GENES FOR YOUR TOMORROW
CHEERFULLY
What sustains it to flowers.

smiles are to humanity. They are but trifles, to be sure, but, scattered along the pathway, they do good (they do it) in a noticeable way. —Admission

The highest wisdom is continued cheerfulness, such a state, like the light above the moon, is always clear and serene. —Montaigne

The mind that is cheerful at present will have no solicitude for the future, and will meet the latter occurrences of life with a smile. —Horace

Happy are the people whose that is All-in-all, who ask only to be judged according to their works, who live to love, Mary Baker Eddy.

"Cheerfulness is a friend to grace. It puts the heart in tune to greater good, and so honors religion by proclaiming to the world that we serve a good master. He serious yet cheerful." —Thomas Watson

Always look for the sunlight (the Lord) send into your days.—Hops Campbell

Americans Making Headway Against German Attacks

MacArthur's Bombers Scatter Jap Ship Concentration Sinking Four Warships

(By Associated Press)
Americans in North Africa were hearing the brunt of the action today, with the Germans counter-attacking to prevent a union between General Patton and General Montgomery, and latest reports say that despite strong German counter-thrusts, the Americans have made headway.

In Russia, the Reds claimed more than 1,000 Germans were killed as they counter-attacked in the Donets basin, and that despite their heavy losses, the Nazis continued to try to make headway.

Flying fortresses in the South Pacific, continuing moonlight raids against Japanese shipping, have either dispersed or destroyed another concentration of Japanese ships in the area of New Ireland.

Eight of the ships were warships, and at least two destroyers and two cruisers were sunk. The other concentration of Japanese ships in the area of New Ireland, kept up a heavy pounding of the enemy's position on the southern front, where the U. S. objective was the rocky Djebel el Akri, the last enemy-held high ground in that sector west of the coastal plain.

Front dispatches said the Americans were attacking along both the Gabes and Gralira roads, between which the Djebel el Akri, and military spokesmen said it would be the rocky Djebel el Akri, the last enemy-held high ground in that sector west of the coastal plain.

German forces struggling to prevent the glowing Allied trap launched two strong attacks in the Djebel el Akri area, but were stopped with losses. The British 8th Army, holding that position, the French then seized the initiative themselves, front reports said.

Patton's activity was reported from the rocky Djebel el Akri, the last enemy-held high ground in that sector west of the coastal plain.

Montgomery gathered strength for a new push, perhaps to be launched with British armor, as the British 8th Army, holding that position, the French then seized the initiative themselves, front reports said.

Spare the People

With the State Legislature convening this week for what promises to be one of the most important sessions within a generation, most of its members are, we feel sure, imbued with a full realization of the importance of economy in State expenditures.

Federal taxes have reached their highest peak in history. War expenditures added to unbalanced budgets and social experiments of the past few years have placed a burden on the public which is hardly less oppressive than all the taxes devised by the shrewdest chancellors of Louis XIV.

And yet losses in revenue incident to gasoline rationing, the closing of race tracks and similar casualties of the war, will doubtless have to be replaced. Gov. Holland reveals that perhaps $3,500,000 will have to be made up from somewhere if Old Age Assistance is to be continued and the schools operated as they have in the past.

No one would want to see these current necessities of State government abolished or curtailed, but in our zeal to make sure that sufficient revenue is supplied for all necessary requirements, we should be careful not to impose some new form of taxation which would raise more than is needed or encourage extravagance.

It is worthwhile remembering that for the past ten years State operating expenses have been going up at a rate of from five to ten million dollars a year with the latter figure occurring the later years. Only in the last session of the Legislature was this trend reversed when the increase amounted to only two million dollars.

Our Legislators should do everything they can to make sure that 1941 marked the turning point and that 1943 will find no additional burdens placed upon the people.

Boys And Girls

One of the worst dangers in times like these is a tendency for children to run wild. It is natural, when so many fathers are gone and so many mothers are working outside of the home. And it is a hard situation to correct. Boys and girls get into many kinds of mischief.

There should be greater efforts made, in every community, to find new forms of patriotic usefulness for the boys and girls. They like to serve, anyway, and nearly all of them would rather be doing something for their country than getting into juvenile mischief.

Hitler And Croesus

Has Hitler ever read history? It seems unlikely, else he would not say some of the things he has. Back in July, 1940, just before the Battle of Britain, he made a speech which was later printed in a pamphlet and dropped by air over England.

"Mr. Churchill ought perhaps for once to believe me when I prophesy that a great empire will be destroyed—an empire which it never was my intention to destroy or even harm."

In ancient times Croesus, king of Lydia in Asia Minor, consulted the oracles of the god Apollo to see if it would be safe to make war on Persia. The reply was that if he did so, he would destroy a great empire. Taking it for granted that Persia was meant, he went to war and utterly destroyed his own.

Somebody should send Hitler a copy of this story, and remind him of his 1940 speech.

Limited Service Army Troops Are Working Soldiers

By JOHN GROVER CAMP CAMPBELL, Ky. Apr. 5.—Seven hundred miles is a long way to go for a laugh, but the mere idea of Gus—my fat friend of 20 years' newspapering—in a uniform was too hilarious to resist.

I visited Gus as some sort of khaki-covered Taj Mahal, so suddenly I realized that Gus and a half a million or so like him are one of the biggest untold stories in the nation.

The fighting men get deserved headlines. The limited service work don't get the credit they've earned. Without them, the fighting forces wouldn't be the creek did, and at a rapid rate.

Hitler repeated to his African Korps his order to the Russian front—"Hold fast or die." Beautiful for their pages of history but in fact but mass murder.

How fast can a herring pigeon fly when "bitting for him"? In a recent 300-mile race from St. Augustine to Miami the winner made it at the rate of 911.7 yards per minute or 1,441,000 feet per hour; divide this by the number of feet in a mile (5,280) and you have a fraction over 27 miles per hour for the bird's flight.

The earth's crust seems to be rather thin in spots. A month ago a farm in Mexico began to rise up, the crops sailed in to the air and now volcanic stone and lava have piled into a great mound, from which headwaters huge as an auto are hurling into the air. Old Mother earth must have a misery in her stomach down there.

A teacher at the Rosebud (S. Dakota) Indian agency once told me that a shipment of one grease sent for the army was confiscated by the Indians and used for butter. Maybe we will be obliged to resort to something of the kind.

State Social Frats Cease Operations

GAINESVILLE, Apr. 5.—Twenty-one University of Florida social fraternities will cease operating this month as a reorganized part of the university an inter-fraternity conference rolled closed yesterday.

The fraternities are out on the Florida campus for the duration of the war. Students will remain in the houses until June but the fraternities will not operate as part of the university.

When the Atlantic Clipper took its tragic plunge near Lisbon recently, it was carrying 170,000 V-mail letters. According to Col. W. A. Kenyon, deputy director of the Army Postal Service, with the heavy, dirty work in the warhouses, they repair and maintain the whole physical plant of the camp and perform its vital services, from garbage collection to hospital, technical assistance.

There's nothing in Army regulations that forbids sending limited service soldiers overseas to perform these tasks.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Apr. 5 (WV)—For the first time the Army has set up a school for postmen. Officially, it's the Army Post-office School at Pennsylvania State Teachers College, West Chester, Pa. Every two weeks 125 men will be graduated from the six-week course of instruction in delivering Army mail.

Every convoy that goes out of the U. S. carries tons of mail. If there is anything to the U. S. boat service at all, some tons of that mail must be at the bottom of the seven seas.

Still millions of those letters are going through under conditions never imagined a few years ago. From now on, a large portion of the mailmen who deliver them will be graduates of the West Chester school and possibly other schools to be opened. They'll be fighting men as well, for there will be none who aren't in there who haven't had his best training—and knows how to handle his rifle as well as to do his scales and cancellation machine.

When our troops landed in North Africa, "shooting postmen" were among the first to get their feet wet. Mobile post offices now move so close to the front lines that they frequently are under fire. In New Guinea, where almost every foot had to be hacked out of mountain jungles, they were right behind the mobile mess trucks. There are OPA's in India, Iceland, Panama, Alaska, Greenland and New Zealand—to mention only a few.

But that's not half the story. Not long ago, a big ferry command plane went down in the North Atlantic. It carried several thousand letters of Army mail. The plane sank in comparatively shallow water. Divers went down and brought up the mail sacks. It took weeks of work at the New York OPA to decipher some of those water-soaked addresses, but when it was all over, only a score or so of the letters had to be sent to the lead letter office.

When the Atlantic Clipper took its tragic plunge near Lisbon recently, it was carrying 170,000 V-mail letters. According to Col. W. A. Kenyon, deputy director of the Army Postal Service, with the heavy, dirty work in the warhouses, they repair and maintain the whole physical plant of the camp and perform its vital services, from garbage collection to hospital, technical assistance.

Newark Parley Hears Firm Won't Sell At 7c-A-Pound Loss

NEWARK, N. J., April 5.—One of the largest kosher meat wholesalers from here is withholding from the market more than a million pounds of beef, about two pounds for each man, woman and child in Newark. The firm is refusing to sell according to information received by Mayor Vincent Murphy.

Charles Russell, 321, 12th Street, Newark, N. J., who is the owner of the firm, said that the firm had a contract to supply the meat to the city of Newark for the school lunch program.

The Mayor called the meeting in Newark after receiving complaints from kosher retailers that their suppliers had plenty of meat in their ice boxes but refused to sell it.

This hearing Mr. Russell declared that this firm was using its supply to make up past deficiencies and to order that wholesalers must buy more than 40 percent of their supplies to the government.

Grover Declares Manpower Problem Is Womanpower

Baltimore was picked as a typical war production city in recent surveys. Labor needs there were estimated at 50,000 workers. They found 371,000 women of working age without home responsibilities, not working, who could have filled the great bulk of those jobs.

Reading surveys among women in the 18-50 age group showed appalling indifference to and incredible ignorance of the critical situation.

Many women frankly said they thought factory work would lower their social prestige. Others said their husbands were making idle threats to send them to work.

Some feared a working wife would jeopardize their husband's draft status. It was also found that federal agencies did a poor job of selling war work to women.

An exaggerated national chauvinism, frequently remarked by visiting foreigners, has also hampered recruitment of women.

The fact remains that the bulk of those 8,000,000 women must be drawn into employment this year. Right now, the War Manpower Commission is betting its blue chips on local campaigns to recruit women.

The only thing that can stop an eventual draft, however, is some other plan that successfully brings home-makers into the labor force. It's simply a question of cold mathematics. There is no other labor reserve.

Don't forget, either, that Mrs. Roosevelt has advocated a national service plan for women. She usually knows which way the wind blows.

The Washington National Monument at Washington, D.C., is 555 feet high.

To prevent dust or dirt from entering binoculars workers assembled them in air-conditioned atmosphere electrically cleaned.

There are about 900 inspectors in England assigned to apprehend black marketeers.

Department indicated that very few would be on the market as Easter gets since commercial hatcheries are working to capacity to provide enough to meet the demands from farmers and poultry men who are expected to produce 4,000,000 pounds of meat chickens and nearly 60,000,000,000 eggs in 1943 for war-time requirements.

Sugar Problems After War Will Become Difficult

NEW YORK, Apr. 5.—The world faces a difficult postwar problem of balancing sugar production with demand and some way must be devised to either increase production or to permit levels or to develop an elastic program automatically restraining production to consumption, according to the Index, quarterly publication of the New York Trust Company.

"Steps to increase present consuming markets and develop new outlets also would be helpful and the prospects for sugar conversion to forms making it available for industrial use likewise have potential value as a contributing solution," the publication declares.

Most of these matters are being considered now both by the industry itself and by the various governments.

"It has been claimed in some quarters that the United States may not be regarded as a likely possibility for increased consumption, since it is already the world's largest consumer of sugar. However, it should be noted that, while this country leads in aggregate consumption, it is fifth among nations in per capita consumption, being appreciably below such countries as Sweden and Australia in that respect."

The Index foresees the possibility of a sharp rise in sugar production after the war and holds that unless the sugar-growing nations formulate and follow through with some sound program of stabilization both in production and distribution, or science provides other uses for sugar and its by-products, they face the danger of a glutted market which would jeopardize the entire structure of world sugar economy.

"It has been estimated that the annual world production of sugar after the war could reach 40,000,000 tons," it continues. "Present prices do not permit expansion of demand to absorb this amount, and the only alternative would be extension of the subsidy policies already followed in some countries to other sugar-producing areas."

Sugar consumption is being largely determined by war developments. The Index reports, adding, however, that the war has not reduced sugar production in continental Europe as much as might have been expected, due to the swiftness of Axis occupation of the various sugar-growing countries which, except possibly France, allowed no time for destruction of crops.

France and Russia were the only countries in which production was grossly affected and already largely restored some recovery, the publication stresses.

"The loss of sugar-producing areas in the Western Pacific to the Japanese probably removes an annual production of from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 tons from the calculations of the United Nations until the end of the war," the Index estimates.

"Nothing is known of the fate of Philippine sugar and mills since the Japanese invasion, but Java is said to have lost nearly a century of mills and some 403,000 tons of her 1911-12 production of 1,512,000 tons. This additional supply of sugar which the Japanese gained by territorial seizures is believed to be important to Japan for normal consumption, since she is self-supporting in sugar, but it may have war value through conversion into alcohol."

The Index stresses that while more sugar is being produced than is being required to meet the needs of all nations, such short-sages as exist are due primarily to transportation difficulties created by the war. It estimates that Germany, the far-most producer of last sugar before the war, today controls about 75 percent of Europe's total sugar production.

Although the American stock at the first of this year amounted to about 3,000,000 tons, only 2,000,000 tons were in storage in the continental United States, the rest

Easter Frocks Are U. S. Is Dumb In Fresh, Plentiful And Attractive Mathematics Even With Its Progress

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Fashion Editor

Calamity Jones who have been storming the shops recently shrieking "Gimme this, gimme that, gimme them, gimme those!" should feel a little sheepish about now, when they see the ships bulging with Easter wearables as fresh, exciting and varied as ever.

If you have a friend who has been raiding the shops with a "now or never" air you might tell her that there is NO clothing shortage apparent as the 1943 Easter parade gets set for its starting lineup.

You might add that Uncle Sam has no intention of snatching the best shirt off her back—or the best suit of sports jacket, or dinner gown. Uncle Sam likes to see his nieces looking swell, baby, in things that Axis nations never sell, baby.

Despite all the cries of "Waff! Wolf!" That have been making the rounds among some of our more hysterical citizens, you'll find when you start out with your Easter shopping list in hand that you'll be able to buy just about anything your little heart desires, whether it be a suit of the finest quality sarah, tussah, crepe or tulle. Of course you won't find many pure-silk things, but the new rayons are so handsome you'll never miss the products of the little Japanese silkworms.

The late Spring American collections prove once and for all that you can't ration fashion, and that the genius of good design triumphs over restrictions. So flatteringly smart and right for the times are the new slim silhouettes that you wouldn't be caught dead in a pre-war model with a three-yard skirt.

New and important are the trim flattering coat-dresses of Spring, that button down the front or down the side, are easy to get into, and look like a million bucks.

Tied for first place in the big parade are the wearable, practical soft suits of the season, done in practically every fabric from sheer wools to soft crepes and rich tussahs.

You'll find color rampant on the fashion front, with vivid wool top coats cut on loose boxy lines the favorites for wear day or night, over anything from slacks to evening gowns. Some of them come with interchangeable stud buttons—done or pearl for daytime, jeweled connections for evening. These coats are god in fingertip, three-quarter or full length.

As for fabrics—if you're a stickler for quality you'll be amazed and delighted at the miracles and rayon manufacturers have wrought. Top of the heap is a distinguishable pure-silk beetle twill. They tailor beautifully, and are to be found in the smartest Spring suits that have come down the pike in 10, these many moons.

So, take a morale on Calamity Jones—take her by the hand and show her that American women are and will continue to be the world's best-dressed.

NEW YORK, Apr. 5.—We have more machinery, more phones, more gadgets than any other country in the world. Denning Miller points out, but we are dumb in mathematics. Our officer training program is being held up two to six months on the average, he says, because more than half the candidates have had no mathematical training, worth mentioning.

In a sense, Mr. Miller is grinding an axe with all this. He can train people in math, and painlessly. He does it with a book called "Popular Mathematics"—clean, far from gaudy. So far more than 100,000 people have bought the book and the pace is gaining.

Mr. Miller is a slender man with sharp eyes and no more hair than he needs. He majored in math in college, then went into the building business and stayed there until building was forgotten for the duration. His mother was the late Alice Duer Miller, whose "White Cliffs of Dover" is one of the majority literary aids in this war.

All the time Mr. Miller was having fun with math. At last he decided to share, and from his book one may learn a lot that seems at first only remotely connected with subject—why for example, you can lay a bathroom floor with hexagonal square tiles, but not with 8-sided ones.

Actually, says Mr. Miller, "mathematics has little or nothing to do with long division or extracting the square root. It deals with only one thing—the simple reasoning by which man has learned to handle all the things that can be measured and counted. One can say with truth that our whole civilization is based on the triangle, and I don't mean the domestic triangle, either."

Math will teach you to reason if given a chance. But it isn't "Children have a great aptitude for mathematics," says Mr. Miller. "But once they enter school they begin to hate mathematics' guts."

"This seems natural to their parents, who also hated math in school. Arithmetic and algebra are taught by rote, instead of by reason and logic."

Mean the math is being enjoyed by many. Mr. Miller fears we may make the same mistake all over.

"In our hurry we are learning math as if it were a trade or a technique. This is a serious error. Learn math by reasoning, which is the natural way, and a hundred facts can be acquired to one for the learn-by-rote method."

Governor Holland Advocates 3 Cent Tax On Cigarettes

Revenue Needed To Replace Gasoline, Racetrack Losses Due To War Rules

TALLAHASSEE, Apr. 7. (AP)—A three cents a package tax on cigarettes for the next two years was recommended to the legislature today by Governor Holland to help cure the state's war-born financial ills.

He estimated it would replace the $3,500,000 of revenue lost when gasoline rationing caused suspension of horse racing last winter. The money would go to old age pensions and to help counties which shared in the racing taxes.

He virtually stated the replacement program on the cigarette tax proposing that there should be no tax on cigars or pouch tobacco, but he said he would be "more than glad" to hear of any better source the legislature could recommend. He did not outline any other suggested tax, and he said existing tax levies should not be increased.

"The war," he said, "has broken down or destroyed sources of public revenue which were regarded as most dependable, and we are now confronted with the necessity of finding new revenue or else permitting vital public functions to suffer and aged citizens and dependent children go without help which the state alone can give them."

Although he specifically opposed a cigarette tax in 1940 when he was elected, Governor Holland said war's results had changed conditions so much that "I know that many of you will agree."

Two Year Course. The bill would require all 94 registered dealers to complete a two-year course in the operation of their business. The course would be held in the state capital and would consist of a 10,000-word message to the legislature.

City Commission Effort To Win More War Bonds

Following the lead of the City of Sanford, the City Commission today is making a special effort to win more war bonds and stamps.

W. H. Smith, chairman of the commission, said that the city had set a goal of $100,000 in war bonds and stamps for the year ending June 30, 1943.

He said that the city had already raised $50,000 in war bonds and stamps for the year ending June 30, 1943.

Local Opinions Divided On How To Raise Funds

New Taxes Are Not Popular With Average Man In Street

With Florida legislators wrestling with the problem of replacing revenue amounting to $10,000,000, and Governor Holland suggesting a three-cent cigarette tax, citizens of this section are questioning how to make up this deficit offered widely varying opinions.

"Cut down State expenses and reduce the number of bureaus, is my suggestion," said Dr. L. T. Doss.

Bruce Anderson also advocated cutting state expenses, but added that schools and old age pensions should be kept up.

John Leonard, former State representative, was even more outspoken in the matter of cutting down State expenses. "Too many bureaus are draining needed revenues from the state. No additional tax burden need be necessary if the legislature would repeal all laws creating these unnecessary and useless boards and bureaus."

Among the boards singled out for elimination by Mr. Leonard were: milk control board, and other boards related to barbers, beauticians, restaurants, etc., which, he said, should all come under the control of the State Board of Health.

He said that the State Board of Health should be eliminated, and that the State Board of Education should be reorganized.
