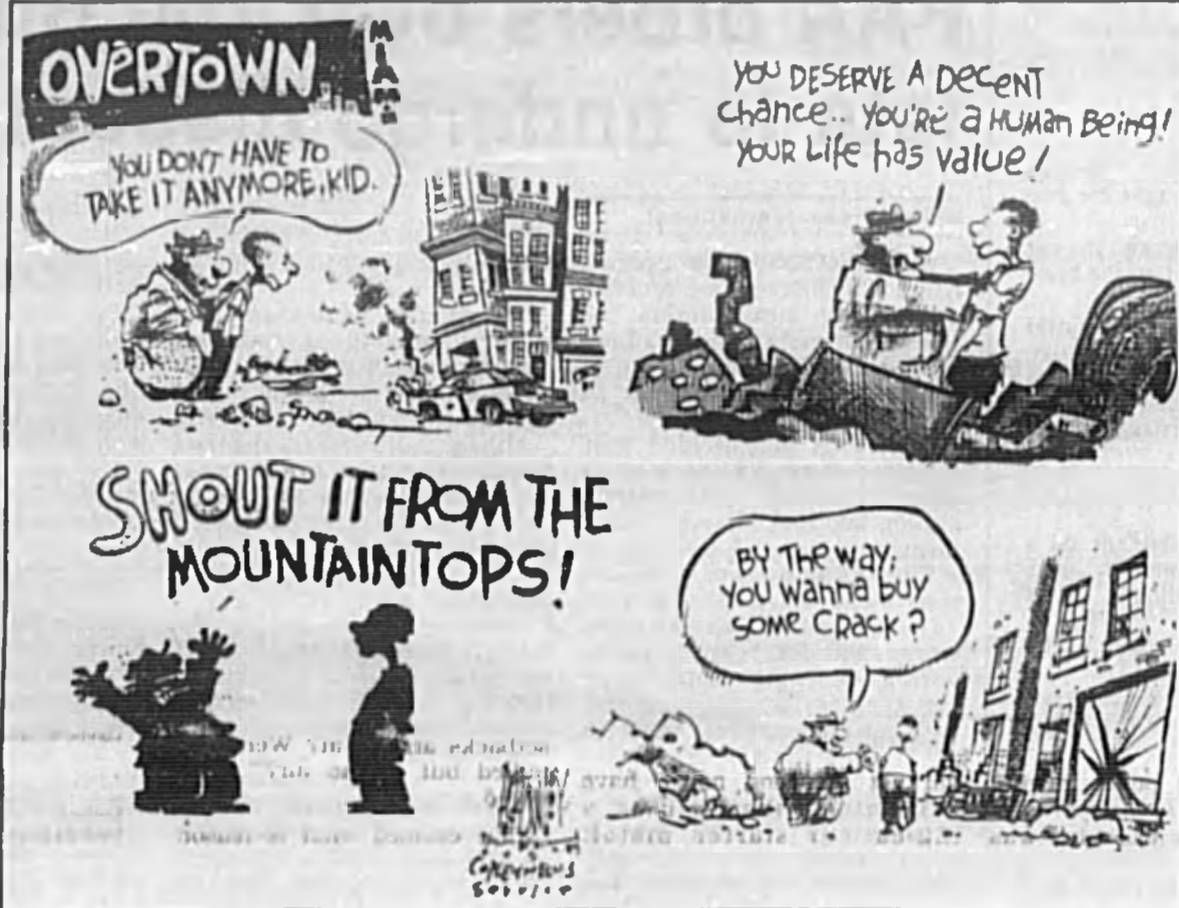

"Without any information on minority participation in subcontracting, it is quite simply impossible to evaluate overall minority representation in the city's construction expenditures."

Ten years ago, set-asides were constitutionally valid. The only difference today is a new conservative Supreme Court majority.

What this new majority is now saying is that if disadvantaged people contend that they suffer from proscriptions by the advantaged majority: (1) Do your research and make sure you have irrefutable historical statistics to document your case; (2) Don't throw in every minority you can find just to make your case — which Richmond did in a ridiculous grapeshot.

Defense Department muffs bribery probe

WASHINGTON — There are plenty of top-notch investigators at the Defense Department. But last year the wrong crew was assigned to check out an anonymous tip that a former Navy surgeon may have bribed his way out of jail.

The investigators first assigned to the job booted things so badly that a mop-up crew is now struggling to salvage what remains.

The case involves Donal Billig, the former heart surgeon at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland who was convicted in 1986 of involuntary manslaughter and negligent homicide in the surgery deaths of three patients. The Court of Military Review overturned the conviction last March. A month later, an anonymous caller told the Defense Department hotline for whistleblowers that Billig, working with a bagman, bribed one or more of the judges on the panel, according to an affidavit filed in court by the Defense Department.

Whitlock reportedly tipped his hand during a meeting with the judges

We already reported that Defense Department investigators recently subpoenaed the banking records of Billig and his wife. Subpoenas are usually the last step in wrapping up a bribery probe. Seasoned criminal investigators often begin by nosing around quietly to find someone involved in the alleged bribe who can be scared into testifying against the others.

But this probe is barely off the ground and the subpoenas are just about the only option left to the Defense Department. The ball was dropped by Special Inquiries, a group in the Defense Department inspector general's office that does not normally handle criminal investigations.

Several sources close to the probe told our associate Stewart Harris that the man who commands Special Inquiries, Stephen A. Whitlock, spilled the beans about the allegations to judges on the Court of Military Review. Whitlock reportedly tipped his hand during a meeting with the judges last spring, shortly after the tipster called and before investigators had a chance to make quiet inquiries.

The judges responded by challenging the right of the inspector general to investigate them. Then they appointed their own investigator who, in an interim report, said he found no evidence of wrongdoing.

Early attempts by the Defense Department to verify the tipster's allegations met with "mixed results," according to court papers filed by the government in support of the bank record subpoenas. Those subpoenas may now be the best chance the government has to resolve the case.

Normally, investigators try to rattle weak links in a suspected bribery scheme. If someone talks, a plea bargain is struck in exchange for testimony against the key players. Prosecutors also can capitalize on the divisiveness and confusion that often breaks out among nervous conspirators.

"If you subpoena records, all you are going to get is records. Witness testimony is the best evidence," said one Defense Department source who is disgusted with the way the inquiry was handled.

Inspector General June Gibbs Brown declined to say why the Special Inquiries team was put on the sensitive Billig case from the outset.

But our sources tell us that Special Inquiries was assigned because Deputy Director Derek Vander Schaaf wanted a quick turnaround on the case. Special Inquiries is supposed to handle allegations of non-criminal improprieties within 30 to 45 days. Vander Schaaf calls it his "tiger team." But the team is a pussy cat when it comes to hard core criminal investigations.

A medical priesthood

BOSTON — I used to think that only primitive tribes had detailed taboos to dictate the way they ate and dressed, had sex and raised children. I used to think that medieval people were the ones who based their daily decisions on the intricate instructions of shamans. The modern American tribe didn't need detailed codes of behavior. We shook ourselves free from the superstitions and elaborate religious codes that had inhibited our ancestors' lives.

But lately, I have been wondering how different our tribe really is. The news has been full of reports about right and wrong ways to live. These are not religious allegories, but medical tales. They're not based on scriptures but on research. They detail the good and evil of estrogen, the right of exercise and wrong of smoking.

The old taboos were religious. Ours are medical. Our ancestors talked about risks and the soul, and we talk about risks to our bodies.

They kept faith with tradition; we put faith in "The best scientific evidence."

But our focus on these matters is religious in its intensity. So I wonder if we haven't just shifted our loyalty from one group of experts to another. I wonder if we haven't just shifted our anxiety from one set of observances to another.

Our faith is most obvious in our eating habits. Americans have become students, or should I say followers, of an expanding list of do's and don'ts that rivals the longest menu.

Under the eye of our new medical priesthood, we have adopted proscriptions more rigid than those of a Muslim or Hindu. We keep healthy, a cuisine far more demanding than keeping kosher.

How would an anthropologist analyze the way food is taken as medicine in our tribe? For breakfast we cut up potassium over fiber and pour calcium on top. We eat Oat Bran for our heart and carrots for our colon, protein for the brain and complex carbohydrates for our mood.

We follow advice as if our life depended on it. Instead of memorizing the saints or gods who have power over our troubles, we learn by rote and ingredients that will lower and reduce the chances of heart disease or cancer. We are taught to follow the commandments: Thou shalt not smoke. Thou shalt not sprinkle thy food with salt.

The elite of our scientific hierarchy pour over the entrails of their computer data. We hear them argue now over interpretations the way medieval rabbis argued over the Talmud. Estrogen, says one, may increase the odds of breast cancer and decrease the chance of osteoporosis. It may, says another, heighten the possibility of cancer of uterus and reduce that of heart disease.

As lay people we worry about these arguments between scientific sects the way our ancestors worried about the struggles of the Reformation in the past, those who followed a false doctrine believed they would face a hellish future. In the present, taking sides may be a matter of life and death.

We even judge human behavior differently now. A researcher at a recent American Heart Association meeting reported that angry and cynical people were five times as likely to die before they turned 50 than calm and trusting people. The old moral virtues have been transcribed into health commandments.

We are less likely to count our sins and more likely to calculate our risk factors. What's at stake is not the hereafter but the here-and-now.

How much freer, then, is our tribe? We don't have to worry about insulting a god that lives in a tree or stream. We don't have to guide our lives by the need to appease a spirit. But we, like they, try to mollify the great unseen powers by increasingly cautious behavior.

For all our sophistication and knowledge, public attention to the taboos of contemporary life comes from the same roots as those of our ancestors. It grows out of anxiety and the pursuit of safety. It turns out that we share something with these ancestors: a thoroughly ancient and thoroughly modern desire to cheat fate.

The old taboos were religious. Ours are medical.

Gangs kill 10-year-old boy

LONG BEACH, Calif. — A 10-year-old boy was killed and four other people, including a teenager, wounded in a gang-related drive-by shooting Tuesday night in MacArthur Park, police said.

The shooting occurred shortly after 9 p.m. in the park in the city's central section, Lt. Howard Jenkins said. No arrests had been made.

Officers arrived at the park to find that witnesses had already taken the victims to St. Mary Medical Center.

The boy, who had been shot numerous times, died there. The other victims told emergency room workers that they did not know him, said hospital spokeswoman Wendy Kuran.

Fires roar across Nebraska plains

BROADWATER, Neb. — Flames reaching 25 feet high and whipped by high winds roared across western Nebraska rangeland Tuesday, burning more than 8,000 acres of prairie, tons of winter feed, some cattle and farm buildings, authorities said.

No injuries were reported in the blaze, which broke out shortly after noon.

Shawn Baumgardner, public information officer at Alliance, said the fire started about 10 miles south of Alliance, east of the Halls Cattle Co. Others said it started 4-5 miles east of Angora, evidently on the Dove Ranch. The cause was under investigation.

Students walk in support of teachers

LOS ANGELES — About 3,000 students walked out of their classrooms Tuesday, demanding the report cards their teachers threatened to withhold in a worsening contract dispute with the Los Angeles Unified School District.

Superintendent Leonard Britton, meanwhile, met with groups of principals throughout the day, telling them the district will be issuing them guidelines on what to do if teachers fail to report student grades to the district, district spokeswoman Rea Parody said.

Students at six junior high schools, one senior high school and another school walked out of their classes, demanding the report cards due Friday, Parody said.

Nineteen killed in tanker crash

United Press International

ABILENE, Texas — Investigators working through the night tried to determine if the crash of an Air Force tanker plane that killed all 19 people aboard was the result of engine trouble, as one witness described it.

The KC-135 tanker, filled with fuel for an in-flight refueling mission, crashed and exploded about 12:10 p.m. CST Tuesday while taking off from Dyess Air Force Base, officials said.

"I heard the engines backfire just like a car with a cracked distributor cap. I knew he was in lots of trouble," said witness Skeet Jackson, who has lived for 25 years near the end of the south runway at Dyess.

He said the plane reached only treetop level before its left wing dug into the ground, then the craft burst into flames.

"It kind of got above the mesquite trees and turned back to the east, a sharp left-hand turn. The left wing hit the ground, and it just blew all to pieces. It was loaded with all this aviation fuel. It was black like burning old tires with a fireball in it."

There was no evidence that the crew had radioed for help before the crash, Strategic Air Command spokesman Lt. Col. George Peck said.

All 19 people aboard were killed, Dyess spokeswoman Airman Airman Lois Morrell said. They included seven crew members, four other military personnel, four military retirees and four military dependents. Their names were withheld until their families could be notified.

At least some of the victims were believed to be from K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base in Marquette, Mich., where the flight originated Monday, officials said.

"I'm sure you can understand that any time you have any sort of accident of this sort, it's a shock," said Sgt. Anita Bailey, a spokeswoman at Sawyer.

"The military is a very close-knit community," she said. "These (victims) are folks we live next to, work with day-to-day. These are the same people our kids go to school with. It's a shock to any community."

Japan's prime minister will visit Bush, U.N.

United Press International

NEW YORK — Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita began an eight-day visit to the United States, vowing to increase Tokyo's contributions to U.N. peace-keeping efforts and to meet with President Bush to build "mutual trust."

Takeshita and Foreign Minister Sosuke Uno departed Tokyo aboard a special Japan Air Lines flight and arrived Tuesday in New York for the first leg of a trip that also includes stops in Washington and Los Angeles.

The Japanese leader was scheduled Wednesday to visit U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar at the world body's New York headquarters, and planned to drop in on Japanese language classes at Columbia University.

Takeshita told a convention of Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party on Tuesday that he will discuss with Perez de Cuellar specific proposals for stepping up Japan's contributions to the United Nations' peace-keeping efforts.

Japan's contributions account for more than 11 percent of the U.N. budget.

The centerpiece of Takeshita's trip will be a three-hour meeting Thursday with the president at the White House — Bush's first visit with a foreign leader since his inauguration Jan. 20.

"I will try to strengthen the mutual trust in my talks with Mr. Bush and also discuss global problems," Takeshita said. "We will try to solve various global problems jointly."

The Bush administration is expected to announce a new U.S. ambassador to Tokyo.

Colombian hijacker captured

United Press International

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — A young man armed with a bottle of gasoline and a cigarette lighter hijacked a Colombian airliner with 123 people aboard Tuesday and forced it to fly to Costa Rica, where he was captured shortly after the plane landed.

The pilot of the ACES Airline Boeing 727 said the hijacker poured gasoline on one passenger and threatened to ignite the fuel with the lighter during the 90-minute ordeal aboard Flight 533.

In Bogota, an airline spokesman said several passengers on the flight from the Caribbean island of San Andria to the Colombian city of Medellin were treated for shock at San Jose hospitals, but there were no other injuries. There were 116 passengers and a crew of seven aboard the craft.

Police said the hijacker surrendered, but officials at Juan Santamaria Airport, 13 miles west of San Jose, said crew members aided by passengers overpowered the man minutes after the plane landed, tied him up and handing him over to authorities.

"The situation is under control," Mauricio Fagot Samarra, a police spokesman at the airport said shortly after the Boeing 727 landed.

Officials identified the suspect as Albin Antonio Fui Mosia, 24, a Miskito Indian from Nicaragua who has lived nine years on San Andria, a Colombian resort island.

Costa Rican Interior Minister Antonio Alvarez said three other passengers were briefly detained as suspected accomplices, but were released after questioning and were allowed to reboard the plane.

The flight continued to Colombia about five hours after landing in San Jose, after a bomb squad searched the aircraft without finding anything.

Soviet shuttle to retrieve space station

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union will use its recently launched Buran space shuttle to retrieve the mothballed Salyut 7 space station and return it to Earth for possible repair and relaunch, Radio Moscow said Wednesday.

The Salyut 7, launched in April 1982, was shut down three years ago when the new generation Mir space station was launched. A total of 21 cosmonauts worked on Salyut 7 during its four years in service.

The station had been hounded by bad luck almost since its launch. In 1985, the station's solar batteries malfunctioned shutting down all power and rendering the complex useless. A Soviet space repair crew managed to revive the station in what still rates as one of the most daring and complex repair operations in the history of space exploration.

During a previous mission, cosmonaut Vladimir Vasyutin became seriously ill while onboard Salyut 7, forcing an earlier termination of the flight.

Soviet mathematician surfaces in Israel

JERUSALEM — A Soviet Jewish mathematician who disappeared in Paris Sunday entered Israel this week on a temporary residency visa, an Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said Wednesday.

Iakov Kogan, a researcher at the Soviet Academy of Sciences, was staying at the Ramat Aviv immigrant absorption center north of Tel Aviv, Army Radio reported.

Kogan, 48, speaking broken English, told Army Radio he was happy to be in Israel because he was a Jew.

Knicks streak on in the Garden

New York Coach Rick Pitino worked hard Tuesday night to keep his team from underestimating the Indiana Pacers.

Gerald Wilkins came off the bench to score 7 of his 18 points in the final period and Charles Oakley added 22 points to pace the Knicks to a 120-111 victory. New York was playing its first game at Madison Square Garden after suffering a 2-5 Western road swing, including losses in its final two games.

But the Knicks entered the game with a 17-1 record at Madison Square Garden, including victories in their last 14 in a row. And still Pitino professed worry about Pacers.

He held to that despite the Pacers' 1-19 mark on the road. And he maintained that position even though New York had routed Indiana 141-113 the last time the two teams met at Madison Square Garden in December.

WRESTLING

Oviedo grapplers get stung

Bishop Moore continued its dominance and remained unbeaten as it hammered Oviedo, 58-18, Tuesday night in wrestling action at Bishop Moore High School.

The Hornets improved to 12-0 and remained ranked as the state's third ranked class 3A team. Oviedo dropped to 10-4 and was handed its worse loss of the season.

Bishop Moore opened with a pair of pins and never trailed. Oviedo managed to cut the lead to 12-6 when Kevin Newton made quick work of Danny Dorthy, sticking him in 47 seconds at the 119 pound weight class.

Ken Schrupp brought the Lions to within six points again, 18-12, when he pinned Phil Gentile in 4:17. Oviedo's Kyle Larum was then upset by Keith Suggs, 7-6, in the 160 pound division as Bishop Moore rolled to eight consecutive victories in the match.

Oviedo's Dan Wynn ended the night with a pin over Dale JeBallely in the heavyweight division to cut the lead to the final margin.

Loyola in a squeaker, 181-150

LOS ANGELES — Hank Gathers, the nation's leading scorer, scored 41 points Tuesday night to lead Loyola Marymount to a record-shattering 181-150 victory over U.S. International in the highest-scoring game in collegiate history.

Loyola, the nation's highest-scoring team, easily broke the NCAA Division I record for most points, set Jan. 7 in a 162-144 victory over U.S. International. The teams also shattered the record of 306 total points set in the Jan. 7 game. The Lions, 12-7, led 94-77 at halftime Tuesday, surpassing the record 93 first-half points they scored in the earlier game.

U.S. International, of San Diego, also broke their own record of 144 points scored by a losing team.

HOCKEY

Sabres finally bests Hartford

The Buffalo Sabres not only won a hockey game Tuesday night, but overcame one of their NHL nemesis.

Mike Foligno registered his eighth career hat trick, leading the Sabres to a 5-3 victory over Hartford. Buffalo's first triumph over the Whalers in five tries this season.

"It was important to win this game, almost to send a message. 'We can beat you,'" Foligno said. "We have not done well against the Whalers and we started out the same way."

"For some reason, we haven't gone after the Whalers like we have other teams. They come at us 100 miles per hour. We regrouped and showed we can play."

Pierre Turgeon added four assists as the Sabres, 8-1-2 since Jan. 7, strengthened their hold on second place in the Adams Division.

Lady 'Noles blank Eagles

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald sports editor

It's not often that Suzy Reno and her Seminole High School girls soccer team are in a position to show mercy, but in their 3-0 win on Tuesday night, the Lady 'Noles did just that.

Matched against an almost helpless first-year team from Orlando Edgewater in the first round of the 3A-District 5 tournament, the Tribe remembered when they were in a like situation and took pity.

After Shannon Sundvall had given Seminole a more than comfortable 3-0 halftime lead with a hat trick, Reno shuffled players around to keep the game from getting out of hand.

"I remember when we were a first-year team and we got beat 15-0," said Reno. "It was embarrassing. They (Edgewater) are a young team."

Reno also pointed out that the lineup juggling was for her team's own good. With just 15 able-bodied players left (barely), the Seminoles spent the second half conserving energy and bodies.

"I gave the girls the day off tomorrow to get some rest and for some to heal," said Reno, whose team climbed to 12-12 with the win.

Seminole will now play Oviedo, which whipped up on St. Cloud 17-0.

Seminole's first goal against Orlando Edgewater on Tuesday night came at 2:49 of the first half, when Shannon Sundvall (No. 12) took a pass from Jennifer Lindamood (No. 22) and beat Edgewater goalie Michelle Deamud to the right post. Sundvall notched a hat trick as Seminole won 3-0 to advance to the next round of the 3A-District 5 tournament.

OVIDEO — It took the Lady Lions nearly 20 minutes to break the ice but when they did it opened up a close match as they went on to score a school record 17 goals en route to a 17-0 victory in the opening round of district 3A-5 play before 101 fans at Oviedo High School.

The Lady Lions improved to 6-15 and will now play Seminole, at Seminole Thursday night at 7. The Lady Bulldogs, in their first season, finished with a 2-15 record.

"We needed this kind of game," Oviedo coach Gene Lescallette said. "We've been on the other end of the stick, its nice to feel this side for a change."

Kathy Buroski opened the scoring taking a pass from Maureen Kelleher and drilling a shot past the St. Cloud goalie to give her team a 1-0 advantage with 20:35 to play in the opening half.

St. Cloud managed to keep the game close behind the strong play of its defense and the play of keeper Suzy D'

Augustino. It was in the final 15:48 of the first half though, that things turned sour for the Lady Bulldogs.

D'Augustino went down with an elbow injury and St. Cloud, being a young team, found itself in trouble with an inexperienced keeper. Oviedo wasted no time exploiting the weakness as Jennifer Whitaker, who finished the game with a hat trick, put in a rebound shot with 15:48 to up the lead to 2-0.

Moments later it was Kelleher, who also finished with three goals, putting in her first score with 14:02 to play. Linley Yost, who had a hat trick, pumped in the next goal to build the lead to a comfortable 4-0 with 12:35 to play in the opening half.

Kelleher then tipped in a shot with 6:49 to play in the half on a high arching shot that bounced its way into the net. The Lady Lions then sensed they could do as they please and were never challenged from then on.

Jenny Wise added a goal with 3:56 to play in the opening 40 minutes to give Oviedo a lopsided 6-0 lead at the intermission.

Short-handed Rams tie Lyman 2-2

LONGWOOD — Lake Mary captured its first ever Seminole Athletic Conference soccer title as it tied Lyman 2-2 Tuesday night in boys action at Lyman High School.

The Rams (17-2-3) are currently ranked second in class 4A and will return to action at home Thursday against always tough Oviedo. The Greyhounds (10-4-7) will return to action

Thursday at home against Seminole.

"It was the usual tough match that we always have against Lake Mary but they didn't have their studs playing," Lyman coach Ray Sandidge said. "I know its a tie but you could say they won. They played without John Mora, Jon Brooks, Eric Ravndal and Manny Roldan and still tied us."

Darren Forde opened the games scoring with the only goal in the first half. Mike Hodak made a cross field run, carrying the ball into the box and forcing Lyman goalie Kelly Walden to commit. Hodak then flicked a pass to Forde who knocked the ball into the net to give the Rams a 1-0 lead with 6:12 to play.

The two teams battled in the second half but could not find the net until the final eight minutes when three goals were scored. The Greyhounds managed to get the better of the CASSELBERRY — Tracy Brandenburg poured in a game high 24 points and teammate Gretchen Mull added 19 points and 17 rebounds to pace the Lady Patriots of Lake Brantley to a 68-52 victory over the Lady Silver Hawks of Lake Howell in girls prep basketball action at Lake Howell High in front of 201 fans.

The win improved the Lady Patriots to 12-7 on the season while the Lady Silver Hawks dropped to 13-11. Both teams resume action this Thursday as the Lady Pats host the Lady Bulldogs of DeLand while the Lady Silver Hawks hope to rebound on the road as they take on the Lady Buccaneers of Maitland.

Brandenburg went all out in the second half scoring 15 points in the process. On the night, the Lake Brantley senior point guard dished out nine assists, took away five steals, and added three rebounds.

Tracy came out a little cold early, but really got going in the second half. Lady Pat head coach Cindy Frank. "Gretchen had the best aggressive game I've seen from her this year. I just wish we could have worked the ball in the inside a little more."

The game was close for much of the first half with the scoring of Lake Howell's Jennifer Brown, who had 19 points, and shooting guard Tanya Lewis, who added 10. The defensive play of senior point guard Brooke Burns took Brandenburg out of her rhythm and stopped her from heating up in the first half.

Even though the Lady Silver Hawks kept the game close at the half, 33-26 in Brantley's favor, they were outscored 19-13 in the third period and 17-12 in the fourth for the 16-point margin of victory.

The play of the Lady Patriot bench, chiefly that of Shelley Sturdivant, helped keep the game under control for Lake Brantley and enabled Brandenburg to rest just enough to be effective the entire night.

LAKE BRANTLEY (16): Brandenburg 24, Billmyer 1, Sturdivant 8, Burns 3, Mull 6, Gibson 1, Tutford 4, Ketha 1, Totals 28, 16 32 44.
LAKE HOWELL (12): Brown 19, Lewis 10, Hawkins 9, Lahr 5, Williams 1, Miller 4, Winston 2, Totals 19, 13 24 32.

Despite starting with a cold hand, Lake Brantley's Tracy Brandenburg scored a game-high 24 points (15 in the second half) to lead the Lady Patriots to a 68-52 win over the Lake Howell Lady Silver Hawks.

DELAND — With Adrian Hillsman coming just two rebounds short of notching the very rare quadruple double, the Seminole High School girls basketball team made short work of the DeLand Lady Bulldogs, winning 80-38.

Hillsman, playing sparingly in the second half, finished the night with 16 points, 10 assists, 10 steals and eight rebounds. Sheri Reddicks, who pulled down 10 rebounds, was the game's high scorer with 29 points. Michelle Toomits added 10 points for Seminole.

Renee Bellamy was the top point getter for DeLand, scoring 13 while teammate Marlandia Yarrington had 10.

"The girls played extremely well, all of the girls," said Seminole coach John McNamara. "Adrian scored all her 16 points by half time. She didn't play much in the second half."

The bench scored 23 points. We rebounded well, ran and found the open person. It did get a little sloppy down the end, but by that time, a lot of the bench was in.

Seminole jumped on DeLand right away, outscoring their leading scorer in the first quarter and 15-20 in the half time. In the third quarter, the Lady 'Noles blew the game wide open with a 21-6 ball.

Now 11-2 overall, with a 9-0 at Seminole Athletic Conference play, Seminole now seeks its sights on the Lady Greyhounds of Lyman. The Tribe travels to Lyman on Friday for Lyman evened the score at 1-1 when Bernard Harden made a strong run to the center of the field and Lake Mary keeper Steve Sharp came out on him. Harden then tipped a pass to JoJo House who sent the ball into the net and tied things up with 8:11 to play.

Lake Mary came right back and worked the ball deep into Greyhound territory. The Rams managed a free kick and Forde drilled a shot on goal. Jeff Onderko headed the ball out but the ball went straight to Lake Mary's Chris Doran. Doran promptly sent the ball back at the net and it bounced off a Lyman defender and into the goal.
Lyman managed to even the score once again with House again getting the goal off a double assist from Jerod Knott and Onderko. Onderko made a short run and passed the ball off to Knott who touched the ball over to House who finished the score off by blasting a shot into the net.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Lake Brantley's boys soccer team, perhaps one of the unluckiest squads in recent memory, suffered another heart-breaking setback on Tuesday night.
This time, it was the Silver Hawks of Lake Howell that did the damage, scoring the winning goal with seven seconds remaining in the game to beat the host Patriots 2-1.
"We missed chances and they missed chances in the first half," said Lake Brantley coach Jim Brody. "We had trouble getting shots off. We were creating chances but we weren't getting shots."
The Silver Hawks scored first when Chris Taylor took advantage of a failed clearing attempt by the Lake Brantley defense and beat Patriot goalie Kirk Klafter at the 29-minute mark.
Lake Brantley kept coming and, in the 68th minute, Julian Harlan tied the score on a Patriot free kick that was dropped by Steve Munnell, the Lake Howell 'keeper, and bounced off another player before reaching Harlan.

Lake Howell's winning goal came on a scrabble following a corner kick. With time running out, the ball came in to Klafter, who was hit and lost the ball. Taylor came up with it and knocked in the game-winner.
DeLand 3
Seminole 1
Despite holding the statistical advantage, Seminole's boys soccer team saw its three-game unbeaten streak end on Tuesday in a 3-1 loss to the DeLand Bulldogs.
Going into Tuesday night's game, the Seminole boys were 1-0-2 in their last three games.
DeLand scored a pair of goals in the first half and one in the second for the winning margin. Seminole's only goal was scored by Travis Groover on an assist from Jimmi Reynolds in the 56th minute to cut the lead to 2-1.
Except for the final score, the 'Noles had the better numbers in the end, outshooting DeLand 14-7 and taking one corner kick to DeLand's none.

Dorthea Whittaker scored 21 points with Nicole Franklin adding 17 to pace Jones to a narrow 64-61 victory over Oviedo Tuesday night at Oviedo High School.
The win ups the Lady Tigers, ranked sixth in class 3A, to 20-2 for the season. The Lady Lions fell to 11-9 on the year.

"This was a moral booster for us," Oviedo coach John Thomas said. "We had our chances to win but didn't capitalize late in the game."
Oviedo had a chance to cut the lead to one but missed converting and had three chances in the final 18 seconds to put up a three-point field goal, getting just one shot off and that being long.

The Lady Lions, though, managed to work themselves back from a 12-point halftime deficit. Bridget Jennerette led Oviedo with a game-high 22 points with Suzanne Hughes netting 21 markers.

The Lady Tigers held a 38-26 halftime bulge with Franklin scoring 17 first-half points while Whittaker added 11, nine in the second quarter. Franklin then did not play in the second half and Oviedo surmounted a comeback.
The Lady Lions, playing without starting point guard Betsy Hughes, were hampered by the Jones press and had trouble with their ball handling all game.

"We really missed Betsy on the press break," Thomas said. "We wanted to dribble the ball through the press instead of making the passes like we do in practice. I was pleased with our second half, though, we really put up a good effort. I hope this will help us build some confidence for the stretch."

Triple doubles * reaching double figures in three categories, are unusual, but on Tuesday night, Adrian Hillman was just two rebounds short of a quadruple double in Seminole's 80-38 win over DeLand. She scored 16 points, had 10 assists, 10 steals and eight rebounds.

Seminole

Tuesday night, in one semifinal on Thursday. The other matches top-seed Bishop Moore, which received a first round bye, against Leesburg (4-0 winners over Deltona on Tuesday).

The Lady 'Noles opened quickly against Edgewater, scoring their first goal before the game was three minutes old. Jennifer Lindamood played a ball from the left wing in front of the goal, where Sundvall turned on it and nailed it inside the right post at 2:49.

It took another 19 minutes before the Tribe would score again. At 2:28, Sundvall got in past the Edgewater defense and once again beat Lady Eagle 'keeper Michelle Deamud to the right post.

At that point, Edgewater coach Robert McIntock lifted Deamud in favor of Jennifer Clark. But with under three minutes left in the half, she was victimized by Sundvall as she knocked in the rebound of a free kick by Heather Brown.

In the second half, Reno moved Sundvall to the back line and had her team work on passing the ball more crisply. The Tribe didn't score any more goals, but Reno hopes that the exercise will pay off on Thursday and, she hopes, in the finals on Friday.

"We were a little too bunched up in the first half," said Reno. "In the second half, we settled down and started passing the ball better. I just hope we can do it on Thursday."

"In the second half, I just wanted to keep the ball away from our 'keeper as much as possible."

That's Seminole's biggest problem. Among the injuries the 'Noles have suffered, the most crucial was to starting 'keeper Bobbie Osborne last week. In her stead, Amy Williams has done a credible job with little preparation.

"The girls are taking it very tough," said Reno. "Losing Bobbie was a big blow. But Amy has done well. I gave her a two-hour crash course on goalkeeping last Thursday."

scoring in the second half as each netted a pair of goals with Susie Ezell, Stacy Grassa and Kelly Griffin all contributing a goal each.

The Lady Lions were so in control they managed to outshoot the Lady Bulldogs 4-1. Oviedo also came up with an incredible 12 corner kicks and converted three of them for goals. St. Cloud managed a corner kick but could not get off a shot.

The Lady Bulldogs only chance to score came with 15 minutes to play when Jennifer Davidson made a long run down the right side and sent a shot on goal that managed to slip by Oviedo keeper Michelle Freeman. The shot, though, was wide of the net and Freeman managed to register a shutout.

Oviedo must now play Seminole, a team which it has split games with this season. This game will be the important one, though, as the winner advances to Friday night's finals and the other completes its season.

"If we play to our capabilities then it should be a real good game," Lescallette said. "Both games have been tough and we expect another good game on Thursday."

Family is recipe goldmine

By JANE HALE
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Most of the recipes of our Cook of the Week have been handed down from generation to generation.

"One such recipe is over a hundred years old and every member of my husband's family and now mine has this recipe," Fonda Nobles of Sanford said of a fruitcake recipe.

The recipes that Nobles uses at her family dinners are a combination of Yankee dishes from New England and Southern dishes from Florida.

Nobles was born in Farmington, Maine, but her family moved to Florida when she was about a year old. After settling in Maitland, the family moved again to Sanford while Nobles was a sophomore in high school.

Nobles' father, Robert C. Fortier, is a general contractor, and her mother Harriett Fortier, works as a market merchandiser at Walt Disney World.

Nobles is older than her three siblings. Brother Bruce is a contractor like his father. Another brother, Lee, lives in Maine and is a master carpenter. Sister Lynn lives in Duluth, Minn.

"We were a very close family and continue to be," Nobles said.

Unlike many good cooks, she didn't learn to cook at an early age, although her Gramma Abbie did teach her a few culinary tricks.

"I learned a lot after I was married," Nobles said. "I wish I could cook like Gramma Abbie cooks. She is in her eighties and continues to cook for herself."

Several of Nobles' recipes have come from her Gramma Abbie, including a recipe for corn corn chowder from the Depression era.

"Some days during the Depression, all some people had in their pantries were corn and

Lacy Nobles is obviously proud of her mother, Fonda, and her mother's Date Nut Bars.

FOOD & NUTRITION

potatoes. They made up a dish called corn chowder and this is what they would eat," Nobles said. "It really is good and is very simple to make."

She also gives credit to her mother-in-law, Louise Nobles, for helping her learn to cook.

The first dish Nobles said she remembers fixing was a turkey for Christmas dinner.

"While trying to impress my in-laws I decided I would fix the turkey," she said. "I had never fixed anything like that before and I didn't know you had to clean the inside of the turkey out before cooking it. I left the bag of necks and gizzards inside.

"When it was done and someone started to carve the turkey, we found the bag. The family never said anything and they ate it, but they do remind me of it quite often," she laughed. "I've since learned to clean out the inside of a turkey and to place it in a brown paper bag before cooking."

Nobles graduated from Seminole High School and attended North Florida Junior College. See Cook, Page 6B

Backyard citrus need not be wasted

Florida citrus is at its peak during the winter months. Many of us are fortunate to have citrus trees in our backyards that offer an abundance of fruit, and we look for ways to use it.

As a person who was raised with the philosophy of "waste not, want not," I look for ways to use fruit after sharing with family and friends. Maybe some of these recipes will help you with your "bumper crop."

We have oranges, grapefruit and lemons, so this recipe is especially helpful for us.

THREE CITRUS MARMALADE

Wash 1 orange, 1 Florida lemon and 1 grapefruit. Quarter, remove seeds and run through a food chopper or a food processor. Measure.

Place in a large batterbowl or 4-quart microwave-safe casserole dish. Add three cups of water for each cup of pulp. Microwave on 100 percent power for 10-12 minutes or until mixture comes to a boil. Allow to boil for 10-12 minutes. Let stand overnight. Stock is now ready for making marmalade.

Measure out 3 cups of stock into large (4-quart) casserole dish. Add 3 cups of sugar. Stir to dissolve sugar. Microwave on 100 percent power until temperature reaches 220°F on a candy/jelly thermometer. Remove from microwave oven. Let cool to 190°F and pour into clear (sterile) jar. Seal at once.

If you intend to keep the marmalade for any length of time not refrigerated, it should be processed for 10 minutes in a hot water bath.

Candied Citrus Peel has long been a favorite. Although it's not difficult to make, it does require some time.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

CANDIED CITRUS PEEL

3 oranges or 2 grapefruit (naval oranges work best)

- 1 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 2 tablespoons light corn syrup
 - Additional granulated sugar
- Remove peel from thick-skinned fruit in quarters. Cover with water; microwave on 100 percent power for 15-20 minutes. Drain; repeat process until tender.

Cut peel into thin strips. Combine one cup sugar, water, and corn syrup in large batter bowl or casserole dish. Microwave on 100 percent power until mixture comes to a boil. Add strips of peel, reduce power to 50 percent and microwave until peel is clear. Let stand overnight.

Reheat on 85 percent power and drain. Roll peel in granulated sugar and store in a tin or jar with a tight cover. The remaining syrup can be used for more peel or in other items, such as cake icing.

Here is an easy way to dress up a small serving of ham. Buy a large piece of ham, slice off enough for this recipe and use the remainder in other recipes.

- ## HAM WITH ORANGE SAUCE
- 1/2 cup orange juice
 - 1 tablespoon brown sugar
 - 1 tablespoon raisins
 - 1 teaspoon cornstarch
 - Dash of ground clove
 - Dash of dry mustard

8 ounces slice of cooked ham
Combine all ingredients except ham in 1 cup glass measure; mix well. Microwave on 100 percent power 1 1/2-2 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Set aside.

Arrange ham slice in a shallow baking dish. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 2 1/2 minutes or until just about hot. Spoon on enough sauce to glaze ham. Cover. Microwave on 100 percent power 1-2 minutes or until heated through. Serve remaining sauce with ham.

Just as orange juice is good anytime, so is this recipe:

ORANGE CRUNCH COFFEE CAKE

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup cooking oil
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 cup quick cooking rolled oats
- 1 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons grated orange peel

For glaze, combine:
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup chopped nuts, if desired
3 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons orange peel
Cream together sugar and oil in mixing bowl. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until light and creamy. Add flour, oats, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and milk; mix just until smooth. Stir in orange peel.

Grease bottom only of an 8-inch square baking dish. Pour in batter; spread evenly. Microwave on 50 percent power for 10 minutes then microwave on 100% power 4-6 minutes or until no longer doughy.

Combine ingredients for glaze in a 2-cup measure. Microwave on 100 percent power for 3 1/2-4 minutes or until slightly thickened, stirring once. Spoon glaze over warm cake.

The Nobles have three children. Natalie is 11 and attends Sanford Middle School. Enjoying dancing, Natalie takes tap, ballet and jazz and belongs to the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole.

Son J.R. III, 8, goes to Hamilton Elementary School. He enjoys playing any type of sport. His baseball team came in first place this year in Pory league baseball," Nobles said.

Daughter Lacey, 3, goes to the First Presbyterian Church Preschool. "She too enjoys dancing and will be in the recital for the first time this year," Nobles said.

Nobles said her philosophy in life is: "Live the day to the fullest, love every minute of it, and also know that your family is the most important thing in your life."

Listed below are some of the recipes that have been passed from generation to generation, including the hundred-year-old recipe for fruitcake and Fonda's Chili.

FONDA'S CHILI
5 pounds ground chuck
1 tablespoon cayenne pepper
1 large onion chopped
2 large cans tomato sauce
2 envelopes Big Tex mix
Brown ground chuck and onions together, then add the rest of the ingredients. Simmer for 1 hour. Add 2 tablespoons of fine ground corn meal. Mix the corn meal in with 1/2 cup warm water. Stir this mixture in the chili. Garnish with sharp cheddar cheese and onions. Add hot sauce to taste. Serve with crackers. Makes 2 gallons.

GREAT GRAMMA NOBLES' JAPANESE FRUITCAKE
4 eggs
1 cup sweet milk
1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
3 cups self-rising flour
1 pound chopped fine pecans
2 teaspoons all-spice
1 pound seedless raisins
Cream butter and sugar; add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flour and milk alternately, blending well. Divide batter into 2 equal parts. Add the chopped nuts to one part. Add all spice and raisins to the other part. Bake in 4-by-9-inch layer pans for 25 to 30 minutes in a 350°F oven.

FILLING FOR FRUIT CAKE
2 grated lemons and their juice
1 fresh coconut grated
1 cup hot water
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Place all ingredients in saucepan except cornstarch. When mixture begins to boil, add cornstarch and cook, stirring until it begins to thicken. When cool, spread between layers. Cover entire cake with your favorite confectioner's sugar icing to seal.

GRAMMY ABBIE'S CORN CHOWDER
2 cups raw potatoes, diced
1 onion chopped
1 can evaporated milk
1 can cream-style corn
Dash of celery seed of a small amount of fresh celery
Dash salt and pepper
Cook the potatoes and onions together in just enough water to cover them. Simmer down the water, then add milk, corn, celery, salt and pepper. Then warm to taste and serve with a salad and crackers.

DATE NUT BARS
1/2 cup melted butter
2 cups sugar
2 cups dates
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup flour
2 cups pecans
Mix all the ingredients together and place in a 9-by-13-by-2-inch baking pan that is lined with waxed paper. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes in a 350°F oven.

AUNT BUSIE'S PECAN PIE
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup dark Karo syrup
3 eggs
1/2 cup melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
2 cups pecans
1 pie crust

1 can of garden peas or kidney beans
1 teaspoon black sauce
Dash of salt and pepper
Dash of garlic powder
1 can zucchini
Brown hamburger with onion and green pepper. Add rest of ingredients and let the mixture simmer for about 30 to 45 minutes until it is hot throughout.

Enzyme would reduce food's cholesterol

How would you like to be able to eat eggs and butter without worrying about cholesterol? Some cholesterol in the body is necessary for life, but abnormally high amounts in the blood are linked with cardiovascular disease. Dr. Donald C. Beliz, a nutritional biochemist at Iowa State University's Agriculture and Home Economics Experiment Station, is working with other scientists to develop a way to inactivate cholesterol in animal products. They are trying to isolate an enzyme that converts cholesterol into coprostanol, a closely related compound that the human digestive system cannot absorb. The enzyme, cholesterol reductase, occurs naturally in the human digestive system where it converts some of the cholesterol consumed into coprostanol. About half of the remaining cholesterol is absorbed by the blood and the rest is excreted. Researchers have discovered that the leaves of cucumbers, corn, soybeans and peas also contain cholesterol reductase. They are working to extract it from the leaves, purify it, and then test its ability to inactivate cholesterol in meat and dairy products. Cholesterol reductase could then be added to foods by either the processor or the consumer. Dairies could mix it with homogenized milk or with cream for making butter. Meat packagers could add it to ground meats during processing. Adding the enzyme won't change the food's taste, since both cholesterol and coprostanol are flavorless and odorless.

NEW NEIGHBORS

Sommartanos loving the warmth
LAKE MARY - New residents in Lake Mary include the Sommartano family—Lou, Cathy and their daughter, Nicole—who moved here from Akron, Ohio. Cathy recalls that when they first moved to Ohio, their first 60 days had no sun. So the family can't help but enjoy the weather at this time of year. "Basically, my husband loves it here," Cathy said. "He loves the weather and believes the sun helps one's disposition." Cathy herself is beginning to like it here, as is Nicole, who is a junior at Lake Mary High School. The Sommartanos chose Lake Mary because of the reputation of Seminole County schools. They also heard about Lake Mary from other employees at the Sealy Mattress Manufacturing plant, where Lou is manager. It was hard for the Sommartanos to get into the Christmas spirit with the weather so warm, even with their son, Ray, home from college for the holidays.

Chain food stores changing

Supermarkets have always redefined their times. The 1930s had the "price-wrecking" King Kullen. The inflation-plagued 1970s saw the rise of generics and warehouse stores. When times are good, competition shifts to things other than price. Trading stamps and games emerged in a previous prosperous era, the 1950s and early 1960s. In the 1980s, service seems to be what some people are willing to pay for. About 10 years ago, a handful of supermarket innovators wondered what would happen if the supermarket were made more like European markets, with lots of little shops, fresh fish on ice and displays of fresh flowers and produce. "If you use the market as a place to keep people entertained and informed, they'll be less bored and indifferent and you'll have more customers," says Milton Glaser, a graphic designer who has been redesigning one supermarket chain over the past decade. Chains now offer various "brands" of supermarket, much as Procter & Gamble offers various brands of detergent. A&P, for instance, operates Sav-a-Centers and FutureStores as well as A&P's. The stores look markedly different, especially the FutureStores, with their sleek black-and-white interiors. But you can buy many of the same products for the same price in all three stores. Another way to sell to make the store bigger, the better to provide one-stop shopping. A conventional store now covers about 22,500 square feet. "Supercenters" may run 50,000 to 60,000 square feet and often include many additional services—pharmacies, video rentals, even bank branches. "Hypermarkets," rather like a supermarket crossed with a discount retailer, cover 100,000 to 220,000 square feet (that's four football fields). Chains use whichever format suits the community best. Or they might combine a little of everything in one store, to appeal to the broadest clientele—such as a supercombination store, with a warehouselike casegoods section surrounded by sections with produce, fish, meat and prepared foods, as well as a deli department, a pharmacy and a video-rental facility. Part of the power of all those selling techniques derives from their utter familiarity—every time you shop you walk by all the end-aisle displays and self-talkers, those little signs that point out products on a shelf. Yet knowledge of how pitches are made can help give you the will to resist. Supermarkets, however, are about to increase their knowledge of the shopper considerably through electronic price scanners. They may end up depriving you of one of your strongest weapons against selling—the ability to walk away. Supermarkets switched to scanners to save on labor, the greatest expense in running a store. Consumer activists worried that stores would no longer mark the price on individual items. But if enough customers estimate what's best in their store, the store just might respond. When Supermarkets General installed price scanners in its New Jersey Pathmark stores, it stopped marking the price on each package. (New Jersey, unlike some states, has no law mandating item-pricing.) "In some stores, there was no comment at all," said Robert Wunderle, vice president of public affairs for Supermarkets General. "In others, there'd be calls, letters and calls." As a result, prices on packaged products in the stores in the northern part of the state. Chains are just beginning to reap scanners' informational benefits. No longer will supermarket managers have to estimate what sells best in their store. They'll know—and they'll know fast. The computer running the cash register will also know what you bought—knowledge that could allow supermarkets to target you, personally, with the kind of pitches you've been known to respond to. Scanners allow, for instance, coupons to be printed on the back of your receipt that vary according to what you buy. If information on what you buy should be linked up with your name and address, it can be used to create a card for the electronically approved check-cashing card with which you pay for the groceries—marketers will be able to follow you home by mailing you targeted pitches. Such selling, while more insidious than what presently occurs, demands the same defense. Keep your eyes open. Know what's going on shop smart. (C) 1989 NEWSWAPER ENTERPRISES, ASSN.

Give carefully to avoid being taken

DEAR ABBY: I know what I want for Christmas next year—a bigger mailbox. Never have I received so many begging letters. I would also like to know if all these "causes" are on the up and up. How does one know? I am familiar with the usual ones for cancer, diabetes, kidney, heart and lung, but now we have so many new causes—help the starving children in Asia and Africa, for instance. There are also new causes for the homeless people sleeping on our streets, and catastrophes in other parts of the world, such as earthquake in Armenia. I know the need is legitimate, but how much of my dollar will actually go to help the victims? And how much will be spent on office expenses and advertising to raise money? BLITZED IN BOSTON

DEAR BLITZED: Before you send any money anywhere, if your only contact with the charity has been through a telephone call, a solicitor on the street, or a radio or TV appeal, ask for information in writing. Look for a clear statement of the organization's purpose, what it does and for whom; an audited financial report that shows how much was spent on each of the organization's main activities, plus management and fundraising; a list of board members or trustees, preferably with some identifying information about each. All this information should be in the organization's annual report. When you give, if possible, make your gift by check or money order. This will help both you and the charity to maintain an accurate record of your gift. Be sure to get a receipt for cash and do not give your credit card number to a solicitor whom you do not know. Up to three reports on individual agencies are available free on request by writing to: National Charities Information Bureau, 19 Union Square West, New York, N.Y. 10003-3395. This is a non-profit organization. So please enclose a long (business-size), self-addressed stamped envelope.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went out to eat breakfast at a nice cafe the other morning. On the plate was an orange slice for garnish. After finishing my meal, I ate the orange slice. My husband said, "You aren't supposed to eat the orange slice—it's for decorating, not for eating." I said, "Oh, bull!" Then I picked the orange slice off his plate and ate it. He gave me a rather disgusted look. I notice a well-dressed man seated near us eating his orange slice, so I pointed it out to my husband. He said, "Well, that man apparently doesn't know better either." When we got outside, I told my husband that I was going to write to Dear Abby and get the facts. He said, "Go ahead." So here I am. What are the facts, Abby? PHOENIX ORANGE LOVER

DEAR ORANGE LOVER: The orange slice was placed on the plate for garnish—or "decorating," as your husband put it. However, when the decoration is edible, it's proper to eat it. (Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)
