PROHIBITION IS SEEN AS REAL ISSUE OF 1930

Warfare Is Expected To Start As Soon As House, Senate Open Following Vacation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(INS)—While sounds of a rather moist revelry echoed across the land, the wet and dry armies of Congress greeted the new year today with a belief that prohibition and its enforcement, or modification, will become a living issue of 1930.

While all hope of modification lies in the dim distant future, both armies anticipated a real battle in Congress this year over enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and its enabling act, the Volstead law.

The struggle can scarcely be avoided since Congress within a short time must appropriate funds for maintenance of the prohibition enforcement establishment. If the dry does not raise the issue, by continuing their own little private war, the wet will bring it to the fore for the purpose of moulding public opinion against prohibition, even if they are without hope of early success in modifying the Volstead act or changing constitutional prohibition.

The dry forces, headed by Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, has left the prohibition forces with a divided leadership. One group of dry leaders supports Borah and his attack upon present enforcement methods. The other group feels enforcement must be made more effective and that the dry should lead in promoting enforcement of the law. Another group feels enforcement conditions are good and should be improved quietly, without recourse to publicity or public debate between dry leaders.

The wet forces similarly found their leadership divided. One group of wet leaders hoped to split the dry army by provoking further discussion of the dry ranks. Another group of wets felt the modification issue should be left to the present equitable in the belief that wet intervention might hear the dry armies and reunite all the dry against the wet cause.

Leaders of both armies were waiting for some move from President Hoover as a result of the recent dry warfare. It was thought the President might speak as a sequel to his exchange of letters with Senator Borah. Thus far, the White House has kept the prohibition issue quiet and without comment.

It was thought that the President would take a strong line in his reply. Borah told the President what he thought of present enforcement conditions. It was thought the next move would be up to the President.

Negro Is Faced By 3 Murder Indictments

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 1.—(INS)—The three separate degrees murder indictments against Theodore Harris, 24-year-old negro servant, held with out bail for the triple slaying of Dr. Barclay J. Jones, prominent physician, his wife and her young nephew, George Lane, here on Jan. 24.

According to the police, the servant confessed to hacking to death the household when he became angered with young Lane because the boy called him a "nigger." Attorney-General J. Fred Ebb announced today he would try to call Harris' trial Monday morning under the indictment charging him with the murder of the physician.

NEWELL REVEALS SUMMARY OF FLY WORK FOR YEAR

Says Florida Has Reason To Be Grateful For Progress Made

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 1.—(INS)—Spectacular was the setting and reverberant was the welcome today as Pittsburgh and the University of Southern California prepared to come to grips in the annual New Year's Day football battle at the historic Pasadena Rose Bowl.

But in the natural pit, that enclosed the rose-petal stadium, the University of Southern California was ready to face a year's "fly" into whose depths have fallen every fly on the entire globe.

Early in the day crowd, stars of Pasadena, the Pasadena Orange and Blue football team, were ready to face a year's "fly" into whose depths have fallen every fly on the entire globe.

Scottish Town, Where Fire Claimed Lives Of 69 Children, Is Saddened

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 1.—(INS)—This usually happy Scottish town started today on the saddest year in all its centuries-old history.

While earlier reports stated 72 children had been killed, a final check-up by authorities today placed the death toll at 69.

Because of inadequate facilities for individual funerals and the poverty of many of the bereaved parents, the tragically young bodies will be transported to a common burial place. The Paisley town council, aided by voluntary subscriptions, is arranging the mass funeral with the unanimous consent of the parents.

DEATH CLAIMS FAMED PEOPLE IN YEAR OF '29

Two Immortals, Foch and Clemenceau Enter Great Beyond With Many Others

P. J. C. Gesteira, International News Service, SM-Correspondent.

The grim specter of death stalked constant through the ranks of the famous in the year just ending, wiping out more than a dozen paragons who played important roles in the history of the world and the year that followed.

No single twelve-month in recent memory saw so many illustrious figures removed from the earthly domain. Men whose names were political bywords in the stormy war-time years passed into eternity of night with those who won lasting fame on the battlefields of Flanders.

Hardly a single country of Europe withered the year without losing at least one man destined to live through the ages in an outstanding figure in the international developments of the first three decades of the twentieth century. Famed historians, in sketching the personalities of the men whose names were active in shaping the destinies of Europe during the war and after, may well refer to 1929 as a "black year of death" in the history of the world.

Two immortals, each a symbol of the political and military life of the world, were among those who passed into the great beyond during the closing year of the century.

The death of Marshal Foch, the first in the long series for which 1929 will become tragically memorable, followed soon on the heels of the passing of two men who had led unexcelled positions in the public and military life of England.

Lord Marshall Earl Haig, leader of the British troops in the world war, died in the quiet of his home in the twilight of his life.

Lord Oxford, a statesman of his country, long a member of the House of Commons, died in London. A few days of illness and a weak heart ended his life.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—The year 1929 has written a record in business and financial history which according to present calculations will take the records for many years to come.

All of the immediate forecasts for 1930 are based on the assumption that the volume of trade in 1929 will be a standard to which it will be hard to equal.

HOOVERS WILL FACE PUBLIC'S ANNUAL VISIT

President And Wife To Spend Big Portion Of Day Handshaking With Many Visitors

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(INS)—In accordance with long standing custom, the doors of the White House swung open today to the general public, and president and Mrs. Hoover personally will exchange greetings with those desirous of the privilege.

Thousands of government workers and other residents of Washington got out their best Sunday clothes this morning and turned at the direction of the big White mansion on Pennsylvania Avenue, intent on attending the annual New Year's Day reception. By late afternoon, it was anticipated as high as 6,000 would have passed through the receiving line.

Before Mr. and Mrs. John Public have their inning, however, the President and his wife will have greeted virtually every one of importance in official life in the national capital. Starting at 11 o'clock, the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, the judiciary, Congress, all subordinate government heads, the higher ranking officers of the army, navy, marine corps, and the coast guard, and members of a score of patriotic organizations will be received.

At the above-mentioned hour, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover take their places in the roped-off Blue Room, flanked by the military and naval aides in full dress uniform. The marine band, divided into two sections and placed on each side of the big lobby, will furnish continuous music. The guests file through the lobby, into the state dining room, on into the Red Room, and thence to the Blue Room. After brief introductions and exchanges of New Year felicitations the guests move out through the Green Room and the East Room and down through the lower corridors.

While these invited guests were assembling in the house, the public was lining up outside the gates opening on the Avenue. Many came hours before they would be permitted to enter to insure an early place in line. Neither color, race nor creed barred them, and it made no difference whether they were dressed for the occasion or dressed for some form of manual labor. The only restriction was that, at two o'clock this afternoon, a policeman will fall in at the end of the long line and no more may expect to be received.

MIAMI CASES SLIZED

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 1.—(INS)—Miami will experience a somewhat slower New Year's reception today following the reports of $100,000 worth of the upper tier yesterday. The reports came from the Mayor of a New Year's Eve party and found about 100 cases of arrested motorists. Two operations of the night resumed tonight.

"We Don't Seem To Go Very Well In The U. S. A."

The time is coming, scientists and men of progress tell us, when the earth and the universe will be brought to do many things... The lightning will be harnessed and the electric energy released in the heavens stored up on earth to drive factories and trains... Life will be prolonged to Methuselahian proportions...

In reviewing the events of the past year, it is surprising the number of "bad breaks" this city has had... The first mishap of the year which we might mention, was our celery crop. We had banked much on our celery crop. The fields were full and beautiful and gave every indication of producing a rich yield...

That was followed closely by other misfortunes. The discovery of the Mediterranean fruit fly in Florida not only proved a disaster in itself, but its effect upon the morale of the people was even more serious. We found a spirit of hysteria developing which resulted in a general panic of confidence and we might say in the closing of the First National Bank, the most serious calamity this city has had to face in many years.

At about the same time on the City's hazy-bordered debt came due, with no cash on hand with which to meet it. There was nothing to do but to default. This was bad enough in itself, may prove a blessing in disguise. It is improbable that a debt could ever have grown forward under the burden of such a difficulty.

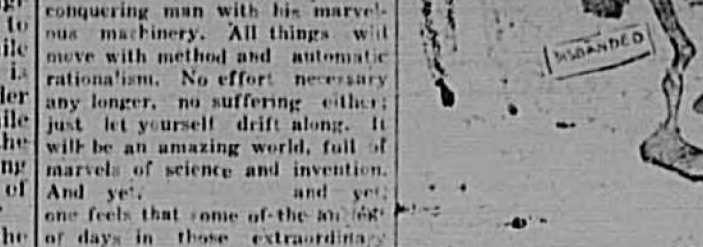

The success with which the Sanford Atlantic National Bank met the crisis of last summer and withstood the run precipitated by the closing of the First National, was no less meritorious. And the fifteen percent dividend which receiver Hawkins was able to pay recently, within five months of the closing of the institution, of which he is in charge, and the promising outlook there additional dividends will not be long in forthcoming, are exceedingly encouraging.

Although the misfortunes may exceed the blessings of the past year, the prospects for 1930 are remarkably bright. Again the fields are green with vegetables, and the vast expanses of flourishing orange, which greet one on every side, cannot fail to fill the most pessimistic mind with pleasant thoughts. This year there will be no over production; there will be no unfavorable weather, for such weather does not come until some years in succession.

The statement of Secretary of Commerce R. P. Lamm indicates that all Florida is following to the best of its ability President Hoover's admonition of "Prudence, Industry and Frugality." The state's educational institutions will be improved to the extent of some $750,000. Airport and aviation development call for additional funds of five or six millions. The various counties will spend $885,000, and the cities nearly five millions, for public improvements. And an extra million will be spent by the state for the development of industrial and private enterprises. Indeed it is impossible to conceive of an employment situation, or hard times, in the face of such completed development.

As we enter upon our duties for the coming year, let us draw the curtain of 1929 behind us. Let us forget the hardships and privations, the misfortune and calamity that have befallen us. Let us shoulder one united mass of citizens with one goal in view, to put Sanford in the lead among Florida's most beautiful and prosperous cities.

THE CHALLENGE OF 1930
LAKELAND LEADER
Florida people spent most of 1929 and 1930 hoping that the bubble, which burst in the early part of 1929, would be inflated again and that every money maker would flow into their pocket. It required two years to realize that it was all over. Most of 1929 was spent in making partial adjustments to changing prices. The hope that a good few ways appeared that a good few ways would be made next year. We would not apply the same means as we used in 1929. We would not do that. The year just closing has been different. Florida people have been a program of rehabilitation and reconstruction. Every man has tried to work on something. We have had no idleness. We have no idleness.

“Now that you're married—”

“YOU'LL have to give some thought to a household budget but don't worry, my dear, your income can be made to meet your bills and leave a bit each month for emergencies. I had the same unhappy feeling when I discovered that my expenses could not be covered by that first monthly pay check of Dad's.”

“It may surprise you, as it did me, to learn that it was the nickels and dimes I inadvertently wasted that put the large figure in the wrong column of my little account book. When I made this startling discovery, however, I began to have more respect for those nickels and dimes.”

“I began watching the newspaper ads every day for unusual values. Three bars of ten cent soap for a quarter began to mean a nickel on the right side of my ledger -- I even coined that household slogan you've heard me repeat so often 'Respect the nickel and read the ads'.”

Admirer Discloses Feelings For Lindy In Idolizing Story

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1.—(INS)—Gerald Gage, mail carrier, made an idol of Lindbergh from the time he saw the then unknown flyer prepare his Spirit of St. Louis at San Diego, for his momentous hop to Paris.

Gage was in custody under federal charges of using the mails to defraud Lindbergh's publishers by offering a book "We Fly" under the alleged stolen name of the Colonel's aide, Donald E. Kehoe. "I guess my desire to write Lindy was just hero worship," Gage said.

"I wrote to his aunt for information and bought pictures from studios. Then I wrote my impressions in a book called 'Plucky Lindy.'"

"The book sold well, but I spent too much money on advertising it. I started the second book, 'We Fly' but realized that the publishers would pay no attention if they knew I was a letter carrier in Los Angeles. I got the idea of using Kehoe's name, but didn't think it would be against the law."

Gage told how the publishers, a Philadelphia firm, had obtained an offer of $5,000 for the series from a national weekly.

"I wrote the first installment, notifying the publishers to get in touch with Lindbergh's New York attorneys. The attorneys refused me permission and the whole affair blew up. "I guess I should have stuck to delivering mail."

11 Million Dollars Needed To Operate Harvard One Year

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 1.—(INS)—What a sad case old John Harvard would have if he could come back and behold what it costs to run the great university that bears his name!

The operating expenses of Harvard University for the past year, ending June 30, 1929, were $11,008,095.10, according to the figures of Harry L. Shattuck, treasurer of the university. The largest source of income to cover these expenses was funds and gifts, which provided $5,691,539.36.

These operating expenses show an increase over the preceding 12 months of more than $1,000,000. The expense paid from income from athletic sports and the expenses dependent upon operating income, showed a reduction. Endowment of Harvard, June 30, 1929, exclusive of land and buildings used for educational purposes, was $92,578,138.11. The operating expenses for 12 months ending June 30, 1929 were $11,008,095.10.

Expenses paid from the following sources of income were as follows: Funds and gifts, $5,691,539.36; tuition fees, $2,781,198.31; dormitory rentals, $758,944.96; income from dining halls and Harvard Union $28,064.86; athletic sports, $853,468.91; other operating income, $65,899.89.

Threat Of Chinese Japs, Mexicans Swell Population On Coast

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 1.—(INS)—Negroes, Japanese and Mexicans in California are increasing more rapidly than the population in general according to a booklet of statistics just compiled by associate professor Paul S. Taylor of the University of California department of economics.

Professor Taylor says: "The number of negroes in California rose from 119,115 in 1900 to 219,415 in 1910 and to 287,062 in 1920. The number of Japanese rose from 10,151 to 31,250 to 71,952 in the same period. The population of the state advanced from 1,455,000 in 1900 to 2,777,549 in 1910 and to 3,426,861 in 1920."

It is largely on his advice that Secretary Stimson is depending for the departmental opinion over the latest Chinese move to abrogate the so-called unequal treaties, long considered by China as an unwelcome yoke."

PAINTING TIN CANS

Many women open tin cans very carefully so they will make a good appearance when in use. The general use for tin cans is for slipping skates and often there are left in the cans to grow all winter. How attractive these would look all in a row on that window shelf if they were painted.

Oh, yes, this is easy. All you have to do is size the surface so the paint will stick. To do this rub the surface of the can well with a piece of rough pumice stone or coarse sandpaper, then apply a thin coat of shellac varnish and when this is thoroughly dry paint the can whatever color you desire and you will be pleased with the result.

Empty tobacco and coffee cans may be thus painted and decorated to serve as ornamental receptacles for various purposes.

JOE JINKS

Dear Joe— I saw in the paper where your home won the Inaugural Handicap at Aqueduct so I take it for granted you probably "took" the bookies for a neat sum. You know I got my real through conservative investments and by being satisfied with seven percent on a dollar instead of risking it on fifty to one shots. I hope you'll not keep up this betting so long that they'll take it all away from you. There are no stop and go signals at a racetrack and you've got to use your own judgement as to when to put on the brakes. Another thing—again I may keep away from that roulette wheel I know you so well that I'm afraid you'll try to break the bank there, and then—good night!! Take an old friend's tip, and hang onto what you've got. Sincerely O.P. Shrivvel
