County To Get $150,000 New Park Grant

By MICHEAL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

A $150,000 state grant has been awarded to Seminole County for the purchase of a railroad right-of-way to be used as a park.

County Planner Woody Price said he has received verbal confirmation of the grant but has received no documents concerning the grant.

The money will come from the state Department of Natural Resources' Boater Improvement Fund, which is used to acquire and expand boating facilities.

Storm Richards of the county planning office said the delay came about because the DNR has rarely given grants for property acquisition. Because those applications are rare,

DNR officials have had to re-draw the forms for grant approval.

The park, which will be slightly more than 3 miles long and about 100 feet wide, will include hiking trails and a canoe-launching facility on the Wekiva River. The canoe-launching area will be accessible only to pedestrians on the tract near Paola.

The park is intended to have a minimum of development and a minimum impact upon the environment.

But the way is not yet clear for development of the park. The present owners, Family Line Rail System (formerly Seaboard Coast Line Railroad), have offered to sell the property, the old Tavares Branch, to the county for more than $200,000.

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the property. To expedite those negotiations, commissioners are expected to approve Tuesday $1,500 for an appraisal of the property.

If the negotiations are successful the county plans to ask the Department of Transportation for additional funds to help develop the park.

Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn and County Attorney Nikki Clayton met with DNR officials in January to discuss the project.

The park is a new concept which the county hopes to use for development of old railroad and highway rights-of-way. The parks are included in the county's updated comprehensive management plan.

Commissioners also are expected to approve on Tuesday a request to the St. Johns River Water Management District for countywide mapping of the wetland areas and for contour mapping of Soldiers Creek and Gee Creek drainage basins.

Winter Springs and Lake Mary officials have joined with the county to request the contour mapping.

Commissioners have also included on the agenda an agreement with Winter Springs to maintain the city's emergency vehicles at the county's fleet maintenance facility.

The agreement will require the hiring of an additional mechanic in the Fleet Maintenance Department at a salary of $276 a week.

Winter Springs will pay the county $5,690.75 for the service this year. On an annual basis the city will have to pay $9,633, about 53 percent of the new worker's $18,133 annual salary.

Neighborhood Watch Groups Work

(Editor's Note: In this, the second of three articles on crime in Seminole County, Victor Assersohn looks at how householders can help themselves and neighbors through the Neighborhood Watch programs.)

By VICTOR ASSERSOHN

Few misfortunes are as infuriating as returning home after a short shopping trip or a hard day at work and finding your home broken into and the valuables you thought were safe stolen.

It is almost certain none of the neighbors was involved. But one of the neighbors could have been more neighborly and reported suspicious characters to the police or at least kept an eye on them.

In 19 neighborhoods dotted around Sanford, this is what has been happening in the last year and the "do-it-yourself crime watch" where neighbors have acted as the eyes and ears for the police has dramatically reduced residential burglaries by one-third.

More than 5,000 houses in the 19 neighborhoods are being "protected" by neighbors.

The Sanford Neighborhood Watch program was started in December 1981 and reducing neighborhood crime became one of the prime targets for Sgt. Bill Bernosky, Sanford Police Department's community training officer.

"It has been an unqualified

success," he said. "The police department felt that something had to be done to reduce residential burglaries so we set up the Neighborhood Watch Program.

"Every seven to 10 seconds nationwide there is a burglary. The losses are staggering," he said. "In Sanford we have had areas where we have experienced four to five burglaries a week and these have been reduced to absolutely zero strictly through the efforts of the people and Neighborhood Watch."

Overall, the burglary rate in Sanford dropped by nearly 23 percent in 1982 over 1981 because of the neighborhood watch program which Bernosky would like to see covering the whole city.

"I would like to see another 19 areas set up this year and I want Sanford to be proclaimed as a unified Neighborhood Watch city," said Bernosky.

Expressway Study Funded

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The study of alternatives for an expressway in Seminole County can now begin with the award of $109,000 in seed money from the state through the Florida Department of Transportation.

Sanford City Commissioner David Farr, chairman of the recently organized Seminole County Expressway Authority, said he is "absolutely delighted" with the loan, adding, "We now can start in a serious way studying the alternatives for the long range implementation of a tollway expressway in the county."

"This seed money will enable us to look at constructing some roads without going back to taxing everyone in the county. The toll-way is a user paid facility," he said.

Farr said the money will be repaid the state after a definite project is selected and bonds are sold for that project.

He said although the authority applied for the $109,000 loan "feelers came down that we might only get $70,000. This is fantastic."

As chairman of the authority, Farr said he expects some of the money will be used to hire an executive director. Consultants will be interviewed to determine the alternatives for the authority, he said.

Jack Schuder, the county's public works director, has been acting as interim director of the authority and County Attorney Nikki Clayton has been working as secretary-treasurer.

"The county has graciously offered to allow the authority to use the county staff to work on expressway business on county time," Farr said.

Members of the authority are the five county commissioners, Farr and Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Lee Constantine.

The authority's next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 22.

While no definite projects have been selected by the authority, those discussed previously by consultants and citizens committees include a portion of State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs and a six-lane Lake Mary Boulevard, both deemed necessary to meet the county's future transportation needs.

Schuder has said State Road 520 near Oviedo is a prime candidate for an expressway. Schuder has also advised the authority to wait for consultant advice before identifying projects.

He said there is much planning to do before the authority is ready to commit itself toward any toll roads. General planning to look for possible road sites is the first priority.

Hollings Urges Spending Freeze

Predicting another inflationary spiral will hit the United States within two years unless something is done to stop deficit spending, Sen. Ernest F. "Fritz" Hollings, D-South Carolina, called on the federal government to set a freeze on all spending.

Speaking at the ninth annual Awards Banquet of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Saturday night, Hollings urged a "shared sacrifice" through a freeze on discretionary spending and spending for entitlements and defense. In addition, he said the "shared sacrifice" should include freezes on Social Security payments, military pensions and the salaries of members of Congress and the Senate.

Hollings said the "first thing to do is cut the tax cuts" and enact an investment tax credit.

Saying President Reagan's financial policies for the fiscal years 1984 through 1988 will reduce the federal government's revenue by $1 trillion, he added that with "revenue hemorrhage", interest rates are bound to go up again.

While the former South Carolina governor said while everyone wants to get the country back to work again, starting up an expansion program to increase productivity also will lead to higher interest rates.

Hollings told of a recent meeting he held with 27 leaders of high technology industries in Sanford, Conn. He said he asked the "high tech" people how the government could help them with financing for expansion. The senator said the high technology leaders said they could "get all the money they need" for expansion at good interest rates, but would not take a chance on expanding until the nation's deficits are reduced.

Neither of the two major political parties are going in the right direction, the three-term senator said. "The Democrats try to spend us into prosperity and the Republicans try to tax us into prosperity."

He said the Reagan Administration has tried all kinds of economics — "supply side, demand side and surprise side."

The trouble with the economy is just beginning, he said, noting the nation has lost its capacity in steel, rubber, glass, ceramics, semi-conductors and tools.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nuclear reactor of a shattered Soviet spy satellite vaporized today as it reentered the atmosphere over the South Atlantic 1,100 miles east of Brazil, the Pentagon reported.

The Pentagon also said U.S. weather reconnaissance planes will check the atmosphere in the area for any signs of increased levels of radioactivity. A spokesman said samples taken by the aircraft will be analyzed later.

"The real task is understanding the economy has changed. We are playing a different ball game," he said, noting the embargo game won't work.

Richard Nixon embargoed grain, Hollings said and Reagan embargoed a pipeline and "ended up with egg on his face."

"There's plenty of competition out there. But the market is not private free enterprise, it is government to government."

The nation's major problem is not Social Security, prayer in the public schools, abortion or gun control, Hollings said. "It is economic survival."

He said the United States government must become a partner, rather than a policeman and it must become an enabler, noting that Japan which has become a world economic leader has successfully banded together industry, labor and government to compete.

"If we are going to be a world leader, we need steel and rolling stock."

And we will have to change our attitude about government, Hollings said, pointing to the United States of the past which opened up the west and settled the frontier, saw the economic recovery spurred on by FDR and then responded to the USSR's "Sputnik" by putting a man on the moon.

"Our workers are still the most productive in the world," Hollings said, suggesting that Americans are waiting for government trust.

Hollings said he was glad to be back in Seminole County. He said he had been here many times, since he first visited during World War II when meetings were held in Central Florida to map out strategy for the defense of Britain.

Only once during his speech did Hollings refer to his expected upcoming presidential campaign. He said he was pleased that he was staying during his time here in the presidential suite of the Howard Johnson hotel.

Hollings is one of several unannounced candidates for the Democratic nomination for president. Prior to his appearance at the Chamber banquet at Maison et Jardin restaurant in Altamonte Springs, Hollings was the guest of some campaign supporters in Winter Park at a $250 a head campaign cocktail party. — DONNA ESTES

Chamber Honors Grindle, Others

State Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, was given the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce's "Helen Keyser Distinguished Citizen" award for "outstanding effort, contributions and accomplishments in the community" at the chamber's ninth annual Awards Banquet Saturday night.

Chamber president Clyde Rice Jr. in presenting the award, cited Grindle's ability to inspire and motivate others and his work with PESO, the March of Dimes, with Muscular Dystrophy, the Seminole Youth Sports Association, the Central Florida Zoo, the Seminole County Humane Society and many other charitable organizations.

Rice noted Grindle, because of his contributions to the community, had a day set aside in his honor by Mayor Bill Frederick of Orlando last year.

The award is named in honor of Mrs. Helen Keyser, a former Altamonte Springs City Commissioner and businesswoman, who founded the Chamber.

Skateboarder Dead After Fall

By VICTOR ASSERSOHN
Herald Staff Writer

A 17-year-old Longwood youth has died after falling off his skateboard and fracturing his skull.

The tragedy happened as Joseph MacGeen, 17, was skateboarding down the steep Miami Springs Road, near the Wekiva Marina, at about 9 p.m. Saturday.

His skateboard hit a rock and MacGeen fell, hitting his head, police said. He was rushed to Florida North Hospital and then transferred to Orlando Regional Medical Center and placed on a life support machine.

A Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman said today that the youth died a few hours later Saturday night after his parents gave permission for the life support machine to be turned off.

"He was brain dead and I agreed that the machine should be turned off," said the youth's mother, Betty MacGeen of 3512 Craig Drive in Apopka.

Mrs. MacGeen said that it has been decided to donate her son's kidney for transplant.

She said her son, who worked in the construction industry, had been skateboarding for about a year.

"I don't know if he was an expert or not," she said. "He was on a steep hill. I have been to the road but not recently, only when it was a dirt road. I believe it is lighted."

"He hit a rock and the skateboard flipped," she added. "He landed on his head."

"I thought it was a good recreation. It never crossed my mind that he could be injured," said Mrs. MacGeen.

IN BRIEF

Reagan Today Welcomes Mrs. Dole To His Cabinet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, his 72nd birthday celebration behind him, today marks the entry of the first woman in his cabinet, Elizabeth Dole. Mrs. Dole begins her new job as secretary of transportation in the midst of a nationwide truckers' strike marked by violence. It was her predecessor, Drew Lewis, who led administration efforts for the gasoline tax hike that spawned the strike by independent truckers who claim it will ruin them. Mrs. Dole, wife of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., will be sworn in at the White House by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman to serve on the Supreme Court, also a Reagan appointee. Mrs. Dole is to be joined in the Cabinet soon by former Rep. Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts, named to succeed Richard Schweiker as secretary of health and human services. The president's calendar for the week includes no travel, for the first time in a month. His next scheduled out-of-town trip is to California at the end of the month to meet Queen Elizabeth. Aides also say Reagan does not plan to announce his re-election plans until at least Labor Day and age is not a factor in the decision. If Reagan seeks and wins a second term, he would be inaugurated two weeks before his 74th birthday. He would leave office just before turning 78.

Schultz Tours Korea

CAMP LIBERTY, South Korea (UPI)—Secretary of State George Shultz flew by helicopter today to the hostile border, toured the demilitarized zone within sight of North Korean marksmen and visited U.S. soldiers. Shultz was ferried in a convoy of 12 helicopters to the zone after meetings with South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan and Prime Minister Kim Sang-Hyup. He was within earshot of communist propaganda broadcasts from the north. "Everybody should go up there," Shultz said after climbing Hill Top 229 which overlooks the 2.5-mile-wide demilitarized zone at the 38th parallel. "It really drives home the facts of the situation. It's not game playing up there," a spokesman said. Shultz, arrived in South Korea Sunday on a three-day visit designed to reaffirm the U.S. military commitment to South Korea, where 40,000 U.S. soldiers are stationed. Shultz, 62, landed at the front-line U.S. base Camp Liberty after a short flight from the capital.

... Crime Reduced By Watch Groups

"The basis, the root of the neighborhood watch program is the love of our neighbor. We are our brother's keeper and must join hands and come together in the common love of one another," Bernosky said.

"I think we have to come back to the grassroots. In the days of old we circled the wagon. The neighborhood watch is the circling of the wagons. We are going to fight back," the sergeant said.

"The common good man finds it hard to relate to the idea that there are people out there willing to cut your throat just to watch you bleed," he continued. "It is an ongoing struggle. Keep a sharp lookout and get involved in the police department. You pay us for expertise — let us give some back to the community."

It seems that Sanford residents are taking that advice because in 1982 there were 34,000 calls to the Sanford Police Department, an increase of 15.6 percent over 1981. Many of those were calls about neighborhood watch and other requests on how citizens could help themselves in the fight against crime and help police.

A handy booklet published by the Sanford police explains how a neighborhood watch program can be set up, its objective, the duties of block captains and other neighborhood "officials" forming a network of concerned householders to cut down neighborhood crime.

The booklet prepared by Sergeant Bernosky urges people to contact the police if they see anything suspicious.

"People should not be embarrassed if the suspicious prove to be unfounded. It is better to think of what could happen if you didn't act," he advised.

"The continued value of citizen involvement in protecting their neighborhoods is the primary concern," says the booklet. The booklet offers the following examples of suspicious activity which should be reported to the police:

- (1) "Door-to-door canvassers, especially if, after a few houses have been visited, one or more of the subjects go into the back or side yard, they could be 'casing the house' for a burglary or there may be a burglary in progress.
- (2) "People waiting in front of a house where the occupants are absent, or loitering in front of a business establishment which is closed, there may be a burglary in progress.
- (3) "Someone forcing entrance to or tampering with a residence, business, vehicle, is suspicious under almost any circumstance.
- (4) "Non-resident going into back or side yard of house.

- (5) "Property being removed from or being placed in vehicles or buildings — suspicious if odd hours or places are involved, from closed businesses or residences whose owners are known to be absent.
- (6) "Continuous 'repair' operations at a non-business location — it is possible that stolen property is being stripped, refinished or altered in some other way.
- (7) "Broken windows or doors at closed businesses or residences where the owners are absent.
- (8) "Unusual noises — gunshots, screaming, sounds of combat, abnormally barking dogs, breaking glass — anything which suggests foul play or illegal activity.
- (9) "If you're concerned about any activity, maybe just your 'sixth sense,' phone, ask to speak with any officer and explain your suspicions.
- (10) "Certain moving vehicles — slow moving vehicles without lights which seem to be following no deliberate path.
- (11) "Certain parked vehicles — may contain one or more persons, especially significant if observed at an unusual hour.
- (12) "Vehicles being loaded with valuables.
- (13) "Abandoned vehicle — possibly stolen.

Apopka Trucker's Rig Shot

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Truck drivers across the country are too scared to be out on the highways during the strike by independents, a 21-year veteran trucker from Apopka claims.

But George Lynn, a driver for R.L. Atkins of Apopka, said he must stay out on the road to earn a living for his family.

"I can't let them scare me off the road," he said. "The majority of truckers have just parked their rigs. But I've got a family to feed."

Two truckers have been killed and 1,000 acts of violence have been reported nationwide since the strike began.

Lynn himself was a victim of the violence that has been prevalent during the truckers' strike. At a truck stop in Stone Creek, Va., along Interstate 95, Lynn's truck, along with several others which were parked for the night, had their windshields broken by a shot from a pellet gun.

While that incident was minor, it reflects the reason the truckers are scared. "It was a pellet gun but it could just have easily been a shotgun or a rifle," he noted.

The people connected with the violence have not been connected with the trucking industry, he believes.

"The people doing this are not truck drivers," he said. "It's loonies out there, kids who just see this as a chance to raise Hell."

"I've been on the road for 21 years and I know a lot of guys who'd steal the fuel out of your tanks," he said. "But if I thought this was being done by truck drivers I'd stop driving tomorrow."

The 100,000 independent drivers, who own their tractors and haul trailers for a fee, deliver 90 percent of the nation's fresh food.

Reports of rock throwing and other vandalism decreased this weekend, according to police. Independent Truckers Association officials said the violence is diverting attention from the truckers' cause.

ITA President Michael Parkhurst said the violence which has helped to keep some 70,000 independents off the road for the past week has taken attention away from the financial problems faced by the truckers.

The strike was called to protest the recent federal bill which hiked the gasoline tax by 5 percent and increased fuel and road use fees for truckers which are expected to raise their costs by about $5,200 annually.

"They're going to have to raise their rates. Most of them were just making it before," Lynn said. "They've got to have so much money per mile per truck to meet expenses."

Lynn said the new taxes and fees are just the latest in a line of taxes which have been levied on the trucking industry over the past 40 years.

"I can't name one organization that has been more taxed than the trucking industry," he said. "Truckers paid the taxes that built the interstates in the 1950s and 1960s, now they want us to pay to repair them."

But trucks aren't to blame for the deterioration of the nation's highway system said Lynn, who carries tropical plants to the Northeast and Canada from Apopka.

He cited the Garden State Parkway in New Jersey, a road that has never had any truck traffic, as one of the worst highways in the country.

"It's the contractors. They don't put them down to specifications," Lynn said. He said poor quality materials and poor engineering have contributed to the deterioration of some roads.

Apopka truck driver George Lynn points to a hole in his windshield which he received while parked at a truck stop along Interstate 95 in Virginia. Lynn said the violence has kept many truckers off the highways.

New Yorker Struggles, Escapes From Assailants

By VICTOR ASSERSOIN

A visitor from New York struggled with a gunman after two men tried to hold him up with a pistol and a knife.

Sidney Bettancourt, 62, of Laurelton, N.Y., was asked by two men sitting on the stairwell of the Days Inn Motel, State Road 46 and Interstate 4, at about 10:30 p.m. on Sunday if he had a match.

Bettancourt walked to his room and returned with matches when one of the men pulled a blue steel revolver from his jacket and pointed it at him, a Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman said. The other man pulled a knife and Bettancourt shouted for help to people who were in his room. When they came to the door, Bettancourt grabbed the gun

TREE MISSES TEACHER
A teacher narrowly escaped injury when a tree fell on the truck he was driving.

Bennie Alexander, an industrial arts teacher at Lake Howell High School, was driving a Ford pickup truck along State Road 419 near the Five Points Athletic Center at 3:45 p.m. on Tuesday when a tree fell in front of the cab causing extensive damage to the grille area of the truck owned by the Seminole County School Board.

Alexander, of West Eighth Street in Sanford, was not injured but was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital by school Principal Dick Evans for observation.

"He was very lucky it fell in front of him," Evans said. "I took him to the hospital and there was nothing wrong with him. He is just very shook up."

Alexander was given a couple days off to rest after his narrow escape. At the time of the accident, Alexander was taking the truck to collect scrap metal close to his home. The metal was to be used in a welding class the next day.

Florida Is Still Tops As Manufacturing Site

CHICAGO (UPI)—A study of the business climate of the continental 48 states has ranked Florida no. 1 for manufacturing and the Southeast as the most favorable manufacturing region in the United States.

Florida repeated its no. 1 ranking from 1981. The rest of the states making up the top five for manufacturing climates in 1982 were Texas, North Carolina, North Dakota and South Carolina.

North Carolina and South Carolina replaced Colorado and Kansas in the top five while the other three were repeaters from the 1981 rankings.

The fourth annual study, which was released Sunday, was conducted by Alexander Grant & Co., a Chicago-based national accounting firm, with the cooperation of the Conference of State Manufacturers' Associations.

Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia made up the Southeast region for the purposes of the study.

Nazi War Criminal Faces Possible Life Sentence

LYON, France (UPI)—Nazi war criminal Klaus Barbie faced a possible life sentence for "crimes against humanity" in a country where he sent thousands to their death during World War II as head of the German secret police in Lyon.

Barbie, 69, was held in Lyon's Montluc fortress today after being flown Saturday to France from Bolivia where the "Butcher of Lyon" had lived for 30 years under the name of "Klaus Altmann."

Justice Minister Robert Badinter personally ordered that Barbie be held in the fortress where thousands of people were interned during the war and where many died at the hands of Gestapo torturers.

Barbie's trial could be the biggest re-examination of Nazi war crimes since Adolf Eichmann, who organized the deportation and gassing of European Jews in death camps, was tried and hanged in Israel in 1962.

Bolivia expelled Barbie Friday after his recent arrest for defrauding the state mining company. In France, he faced a maximum sentence of life imprisonment since the country abolished the death penalty in 1981.

Druze Capture Key Town

United Press International

Druze militiamen fighting for control of Israeli-occupied mountains southeast of Beirut captured a key town in heavy fighting with rightist Christian forces, Druze spokesmen said today.

Spokesmen for the rightist Christians did not confirm the Druze claim but conceded their forces suffered a setback in Aley, a disputed town 10 miles southeast of the Lebanese capital on the strategic Beirut-Damascus highway.

The rightist Christian militias accused Israeli troops occupying the mountains of "bias" in favor of Druze Moslems in Aley. Israeli troops have occupied the area since shortly after the June 6 invasion of Lebanon.

"They (the Israelis) did not defend the Christian population, and prevented our forces from checking socialist Druze attacks," a rightist militia official said in remarks published in today's edition of the An Wahar newspaper.

The Druze, in a statement published today by Beirut newspapers, said their forces captured Aley after driving "the last of the rightist militiamen out of the town Sunday."

Cause Of Carpenter's Death Still Unknown

DOWNEY, Calif. (UPI) — An open funeral will be held Tuesday for Grammy Award-winning pop singer Karen Carpenter, whose precise cause of death has not yet been determined.

Services will be held 1 p.m. at United Methodist Church in Downey, a suburb about 10 miles southeast of Los Angeles. Entombment, which will be limited to Miss Carpenter's immediate family, will follow at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Cypress in neighboring Orange County.

Miss Carpenter, 32, who with her brother Richard, won three Grammy Awards and sold 60 million soft-rock records as The Carpenters, died in a hospital Friday of heart failure shortly after collapsing in her parents' Downey home.

"The unfortunate death took us all by surprise," Paul Bloch, the singer's long-time agent, said. "The family is holding up the best they can, but everyone is in shock right now—as are the friends around them."

An autopsy performed Friday afternoon failed to determine precisely what caused her heart to fail.

Supreme Court Case Load 'Overwhelming'

Burger Seeks Additional Court

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Arguing the quality of American justice is at stake, Chief Justice Warren Burger is asking Congress to create a new federal court to decide some of the Supreme Court's cases.

Burger said the flow of cases is so overwhelming that the court is threatened with a "breakdown of the system — or of some of the justices" and "patchwork remedies" cannot solve the problem.

"It is the most important single, immediate problem facing the judicial branch," he declared.

Denying he was "crying wolf," the nation's top jurist recommended setting up a temporary panel of judges to settle conflicting rulings among the circuit courts of appeal, and perhaps disputes over federal statutes.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, like Burger addressing the American Bar Association's annual mid-winter meeting Sunday, made a similar proposal for a new court.

"There is no one single, permanent solution," Mrs. O'Connor said. "Each time the court's caseload increases, congressional action is necessary to make some significant change in the court's jurisdiction or its procedures to reduce the numbers.

It's been 58 years since the last major changes."

Burger's proposal, made in his annual State of the Judiciary address, was the first time he has endorsed such a major change to reduce the court's case burden — a topic that eight of the nine justices have spoken about publicly since last summer.

Proposals for a new judicial layer between the appeals courts and the Supreme Court have been floated for years. Burger is known to disagree with Justice John Paul Stevens' recommendation for creation of a court to screen cases for the high court.

A senior Justice Department official, reacting to Burger's suggestion, said the court could "solve a lot of its own problems by not writing so many opinions." Many justices also write separate opinions agreeing or disagreeing with the main decision in a case.

But Burger maintains fundamental changes are needed to give "proper time for reflection, preserve the traditional quality of decisions, and avoid a breakdown of the system — or of some of the justices."

"It will no longer do to say glibly, as some have, that we do not need 'another tier of courts,' or another court. ... That is meaningless in terms of the needs of the present and particularly of the next 10 to 20 years and for the 21st century," Burger told a room crowded with some of the 3,000 ABA convention goers.

Burger complained to an ABA panel Saturday a "60-hour week isn't a very good diet for a human being, especially when you get beyond 40."

Five justices are over 70, and all but Burger earn $96,700. Burger, who has headed the nation's judiciary for 14 years, makes $100,700 a year.

Burger says the "tidal wave" of cases coming to the court — more than 4,000 last term — will continue to increase to as many as 9,000 a year. Cases are becoming increasingly complex and the justices are turning out 270 percent more opinions than they were 30 years ago.

Under Burger's proposal, the new court would be created for five years and could be ended by Congress, which has created other specialized federal courts.

Brantley Offers Measure

Capital Punishment Cases Would Speed Up

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, has filed legislation which he says would be a major step, if adopted, toward bringing some finality to the seemingly endless chain of appeals of capital punishment cases.

The bill would change the responsibility of signing death warrants from the governor to the clerk of the Florida Supreme Court. When the judgment and sentence of death becomes final, the clerk would issue a warrant directing the sentence to be executed.

The clerk would deliver a certified copy of the warrant to the superintendent of the Florida state prison at Raiford.

The date of the execution then would be sent during the first week subsequent to the passage of 150 days from the date of the warrant. During the 150-day period, the governor and cabinet would have the opportunity to review capital punishment cases for clemency, thereby, Brantley said, guaranteeing the convicted person all his constitutional rights.

Noting he is a strong advocate of capital punishment, Brantley said his bill would provide the steps necessary to remove red tape and accelerate the appeals process. He added that Florida now leads the nation in the number of inmates incarcerated on death row.

Judge Charged With DUI

MIAMI (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Joe Eaton was arrested, charged with drunken driving and booked at the Dade County jail following a weekend accident.

Dade County police reported that Eaton refused to take a breathalyzer test when taken to the jail after his 1982 Dodge Pickup made a left-hand turn and collided with an oncoming Datsun pickup truck late Saturday.

Eaton, chief U.S. judge for the Southern District of Florida, confirmed that he refused to take the breath test, but denied being drunk.

"I don't drink and I was not drinking," he said. "Honest to God, we never have whiskey in this house. There was no basis for being charged. I had a bad wreck and wound up down at the station."

The judge said he didn't know he was being charged until he reached the station.

Neither Eaton, 62, nor Bryan Lary, 24, the driver of the other truck, was injured. Eaton was charged with failing to yield the right of way and drunken driving. Lary was charged with driving without a valid license.

Stockman And Donovan Back Reagan Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's top officials are promoting his fiscal 1984 budget as one that will bring economic recovery by curbing federal deficits and will put 1 million unemployed Americans back to work.

Budget director David Stockman said Sunday that the spending plans for 1984 and future years will put a lid on the deficits.

Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," the director of the Office of Management and Budget said there is "a lot of underlying evidence" the economy has turned around. But he warned, "We are threatened by huge out-year deficits that will abort the recovery."

He defended Reagan's plans to continue a massive military buildup, and spoke out against repealing the third-year tax cut due this summer, stressing they can not "be held responsible" for the $189 billion deficit projected in the spending plan.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, in an interview in U.S. News and World Report, said the budget will put nearly 1 million unemployed Americans back to work and provide another 500,000 summer jobs for youths.

"Americans would rather have jobs than cash assistance, and it's essential that we help the unemployed regain their jobs," he said.

He said a job voucher program included in Reagan's budget proposal would create as many as 800,000 jobs; a plan to pay sub-minimum wages to teenagers will give up to 500,000 youths work this summer, and a $340 million program to retrain displaced workers will put another 100,000 people back to work.

Donovan said although Reagan has proposed a $1.9 billion extension of unemployed insurance benefits, his chief aim is to put Americans back to work and that only can be done through economic growth.

"In a very important way, the administration has already attacked unemployment by doing all the difficult things that Ronald Reagan said he would do: work to stop the hemorrhaging in the budget, lower interest rates, reduce unnecessary regulation and so on," Donovan said.

Reporter Claims

Press Lax In Early Vietnam Reporting

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A reporter who won a Pulitzer Prize for his coverage of the Vietnam War says American journalists were not critical enough of early U.S. involvement and failed to report the history of the area.

Journalist David Halberstam, who won the prize for his coverage in The New York Times, made his comments Sunday during the opening of a week-long conference that has drawn together the largest group of Vietnam War experts ever publicly assembled.

About 300 Vietnamese refugees peacefully picketed Sunday's opening sessions on the campus of the University of Southern California. The protesters carried signs calling for support of human rights in Vietnam.

Air Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, former vice president of South Vietnam, accepted an invitation late last week to participate in a Wednesday panel discussing the war and the Vietnamese.

Ky joins more than 85 U.S. and South Vietnamese policy makers, veterans, former spies, Army generals, journalists, filmmakers and anti-war protesters in the conference titled, "Lessons from a War: Vietnam Reconsidered."

Halberstam called the meetings "an act of self-examination" and said many reporters who covered Vietnam have been assailed for being "too critical" of U.S. actions.

He dismissed suggestions "the media lost the war" and said, "Ironically, we were not critical enough."

"We failed in our dispatches and probably even more dramatically with the television camera to relay the importance of the past in Vietnam."

Another delegate said a Vietnam post mortem is important because the war has too long been "buried in the national consciousness" since the American defeat in 1975.

"I think there remains great divisions about the war and great confusion," said Pulitzer Prize-winning writer Frances FitzGerald, author of "Fire in the Lake," a history of U.S. involvement.

"There is an entirely new generation ... that has grown up without really knowing much about it at all."

Others scheduled to take part include Adm. James Stockdale, a retired Navy officer held captive eight years in a North Vietnam prison camp, and retired Army Lt. Gen. William Peers, who investigated the My Lai massacre.

1984 Budget Alarm And Dismay

We are not surprised at the national alarm and dismay that have greeted President Reagan's fiscal 1984 budget, which recently went to Congress. It's an appalling document demonstrating more completely than ever that federal spending is out of control — and perhaps beyond control.

Planned outlays for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 total $848.5 billion, and could go even higher. The programmed deficit is $138.8 billion on top of a $207.7 billion deficit in the current fiscal year. If this is the best a fiscal conservative like Ronald Reagan and a Republican-controlled Senate can do what hope is there?

Consider: During the Carter years, renowned for their profligacy, the deficits ranged between 1.2 percent and 2.3 percent of gross national product. The Reagan deficit for fiscal 1982 was 3.7 percent of GNP and is expected to reach 5.5 percent of GNP during the current year.

An irresponsible Congress has been boosting spending under its control by about 8 percent annually at a time when the 1982 inflation rate sank to 3.9 percent, the lowest in a decade, and the U.S. business is at a virtual standstill. In its closing chaotic hours, the 97th Congress hurriedly passed an "omnibus" appropriations bill lumping 78 percent of total appropriations in a package of almost $500 billion, instead of considering each of 13 appropriations bills separately. Yet, the big congressional cry is for more taxes.

This budget is practically devoid of the president's ideological optimism, and is almost bloodless in its dismal, technical, realism. Its basic economic assumption, for example, is for a business expansion of only about 1.4 percent, which is less than half the usual growth in the first year of recovery from a recession and far below most private forecasts.

Dismayed and alarmed as anyone by the deficits, Mr. Reagan is aiming this time at budget accommodation instead of confrontation. With Congress now holding something of an upper hand, he is focusing more on freezing federal spending than on cutting programs — an approach sure to be more palatable on Capitol Hill.

Although the new budget has some tinkered tax credits for parents educating children, for example, and for companies hiring the unemployed, overall, $11.2 billion in new taxes would be raised in 1984. The most controversial new tax proposal calls for $146 billion in standby tax increases to take effect in 1985 if required to reduce budget deficits. The standby tax is supposed to stimulate a Pavlovian restraint by Congress and, thereby, reassure the financial community as to stable interest rates.

The administration correctly sees the country being pressed by twin dangers: Superior Soviet military might and national bankruptcy. Accordingly, budgetary balance must lie somewhere between domestic and defense spending.

The initial congressional reaction on both sides of the aisle is to cut back on Mr. Reagan's defense buildup, programmed at about 9 percent. This will not be easy. The AFL-CIO, for instance, has had a special commission studying defense spending for more than a year and it still has made no public proposals. "They found it is vastly more complicated (than they expected)" according to an AFL-CIO spokesman.

Because some retrenchment in defense preparedness appears inevitable, the administration would be well-advised to establish priorities for the painful choices that lie ahead. No doubt there are some savings the Pentagon can make without excessive risk.

The only real hope of climbing out of this pit is through economic recovery, which would be more effective in controlling the deficit than any combination of spending cuts and tax increases.

Fortunately, the signs of recovery are stronger now than anytime during the Reagan administration — 1.5 percent in December, the eighth in a string of advances during the last nine months. The best chance of assisting the recovery momentum obviously lies in close cooperation between Congress and the White House.

The bright side of this bleak outlook is that an effective partnership is likely simply because the alternative is so calamitous.

A list of 3,000 words (alphabetically from abash to zoological) has been distributed to Seminole County elementary and middle school students in preparation for the county's 24th annual Spelling Bee.

Schools will be having spelling bees through March 4 to select participants for the county spelling bee scheduled for 1:30 p.m. at the school board office, 1211 Mellonville Ave. in Sanford. All public elementary and middle schools and some private schools are expected to have contestants in the county spelling bee.

The pronouncer for the Seminole County Bee will be Mary Groome. Judges will be Kate Nash, H.L. Refoe, Jr. and Dorothy Morrison.

The County Spelling Bee Champion and runner-up will go to the District Bee in Orlando on April 19. The District Winner will travel to Washington, D.C. to compete for the 1983 national crown.

Parents are encouraged to assist their children as they practice their spelling at home. Seminole County has had many outstanding spellers in this competition in the past. Last year Charles Ariz from Millwee Middle School in Longwood was the County Champion. Anna Megill from Sanford Middle School in Sanford was runner-up. Ariz subsequently won Fourth Prize in the District Bee.

Superintendent Robert W. Hughes said, "We are grateful for the efforts of our curriculum coordinators and our teachers as they work to provide this wonderful opportunity for our students. We are thankful that parents work with us to provide extra practice at home. 'Most of all,' he said, "we are proud of our students for their commitment and dedication as they work to learn to spell words as difficult as 'eleemosynary' and 'recrudescence.'"

The 3rd annual Interlochen National Youth Art Competition for high school and junior high school students has been announced by Interlochen Center for the Arts, Interlochen, Michigan. The nation's second largest competition especially for young people, the Interlochen contest offers cash prizes, extensive publicity, public exhibition at one of America's most prestigious arts centers, and scholarship opportunities to winning entries. Closing date for entries is April 1, 1983.

The competition is open to all students in grades 7 through 12 residing in the United States, with the exceptions of students currently enrolled at Interlochen Arts Academy and of works executed at the Academy's sister institution, the National Music Camp. All media are eligible.

For contest rules and entry form, write Lary Lien, Chairman, Visual Arts Division, Interlochen Arts Academy, Interlochen, Michigan 49843.

Cash prizes are awarded in two classifications: work submitted by students in grades 7-9 and work from students enrolled in grades 10-12. First, second and third prize winners in each category receive $200, $100 and $50 respectively.

The competition is juried from 35mm slides or photographs. Entry fee is $5 per student. This covers up to 6 works of art. Students are notified of acceptance or rejection by April 15.

Works by winners and finalists will be exhibited at Interlochen Center for the Arts from May 29 to August 29, 1983. Every year 500,000 people visit the 1200-acre campus in northern Michigan to visit their children or to attend Interlochen's 700 annual arts events.

Winners of the 1982 Interlochen National Youth Art Competition are from such diverse areas as South Carolina, Minnesota, Florida, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The American Spectator

This is a year of important journalistic and intellectual anniversaries. Twenty-five years ago, Modern Age, a notable quarterly magazine, was founded. Fifteen years ago, The American Spectator, a monthly intellectual and political journal, was established in Bloomington, Indiana.

The American Spectator is the brainchild of R. Emmett Tyrrell Jr., who launched it while a student at the University of Indiana. One of the truly nice things about the magazine is that it is still there in Bloomington. While this brilliantly edited conservative journal is read in New York, Washington, and around the world, Bob Tyrrell has resisted pressures to move the operation to the Northeast. The American Spectator is a product of the Mid West, and it is appropriate that it is published in the very heart of that region.

This is not to say that The American Spectator is a regional publication. From the time he started it as a student journal, the magazine has grown into a publication of national and international renown. It publishes writers of the highest quality and has close intellectual links with the neo-conservative movement. Bob Tyrrell is a splendid editor who knows how to mix a remarkable variety of talents, ranging from New York intellectuals to aspiring writers in areas remote from the main centers of publishing.

Bob Tyrrell's unique polemical style has given the magazine its special character. He has a capacity to be outrageous, a quality which gave Henry Mencken his appeal in an earlier generation. As the country has been mired in liberal platitudes for so many years, a little literary shock treatment is very much in order. Happily, Bob Tyrrell has been recognized not only as a magazine editor but as a newspaper columnist. His writings now appear in some of the largest and most influential papers in the country.

A 19th century Britain described conservatives as the stupid party. Many people think of conservatives as stodgy. Well, Bob Tyrrell and his associates on The American Spectator have proved them wrong. They have let a lot of light and wit into public debate in this country. The kneejerk liberals have felt the sting of Bob Tyrrell's comments.

The American Spectator serves the country well. It will be needed for decades to come.

Ambassador Denies Embezzlement

WASHINGTON — Francisco Fiallo, Navarro made a brief media splash last December when he resigned abruptly as Nicaraguan ambassador to the United States and denounced the Sandinista regime in Managua. Last month the Nicaraguan government splashed right back with the charge that Fiallo had absconded with more than $600,000 of embassy funds.

Since then the dapper 36-year-old Fiallos has been in seclusion, preparing to defend himself in court against the Nicaraguan government's charges and planning a libel suit against his accusers. He consented to an exclusive interview to give his version of the events leading to his resignation and the ensuing controversy.

Depending on one's personal prejudices, Fiallos is either the most unlikely candidate for an embezzlement charge — or the kind of man who wouldn't think twice about looting the treasury of a leftist regime he had been serving. He grew up as a member of the Nicaraguan privileged class and got an ad-

Sacrifice From Everyone

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Reagan again is calling upon low and middle-income citizens to bear the burden of an austere budget while allowing wealthy individuals and corporations to continue collecting "welfare for the rich."

Much of the debate over the president's proposed federal budget for the 1984 fiscal year has focused on his proposed spending freeze for veterans' disability and retirement payments, Social Security cost-of-living adjustments, payments to both active and retired government employees and a broad range of domestic social programs.

Although funding for many of those programs already has been drastically slashed during Reagan's first two years in office, the beneficiaries might be more amenable to making further sacrifices if they thought that similar restrictions were being equitably applied to forms of federal aid collected almost exclusively by high-income citizens.

That is not occurring, however, because the president remains oblivious to the fundamental inequities of an economic policy under which the rich get richer while the poor (and the middle class) get poorer.

That perspective is shared not only by liberals and Democrats but also by conservatives and Republicans. One of the most cogent critiques of Reagan's policies was recently published by the Heritage Foundation, a staunchly conservative "think tank" with especially close ties to the White House. "Middle-income Americans do not see the rationale for cuts in popular programs and conclude that Reagan is either insensitive to their needs or perhaps mean," says Heritage Foundation Vice President Richard N. Howitt.

"The poor, believing that the president has been unwilling to cut subsidies to middle and upper-income Americans, conclude that Reagan is out to get them," adds Howitt in the introduction to a new 362-page book entitled "Agenda '83."

In what the foundation describes as "a major assault on taxpayer-financed business subsidies," the book describes this insidious process, underway long before Reagan was elected but zealously promoted throughout his presidency:

"In a system of subsidies, rewards accrue to those who are best at political pull, grantmanship, campaign contributions and other activities... In particular, subsidies tend to flow to politically favored businesses or industries rather than consumer-oriented companies."

Examples of those government subsidies for the wealthy are buried in an obscure "special analysis" of the budget detailing what the federal government euphemistically calls "tax expenditures" and "tax subsidies."

From 1982 through 1984, for example, the oil and gas industry will be able to shield more than $6.8 billion worth of income from federal taxation through a technique known as "immediate expensing" and an additional $7.9 billion through a device known as the "depletion allowance."

During the same three-year period, multinational corporations will be able to avoid taxation on $7.4 billion worth of foreign sales by channeling those transactions through domestic international sales corporations.

An estimated $72.9 billion worth of capital gains for the wealthy will be taxed at a preferential low rate in 1982-84, while wealthy investors will be able to avoid federal taxes on $9.4 billion worth of interest and dividend receipts on common and preferred stocks, industrial development bonds and various other securities.

Large corporations, principally pharmaceutical firms, will receive special tax breaks on more than $6.3 billion worth of profits earned in Puerto Rico, while other firms will be able to use a gimmick called "safe harbor leasing" to avoid payment of more than $9.1 billion in federal taxes.

Social Security Compromise

The compromise agreement on Social Security is bad policy but good politics from the standpoint of President Reagan.

The best solution would have been to require that new people coming into the work force buy into a private retirement plan, thus in time phasing out the federal Social Security system altogether.

The present compromise saves the system, which currently is losing $17,000 per minute; and by denying the Democrats a chance to demagogue the issue in 1984, it gets Reagan out of a serious political problem.

Congressional Democrats, egged on by Speaker O'Neill, were more than willing to wait until the system reached the precipice, save it with a massive tax increase, and dare the president to veto the bill as the 1984 election approached.

The present compromise spares Reagan that political nightmare.

Many of its provisions, however, are a decidedly mixed bag.

Some of the revenue, for example, is now to be raised by the income tax system, moving Social Security still further from an "insurance" system and toward a welfare system. Some of the tax hikes, including the huge increase in the self-employment area will be processed in part through the income tax system. Another provision will funnel the income tax rise for better-off taxpayers directly into the Social Security treasury.

Establishing these links between the income tax and the retirement fund has the potential of leading toward a massive welfare arrangement funded out of general revenues — and a crushing burden for the tax-payer.

You can argue that some people do not need Social Security at all, either because they are well off or because they already belong to adequate pension plans through their place of employment. Such pension plans were nowhere near as commonplace when the Social Security system was established nearly a half-century ago.

You can therefore argue that raising taxes on affluent retirees and funneling the money into Social Security, as the present compromise does, is good policy.

As against that, however, such a tax raise increases the progressivity of the income tax, penalizes productivity, and seizes private income that might be invested in the private sector. At the very least, this is entirely counter to Reagan's approach to stimulating the economy.

The compromise calls for a six-month delay on cost-of-living adjustments for beneficiaries, a one-shot approach to trimming benefits, which will save about $40 billion.

The down-side, however, is undeniable. Whatever you think of the complex provisions of the Social Security compromise, the whole package amounts to a large tax increase that has to be a drag on economic recovery.

Reagan will sign it, because something had to be done about the system, and because he did not want to be arguing about Social Security and about throwing old ladies out in the snow during the 1984 campaign.

If he wins a second term, however, that would be a good time to move toward a mandatory system of private insurance for all new employees.

Sacrifice From Everyone

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Reagan again is calling upon low and middle-income citizens to bear the burden of an austere budget while allowing wealthy individuals and corporations to continue collecting "welfare for the rich."

Much of the debate over the president's proposed federal budget for the 1984 fiscal year has focused on his proposed spending freeze for veterans' disability and retirement payments, Social Security cost-of-living adjustments, payments to both active and retired government employees and a broad range of domestic social programs.

Although funding for many of those programs already has been drastically slashed during Reagan's first two years in office, the beneficiaries might be more amenable to making further sacrifices if they thought that similar restrictions were being equitably applied to forms of federal aid collected almost exclusively by high-income citizens.

That is not occurring, however, because the president remains oblivious to the fundamental inequities of an economic policy under which the rich get richer while the poor (and the middle class) get poorer.

That perspective is shared not only by liberals and Democrats but also by conservatives and Republicans. One of the most cogent critiques of Reagan's policies was recently published by the Heritage Foundation, a staunchly conservative "think tank" with especially close ties to the White House. "Middle-income Americans do not see the rationale for cuts in popular programs and conclude that Reagan is either insensitive to their needs or perhaps mean," says Heritage Foundation Vice President Richard N. Howitt.

"The poor, believing that the president has been unwilling to cut subsidies to middle and upper-income Americans, conclude that Reagan is out to get them," adds Howitt in the introduction to a new 362-page book entitled "Agenda '83."

In what the foundation describes as "a major assault on taxpayer-financed business subsidies," the book describes this insidious process, underway long before Reagan was elected but zealously promoted throughout his presidency:

"In a system of subsidies, rewards accrue to those who are best at political pull, grantmanship, campaign contributions and other activities... In particular, subsidies tend to flow to politically favored businesses or industries rather than consumer-oriented companies."

Examples of those government subsidies for the wealthy are buried in an obscure "special analysis" of the budget detailing what the federal government euphemistically calls "tax expenditures" and "tax subsidies."

From 1982 through 1984, for example, the oil and gas industry will be able to shield more than $6.8 billion worth of income from federal taxation through a technique known as "immediate expensing" and an additional $7.9 billion through a device known as the "depletion allowance."

During the same three-year period, multinational corporations will be able to avoid taxation on $7.4 billion worth of foreign sales by channeling those transactions through domestic international sales corporations.

An estimated $72.9 billion worth of capital gains for the wealthy will be taxed at a preferential low rate in 1982-84, while wealthy investors will be able to avoid federal taxes on $9.4 billion worth of interest and dividend receipts on common and preferred stocks, industrial development bonds and various other securities.

Large corporations, principally pharmaceutical firms, will receive special tax breaks on more than $6.3 billion worth of profits earned in Puerto Rico, while other firms will be able to use a gimmick called "safe harbor leasing" to avoid payment of more than $9.1 billion in federal taxes.

That's Eight For NFC

NFC Nips AFC In Sunday's Pro Bowl

HONOLULU (UPI) — In the complex, jargon-filled world of professional football, the NFC resorted to the sandlotters' playbook Sunday to pull out its eighth Pro Bowl victory over the AFC in 13 years.

With his side down by six points and only 31 seconds left, Danny White practically drew a diagram on the Aloha Stadium astroturf for each player on his assignment and then passed 11 yards to Green Bay's John Jefferson for the touchdown that gave the NFC a 20-19 victory.

"We kind of played sandlot football at the end," said White, of the Dallas Cowboys. "We devised the play in the huddle on coverages they were playing."

"It took about a minute to call the play because I had to tell everybody where to go. We got to call only one play, not two. Fortunately, it worked."

Since both teams had only four days of workouts, everything was kept at a basic level.

"The play was the two-pass," said White of the simple play-calling system devised by Dallas coach Tom Landry, who handled the NFC squad. "Both wide receivers ran slant-ins and the backs slant-outs."

"It was just a matter of J.J. beating a man one-on-one. I threw the ball in the hole and he did the rest."

Trailing by six points with 2:12 left, White marched the NFC 80 yards for the winning touchdown. The drive was helped along by an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty and an 11-yard pass interference call against the AFC.

The winning TD also meant a $10,000 paycheck for the 40 players on the NFC roster, $5,000 more they would not have received if the sandlot play did not work.

The touchdown pass meant the difference, but the play preceding it was critical for the NFC.

Faced with a third-and-7 on the AFC 25, Jefferson made a diving catch for a first down.

"Danny was in trouble on that play so I scrambled out of the pattern (inside) and came back to him," said Jefferson. "I've made a lot of diving catches, but that has to be one of the biggest."

Landry also said an end zone interception by Everson Walls of Dallas with 4:12 left stopped a drive that would have put the AFC, which led 19-13 at the time, out of reach.

"Had they gotten a field goal out of that drive, it would have been all over for us," said Landry.

AFC coach Walt Michaels of the New York Jets said: "It was a hairy ending, but I haven't had anything but hairy endings all year. Why should this be any different?"

The NFC victory offset a record-breaking performance by Dan Fouts. The San Diego quarterback completed 17 of 30 passes for 274 yards, bettering the Pro Bowl yardage record set by Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski two years ago by 101 yards.

"That's a tough way to lose five grand," Fouts said of the closing seconds.

The AFC took a 9-0 lead in the first period on a 34-yard pass from Fouts to Wesley Walker of the New York Jets and the dumping of Washington's Joe Theismann by Art Still of Kansas City in the end zone.

The NFC climbed into the lead on a 3-yard run by William Andrews of Atlanta and a 34-yard field goal by Mark Moseley of Washington, but San Diego's Rolf Benirschke's 29-yard field goal with four seconds remaining gave the AFC a 12-10 half-time lead.

Marcus Allen of the Los Angeles Raiders increased the advantage to 19-10 in the third quarter with a 1-yard touchdown run, and Moseley set the stage for the White-Jefferson heroics with a 42-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter.

Racing

Foyt, Wollek, Cop Daytona Challenge

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — The skies were a rainy, blustery gray.

The atmosphere around the pit of the No. 6 orange-and-white Porsche was even darker.

Bob Wollek was fuming.

A.J. Foyt was nervous.

But in the end — after 2,723 miles and 618 laps — everybody was all smiles.

Preston Henn's Porsche Turbo 935, with Frenchman Wollek and Texan Foyt doing most of the driving, overcame early engine troubles and monsoon-like conditions Sunday to capture The 24 Hours of Daytona.

A trio of Floridians — Randy Lanier, Terry Wolters and Marty Hinze — in a Chevrolet March finished six laps back on the 3.84-mile Daytona International Speedway course.

Third went to a Mazda, which finished 20 laps behind the winners and was piloted by a California team — Peter Halsmer, Robert Reed and Rick Knoop.

Wollek, the pole-sitter for America's only 24-hour sports car endurance race, blew two turbos early in the race and found himself 58th after the first hour Saturday — a long way from the $36,000 first-place purse.

But Wollek — and co-drivers Claude Ballot-Lena and Henn — battled back into contention, stood fourth after six hours and grabbed the lead shortly after dawn Sunday.

That's when Foyt entered the picture.

That's when Wollek got upset.

Foyt, the four-lime Indianapolis 500 winner who started in an Aston Martin with NASCAR's Darrell Waltrip but fell out of the race with engine problems Saturday night, was asked by Henn to join his team.

Wollek felt upstaged.

"He doesn't know the car and he doesn't know the race," Wollek complained. "We've been working very hard. Now, all you hear is 'A.J. Foyt is driving the car.'"

Foyt, making his first appearance in a sports car race since he teamed with Dan Gurney to win at LeMans in 1967, shared some of Wollek's concern.

"I was nervous getting into the car," said Foyt. "I sure didn't want to mess up them winning the race. But I played it pretty cagey."

After Foyt padded the first-place lead to eight laps and put the race out of reach in five hours of driving Sunday, Wollek was a believer.

"I was pretty concerned because he didn't know the car, but I showed him where first and second gear was and he was OK," laughed Wollek. "He's a fantastic driver. Everybody knows that."

Wood Victorious At New Smyrna

Back at the wheel of a stock-car after months of inaction, Frank Wood drove his own Boyd's Racing Engines Camaro to a wire to wire victory in the 25-lap late model feature on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

David Russell, another driver who has found his way back to the ovals after having been away for over three years, also led every lap to win the 20-lap thunder car main. He was at the wheel of the RaceCo-REP racing engines Camaro.

The wild street stock finale went to Ron DiCandio, with W.G. Watts stretching his four-cylinder win streak to three in a row. Spector races winners were Dale Clouser and Big Ron Cottrell.

Outpowering fast timer-pole attler Steve Burgess right at the start, Wood stayed ahead for the duration, while Burgess and LeRoy Porter were dueling for the runner-up spot in the early laps.

During a caution period on lap 10, Porter pitted, the hood went up and the car was retired. In the closing laps, Burgess, his 1983 Thunderbird-bodied machine built on a Bemco chassis, with power by Schlieper's, was steadily gaining on Wood, but still had to settle for second at the end. Joe Middleton, Chris Dellarco and Billy Gast rounded out the top five. Heat winners were Wood and Marc Blackner.

Led by sixth fastest qualifier Russell, 34 thunder cars took the green for the main event. As early as lap one, Russell, leading a close-knit 10-car train, caught up with tail end traffic.

At half-way, rookie Chuckie Lee, up to third and running strong, tangled with "Bad" Barry Ownby, triggering a multi-car spin session. At the restart, local independent John Cochran was on the move. He took over the runner-up spot from Bob McKenzie and started "reeling the leader in."

At the finish, Russell barely edged Cochran, McKenzie, David DeBellus and Joe Coupas. Heat winners were Chuck Burkhalter and John King.

As the thundering herd of street stockers attacked turn two three and four car deep, front pack dweller Pat Weaver became airborne and barrel-rolled his Nova five times. Weaver was not injured. The potent Oldsmobile of division's point leader Rick Clouser was also heavily damaged in the mishap. At the finish, Ron DiCandio bested Danny Burkhalter, Randy Smathers, Doug Young and Johnny Grainger.

Celtics Lose 116-111; 6-Game Winning Streak . . .

United Press International

The Boston Celtics, who have a hammerlock on victories at Boston Garden, lost for only the third time there this season, dropping a 116-111 decision to the Atlanta Hawks that snapped a six-game winning streak.

"I felt we could have put them away earlier and really wanted to because the Celtics have a mystique of winning in the closing seconds in this building," said Atlanta's Eddie Johnson, who scored 22 points along with Dan Roundfield. "They always have the capability to put you away."

The Celtics are 20-3 at home, having lost also this year to Detroit and Milwaukee. They've also lost once to the Pistons in a "home" game played at the Hartford Civic Center.

"When you play a team in its own building, particularly with the mystique here . . . you just try to hold them off," said Boston's M.L. Carr. "That's what we're going to have to do to catch" the division-leading Philadelphia 76ers.

In other games, Los Angeles downed Kansas City 118-106, Phoenix defeated Golden State 109-92, Cleveland beat San Diego 110-107, Washington clipped Indiana 103-99, Dallas toppled Portland 112-105, and Philadelphia edged Seattle 97-96.

Lakers 116, Kings 106
At Inglewood, Calif., Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 18 points and Magic Johnson handed out 11 assists to help Los Angeles continue its dominance at home. The Lakers are now an NBA-best 21-2 at home, including 11 straight victories. The triumph also extended their home winning streak over the Kings to 20, dating to Oct. 20, 1974.

Suns 109, Warriors 92

At Oakland, Calif., Walter Davis scored eight of his 20 points in the fourth quarter to pace Phoenix. Golden State's Ron Brewer had 11 of his 23 points in the final quarter, filling in for injured forward Purvis Short.

Cavaliers 110, Clippers 107

At Richfield, Ohio, Cliff Robinson, who tossed in a season-high 36 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, scored 9 of Cleveland's final 16 points to pace the Cavaliers. World B. Free added 28 points for Cleveland.

Bullets 103, Pacers 99

At Landover, Md., Rick Mahorn and Frank Johnson scored 21 points each and Rick Sobers added 19 to power Washington. Butch Carter paced Indiana with 28 points, followed by Clark Kellogg's 19 and Herb Williams' 18.

Mavericks 112, Trail Blazers 105

At Portland, Ore., Mark Aguirre scored a career-high 44 points to lead Dallas to its eighth triumph in its last 10 games and fourth straight on the road. Jim Paxson scored 27 points for Portland and Kenny Carr added 21, all in the second half. Jay Vincent chipped in 21 points for Dallas.

76ers 97, Sonics 86

At Seattle, Moses Malone hit a layup with 30 seconds left to lift the 76ers. Malone finished with a game-high 24 points and 20 rebounds. Fred Brown led Seattle with 20 points.

Completing the Top 20, Boston College scored a 76-70 upset over No. 11 Villanova; No. 12 Louisville toppled Lamar 85-80; Purdue shocked No. 13 Iowa, 60-57; New Mexico State upended No. 14 Illinois State, 66-50; No. 15 Kentucky edged Alabama 78-70; Southern Cal stunned No. 17 Washington State, 56-49; No. 19 Oklahoma routed Iowa State 102-7; and No. 20 Auburn trimmed Florida 62-54.

No. 3 Nevada-Las Vegas survived a scare at home to remain unbeaten through 20 games. The Rebels slipped past Cal Irvine in Saturday night's Pacific Coast Athletic

. . . Ewing Gets Message, Holds 71-65 Win Over DePaul

United Press International

Georgetown coach John Thompson revved his center up at halftime Sunday, then shut his offense off in the second half.

Pat Ewing, Georgetown's 7-foot sophomore, responded to his coach's message by scoring 14 of his 20 points in the second half, and the 18th-ranked Hoyas stalled for nearly nine minutes to preserve a 71-65 triumph over DePaul at Landover, Md.

"Coach said in his own way that I wasn't playing hard enough," said Ewing, who also pulled down 11 rebounds.

Hoyas' freshman David Wingate had 19 points, including nine free throws in 13 attempts after Georgetown went into its stall leading 56-49 with nine minutes to play.

Ewing said the Hoyas did little that they were told in the first half, but made the necessary corrections.

"I moved more and made myself tougher to guard and we hit some outside shots that opened things up for me," Ewing said. "We got a lead and then they came back on us so we just had to play harder to stay ahead."

The Hoyas built a 17-point lead in the first five minutes of the second half before the Blue Demons stormed back, prompting Thompson to order the stall.

Georgetown has now won seven of its last eight games and is 16-6. Freshman Tony Jackson had 22 points for DePaul, which had a five-game winning streak snapped and fell to 13-7.

Elsewhere, forward Alvis Rogers scored 21 points and Wake Forest snapped a three-game losing streak with a 78-65 victory over Marquette at Greensboro, N.C.

On Saturday, No. 5 Memphis State was upset at home by Tulane, 56-56.

In other Saturday games involving Top 10 teams, No. 1 North Carolina walloped Furman 78-43, No. 2 Virginia trounced Duke 105-84, No. 3 Nevada-Las Vegas got past Cal Irvine 70-68, No. 4 St. John's clobbered Seton Hall 82-57, No. 6 Indiana topped No. 18 Minnesota 76-51, No. 7 UCLA outspurred Washington 84-65, No. 8 Houston downed Texas A&M 86-66, and No. 10 Missouri beat Kansas State 82-50. No. 9 Arkansas was idle.

Completing the Top 20, Boston College scored a 76-70 upset over No. 11 Villanova; No. 12 Louisville toppled Lamar 85-80; Purdue shocked No. 13 Iowa, 60-57; New Mexico State upended No. 14 Illinois State, 66-50; No. 15 Kentucky edged Alabama 78-70; Southern Cal stunned No. 17 Washington State, 56-49; No. 19 Oklahoma routed Iowa State 102-7; and No. 20 Auburn trimmed Florida 62-54.

No. 3 Nevada-Las Vegas survived a scare at home to remain unbeaten through 20 games. The Rebels slipped past Cal Irvine in Saturday night's Pacific Coast Athletic Association game when freshman Eldridge Hudson hit two free throws with five seconds left.

With the score tied at 68, UCI's George Turner fouled Hudson, who made both shots from the line. Turner, who finished with 18 points, missed a final shot for Irvine.

North Carolina and Virginia tuned up for Thursday's Atlantic Coast Conference showdown with easy wins Saturday.

At Charlotte, N.C., the Tar Heels' easy victory enabled Dean Smith to become the first major college coach to record 13 straight 20-victory seasons. Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan led a balanced attack with 15 points each as North Carolina rolled to its 17th straight triumph.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Cards Want Junior Back But Rozelle Has Final Say

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals want linebacker E.J. Junior, convicted for cocaine possession, back next year but say a decision on whether or not he will be allowed to play is up to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Junior, a starter for the Cardinals in his only two years in the league, pleaded guilty Friday in Tuscaloosa, Ala. He was sentenced to two years in prison and fined $200.

Junior immediately applied for probation and a court hearing on that request was set for March 17. He remains free on a $1,000 appearance bond.

Bill Bidwell, the owner of the Cardinals, told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch he hopes Junior, 23, will be playing for the team next year.

Canucks' Brodeur Sidelined

TORONTO (UPI) — Vancouver Canucks' all-star goaltender Richard Brodeur will be sidelined for two to three weeks with a punctured ear drum suffered Saturday night in a hockey game against the Toronto Maple Leafs, Canucks' coach Roger Nelson said Sunday.

Brodeur was struck in the head and his face mask shattered Saturday night from a hard slapshot by Toronto's Dan Daoust in the third period. The Vancouver goalie fell writhing to the ice, bleeding profusely, and was rushed to a hospital.

Doctors at Wellesley Hospital performed minor plastic surgery on Brodeur shortly after his arrival. A hospital spokesman said the netminder was released Sunday so he could return to Vancouver and consult his doctors there.

McEnroe Nails Lendl... Finally

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Top-seeded John McEnroe ended a long streak of personal frustration against Ivan Lendl Sunday, outdueling the secondseed, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3, to win his second straight title in the U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

In taking the $54,000 first-prize check, McEnroe, 23, shattered a personal seven-match losing streak against Lendl and broke the 22-year-old Czechoslovakian's indoor winning streak of 66 matches dating back to April 1981.

McEnroe's last win over Lendl before Sunday was in the quarterfinals of the 1980 U.S. Open.

McEnroe, who had won only one set in his seven previous losses to Lendl, began turning the tide during the three-hour match in the second set when he posted a dramatic 9-7 win in a stormy tie-breaker.

Mancini Scores Easy Win

SAINT VINCENT, Italy (UPI) — World Boxing Association lightweight champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini of the United States Sunday won a unanimous decision over George Feeney of Britain in a 10-round non-title bout.

"I needed a tough fight, and this certainly was one," Mancini said in the ring immediately after the fight in which both fighters drew blood.

Mancini, from Youngstown, Ohio, went into the bout at 138 pounds. Feeney, the British champion, weighed 134½.

Winds No Match For Evert

PALM BEACH GARDENS (UPI) — Chris Evert Lloyd, playing her first tournament of the year, defeated Andrea Jaeger, 6-3, 6-3, Sunday to win a $150,000 women's tennis tournament.

The match was played in a strong wind that hindered both players.

"The wind conditions inhibited you when you tried to play your game," Evert said. "I handled it better than Andrea did."

Jaeger, the world's third-ranked women's player, one notch below Evert, had one weapon negated by the wind. She attempted six drop shots in the first set, but made only two as the wind carried the ball.

The doubles title went to Barbara Potter and Sharon Walsh, who defeated Kathy Jordan and Paula Smith, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

A Championship In Their Future?

By DAVID MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer

LSU Coach Dale Brown thinks that for the first time in its 50-year history the Southeastern Conference is going to have a basketball champion with at least six league losses.

Brown has to think that way to keep alive whatever hopes he has that his Bengals, who already have six SEC losses, can win this season's conference title.

But he has support for that line of thinking; the fact that everyone of the 10 teams in the SEC already have at least four conference losses — and all still have eight more league outings before the SEC's 18-game round robin is completed.

There has never been a tighter SEC basketball race. Going into tonight's action, six of those 10 teams — Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ole Miss, Auburn and Vanderbilt — share the lead with 6-4 conference records.

That Logjam was created Saturday when former co-leaders Georgia and Ole Miss lost and Kentucky, Tennessee, Auburn and Vanderbilt won.

Brown's Bengals, in eighth place at 4-4 but only two games off the pace, hit two thirds of their field goal attempts while beating Georgia, 70-66, and Tennessee's Dale Ellis scored 20 points while leading the Vols past Ole Miss, 65-63.

In other SEC action Saturday, 13th-ranked Kentucky almost squandered an 11-point lead in closing eight minutes but hung on to beat Alabama, 76-70; Auburn's Charles Barkley dominated the closing seven minutes of the Tigers 63-54 victory over Florida; and Vanderbilt's Phil Cox had four points in the closing 48 seconds in the Commodores' 63-60 victory over Mississippi State.

Tonight, Georgia (15-4 overall) hosts Ole Kentucky at Auburn (13-4), Vanderbilt at Florida, Ole Miss at LSU and Tennessee at Mississippi State.

LSU, paced by Howard Carter's 23 points, hit 15 of 21 field goal attempts in the first half and 16 of 26 in the second.

"The way things are going," said Brown, "it looks like the champion very likely could have six losses."

Robinson Does It All For Lions

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer

Not only is Oviedo's Fayetta Robinson one of the best players in the area, but Lady Lions coach Ed Bolton says she is the most coachable too. Robinson, a Junior at Oviedo, leads the county in rebounding and is second in scoring, but her value to the team is much more than statistics.

"This year she picked up leadership of the team," Bolton said. "She is a coach's player, she always does what you ask of her and she never gets mad at anyone but herself."

Robinson's 17.2 points and 14.9 rebounds per game have paced the Lady Lions to a 16-6 record this season, 6-0 in the Orange Belt Conference. Robinson also leads the team in free throw shooting, steals and assists.

"She's had to do a lot more since we lost Tanya Roland," Bolton said. "In my opinion, she is the best all-around player in the county, I wouldn't give her up for anyone."

A three-year starter, the 6-1 Junior holds seven school records at Oviedo and will break a lot more before she is done with high school. Robinson holds the single-game records for rebounds with 28 in one game, blocked shots with 9 and rebounds, 361, blocked shots, 46, and free throw percentage, 64 (62-97).

As a freshman, Robinson averaged 12.3 points and 11.8 rebounds while last year she averaged 16.1 points and 17.1 rebounds.

"There's no doubt she is a major college prospect," Bolton said. "Florida and Florida State are already interested in her."

Bolton said Robinson's goals are team oriented. "She wants to help the team to win districts either this year or next year," Bolton said.

This year, it may be tough if not impossible for Oviedo to win its district. Both Lake Mary and Jones are in the district but Oviedo has an outside shot if Robinson comes through and gets strong support from Mary Lokers,

Golf Kite Shoots Course Record To Win Bing Crosby Pro-Am...

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus once said of Pebble Beach: "You can play the golf course 10 days in a row and it will play differently every time."

Tom Kite proved that this weekend, shooting a course record 62 in the third round of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am on Saturday and a 73 on Sunday.

Thanks to that 62, Kite had enough breathing room to hold off Rex Caldwell and Calvin Peete and win the famed tournament by two strokes with a 72-hole score of 12-under-par 276.

"There were moments Sunday when I played as well as I did Saturday," Kite said, "and yet look at the difference in the scores. Pebble is a very fickle lady and if you lose your concentration for even a moment, she will reach up and grab you."

Kite started the final round of the Crosby with a two-stroke lead and by the eighth hole he was on top by six and cruising. But then, like many before him, he lost his concentration. Consecutive bogeys from the 15th through the 17th holes whittled his lead to two shots and he was fortunate to win.

"I got a little complacent, and I paid the price," said Kite, one of the tour's most consistent players, but by far one of its most unsuccessful in terms of victories. "I got a little carried away. I guess I was a little anxious to get my name on the trophy."

The victory was only the fifth of Kite's 11-year career on the PGA Tour, but it was worth $58,500 and pushed his earnings to $1,723,715 and put him ninth on the all-time list.

Caldwell made a run at Kite after the turn but missed short putts on both the 17th and 18th holes to finish with a 73 that tied him with Peete, who shot 70, at 10-under 278.

It marked the third straight week Caldwell has finished second — he lost out in playoffs in both the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the Phoenix Open the previous two weeks. But the $28,600 prize gave Caldwell, who never has won a tournament, 1983 earnings of $95,233.

Danny Edwards and Phoenix winner Bob Gilder tied for fourth place at 279 while Jack Nicklaus finished alone at 276. Nicklaus won $11,700 to become the first golfer to top $4 million in earnings.

...Nancy Lopez Takes LPGA First Place

MIAMI (UPI) — Nancy Lopez is off to her fastest pro start ever.

Lopez scrapped her way to a 1-over-par 73 in blustery winds Sunday to edge four golfers by a stroke for the $22,500 first prize in the second stop on the 1983 LPGA tour.

The tournament was known as the Elizabeth Arden Classic. Her earliest triumph previously was at Sarasota, the fourth event of the tour in 1979, back when she was surprising the golf world with her prowess.

"I've never won this early in south Florida before. I owe it to the coaching of my dad and my husband all this week," she said.

Both husband Ray Knight, the Houston Astros' third baseman who she married in September, and father accompanied her during the tournament.

Indeed, the pressure got to Knight — perhaps more than to his wife.

"He gets more nervous than I do. I offered him breakfast this morning, but he turned it down. He said he was too nervous," she said. He didn't deny it.

"I'm ready for baseball, I can't take this," he said.

The pressure increased when defending champion JoAnne Carner pulled into a tie by putting in a 50-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the 15th hole.

But Carner gave two shots back to par on the par 3, 132-yard 17th when she poked a 6-iron into the water on the right side of the green.

Carner pulled back into a four-way tie for second, a shot behind Lopez' 3-under-par 285, by two-putting for a birdie on the 18th.

Carner finished with a 1-under-par 71 over the 8,211-yard Turnberry Isle Country Club course. Joining her in second at 286 were Betsy King with a 71, Stephanie Farwig with a 73 and Pat Bradley, the winner in last week's tour opener, who collected a 71 Sunday.

Farwig, who qualified for the tour last July, moved to within a shot of the lead by sinking a 3-foot birdie putt on the 17th. She could have tied Lopez by sinking a 12-foot putt for birdie on the 18th hole, but was short.

With four golfers within a stroke, it meant that Lopez needed a par 5 on the 485-yard 18th hole. Her first putt was long by a foot and she dropped it for the triumph.

It was Lopez's 26th victory on the tour, and the first prize topped her career earnings to $376,660.

Although Lopez started her pro career with 18 wins in two years, she talled off considerably. Still, she won two events a year ago and finished seventh on the money list with $186,474.

Woman's Club Celebrating 70th Anniversary

Skit Reviews History Of Club

In celebrating its 70th anniversary this year, The Woman's Club of Sanford presented the club's history and a skit, "Petticoat Power," at the February meeting.

The history and skit, written by Doris Dietrich, PEOPLE editor of the Herald, was dedicated to club president Vi Clark during the nation's bicentennial and the Sanford Centennial (1977) and Mrs. Ralph Austin Smith, the only Seminole County woman to serve as president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs.

The play went on to win first place in the state for Mrs. Dietrich and the Arts Department at the 1976 Florida Federation of Women's Clubs convention.

Beginning in 1913 when the club was chartered, a group of prim (and gossipy) ladies, attired in fashions of the era, enacted the accomplishments of the club, accompanied with narration by Mrs. Dietrich.

The second scene was from the '70s when the ladies were anything but proper, clad in mini skirts and boots and exhibiting mad behavior — but getting the job done. The third scene was in the later '70s in a more reserved setting when the annual awards were presented.

According to Stella Oritt, the play "was most amusing, clever, interesting and informative. We've come a long way, Sister," she says.

Sgt. William Bernosky of the Sanford Police Department presented the club with a citation for its work and support of the crimewatch program.

The Board of Directors of the Woman's Club of Sanford presented a skit recording the many "firsts" accomplished by the club since its inception in 1913. The Award-winning original drama, "Petticoat Power," was also a "first" for the club — the first play ever written by a club member, Doris Dietrich, and enacted by members at the February meeting. Repeating the original skit are, from left, Vivian Buck, Ann Brisson, Myra Stapleton, Jean Marcel, Pat Foster and Martha Yancey.

President Pat Foster conducted the business meeting. Club events coming up include a spaghetti dinner on Feb. 18, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the clubhouse when there will also be a drawing for a doll and afghan.

The District VII Arts Festival will be held at the clubhouse Thursday, Feb. 10, beginning with registration at 9:30 a.m. Luncheon reservations are required.

Five new members inducted by the president are; Donna Adamson, Marsha Ashby, Shirley Schilke, Betty Smith and Irene Weible.

Peggy Deere, announced the Hacienda Girls Ranch, a club-endorsed home for girls, is conducting a building fund drive. Mrs. Deere asked each member to contribute 25 cents weekly for 21 weeks or a total of $5.25.

Girl Scout Troop 823 will represent the country of Kenya on international night in March. The girls will make their dresses from a tie-dye process. According to their leader, Barbara Loudon, tie-dyeing is a craft where you tie your material together and dye it, making patterns on the fabric. The girls have an overnighter on Feb. 26, at Celia Lane, a Girl Scout house in Orlando. There are 12 troop members who plan on going.

Jr. Troop 351 will be selling Girl Scout cookies on Feb. 12, at TGY in Longwood. If you haven't bought your cookies yet, now is your chance.

These girls will represent Holland at International Night. They will be making their costumes and they are hoping to have wooden shoes made for them. They are in the process of working up a skit for the event.

Jr. Troop 478 welcomed back their leader, Suzanne Brock, at their last meeting. Suzanne recently lost her husband in an accident but she's back with the troop now, much to the delight of the girls and her co-leaders, Debbie Spleas and Janet Campbell.

These Scouts are planning to represent England at International Night. Their costumes will be patterned after the clothing of the '60s. They'll wear pedal pushers, mini skirts, knee socks and boots.

The second annual Red Bug PTA dance will be held on Feb. 26. The tickets are now on sale on a first come-first basis. The dance is for adults only.

Happy Birthday to Anna Hooper who had a birthday on Feb. 4.

Runaways' Hotline Is Parents' Lifeline

DEAR ABBY: The Saturday after Thanksgiving our 18-year-old daughter walked out of our home. A few days later she phoned a friend and told him she had too many problems to face so she was leaving town. We haven't heard from her since.

We felt very close to our daughter and knew she had some emotional problems for which she was receiving professional help. The pain we felt through Christmas and New Year's was almost unbearable. We love her very much and pray each day for her safe return.

Abby, please publish your message to runaways and the Runaway Hotline number as you have done so often in the past. Our daughter read your column every day in the Las Cruces (N.M.) Sun-News. Maybe she will read it today wherever she is.

THE SHAWS
 DEAR SHAWS: With pleasure. Runaways, call this toll-free number: 1-800-231-6946. If in Texas, use this number: 1-800-332-3332.

An operator will take your call and telephone your parents anywhere in the United States with a message from you. There will be no lecturing or recriminations. Your call will not be traced. And only one question will be asked: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you will be told where you can get it, free. I repeat, no attempt will be made to contact you or bring you back home — regardless of your age.

If you are a runaway, I beg you to forget the past and send a message to your parents now. They will sleep better tonight and so will you. God bless you.

ABBY
 P.S. Runaway Hotline was established in September 1973 by a handful of public-spirited volunteers with the support of the governor of Texas. To date, it has placed over 500,000 calls from runaways, assuring their families that they are OK. Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: I have a son named Brad. He is 7 years old and deaf. Like most kids, Brad was very excited about Christmas, and he prepared his

"want" list. I am enclosing his letter. The words are his, but I took the liberty of correcting the spelling and punctuation. Being a mother yourself, I think you will understand how this made me feel.

Abby, please print this. It might call attention to what deaf people must face every day.

JANE GALLAGHER, YORBA LINDA, CALIF.
 "Dear Santa: My wish is to have no voice on TV because our TV station doesn't have C.C. (closed captions) very much. I want no voice at all on TV for the hearing people until they give up and let all shows be C.C. Then everyone can watch TV at the same time and enjoy it. OK?"

BRAD

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for those who think it is immoral to destroy an imperfect fetus. I have a 30-year-old mentally retarded son whose life has been nothing but grief for him and us. I could handle the problem when he was a child, although I cried with him every time he was rejected by his peers and adults.

Out of a family of seven children, only one brother acknowledges his existence. The others ignore him, forgetting birthdays and Christmas. My son has no friends, and spends so much time alone that when he does see another human being, besides the small circle he lives in, he chatters constantly and drives everyone away.

He knows that he is "different," and he is very unhappy. He once saved up a lot of vitamins (he knew they were called "pills") until he thought he had enough to commit suicide.

I can't let him go out alone, as he is tormented or taken advantage of sexually. Do all these dogooders understand all the problems that go along with retardation? Would they take someone like my son and care for him forever?

The small number of people who would deserve sainthood. Most who open their mouths would disappear if they were called upon to help. I know, as I have asked for help, and have been turned down with some fine-sounding excuses.

Every time I read letters from all these busybodies who would tell someone else what decisions he or she should make, I wish I could send them my son for a month. Let them live with the problems that never end, the grief I feel, have always felt, and will until the day I die. Just setting these thoughts down on paper starts the tears to flowing.

There is no place in society for these mentally handicapped people. They need their own community where they could be with their own kind and not feel different. They could be sterilized so they could love and marry. They have feelings, too! They aren't capable of raising children, but I'm sure a howl would be raised if they were rendered incapable of becoming parents.

When you live with these problems 24 hours a day, you think of mercy killing and suicide, but that takes more courage than I have.

This problem ruined my marriage. I also know other marriages that have collapsed under the burden. It has made family and friends disappear. 'I could write a book on the subject. Any small pleasures you may find in a child like this are washed away by bigger problems later on.

These facts need to be put before people so they can see the situation from another point of view.

Prunes: Can They Cause Liver Ills?

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm 45. Until recently I'd been drinking about 20 ounces of prune juice a week because of a chronic constipation problem.

Is the chemical oxphenisatin still in all prune juice? I don't care to help one problem and create a liver problem at the same time. Why hasn't more been done to study whether prune juice is harmful or not? Many older people drink it.

I have just been introduced to the stool softener Colace and wonder if there are harmful chemicals in it. It works well but what about the side effects? DEAR READER - Many people use prune juice for its laxative effect. It has been claimed that it contains oxphenisatin as its active chemical to cause this effect. However, this view has been challenged. The final answer is evidently not in.

Oxphenisatin has been banned for sale as a laxative ingredient in commercial preparations because of the danger that it will cause liver damage. There are no reports of liver damage from prunes or prune juice that I can find. Nevertheless I think it should be used in moderation. That is true for any laxative agent.

Colace is a softener. It acts like a surface detergent. It is not absorbent and is non-toxic. It helps to prevent difficult elimination from hard, dry stools. Its main ingredient is dicyclol sodium sulfosuccinate commonly used in stool softeners.

There are many factors related to constipation. But a high percentage of normal healthy people in the population with this problem can solve it with a change in lifestyle. Adding bulk such as millers bran helps when combined with an adequate consumption of water. Various fruits are helpful, including apples which also contain fiber.

The laxative habit, using medicines for that purpose, is usually not a good habit.

and often causes harm. Stimulating laxatives should be used rarely if at all and certainly not regularly.

I'm sending you The Health Letter, 12-8. Laxatives, Enemas and Suppositories. For a more complete discussion. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - About three years ago I had a stuffy nose. So I used nasal spray (Afrin and Duraton). The effects were great so I continued using nasal spray. I was hooked on the stuff. My doctor treated me for allergies. It helped a little but not enough as I have to use the spray about four times a day to breathe. I tried getting off it myself but my stuffy condition worsened. I'm still using it. Can you give me any information on how to get unhooked?

DEAR READER - Such nasal sprays are not addictive. The long-term use causes rebound congestion. They work because they cause the blood vessels in your nasal linings to constrict. This causes the membranes to shrink and opens the passages.

The problem is that after the chemical effect wears off the blood vessels open even larger, creating more congestion. This is rebound congestion.

You'll have to quit and stay off sprays until your chemical rebound stops. You may be successful by using a different spray (such as a steroid spray) in one side of your nose only. After one side clears then you can quit all sprays.

play." Jim: "None of the plays he suggests are unethical, but they do show the expert makes it hard for his opponents."

Oswald: "Here is his first hand from the chapter on deceptive finessing. South is in four hearts because he has bid it without the values to justify it. West leads the 10 of clubs to East's ace and South is looking at four ace and king losers."

Jim: "There is one ray of hope. If he can get the opponent with the ace of spades to let him win the first spade trick he can get rid of his second spade on a diamond."

Oswald: "South should decide to play West for the spade ace. He drops the seven of clubs on East's ace, so as to encourage a club return. A club comes back and he wins with the king. Now he leads his jack of spades."

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Max Hardy, who publishes more bridge books than anyone, has a new book by Hugh Kelsey, who writes more books than anyone. It is called 'The Tricky Game' and illustrates deceptive

Jim: "Put yourself in West's position. He can take his ace of spades, but he doesn't really imagine that his partner holds the ace of trumps. West is likely to duck, whereupon South discards his queen of spades on a diamond and everything is happiness for North and South." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
