The Jax Gang In Seminole County

"...Thugs With A Common Goal...Nothing To Lose"

By DENNIS FEOLA

A bench warrant has been issued in Seminole County for an alleged member of a gang of criminals believed responsible for two murders and more than 200 robberies and burglaries in Florida in three years.

Circuit Court Judge J. William Woodson issued the warrant after William Lewis Lawley, 31, failed to appear at the Seminole County Courthouse Monday to face charges of attempted burglary, possession of burglary tools and conspiracy to commit a

The charges stem from an attempted burglary at the Longwood Village Pharmacy March 11. Lawley was freed after posting what is considered an unusually high bond in burglary cases of $31,500. Investigators said it was the third time the gang has marked the Longwood pharmacy as its target. During the second attempt, an armed robbery on Dec. 29, 1977, Seminole County Reserve Deputy George Pfeil happened to walk in the store and in a shoot-out with Terry Michael Sims, 36, Pfeil was shot twice and killed.

robbery similar to the one in Longwood, was Warrington, Fla., pharmacist Woodrow Moulton, 56. An escapee from the Tennessee State Prison, Marvin Edwin Johnson, 35, is being sought for Moulton's killing. Sheriff's deputies in Escambia County said Moulton pulled a gun from under a counter and fired at Johnson, who fell to the floor, rolled over and fired at Moulton hitting him in the chest. A spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Orlando acknowledged that most of the intelligence work on the gang has been done by Seminole County 11. Detective Antonio Calangelo and Detective Ralph Salerno since the Pfeil murder.

Salerno identified Clarence Eugene Robinson, 33, who is atlarge and is being sought as the driver of the getaway cars in the Pfeil and Moulton murders, as the leader of the gang-Sims and Johnson were also identified as key leaders of the

Sadat Cans Envoy; He Won't Return

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - Egypt fired its ambassador to Portugal and called him home to face disciplinary action for criticizing President Anwar Sadat's policies, but the envoy ignored the order today.

An official announcement said Foreign Minister Mo-hammed Kamel removed Ambassador Saad Eddin Shazli from his Lisbon post "for gross violation of his duties." It said the retired general and former armed forces chief of staff had been ordered home to face a disciplinary board. Shazli said today he was leaving Lisbon, but not to return home to face disciplinary charges.

"As a patriot, I am the accuser and Sadat is the accused," the ambassador said in the Portuguese capital "Why should I return and allow Sadat - who permits no one to judge him — to sit in judgment on me?"

The fuss was created when Shazli distributed a statement in Lisbon critical of Sadat's peace policies and accusing him of herding his opponents into prison. "If there were real democracy in Egypt, we could not have chosen that wrong foreign policy (the peace Laws recently introduced by Sadat to curb dissent "are

Swine Flu Victims Get Nod For U.S. Damages

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hundreds of Americans temporarily paralyzed by swine flu shots in 1976 need not prove government negligence to collect millions of dollars in damages, HEW Secretary Joseph Califano announced today.

Americans were not warned that they might get polio-like Guillain-Barre syndrome as a side effect of the flu shots, Califano said. The government action was the first step toward settling $775 million in claims against the government - $365 million of that by persons who were temporarily struck down by Guillain-Barre.

Twenty-three died from the syndrome

'Prosecutors Can Be Sued'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court Monday let stand a lower court ruling that Guy Goodwin, who headed a Justice Department unit to prosecute crime by revolutionary terrorists," could be sued by a group of Vietnam Veterans Against the War or perjury during a grand jury investigation.

The court's action clears the way for Goodwin, who obtained scores of indictments against anti-war figures in the 1960s and 1970s. to be sued for damages on charges he lied to a judge. Government lawyers warn it might have an impact on the thinking of other federal courts and expose prosecutors "to significant risks in connection with a major aspect of their duties."

Anita: Don't Give Names

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) - Anita Bryant's anti-gay rights organization has asked that it not be forced to reveal names of persons who contributed a total of $3,000 to a Seattle initiative campaign. Protect Our American Children, based in Miami, said in a letter to the Public Disclosure Commission last week that disclosing the names would "run the risk of threats or even bodily harm."

Bundy Wins Trial Delay

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Theodore Bundy, suspect in Florida State University's Chi Omega killings, has won still another delay in his trials on 64 burglary, auto theft and forgery charges.

Circuit Judge John Rudd Monday rescheduled Bundy's trial on seven burglary and six grand theft counts from June 29 to Sept. 12.

Bundy is to go on trial July 16 on 16 forgery counts, but his attorneys are expected to seek a postponement.

Radiation And Mastectomy

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Dr. Melvin Deutsch of Pittsburgh told the American Medical Association Monday studies have shown no significant difference in survival rates for women undergoing radical mastectomy - in which the entire breast is removed - and women who have received radiation treatment to control cancer.

Deutsch, a doctor specializing in radiotherapy, said, "There is a large group of patients who can get by with less than radical mastectomy without jeopardizing survival."

A Man Who Cares & Does

John Baenan of Altamonte Springs is a refreshing change from the usual "don't-want-toget-involved" syndrome that infects most people

The attitude is usually illustrated by the haves" of our society who are cozy and smug in their little worlds, and could care less about the have nots" down the street.

(Indeed, speaking currently, an argument could be made — and has been by some observers - that last week's Proposition 13 vote in California resulting in cuts of services and job layoffs hitting the lower economic level citizens first and worst — is a good example of this).

But, closer to home, John Baenan is different He cares. He sees an inequity and is working hard to correct it, as was so vividly explained in our story of Mr. Baenan in The Sunday Herald.

It seems that, from the vantage point of his home in Altamonte, he noticed that less than a mile away, members of the black community have been living in some intolerable conditions. And he noticed hostility and indifference to their plight from his own white community.

It surely is very obvious to everyone that we still have two societies, separate and unequal," he observed perceptively.

Specifically, he worked within the community to whip into shape a community center in the Winwood Park area. He even got members of his church to attend a special prayer meeting with the corresponding church in the black community and organized joint projects and get-togethers to finance the plan and get things rolling.

Result: the community center and recreational park at Winwood Park materialized. And all

But now there is another problem. The Head Start program which occupies part of the facility is imperiled. It doesn't meet the exact space needs required by federal guidelines.
Once again, John Balenan appeals undeterred.

He has joined with Azel Q. Lester, president of the South Seminole Community for Progress, in preparing plans to correct the facility's inadequacies and allow it to continue to house Head

A new home for Head Start might even result. And the white and black communities are working

But, whatever happens, John Baenan has proven himself to be something more than a talker and dreamer. He is a doer. He is a doer where it really counts.

John Baenan indeed is a refreshing voice. We're proud to have him as part of our com-

Cold War 'Hysteria?'

Recent criticism of the Soviet Union by President Carter and his spokesmen has brought charges from Moscow of "anti-Soviet hysteria" in the United States. The "tough line" preceived by Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, is the U.S. response to such Russian adventurism as the intervention in Africa, growing belligerence on the part of the Kremlin, a renewed attack on Soviet dissidents and Soviet "stonewalling" in arms limitation talks.

But the president's plea to Moscow to moderate its activities for other incumbents anxious to follow his dubious example.

around the world, including Soviet encouragement of Cuba's intervention in Angola and Zaire, merely recognized a renewed Communist bid to expand Soviet influence.

The people are not hysterical. They are concerned.

Sadat: No More Smiling

By DON GRAFF

So effectively has he played the role that it is surprising to recall it was less than a year ago hat Egypt's President Anwar Sadat emerged as fr. Nice Guy in the Middle East.

Starting with his dramatic mission to Jerusalem last November, Sadat's initiatives and force of personality have held center stage throughout the on-again, off-again discussions

He has had, to be sure, considerable unintentional assistance from Jerusalem. In contrast to the dour Menahem Begin and is confused and divided government, the smiling, assured Sadat has appeared to personify reasonableness, good will and the best hopes for an equitable settlement of the long It has been a performance that caught and held world attention, and seemed to confirm what some in the West had long been telling the Arabs: Drop the talk of holy war and threats to push the Jews into the sea, recognize Israel's

The performance has been losing some of its zip of late, however. Sadat is smiling less and dowering more.

existence and offer to negotiate differences facto face and friends are to be won in the West

After calling a plebiscite to register public support for his policies, he has curbed the Egyptian press and the very mild opposition which had just begun expressing itself in the reer political climate he had been encouraging. He has lapsed into the hawkish rhetoric so fismally characteristic of the Arabs, telling his Sinai troops to be prepared to go to war with Israel once more if his peace initiatives fail.

toward the West. Reported to be unhappy about his recent press abroad, Sadat has warned foreign correspondents in Egypt that the price of writing "something wrong" may be expulsion. Egypt, he proclaims, is starting a new era of discipline, whatever that may mean other than a return to the same old authoritarian dead center

It is understandable that Sadat may feel frustration at the lack of progress in the contacts with Israel. And it may be that some show of irmness is necessary to maintain his position at nome and in the Arab world.

But if his recent actions are accurate intications of a new course, it is one on which he stands to lose more than to gain in the long run.

It would be to Sadat's disadvantage and to that of prospects for eventual peace in the Mideast should he abandon the positive image and the good will he has acquired in the West. It would demonstrate something else the West might tell the Arabs: Easy come, easy go.

By LEONARD KRANSDORF

Before she is through, Dorothy Cornell will have traveled about 2480 miles for a cat Her most recent trip took place this week as she traveled from Winstead, Conn., to Sanford in search of her lost cat. Mowie. The saga of the missing Mowie began in May, as Mrs. Cornell had traveled from Hollywood, Fla., to Sanford on her way up to Connecticut. "I had placed her in the car overnight with the windows down like I usually do," Mrs. Cornell said. "There was a lot of noise from nearby cars and that probably frightened her. When I opened the door, she just flew out and went underneath the car." she said. Several employees from the local Holiday Inn tried to assist Mrs. Cornell in retrieving the cat, but Mowie would have no part of it as she jumped from one car to another "The last time I saw her she was tearing up the east side of the building," Mrs. Cornell recalled. But the loss of the cat who is gray with a white chest.

animal control departments which helped me whenever I asked," she added. The latest attempt to catch Mowie was the placement of a cat trap near Mrs. Cornell's hotel

But thus far, even with all the help, the search for Mowie has proved fruitless. 'I'm getting so depressed because I don't have much money, but I thought when I came back I'd be able to find her," she said. Each day, Mrs. Cornell gets in her car, accompanied by her two poodles, Taw and Jacques, and rides around hoping to find the missing Mowie. Her hopes were lifted earlier this week when responding to her classified ad - an employee from Seminole Memorial called and said the cat was under car in the parking lot. "I went with Mowie's favorite can of cat food, and placed some under the car, but it turned out it wasn't Mowie." Mrs. Cornell said

She recalls another call she received before she carr back down from Connecticut. "A lady had gone to the pound to look for her poodle and saw a cat that looked like Mowie, but it turned out it

Mrs. Cornell's love for the missing cat spans 10 years. She was crying in the bushes outside our Hollywood

Mrs. Cornell is returning to Connecticut Thursday, but she will still keep her ad running, and hope for the best. Even though she is just a common ordinary alley cat.

Senate Boss: Cut Budgets

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Incoming Senate President Phil Lewis ordered committee staff directors today to come up with ways to cap state spending and scrutinize city and county budgets to avoid "another New York City."

Proposition 13, the much-heralded tax-cutting measure approved by California voters earlier this month, isn't practical for Florida, Lewis said, "but while the iron is hot, let's do

Lewis, a West Palm Beach businessman, succeeds Senate President Lew Brantley in the November organizational session. The California plan cut property taxes in half. Ad valorem taxe in Florida already are capped, Lewis said, they are lower than in many other states, and the money they raise goes exclusively to cities, counties and school districts. Lewis wants to control cap spending - it will surpass the $6 billion mark for the first time this coming fiscal year and has doubled since the mid 1960's. That could be accomplished by limiting the growth in the budget to, say 7 percent a year, or capping the number of state employees. Another method would be to make the public schools totally state funded, which would cost some $900 million a year. and require local governments to cut property taxes.

"I want to consider all of the alternaltives, but we should do something. The people are getting tired of paying for government and they are demanding we respond," Lewis said.
