Seminole Prepares To Flouridate Water

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Flouride could be added to the water supply of the 6,306 water customers in the unincorporated areas of Seminole County as early as June, 1986, according to the county's Department of Environmental Services. County commissioners are slated to adopt a resolution at their regular 9:30 a.m. meeting Tuesday authorizing the injection of the chemical into the water supply. Flouride is widely believed to help prevent tooth decay.

A suggestion to flouridate county water was brought to the county commission late last year and endorsed by Dr. Jorge Deju, director of the county's Department of Health and Human Services.

In February, environmental services printed a survey question on the monthly water bill and 35 percent of the customers responded. Of those, 77 percent favored fluoridation while 23 percent were opposed.

Customers were invited to an information meeting on fluoridation at the Seminole County Health Department on May 25 and only five showed up, three of whom opposed the fluoridation. Environmental Services also received three letters and a few telephone calls in opposition.

The county is requesting a state grant of $96,000 for the cost of the equipment, engineering fees and the first year's supply of fluoride.

Under the state program, funding will also be provided to Seminole County for the second year's cost of the chemicals. The federal government provides the funds to the state for the fluoridation grants.

After the second year's operation, a $1.25 per customer cost for chemicals will be added to each customer's water bill annually.

Gang Dispute Unsettled

Teen Survives Shot; Police Have Suspect

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford youth mistakenly shot during a gang confrontation early Saturday is in satisfactory condition today with a bullet in his lower chest.

Doctors probably won't remove the bullet from Oscar Merthie IV, 16, of 136 Carver Ave., Sanford, unless it moves, his mother Bernadette Merthie said today. He is scheduled to be released from Central Florida Regional Hospital Wednesday.

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said today they have the name of a suspect and do expect to make an arrest in the case.

Mrs. Merthie said she was told gang members made threats indicating the dispute, which does not involve her son, is not over.

Merthie was admitted to the hospital around 2:30 a.m. Saturday morning after being shot in the chest while at a party in the area of 51 Castle Brewer Court, police said. The incident occurred around 1:30 a.m., according to police.

The bullet or a fragment of a bullet entered the youth's rib cage from the front and a fragment lodged in the muscle of his back. It is not large enough to require removal, doctors told Mrs. Merthie.

She said youths from the Academy Manor subdivision and the Goldsboro area were having a party in the area of the Castle Brewer Court address Friday night when another group of kids from Midway and Georgetown areas arrived at the party swelling the number of attendees to about 50. She said the second group of kids were looking for someone they had a dispute with arising from a gang confrontation a week earlier at another party.

According to a resident living near the scene of the incident Saturday, the previous party was on June 26 near 35 Castle Brewer Court in the same subdivision. There supposedly was a fight at the June 26 gathering and it was just continued to early Saturday, the resident said.

According to Mrs. Merthie, the second gang of kids did beat up the person they were looking for after they arrived at the party and a fight began. Then she said, four or five of the kids decided to leave and got into a car. Her son was the last one to get in the vehicle and was shot while the car was driving away.

Mrs. Merthie said her son just happened to be too close to the person the group was looking for.

After the shooting, the several kids including the suspect went with Merthie to the hospital emergency room, Mrs. Merthie said. She said they left before police arrived.

Merthie is a student at Lake Mary High School and is a member of the school's basketball team, Mrs. Merthie said.

Opening The Show

National Quilting Association President Pat Broull, center, cuts ribbon opening the group's 16th Annual Quilt Show Saturday at Seminole Community College with the help of show chairman Rae Harper. Co-chairman Midge Mycoff, left and Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith were on hand for the opening, attended by nearly 2,000 persons from across the U.S. and Canada. The show, through Aug. 10, includes quilting competition, demonstrations by Seminole Indians, antique quilt displays and classes.

Lake Mary Commission Slaps Police Operations

By Richard Truett
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary Police Chief Harry Benson has come under fire from the city commission for his proposed budget and his work schedule.

At a public budget hearing in Lake Mary Friday, Commissioner Russ Megonegal asked why there is no shift supervisor scheduled from 4-7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Benson and Lt. Sam Belfiore both work the day shift, 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

And Commissioner Paul Tremel said he is concerned that the officers may be hanging around the station too much.

"A lot of times when I go to the post office, I notice the parking lot full of police cars," Tremel said. "I have heard several complaints that the police are not out in the streets patrolling, but hanging around the station," he added.

Benson told the commission that although the schedule says he is off duty at 4 p.m. each day, he and Belfiore often stay at the station until 5:30 p.m. doing paperwork and other administrative duties. He said when he and Belfiore leave at the end of the day, they are on call and will respond if needed.

But Megonegal and Mayor Dick Fess were not satisfied and told Benson the scheduling wasn't being handled properly.

"Instead of having both you and the Lt. working the same hours, you need to spread it out," Megonegal said.

"I try to put the available manpower to its best use," Benson replied.

Megonegal suggested either Benson or Belfiore started work

Group To Ask County To End Zoo's Lease

Cancellation of the Central Florida Zoological Society's lease of the zoo site south of U.S. Highway 17-92 will be recommended by 12 Sanford citizens and others at a work session with the Seminole County Commission 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The group is planning to form a new Seminole County Zoological Society.

Members of the group include A.B. "Tommy" Peterson Jr., Ernest Southward, Ron Dycus, Shirley Schilke, Mack N. Cleveland Jr., Jack C. Horner, A.K. Shoemaker Jr., Donald J. Bales, Ruth Swinney, Garnett White, Stanley H. Sandefur and Raymond G. Fox.

Pedestrian Hit

Ambulance workers and fire department rescue personnel work on Russell Partello, 62, of Sanford, who was hit by a car this morning on 25th Street and Hardy Avenue in Sanford. He was being treated this morning at Central Florida Regional Hospital for leg injuries. Police officer Guy Brewster said Partello was hit about 8:30 a.m. by a car driven by Martin Quinn Latham, 100 Idylwild Drive, Sanford, while he was walking to work with a friend. When they came to the intersection, Partello did not stop to look for traffic and walked out into the street where he was hit, Brewster said, and for that reason, no charges will be filed.

20 Injured

Gang Shootout In Park Kills 2

OAKLAND, N.J. (UPI) — Suspected gunmen in a shootout at a crowded park that killed two people, injured 20 and sent hundreds of picnickers diving for cover were armed with submachine guns, machetes, ice picks and other deadly weapons, authorities said today.

Six suspects, including one shot by police, were held on weapons charges and a search for additional suspects was under way, Bergen County Prosecutor Larry McClure said.

"It would appear that the people that were involved in the shooting appear to be primarily or all of Jamaican extraction," McClure said. However, he added, "We have not been able to focus in on exactly what prompted the gunfight situation."

One county police official said, "This was gang warfare." The official refused to give his name.

Identities of all the dead and wounded had not been established, but McClure said two people were killed. Hospital officials listed 20 other victims — five in critical condition.

The shooting broke out Sunday afternoon at the 40-acre Frank R. Gallo Sports Complex in Oakland, about 20 miles from New York City.

Part of a summer crowd estimated at 1,500 people was caught in the crossfire and was sent diving under picnic tables for cover, police Lt. James O'Connor said. Many of the picnickers scaled an 8-foot fence to escape the hail of bullets.

"It sounded like a war — it was open fire, and sounded like machine guns," said a witness, Angela Augustus.

Another witness, Peter Brown of New York, said he heard "too many shots to count," and saw "crowds of people fleeing the area or diving for cover under picnic tables."

Augustus said the shots lasted for "five minutes, and it was steady." She said she saw the shots being fired in the area of picnic tables, then saw a pregnant woman lying on the ground with a leg injury.

Police cordoned off the park in the frantic moments that followed the shootout, searching vehicles and individuals for weapons, McClure said.

Among the weapons confiscated were 24 guns, including two Uzi submachine guns and a number of automatic handguns, McClure said. Also seized were machetes, ice picks and knives, he said.

Homeowner Still Unhappy Over Road Work

RGK Construction Co., contractor for the four-laning of Weldon Boulevard, the entrance road to Seminole Community College, was to sod the edges of a pond off the roadway today to stop erosion into the pond.

But Christine Terwilliger was still unhappy about the project today and said she plans to consult a lawyer.

Mrs. Terwilliger's complaints about the construction of the road about a foot from the front door of her home on Weldon Boulevard and the erosion and dumping of dirt and trash into the one-half acre pond, partially on her property, brought state, county, Lake Mary and state Department of Transportation officers to the project site for an inspection tour Friday. She insists the two-lane boulevard being widened to four lanes at the request of SCC officials and approved by state legislators on the basis that it was hazardous became hazardous only after construction work began.

In the meantime, at Mrs. Terwilliger's request the Lake Mary City Commission agreed Thursday night to designate the

Bomb Blasts Leave Crater In Highway After Car, Munitions Truck Collide

CHECOTAH, Okla. (UPI) — A double bomb explosion that rattled windows 18 miles away and injured 45 people plowed a crater 30 feet wide and 15 feet deep in Interstate 40, forcing authorities to close the freeway.

A car collided with a munitions truck hauling 10 one-ton bombs from the U.S. Army Ammunition Plant near McAlester, Okla., to North Carolina about 4 a.m. Sunday, and flames from the burning vehicles set off two of the bombs, a spokesman for the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said.

Army bomb squads from the ammunition plant and the Fort Sill U.S. Army post in southwestern Oklahoma dismantled and removed eight other bombs scattered by the blasts, dispatcher Lyndal Christian said.

Nancy Stolper, a spokeswoman for Muskogee Regional Hospital in nearby Muskogee, said 44 people had been brought in for treatment, mostly for inhalation of toxic fumes.

Dolly L. Madjenovich, 64, of Ashland, Wis., the driver of the car involved in the collision, was treated at the hospital for bruised ribs and released. Ruth Ross, 75, of Peggs, Okla., a passenger in the Madjenovich car, was admitted to the hospital with head, back and internal injuries. Troopers said the truck driver, Leslie Alan Okerstrom, 29, of Anett, Okla., was not injured.

Stolper said the remaining victims were treated for minor cuts and bruises and "a general anxiety reaction" and released.

Troopers said the car was going the wrong way on an entrance ramp when it collided with the truck as it tried to get on the interstate.

War Hero's Son Threatens To Go AWOL

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (UPI) — The son of World War I hero Alvin York says he will go AWOL from his state job so he can attend a ceremony to name a Veteran's Administration hospital for his father.

George York, a social services counselor, has been barred by his boss from attending Thursday's ceremony to dedicate the Alvin C. York Veterans Administration Medical Center because he is behind in his paperwork.

"I am so hurt and disappointed," York said Sunday. "This means a lot to me. I'm going to be there anyway if I'm living."

Alvin York, a mountaineer from Pall Mall, Tenn., earned a Congressional Medal of Honor for killing 25 German soldiers and capturing 132 more during a World War I battle. Gary Cooper starred in a movie about his valor and a statue of York was placed in front of the Tennessee Capitol.

George York, who has worked for the Human Services Department 15 years, asked to take a vacation day to attend the ceremony in Murfreesboro but he was told he must complete 50 case reports, said Regional Director Debbie Kirtrell.

"It's just beyond me," York said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Alaska Senate Debates Stinging Report On Governor

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — The Alaska Senate Rules Committee, which backed away from an impeachment of Gov. William Sheffield, turned its attention to a stinging report that could further damage his possible re-election chances.

Following 12 days of hearings, the committee declined to vote Saturday for impeachment of the first-term Democrat governor for alleged political cronyism in the awarding of a $9.1 million state lease.

The proposed report also scores Sheffield for "memory lapses" over his role in allegedly steering the lease for state office building space in Fairbanks to a friend and campaign fund-raiser.

The five-member rules committee, which has only one Democrat, was expected to approve the harshly worded report today and submit it for a vote of the Republican-controlled Senate later in the day.

Democrats insisted that Republicans, frustrated they could not find impeachable offenses, hoped to damage Sheffield politically. He will be up for re-election next year if he decides to run.

Presser Feeling Safe

DETROIT (UPI) — Teamsters President Jackie Presser says reports he served as an undercover FBI informant are more likely to hurt his political career than endanger his life.

"I have no dealings with people who would want to kill me, and I think I have more of a political problem than I have any other problem," Presser told the Detroit News in a copyrighted interview published Sunday — his first since the Justice Department dropped an investigation of his alleged involvement in a payroll-padding scandal at his home in Cleveland.

Presser, who intends to run for a full five-year term as Teamsters president next year, said he will be relieved once the reports subsided that he served as a federal informant about other union bosses and organized crime figures.

Federal strike force investigators reportedly recommended months ago that Presser be indicted on fraud and conspiracy charges involving large salaries paid to "ghost employees" on the Cleveland local's payroll.

But after the government confirmed two weeks ago that the 32-month investigation into Presser's alleged role was dropped, newspaper reports said it was because he had provided information to the FBI without the knowledge of federal prosecutors in charge of the Cleveland investigation.

Misread Log Linked To Crash

WESTMINSTER, Colo. (UPI) — The crew of a Burlington Northern train may have misread a log sheet and proceeded on an occupied track, colliding head-on with another train, officials said.

Five people aboard the two trains died in the fiery crash Friday, and a highway overpass was melted in the ensuing inferno.

Trains using the track in Denver's northwest suburbs stop at an unmanned station to check a log sheet showing whether the track is clear, federal investigators and officials of Burlington Northern said.

Spokesman Gordon Inglis of the National Transportation Safety Board said the crew of northbound train may have misread papers that would have kept it off the track.

The crew apparently stopped at the station but "evidently overlooked" the lack of an arrival entry for the southbound train or "misread the date, possibly," Inglis said Sunday.

Ammonia Purifies Water, But Damages Toilets

MIAMI (UPI) — A chemical used to purify drinking water is eating away rubber plumbing parts in toilets much quicker than normal, meaning more business for plumbers and parts suppliers.

"We've had a 200 percent increase in the sale of rubber parts," said Gordon Browne, owner of Davis Do-It-Yourself Plumbing Supplies in Fort Lauderdale.

Miami and Fort Lauderdale began using ammonia in their water to reduce the level of a substance suspected of causing cancer, trihalomethanes, or THMs, which are produced when chlorine added to kill germs combines with organic matter in water.

South Florida was one of the nation's worst areas in THM contamination. The state Department of Environmental Regulation ordered systems serving more than 75,000 people to reduce THMs.

Mob Figure's Wife Robbed

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The wife of an organized crime figure who is charged with her husband in a double murder plot was bound and gagged by two masked men who broke into her mansion and apparently stole about $7,000 in cash and jewelry, police say.

Dorothy Paterno, 51, was alone in her walled-in, waterfront mansion Sunday morning drinking coffee and reading a newspaper when the burglary occurred.

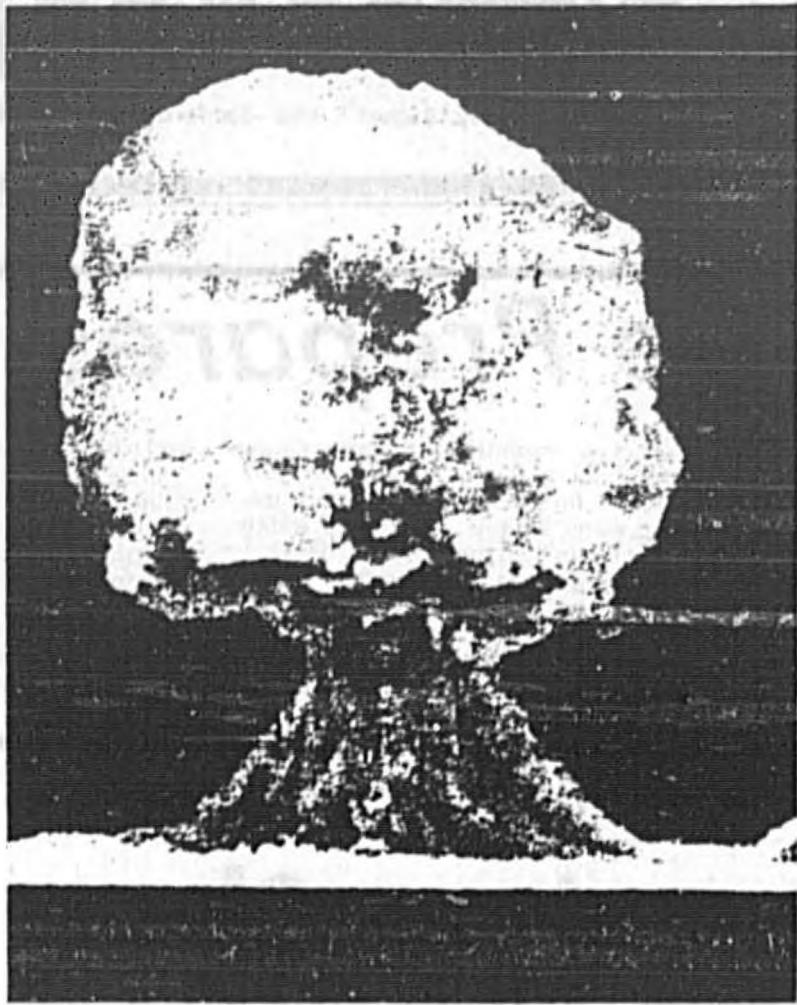

Her husband, 61, an alleged member of the New York-based Gambino crime family, is in Dade County Jail, denied bond after his arrest in April on murder conspiracy charges. He is accused of ordering two murders. His wife, also charged in the case, was released from jail last month on $25,000 bond.

Miami Beach Detective Thomas Hoolahan said he had no reason to think the burglary was related to her husband's alleged involvement in crime or the charges against her.

40 Years Ago, The World Changed Memory Of Hiroshima Still Fresh

Americans Commemorate The Bombing

HIROSHIMA, Japan (UPI) — Thousands of people streamed into Hiroshima today to remember those who died four decades ago in the atomic bombing that opened the nuclear age. Chisako Takeoka remembered two of them and wept.

Takeoka was 17 on the morning of Aug. 6, 1945. She was getting ready for a trip to the beach when a blinding light filled the sky and the unseen blast hurled her through her house into a nearby field.

Bleeding and battered, she made her way to Hiroshima's Army Hospital where her mother was a nurse. The hospital was less than 1.2 miles from the site of the blast, and the teenager found her mother blinded, her face mutilated.

"They said she needed an operation or she'd lose the other eye. They had to operate without anesthesia," Takeoka recalled, her eyes filling with tears.

"It took about three or four hours. I'll never forget the sound of her cries."

Takeoka's mother died but her suffering had not ended. In the years after the war, as the hereditary effects of radiation came to light, Takeoka lost her first child, a son, to radiation sickness in 1947.

"When he was born, his skin was mottled by purple blotches, subcutaneous bleeding," she said. "It was the same thing that happened to people in the days following the atomic bomb."

Takeoka, now 57, will be among some 60,000 politicians, pacifists, anti-nuclear activists, bomb survivors and the curious expected in Hiroshima Tuesday to commemorate the first atomic bombing.

Thousands had arrived by today, including representatives of 93 cities attending a world mayors' conference on preventing nuclear war.

"Hiroshima is not merely a witness of history," said Hiroshima Mayor Takeshi Araki, himself a bomb survivor, in a welcoming speech. "Hiroshima is an endless warning for the future of mankind."

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and other dignitaries will preside at the main ceremony Tuesday morning at Peace Memorial Park. More than 25,500 names of recently identified bomb victims will be added to the park cenotaph.

An estimated 200,000 people died in the atomic bombing of Hiroshima when the United States employed its ultimate weapon to end the war in the Pacific in World War II. More than 140,000 more died in the bombing of Nagasaki three days later.

Controller To Pilot: 'Delta, Go Around!'

GRAPEVINE, Texas (UPI) — The pilot of Delta Flight 191 received a terse order to pull up but the jumbo jet may have already hit the ground and bounced on its doomed approach to Dallas-Forth Worth International Airport, a federal investigator said.

Flight 191 from Fort Lauderdale, pinwheeled over a freeway clogged with home-bound commuters Friday night, skidded across open ground and erupted in flames. The crash killed 133 people, injured 31 and scattered cargo and pieces of the Lockheed L-1011 along a quarter-mile path. The dead included a motorist decapitated by the jumbo jet.

Sixteen of the injured remained hospitalized Sunday night, six in critical condition.

Adm. G.H. Patrick Bursley, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board, said Sunday night an air traffic controller told pilot Edward Connors, "Delta, go around!" — a terse order to gain altitude — because the plane appeared to be only between 50-100 feet off the ground, too close for a safe landing.

The Delta flight had trailed a Lear jet preceding it in the landing pattern into an isolated thunderstorm.

Bursley said the controller "saw the Lear jet emerge from the rain and it was a little high, then saw Delta 191 come out of the rainstorm in the same direction. It was very low, only 50 to 100 feet above the ground."

The air traffic controller said, "Delta, go around."

Bursley described that command as the quickest way the controller had to tell Connors to pull out of the landing pattern. There is no record the order was acknowledged.

"Then, in two or three seconds, the left wing went down and the nose was down," Bursley said. "He (the controller) saw fire on the left side of the plane. The plane made ground contact and bounced."

Bursley, who has directed the first two days of the NTSB investigation, said preliminary findings "of very raw data" show that "there was no major malfunction of a system of the airplane."

"The engine performance was appropriate for an approach, though at the end there was a dramatic increase in the power applied," he said. "Power is an answer to overcoming problems in flight control."

No other pilot reported weather problems before the crash and the pilot of Flight 191 did not indicate he was having difficulty, but Bursley quoted the pilot of the Lear jet as saying "he had his hands full" with his own landing.

Bursley said Flight 191 may have already hit the ground before the controller saw it emerge from the clouds and explode.

"We're not able yet to give the altitude every inch of the way, but 1,777 feet north of (Highway) 114 there's evidence the

Shuttle's Star Experiment Working After Balky Start

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Challenger's astronomers, overjoyed at the serendipitous revival of a shuttle telescope, hauled in an unexpected bonanza of sun study today as the ship sailed toward a triumphant homecoming Tuesday.

"It's like a shot of adrenalin," said Spacelab program scientist Daniel Spicer. "Everybody's really feeling good about it. We've really pulled the fat out of the fire."

The telescope had been written off as a failure, but with its activation after a jarring rocket burst Sunday, Challenger's crewmen had a fully operational space observatory for the first time since the flight got off to its rocky start last Monday.

The crewmen spent much of the morning running engineering tests on the revived telescope and good results were reported as all four solar telescopes on board Challenger operated in concert for the first time.

"It's working!" shuttle astronomer John-David Bartoe said early today after the telescope began recording "white light" images of sunspots, huge areas on the sun's surface where scientists believe powerful magnetic fields inhibit convection in the star's seething atmosphere.

"We're just feeling great down here that you got it going," said George Simon in the Spacelab control center.

Commander Gordon Fullerton, co-pilot Roy Bridges and crewmates Story Musgrave, Karl Henize, Anthony England and civilian astronomers Loren Acton and Bartoe are scheduled to land Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. EDT on a desert runway at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The 19th shuttle mission — America's 50th manned space flight — originally was scheduled to end today, but the flight was extended one day to let the crew make up time lost for their sun gazing because of trouble with a balky $60 million telescope mount.

"This extra day has really helped us out," Spicer said.

Scientists suspect a rocket blast Sunday during an experiment to burn "holes" in the ionosphere may have jarred something in the previously dormant solar telescope, allowing its "white light" video camera to work for the first time.

The telescope, called the "Solar Magnetic and Velocity Field Measurement System," or SOUP for short, was designed to study the sun's magnetic fields and is capable of building up three-dimensional images of the sun's atmosphere.

The unexpected activation of the telescope came as Challenger's flight was winding down to a triumphant conclusion after a shaky start that included the premature shutdown of one of the ship's main engines.

An X-ray telescope continued studying the titanic energy shed by giant clusters of galaxies and the crew pressed on with solar research.

Feds Launch Nationwide Raids To Wipe Out Marijuana Crops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal agents launched raids in 50 states today in a major program to wipe out domestic marijuana crops harvested on federal lands, and Attorney General Edwin Meese planned to accompany agents on one raid.

Justice Department officials, however, denied that Meese's presence on one local raid, accompanied by a platoon of reporters and cameras, was a thinly veiled publicity stunt to dramatize the federal government's drug enforcement effort.

Meese was expected to join agents and fly by helicopter to a remote area of Arkansas where authorities planned to manually uproot and destroy fertile marijuana crops surreptitiously planted by drug dealers.

"This massive coordinated effort signals the resolve of the Reagan administration to deal effectively with widespread cultivation and sale of marijuana grown within our borders," Meese said in a statement.

"We are sending a strong message, both to the domestic producers of marijuana, and to the source countries outside our borders, that the U.S. government takes very seriously the need to attack the production of this drug."

Drug Enforcement Administration chief John Lawn, who held a briefing Friday for reporters on the raids code-named "Delta 9," said 25 percent of the marijuana consumed in the United States has been grown domestically.

He said drug dealers are turning to domestic crops because of the federal government's successful interdiction of shipments of marijuana from South America and elsewhere.

Lawn said domestic growers, many using federal lands as their fields, have been known to place booby traps near the crops, such as eye-level fish hooks to deter intruders. But Lawn denied there would be any danger to the attorney general.

Lawn said the DEA's marijuana eradication effort was not a new program, but this was the first time that raids were being conducted in all 50 states.

He said authorities hoped to destroy 250,000 marijuana plants over a three-day period and continue the manual eradication program for the remainder of the growing season which ends in October.

Federal Rail Rules Ban Alcohol, Drug Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time, the American railroad industry will be subject to federal rules prohibiting employees from reporting to work drunk or drugged and banning consumption of alcohol and narcotics on the job.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole announced the new safety regulations last week and they come 12 years after the National Transportation Safety Board, an independent government agency, first called for such rules.

There have been numerous deadly freight train derailments linked to drinking and drugs in recent years.

Dole said the rules, which go into effect Nov. 1, "will protect the public and railroad employees from the consequences of on-the-job drug and alcohol use."

Currently, there are no federal regulations banning alcohol and drug use by railroad workers. Safety board Chairman Jim Burnett said earlier this year, "In fact, as far as federal rules are concerned, a railroad engineer can consume a bottle of whiskey while at the controls."

Burnett endorsed the government action and called on the Federal Railroad Administration, a part of the Transportation Department, to enforce the rules.

The safety rules would also require alcohol and drug testing of employees involved in a major accident, authorize toxicological testing of workers when there is

How Others Handle The Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The following is a brief summary of alcohol and drug rules for other regulated transportation industries:

Aviation

No crew member can consume alcohol at least eight hours before work. No crew member is permitted to work while under the influence of alcohol or having a blood alcohol concentration of .04 percent. (In Florida, a motorist must have a blood alcohol level of .10 percent before being considered under the influence.) No drugs can be used that pose a safety risk.

Trucking and Motor Carrier Industry

Truck and bus drivers may not use or possess alcohol, illegal drugs or other substance that affects the safe operation of the vehicle. There is a four-hour pre-duty abstinence period.

Maritime Industry

Commercial maritime personnel are prohibited from drinking alcohol or using narcotics while on the job.

reason to suspect impairment and mandate pre-employment drug screening.

Railroads would be asked to establish policies as an incentive for troubled workers to seek help.

The provisions concerning post-accident testing and pre-employment drug screening will become mandatory Dec. 1 and March 1, 1986, respectively. The government said the extra time was allowed so railroads can select medical facilities where samples will be collected and make other arrangements.

Unlike other regulated transportation industries such as airlines, the government did not impose a minimum time in which rail workers must abstain from using alcohol and drugs prior to reporting to work.

Since 1975, the Transportation Department has recorded 48 train accidents that were caused by alcohol and drug-impaired workers, resulting in 37 deaths, 80 injuries and $34 million in property damage.

"Alcohol and drug abuse pose serious threats to transportation safety," Dole said. "This regulation addresses my concern and the growing public concern about alcohol and drug abuse on the nation's railroads."

Despite the absence of federal regulations, the railroad industry for years has imposed standards that prohibit on-duty alcohol and drug use.

State and local laws also deal with the issue, but critics say enforcement varies.

Some Bladder Cancer Caused By Heavy Use Of Painkiller

BOSTON (UPI) — Bladder cancer in some young women may be caused by a painkiller once used as an over-the-counter drug for colds and headaches that was quietly discontinued during the 1970s.

Although bladder cancer is very rare in young women, a study of 13 women who had the disease found that 8 of them had been heavy users of the painkiller phenacetin.

The report was published in the latest issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The rarity of bladder cancer strengthened the conclusion that the drug caused the cancer, although the number of women involved in the study was very small.

"People who have taken many of the compounds that may have contained this years ago for occasional headaches or whatever should not be concerned," said Joyce M. Piper, an epidemiologist at the Food and Drug Administration.

"For people who have taken the drug very heavily, they don't have to be terribly concerned other than any urologic problems they have should deserve careful consideration because of increased risks," she said.

The risk of contracting cancer after daily use of the painkiller is estimated to be 2.6 times higher than the normal risk, which is about 1 per 100,000 for women of this age group. The risk is increased to 5.9 for women who smoke as well.

Darvon Compound and Darvon Compound 65 as well as 36 other common drugs, most of which were available without a doctor's prescription, contained phenacetin.

Pharmaceutical companies first began quietly removing the painkiller from their products and substituting other painkillers during the mid-1970s because of reports from Europe that heavy use increased the risk of a kidney disorder called chronic interstitial nephropathy.

"Drug experts believe they may know why the painkiller causes disorders of the kidney, bladder and ureter. The kidney apparently has the capacity to transform phenacetin into a potent poison. Experts speculate that the poison either causes the cancer itself or prevents the kidney from filtering out carcinogens."

Did U.S. Help Mengele Escape Justice?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Josef Mengele, known as the "Angel of Death" in the Nazi death camps, died six years ago in Brazil, but an investigation continues into whether the United States aided in his escape from justice.

Neal Sher, head of the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations, told Congress that Mengele may have been interned under a fictitious name in Vienna after World War II but immediately released.

"It should be noted that no document has been found to date which positively establishes American contact with Mengele," Sher said.

Authorities had sought Mengele, a medical doctor, for the gruesome torture-like experiments he conducted on Jews at the Auschwitz death camp during the war.

For years, rumors persisted that Mengele was living in Paraguay. But several months ago, his friends in Brazil and his son in West Germany said Mengele had died in Brazil six years ago.

Earlier this year, the Justice Department began its investigation to find Mengele and to determine whether the United States had knowingly or unknowingly aided in his escape from justice.

Sher said the Justice Department's investigation focuses on whether Mengele was ever in U.S. custody or had any relationship with U.S. officials.

"During the course of our inquiry, we have been searching archives throughout the world for pertinent information and have been interviewing relevant American military government personnel, as well as American and foreign war crimes prosecutors," Sher said.

Sher and Assistant U.S. Marshal Howard Safr appeared before a Senate Judiciary committee Friday to report on the Mengele case and assert that scientific evidence has concluded Mengele died in 1979 and was buried in Brazil.

Mengele's remains were examined and identified by a team of forensic experts in June.

"The Department of Justice accepts the conclusion by these scientific experts that, based on the information available in the forensic examination, the body recently exhumed in Brazil was that of Josef Mengele with a reasonable scientific certainty," Sher said.

Sher also said authorities in West Germany and Brazil are continuing their own investigations to see if charges of obstruction of justice or harboring a fugitive could be filed against anyone involved with Mengele.

The Justice Department's investigation focuses on whether Mengele was ever in U.S. custody or had any relationship with U.S. officials.

Deputies Probe Case Of The Disappearing Welfare Check

The welfare check of a 74-year-old Sanford man reportedly "disappeared" when he tried to cash it at the Friedly Grocery, State Road 46A, east of Sanford.

Rosevelt Bell, of P.O. Box 3072, Center Street, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies he gave his $299 check to a clerk at the store to cash at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Bell told deputies the clerk never gave him his cash. The clerk told deputies Bell put the check on the counter and walked away, leaving the check behind. The check is missing, a sheriff's report said.

He was later freed on $500 bond.

RESTAURANT FIGHTERS

Two Sanford men have been arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and affray after fighting in a Sanford restaurant. Sanford police were called to the Golden Lamb Restaurant on French Avenue at 2:27 a.m. Saturday where Robert Reynolds Kelley, 21, of 1660 Sipes Ave., and Christopher John Sposato, 20, of 2549 Marshall Ave., were arrested.

Both were released on $100 bond.

DOMESTIC SQUABBLE

An intoxicated Sanford man carrying a knife tucked in his pants was arrested and charged with disorderly intoxication and carrying a concealed weapon early Saturday after his wife told police he had been "harming" her.

Vicki Johnson, 34 Shenandoah Village, told police at 4:27 a.m. that her 8-month-old baby was being held by her husband in their apartment.

When officers arrived at the apartment, the woman's husband came outside and ordered the police off "his property." A check revealed the man did not own the property and while a policeman was questioning him, the man told police he was carrying a weapon.

A police officer searched the man and found a long knife tucked in the back of his pants.

Arrested was Michael Duane Johnson, 19, of 34 Shenandoah Village. He was released on $500 bond.

Jury Being Picked In Child Molesting Case

State and defense lawyers questioned potential jurors today to decide the case of a Sanford man charged with molesting a 12-year-old girl.

Thomas Leroy Davis, 38, of 141 Anthony Drive, has been accused of assaulting the girl in various ways six times during a 16-month period. Prosecuting the case is Assistant State Attorney Thomas Hastings. Defense attorney is Thomas Greene of Sanford. The trial is before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor.

According to court papers, Davis is charged with one count of sexual activity with a child, four counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child, and one count of committing a lascivious act in the presence of a child.

If convicted he could receive a maximum sentence of up to 15 years on each count. Davis was arrested Feb. 28 and is free on $4,000 bond, jail officials said.

The girl's allegations surfaced after school started in the fall of 1984 when a state social worker went to the school. The girl, now 13, reported she was fondled by a man from May 1, 1983 to Sept. 1, 1984.

Suspected Spies Lived 'High Life'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Neighbors of three people arrested in a plot to steal American missiles and sell them to Iran say the suspects lived reclusive lives in expensive homes and had "people going in and out at all hours."

A total of six accused conspirators, including an Army officer, were arraigned Thursday before U.S. magistrates in Orlando and California on charges of conspiracy and plotting to violate the federal Arms Export Control Act.

A suburban Calabasas woman, Farhin Sanat, 52, described in a federal affidavit as the primary buyer for the missiles, appeared in federal court in Los Angeles along with Hossein M. Azar, said to be an Iranian official living in Santa Ana.

Magistrate Ralph Gellen ordered them held without bail and set an Aug. 6 ball hearing.

Sanat's husband, Fadel N. Fadel, 54, was arrested Thursday in Orlando, along with Paul Sjeklocha, 47, and George Neranch of San Francisco.

Charles St. Clair, 50, of Granada Hills, believed to be in London, was expected soon to turn himself in to U.S. authorities.

Neighbors on the upper-middle class street were surprised when told St. Clair was being sought by the FBI.

"There was an awful lot of people going in and out at all hours," neighbor Janice Edison said. "They all were driving very expensive, late-model cars," she said, adding she believed St. Clair worked in the film industry.

In the Calabasas neighborhood where Sanat and Fadel live, the reaction from neighbors was similar. One, who asked that her name not be used, said the couple was reclusive.

"We're shocked," she said. "We didn't know anything was going on. Cars would come and go. They push the button and go in the garage and you don't see them." The couple's spacious home was described as "a mansion" by authorities, their lifestyle as "the high life."

An undercover FBI agent posing as someone with access to military equipment stated in court affidavits that the deal began with a March 11 meeting with St. Clair at the Orlando International Airport. St. Clair handed the agent a shopping list of arms and equipment needed by Iran for its protracted war with Iraq, the documents showed.

Instead, at about 9 p.m. that day, FBI and Customs agents made the arrests as other agents on the West Coast picked up the other suspects.

Here's What They Tried To Purchase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here is a description of the weapons a group arrested by the FBI allegedly tried to buy for Iran. Three of the five missiles previously were legally exported to Iran before Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi was deposed.

—Harpoon. Made by McDonnell Douglas, it is a subsonic, air-to-surface and surface-to-surface anti-ship missile with a range of about 100 miles from the air and about 35 miles from ships or submarines. This missile has not been exported to Iran previously.

—Sidewinder. Made by Ford-Raytheon, it is a Mach 2 air-to-air missile used by the Air Force and Navy with a range of 2 to 11 miles. Previously sold to Iran.

—Spartow. Made by Raytheon, it is used by the Air Force and Navy. An all-weather, all-altitude, radar-homing air-to-air missile with an alternative surface-to-air mission and a range of 30 to 60 miles. Previously sold to Iran.

—TOW. Made by Hughes, it is a tube-launched, optically tracked anti-tank missile launched either from a helicopter or vehicle with a range of about 2.3 miles. Previously sold to Iran.

—Phoenix. Made by Hughes, it is a long-range, high-performance air-to-air missile with a top velocity of Mach 5 and a range of more than 120 miles. Previously supplied to Iran.

Lack Of Intelligence

There are undoubtedly far more spies and trouble-making agents working successfully against the United States today than once were for the same reason that one cat does not catch as many mice as two cats.

For security reasons the total number of U.S. intelligence personnel is supposed to be a secret but during the 1970s when Congress was reducing the U.S. intelligence community to a shambles, several members let it slip that intelligence agency manpower had been cut from 142,000 to 80,000, a reduction of 43 percent, in seven years.

There were further drastic cuts. In 1983 the Senate Intelligence Committee reported that the cuts had seriously limited and degraded the intelligence community's capacity to meet the nation's intelligence needs.

This ability was damaged further by the three presidential executive orders governing all U.S. intelligence activities since 1976 which have given attorneys general — amateurs in intelligence — control over all aspects of U.S. intelligence and counter-intelligence activities.

The childish guidelines issued as a result further crippled U.S. intelligence operations.

The ratio of FBI agents to communist bloc known or suspected spies fell from one-on-one in the early 1960s to one-on-four-or-five in the late 1970s.

James Angleton, CIA chief of counter-intelligence from the late 1940s, when Soviet espionage and "active measures" were expanding, was forced by CIA Director William Colby to resign in 1974. The entire CIA top command quit in protest. Colby then broke up the counterintelligence division and its responsibilities, scattered throughout the agency, were often handled by inexperienced personnel.

CIA Director Stansfield Turner fired more than 800 officers, mostly older, experienced ones, in the "Halloween Massacre" of October 1977. The CIA lost more than 1,200 officers to retirement in 1977-79 and the FBI lost about 1,300 agents through budget cuts in 1972-78.

Francis J. McNamara, in his book, "U.S. Counterintelligence Today," an analysis of the decline of the nation's counterintelligence community and capacity, says the loss of "institutional memory," the combined experience and knowledge of these senior officers, is beyond accounting.

Did this immense personnel and quality loss and the corresponding multiplication of crippling guidelines and restrictions have anything to do with the rise of successful anti-U.S. espionage and opinion-twisting "disinformation campaigns" and the rash of successful terrorist actions against U.S. embassies, civilians, diplomats and servicemen?

Of course it did. The damage done by the spies, covert operations agents and terrorists cannot be undone. But with determination, sagacity, education, understanding and action, including the restoration of many of its best former officers, the U.S. intelligence community may eventually be made strong and sound enough to carry out its function of protecting the nation and its citizens — if we have learned our lesson.

Pressure Threatening Scientific 'Integrity'

WASHINGTON — The federally funded research establishment offers great rewards to scientists who publish their findings as often as possible. Building a long bibliography usually ensures academic advancement and federal-grant support. But critics of the system say the pressure to publish creates a climate to cheat and erodes the integrity of modern science.

"Science in 1985 is too competitive, too big, too entrepreneurial, and too bent on winning," warned Dr. Robert G. Petersdorf, vice chancellor for health sciences at the University of California at San Diego, at a recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Petersdorf says the competition to win federal research grants and gain academic promotions causes some scientists to exaggerate or cheat in reporting their research findings.

He points to the case of a 33-year-old scientist, with superb credentials, who claimed authorship or co-authorship of 118 scientific research papers while under consideration for an academic promotion. An investigation by suspicious colleagues suggested that much of the reported research had never been done.

Facing allegations of misconduct, the scientist resigned his academic position and retreated into private medical practice.

But Dr. William F. Raub, deputy director for outside research at the National Institutes of Health, says evidence of scientific misconduct has been found in only about 50 cases over the past five years — a fraction of the roughly 20,000 grants and 40,000 scientists that NIH funds annually.

Is there so little fraud in federally funded biomedical research at NIH, or is it simply undetected?

"We never know," admits an official in the Office of Inspector General at the Department of Health and Human Services, NIH's parent agency. The inspector general's office says it's not equipped to monitor the scientific merit of NIH research.

While out-and-out faking of experiments appears uncommon, less blatant shading of scientific findings is "nearly universal," says Dr. John Bailar, former editor of The Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Bailar cites widely accepted practices of (1) not telling readers about all sources of bias; (2) not telling how one performs certain kinds of statistical manipulation; and (3) repeating experiments until a desired result is obtained.

Dr. William Kruskal, professor of statistics at the University of Chicago, tells of scientists "working until an experiment comes out statistically correct and then publishing only the one with the most extreme results."

"There's a feeling that scientific papers reporting 'typical' experiments are exaggerating and actually keep repeating them (the experiments) until they get one they call 'typical,'" Dr. Thomas Chalmers, former dean of Mt. Sinai school of medicine, told my associate Tom Miller.

"There's always some pressure for scientists to overstate their findings," says Bailar. He finds a general bias toward reporting initial results that tend to make research appear more productive than it really is. But follow-up studies, "by those with lesser stakes in making some splash," almost always work the other way, he says.

Wally Byam Had An Idea

This is a report on a remarkable people-to-people undertaking and two even more remarkable people.

First the latter, Etta and Oscar Payne of Thermopolis, Wyo.

Only once, says Etta Payne, has she felt in real danger. That was in Ethiopia. They were negotiating a steep hill when suddenly "all these people seemed to just rise out of the ground." They crowded around the vehicles. A child clambered onto the bumper of a trailer ahead, fell off, bumped his head and began to bleed.

"Oscar," I said, "you'd better get a guard out there."

The Paynes were with a recreational vehicle caravan through Africa. The Ethiopian government had insisted they be accompanied in that country by armed guards. They hadn't much wanted this protection but it turned out to be needed on this occasion to hold back the crowd. Otherwise, she's convinced, there could have been real trouble.

On that same Capetown to Cairo caravan, they also heard of "a little skirmish" in Kenya and of a full-scale riot in Durban, South Africa, sparked by a ban on home-brewed beer. But they weren't on those scenes at the times. Apart from the direy encounter in Ethiopia, three decades of trailer-traveling the world have been without serious incident for the Paynes.

Still, at some point on every trip Etta asks herself, "How could I have been crazy enough to do this?" The moment quickly passes. The next day, doubt is forgotten.

The Paynes are among many thousands of retired Americans for whom travel in recreational vehicles has become a way of life and more. It is adventure. Few, however, are quite as adventurous as the Paynes.

The next time Etta, 82, has cause to question her own sanity, she and Oscar, 90, will be in China. They are joining nine other American couples, average age 70, to travel the country as Caravan America-China. Living out of specially designed 20-foot Airstream trailers for 28 days, they will cover some 1,500 miles of coastal Fujian Province, only recently opened to foreign visitors. They will be stopping in the villages, shopping in the markets and meeting the people.

Two years being negotiated with Chinese authorities, the expedition is the most recent and one of the more ambitious undertaken by the Wally Byam Caravan Club, named for the trailer-traveling pioneer who initiated periodic foreign tours 30 years ago.

Invasion Irks Parisians

PARIS (NEA) — Parisians are again focusing on their two favorite topics: politics and Americans.

Europe is awash in Americans, thanks to the strong dollar and the favorable exchange rate, and this has provoked the expected French backlash. If you speak American (as opposed to English) and phone a good restaurant, you'll probably be told that no reservations are available for weeks or months. If you call back and speak fluent French, you'll almost surely get the reservation you requested.

The overt anti-Americanism of five to eight years ago isn't evident in most major French hotels. Instead, hotel employees just seem weary of seeing too many freespending Americans; their low-level resentment implies that all Americans are rich barbarians.

This has spilled over into the political arena, where the major topic of conversation is whether Socialist President Francois Mitterrand's government, which swept to power in a 1981 landslide, can survive next March's critical parliamentary elections.

Most political commentators say that it can't survive — at least in its present form. Public opinion polls show that the Socialists' popularity is in a sharp decline, while the popularity of both the centrist and the conservative parties is growing.

This has led to a sharp debate within the Socialist Party — one that could split the party asunder. One wing believes the party can only survive if it forms a centrist alliance before the upcoming campaign. This angers purists, who say that such an alliance would virtually destroy the Socialists' traditional left-wing identity.

Mitterrand has added to the debate by proposing that powers be shared with the conservatives if they win a National Assembly majority.

As Mitterrand sees it, the National Assembly would elect a government that would run France's internal affairs and economy. Mitterrand would still manage foreign policy and be responsible for national security, which are his greatest interests.

However, both Socialists and the opposition have objected to this power-sharing. Jean-Claude Gaudin, the leader of the centrist party known as Union for a French Democracy, flatly dismissed the idea. "If we win the 1986 elections," he said, "it will be our policies that are applied in all areas, including foreign policy."

This year's chief "ugly American" — outgoing U.S. Ambassador Evan Galbraith — has stepped into this climate of political uncertainty. Galbraith, an investment banker, is giving up his post and returning to Wall Street.

ROBERT WALTERS

Sweetner Could Sour

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The woman responding to inquiries on the toll-free telephone line maintained by Coca-Cola cheerfully assures the caller that the aspartame used as a sweetener in Diet Coke poses no health danger to consumers.

"You can drink as much as you want," she explains. "Aspartame has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration and if it was dangerous they wouldn't have approved it."

But what about the FDA-established "acceptable daily intake" level for aspartame that would be exceeded if a 7-year-old child weighing 50 pounds consumed seven cans of soda in a day? "I don't know about that," she says.

On another toll-free telephone line, operated by G.D. Searle & Co., the producers of aspartame, a dietitian assigned to answer consumers' queries is aware of it but says it's not the company's problem. "It's the responsibility of parents to monitor their children's intake," she insists.

Although the FDA, Searle, the American Medical Association and the World Health Organization believe aspartame is safe for virtually everyone, a number of respected medical researchers fear that consumption of the artificial sweetener may lead to serious health problems ranging from skin lesions to altered brain chemistry.

Aspartame is known as Equal when marketed as a table-top sugar substitute and as NutraSweet when used as a sweetener by the makers of more than 80 different food products. Assuming the responsibility placed on parents by the Searle dietitian is complicated by the fact that none of those product labels disclose the aspartame content.

Among the diet soft drinks containing aspartame are Coca-Cola, Pepsi-Cola, Dr. Pepper, 7-Up, Sprite, Squirt and Tab. It also is in the sugar-free versions of Ovaltine and Swiss Miss hot cocoa mixes, Kool-Aid and Wyley's drink mixes, Jell-O and D-Zert gelatin mixes and a host of other items ranging from breakfast cereal to bubble gum.

Searle and the FDA have received hundreds of complaints from people who fear that aspartame consumption produced incapacitating headaches, high blood pressure, dizziness, blurred vision, seizures, hyperactivity, impaired alertness, menstrual problems, heart palpitations, digestive disorders, slurred speech, insomnia and numbness.

Head Start Threatened By Turf Battle

By Jack Anderson
And
Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — A deliberate abuse of the federal unemployment system threatens the continued high quality of service provided by the popular Head Start program for disadvantaged preschoolers. The apparent abuse stems from an almost-forgotten bureaucratic turf battle.

Unlike most teachers, who are prohibited by law from receiving unemployment benefits during summer vacation, at least 32,000 of the 40,000 Head Start teachers and aides routinely draw jobless benefits during the summer.

They're hardly getting rich, of course. Last year's average total summer unemployment compensation for teachers was $1,210, and for aides $973. But the increased cost of the unemployment insurance premiums paid to the states by the local agencies that run Head Start programs must come from their federal grants.

And, as Health and Human Services Department Inspector General Richard Kusserow points out in a recent report, "escalating costs ... are unnecessarily eroding the quality of the programs by decreasing resources available for direct services to the children."

"The source of the (summer compensation) abuse seems to arise from the 'turf' negotiations in 1979, Kusserow wrote to Rep. Gene Chappie, R-Calif., in June. He was referring to the competition between HHS and the newly formed Education Department for jurisdiction over Head Start. As a successful program with widespread bipartisan support, Head Start was coveted by both agencies.

HHS won the jurisdictional battle. "After considerable political pressure from our department," Kusserow wrote, "one of the outcomes of this bureaucratic exercise was for Head Start officials to convince the Department of Labor that Head Start was not an educational program" — and therefore should not fall under the ban on summer unemployment compensation.

At the time, Kusserow noted, unemployment insurance premiums paid by Head Start grantees (and other employers) was low, so "no particular adverse consequence was anticipated."

But as the recession and high unemployment forced the states to raise their premium rates to employers, "the result of this (1979) decision has proven disastrous," Kusserow wrote.

An 18-state survey of 62 Head Start grantees' insurance costs shows why. The total in premiums paid for the summer benefits has risen from $9.8 million in 1983 to an estimated $15.6 million this summer. Some examples:

— Bill Richardson, Head Start director for the East Missouri Action Agency in Flat River, Mo., told our associate Tony Capaccio that his unemployment insurance costs increased by $27,000 from 1983 to 1984. Seventy of his 84 teachers, aides, cooks and van drivers draw the summer benefits.

— German S. White, Midwest regional director, noted a year ago that the insurance premium problem "is plaguing grantees in all six of our states," particularly Illinois and Michigan. "A number of grantees have even broached the subject of reducing their enrollment," he warned. White continues to stand by his warning.

— John L. Jordan, Atlanta regional director, pointed out even earlier in a memo to Washington headquarters that "more than 80 percent of all grantees (serving 87,000 children) are affected by this problem, and if current trends continue, as appears likely, the problem will force a number of grantees to reduce the number of children served or give up the Head Start grants."

Jordan said his warning still stands, although so far only one grantee, Voorhees College of Denmark, S.C., had given up its Head Start program because of a $200,000 insurance deficit.

Savages Hammer Way To Nationals

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

There was a protest song in the '60s called "If I had a hammer." The Seminole Savages didn't need hammers this past weekend because they had bats. And they used them to pound their way to the ASA 15 and Under National Tournament.

The Savages hit four home runs in outslugging the Tampa Mustangs, 15-11, Sunday in the game that qualified them for the Nationals. Seminole wound up finishing third in the Southeast Regional Tournament at Boca Raton.

The top three teams from the regional go on to the nationals which begin Aug. 15 at Graham, N.C. Also qualifying out of the Southeast Regional are the Coombs Angels of Mobile, Ala., who won the tournament and the second place team, Tampa Magic.

"The girls played really well," Seminole manager Don Jonas said. "I said after Friday's game (8-3 win over Miami) that if we kept playing like that we'd be in good shape. And, for the most part, we did."

After winning their first two, the Savages dropped a 14-10 decision to Alabama and were sent to the loser's bracket.

Seminole bounced back to eliminate Palm Beach Gardens, then went up against the Mustangs in the losers' bracket final with the winner going to the nationals and the loser going home.

The Savages jumped out to an early lead with two runs in the top of the first and three more in the second. In the second, Valerie Smith led off with a walk, Corrie Lawson also walked and Aretha Riggins then unloaded a three-run homer for a 5-0 lead.

Seminole continued its barrage in the third as Lomicia Whitaker led off with a homer and Bridget Jenerette followed with another round tripper to make it 7-0.

Tampa came back with two runs in the bottom of the third but Seminole answered with four in the top of the fourth. With two outs, Riggins and Katrina Shuler rapped consecutive singles and Whitaker singled to score Riggins. Jenerette then stepped up and smacked her second homer of the game, this one a three-run shot that made it 11-2.

The Mustangs scored three times in the bottom of the fourth but the Savages came right back to post three in the top of the fifth. Jonas started off the inning with a single, Smith reached on an error and Laurie Leiffer singled to score Jonas. Lawson followed with a base hit to drive in both Smith and Leiffer for a 14-5 lead.

Tampa pulled within 14-9 in the bottom of the fifth when Lisa Williams belted a grand slam homer.

The two teams used the sixth inning to let the bats cool down then came back ripping in the seventh. In the top half, Seminole scored once on an RBI single by Niki Burke.

The Mustangs got back within four runs in the bottom half when Williams hit a two-run homer but the Savages put an end to the nonsense after that.

Jonas led the Savages at the plate with a 4 for 4 performance. Jenerette had two hits and drove in four runs while Riggins and Lawson also had two hits.

After Friday's 8-3 win over Miami, the Savages came back Saturday to beat the Jacksonville Rebels, 6-4. It was the first time this season Seminole had beaten the Rebels.

The Savages got their bats going early with four runs in the first inning, two coming on a single off the bat of Jonas. Shuler added a solo home run in the third. Burke, who pitched every game for Seminole, was the winning pitcher.

In its second game Saturday, the Savages had a defensive breakdown as they committed nine errors in a 14-10 loss to the Coombs Angels.

The Savages took a 3-2 lead after one inning but Alabama went on to score two in the second, third, fourth and fifth frames and sealed the win with three in the sixth. Caroline Chavis, Riggins and Burke had two hits each.

In its first losers' bracket game Sunday, Seminole pulled out a 5-2 win over the Palm Beach Gardens Gators, this time committing only one error.

...Hits .500

Tammy Jenerette led the offense in that game with a two-run home run in the fourth and an RBI single in the sixth. Burke held Palm Beach Gardens to just five hits. Lawson, Whitaker, Riggins and Tammy Jenerette had two hits each for the Savages.

For the tournament, the Savages had three players who hit .500. They included, Bridget Jenerette (10-20), Jonas (9-18) and Riggins (8-16). Also having fine tournaments at the plate were Lawson who was 7 for 15 (.467) and Burke who had 7 hits in 16 trips for a .437 average.

Seaver, Carew Reach Milestones

United Press International

Three thousand miles separated Tom Seaver and Rod Carew when they achieved historic milestones Sunday, which was about as far apart as the owners and players were from settling baseball's labor dispute.

Seaver, who captured the hearts of New Yorkers when he broke in with the Mets in 1967, returned to the Big Apple to become the 17th pitcher in history to win 300 games as he tossed a six-hitter to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Meanwhile, in Anaheim, Calif., Carew singled in the third inning to become the 18th player to collect 3,000 career hits in the Angels' 8-5 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

"It's never almost there when you've got two men on and (Dave) Winfield up, when you've got two men on and (Don) Baylor up," Seaver said. "You cannot enjoy a moment when you're in the middle of it, working. You just can't do it. You've got work to do."

As he had 299 times before, Seaver got the job done. Striking out Winfield to end the eighth and retiring Baylor on a fly to left to seal his 300th career victory and the Chicago White Sox's 4-1 triumph over the New York Yankees.

"Maybe more than anything,

Baseball

I'll remember the tears coming out of my wife's eyes after the last out," said Seaver, who allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked one. "I gave her a big kiss. That was a great moment."

Great moments have punctuated Seaver's 19-year career. Three times he won the National League Cy Young Award, and three times he led the league in ERA and strikeouts. He has thrown a no-hitter, come within two outs of a perfect game, and struck out 19 batters in a game, the last 10 in succession.

Sunday, he became the 17th pitcher to attain 300 victories.

"It's one of the biggest days of my career, a game I'll remember for the rest of my life," Seaver said. "It almost felt like I was levitating on the mound. I was so emotional. I'm glad it's over, glad I've got it under my belt."

"Sure you have to admire Seaver," said Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who presented the White Sox right-hander with a silver bowl commemorating the event.

Characteristic of his recent seasons, Seaver was effective, but not overpowering. No longer able to simply challenge hitters with a dominating fastball, he retired them — 10 in succession in the fourth through seventh innings — with guile and control, mixing sliders, sinkers and slow curves with well-located fastballs and an occasional changeup.

Rod Carew joined the 3,000 hit club Sunday.

"I wasn't surprised," said

Seaver of the vocal support received from the capacity crowd of 54,032. "I've had some beautiful memories here (New York). I gave the fans in New York some tremendous thrills and they reciprocated."

Grace, Power Highlight Final Day Of Festival

Festival

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The National Sports Festival ended its 12-day run Sunday night by contrasting the grace of a 14-year-old gymnast with the brutal exchanges between two U.S. Army sparring partners.

Gymnast Joyce Wilborn and the North ice hockey team were among the big winners as the Festival concluded with a flurry of action. The NSF, which will be re-named the U.S. Olympic Festival beginning with next summer's event in Houston, bowed out with low-key closing ceremonies following the individual event finals in women's gymnastics.

A NSF record crowd for gymnastics (9,500) cheered at the LSU Assembly Center as Wilborn, 14, Paterson, N.J., extracted some revenge against favored 18-year-old Kelly Garrison, Altus, Okla. Wilborn won gold medals in the vault and the balance beam while Garrison, who took the all-around title Friday by edging Wilborn by .05 of a point, finished first in the floor exercise. Chert Way, 17, Medford Lakes, N.J., was first in the uneven bars.

"I didn't think I'd do well here because of my age and lack of experience," said Wilborn, who hauled in three golds and one silver overall in two nights of competition. Garrison also won five medals.

In the best of 12 boxing finals, Donald Stephens carved out a 4-1 decision over Loren Ross in a rugged fight between 178-pound buddies from the U.S. Army team in Fort Hood, Texas. The two are long-time sparring partners, but had never faced each other before in a tournament.

"I have fought some outstanding fighters, but Ross was the best I faced," said Stephens, who assumed control with devastating body punches in the final two rounds. "This is probably the greatest experience of my life, even better than winning the National Golden Gloves."

In another entertaining fight, 125-pound Kelcie Banks,

Chicago, won a unanimous decision over Bernard Roach, U.S. Army, Fort Bragg, N.C., taking command in the second round. In the opening bout of the night, Eddie Cook, St. Louis, outclassed Richard Duran, Sacramento, Calif., in the 112-pound division to take the gold with a 5-0 decision.

In a brawl between 156-pounders, Kevin Bryant, U.S. Army, Ft. Hood, Texas, won the gold by stopping Mylon Watkins, Tacoma, Wash., at 1:42 of the third round. Watkins was floored once in the second round and went down three times in the third.

Behind two goals apiece by Greg Dornbach and Dom Campedelli, the North hockey team trounced the East 7-2 in the gold medal game. Dornbach scored twice in a five-goal second period as the North finished with a 3-1 mark and dropped the East to 2-2. The West took the bronze with a 10-3 rout of the South.

Elsewhere, three Olympic gold medal wrestlers finished first in the freestyle as Dave and Mark Schultz of Palo Alto, Calif., and Bruce Baumgartner, Cambridge Springs, Pa., all went undefeated.

Baumgartner romped to a 12-0 decision over Andy Schwab, Liverpool, N.Y., in completing a string of three straight shutouts in the heavyweight class. Dave Schultz won by injury default in the 163-pound division when Murray Lee Crews, Colorado Springs, Colo., was injured in the second period. His brother, Mark, then posted the most convincing triumph of the tournament, pinning Jon Lundberg, New London, Minn., in 25 seconds to win the 180.5-pound class. All three 1984 Olympic champions will participate in October's World Freestyle Championships at Budapest, Hungary.

San Antonio Wins Big League Opener

Mark Christian tossed a four-hitter and was backed by a 13-hit offensive attack Sunday as San Antonio, Texas upended Augusta, Ga., 9-2, in the opening game of the Big League Baseball Southern Regional Tournament at the University of Central Florida.

San Antonio goes up against host District 14 tonight at 5. District 14, a team of players from around the Central Florida area, will open with eight Joe Cardwell or Mike Passilla on the mound.

In today's first game, scheduled for 1 p.m., Florida champion Jacksonville

Baseball

(Division 3) takes on Bristol, Va. Augusta and the loser of today's first game will play a losers' bracket game tonight at 7:30.

With a strong wind blowing straight in from center field, neither team hit the long ball Sunday but San Antonio still battered Augusta pitching while Christian, who raised his tournament record to 5-0, held the Georgians to four hits.

San Antonio broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the top of the second inning then added two more in the third for a 4-0 lead.

Augusta bounced back with two runs in the bottom of the fourth to make it 4-2, but Christian blanked Georgia the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, San Antonio added three runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth to pull away.

Leading the way for Texas were Christian and Lance Hilliard, both of whom were 3 for 5. Mike Hughes took the loss for Augusta.

Crawford, Withrow Put Everything Into Programs

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

You won't find two bigger proponents for their respective organizations than Don Crawford and Jim Withrow.

To borrow a line from Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda, Crawford bleeds the blue colors of Little League Baseball and Withrow has the red bloodlines of Pony Baseball.

Crawford, 51, is Florida's District 14 administrator. He is a veteran of 24 years of Little League Baseball. For the past 14 years he has served as district administrator. He is one of Little League's hardest working volunteers.

Withrow is the tournament director for Seminole Pony Baseball. He is a veteran of 20 years as coach and league official. He is considered one of the best teachers of baseball in the program. The past few years, he has taken on more of a supervisory role of the tournaments along with his coaching duties with the Casselberry Broncos.

Both Crawford and Withrow admit to being more than a little prejudiced but both are sound baseball administrators who can defend their programs with the best of them.

The basic difference between Little League Baseball, Inc. and Pony Baseball, Inc. comes at the Pony's Mustang/Bronco level vs. Little League's Major level. The Mustangs are 9 and 10 years old. The Broncos are 11 and 12 years old. The Majors are 10, 11 and 12 years old.

In Little League, there are no leadoffs, thus the pitcher does not pitch from the stretch. He can windup, oblivious to the baserunner. The baserunner cannot try to steal until the ball passes the batter. The basepaths are 60 feet and the pitching distance is 46 feet 6 inches. The emphasis is on pitching and hitting. It is not uncommon for a good, big pitcher to dominate.

In Pony Baseball, major league rules are applied. Baserunners take leadoffs and can steal any time they wish. The pitchers must pitch from the stretch. A dependable catcher is a must. The basepaths are 70 feet and the pitching distance is 48 feet. Bunting, stealing and catching take on a greater importance.

Basically, Crawford is of the opinion that 10, 11 and 12 year olds are not ready for the major league game. Their concentration should be on pitching and hitting, without distractions. Withrow, on the contrary, feels that 9, 10, 11 and 12 year olds can be taught the major league game. Doing so prepares them better fundamentally for the future.

Each said that he is not too much of an authority on the other organization's rules — or cares to be.

"Little League plays softball rules with a baseball until the kids are 13 years old," said Withrow. "Then, they turn them loose on a major-league field and expect them to adapt."

Crawford, though, stands firm on his vow that that age group isn't ready yet for the major league game. "If you give the runner the opportunity to lead off, no catcher is going to throw him out," said Crawford. "It would be very rare. The game turns into more of track meet than baseball on that small of a field."

The two also disagree on the dimensions and player maturity. "Little League has the correct size field for the age group," said Crawford. "It's a proven fact that a boy does most of his maturing between his 13th and 14th year. That's why our Junior League program is the way the boys should be grouped. The 13s shouldn't play with the 14s."

Withrow said Pony's way is better. "We group the players in groups of two all through the program," he said. "That way the older boy has a year's experience and can help the younger one."

Withrow also said Pony Baseball's progressive enlarging of the fields is much better than Little League's. "We tailor the size of the field to fit the age and group and the size of the boys," he said. "Little League Baseball has its biggest dropout rate at age 13. It takes an exceptional athlete to go from Majors to Juniors and adapt to the playing size."

It is because of this dropout rate, Withrow said, that Pony Baseball was able to "get its foot in the door." "Little League didn't have any programs after the Majors," said Withrow.

SPORTS

IN BRIEF

Marietta Downs Gadsden, 4-1, For Southeast Region Crown

After breezing through their first two games, the East Cobb all-stars out of Marietta, Ga., got their first stiff test of the Pony Baseball Southeast Regional Tournament Saturday night against Gadsden, Ala.

East Cobb opened with a 14-1 victory over Lake Worth, then drilled host West Seminole, 20-0, Friday afternoon.

Saturday was a different story though as Marietta and Gadsden battled to a 1-1 tie after six innings. But Marietta scored three runs in the top of the seventh for a 4-1 victory and the Southeast Region title in a game that was moved from the soggy West Seminole (Forest City) complex to the Seminole Pony complex in Winter Springs.

Marietta advances to the Southern Zone Tournament which begins Wednesday in Tampa. The winner of the zone tourney goes on to the Pony World Series in Washington, Pa.

With one out in the seventh, Ted Ward smacked a double, Mike Hilton walked and a Gadsden error loaded the bases. Eric Smith then drove in Ward with a sacrifice fly for a 2-1 lead and two more runs crossed the plate when Rusty Umphenor reached on an error.

Alabama reached the finals of the tournament by outslugging West Seminole, 12-8, in Friday's losers' bracket final.

Amateur Driver Dies In Crash

WILLOW SPRINGS, Ill. (UPI) — A 23-year-old man died Sunday from injuries he sustained in a "freakish" car crash during a Santa Fe Speedway race for amateurs, authorities said.

David Mayer of Oak Forest was competing in his first street-stock car division race Saturday when his car slid sideways and was hit from behind by another car. Mayer's car flipped over and the tires of the second auto landed on top of his car, said track spokesman Larry Shapiro.

"It was a freakish occurrence," he said. Mayer, who was taken to LaGrange Community Hospital by one of the track's private ambulances, was pronounced dead at 1:05 a.m. Sunday, a hospital spokesman said.

Driving a Chevy Nova, Mayer had signed up for one of the two amateur races scheduled Saturday night. It was his first competitive race, Shapiro said.

"We handled the accident as professionally as we could," Shapiro said. "We've been running auto races for 33 years and this is the first fatality in those years."

Becker Wins In Davis Cup Play

United Press International

Boris Becker, the 17-year-old Wimbledon singles champion, brought more honor to his country Sunday by defeating Aaron Krickstein 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 and help West Germany defeat the United States in Davis Cup competition for the first time in history.

Becker's triumph over the 18-year-old Krickstein at Hamburg gave West Germany a 3-2 triumph over the United States in quarterfinal action.

"If anyone would have said three or four months ago that we would win against America in the Davis Cup, he would have been declared crazy," Becker said.

West Germany had lost all six previous Davis Cup encounters to the United States since they first met in 1913. Their last meeting was in 1970 when the United States won 5-0 in the final in Ohio. The United States has won 28 Davis Cup titles.

West Germany will face Czechoslovakia in the next Davis Cup round.

The United States team, presided over by Arthur Ashe, had picked up its second victory of the quarterfinals to draw even with West Germany in Sunday's first contest when Elliot Teltscher defeated Hansjoerg Schwaber, 6-4, 2-6, 5-7, 6-4 and 6-2.

Tilton Rolls 23 Strikes In Row

WINDSOR, Ontario (UPI) — Jim Tilton, Huntington Beach, Calif., opened the $125,000 Canadian Open with 23 strikes and averaged better than 260 for the first six games Sunday to take the early lead.

The tournament is called the Molson Golden Bowling Challenge.

Tilton, in his second year on the Pro Bowlers Association Tour, started the tournament with a 300 game. He had the first 11 strikes in the second game before leaving the 3-6-10 for a 297.

He followed with a 257 for a three-game set of 854 — a 282 average.

Tilton added games of 220, 244 and 246 for a six-game total of 1,564, the highest block on the PBA circuit this year.

Rookie Chuck Mogavero, Sun Lakes, Ariz., was a distant second with 1,471.

Mike Edwards, Tulsa, Okla., was third at 1,442, followed by Jeff Bellinger, Columbia, S.C., at 1,428, and Steve Jaros, Bolingbrook, Ill., 1,414.

Legion 53 To Hold Golf Tourney

Campbell-Losing American Legion Post 53 of Sanford is hosting a golf tournament on Saturday, Aug. 17 at the Mount Plymouth Golf Course.

The tournament will be a best-ball, shotgun start and is open to the public. Entry fees must be in by 4 p.m., Aug. 16.

Post 53 is also forming a 9-hole golf league to play each Tuesday afternoon beginning at 5:30 at the Mayfair Country Club in Sanford. It will be a two-man team event against another team. There will be an 18-hole tournament at the mid-season and a final event at the end. The public is invited to join.

For more information on the upcoming tournament and the golf league, contact Post 53 at 322-1652.

Sanford Softball Holds Meetings

The Sanford Men's Softball Association will hold its organizational meeting Tuesday (Aug. 6) at 6:30 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center youth wing.

The Association will finalize league plans and elect officers on Tuesday (Aug. 13) at 6:30 at the Civic Center youth wing.

Also, the Sanford Recreation Department is forming a co-ed softball league. An organizational meeting will be held Tuesday (Aug. 20) at 6:30 at the Civic Center youth wing.

For more information on the softball leagues, call the Sanford Recreation Department at 322-3161.

Change For Brantley Physicals

The dates on the Lake Brantley High School football physicals have been changed. Patriot coach Fred Almon announced Wednesday.

The varsity physicals will be given at 6 p.m. Wednesday at the school gym. The junior varsity and freshman physicals will be given Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the gym.

Practice begins Thursday, Aug. 15.

Oliver Downs Teammate, Wins Tourney

Tennis

It wasn't quite the magnitude of John McEnroe playing his younger brother, but Sunday's match between Bonnie Oliver and Mindy Gardberg in the Central Florida Tennis Association's summer tournament at Azalea Lane Park in Winter Park was nonetheless special.

Oliver and Gardberg were teammates this past season at Lake Howell High School and helped the Lady Silver Hawks to the Five Star Conference championship. But, in the dog-eat-dog world of tennis, former and present teammates often go at each other head to head.

This time, it was Oliver who came out on top of Gardberg as the raven-haired 15-year-old won the girls 16s championship for unranked players by taking 19 of a possible 19 points.

Oliver, who also runs cross country at Lake Howell High, also won matches over Katherine Lim and Claudia Moskos en route to the girls 16s crown. In both cases, Lim 14 and Moskos four, Oliver won all of the possible points.

In the boys 16s tournament for unranked players, Vincent Regan swept Stephan Ho, 6-0, 6-4 to advance to the semifinal round. In other matches, Jordan Skinner skinned Peter Willey, 6-1, 6-1; Matt Albert trounced Eric Weiler, 6-0, 6-1 and Larry Floyd ousted Mick Smart, 6-1, 6-3.

In boys 14s play, Patrick Regan made it look easy as he took a 6-0, 6-1 match from Jon Stuckl. In the longest match of the tourney, Edward Zarembo outlasted Aaron Barr, 7-5, 6-7 (8-6), 7-6 (7-2). Also in boys 14s play, Jeff Gritsin downed Anthony Cassetta, 6-4, 6-4 and Steve Vidman outdueled Mickey Dietel, 7-5, 1-6, 6-2.

In boys 12s tournament action, Richard Zalidzar slipped by Howard Saft, 7-5, 6-4,

Bonnie Oliver

Mindy Gardberg

Ari Koss drilled Mark Kaplan, 6-0, 6-2; Brian Halligan won by default over Scott Ryan; and Jacob Garman blanked Tony Pastore, 6-0, 6-0.

In boys 10s play, Brad McDonald survived a shaky second set to come away with a 6-3, 0-6, 6-3 victory over Steve Piatt. Also, John Balch defeated Andy Stamm, 6-1, 6-0; Michael Henderson swept by Tommy Elrod, 6-1, 6-1; and Joey Mitchell pulled out a 4-6, 5-4, 7-5 win in a grueling match against John Floyd.

Verplank Ouiduels Thorpe In Playoff

Golf

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Amateur Scott Verplank was as consistent with his emotions as with his golf game.

Verplank, who said all during the $500,000 Western Open that turning down a winner's paycheck due to his amateur status would not bother him, got to show that this was not a nervous 21-year-old trying to hide his emotions Sunday.

Verplank defeated veteran Jim Thorpe on the second hole of a playoff at Butler National Golf Club to win the tournament, but not the $90,000 first-prize check.

"I just hoped to get to a pro tournament and play up to my capabilities," said Verplank of Dallas after accepting his trophy. "I just hoped to play well, and I thought if I could play well I could compete."

Verplank, who will soon begin his senior year at Oklahoma State University, even tried to explain how it was to his advantage that he was not playing for pay.

"There's no money in it for me, so if I finish second it's a good tournament for me, and if I win I get an exemption on the PGA Tour for 2 1/2 years," he said. "I think I had that going for me."

The Western Open set an attendance record with a five-day total of 123,800, and the gallery on Sunday was estimated at 28,500 despite a constant rain.

The inclement weather did not dampen the excitement

Verplank and Thorpe created. The two golfers were so far in front of the rest of the field it seemed like match-play golf throughout the final round.

Verplank led by two strokes at the start, but the lead changed hands twice before the two settled into a tie at the 18th hole.

Thorpe hit his drive into the left rough on the par-4, 442-yard 18th and had no view of the green. After watching Verplank drive down the middle of the fairway, Thorpe "started to gamble by trying to shoot over the trees," but instead punched a shot out into the middle of the fairway. He said he still thought he had a chance, depending on what Verplank did with his second shot.

All Verplank did was place his approach shot 18 feet from the cup.

Although he already had clinched a $90,000 paycheck as the runner-up to an amateur, Thorpe went for the victory and spotted his third shot 15 feet from the hole on the same line as Verplank's following birdie putt.

"I was watching it, because we didn't know the outcome," Thorpe said.

Verplank's putt missed by about an inch and Thorpe sank his par putt to force the playoff, with both golfers finishing four rounds at 9-under-par 279.

Verplank, who averaged 25.6 putts over each of his first three rounds, missed a 10-foot putt for birdie on the first playoff hole, then came away with the victory when Thorpe bogeyed the second extra hole.

"I yelled when that putt (on the second playoff hole) went in," Verplank said.

Hammel Triumphs At Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Penny Hammel probably will not be using her brother, Scott, for a caddy anymore.

Hammel, 23, credits her victory at the $175,000 Jamie Farr Toledo Classic to caddy Sue Witters, who prevented Hammel from looking at the leader board during the final round.

"My caddy would not let me look at the scoreboard. She said 'Do not look at it,'" said Hammel, who tied a course record Sunday with a 7-under-par 65 to give her a tournament total of 278 and a one-stroke victory over Nancy Lopez.

She earned top prize of $26,250.

It wasn't Patty Sheehan's day Sunday. Usually one of the lops among the leader board, Sheehan wound up 12 shots behind tournament winner Penny Hammel.

"To tell you the truth, my biggest goal was to get into the top three so I could get into the Dinah Shore," Hammel said.

Hammel carded two birdies and an eagle on the first three holes of the back nine. Despite her surge, Hammel said she was not aware of how close she was to Lopez until putting out on 18.

Witters was a substitute for Hammel's brother, who took the week off to drive from Georgia to Decatur, Ill., Hammel said.

Five Join Football Hall

Football

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Just as he did during his playing days, Roger Staubach entered the Pro Football Hall of Fame Saturday with something up his sleeve.

Staubach, noted for his knack of pulling out last-minute victories when he was the Dallas Cowboys' quarterback, is not your typical mischievous sort.

His exclamations rarely go beyond a "gosh" or a "golly," and he is well-known for his forthright Christian beliefs.

Yet, when Staubach was induced along with fellow inductees Frank Gatski, Joe Namath, Pete Rozelle and O.J. Simpson during halftime of the Hall of Fame Game, he did "something special" as he trotted to midfield.

Staubach dropped back into an imaginary pocket and whipped a pass 50 yards into the hands of shocked ballboy

Andy Logan of North Canton, delighting the record crowd of 29,940 at Fawcett Stadium.

"I've been planning this," Staubach said. "I just had to do it. It really took me back. Just reading the names of the 127 others in the Hall of Fame took me back."

"We have to be humble. We have to be grateful to God for longevity, talent and our collective achievements."

Kohde-Kilsch Rips Shriver

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Claudia Kohde-Kilsch was nearly flawless, just ask Pant Shriver.

Kilsch, appearing in her first final of the year, easily dispatched the second-seeded Shriver, 6-2, 6-3, Sunday in the final of a $250,000 tennis tournament.

The tournament is sponsored by Virginia Slims.

"She had a perfect day, I think," said Shriver, who double-faulted at match point. "She has a reputation of having raw talent and now it's become refined."

"The United States doesn't know about her. She doesn't have a weakness. She's 21 and now maturing into a fine player."

Kohde-Kilsch, the fifth seed, captured the first set with a big serve and volley game mixed in with penetrating passing shots. She broke Shriver's serve in the first game and again in the seventh before serving out the set.

Constantly pressuring Shriver, who at 23 is the No. 4 player in the world, the 6-foot-1 Kohde-Kilsch continued her sensational play in the second set.

"I thought I had a chance today if I could break and hold my service," Kohde-Kilsch said. "I didn't expect such a short match and so many breaks for me. I served well. I don't play like this every day."

...Debate

"Pony League started for 13s and 14s in 1951. It wasn't until later that Little League put in programs for the older boys."

Although Crawford and Withrow tend to disagree on many ideas, they are in accord in one area. "The success of any program lies within the local community," said Crawford. "No league can be any good without community support, which we have in Oviedo and Altamonte."

Withrow concurs. "You have to have good people in your organization," said Withrow. "From the administrators on down to the coaches, parents and players."

Both Crawford and Withrow have heard most of the arguments. Yet, neither is awayed from his philosophy.

"I'm pretty satisfied with Little League's setup," said Crawford. "One big change that we need is adults coaching the bases at the Major League level and lower. I bring that proposal up every year. One of these years, I'll get it approved."

Withrow, too, is completely satisfied with Pony Baseball's game.

"Pony Baseball is the only game in town. We teach baseball, not some watered-down version of the game," he said. "Seminole Pony plays baseball. Altamonte plays Little League."

Black Dissidents On Trial For Igniting Racial Unrest

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Sixteen black dissidents charged with igniting racial unrest that has claimed 500 lives went on trial today for treason, and police said the number of people jailed under state of emergency powers reached 1,426.

The government indictment alleges the 16 played leading roles in violence that began in September and has so far killed 500 people. They are all members of the United Democratic Front, the nation's largest opposition group.

Legal sources said the trial would be the most important since African National Congress leaders Nelson Mandela and Walter Sisulu were sentenced to life imprisonment for treason in 1964.

The 16 face charges of high treason and political offenses under the Internal Security Act. High treason is punishable by the death penalty.

The trial began today in Pietermaritzburg, about 350 miles southeast of Johannesburg, as the government-imposed state of emergency in 36 black cities and towns entered its third week.

Castro: Vesco In Cuba

HAVANA (UPI) — President Fidel Castro confirmed a man filmed in Havana by NBC News was Robert Vesco, the fugitive financier who reportedly had become involved in cocaine trafficking, but denied reports he is under house arrest.

Castro, speaking before foreign journalists covering a conference on international debt, said Sunday that Vesco came to Cuba several years ago in search of medical attention. He denied Vesco is under house arrest in Cuba.

Vesco, 49, fled the United States in late 1971 apparently to avoid a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation into some of his business deals.

He contributed $200,000 to former President Richard Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign, allegedly to block the SEC investigation. Officials of the Committee to Re-Elect the President said they returned the cash because the SEC inquiry was still in progress.

Nixon's attorney general, John Mitchell, and finance committee chairman Maurice Stans, went on trial in 1974 on charges of trying to block the SEC inquiry in return for Vesco's contribution to CREEP. Both were acquitted.

In 1976, Vesco was indicted by a federal grand jury in New York on charges of looting more than $100 million in mutual funds from a European firm undergoing liquidation.

U.S. IRA Backers In N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Police are guarding against a show of strength by the outlawed Irish Republican Army this week as dozens of American supporters of the republican movement arrive in Ulster.

August is a month of emotional anniversaries for both Roman Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland.

The spokesman said the IRA could coordinate attacks throughout the week "to heighten tension and create a scenario of strife for the benefit of American audiences," especially visiting supporters of NOROID, the controversial Irish Northern Aid Committee.

More than 100 American backers of the organization crossed into the province from the Irish Republic on Sunday.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and President Reagan have repeatedly warned NOROID is an organization that finances IRA terrorism. NOROID says it collects money to help the victims of what it terms British oppression in Northern Ireland.

First Walker On Trial For Spying

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The city that goes down to the sea in ships becomes center stage today for what could be the most damaging case of espionage against the United States in 30 years.

Arthur Walker, 50, described by neighbors and friends as a devoted family man and active civic leader, is to be the first of four current and former Navy men to stand trial as Soviet spies.

Court-appointed attorneys representing Walker have been granted their 11th-hour request to have their client tried by a judge, not a jury.

Samuel Meekins, Walker's lead defense attorney, said Sunday night the decision for the judge to hear the case was made Saturday in a meeting of Walker's attorneys, prosecutors and U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke.

"We just thought it was smart based on everything (the evidence) that would be coming in," Meekins said. "We felt the judge would give us a fair trial."

The jury pool in the case was about 125 people, Meekins said, and it would have taken two to three days to select a 12-member panel. The testimony will probably take a week to 10 days.

Walker is accused of funneling military secrets from the files of a defense contractor to his brother, John Walker, the suspected ring leader.

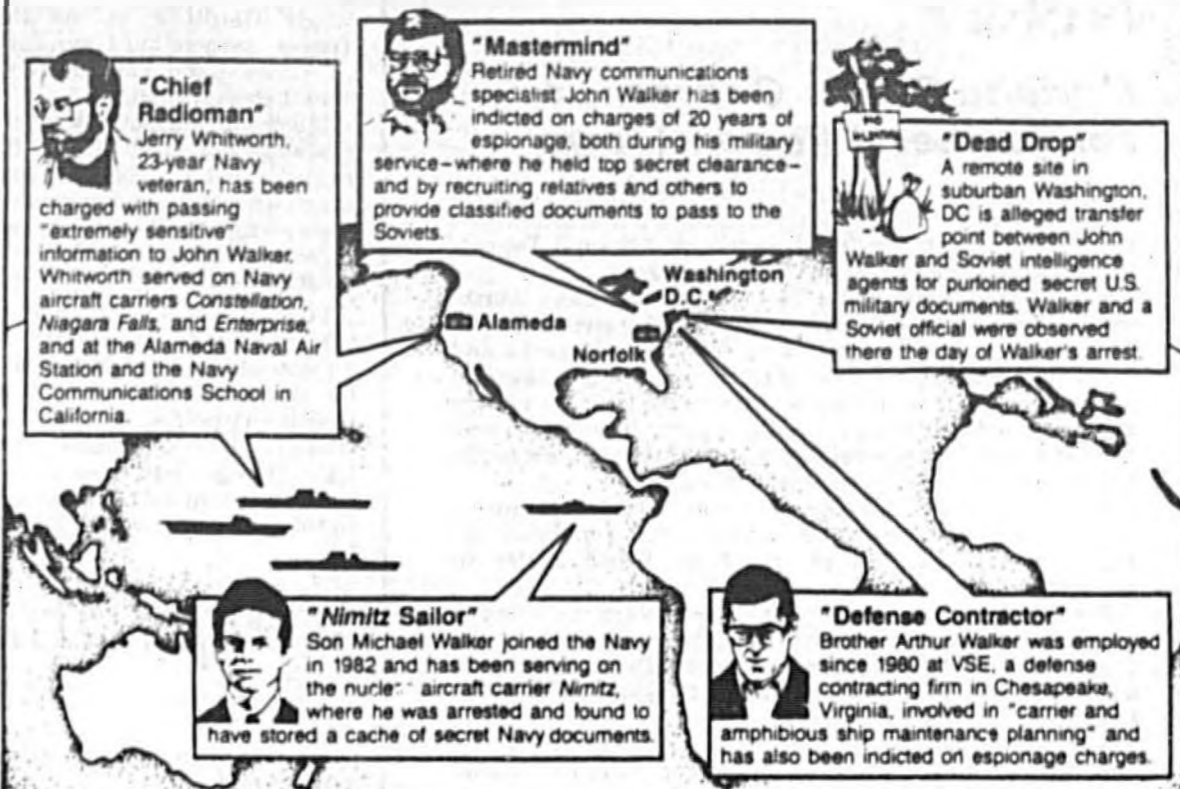

If convicted, the bespectacled Arthur Walker could spend the rest of his life in jail.

The same potential sentence awaits John Walker, 47, and the two other defendants.

communications expert who has been described as John Walker's best friend.

John and Michael Walker, father and son, are to stand trial in Baltimore Oct. 28. Whitworth is scheduled to go on trial in San Francisco Aug. 26.

Federal authorities say the suspected Walker spy ring may have caused the most damage to U.S. security since Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were convicted of selling atomic weapons secrets to Moscow in the 1950s.

After the case surfaced, the military tightened security and Congress moved to make espionage during peacetime punishable by death. Such a penalty can now only be imposed during war.

John Walker, a former Navy warrant officer, is accused of heading a family-and-friend operation that tracked the U.S. nuclear submarine fleet and penetrated the Norfolk Naval Base, the world's largest with about 100,000 military personnel and 126 ships.

Whitworth, a decorated Vietnam veteran, is believed to have been the ring's hook into the Navy's Pacific Fleet.

The FBI believes John Walker, who worked in Norfolk as a private investigator, had been spying for the Soviets for 20 years, providing them with a blueprint to elude America's undersea defense network that warns of nuclear attack.

The government's case against Arthur Walker includes what the FBI says is his confession that he accepted $12,000 from his brother in 1980 in return for confidential documents he slipped from the files of VSE Corp. in nearby Chesapeake, Va., where he worked as an engineer.

In June, Clarke rejected a defense motion to declare the confession inadmissible. The defense argued its acquisition had violated Walker's legal rights.

later in the morning, then one of them would be able to stay later.

But Benson told the commission that they are both needed to handle the morning traffic rush. He also told the commission that more crimes are committed during daylight hours.

"National statistics show that more breaking and entering and burglaries occur in broad daylight than at any other time of the day," Benson explained.

In his budget, Benson has requested two new officers, but the city commission may only authorize hiring one.

The Lake Mary Police Department has 10 officers.

As for patrol cars being seen at the station, Benson said several of the cars are not in running condition and that when two or three officers are at the station filling out reports or taking a break, the lot is full of police cars.

Another sore spot in Benson's budget is his request for two new police cars. The city commission and Fess agreed new vehicles are needed, but they are not sure whether or not to buy new ones.

"It is a fact that police cars average about 70,000 to 80,000 miles a year," Megonegal told the commission. "When a car gets that many miles, it starts nickel and diming you to death with repairs."

The police department just spent $2,200 fixing up car 97. Benson had the motor overhauled, a rebuilt transmission installed, and the differential replaced.

The commission criticized Benson for spending that much on the car which has 135,000 miles.

A new patrol car would cost the city about $13,000, a sum which the commission is reluctant to spend.

"If we buy a new car, in a year we'll have a pile of junk," Megonegal said.

He suggested that Lake Mary look into buying used cruisers from the Highway Patrol.

Every year, the state auctions off Highway Patrol cruisers. Each Highway Patrol cruiser is used for two years and sold.

"The used Highway Patrol cars have about 60,000 to 70,000 miles and can be purchased for about $600-$800," Tremel said.

The cruisers have been well maintained by the state, according to a report read by Tremel. Daytona Beach Shores bought several of the cruisers.

The commission estimated that the total cost of a used cruiser would be $2,500. After the cruiser is purchased, it has to be painted and refitted with lights and other equipment.

property occupied by her home off Weldon Boulevard for potential commercial professional development in the city's new comprehensive plan. Mayor Dick Fess said. No request has been made to rezone the property, he said.

Mrs. Terwilliger said with the widening of the road, her property is not a fit place to have a home and raise children and the city was "more than happy" to designate the tract for future commercial development.

Michael Beha, public information officer at the state Department of Transportation office in Deland, said in the process of widening Weldon Boulevard a lot of soil washed into the pond and construction crews dumped "trash and things" there. "That complaint is certainly accurate and very obvious," Beha said.

He added, however, the DOT's offer to clean up the pond immediately was rejected by Mrs. Terwilliger who refused to give permission for the workers to walk on her property to pick anything up.

Mrs. Terwilliger said today that there are water moccasins in the pond and if one of the workers were bit she might be liable. "I did not have a legal representative at the meeting," she said.

Beha said the pond is not a true pond, but rather a "wet weather pond" that fills up during rains and dries up part of the year.

He said the DOT got an exemption from the state Department of Environmental Regulation for work at the pond because it is not a true pond but rather a wet weather pond that fills during rainy weather.

Beha also assured that once the road construction is completed the pond will be restored to the condition it was before the road work began.

The drainage plans for the project call for installation of a pipe in the pond to direct water when it gets to a certain level to other pipes under the road and on to the U.S. Highway 17-92 drainage system.

Mrs. Terwilliger said the pond is being used by the state for storm water retention.

Beha said DOT officers will be dropping by the project regularly for spot checks.

Total cost of construction only is $583,288 with the state paying $520,788. The state has also set aside $100,000 to acquire the needed right-of-way. Seminole County got involved when the state's share was said to be insufficient to complete the project. The county pledged $62,500 in impact fees which normally are used to benefit schools. The school board gave its blessing, said county Public Works Director Larry Sellers.

Skaters Move Over For Teenagers' Night Club

Beginning Saturday, Aug. 10 and every Saturday night from then on, roller skaters will give way to dancing shoes at the new J.J. Silver's Night Club for teenagers located at the All American Roller Rink in Altamonte Springs.

Sponsored by All American and local MADD and SADD chapters, the glittery club will offer non-alcoholic beverages, dance contests and guest bands. It is hoped that a teen club of this calibre in the community will be an alternative to hanging about parking lots and "drinkin' and cruisin'."

MADD and SADD chapters plan to help support the club through promotional and community involvement. An M.T.V. Commercial is also in the works to be shot at Silver's. There will be a cover-charge and minimal costs for food and drink. Silver's will be open to teens, 15 through 19.

Registration for the Seminole Youth Sports Association's fall football season is open. A fee of $40 per participant is requested. Youth, ages 7 through 15, are eligible. Please write for forms to P.O. Box 1075, Altamonte Springs, 32701.

How Come A Nice Girl Like You Isn't Married?

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful daughter who never caused me a moment's trouble all her growing-up years. She worked to help put herself through college, and now she has a degree and holds down a good job. She is totally self-supporting, has a beautiful apartment, lots of friends, and she loves her work. She is morally straight, has a great sense of humor, belts out a song like Streisand and dances up a storm. And she's pretty to boot.

So what's my problem? She's 26 years old and there are no immediate prospects for marriage. This does not bother me, but it seems to bother a lot of relatives, who keep nagging her about not being married yet. They seem to think that any kind of marriage would be better than none, and tend to "worry" about her because she's still single.

I am not allowed to say anything because it might cause family problems, so I am asking you to deliver this message: Kindly keep your mouths shut, and give single people a break. No name or address, please. My daughter would kill me.

PROUD MOTHER

DEAR PROUD: Here's your letter. Let's hope it will reduce the number of concerned relatives who ask, "How come a nice girl like you isn't married?"

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, some girls I work with invited my husband and me to join a potluck dinner group that meets once a month. We accepted, and realized after about six months that this group was not for us.

They're all nice people, but most of them have small children, who are their main interest, naturally. We don't have children yet — and aren't planning to have any in the near future.

Every month we get a phone call reminding us where to meet and what to bring. I have tried to say we couldn't make it, but I get pumped for a foolproof excuse, which I can never come up with, so we end up going. I've tried to say we are busy with other things, but I've run out of excuses. I hate to hurt anybody's feelings, but I'd really like to know how to drop out of this group.

POTLUCKED OUT

DEAR POTLUCKED OUT: Don't try to come up with an "excuse" — give a reason — the real one. My husband and I have discussed it and we've decided to drop out. Period.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister, "Lucy," offered to keep our 2-year-old son while my husband and I went away for the weekend.

When we got back, my husband picked up our son, and when I saw that child I nearly fainted! Lucy had given him a haircut, and he didn't look like the same child. Abby, he had a head of beautiful golden curls, and she cut all of those beautiful curls off.

His father wasn't upset at all. He said the boy had looked like a girl, and it was high time he had a haircut anyway.

HOPSCOTCH

I wasn't ready to see those curls go. I think what my sister-in-law did was unforgivable. I feel angry, resentful and betrayed. Nobody I've spoken to thinks what Lucy did was so terrible. I guess I just need someone to tell me I'm not crazy for feeling the way I do.

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: You are not crazy. Your sister-in-law had no business taking it upon herself to give your son a haircut. But perhaps his father was right. It may have been high time for the boy to look like a boy.

Eye Infection Can Lead To Scarring Of Cornea

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — Can conjunctivitis cause scarring of the cornea?

DEAR READER — Ordinarily, conjunctivitis refers to an inflammation of the covering of the white of the eyeball, but it has many causes and it can affect the cornea. Viral conjunctivitis, in particular, can involve the cornea; as the infection clears, scarring can become visible.

Most conjunctivitis of the pink-eye variety clears up with minimal treatment and results in no long-lasting eye problems. However, severe conjunctivitis is usually extremely painful and sends the patient to an ophthalmologist. Any person with eye pain should see a doctor or eye specialist. Vision is too valuable a gift to take chances with it.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently our daughter was very ill with intestinal gastroenteritis. How does this differ from dysentery?

DEAR READER — Dysentery refers to a severe colitis caused by either one-cell organisms called amoebae or by specific bacteria. I don't hear the term much nowadays, probably because we don't see much amoebic or bacillary dysentery in the United States.

Gastroenteritis is still quite common, however. This is the common "intestinal flu" everyone is familiar with; it comes on suddenly, is usually caused by a virus and produces nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. The body loses so much fluid so fast that dehydration can often result. Fortunately for most people, recovery is rapid if the patient limits his diet for 24 hours and consumes only ginger ale, water, beef broth and tea. Although gastroenteritis can be serious in young children and the elderly, most adults are ill for only 24 to 48 hours. Dysentery is a more devastating illness and can last for several days.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am three months pregnant. My sister has chicken pox, and I have been exposed to it. I had it as a child, but can I get it again, and will it harm my baby?

DEAR READER — Once you have had chicken pox, you cannot get it again. You have developed permanent antibodies to the virus, and these antibodies will immediately inactivate any pox virus that wanders into your system.

Fortunately, your unborn baby is protected by your immunity until several weeks after birth. I don't advise you to take unnecessary chances with your sister's disease, but I think you and your baby are safe. Call your obstetrician and ask his advice.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio, 44101.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

For experts, one exciting part of bridge occurs when there is an opportunity to deceive an adversary, to fool him into taking a losing line of play. Today's deal took place in the French International Trials of 1977. The young French star Dominique Pilon was the West player.

Against four spades, three rounds of diamonds were led, declarer ruffing with the spade nine on the third round. His plan, not necessarily well-conceived, was that should he be overruffed, he would be able to get to dummy in the trump suit to play the heart ace and then take a ruffing finesse against East's presumed heart king. (East had opened the bidding.) That thinking was not too bad, and note well that should the king of spades win the third trick, declarer's plan would work. The ace of spades would bring down the 10, dummy would be reached with the spade six, and the ruffing finesse would give declarer enough discards to take care of his losing clubs. But along the way something strange happened. Pilon sluffed a heart when South ruffed with the spade nine.

What was our poor declarer to think? Apparently East held the K-10 of spades. Relying on that assumption, declarer played ace and a club, intending to ruff the third club and take a trump finesse.

East won the second club and played another diamond, and now finally Pilon scored the trump king to set the hand.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 6, 1985

Involvements in unique ventures or enterprises could work out remarkably well for you in the year ahead. Use your imagination to step out in front of the crowd.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An enterprise in which you're interested can be promoted successfully today because of what you know as well as who you know. Major changes are ahead for Leos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Chance will play a major role today in determining the outcome of an important event. Fortunately, Lady Luck will be rooting for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) People who meet you for the first time today will be favorably impressed. This is good news because someone to whom you'll be introduced can help you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unusual ideas are stirring in your favor today where money is concerned. You could end up profiting from something, while those with whom you're involved may not.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Doing fun and different things today will freshen your outlook and attitude and help put you in a more positive frame of mind for the days ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Gains will come much easier today if you first think of what you can do that will benefit others. You'll profit from what spills over.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have greater influence over your peer group today than you may realize. Be sure that everything you say or do is constructive and encouraging.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 19) You are now in a cycle where secret ambitions can be fulfilled. Put forth your best effort so your dreams can become reality.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Challenging situations will serve as a catalyst to awaken your ingenuity and resourcefulness today. You won't be caught napping.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you may be exposed to two moneymaking developments. Each will require prompt action on your behalf if they're to materialize.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Associates may require time to ponder over proposals today, but you should be able to know in a flash whether they're good or bad. Trust your judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not discount any moneymaking ideas you get today, even if they sound a trifle outlandish to others. Those who evaluate them may lack your foresight.
