Abortion laws okay, panel says

TALLAHASSEE — There is no evidence that state regulations are inadequate to protect women's lives and health when they go to abortion clinics, a Senate panel decided Monday.

The state closed down several clinics last year for unsafe and unsanitary conditions, but the Senate Select Committee on Abortion Clinic Regulation determined the problem was failure to enforce existing, limited clinic regulations.

County official resigns

SANFORD — Seminole County Purchasing Director Betsy Leonard resigned Monday. Her resignation letter to acting deputy county manager Larry Sellers gave no indication to her reason for departure.

Hired in Aug. 1987, Leonard has been the subject of county review and scrutiny. In a May 1988 personnel review, then deputy county manager Montye Beamer wrote that her "apparent lack of internal procedures will not be tolerated" in her personnel file.

Leonard was unavailable for comment this morning.

Midway meeting site changed

MIDWAY — The meeting place for a community discussion with Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley at 7 p.m. tonight has been changed to the Progress Missionary Baptist Church at the corner of Midway Avenue and Randall Street. Residents are asked to attend to discuss county maintenance of privately-owned Midway streets.

Local men on trial in Tampa

TAMPA — Joe Thomas Russell, 49, of Osteen and his son Jeffrey Thomas Russell, 33, of Sanford, are on trial today in Tampa along with three other Floridians arrested in June 1988 for alleged narcotics trafficking.

The trial in federal court began Monday and continued today, according to court staff in Tampa. The Russells were arrested on charges of smuggling and conspiracy and other drug charges when they allegedly met a plane loaded with marijuana that landed at about 3 a.m. June 7 just east of Sanford near Russell's Seafood, operated by the Russells. Local, state and federal lawmen also met the plane at a remote airstrip and arrested the Russells.

The 628 pounds of marijuana, valued at $75,000, had been shipped from Belize in Central America. Three other Floridians in other areas of the state were arrested as well.

Stamp price hike

Sanford postmaster: Extra 5¢ needed; customers not so sure

By LACY DOMEN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The extra nickel you may have to add to the cost of a stamp will be money well spent, Sanford Postmaster Fred Rader said this morning, but area residents were skeptical.

The United States Postal Service, facing losses of up to $1.6 billion this year, this afternoon was to announce plans to hike postal rates, including the price of a first-class stamp from 25 cents to 30 cents.

Rader attributed the deficit to the state-of-the-art equipment currently being installed nationwide. For example, the new regional post facility in Lake Mary will be fully automated. "One person can manually throw 800 pieces an hour, but one machine can handle 35,000 pieces," Rader said.

But outside the Sanford post office this morning, Lake Mary resident Don Jones shook his head from side to side and gave the proposed increase a double thumbs down.

And Jean Williams, of Sanford, said there was an alternative to sorting so many pieces of mail. "They need to do away with the junk mail. Then there wouldn't be so much mail to handle," she said.

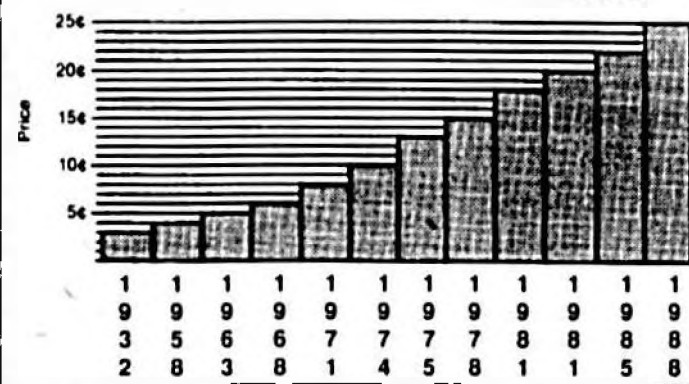

The Postal Service Board of Governors was scheduled to meet on this afternoon, when it was expected to announce the overall proposal calling for an average 19 percent price increase for all classes of mail.

But Sanford resident Leslie Vickers said, "I'm against the increase. If they didn't pay postal employees so much, they wouldn't need it."

Rader said employee salaries are not a consideration in the proposed hike. Labor unions will be negotiating salaries this summer. See Stamps, Page 5A

We're moving

This historic house on Oak Ave. in Sanford was moved to a new location Tuesday, approximately one block from its former resting place. The home, owned by Henry and Debbie Bowlin, escaped demolition. Had it stayed at its original location, it would have been demolished to make room for a parking lot.

County, state officials say school testing system needs changes

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald staff writer

SANFORD — David Winger, coordinator of testing for Seminole County schools, agreed this morning with state education commissioner Betty Castor that schools need to test higher level thinking skills rather than doing basic assessment through standardized testing.

But, the county has no choice but to maintain the status quo until the state makes a decision on what they plan to do. "We have to wait and see," Winger said. "Depending on what they plan to do, will determine the recommendations we make in terms of how we will supplement the testing."

Florida education officials are backing away from the 13 year old practice of testing the basic skills of Florida school students, since the tests can limit what many

'Save the Manatee' auto plates could do just that

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Automobile tags bearing the likeness of the official state marine animal, the manatee, are expected to be available March 19 at the Seminole County Tax Collector's Office.

The tags feature a design of a manatee at the center and the words "Save the Manatee" at the bottom. The word "Florida" appears at the top of the plate.

In addition to regular auto tag taxes and fees, an additional $17 will be charged for the special tags. Of that amount, $7.50 from each plate will be deposited in the "Save the Manatee Trust Fund," which will be used for manatee research, protection and recovery. Another $7.50 from each tag fee will be spent for environmental education.

The remaining $2 of the charge is for special handling of the tags.

Personalized manatee tags are available for an additional $12 fee. Amateur radio licenses may have their manatee tags bear their call letters for a $5 charge in addition to

Defense attorney says results from DUI machine not reliable

From staff and wire reports

A defense attorney who is an expert in defeating drunk driving charges says judges make a mistake relying on the breath-testing device that is expected to become the standard in Florida and that already is being used in Seminole County.

Not all people have the same ratio of alcohol in their breath as alcohol in their blood, attorney Richard Essen said Monday in Sarasota. He is a Miami defense attorney who achieved national renown by winning 1,800 consecutive driving under the influence cases.

Any machine, therefore, that relies on breath tests are inherently inaccurate, he said.

This latest machine, called the Intoxilyzer 5000, is better than most machines, Essen conceded, but it shares the same basic flaw as its predecessors such as the

Mall road plan

Developers ask city to provide the funds

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The majority of Sanford commissioners enthusiastically support using some property taxes from the proposed Seminole Mall to pay for road improvements needed for the commercial venture at I-4 and SR 46.

Commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan, however, continues to oppose the property tax proposal, saying the city will lose tax money in the deal. "I find it hard to believe that a $100 million mall is contingent upon $6 million of the city's badly-needed tax revenues," McClanahan said during a city commission workshop Monday.

An estimated $6 million in property taxes would be devoted to road improvements that would help the $100 million mall which could be under construction by 1991 and open in stages beginning in 1993.

McClanahan also opposes what he said was mall developers Melvin Officers cleared of 'shock-down'

KISSIMMEE — Prosecutors have decided not to file charges against three Dade County policemen and a guard who were arrested last month when Mohammed al-Fassi accused them of threatening him while trying to collect back pay.

Defense attorneys met Monday with Osceola County prosecutors, who decided not to press charges.

The four men — North Miami police officers Neal Cuevas and Frank Irvine, South Miami police officer Vito Santangelo and private security guard Ronald Ralowitz — were cleared of wrongdoing, the defense attorneys said.

"Unfortunately they have been humiliated and publicly disgraced by these false accusations, which certainly cannot be erased," said attorney Jayne Weintraub.

The four men had been bodyguards for the flamboyant al-Fassi, who claims to be related to Saudi Arabian royalty. Al-Fassi is well known in south Florida, where he ran up massive debts before fleeing town in the mid-1980s.

Candidate boots his campaign manager

TALLAHASSEE — U.S. Rep. Bill Nelson, the Democratic congressman whose campaign for governor has hit several embarrassing snags recently, announced Monday that he has dropped his campaign manager.

Aides to Nelson said W. Tedder Phelps stepped down as manager because of differences of opinion with the candidate, and they said the change won't hurt Nelson's bid for the state's highest office.

Phelps will continue to serve as a paid consultant to the campaign.

Nelson's opponents cited the abrupt move as another example of the candidate's tendency to over-react.

"Whoever made this decision over-reacted," Vic Johnson, campaign manager for state Sen. George Stuart, D-Orlando, told The Miami Herald. Stuart is also running for governor.

"You don't fire the CEO of a company without a replacement. If you do, your investors wonder if everything is in order," he added.

Rep. Mike Abrams, D-North Miami Beach, will serve as interim manager of the Nelson campaign until a replacement is found.

Protesters don't want plant built

PENSACOLA — About 100 chanting protesters armed with picket signs rallied at a busy intersection Monday in a lunch-hour show of opposition to plans by a central Florida firm to build a hazardous waste treatment facility near Pensacola.

The rally outside Pensacola Junior College preceded a Monday hearing before a state officer over plans by a central Florida firm to build a $2 million facility on 60 acres in Beulah, northwest of Pensacola.

The hearing pits Escambia County and a citizens group against Trans Pac Inc. of Bonita Springs, south of Tampa, and a state agency that has already served notice it intends to approve a construction permit.

Members of Citizens in Action, formed a year ago after plans for the facility were announced, object to the location. They say the treatment center near Perdido Landfill would lower property values and is a potential polluter.

The protesters, some with clenched fists, chanted "fight back, fight back, we don't want Trans Pac" as they held signs warning of the supposed dangers of the hazardous waste facility.

Trans Pac has applied for a construction permit from the state Department of Environmental Regulations. Monday's hearing was scheduled after the Escambia County Commission objected to DER's notice of intent to issue a construction permit.

A hearing officer will listen to legal arguments and public comments before making a recommendation to DER Secretary Dale Twachtman.

Cops say slain couple victims of ambush

OCALA — A couple found shot to death in their car apparently were ambushed while sitting at a stop sign, the Marion County Sheriff's Office reported Monday.

James Michael Vanbrunt, 25, of Ocala, was shot four times. Debra Scoggins Coffman, 30, of Ocala, was shot six times, said Jennifer Fanzlaw, sheriff's spokeswoman.

Both victims worked at Glen Hill Farm, an Ocala horse farm, she said.

"From what we can tell at this point, they were at the intersection of 31st Street at the stop sign. It looked as though they were looking to turn onto Southwest 7th Avenue," she said.

She said once Vanbrunt was shot, it appears he took his foot off the brake, and the car rolled backward about 100 feet into the field where it was found.

The bodies were found in the bullet-riddled car about 10:40 p.m. Saturday. Neighbors said they had heard shots about an hour earlier.

"Basically we're working from the ground up with no eye witnesses, no tangible evidence of another vehicle or anything like that. We're trying to locate a suspect and a motive," Fanzlaw said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

USF medical school dean resigns

United Press International

TAMPA — A tearful Wilton Bunch, dean of the University of South Florida College of Medicine, resigned his post amid growing indications that a battle with the orthopedics department had cost him the support of the faculty.

Bunch broke the news Monday in a meeting of the medical school's 25-member student council, said Valerie Panzarino, president of that group.

Both students and Bunch cried, said Panzarino, who with 96 other medical students last month signed a petition in support of Bunch.

Bunch submitted a resignation letter Monday to USF President Francis Borkowski, who immediately accepted it. He also sent a letter to the medical school faculty.

In early February, 26 school surgeons publicly called for Bunch to resign. The next week, school department chairmen took a private vote asking him to step down.

Last week, the medical school's 35-member Faculty Council began a drive for a vote of no-confidence in the dean. Although voting was not finished Monday, the council was expected to get the three-fourths majority it needed to take the matter before the full faculty.

Bunch will stay on as a professor through Aug. 6. He left the campus after meeting with the students and could not be reached.

USF Executive Vice President Bert Hartley said school leaders are "most disappointed" to see Bunch leave. No timetable has been set for a search for a new dean, he said.

Bunch, 55, came to USF in October 1988 from the University of Chicago, where he had served as dean of medical affairs.

Less than a month into his new job, Bunch was engulfed in controversy when he removed Phillip Spiegel as orthopedics department chairman. Thirteen surgeons in Spiegel's department resigned three months later.

Spiegel sued the university the following year, winning reinstatement and then being fired again.

Although many speculated Bunch was carrying out orders from Vice President for Health Sciences Ronald Kaufman when he fired Spiegel, members of the faculty grew increasingly concerned over Bunch's inability to resolve squabbles with the departed orthopedists, who still train USF residents.

Senate panel says tougher measures against abortion clinics not needed

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A Senate panel decided Monday there is no evidence that current state regulations governing abortion clinics are inadequate to protect women's lives and health.

The state closed down several clinics last year for unsafe and unsanitary conditions, but the Senate Select Committee on Abortion Clinic Regulation determined the problem was failure to enforce existing, limited clinic regulations.

The panel is preparing legislation to force closer cooperation between the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, which oversees clinics, and the Department of Professional Regulation, which regulates doctors.

But the committee's 15-page report recommends against any broader tightening of regulations, which it says would violate a 1982 federal court order strictly limiting the state's oversight of clinics.

"The committee found no medical evidence to indicate that women's health is at risk, beyond the medically predicted levels of risk for the abortion procedure, if they choose to terminate their pregnancies in Florida abortion clinics," the document says.

However, the panel did find that, within the limits of the federal court order, HRS "has not fully and rigorously used what regulatory authority it does have."

The committee found complications arose from abortions in only .04 percent of cases in 1986 and .03 percent in 1987, the latest figures available. None of those complications was considered serious.

The state is currently asking the U.S. District Court in Miami to review the court order, which permits the state only to ensure that licensed doctors perform abortions, that the number performed be reported to the state, and that fetal remains be properly disposed of.

Sen. Jeanne Malchon, D-St. Petersburg, a member of the select committee, said the findings refute charges by abortion foes that existing regulations are too weak to protect women.

Knock, knock; here's 1,246 lbs. of cocaine

UPI Report

MIAMI — An unidentified person drove a car to a Miami shopping center, knocked on a store door and fled, leaving behind a vehicle filled with 1,246 pounds of cocaine, police said Monday.

The vehicle was parked behind a shopping center in southwest Miami, Metro-Dade County police said.

About 9 p.m. Sunday night, someone inside the store heard a knock at the rear door, went to investigate and found no one there, detective Bill Kinnebrew said.

Woman reports husband battered her

LONGWOOD — A man who moved out of his Longwood home Saturday morning, reportedly returned and forced entry Saturday night. The man's wife reported he pushed her and disabled the telephone.

That led to charges of burglary to an occupied dwelling and battery-spouse abuse against Allen R. Vaughn, 62, formerly of 3015 Palmetto Ave., Longwood, where the incident occurred. He was arrested at 10:08 p.m. Saturday.

Wife attacked twice

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A St. Petersburg man who allegedly twice attacked his wife in her Altamonte Springs house Saturday night was arrested there for battery-spouse abuse, city police report.

Wesley Steven Twelves, 43, was arrested at the house of Nancy Grace Twelves, 49, of 802 Coral Glen Loop, 205, Altamonte Springs, after he allegedly hit her several times.

• Nealie Gills III, 27, of 201 Cadillac Court, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 4:21 a.m. Sunday after his car was clocked traveling 25 mph in a 45 mph zone on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary, after police received a report of a suspected drunk driver in the area.

Man accused of raping girl

LONGWOOD — Robert Lee Howell, 24, 300 Sugarloaf Court, Longwood, is charged with sexual battery and lewd and lascivious assault on a child. He is accused of raping a 10-year-old girl.

Seminole County sheriff's Investigator Dan Prast reports that two other girls, ages 12 and 14, have also accused Howell of fondling them. The investigation continues and Howell is held without bond in the county jail.

Prast reported the 10-year-old was allegedly raped Monday morning in her bed in a Seminole County house where Howell was staying that night.

The alleged assaults on the two other girls occurred in December 1989 and last month in Seminole County, Prast said. A doctor in Apopka reportedly confirmed Monday that the 10-year-old had apparently been sexually assaulted, according to Prast's report. Howell was arrested at the sheriff's department at 8:50 p.m. Monday.

Man arrested for impersonating deputy

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly presented an Orange County deputy sheriff's badge and claimed to be a deputy when asked for identification at the Wekiva Marina, rural Longwood, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

Workers at the marina, who asked the man for identification when he asked to borrow two canoe paddles at about 1:30 p.m. Monday, called Seminole County sheriff's deputies to the scene.

The Seminole deputies reported confirming that Paul James McDermott II, 22, 817 N. Semoran Blvd., Winter Park, is not an Orange County lawman. The deputies reported recovering the Orange County badge from McDermott's car and charging him with impersonating a police officer. Bond is $1,000.

Two charged in auto burglary

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Two of three men seen fleeing from near Allied Discount Tires, State Road 438, rural Altamonte Springs, after an auto burglary there early Monday, were caught by Altamonte Springs police and Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

The suspects reportedly fled into woods on foot when they spotted an Altamonte Springs policeman near the scene. Two were caught. Brett Lee Sanford, 18, of Orlando; and Keith Shane McLemore, 18, of Orlando, were both charged with burglary and grand theft. A car stereo system reportedly stolen from a car at Allied was found in the suspects' car, deputies reported.

Sanford woman, boy arrested

SANFORD — Jodi Lynn Jones, 20, 1660 Sipes Ave., Sanford, and a 15-year-old boy Sanford police identified as Jones' boyfriend, have been charged with burglary and grand theft.

Two witnesses who know the suspects reportedly told police they saw the couple enter the house of Linda Abache, 114 Groveside Drive, Sanford, through a garage door Nov. 28. The pair allegedly left with about $1,000 worth of stolen property. The two were arrested at 11:45 a.m. Monday in the parking lot of Franklin Arms Apartments, in Sanford, police said.

Glenn wants money, land for schools

Chairman: Bond failure means developers should contribute

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commission chairman Sandra Glenn proposed this morning to come to the aid of school officials by stepping up their appeal for developer's to contribute money and land for school construction.

"The voters have said they don't want a bond for school capitol improvements, so it's time for us to regroup and see what can be done," Glenn said this morning.

Glenn said voluntary school impact fees should be more aggressively sought from developers until state courts allow the fees to be required. A case on impact fees is being heard in St. Johns County that could be the model for the state.

Because impact fees — money developers must pay to help pay for public services needed by their developments — cannot be charged for schools, Seminole County officials have asked for voluntary contributions from developers.

Glenn said more developers should be asked to either contribute a portion of their land for school sites or to make the land available for school board purchase at a low-cost, pre-development price.

Glenn said the need to step up efforts to get donations from developers, recognizing zoning changes and other county approvals cannot be contingent on the contributions.

"If we get a negative vibe from developers, we may have to go ahead with mandatory impact fees, even if we have to return them later," Glenn said.

Glenn said she did not anticipate a strong negative response from the development community.

Glenn said she will ask for a joint meeting in April between elected county and school officials and commissioners from the seven cities to see how the county's governments can assist the schools in obtaining voluntary developer contributions and school sites.

Glenn said she will ask county commissioners at their next meeting Tuesday to direct staff to investigate how Lottery revenues are spent for schools. She said many of the Lottery funds are used to create new programs which increase the demand for new schools.

Glenn said if changes are needed to allow Lottery revenues to be spent for school construction, she will act in her capacity as chairman of the Florida Association of Counties to ask legislators for those changes. The association lobbies state lawmakers on behalf of county commissioners.

Glenn said she will also ask fellow commissioners next Tuesday to send a letter to school officials requesting that a county commissioner serve on the school's business advisory group.

Longwood takes up two-clerk ordinance

By LACY DOWEN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Longwood commissioners last night passed the first reading of an ordinance requiring two clerks at convenience stores.

Commissioners scheduled a public hearing on the ordinance for March 19.

Sanford and Lake Mary have passed similar ordinances. Seminole County will consider a county-wide code later this month.

"This has been a long time coming. Fortunately we haven't had some of the problems other cities have. We've been lucky," Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning said.

If passed, the Longwood ordinance will require each "at risk business, store or operation" to put at least two clerks on duty between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m. and meet other minimum security measures. Manning said the ordinance addresses optimum lighting, the unobstructed view of clerks and customers from outside the store, bulletproof enclosures, limits on the amount of money employees can keep in the till, installation of drop safes or time-release safes, and surveillance equipment.

An "at risk business" is described as any store which offers a limited variety of food, household or sundry items or offers petroleum products and is open between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m.

After reading the ordinance, Commissioner Adrienne Perry said "I don't think I'd want to be a customer or employee of one of these establishments after midnight with all this talk about bulletproof glass."

"We're just trying to prevent something before it happens," Manning answered.

Manning told commissioners of Gainesville's reduced crime rate. After passing a similar ordinance, Gainesville reduced convenience store crimes by 37 percent, Manning said.

Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton questioned Manning about the choice of operating hours. "Why did you make it 5 a.m.? Why not six?" he said.

"When it starts getting daylight, even the crooks go home and sleep," Manning said.

Longwood to install computerized check-in system

By LACY DOWEN

LONGWOOD — Frail, elderly and homebound persons often fear for their lives when faced with sudden injury or illness that may prevent them from reaching a telephone.

Last night, Longwood commissioners voted to install the "Are You OK?" computer system which will contact these residents daily through a monitoring system.

The system was recently unveiled in Casselberry, the first Florida city to participate in the program that now spans 15 states.

Commissioner Hank Hardy said the system functions through the fire department on a separate phone line. Elderly residents sign up for the service and are monitored daily with the computerized calls. In the absence of a response, proper authorities are alerted and dispatched to the resident's home.

Hardy was originally contacted by Jerry Collins, owner of the Sanford/Orlando Kennel Club, who has agreed to donate $7,128 for the computer, printer, monitor, keyboard, telephone, speakers and computer software. Collins made a similar donation to Casselberry.

Longwood will pay the monthly telephone bill and a yearly maintenance fee of $500. Hardy said. City Administrator Michael Abels said the computers will arrive in several weeks. Until then, the city is signing people up for the service.

Fire chief Charlie Chapman called the system a "pilot program with a lot of promise. We'd like to target the elderly initially, but not limit this with an age requirement," he said.

Chapman said he would like to expand the program to include latchkey kids. "We can check on them in the afternoon to make sure they got home from school okay," he said.

County lawmen to run for Special Olympics

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Lawmen will be on the run through Seminole County this afternoon to benefit the Special Olympics for about 13,000 mentally handicapped adults and children in the state.

Seminole County Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Riggins has helped coordinate this charity torch run for five years. He said local lawmen will pick up the International Law Enforcement Special Olympic Torch Run torch from Maitland police at about 1:30 p.m. today at the county line on U.S. Highway 17-92.

The 60 Seminole County runners will include officers from Sanford, Longwood, Casselberry, and Altamonte Springs police departments, as well as sheriff's deputies and law enforcement students from Seminole Community College. The lawmen will relay the torch through the county while running behind a police motorcycle escort.

At State Road 46, the runners will turn west to prepare for the torch's entry Wednesday morning into Lake County.

The runners are backed by public pledges of donations to the Indoor Winter Special Olympics Games. The Games will be this weekend in Tallahassee where the torch that passed through Seminole County will be delivered for opening ceremonies, Riggins said.

The international law enforcement torch run supports Special Olympics throughout the year and throughout the world, Riggins said.

In Florida, 1,400 runners covered almost 2,000 miles and earned about $30,000 for the games last year, Riggins said. The international goal, he said, is to earn $4 million over two years. Riggins, who is coordinator of the run in the Central Florida region, said the idea originated in Kansas in 1981 to provide support for the Games. It has spread to all states and to some foreign countries.

In years past, the run went from the north to the south with the torch coming to Seminole County in April as Volusia County lawmen handed over the torch at the county line in Sanford. This year the route has been reversed with the state run being made from south to north. Riggins said, so that brought a change of schedule for this county. Every county in the state, he said, is touched by the run.

"You get into it," Riggins said. "You can really see the Special Olympics program is a good, worthwhile charity. It's rewarding to see the appreciation of the Special Olympics."

Longwood passes most of its comprehensive plan

By LACY DOWEN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Longwood commissioners adopted a comprehensive plan last night after what one commissioner said was three years of sweat, blood and calluses.

Commissioners voted to adopt the plan after omitting a controversial tract of land. Parcel 29 had been slated to be rezoned from agricultural to light industrial. The land is owned by Commissioner Hank Hardy's father and has been the focus of controversy from Casselberry.

Michael Delk, Casselberry's assistant city planner, said parcel 29 borders residential property in Casselberry and residential zoning would be preferable.

Longwood Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton said the city had complished with Casselberry's concerns by providing a buffer zone and omitting through streets on the property.

Commissioners finally tabled discussion on parcel 29 and passed the comprehensive plan without it. The fate of parcel 29 will be resolved later, but no date was announced.

To avoid any conflict of interest, Hardy did not vote on the plan.

River art festival a success indeed

The organizers of the St. Johns River Arts and Crafts Festival did their job well.

The event this past weekend in Ft. Mellon Park along the shores of Lake Monroe provided a pleasant outing for thousands of people. It was all the more a success because of what was learned from last year's festival. Moving the live, musical entertainment into a more central location so that it could be heard while browsing the exhibits, for example, was a big improvement.

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the Sanford Seminole Art Association — and all of the volunteers who pitched in to help — have earned a hearty well-done for the planning and other hard work that went into attracting decent quality exhibitors and related activities.

Now, we have the prospect of an even bigger and better festival to anticipate next year.

In that vein, one wonders what might become of the festival if a Barnum & Bailey empressario were to loose his creative instincts. What more could be done not only to attract, but to hold, more people in the downtown Sanford area:

- More activities on the lake? Boat rides? Fishing-related contests?
- More activities in Ft. Mellon Park? Picnicking? Games?
- Entertainment and other street activities along an open-for-business retail section of First Street downtown?
- Promotion of organized or self-guided walking tours of the Historical District downtown?
- A band at Centennial Park?
- Picnicking and other children's activities at Park on Park?
- Incorporation of the Central Florida Regional Zoo through a free shuttle between the park and the zoo, as well as other venues in the downtown area?

Of course, conceiving ideas is one thing, but figuring out how to accomplish them is quite another. No question that the raw material exists in Sanford for a downtown-wide celebration. What remains to be harnessed is the wherewithal to plan, organize and pay for such grandiose thinking.

But if no more is done next year than was done this year at the art festival, it still should be another delight.

Shine on Sanford

An infectious spirit of volunteerism has surfaced once again in Sanford with the Make Sanford Shine campaign.

A variety of civic groups as well as City Hall have joined together this month to pick up garbage and other litter along streets in the downtown area.

The importance of stimulating pride in one's community through volunteerism and good works cannot be overstated. The city and its residents, of course, are much the better for it.

Chamorro win raises many questions

WASHINGTON — Violeta Chamorro's stunning defeat of Daniel Ortega in Nicaragua's recent presidential election leaves many unanswered questions both in Managua and here in Washington.

First and foremost is whether Ortega and the Sandinistas will actually relinquish control on April 24 after 10 years in power.

Ortega says he will. In a pre-dawn news conference held after the Sandinista-controlled Supreme Electoral Council declared Chamorro the victor, Ortega said, "I want to express to all Nicaraguans and all the world that the president and the government of Nicaragua will respect the election mandate."

Ortega, however, is actually only one of Nicaragua's nine ruling "comandantes." While Ortega has become the first among "equals," the Sandinistas still operate under a collective rule. Some of the more militant members of the ruling council have said they will never give up power.

More important, perhaps, is what the Nicaraguan military and powerful internal security police will do. Both the military and police owe their loyalty to the Sandinista Party, not the government.

Recently, a high-ranking officer of the internal security police was interviewed by Western reporters. A former nun who left the convent 15 years ago to join the revolution, she initially dismissed the idea that the people could possibly turn their backs on the Sandinistas. But pressed further, she said that should the Sandinistas lose, the police — and by inference the army — would not be loyal to the new government.

"Our loyalty is to the revolution, not to politicians," she said. "We will always remain loyal to the revolution."

This sentiment will likely be found throughout the ranks of the army's officer corps and the leadership of the police. It is unclear, though, what it will mean in practical terms after April 24.

More important, perhaps, is whether Chamorro and the UNO will be able to effectively rule a country in as bad a shape as Nicaragua is in.

The military and police owe their loyalty to the Sandinista Party.

Chamorro's National Opposition Union, known by its Spanish acronym UNO, is actually a disparate, fractious coalition of 14 small political parties. They range from three different communist parties on the left to ultra conservatives on the right. The only thing they have in common is their opposition to the Sandinistas.

At times during the campaign, Chamorro was only barely able to hold the coalition together. Now that she has been elected, this may prove even more difficult. Many, even in her own party, do not believe Chamorro is personally up to the task.

Violeta Barrios de Chamorro — "Dona Violeta" to everyone from her family to her most ardent political opponents — is a gray-haired widow of 60. She is not in the best of health. She has had surgery on her arthritic knees; and she was injured in a fall in December. She campaigned in a wheelchair in a great deal of pain.

More than her health, many doubt she has the ability to hold together her backers and to rebuild her country.

Even after months of campaigning, Chamorro had difficulty making basic campaign speeches. In interviews, she was never really able to articulate exactly what her program was beyond ending the hated military draft and "making things better."

ELLEN GOODMAN

America says: Let us entertain you

BOSTON — My friend has been overseas and wants to know what's happening at home. She is coming back this summer and has heard reports of a strange nothingness.

I don't want her to think she is returning to some historic backwater. So I write cheerfully that gee, lots has been going on here. I offer to trade headlines.

In Prague, she writes, some citizens attacked a statue of Lenin. In Philadelphia, I counter, they took down the statue of "Rocky" from the front of the art museum.

In Bucharest, she reminds me, they have purged the Ceausescus. In New York, I tell her, they have deposed Leona from her reign in the hotels.

The talk of Red Square, she reports, is whether Gorbys can hang on to power. The talk of Manhattan, I report, is whether Ivana can hang on to Donald.

Our headline match goes on and I am losing. In South Africa, Nelson Mandela has come back from prison. In Los Angeles, Drew Barrymore has made a comeback from drug addiction. In Nicaragua, Danny has been replaced by Violeta. At the "Today" show, Jane has been replaced by Deborah.

There are hints of a new generation emerging from the shadows of the old in hidebound Bulgaria, she writes. There are rumors that the younger Jacksons, Michael and Janet, are at odds with their father in money-bound California, I retort.

In Germany, every citizen is talking about reunification. In America, I reply, they want to know who split first and whether there was a younger woman involved.

I am afraid this exchange may alarm my friend. She has been working in places where ideas are taken seriously. Ordinary people stay up late arguing about the structure of a new government. Journalists are giddy with the notion that they can actually now report what is going on in government.

I don't want her to think that the New World is aging while the rest of the world is born anew. Nor do I believe that America is the exporter of all this democracy, the distant manufacturer of revolution. So I search for other news. Since you've been home, I add, we've invented a fat-free ice cream and introduced "New Kids on the Block."

At this low point in our correspondence, it occurs to me that in some perverse way, trivial pursuit has become the serious pursuit of our country. Once we were told that the business of America was business. Now our business is escapism.

Entertainment is our most important product. Were Dustin Hoffman to remake "The Graduate" someone would tell him a new password to success. Not "plasties" but "videos."

At home, free enterprise means 50 cable stations and a remote selector. In Los Angeles, you can't tell the local news from the gossip unless there's live footage. People who care about the down and out insist they can't sell an issue anymore without a star. And when our kids are asked who their heroes are, actors, musicians and athletes top the charts.

Across the world, people look to America, not for leadership or enlightenment, but for a good time. In the late 18th century Americans inspired the French hit credo: "liberty, equality, fraternity." In the late 20th century, we inspire the French with a hit movie: "sex, lies, and videotape."

Japan sends us cars. We send them baseball and theme parks. In Singapore, audiences are flocking to "Honey I Shrank the Kids." In Hungary, the new capitalists sign joint ventures...to distribute films. They do "Dallas" in Paris.

Is it any wonder that it becomes harder and harder to separate news from gossip, the serious from the frivolous, Rob Lowe from Lee Iacocca, Trump the Airline from Trump the Divorce? We have become the paid comic, the hired storyteller, the world's great escapists. The new slogan of the American Way is: Let us entertain you.

So, I write my friend, come on home. A playwright became president of Czechoslovakia. But an actor became President of the United States. Tens of thousands fill a stadium to hear Mandela. That's just opening night for Janet Jackson.

There's more acid in the rain and more homeless on the streets since you left. The stock market is itchy and the kids can't read. Nobody's paying much attention. But what the heck.

We can always check out the videos.

The talk of Manhattan, I report, is whether Ivana can hang on to Donald.

FAA training plane used as luxury limo

WASHINGTON — Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner prefers his personal transportation to be first class. The Transportation Department has a luxurious Gulfstream G-IV jet that Skinner uses as if it were the family car.

The G-IV, registered to the Federal Aviation Administration, is supposed to be used primarily for training government flight safety inspectors and to carry federal accident investigators to crash sites. But FAA records show Skinner uses the plane frequently to squire around bureaucrats, members of Congress and their spouses on such urgent business as trips to the Paris Air Show.

At the same time, the FAA inspectors who are supposed to test commercial pilots are being allowed to delay their refresher courses because there aren't enough planes for training.

The case of the G-IV shows that the FAA may deserve the hammering it is getting over poor monitoring of air safety and pilot training. Government auditors have complained that planes such as the G-IV are too costly to be used as air taxis, especially when they are needed for training and especially when commercial air travel would be cheaper.

The FAA has a staff of inspectors who are supposed to be trained on the type of aircraft used by the pilots they test, and the inspectors have to take periodic refresher courses. But federal investigators have discovered that the inspectors were being granted waivers on those refresher courses. In part because there weren't enough planes available for training.

The FAA has promised to quit granting the waivers, but the waste of money using training planes to chauffeur dignitaries goes on. Our sources have raised particular concerns about Skinner's use of the G-IV. It is equipped with advanced computerized controls known as glass cockpit technology, now being used in a growing number of commercial jets. And not enough FAA inspectors are trained on those controls.

The G-IV has other features that make it attractive transportation — plush carpeting, lounge chairs, private telephones, a bar, a stereo and a television with VCR. The Transportation Department claims the jet was designed for corporate comforts and the frills were thrown in free to the government by Gulfstream. The department bought the G-IV from Gulfstream last spring, telling Congress that it was needed for training and shuttling investigators to crash sites.

Records obtained by our associate Scott Sleek show that training is not the only function of the plane.

In June, it carried Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., Rep. Bill Clinger, R-Pa., Clinger's wife and several congressional staffers to the Paris Air Show.

In May, Skinner took Rep. Hank Brown, D-Colo., to Denver so they could look at an airport project.

Last summer, Skinner took Reps. William Lehman, D-Fla., Daniel Akaka, D-Hawaii, George Miller, D-Calif., and Marty Russo, D-Ill., to London to study airport security. Wives and staffers also went along.

Don't look for any congressional committee to crack down on Skinner's joy rides. The Transportation Department purchased the G-IV with the blessing of committees chaired by Lehman and Lautenberg who have both enjoyed Skinner's friendly skies.

Skinner uses the plane frequently to squire around bureaucrats, members of Congress and their spouses.

Scenic Improvement Board to meet

SANFORD — The Sanford Scenic Improvement Board will meet tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the city commission conference room in city hall. The board will discuss the installation of new restrooms at Park on Park, the Trash Bash city cleanup program, planting flowers and trees on Persimmon Avenue, and other topics.

Longwood woman named to committee

LONGWOOD — Ingrid McCollum of Longwood has been named to the Central Florida Regional Coordinating Committee of the Governor's Conference on Library and Information Services. She is among 11 people named to the committee last week. The chairman of the regional committee is Tom Reitz, dean of library services at Seminole Community College. Through regional committees, the Governor's Conference hopes to make recommendations for the July 1991 White House Conference of library activities.

Billboard moratorium continues

LONGWOOD — No new billboards will loom over Longwood streets as commissioners last night voted unanimously to continue a moratorium on issuing building permits for these signs.

A public hearing on the billboards is scheduled for March 19. Longwood is in the process of amending city codes which regulate signage, including trailer, point-of-sale, banners, real estate, vehicle, construction, and outdoor advertising signs. The moratorium was originally placed on new billboard construction Jan. 29. It will be enforced until the city commission accepts or rejects the city codes.

but the outcome of those negotiations will not be affected by this measure.

"This proposal is for mechanization only, and has nothing to do with pay raises. If this is approved, we will go on line next year, and the system will pay for itself in just a few years," Rader said.

He said delivery would be faster and more accurate.

Sanford resident Betsy Nelson Webster doubted delivery would improve. "I don't think we'll get better service. I'm against this."

If released by the governing board, the plan would still need final approval from the Postal Rate Commission. If approved by the commission, it would become the 15th rate change since the 2-cent stamp became compulsory in 1885.

The commission has 10 months to reach a decision. The Postal Service has said it would like the new rate structure to take effect in February 1991.

The last increase was March 1988 when the price of a first-class stamp jumped from 22 cents to 26 cents.

Postal officials said rates must be "periodically adjusted."

Rader said reduced operating costs from mechanization would hold down future postage hikes.

The Postal Service underwent a corporate-like reorganization in 1980 and now functions as an independent government agency supported by the sale of its service, not federal tax revenue.

Although it reported a $404 million surplus for the first quarter of 1990, the Postal Service said increased benefits and wages and the assumption from the federal government of some retiree health and cost-of-living packages will create a loss in fiscal 1990 of between $1.4 billion and $1.6 billion.

In addition to rate hikes, the plan calls for discounts for bar codes for first- and third-class postage, Express Mail and some priority mail, insurance coverage on C.O.D. and insured mail would jump from $500 to $600. Vincent Sombrotto, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said even if the cost of mailing a letter increases to 30 cents, Americans will get better postal service for their money than that provided in other countries.

"For 25 cents — or even 30 cents — you can walk down to the corner, drop a letter in a metal mailbox, and within a few days it arrives at the home of a friend, relative or business associate hundreds or even thousands of miles away," said Sombrotto. "Tell me what other service you can get in this country, or any other country for 30 cents."

Assistant Postmaster General Deborah Bowler said the rate hike would mean the average household would spend about $10 more for postage each year.

The rate increase request has prompted new calls for a privatization of the Postal Service, an idea advocated by such conservative organizations as the Heritage Foundation and the Cato Institute.

Sombrotto argued such a move would "be the biggest sham ever put on the American people."

Sanford resident, Cora Smith, resigned herself to the proposed increase. "Whatever they decide, we'll just have to pay," she said.

Tests

students learn. "We are not accomplishing what we thought we would," Castor said recently of the State Student Assessment Test, which was implemented in 1977.

Castor said she plans to have a bill to present to the Legislature that will reduce standardized testing statewide.

"We will in its place be recommending a new accountability system to report throughout Florida on the status of student performance," she said.

According to Winger, there is constant monitoring at the school level of the skills which are assessed by the tests.

"We do not limit ourselves to teaching what is on the test," he said, "but we make sure that those skills are being learned."

Winger said that the move is on to change the testing from assessment to achievement tests.

An achievement test gives students a sampling of questions that vary in difficulty from the simplest to the most difficult while assessment tests only check that a student can perform the most minimum skills.

The big wave of standardized testing began in the mid-1970s, when Florida began a return to the so-called "three Rs" of education to boost learning. But Castor and other officials now say there has been so much concentration on learning basic skills that other learning has fallen by the wayside.

"We're dumbing down the curriculum," Castor said. "We don't teach beyond the test. What we ought to be doing is testing higher order skills and higher achievement."

The standardized tests include the State Student Assessment Test, a national standardized test and a county-administered test of essential skills for elementary and secondary school students.

Only third-, fifth- and eighth-grade students take the state assessment test, given each October. Tenth-graders take the test each spring and must pass it in order to graduate from high school.

While not all tests would be eliminated under Castor's proposal, some of them will be cut back to allow concentration on other aspects of learning. Although the back-to-basics approach is still used, some students are taking two or three standardized tests each year. Experts say that's too much.

Winger said that he does not feel that Castor is planning to eliminate any tests, rather she is hoping to test more of the higher level skills.

"We have more tests when this is all said and done," he said.

For now, Winger does not predict any changes in how things are done in Seminole County. According to Winger the district will continue to supplement the state-mandated testing levels with tests of their own at other grade levels.

"We have to wait and see what they decide," he said. "We will likely choose the same test they do to test the mandated skills, but we will supplement it with tests in other grades."

Breathalyzer: It relies on alcohol in the breath as an indication of alcohol in the blood.

Seminole County Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Riggins, who administers that department's DUI enforcement and testing, and who is certified to calibrate the test machines, said there's nothing new about the Intoxilizer 5000. This type of machine had been used here by Riggins for five years.

It is also the type of breath test machine used by Sanford and Lake Mary police, and many other agencies in the state and nation. The Intoxilizer 5000, Riggins said, has been used nationwide for many years and has withstood many court challenges, including some in Florida.

"It is accepted by the medical and scientific community and it (Intoxilizer 5000 breath test for alcohol blood level) have been accepted as evidence for court cases throughout the country."

"It has held up very well to challenges. You can't dispense entirely with inaccuracies. There are inherent problems with any mechanical device. It exceed all state requirements many fold," Riggins said of the tester.

He said that the state has just received a grant to purchase about 270 Intoxilizer 5000 for police stations that haven't been able to buy their own.

"Although this machine is fairly accurate, there's one inherent problem," he said. "In Florida, it's illegal to have too much alcohol in your blood. Not in your breath... in your blood."

Riggins said even testing blood for alcohol levels is not always accurate and the Intoxilizer 5000 by analyzing breath gives a good indication of alcohol blood levels.

E.C. Hartwig, chief of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services' office of laboratory services, said the 18 different breath-testing machines now in use statewide have created an "administrative nightmare," but the Intoxilizer will change all that.

A $450,000 federal Department of Transportation grant was used to purchase the first 90 Intoxilizers, and another 90 are to be delivered by April.

Other specialty tags available include those commemorating the Challenger shuttle, major state colleges and universities, veterans, medal of honor recipients and prisoners of war. Medal of honor and POW tags are reserved for those who can show verification they received the medal or were confined by enemy forces.

Sanford resident, Cora Smith, resigned herself to the proposed increase. "Whatever they decide, we'll just have to pay," she said.

Mall

Simon & Associates delay in seeking annexation of the unincorporated site due east of Interstate 4 and south of State Road 46 into the city until the proposal is approved by the city. Simon officials denied any delays and said the annexation would occur April 9 before final approval of the tax-financing road plan.

Commissioner Bob Thomas said the mall would attract development to the city's western areas which would increase tax revenue to the city. "I think what we stand to gain is the whole thing," Thomas said. "McClanahan's opposition" reminds me of the time when farmers had a grip on things here so nothing could come here. Any year now, Sanford stands to crumble unless we do something."

"It was hard to see the mall's growth would be unbelievable," said commissioner Lon Howard. "Yes, we're going to give away $6 million, but look what we're going to have in 10 years."

Mayor Betty Smith supported the proposal, saying there would be only a positive impact to city revenues. Commissioner Herbert "Whitey" Eckstein said he supported the proposal, saying it represented a fair compromise of using taxes paid by the mall for public improvements for the mall and the community.

Commissioners listened to the proposal Monday, but will take no formal action until March 12. Seminole County commissioners must also approve the proposed tax district to include only the 214-acre mall site because in a charter county, county commissioners must grant permission to city commissioners to create the district.

Under the proposal, no more than one half of the city and county property taxes generated by the proposed 1.2 million square foot mall would go to pay back $6,234,000 in bonds which would be sold to make road improvements caused by traffic going to the mall.

The road improvements would include widening SR 46 to six lanes between I-4 and County Road 15, widening Rinehart Road to six lanes and building a new road to the mall from Airport Boulevard.

To pay for the road and other improvements, Simon proposed to sell bonds that would be paid off within 14 years. The bonds would be repaid by creating a "tax increment finance district" to include only the 214-acre mall site and to divert a portion of the property taxes generated by the new mall to pay back the bonds.

At the end of 14 years, the TIP district would be dissolved and 100 percent of the taxes would be paid to the city and county. School and other taxes would be unaffected by the TIP district.

The TIP district would be under total control of the city, but the city would not be liable for repayment of the bonds should the tax revenues fall below expectations, city attorney Bill Colbert said.

More flag-burning charges dropped

WASHINGTON — The new federal law banning flag desecration was dealt a second straight setback when a federal judge threw out charges against three men accused of torching American flags on the U.S. Capitol steps.

U.S. District Judge June Green dismissed the case Monday against Dread Scott, Dave Blalock and Shawn Eichman, each charged with violating the Flag Protection Act of 1989. The three claimed the law is unconstitutional. Two weeks ago, a federal judge in Seattle dismissed charges against four people arrested for burning American flags moments after the law took effect.

Moose attacks, but musher races on

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — A moose attacked a sled dog team on the Iditarod trail, but the musher shot the moose and raced on in the marathon trek across the Alaska wilderness with the front-runners 274 miles from the Anchorage start Tuesday in the 1,161-mile race to Nome.

Iditarod race officials had a scare Monday when two passing pilots reported seeing a moose standing tangled in the lines of a musher's dog team, and swirling volcanic ash from a new eruption of Redoubt Volcano impeded rescuers from reaching the scene 175 miles from the Anchorage starting line.

But Dr. Lorren Weaver, 50, shot and killed the moose that invaded his 18-dog team and limped into the next checkpoint at Finger Lake with an injured dog and damaged gear, but otherwise OK and intent on continuing the adventurous race.

Oklahoma model crowned Mrs. America

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Jennifer Johnson, a 5-foot-9 model from Edmond, Okla., captured the Mrs. America crown Monday in competition against wives and mothers from all 50 states. Johnson, 28, the mother of two boys, is married to a lawyer.

The crowning of Mrs. America in the showroom of the Flamingo Hilton on the Las Vegas Strip was taped for national television Monday hosted by Florence Henderson and Peter Marshall. It is to be aired in three to four weeks.

Iguana the iguana enjoys TV, grapes

BATON ROUGE — Iguana, the lost iguana, is resting comfortably at Frankie Wynn's house, snacking on grapes and enjoying a bit of television. "He's a strange-looking dude," Wynn says of the 3-foot reptile who appeared on his patio a week ago. "He's green and black, but by no means is he cute."

Wynn says Iguana, so named because the family does not want to get too attached to the creature, appeared on his patio as he was carrying a ladder to clean out some gutters. He captured the iguana, put it in a cage, and has been working on domesticating it. "Since then, we've been petting him, handling him. He's eating grapes and watching TV right now. He usually likes a little spinach salad before his grapes."

Fast-food firms hit on nutrition pact

WASHINGTON — Four major fast-food companies are defying an agreement with eight states to provide consumers with nutritional information at all outlets, the Center for Science in the Public Interest claimed Monday, citing McDonald's, Burger King, Kentucky Fried Chicken and Wendy's in California, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, New Mexico, New York, Texas and Virginia.

Senate debates revised legislation for cleaner air

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate opened debate on compromise clean air legislation amid charges by state and local officials the bill would leave millions of Americans choking on smog and toxic emissions well into the next century.

As Senate leaders formally introduced a bipartisan compromise worked out with the Bush administration, the state and local officials vowed Monday to lobby for "absolutely critical" amendments to toughen the legislation, particularly on automobile emissions and pollution from medium-sized factories.

At a news conference with dissident senators, officials from 12 states said Senate leaders compromised too much in satisfying administration concerns about how much the legislation would cost industry.

The compromise, which addresses urban smog, acid rain and cancer-causing chemical emissions from industry, was announced last week after 22 days of private negotiations.

The talks were triggered by a veto threat from President Bush, who said the initial bill drawn up by the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee would cost twice as much as his plan for little additional benefit.

While Bush promised clean air for every American by the year 2000 when he introduced his proposal last year, the state officials said the compromise has so many loopholes that smog is likely to persist well into the next century in dozens of the 101 cities now violating federal health standards.

And, they argued, without firm federal policies to ensure uniform pollution control requirements nationwide, states that insist on tough emission limits would wind up economic losers as industries move to states with weaker laws.

"The proposed 'compromise' is a bad deal for the American people," said James Lent, executive officer of the South Coast Air Quality Management Board, which sets air pollution policy for the Los Angeles area.

"It compromises public health. It compromises fairness and equity between the states. It even compromises the future of our children," he said.

No quick freedom for hostages

Iranian fundamentalist leaders say no deal yet

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Ranking pro-Iranian fundamentalist figures do not expect an imminent release of the Western hostages believed held by Tehran's religious allies in Lebanon, the leading An-Nahar newspaper said Tuesday.

Unidentified fundamentalist officials close to Iranian circles categorized reported diplomatic efforts recently aimed at freeing some of the 18 Western hostages "as exploratory," An-Nahar said.

"There is some readiness in the Iranian capital to move the issue of the hostages," An-Nahar said. "But a release of the captives is not expected soon."

The officials "confirmed" denials by the White House that Washington has not engaged in recent clandestine efforts to free the captives, An-Nahar said.

"The mechanism to free the hostages is not available," An-Nahar quoted the officials as saying.

"The Iranians would prefer direct contacts with Washington concerning the hostages," An-Nahar quoted an unnamed fundamentalist source as saying.

Experts in Iranian affairs told United Press International Tuesday that they believed Tehran was behind the present revival of the hostage issue.

"The Iranians moved the card of the hostages gambling on opening the file of the strained relations with the Americans," said an independent expert who requested anonymity.

Tehran, now led by pragmatic leader Hashemi Rafsanjani, was seeking to improve its relations with the West, notably the United States, the experts said. Of the 18 Western hostages being held by various pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem groups, eight are Americans.

However, a Tehran Times editorial said Tuesday the hostage issue should be solved apart from the resumption of normalized relations between Iran and the United States because Tehran has no involvement in hostage taking, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Soviet Communists trounced by pro-democracy candidates

United Press International

MOSCOW — Pro-democracy candidates who challenged the Communist Party in regional elections were poised to win in the nation's second- and third-largest cities, according to preliminary results released by opposition groups.

The official news agency Tass said Monday that maverick politician Boris Yeltsin easily won a seat in the Russian Parliament, and Yeltsin said he would seek the republic's presidency as the next step in his remarkable rebound from political disgrace.

About two years ago, Yeltsin was fired as Moscow party boss and kicked out of the ruling Politburo for contending President Mikhail Gorbachev's perestroika reforms were moving too slowly. Parliament will select the president of the republic.

Tass also reported that in special runoff elections Sunday, Lithuania's pro-independence movement overwhelmingly gained control of the Baltic republic's Parliament, setting up a confrontation with Moscow over secession.

The Sajudis nationalists won 18 more seats, giving them 88 of the 141 in the republican Parliament, Tass said. The first 70 Sajudis candidates were elected Feb. 24. A total of 116 of

Yeltsin eyes presidency

United Press International

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Maverick Soviet politician Boris Yeltsin, having easily won a seat in Parliament, expressed a willingness to seek the presidency of the Russian Republic.

"I have promised my voters not to say no if I'm suggested (as a presidential candidate)," Yeltsin told reporters Monday after his arrival in Stockholm on a book-promotion tour.

Earlier, on a stopover in Amsterdam, Netherlands, Yeltsin said the result of Sunday's elections in the three largest Soviet republics would give added impetus to the reforms begun by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

"The vote has made it possible to strengthen reforms and permit new measures to be taken," Yeltsin said of the elections, in which democratic candidates trounced orthodox communists in many districts.

"I will advise (Gorbachev) to push forward faster and to propose a tax and property reform to give perestroika a legal framework," Yeltsin said.

the 141 legislative seats have been filled. The remainder will be chosen Wednesday and Thursday.

Although Tass said official results of Sunday's regional parliament and city council elections in the Russian Republic, the Ukraine and Byelorussia will not be released immediately, early returns from opposition groups showed democratic bloc candidates leading.

The elections were the second stage of President Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms. In the first stage, a national Parliament was elected in multi-candidate balloting, but the second phase penetrates the regional communist strongholds that Gorbachev has said are blocking his economic reforms.

The elections in the three republics accounting for nearly three-fourths of the Soviet Union's 290 million population offered voters an array of candidates ranging from Russian nationalists, orthodox communists and radical reformers. In some places, as many as 20 candidates vied for one spot.

At stake were 1,068 seats in the Russian Parliament, 450 places for the Ukrainian

First, bus broke down and then...

UPI report

MOUNT PLEASANT — If they could have seen into the future, 45 Central Michigan University students might have decided to skip a spring break trip to the Gulf of Mexico.

The first omen that things weren't going right came last Friday when their departure from Mount Pleasant was delayed five hours by an ailing bus, said Jim Moldane, president of Campus Beach Club, the Denver-based charter agency that arranged the trip.

Late Friday, the bus slid across an Indiana highway and rolled onto its side, leaving 37 travelers with minor injuries. At that point, 19 of the students decided to abandon their $300 trip to South Padre Island, Texas. They accepted a refund and free bus ride home.

Undaunted, the rest of the group spent the night in a church basement Red Cross shelter. A replacement bus arrived six hours late and the trip resumed at 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

At 4:30 a.m. Sunday, two wheels fell off the bus in Cullman, Ala. The bus driver managed to control the bus and pull it over to the side of the road without injury to any of the passengers.

Moldane offered a free bus ride home with full refund or a bus ride to South Padre Island with a 50 percent refund. About 21 students continued on the journey with an extra $150 spending money. Five others decided to complete the trip on an airplane.

"It is not unusual for charter buses to break down, but for it to happen after an accident ... that's never happened to us before," Moldane said.

Bipartisan AIDS disaster relief unveiled

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Warning that the AIDS epidemic is not over, Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, today proposed legislation providing $500 million in "disaster relief" for victims of the disease.

Half the money would go to the 13 cities hardest hit by acquired immune deficiency syndrome, with the rest distributed among the states so they can develop programs to care for victims of the epidemic.

The hard-hit areas, accounting for 60 percent of U.S. AIDS cases, are New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Houston, Washington, Newark, N.J., Chicago, Miami, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Dallas, Boston, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

"In terms of pain, suffering and costs, AIDS is as severe a disaster as any earthquake, hurricane or drought," Kennedy said in remarks prepared for delivery at a news conference that was to be attended by actress Elizabeth Taylor, founding chairwoman of the Foundation for AIDS Research.

"America responded within days to the California earthquake. We have pledged tens of billions to rescue the savings and loan industry. AIDS is a comparable disaster and we need to respond accordingly," Kennedy said.

The sponsors said the bill would provide fast relief for city health systems crumbling under the weight of the epidemic, as well as prepare smaller towns and rural areas, where the rate of increase in AIDS cases is now the greatest.

"The AIDS emergency is not behind us — HIV (the AIDS virus) remains a great threat to communities across the nation," Kennedy said.

"By 1991, 80 percent of new AIDS cases will be diagnosed outside New York and California."

Record shad taken on St. John's

For the third time this year, the state record for the American shad has fallen on the St. John's River.

Dankert hooked into the large shad on Feb. 15 while fishing with a shad dart. The fish measured 22.75 inches long and had a girth of 14 inches.

SCC softball, baseball teams try to end losing ways

By DEAN SMITH
Herald sports writer

COCOA — Seminole Community College failed in its bid to repeat as champion in the Brevard Community College Softball Invitational at Cocoa over the weekend, being forced to settle for a tie for 11th.

The lack of hitting in recent games has caused the Raiders' record fall to 13-12 on the season and 3-3 in the Mid-Florida Conference.

SCC will attempt to rebound from the recent slide today when it hosts conference foe Santa Fe Community College from Gainesville in a doubleheader set for 3 p.m. at the Raider softball field located behind the new Continuing Education building.

The Raiders, who dropped a pair of conference games to Florida Community College at Jacksonville on Friday, couldn't score a run on just eight hits in its first two games of pool play on Saturday and were on the verge of not making the main tournament draw on Sunday.

SCC responded by scoring four runs in the top of the seventh, three on Christy Blankenship's home run, to defeat Daytona 9-8. Then they scored two runs in the fifth inning to stop Miami-Dade Community College-South 6-4 and advance to the main draw.

But the Raiders could not keep up the momentum and dropped a 10-1 decision to the defending national champion Timberwolves of Lake City, eliminating SCC from the tournament. Lake City broke open a 3-0 game with two runs in the fifth inning and five runs in the sixth.

The leading hitters for SCC were Denise Howell (5-for-13), All-American Kim King (8-for-18), Lake Howell graduate Ginger York and Seminole graduate Bobbie Osborne (both 5-for-13) and Becky Arrowood (4-for-15 with a triple).

SCC BASEBALL TEAM AT HOME
The SCC baseball team begins an extended home stand today as the Raiders try to end a nine-game losing streak and make a run at a spot in the state tournament in May.

SCC, 1-14 overall and 1-6 in the Mid-Florida Conference, will play 11 of its next 13 games at home, starting with Brevard Community College today. Game time is set for 3 p.m. at Raider Field.

The Raiders will also play at home on Wednesday against King College of Tennessee and Thursday against conference foe Santa Fe Community College from Gainesville. Both games will start at 3 p.m.

Rummel rallies for win

From staff reports

SANFORD — Ken Rummel Chevrolet scored three runs with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning to win its fourth straight game and hand Concrete Concepts its second straight loss 4-3 in Sanford Recreation Monday Night Softball League action at Chase Park.

In the other games, Ace Hardware of Volusia routed Allman & Waddles 12-0 while Stromberg-Carlson scored eight runs in the top of the seventh inning to post a 9-4 triumph over Cabinet Aire.

After Monday night's play, the Tim Raines Connection now has a 1 1/2-game lead with a perfect 6-0 mark. Concrete Concepts is at 5-2, Ken Rummel and Ace Hardware at 4-3, Cabinet Aire at 3-4, Stromberg-Carlson 2-5 and Allman & Waddles 0-7.

Next week's schedule has Concrete Concepts taking on Ace Hardware at 8:30 p.m., Ken Rummel trying to knock off TRC at 7:30 p.m. and Allman & Waddles facing Stromberg-Carlson at 7:30 p.m. Cabinet Aire has the week off.

Concrete Concepts scored two runs in the first inning and one run in the third to take a 3-0 lead in its attempt to bounce back from last week's loss to TRC. Ken Rummel picked up a run in the fourth but Concrete still held a 3-1 lead entering the bottom of the seventh.

With one out, Chuck Lambert and Jason Miller singled before Todd Christensen forced Miller at second for the second out of the inning. Wilks then lined a triple to left-center, scoring Lambert and Miller to tie the score. Chris Nickle drew a walk and Lamb ended the game with an RBI single to left.

Contributing to the Rummel offense were Lambert and Christensen (two singles and one run scored each), Nickle, Lamb and Miller (two singles each), Wilks (triple, run scored), Ken Oswald (single, run scored) and Cary Keefer and David Goldstick (one single each).

Providing the offense for Concrete Concepts, which was limited to five hits, were Jack Lewis (triple, run scored), Robby Gallo, Mike Hilgar, Will Bland and Steve Gray (one single each) and Walt Mulligan and Dusty Harmon (one run scored each).

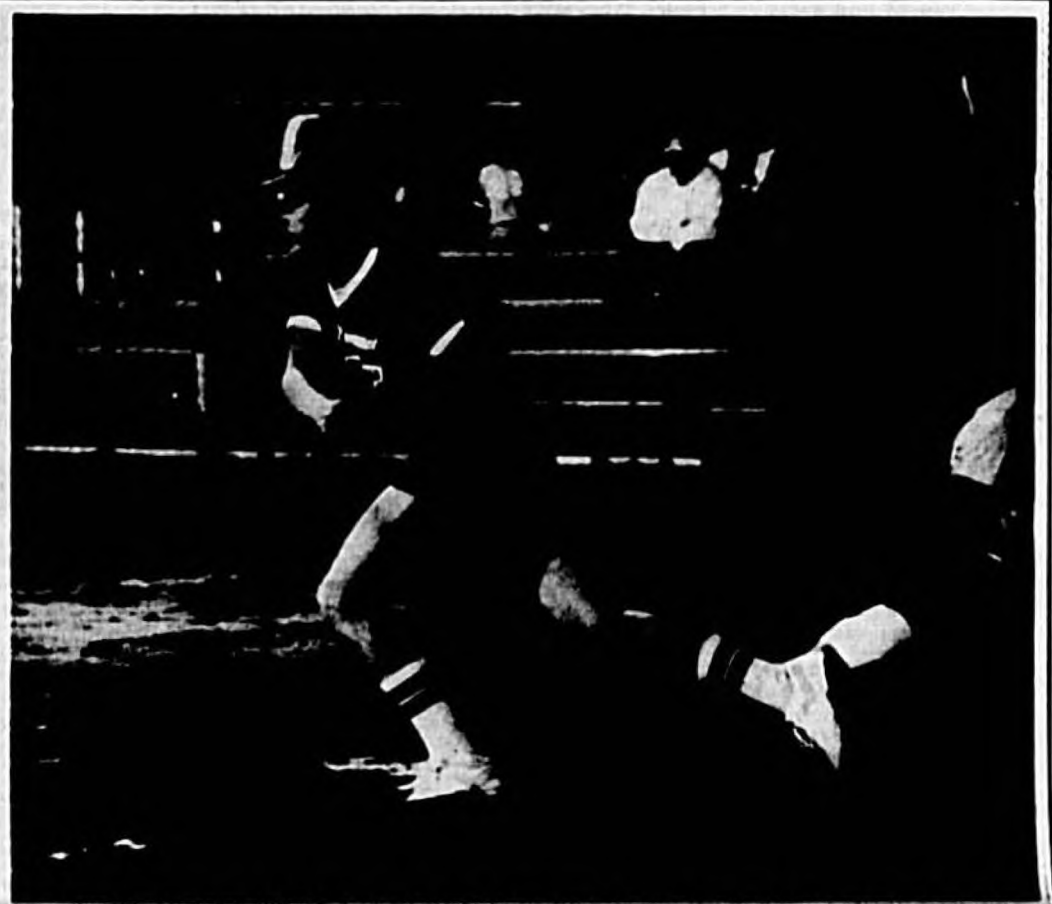

Ace Hardware had little trouble with Allman & Waddles as they collected nine hits, five walks and four errors on offense while limiting Allman to only three singles on defense. After scoring one run in the first inning, Ace added five runs in the second and three in both the third and fourth to end the game by the mercy rule.

Ace was led by Jeff Aten (three singles, run scored), Carl Lee (triple, single, two runs scored), Manny Silvia (single, two runs scored), Mark Aten and Rick Nelson (one single and one run scored each), Kevin Black (single), John Boggs (two runs scored) and Tom Burnham, Jeff Whittemore and Rick Bryant (one run scored each).

Late basket by Rice helps Heat past Jazz

United Press International

MIAMI - Rookie Glen Rice hit a 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer to give Miami a dramatic 105-104 win over Utah Monday night.

Rice's basket capped a 17-7 rally in the closing minutes and ended Utah's seven-game winning streak.

The win over the Midwest Division-leading Jazz was Miami's second over a first-place team in the span of a week. The Heat defeated New York on Feb. 26.

The Heat overcame an all-star effort by Jazz forward Karl Malone. Malone, who missed last month's All-Star game in Miami due to injuries, scored 32 points, hit 13 of 19 shots and had 15 rebounds.

Utah point guard John Stockton had 21 points, but missed his final shot, a drive with eight seconds remaining that would have given Utah a three-point lead.

Rice grabbed the rebound, but Scott Haffner missed a 20-footer that was rebounded by Miami guard Sherman Douglas. Douglas found Rice at the top of the key for the game-winner.

The basket capped a desperate rally. The Heat lost a 75-61 lead in the third quarter and fell behind Utah early in the final period.

Utah guard Darrell Griffith hit three straight baskets to finish a 13-0 run that put the Jazz ahead 97-88 with 5:30 remaining.

The Heat led for most of the game. Miami took a 28-25 lead after the first quarter and stretched to 57-48 at the half.

Miami was led by Seikaly's 25 points. Edwards added 24 points and Douglas had 22 points and 14 assists.

In other NBA action on Monday night, New Jersey clipped Sacramento 128-111; Philadelphia knocked off the Los Angeles Clippers 128-105; Houston nipped San Antonio 109-105; and Golden State ran over Charlotte 138-117.

Dobras helps USF win first Sun Belt crown

United Press International

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. - Radenko Dobras scored 24 points Monday night, including a key jumper and four free throws in the final two minutes, to lead South Florida to an 81-74 win over North Carolina-Charlotte for the Sun Belt Conference Tournament championship.

The victory climaxed a dramatic turnaround season for the 20-10 South Florida Bulls, who earned their first conference title and an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

Dobras, a 6-7 sophomore from Yugoslavia, was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Henry Williams scored 25 points to lead UNCC, which fell to 10-14 on the year.

After battling to a 38 tie at the half, South Florida built a seven-point lead with four minutes left in the game. But Charlotte fought back, cashing in on several turnovers and free throws to narrow its deficit to one with 1:59 remaining.

Then Dobras answered with two free throws and a short jumper and Bobby Russell shook free for a layup to put South Florida ahead 73-66 with one minute left. The Bulls hit eight of nine free throws in the final minute to preserve the win.

Maryland will appeal stiff NCAA sanctions

United Press International

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - The president of the University of Maryland says the school will appeal the stiff NCAA sanctions imposed on the basketball program, saying the punishment is "more severe than our infractions warrant."

Reacting to "major violations" of its rules during Coach Bob Wade's three-year tenure at Maryland, the NCAA Monday placed the Terrapins basketball program on probation for three years and banned the team from postseason tournaments for the next two years.

University President William Kirwan said Maryland will appeal the sanctions to the 22-member NCAA Council, which has authority to reverse the punishment issued by the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

In addition to the ban from postseason tournaments, including the NCAA and MIT tournaments, during the 1990-1991 and 1991-92 seasons, the NCAA banned the Terrapins from live television broadcasts during the 1990-91 season, took away two scholarships and ordered the school to return $407,378 in earnings from the 1988 NCAA tournament for using ineligible players.

Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Gene Corrigan said Maryland will not be able to play in the 1990-91 ACC tournament because of the television ban.

Kirwan said "the university deeply regrets and is embarrassed by its violations of NCAA regulations," but he expressed "great disappointment at the severity of the penalties."

"Because we believe so strongly that the sanctions imposed are more severe than our infractions warrant, we intend to appeal several of the penalties," said Kirwan, without revealing specifics of the appeal.

The school has 15 days in which to file its appeal.

The NCAA Infractions Committee report released Monday cited Maryland for 13 separate rules violations during Wade's tenure, which ended with Wade's forced resignation.

Air not only thing clouded at Yalta Conference

DEAR ABBY: I laughed when I read your article dealing with the Yalta Conference and the alleged strong body odor of Joseph Stalin. How could anybody know who was responsible for the stench under those circumstances?

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Being fluent in Russian, I was there with a team of interpreters from the U.S. Navy, and I can verify that the accommodations, as cleanliness was concerned, left a lot to be desired.

What we Americans missed the most were showers and bathrooms. (Mr. Churchill called Yalta "the worst choice in the world — good for typhus and lice which thrive in those parts.") He was right.)

President Roosevelt was assigned the only private bathroom at Yalta. All the others had to go down to one of the minesweepers docked at the port in order to take a shower.

No comments were made regarding body odor, as that would have been most impolite and inappropriate in the diplomatic process.

However, if anything stank at Yalta, it was Stalin's word — which proved worthless.

ANDREW SAWCHUK
LA HABRA, CALIF.
DEAR MR. SAWCHUK: Thanks for the interesting history lesson from an eye (and nose) witness.

DEAR ABBY: Am I the only one who is bugged by this? I'm referring to kids from Little League, 4-H, Pee-Wee Hockey — you name it — setting up camp outside the local mall or supermarket panhandling for donations.

and when there's a benefit car wash, I usually line up. Perhaps I'm old-fashioned, but when kids expect a donation simply because they are wearing a band uniform and thrust a collection can under your nose — sometimes without even saying a word — I respectfully decline.

Abby, I realize it's not the kids' fault; they're just doing what their leaders and coaches tell them to do. Maybe this practice would be less widespread, however, if adults behind these kids knew there are more people out there like me who disclaim this practice. Are there?!

BUGGED
DEAR BUGGED: I see your point, and I agree with you. But times have changed; no parent in his or her right mind is going to allow his children to go unsupervised from door-to-door (except for their immediate neighbors) to sell cookies or to collect for any cause.

Dr. Thomas Yandell of Lake Mary Chiropractic Clinic.

Arm And Shoulder Pain Can Signal Spinal Misalignment And Stress. Dr. T.F. Yandell of The Lake Mary Chiropractic Clinic, 902 E. Lake Mary Blvd., explains that arm and shoulder movement is taken for granted, that in fact, it is as involuntary as breathing. It is impossible to breathe without there being a continuous slight motion in the shoulder socket-joint which meets the upper arm. Bone, muscle, tendon, and ligament must work together in an intimate relationship to move the arm and shoulder with precision says Dr. Yandell. Bones give the arm its tensile strength. The limb is moved by skeletal muscles which may be attached directly to the bone or by tough connecting tendons. Ligaments prevent the bones from slipping apart at the joints. The bones themselves are rigid, but movement of the arm and shoulder becomes possible where two bones join. Most persons think of the shoulder joint as being one joint where the upper arm meets the collar bone. Actually, there are seven joints that form the shoulder complex and this composite of seven joints must move in harmony. Each joint is dependent upon the others and any problem in one of these joints affects all the others. According to Dr. Yandell, arm and shoulder pain can have a number of causes, but the large percentage of cases are caused by misalignment of one or more spinal bones (vertebrae), improper posture, spinal curvatures, occupational stresses, or injury to the spine. Dr. Yandell feels that it should be apparent to anyone that arm and shoulder pain may indicate a serious condition. But whether the problem is serious or not, the pain can become quite debilitating. Fortunately, the doctor of chiropractic is eminently qualified to correct arm and shoulder problems, better qualified than any other kind of doctor. Through thorough examination, Dr. Yandell can not only immediately relieve arm and shoulder pain, but also determine the underlying cause of the problem and correct it. Feel free to contact Dr. Yandell at 322-9300 to set up an appointment.

Rapid digestion is result of biology

DEAR DR. GOTT: About 30 to 45 minutes after every meal, my husband has a bowel movement. His father and an aunt on his father's side do this also, believing their meals "go right through them." Is there any logic to this?

DEAR READER: As food traverses the intestinal tract during the process of digestion, it stimulates rhythmic movements (peristalsis) of the bowel. This often produces an urge to defecate, which in some people, occurs with regularity after meals. Ordinarily, evacuations are limited to once or twice a day — probably as a result of training and daily habits.

However, some people have more frequent bowel movements; their intestines appear to be more "sensitive" or "irritable." This does not reflect an illness or poor health; it's simply another example of biologic variation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a routine physical examination, my husband was found to have a blood iron level of 228. How dangerous is this, and what are the complications and possible ways to correct the problem?

DEAR READER: Iron in the bloodstream is expressed as two values: total iron (normal 50 to 150 micrograms per deciliter) and iron-binding capacity (normal 250 to 400 micrograms per deciliter). The first value is self-explanatory. The second refers to the ability of certain blood proteins to bind with iron.

In the presence of iron deficiency, the total iron is reduced — but the binding capacity is elevated, indicating that blood proteins have less iron and, thus, a greater capacity to bind.

When excess iron exists in the body, the total iron is increased, but the binding capacity is reduced because the proteins, being saturated with the mineral, cannot absorb more.

Therefore, in answering your question, I'd have to know your husband's total iron and the binding capacity. It appears his total iron (228 micrograms/deciliter) is increased. This could be due to a variety of conditions, including hemochromatosis (excess body iron associated with tissue injury), repeated blood transfusions, excessive oral supplements of

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It's not hard to find an excuse for overbidding. Even though South had only 15 high-card points for his no-trump overall, when North invited game he became mesmerized by all his 10-spots. So he bid on. But what excuse did he have for misplaying the hand? In spite of East's opening one-spade bid, West led a heart. When East played the king, declarer could see that taking the ace would ensure two heart tricks. So he won the ace and then played queen of clubs. East took the ace and returned the heart seven. West played low, and dummy's heart 10 took the trick. Declarer next tried a spade from dummy, probably intending to let the eight ride, but East grabbed the ace to play his last heart. West quickly took three heart tricks to set the contract. Although it is a natural play to take the king of hearts with the ace at trick one, thus ensuring a second trick, declarer must suppress this instinct so he can destroy the opponents' communication. Let East win the heart king. Declarer plays the heart jack on the return. West can take the queen and clear the suit, but he has no entry to take further tricks. Declarer will force out the club ace and later play East for the jack of spades to make nine tricks and his contract. It is logical to play in this fashion, since it is quite likely that West is leading from a five-card suit, and even more likely that East has the missing aces plus the spade jack.

HOROSCOPE

YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 7, 1990

Several significant successes could be in the offing for you in the year ahead. Others will view your accomplishments as difficult, but to you they'll be labors of love.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to keep pace with your responsibilities and duties today, because if you attempt to sweep anything under the rug, they will be twice as hard to do later. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Insincerity will be instantly detected today and could result in your being labeled a shallow person. If you don't find anything worth praising in another, it's best to say nothing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Just because you think big today does not mean the results will be proportionate. If you hope to achieve noteworthy successes, you're going to have to earn them through effort and application.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of viewing matters realistically today, you might be inclined to color the facts to suit your expectations. Self-deception could prove to be a formula for disappointment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The world doesn't owe you a free ride today even though it might be hard to convince you otherwise. Don't expect more than you've earned or deserve.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be mindful of your behavior today or else you may be overly attentive to someone who doesn't deserve it while ignoring someone who does.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A commitment you've made which is of little importance to you is quite significant to the person to whom you've made this special promise. Be sure to honor it today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pretending to be something other than what you actually are will make a poor impression on your friends today. The world will love you more if you relax and be your old sweet self.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People are seldom all that we would like them to be. Try not to be too disappointed today if someone with whom you're very fond doesn't fulfill your expectations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Think before you speak today or else you might experience one of those embarrassing moments when you realize you've just said the wrong things to the wrong person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be barking up the wrong tree today if you think you have to be a big spender in order to impress others. Extravagance is a pretense that won't win acceptance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In your one-to-one relationships today treat everyone as an equal and forego any form of one-upmanship. If you try anything cute, someone will trump your ace.
