Commissioners cook up debate over stove oven

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Seminole County Commissioners routinely approve purchase agreements totalling mega-dollars at their twice monthly meetings for items ranging from computers to road rights-of-way, sometimes with little or no discussion.

However, during a work session and regular meeting Tuesday, the commissioners discussed at length the attributes of cooking stoves.

Cooperative Extension Service director Barbara Hughes-Gregg requested $430 to be added to budgeted money to replace a gas range which had provided nearly two decades of service. Cooking lessons and demonstrations are given by the extension service staff using both gas and electric

At the morning work session, commissioner Win Adams questioned the $679 price tag on the self-cleaning range when he had seen a similar sized stove in a discount store ad for $300 less. The commissioner also asked whether individuals using the extension service's equipment could afford such top of the line equipment in their own homes or might be more familiar with lesser models. It turned out, the less expensive model, though similar in size was not equipped with the self-cleaning oven.

WILKESBORO - Former Florida disc jockey Elwyn Aneurin "Ben" Jones testified Wednesday he shot and killed his estranged wife in a jealous rage after confronting her about her relationship with another man.

Jones, 49, testified in his trial in Wilkes County Superior Court on a charge of first-degree murder in the shooting of Lisa Jane Jones. The jury is expected to begin deliberations today.

Lisa Jones, 33, was shot five times in the head as she arrived for work July 23, 1994. Ben Jones said his troubles with her began in 1993. He said he became deeply depressed after he lost his job at a Tampa Bay. Fla. area radio station, the Winston-Salem Journal reported. In February 1994 Lisa Jones told her husband she didn't love him anymore. He began taking antidepressant drugs. He also said he began to suspect she was seeing a co-worker, Ed Jordan. The couple separated. At some point, Ben Jones learned that his estranged wife was working in Wilkesboro. He said he didn't know Jordan was with her.

He testified that on the day of the murder, he became overwhelmed with Jealousy after following his wife and questioning her about her relationship with Jordan, he testified. He drove to the Kmart, where Lisa Jones was parking her car. He said he opened her car door and shot her at point blank range in the head.

Warning issued to Cuban exiles

MIAMI - The State Department has issued a warning to Cuban exiles in South Florida planning a Labor Day repeat of a controversial flotilla that resulted in three injuries after a run-in with a gunboat from the communist country.

"The freedom to travel, recognized by an international agreement, does not give anyone the right to enter a particular country, including Cuba, without prior authorization." the State Department stated in a release received Wednesday by leaders of the upcoming flotilla.

Cuba yowed to protect its territorial waters and airspace after the flotilla on July 13 when 15 pleasure boats crossed into the 12-mile limit of the communist country's waters. Small aircraft from the extle rafter-rescue group Brothers to Rescue also flew over Havana and dropped leaflets.

JACKSONVILLE - More than 14 million people live in Florida and one out of every seven of them lives in Dade County, statistics show.

In the last five years, though, Orange County - home of Disney World - has become Florida's fastest-growing large county, charting an 11.9 percent increase in population since 1990.

Preliminary 1995 figures released Wednesday from the University of Florida's Bureau of Economic and Business Research show the state is growing faster than at any time in the 1990s.

Every day, 772 people move to the Florida, attracted by the climate and jobs. Florida was second in the nation, behind Texas, in creating new jobs last year with more than 200,000.

in bringing people to Florida." said Joy Mills. a spokeswoman for the Florida Department of Commerce in Tallahassee,

As of April 1, Florida's population climbed to 14.1 million, up 6.8 percent from 13.2 million in 1990 and up 45 percent from 1980 when 9.7 million people lived here. Of all Florida's counties, Flagler saw the greatest jump in the five-year period - 28.9 percent - from a population of 28,701 in 1990 to 36,997 estimated this year.

Among the state's largest cities, Jacksonville grew the most and Tallahassee grew the fastest.

For the first time in history, Dade County topped 2 million residents, adding 34,000 people last year. New babies, immigrants and evacuees returning after Hurricane Andrew combined to push the 1995 total to 2,012,211 residents.

The Dade County figures illustrate the rebirth of Homestead after Hurricane Andrew, In 1990, Homestead had 26,694 people, but the population dropped to 8,732 after Andrew hit. This year, Homestead's You can't deny that is a major influence population has rebounded to 23,190 people.

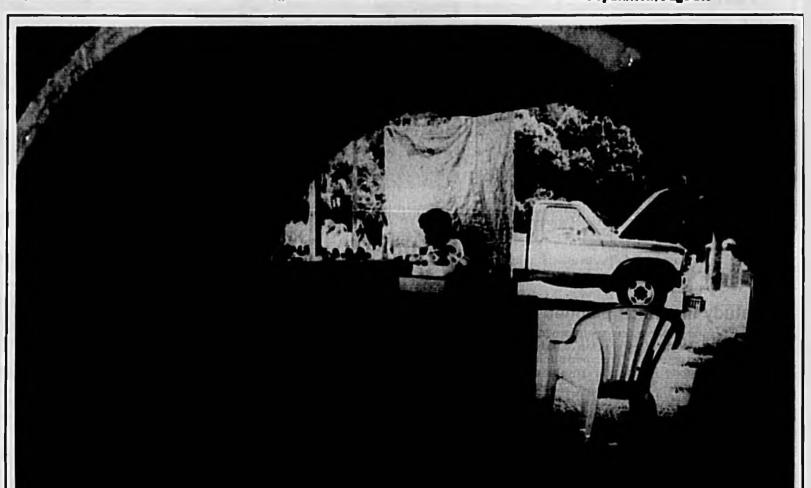

In the seven Florida counties with more than 500,000 people, the rate of population growth in Palm Beach and Broward counties trailed just behind Orange County, which added 80,000 people, raising its total residents to 757.897. Palm Beach County had an 11 percent increase over the past five years going from 863,503 to 958,502 estimated for 1995. Broward County was third with an 8.6 percent increase over the five-year period. growing from 1,255,531 people in 1990 to 1,364,177 in 1995.

Among the state's 10 largest cities. Tallahassee grew the fastest, with a 9.9 percent population increase from 1990 to 1995. The capital city was trailed by Hialeah's 8.5 percent increase and Jacksonville's 6.5 percent jump. The North Florida city grew from 635,230 residents in 1990 to 676,718 in 1995, a difference greater than any other large city.

In the past year, Florida's population increased by about 281,800 people - about 23,000 new residents a month. The increase is greater than any year in the 1990s.

"We have to manage this growth effectively," said Mills. ☐ See Population, Page 5A

Salmonella: Hundreds made sick by food poisoning

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH - Seven workers at a Mexican restaurant whose patrons reported symptoms of salmonella food poisoning had similar symptoms, health officials said.

It's possible the employees, some of whom worked over the weekend when about 350 diners at Margarita y Amigas had meals that sickened them, spread the bacteria. But Dr. Jean Malecki. director of the Palm Beach County Public Health Unit, said it's more likely some food wasn't cooked thoroughly enough to kill the salmonella bacteria and other fouds became crosscontaminated during preparation or serving. Health officials have asked that all 70 restaurant workers be tested.

"Anybody who's sick will be excluded from working until" they receive a clean bill of health. Malecki told The Palm Beach Post for today's Margarita y Amigas closed voluntarily Wednesday. It won't reopen until the county department and the state Department of Business Regulation agree, Malecki said.

"We want to sanitize everything we can sanitize, just to start fresh," said Bob McFadden, general partner of the 14-year-old restaurant. He hoped to reopen today.

McFadden said he notified the health department Monday after getting calls over the weekend from sick customers. He said those customers had ordered everything from chicken to ground beef burritos to steak fajitas.

Malecki said investigators hadn't identified the source of the bacteria.

"There is most likely one food item, but there's cross-contamination to multiple food items. including vegetables and rice," she said. "There can be heavy cross-contamination in the preparation."

No one remained hospitalized with the bacteria or related symptoms by Wednesday, Malecki

Record number of inmates in already crowded prisons

By GUY COATES Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. - The prison overcrowding that forces Louisiana to house one-third of its inmates in local jails will continue as long as the public demands harsh sentences, Gov. Edwin Edwards says.

"I understand that people want violent criminals locked up. We all do. But not every inmate is violent," he said. "We must look to supervised probation, to education. We must overcome the fear and think this

A Justice Department report issued Wednesday said federal and state prisons added another 83,000 inmates last year - the second-biggest increase ever to reach a record incarcerated population of 1.5 million. Onethird of those people were in jails, the study mid.

Of Louistina's 24,000 people serving time for state offenses.

33.5 percent were in jail instead of prison — the highest percentage in the nation. Jails generally hold people awaiting trial or serving sentences of less than a year. How to get prisoners out of the jails has become an issue in the race to succeed Edwards, who is retiring in January.

Candidate Cleo Fields, a Democratic congressman, agrees with Edwards that education is

"We spend $60,000 building a prison cell, another $35,000 a year to keep that inmate." Fields said. "They have central heating and air conditioning. At the same time we spend less than $4,000 on each school student. And many of them don't have air-conditioned or centrally heated schools. Let's put the money in education. That's the only answer to crime."

But a Republican candidate. former Gov. Buddy Roemer. thinks it is time to get tougher on criminals. He wants to bring back chain gangs, as Alabama and Arizona have, and build tent cities on prison sites as an alternative to releasing crimi-

The Justice Department report found that in addition to Louisiana, the prison systems in Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Mississippi, New Jersey, Tennessee and Idaho were so crowded last year that they sent at least 10 percent of their inmates to local jails.

That can be costly, since the sheriff's department can charge for holding prison inmates. In Louisiana, for example, the state pays $21.50 per inmate per day.

On average, states operated their prisons at least 17 percent above intended capacity. Federal prisons were at 25 percent over listed capacity.

There were 958,704 inmates in state prisons and 95,034 in federal prisons last year, up 83,294 over the previous year,

Don't just argue over jail cells

It appears as though the only time we hear about overcrowded prisons is when someone wants to appropriate money to build more of them. Generally however, we hear three or more sides regarding the matter.

One side tells us there is a shortage of jail cells which causes prisoners to be released as soon as possible. The other side says there are plenty of cells, but not enough money to pay for personnel to supervise the prisoners. The third says there are plenty of personnel and cells, but they are being used improperly.

Of course there is a fourth side which believes the prison system should be privatized. But we won't go into this situation at this time.

One thing is for certain. There is something wrong with our system.

An examination of the daily arrest reports for warrants served shows a large majority of persons are being hauled to jail for violation of the terms of their probation. Within days, they are free again.

What is unfortunate is that in some cases, people have been arrested for various probation violations as much as once every month and even sooner. Read the police reports in the Sanford Herald, see how many names are repeated.

It should be easy to determine therefore, that something is wrong with this system. Something needs to be overhauled, and not just allowed to stay on the back burner while people argue back and forth over the number of prison cells.

This is not to suggest any solution to the problem, but we believe there are entirely too many people on our streets today, who have been convicted of crimes but only being given a slap on the wrist by probation.

is there any way this can be eliminated? Can anything be done? We hope someone, hopefully a legislator who has some pull, can find a solution to the problem in such a way as to draw support from the general public.

People will continue arguing about the number of prison rooms. Meanwhile, we have this other problem. Doesn't anyone see it as such?

LETTER

Kudos for Sheriff's Office

In recent years the "hottest news" seems always to be negative; murders, rapes, brutal or incorrect law enforcement, high-speed chases, children killing children, parents killing their own children. I would like the voters of Seminole County to know that there is also a positive side to some of this.

Within the past 10 days, I became aware of a stituation within Seminole County where two little girls, ages 3 years and 10 months, were being subjected to some horrendous abuse. This was not the "blood and visible scars" variety abuse, but very real, damaging and serious abuse nonetheless. Once I became aware, I tried to report it to HRS to have the children removed and ran into a stone wall. They indicated that only the judge could order the removal of the children unless someone witnessed a threat to life or limb.

In frustration, I wrote several letters, one of which was to Sheriff Don Eslinger. I asked all recipients to help. The Sheriff not only had investigators to the house the day he received my letter, but a day later phoned to ask if the situation was resolved.

The good news is that the children have been removed from an extremely bad environment and abusive situation. The great news is that we have a sheriff who does a lot more than "his job." The only way I can thank Sheriff Ealinger is to let the people know what fantastic response he gave to a situation everyone else was willing to "pass the buck" on. Perhaps because of Sheriff Eslinger's immediate action, these two little girls will be damaged no further. Hopefully they won't wind up a statistic of violence or rape. Quite likely because the Sheriff's Office became involved, the mother will receive the treatment she desperately needs to get herself straightened out to be able to parent these little girls. Once the sheriff's investigators were "on the scene" HRS became fully involved. Please God, this story will have a happy ending after long-term rehabilitative treatment and

Thank you Sheriff, and my thanks to the Sanford Herald for being willing to publish more than controversial and/or violent material. It is why I enjoy our paper so much.

Jobs programs won't end welfare

Bill Clinton doesn't get it. Bob Dole doesn't get it. In competing speeches last week before the nation's governors, neither the president nor the Senate majority leader revealed a true understanding of why 4 million or so Americans are on the welfare rolls. And neither man offered a plan that would even remotely fulfill the president's broken promise "to end welfare as we know it."

Both Clinton and Dole are persuaded that the way to drive down welfare case loads, to wean welfare recipients from dependency, is to require welfare mammas to get a job.

And the only significant difference between the Democrat and the Republican is that Clinton would have the federal government enforce the welfare-to-work mandate, while Dole would give the nation's state governors full authority to implement their own welfare-to-work programs.

But whether the Clinton or Dole approach to welfare reform ultimately prevails, there will be little change in the number of folks on welfare. That's because welfare dependency is not a labor issue — it's not about jobs. It's a family issue — it's about family breakdown.

The explosion in the number of one-parent families (in most cases a divorced or neverbeen-married mom) is the reason America is faced with a welfare crisis. Families headed by single mothers are 800 percent likelier to be poor than families in which mom and dad are raising the kids.

This explains why the vast majority of welfare recipients are single moms. And, of those who manage to get off the public dole, most do so not because they've landed jobs, as Clinton and Dole foresee, but because they've landed husbands.

Indeed, a few weeks ago I mentioned the remarkable story of Lynn Woolsey, the one-time welfare mom who is now a U.S. congresswoman. Following a divorce, Woolsey was unable—to free herself from the welfare rolls, despite the fact that she had a college diploma and an office job. She only escaped from public assistance after remarrying.

BIII Clinton

doesn't get it.

If a college grad with job experience found it daunting to get off welfare, how in the name of Lynn Woolsey can Clinton and Dole expect several million single moms with no diplomas and little, if any, work background to fare better?

The president and Senate majority leader may get some political mileage out of their proposals that welfare moms get a job in exchange for their benefits. But they delude themselves, and the public, if they suggest that this requirement will have more than a negligible impact on welfare caseloads throughout the country.

In fact, the work requirement may actually cost the taxpayers even more money than they are now contributing to the $250 billion a year welfare system. That's because the Congressional Budget Office has calculated that if even half of welfare moms participate in the kind of welfare-to-work program that Clinton and Dole favor, it will cost the federal government and the state governments $15 billion a year.

If Clinton and Dole want to make work a component of welfare reform, then it should be in the context of marriage, instead of forcing single welfare moms to abandon their babies to day-care centers while they go off to minimum-wage jobs, welfare reformers ought to stop discouraging welfare moms from marrying working men.

Keeping the lid on testosterone

WASHINGTON — ATTENTION: Men are not encouraged to read today's column. If you are a man, please move on to another article. Thank you.

OK, girlfriends. Now that they're gone, let's talk about something every man knows but few will — EXCUSE ME, SIR, DIDN'T YOU HEAR ME? PLEASE FLIP OVER TO SPORTS OR BUSINESS — SOME PLACE YOU'LL FEEL WANTED.

Whew. Anyway, I was bringing up the little-known fact that the most dangerous drug known to man isn't crack, alcohol, or even TV. It is testosterone.

According to Taber's medical dictionary, the hormone testosterpne "promotes the growth of secondary sexual characteristics and is essential for normal sexual behavior ... occurrence of erections ... deepening of the male voice ..."

Translation: It gets guys — and gals, who have much less — hot. And bothered, as in aggressive. If women had more testosterone, humans would have died out cons ago, due to the lowered immune systems of Cro-Magnons exhausted by ceaseless battles and orgies.

Testosterone is powerful. Inject, say, a rock with enough of the substance, and it will immediately start hitting on its fellow rocks — "So, like, do you lie here often?" — and picking fights with them. Pump the same rock full of estrogen, of course, and it will burst into tears and ask, "How do you feel about me? Really?"

Because - SIR! ARE YOU STILL HERE? OH, ALL RIGHT - STAY. BUT DON'T INTER-RUPT!

Because it promotes men's bottomless aggression, the peaky hormone is responsible for most of the planet's awfulness. War, Crimes of "passion." "Die Hard III." Like other addictive substances, it has pleasant side-effects — Denzel Washington's Jaw line, the rasp in Harrison Ford's voice, the way Jimmy Smits ...

Ladies! We mustn't let ourselves be distracted. Because there are disturbing signs that the testosterone thing is getting out of hand. It hit me during lunch with a perfectly presentable male and his new female assistant.

The man was so driven to anger by the hormone that his every third sentence began with, "It really pissed me off that ... " He thought it was cool to express his unrelenting hostility this way because the things that bother him — racism, intolerance — are uncool.

Weil, almost everything. When he jokingly asked the co-worker if he'd when he jokingly asked the co-worker if he'd ever done anything to offend her, she sighed. "Well, it did bother me the other day when you told me to fetch you coffee."

He blinked.
"I wished you'd told me," he said. Blue eyes blazing, voice rising. "My first reaction would've been, 'You're fired!' I had to get coffee when I was starting out!"

She blinked. "But I'm not just starting out in the business. Why did you assume that?"

He grimaced. "OK. ... But I don't know if I want to live in a world where I have to worry whether everything I say is offensive.
"THAT WOULD REALLY PISS ME OFF!"

OK, so it's tough being a guy. Or that's what men tell me—that women just don't get it; that females can't fathom the strain of controlling the impulses fueled by those raging hormones.

Seeing them un-

Ing hormones.
Seeing them unleashed is no picnic. Most of the problems of the boys running things are textbook testosterone, from Bill Clinton's troubles to Bob Dole's lack of empathy to Newt Gingrich's — well, some things can't be explained

If you are a man, please move on to another article.

We have been lucky. Women and a few good men have kept a lid on things, but this is the age of Superbombs. How long do you really think guys are going to sit on their, er, testosterone and not try these babies out?

So even though I like men — I gave birth to two fledgling men and am pregnant with another — it's time we dealt with testosterone as we do other potentially lethal chemicals.

Make it a controlled substance.

Males — and suspect females like Margaret Thatcher. Susan Powter and Roseanne — will be tested for testosterone levels. Teams of women scientists will determine how much is enough to assure that men will continue in such vital functions as making babies andfordering stereo equipment. Determining the correct amount is vital. Too little and guys will all sound like Michael Jackson and be scanning the Victoria's Secret catalogue for Enlightened men — like my personal, household model — will pass the T-test. Those found to be above the acceptable level will have the excess painfully withdrawn — though some will insist on "gutting it out" without anesthesia. We will allow them this.

36-D bras - not the babes wearing them.

Our troubles will be over. And with the world out of danger, we will have ample time to tackle every couple's inevitable problem: Who gets into the bathroom for a good cry first.

Kosovo thornier still than Bosnia

WASHINGTON — As Serb nationalists continue their aggression in Bosnia and Croatia, some international diplomats fear that bloodier battles lie ahead in the fight over Kosovo.

What is Kosovo? It is a province in southern Serbia, where 2 million ethnic Albanians outnumber the 200,000 Serbs living there. But the Serbs run the government and the police force in a repressive manner that includes many human rights violations.

Yet that only tells part of the story.

'Kosovois
Jerusalem to the Serbs," one Serb nationalist explained to us. "It is the holy grail. It is the place of pilgrimage. It is the place which stirs our hearts and souls."

Indeed, the province was once the cradle of ancient Serbia. And it was there in 1389, in the most celebrated battle in Serb history, that their grand hero Prince Lazar fell in a last effort to hold back the invading Ottoman Turks.

Some international diplomats fear that bloodier battles lie ahead in the fight over Kosovo.

And it was in Kosovo that the current war in the former Yugoslavia began -- on a spring night in 1967. A young, relatively unknown Communist politician from Belgrade, Slobodan Milosevic, was conducting a meeting to hear the gripes of minority Serbs about the Albanian majority.

When many Serbs from the outside tried to cram into the packed meeting hall. Kosovo police beat several of them back. Milosevic put an end to it with the cry: "Nobody will ever beat you again!" That simple sentence, and the incautious stoking of Serb nationalism against the "repressive" Albanians, became the horse that Milosevic rode to populist power.

At the moment, Kosovo is closed to foreigners. Although ethnic Albanians hold a numerical majority, they are not rioting or rising up against their Serb masters, because they are waiting until they feel the time is right. Evidence that the time may not be too far off came several years ago when a thousand feuding clans, who had been murdering each other for centuries, called an end to the blood feud to concentrate their attention on the Serb overlords. What Albanian nationalists hadn't been able to do for decades, the prospect of the single potent Serb enemy had accomplished.

In a telephone interview with our associate Dale Van Atta, a top United Nations peacekeeper in Zagreb, Croatia, was blunt about the future of Kosovo.

"We know that the last war in Yugoslavia will be in Kosovo," the peacekeeper said. "There's no way around it. We're glad it's quiet now, but it won't always be that way. It is similar to the Middle East peace talks, which leave the most contentious issue for last — Jerusalem. Kosovo will be so nettlesome, and probably so bloody, that we've all put off considering it until Croatia and Bosnia settle down."

Bosnia settle down."

The Serba, having satisfied themselves with territorial gains in Bosnia and Croatia, turn their attention to the 2 million ethnic Albanians in Kosovo. The Serba have the guns, but the Albanians have the numbers and the will. Soon, however, that doesn't prove enough and the Albanians begin to

About this time, Albania, which shares a border with Kosovo, would come to the aid of their ethnic cousins. So, too, would the large Albanian community in the bordering republic of Macedonia. The Serba, seeing a chance to take back the independent state of Macedonia, would then invade. But both Bulgaria and Greece consider Macedonia their territory, so they quickly get involved in the bloody conflict.

Johnny was full of smiles and cheery hellos to all who were there to greet him.

Johnny is not completely out of the woods, but he is improving. He is indeed very alert and talkative and yes, bossy. Johnny contracted spinal meningitis while away attending Fairmont State College in Fairmont. W. Va. where he is attending school on a football scholarship. The school only had insurance to cover him if he was hurt playing football.

The community has responded to the call of financial help to bring Johnny home and to help with the great medical expenses that continue to mount daily. Johnny has been placed in the Deltona Health Care Rehabilitation Center, 1851 Elkam Blvd., Deltona, FL 32725, and all cards and letters may be sent to this address. He will be receiving therapy for a number of months until he is fitted with the necessary prosthetics to enable him to use his body. The spirit of Johnny is continuing to be uplifted as the community shows their love for this hometown young man who is a Christian-hearted believer. He says that the Lord has great things for him to do with his life because throughout his sickness the Lord has kept him alive.

Johnny is a member of Providence Missionary Baptist Church in Lake Monroe (Bookertown). and his home church pastor, officers and members have declared the weekend of Aug. 19-20, as "Johnny Golden Day" at his church. The community is invited to come and celebrate God's true blessings in a musical program for Johnny, Saturday, at 7 p.m. On Sunday, Aug. 20, at 11 a.m., Prince Grady Roberson and the Triumph Church of the New Age will render the service and bring the message of the hour.

St. John Metropolitan Baptist Church, 920 Cypress Ave., will sponsor a benefit program, Sunday, Aug. 13, at 5 p.m. The community is invited to share in this spiritual enrichment and financial effort for Johnny. Those concerned community helpers can make their checks or donations to Johnny Golden Fund. c/o SunBank.

on S. U.S. Highway 17-92, then proceed north on 17-92 (French Avenue), to the lakefront, turning left.

At Mangoustine Avenue, at Central Florida Regional Hospital, the bus will turn north to SR-46 (W. First Street), then travel west to the mail. Marder said preliminary plans are for one run per hour out and return.

"Do you realize," he com-mented, "that this is the first mall in all of Central Florida to have a built-in transit stop." The facility is currently under construction at the mall between Burdines and Sears, two of the five major tenants.

"This is a cooperative partnership between the City of Sanford, Seminole County and the Seminole Towne Center Mail people." Marder said. "This is being done as a development consideration project, and as far as bus service is concerned. we're rollin'."

Marder said at the present time, there is no bus service available to Sanford residents between 25th Street and First Street. "This new mall service will provide that extra route." he said, "so it will be of benefit to Sanford merchants along French Avenue in addition to the mail."

Marder also indicated that a special job fair is being planned by the City of Sanford and Seminole Towne Center Mall, to be held on August 25 and 26.

Population —

The preliminary figures show Miami losing 59 people between 1994 and 1995. But it registered a gain of 6,850 people over the five-year period, increasing 1.9 percent from 358,648 to 365,498.

In contrast, Fort Lauderdale's population has remained almost steady. It had a 1990 population of 149,238, compared to the 1995 preliminary estimate of 149.491, or an increase of 253 people.

Cities and counties have three months to challenge the figures before the bureau compiles its final estimate in November, said Scott Cody, one of the UF demographers who prepared the 1995 population estimates.

Demographers based their estimates on U.S. Census data, combined with the county's new building permits and the number of electrical hookups in each community.

Details will be revealed as complete plans are established.

Grateful Dead's Jerry Garcia, dead at 53

SAN FRANCISCO - Even with more than a touch of gray, Jerry Garcia was a potbellied, frizzy-haired symbol of youth

When the leader of the Grateful Dead died of a heart attack Wednesday at 53, a way of life may have passed for legions of nomadic fans who followed Garcia's rock group everywhere and hoped his long, strange musical trip of peace and love

"The major part of my life just died." said a woman who gave her name only as Becca. "We were going to do fall tour. and now there's nothing."

Gene may make jeans tight

BOSTON - You might be able to blame a gene for those tight

Experts have long suspected there is more to obesity than gluttony and sloth. Now, for the first time, scientists have pinpointed a genetic flaw that makes people fat.

The defect is in a gene that regulates how fast the body burns calories. Those with the bad gene tend to grow potbellies and develop diabetes earlier in adulthood.

The findings may quickly yield new ways to fight obesity. Several drug companies already are testing medicines intended to circumvent the flaw by stimulating the body to get rid of calories faster. It also should be possible soon for people to find out of they have the gene by taking a simple blood test.

Lobbying campaign investigated

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Capitol Police are investigating how thousands of telegrams flooded Congress over the past week from ordinary citizens who didn't know their names were being used in a massive lobbying campaign.

"I don't like that, to have my name on a letter when I don't know what's going on," said Pauline Newsome of Elyria, Ohio. whose name appeared on three telegrams sent to the office of Rep. Sherrod Brown, D-Ohio. She said she never authorized them and knows nothing about the issue that was the subject of the messages.

The mounds of apparently bogus telegrams, generated in a bruising and expensive lobbying fight over a telecommunications bill, are the most extreme example yet to surface of the pitfalls inherent in high-tech "grassroots" lobbying, the fastest growing way to influence the government.

Members of Congress who investigated their mail found messages not only from people who knew nothing about the issue, but also from children and even dead people. The long-distance telephone coalition that mounted the campaign says it knows nothing about such telegrams and has suggested that its efforts may have been sabolaged.

After the allotted time, all that's left of the messy oven spills and spatters is gray ash which is wiped away.

The freshman commissioner explained he was not questioning the money as much as the funding process and how the equipment is used.

Hughes-Gregg appeared at the afternoon meeting to explain the requested model had more timeand money-saving features such as the self-cleaning oven, easy clean top, enclosed burners for safety and more versatility with additional oven shelf positions. manner."

In the long run, the selfcleaning feature would save money in staff hours and not having to buy oven cleaners and other necessary Items, Hughes-Gregg noted.

Pat Warren, the only female member of the commission. endorsed the self-cleaning oven feature. Commissioners Dick Van Der Weide and Daryl McLain, smiling, added their home ranges are self-cleaning.

"I think I have a self-cleaning oven too," chimed in chairman Randy Morris.

County manager Ron Rabun said the requested gas range is on sale for $569 while a comparably equipped discount store model is $599.

Warren's motion to fund the stove purchase did not receive the necessary second until Morris passed her the gavel in order to second the purchase. In the end, the commissioners unanimously approved the

Clinton curbs teen smoking

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - In a dramatte assault on eigarette consumption, President Clinton today ordered a government crackdown on teen smoking. including a ban on cigarette vending machines and tobacco advertising at sporting events.

Declaring nicotine an addictive drug. Clinton Instructed the Food and Drug Administration to draft a series of new regulations to keep smoking and chewing tobacco away from youths. But the president still hoped the threat of stern action would force Congress and tobacco interests to adopt their own compromise measures.

Clinton's proposals include measures to: -Ban all etgarette vending WE WILL NOT machines. -Forbid brand name cigarette advertising at sporting events. -Require the tobacco industry to fund a $100 million education campaign to stop kids from smoking, with a major emphasis on television public service

-Limit tobacco ads in teen magazines to black and white texts, with no color pictures.

-Forbid outdoor tobacco ads within 1,000 feet of schools and playgrounds.

Reluctant to fight the powerful tobacco lobby, the White House said Congress could avert FDA regulations by passing similar restrictions on its own.

"He's less interested in regulating tobacco than he is firmly interested in cubing tobacco use among youths." Clinton spokesman Mike Mc-Curry said. Congressional ac-tions would be "the ideal solution," he said.

The administration today published in the Federal Register its intent to regulate teen smoking, giving opponents 90 days to object, force Clinton to back off or compromise with the White

Tobacco interests immediately promised a fight, seeing new rules aimed at teens as a first step toward broader restrictions on smoking.

"We don't need big government trying to run our lives," North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, a Democrat, told reporters Wednesday as the president arrived in Charlotte.

The proposals are designed to cut teen smoking in half over the next seven years. If the goal isn't reached, the FDA has reserved the right to impose more rules.

The lengthy proposed rule also -Require proof that a customer is 18 before buying eigarettes. -Ban "marketing gimmicks" such as selling half-packs or single cigarettes.

-Forbid mail-order sales and self-service displays of ciga-

-Make manufacturers, distributors and retailers responsible for underage sales. The onus would be off the young buyer and part-time sales clerk.

It would not effect eigar or pipe tobacco, because those products are mostly used by adults, the FDA said.

Under the ban on sporting event ads, tobacco companies such as Philip Morris could advertise, but could not use specific brand names, such as Virginia Slima. Everything from stock cars to tennis courts carry eigarette advertising now.

The FDA said adolescents buy about $1.26 billion worth of cigarettes each year. The agency estimated that if the new rules cut sales to underage smokers in half and prevented others from picking up the habit, the tobacco industry would lose about $256 million in revenue the first year.

Clinton planned to discuss the proposals in an Oval Office meeting with youths, then later at an East Room news confer-

A compromise would appeal to Clinton because he could clamp down on teen smoking - an issue his pollsters say has mass appeal - without a head on fight with the powerful tobacco lobby.

The decision is already fraught with political consequences because Clinton can ill afford to altenate Southerners heading into the 1996 elections.

Clinton signaled a willingness to compromise as early as Monday when he said he hoped to craft a plan that would avoid years of litigation. And he knows FDA regulations would draw

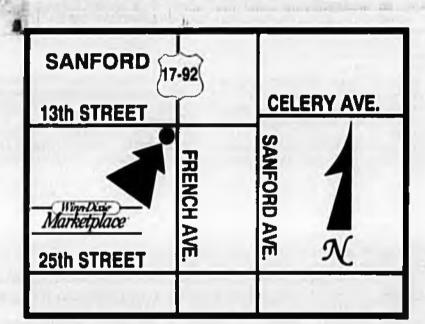

"A legal challenge is very likely," said Tobacco Institute spokeswoman Brennan Dawson, adding that the industry also will seek help from Congress.

headed as he recest to the flag stand. "This is the same old car with a new cover," Balough said. "It's a good car with a strong motor. It just keeps on running."

Kunick, in his first full year of late model competition, posted his best ever finish as he crossed the stripe in front of David Rogers. For Rogers, this is the first race in several weeks where he will take the car home in one piece.

"This car has been banged and battered for the last two weeks," Rogers said. "I know my guys are tired of working on H. Now, instead of coming to the garage at night, they would rather stay home with their Jimmy Sills and Kelly Charles filled out the top five. Conrad Grehler led every circuit in the mint-stock feature event.

"Even though we had a sick race car, we were able to stay out front," Grenier said. "Last week, we got stuffed in the wall and the car is still not just right."

Trailing Grenier were Kevin DiMeco, Jared Allison, Gene vanAlatine and George Troy. David LeBeau, who started the race from the third position, took the lead on the second lap and held off a hard charging Barbara Pierce to win the sportsman headliner. Chasing the lead duo were Ron Lufcy, J. Allen Smith and Ted Head. Osteen's Bobby Sears went wire to wire to notch a victory in the limited late model race. Rounding out the top five respectively were Pete Richardso, Tony Newsome, Larry Cook and Sammy Graham. Rick Clouser wone the bomber feature, with Herb Angerbrite winning in the Action Performance run-abouts.

DEAR JERRY: Can you tell me if we are going to take the vacation that we planned for this year? We were thinking about Las Vegas; we've never been there and do you think that we would win any money if we went

BANFORD

DEAR SUSAN: Yes, you will take your vacation as planned and I can think of no better place to find the most entertainment in the world than Las Vegas, Nev. As for gambling in "Lost Wages. Nev.," I would go with the idea of having fun and enjoying yourselves to the extent of what you allow for transportation, food, lodging, shows, and postcards to send home. If you want to gamble, never do so with money that you can't afford to lose. Gambling with "scared money" can be dangerous and ruin a great trip.

There are so many things to do there that are cheap ranging from "free beverages" to sumptuous inexpensive buffets (especially Sunday mornings on the Strip where the main hotels are) and those "99 cent shrimp Thank you for taking the time to cocktails" that my uncle con- answer my letter as you did. Of course, way back then they were only 50 cents and came with a pack of crackers. Try to have fun, take in the sights, the stars, but never, never ask for an autograph as there is an unwritten rule in Vegas that you don't bother celebrities as this is their playground as well as yours. However, I do see a slot machine paying off in megabucks. It's machine number 365 or 653 but I just don't see what hotel it's in;

LAKE MARY

DEAR JIM: I actually became psychic after completing a "free course" that came with my Poplel Pocket Fisherman that I bought for $9.95. (Just kidding.) No, you don't have to go to school to become psychic. It's an innate ability that resides in each of us since birth. The constant utilization of one's mind, enhanced with education. experience, fraternity, love and wrote you well over a month ago sharing, makes it something and I understand that there are that each of us uses each and every day of our lives in one way or another from the simplest of decision making to the complexity of investigation or research.

The old expression "Use it or lose It" doesn't apply here, as we retain usefulness of our minds from birth until death. What makes much difference though is the extent of responsibility or involvement that we have in life. I chose to direct my efforts to "humanity and "total involvement" rather than just a flash of a momentary feeling that each of us gets anyway once in awhile. I hope that this answers, briefly, your question. Thank you for your interest.

Attention readers. I am looking for the best "psychic stories of your experiences" to reprint in this column. Send them to the address shown and try to keep them to 100 words or less. Sec. you next week.

Safehouse landscaping

Ixora Garden Club of Sanford has made a $1,500 donation for landscaping and a sprinkler system at Safehouse of Seminole. Assisting with the project, which will begin this fall, will be Seminole County Mastrer Gardeners and other civic volunteers. Sharing in the check presentation are: Tricla Thomas (from left), Ixora member and 818 chairman; Amelia Royster, treasurer of ixora; Barbara Chapman, vice president of Ixora; and Cindy Gennell, vice president of Safehouse. Others on the committee are: Batte Cannavino, landacapa designer and former Master Gardener; and Jim Hunter, landscape consultant and Master Gardener.

Woman's cosmetic surgery gives happy lift to her life

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 18 years left me for a silicone princess. My son, who was in college, told me to fight fire with fire. So I had upper torso enhancement surgery, which increased my 32Bs to 34DDs. You would not believe how it changed my life.

I was interviewed for a job afterward and was hired on the spot! My first day on the job, I was asked to dinner by three Deltona, girl: Maria and single men. Zowiel A year later, I married a man 20 years my junior. That was more than 10 years ago. "Frank" is kind, gentle and tell him? sensitive. He doesn't drink. Fort and Danta Johnson, Sanford, girl; Christy and Tobi smoke, swear, nag or cheat. He adores me. I am in heaven.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He admitted that what first attracted him to me was my cleavage. I don't want to disillusion him, and since I haven't had any problems why should I

The recent publicity about breast implants has made me wonder if I should tell him. What do you think. Abby?

I'VE GOT A SECRET DEAR SECRET: If he asks, tell him the truth.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl and would like to remind parents of the need to watch their children around water. I am not the mother of a child, but I was a "mother" to a 5-week-old kitten.

You are probably wondering why a teen who is not a parent is writing this letter. Well, my tiny kitten drowned in our toilet. It broke my heart because I was the one who found her. All I can do is imagine what a mother would do if she found her infant or toddler in a pool, tollet. bucket of water - any of the things a child can drown in. On the same day my kitten drowned, an infant drowned in a fish pond. Where were the infant's parents? No one knows. They said he slipped out of the house. If parents would take an extra minute to see where their kids are, then a drowning would never happen.

Pools are the main cause for infant drowning cases. These pools usually have gates without automatic locks or high fences. There is a law here in Arizona requiring a 6-foot fence around pools where there are children who cannot swim living in the home. These laws are being broken every day; consequently, children drown.

Abby, please print this to remind your readers of how dangerous pools can be for children and pets.

PHOENIX TEEN-AGER

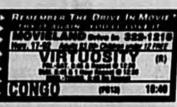

DEAR TEEN-AGER: My sympathy on the loss of your kitten. And thank you for your timely warning that parents should be especially careful to keep an eye on their children around water. A child can drown in as little as three inches of water. As a further porecaution, always keep the bathroom door closed.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the woman who has the "copycat" friend: Bewarel

I, too, had a "friend" like that. After several years, not only did her whole house look like mine. she also had my husband sleeping in her bed.

Now that's funny: Kunstler the comic

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - The jury's still out on William Kunstler the stand-up comic.

The lawyer with the bushy eyebrows and the unpopular clients took the stage Wednesday night at Caroline's Comedy Club, where he reminisced about the Chicago Seven trial and told O.J. Simpson jokes.

Kunstler has played some tough crowds over the years - Attica, Wounded Knee, the Supreme Court. The audience at Caroline's was comparatively kind, roaring at O.J. lines like, "Judge Ito was selected because he's not black or white."

Kunstler, 76, who had a pacemaker installed Monday, looked gaunt in a gray suit. He began on an elegiac note, dedicating the show to the late Grateful Dead rocker Jerry Garcia, whom he met 26 years ago at Woodstock.

"I dropped acid for the first time in my life." he said. "Has the statute of limitations expired?" Kunstler also read from "The Simpson Sonnets," his collection of satiric poetry about the I'll eat my Persian rug from wall to wall."

And he used some tried-and-true lawyerbashing material: "What's the difference between a lawyer and a spermatozoa? The spermatozoa has one chance in 6 million to become a human being."

Keep that day job, Bill. Kunstler said the show would provide him with a break from his heavy court schedule. In recent days, he was involved in the successful effort to delay black activist Mumia Abu-Jamai's execution while he appeals his conviction in the killing of a white police officer.

The activist lawyer has always kept a highprofile client list, from comedian Lenny Bruce to godfather John Gotti to Atlanta child murderer Wayne Williams.

Backstage after the show, he said he might be tempted to try stand-up again.

He said it was fun, "once you're up there and once you get a feel that this audience likes you and I certainly felt that."

'I could see the smiles," he said. "I could feel the warmth."

You can't always say that for a jury.

Play it safe with cardiac symptoms or advice was given. I'm 83. DEAR READER: In the elderly, scizures are almost never due to epilepsy, a convulsive disorder that usually begins in childhood, causes an abnormal brain wave test (EEG), and requires longterm therapy with medication. such as Dilantin.

Rather, in older folks, lapses of consciousness (that may progress to seizures) are a common consequence of brief strokes or heartbeat irregularities.

If all you had was an EEG -and no advice - you need more. First, your doctor should examine you thoroughly and check you with blood tests for conditions such as anemia. You must have a cardiogram and, perhaps, a Holter monitor, which is a cardiogram that is recorded for 24 hours. Using this technique, doctors can often discover unsuspected cardiac arrhythmias (irregularities), such as sudden slowing, that deprive the brain of oxygen and lead to fainting.

if these basic studies are normal, you're probably safe to drive (with someone to accompany you). Should you have another "lapse," other testing -such as a carotid Doppler (to check the circulation in your neck) and MRI scanning (to check the brain for signs of stroke) -- should be performed.

If a pulse trregularity is present on the Holter monitor, you may need medication to stabilize the heart - or even a pacemaker to overcome the arrhythmia.

In any case, your doctor has more work to do. He may choose to involve a neurologist, if neces-

Last March my wife and I saw a clever play called "Shear Madness" in the Kennedy Center. Washington, D.C. It was a whodunit set in a unisex hair salon of the same name. The best line occurred when the proprietor answered the phone with the line "Shear Madness we curl up and dye for you."

That given you a hint toward finding the best line in today's deal. How should South play in four spades against the club-two opening lead to the nine and three?

East was tempted to support diamonds, but the adverse vulnerability dissuaded him.

Oblivious to the danger, South immediately played a trump to his nine and West's king. Trusting his partner to give a ault-preference algual at trick one. West switched to the

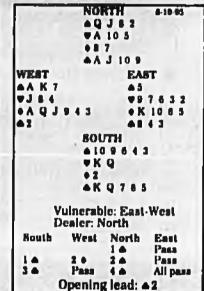

with the king. East had no difficulty giving his partner a club ruff. The trump ace was the defense's fourth trick.

South grumbled about the odds against finding West with three trumps, but North wasn't impressed. He had noticed a perm that was a cut above the

Why not play a heart to the king at trick two?" began North. "Then lead the heart queen and overtake with dummy's ace. Finally, play the heart 10. If East covers with the jack, you'll have to ruff and hope for the best. But when he plays a low heart, you can discard your singleton diamond. It's a classic Scissors Coup, snipping the communication between the defenders. West never gets his ruff, so your contract makes."

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol TOUR BIRTHDAY Aug. 10, 1995

Your leadership qualities could be considerably enhanced in the year ahead. All that will be required is a stronger, consistent belief in your abilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Partnership arrangements could work against you today. Strive for Independence and don't let a weak or inept ally deter you. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker Instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might be near the outer limits of letting tasks that require attention slip past you. Unfortunately, additional neglect could make it extra hard for you to catch up. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

ANNIE

Coercing friends to do your bidding today would be the wrong approach. Your actions could evoke an immediate, angry response. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Occasionally you might get a trifle miffed if someone outshines you. Play it smart today by keeping a smile on your face.

• CACITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) If you know certain topics irritate a friend, avoid discussing them today. Once they are introduced, they could move you both closer to an argument.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.
19) This could be a tricky day for you financially, both personally and commercially. Avoid doing anything reckless or impulsive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tolerance, as well as give-andtake, will be required in your personal relationships today. Be tures today, especially if it reforgiving with companions, even quires you to make an invest-create problems today where none should exist. Make it a point not to step on anyone's ARIES (March 21-April 19) In your involvements with friends today, don't be a know-it-all. Your pals will respond more favorably to consultation than they will to dictation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you have authority over others. wield it wisely today. Associates who think you abuse your power will find ways to even the score at a later date.

You might champion an unpopular cause today, which is, of course, your prerogative. Just resist trying to force your views on independent thinkers.
