Power boat races approved

SANFORD - The city commission last night said yes to plans for the first powerboat racing event planned for Lake Monroe.

The commission gave Sunset Sports Associates permits for the Coors Light Sanford Superchallenge '90, scheduled for May 12 and 13. Promoters say they expect about 100 boats and 25,000 spectators for the event.

Sunset Sports will have to pay $15,000 - the estimated cost to the city for providing police and fire protection, trash pickup and other services - one week before the event, the commission agreed last night. City Manager Frank Faison had recommended requiring payment of half one week before, and payment of the other half after the event.

The commission also agreed to block off Seminole Boulevard from Myrtle Avenue to the marina on both race days. First Street will be blocked off from Park to Sanford avenues May il for a boat display and street festival.

Ten percent of all race revenues will benefit the Thomas Whigham Fund for AIDS research.

Tracks prove tough on tires

LONGWOOD - Five drivers reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies yesterday that their car tires were punctured as they crossed a railroad track on County Road 427 in

The deputy said a spike on the track was loose and a Scaboard Coastline representative came to the scene and removed the spike. Six tires valued at $50 each were damaged, according to a sheriff's report.

Cutbacks on tubing called a success

FORT WHITE - An experiment to cut down on the number of people floating down the river on inner tubes at the ichetucknee Springs State Park is a success, state wildlife officials said

About a year ago, the state put limits on the number of people that could enter the north end of the river and and go tubing. The plan was aimed at restoring ecologically important aquatic vegetation in the narrow and delicate upper reaches of the spring-fed river.

The Ichetucknee is a popular destination with tubers, but its popularity resulted in littering and ecological destruction. The state bought the land around the spring and the river to preserve it, but did not institute controls until last year.

Capacity at the park is 3,000 people a day, but officials last year cut admission to the north end of the park - which had become almost barren of vegetation caused by trampling tubers - to 750, who enter the river through turnstiles.

Martinez signs 'drug-free' order

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Bob Martinez aigned an executive order Monday implementing the state's new drug-free workplace program, meaning some state employees will be subject to drug tests within 60 days.

His order relates only to those 12 state agencies under the governor's direct control. Notification could come at any time for those agencies under control of the members of the Florida Cabinet, officials said, but so far none of the six Cabinet members have followed Martinez's lead.

The executive order was not unexpected. In January, Martinez formally notified all 350 employes of the Executive Office of the Governor that drug testing would begin within 60 days, which means that all are now subject to the tests.

Fire under control, still burning

NAPLES - Firefighters battled a 2-day-old wildfire that acorched 400 acres of brush on the outskirts of Naples Monday. The fire was contained late Sunday and was under control but still burning at midday Monday, a spokesman for the state

Division of Forestry said. "We've got several units at the scene and hopefully we'll have a handle on it before things start drying out, before the humidity drops and the winds start picking up." said forestry spokesman

Hank Oraham. "We're just working some of the little hot spots." The fire was burning about 3 miles south of Alligator Alley. Just east of State Road 951. Both roads remained open.

There was no threat to buildings or people, Graham said. Forestry officials believe the blaze was started by a campfire.

Most Florida residents favor beer tax

MIAMI - More than three quarters of Floridians polled earlier this month favored a 2-cent-a-bottle beer tax for drug prevention and rehabilitation programs, a university said Monday.

The survey of 403 people conducted March 16 and 17 by the Institute for Public Opinion Research of Florida International University showed very strong support for the tax by all income

"This public opinion survey powerfully supports the bills proposing a 2-cent-a-bottle tax on beer which have been filed with the Legislature," said Edward T. Foote II, president of the University of Miami and chairman of The Miami Coalition For A ommuniiv.

Martlyn Wagner Culp, director of The Miami Coalition, said there are a number of drug prevention and treatment programs

"The problem is that there are not nearly enough dollars available to treat all those who are addicted and want help, nor are there enough dollars to fund the prevention programs which have been proven in practice."

Of those surveyed, 76.4 percent favored the beer tax, while only 20.6 percent opposed it, the university said.

CAPE CANAVERAL - NASA managers, after reviewing two possible problems with the space shuttle Discovery's landing gear. Monday recommended that the spacecraft take off on schedule April 12 to launch the Hubble Space Telescope.

"The managers that met today have determined the causes of the two conditions on the nose landing gear. They feel neither is a constraint to Discovery's next mission." said NASA spokesman Ed Campion in Washington. "They're recommendation is to fly."

The recommendation came after officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and its contractors conducted tests and analysis. on two potential landing gear problems.

Technicians had found a nut on the landing gear of another shuttle had moved slightly out of alignment, and that housing surrounding the axle of the landing gear had apparently hit the axie. causing slight damage, Campion said.

But the analysis indicated the misaligned nut. apparently caused by the impact of a heavy "slap-down" during landing, would not move anymore during the landing of the upcoming flight, Campion said.

The analysis also indicated the axle housing problem occurred on shuttles that landed harder than the Discovery has in the past or would during the next mission, making it unlikely it would be a problem, Campien said.

Parents sue hotel after kid's 7-story fall from balcony

UPI Report

POMPANO BEACH -The parents of a toddler who fell through a hotel balcony railing and survived a seven-story fall have filed a negligence lawsuit against the Quality inn, saying their son suffered permanent injuries.

Rvan Smith, 18 months old. fractured six vertabrae in his back and neck Feb. 18 when he fell 70 to 80 feet onto a concrete patio at the Pompano Beach hotel, said Jon Krupnick, the family's attorney. The boy also broke a leg.
"At this time there does not appear to be any paralyels or brain damage, which is miraculous." Krupnick said Monday. But these are not insignificant injuries."

The suit, filed in Broward County Circuit Court Feb. 26, asked for unspecified damages. Krupnick said dollar figures would be specified later, after doctors learn more about the boy's injuries and medical bills.

Among other injuries, the fall damaged the crucial top vertebra on which the head pivots. Krupnick said.

Sturm defends role on county commission

By LACY DOMEN Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Seminole County Commissioner Bob Sturm said yesterday statements made Saturday by Dick Fess, who is challenging him for his District 2 commission seat, are exaggerated. "I would take exception to all of his remarks." he said.

Fess had said the commission was weakened by constant bickering. Sturm denied com-missioners fought. "I would call them major philosophical differences," Sturm said.

Fess said Sturm had made several sexist remarks to female commissioners. Sturm replied "I never made those statements. I said I would be watching them closely on any major decisions. And Mr. Fess needs to ask my wife if I'm a sexist," he said.

Sturm said he had hoped to enter the September primary unopposed. "(My advisors) felt a long time ago if we were opposed by anyone it would be him."

Sturm said the Lake Mary city commission, which Fess presides over as mayor, was headed in the right direction. "But he (Fess) doesn't have a voting record. Even though he's been mayor for six years, he has only vote on the commission since December," Sturm said. Prior to December, Lake Mary's mayor was not allowed to vote.

Sturm said he has never backed away from a decision in his 11 years as a county commissioner. "My vote has always been cast in the best interest of Seminole County," he said.

Fess said the commissioners

didn't provide direction for the county school system. Sturm said he has always worked closely with the school board. He said he and fellow commissioners Fred Streetman and Sandra Glenn had helped secure school sites and shared impact fees with the school board, which has saved taxpayers money and fostered road improvements.

Fess had vowed earlier to outwork the incumbent. "He has more money than I do, but I can. ontwork nim. He can DUY billboards, brochures, and signs. but he can't buy the voters in this county. They're too smart for that," Fese said.

Sturm said Fess should work hard. "My opponents in the last two elections worked hard, too. 1 knew what hard work was before I ever heard of Dick Fesa.' Sturm said.

Sheriff's deputies taught how to recognize Alzheimer's patients

By SUBAN LODEN Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Seminole County sheriff's deputies have joined other area lawmen in learning tips that will help them recognize wandering Alzheimer's patients.

Deputies were shown a training tape produced by the Alzheimer Resource Center of Winter Park last week which shows how these disoriented. paranoid patients may react. Jill Sawyer. Alzheimer's program director, told the deputies such patients may become angry or violent when confronted.

After viewing the tape, Lt. Al Sanchez said it is likely that in the past he has encountered a few Alzheimer's patients without realizing they were ill. The information provided by the resource center should increase lawmen's awarness of the problem and how to deal with the disoriented patients they may encounter. In conjunction with Orange County, lawmen have a program for registration and arm tag identification for Alzheimer's patients. Sanchez said.

The resource center's goal. Sawyer said, is to aid lawmen in identifying these victims and returinging them to their homes or care facilities.

about 4 million Americans. Sawyer said.

causing them to gradually lose their mental and physical abilities to continue a normal lifestyle. The cause and a cure are unknown. Sawyer said. And although the disease usually appears in middle age and progresses, she said, the youngest known victim is a 28-year-old

The tape showed that Alzheimer's victims, when they wander from their homes, may not remember who they are or where they live. They may even board a bus for a distant city. perhaps to a location where they lived many years earlier. The victims, when asked for an address, may give the address of a former home where they lived long ago. They are very defensive and should be approached with gentleness.

Marina rent under re-evaluation

By LAURA L. BULLIVAN Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A proposal to reduce rent for two city marina tenants could price prime commercial waterfront property cheaper than old farmhouses in the western part of Carolyn Small, city finance director, made that observation last week in a memorandum evaluating proposals to reduce rent for two marina tenants based on a rent reduction made last month for the financially troubled marina Holiday Inn.

"Due to the desirable location and other amenities that the island provides, the city must also keep in mind the inherent value and uniqueness of the land that cannot be found eisewhere in Sanford...." Small wrote.

With a 61 percent decrease, she said, annual rent at Harbour Place Shops would drop to $3.273 - cheaper than rent for an old farmhouse at the Oregon Avenue well hotel revenues owed to the city. The reduction was agreed upon by hotel owners and city commissioners as a means of helping the struggling hotel, which has filed for reorganization in federal bankruptcy

The agreement dropped hotel rent from $111.084 to $42.866.

After the Holiday Inn agreement was reached, Chuck Volk of the Monroe Harbour Marina and John Smith of Harbour Place Shops sought similar lease modifications. The commission last week agreed to consider a plan to reduce rent at all three marina lots by the same percentage.

A 61 percent decrease in the Monroe Harbour rent would decrease city revenue by about $30,300, and would decrease rent at Harbour Place Shops by about $5,200.

Small said the same reduction would significantly reduce the city's revenue from the island property, which was built by land fill during the 1960s.

"To reduce it to that amount of money would be ludicrous." Commissioner A.A. McClanahan said.

But, Commissioner Lon Howell said, the city should treat all tenants the same.

We are going to reward somebody because they are in financial difficulty? Howell asked.

City Manager Frank Faison said the city's decision to modify the Holiday Inn lease was made only as a "prudent decision to protect the city's interest." A decision to change the leases - one that is irreversible unless the tenants later agree to higher rent - should wait until the city knows if Holiday Inn has survived bankruptcy and foreclosure, city attorney Bill Colbert said.

When the Holiday Inn is through with bankruptcy court and circuit court, there may not be any lease at all at the Holiday Inn," Colbert said. "You may have to start all over again."

McClanahan's motion to table lease negotlations until the outcome of the hotel's bankruptcy proceedings failed to win support of any other commissioner. But the commission then voted to table the negotiations until a work session where tenants could make a case for the rent reductions.

Roy Picklesimer, a Sanford firelighter, used an fire extinguisher to douse a car fire late yosterday morning. Anna C. Sanford approves recreation program using school facilities

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN Herald staff writer

SANFORD - A plan to merge city recreation programming which has with public school facilities and members. personnel may be ready to go by Oct. 1. following the city commission's approval of the plan oncept last night.

The commission unanimously approved a plan to expand city recreation proposed last month by Commissioner Whitey Eckstein. The plan would provide city money to pay about nine coaches for part-time help running city recreation programs after school daily at Seminole High School Football, basketball, tennis and tutoring are some of the activities proposed for the new program. Activities would be geared for middle school and high school youth, to fill what Eckstein has called a void in city recreation programming. The city already operates after-school programs at three elementary schools.

The plan would also combine about eight part-time positions into three full-time positions to be added to a full-time recreation staff of seven employees. Parttime positions at the school would be paid for with $14,000 left in the recreation budget after the new positions are created. according to Eckstein's proposal.

City Manager Frank Faison reminded the commission of recommendations by a city task force last year to enhance city programming. In the task force report, he said. Sanford's recreation department was compared to one in Altamonte Springs. which has about 30 more staff

"Look out, it could get expensive." he cautioned.

Beathard said he will meet with city Recreation Director Mike Kirby this week to work out details of the plan.

Faison said city staff will work toward implementing the program by Oct. 1. when the new fiscal year begins.

Eckstein, a teacher at Seminole High, said between 300 and 400 students at the school have praised him for his idea.

Avril in Paris?

With the inauguration of Haiti's first civilian president since the departure of Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier in 1986. there is a momentary ray of hope in that impoverished country, but there is mystery

The United States, which, as usual, provided the transport, first took the deposed Gen. Prosper Avril, who had run the country until a few days ago, to Homestead Air Force Base, a familiar way-station - but where did he go after that? Maybe the Air Force took Avril and his family and his servant to France, in Baby Doc's footsteps. Maybe they were flown out on the same U.S. transport Flying falling dictators into exile has become an Air Force specialty — and a useful one, since each trip on the exile special has prevented considerable bloodshed - and one now wonders whether Avril found Baby Doc's initials scratched into a bulkhead, or Marco's, or Nortega's. Not all of them, of course, were flown out in quite the same circumstances. or, presumably, with the same amentities.

But the idea has been the same, and the same purpose has been usefully served in all cases. Certainly, when U.S. officials praised Avril for his efforts against cocaine smugglers, he should have known that his time was up.

Flying Avril into exile is a noble cause because it has helped yet another country, if only temporarily, to join those for whom there is at least a fleeting promise of democracy.

And since Haiti is the hemisphere's poorest nation and since its people took untold risks in their flight for a democratic constitution, it is of particular note. That hardly assures a happy rule of Ertha Pascal-Truillot, the supreme court justice who is now the interim head of government, but ... In the meantime, keep 'em flying.

Amid changes, Taiwan gets lucky

Another nation that has benefited almost equally, though rather differently, is the Republic of China on Talwan.

A year ago Taiwan, though economically prosperous and still under the implicit military protection of the United States, was in some respects an embarrassing leftover from the days of America's hostility to Communist China. The communist regime in Peking basked in widespread approval, spurred by Deng Xiaoping's readiness to use free-market techniques to invigorate China's economy. Even on Taiwan. the tendency seemed to be to allow broader associations with the mainland.

Then came the June massacres in Tiananmen Square. The world recoiled in horror during the extensive television coverage of the communist crackdown. Deng Xiaoping and his colerie were seen afresh for what they have always been, but what 20 years of massaging by Richard Nixon, Jimmy Carter and the State Department had managed to obscure: a blood-stained gang of elderly thugs, blocking with every means at their command the democratization of China.

Almost worse (from the standpoint of the Red Chinese), the rest of the communist world chose that moment to sink into its death agony.

acknowledging with its dying breath its inability to provide a decent life for the peoples of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Unton. Militant communism shrank almost overnight to a handful of abandoned outposts: Albania, Castro's Cuba, and that bloodthirsty, doomed and isolated monstrosity: the People's (sic) Republic of China. And what was the Republic of China on Taiwan doing while all this was going on? Well, it was holding the freest elections since it left the mainland in 1949. New opposition parties, having been and scored respectably, though they fell short of ousting the Nationalists from power.

The upshot of all this is that Free China, for the first time since it retreated to Taiwan, can see light at the end of the tunnel. The actual sequence of future events is impossible to predict, but the days of the communist regime are plainly numbered. When it falls, the mainland is likely to sink, for a time, into a welter of rivalries among local military commanders and powerful provincial politicians. One byproduct may well be a revival in the otherwise gloomy prospects for Hong Kong, now scheduled to be handed over to the communists

Whatever befalls, you can be sure that the Nationalist government in Taipel, with powerful armed forces of its own and an economy that is the envy of the rest of East Asia, will be watching events carefully and intervening (quietly) at well-chosen pressure points.

One sidebar to these developments deserves mention: In recent years, the drive to declare Talwan a nation in its own right, independent of the rest of China, has won considerable sympathy in the Western world.

Backward thinking in Guam

BOSTON - Until this week, the island of Guam was known (barely) as a place where the Marines landed and bombers took off in World War II movies. The only recent scares from this tropical territory were occasional tabloid tales about immense brown tree snakes overrunning the Island

But last week Guam make the news with a shocker of a very different order. On March 19, Gov. Joseph Ada signed into effect the most restrictive abortion law on American territory.

With the stroke of a pen, abortion became illegal except when a woman's life was in danger. There is no abortion for rape. No abortion for incest. No abortion for fetaldeformity.

Today in Guam, anoyone who provides an abortion can be charged with a third-degree felony. Anyone who has an abortion is committing a crime. Anyone who gives information about abortion is liable for a $1,000 fine or a year in jail.

Indeed, while both pro-choice and pro-lifers had their eyes and energies focused on the action in state capitols, the legislature in this 209-square-inite island with 150,000 people passes the first full-fledged legal challenge to abortion rights since the Webster case.

Since American citizens are afforded the protection of the Constitution whether they live in a territory or a state, a constitutional challenge can begin in Guam as well as Idaho. This territory 3,000 miles west of Hawaii may give the Supreme Court its next chance to overturn the Roe v. Wade decision.

What to call this surprise attack from the Pacific? Janet Benshoff of the American Civil Liberties Union dubbed it a "Pearl Harbor-for-women" as she headed off. Marine-style, to mobilize a defense.

The bill in questions came from the pen of Elizabeth Arriola, a member of the Guam Legislature, with the blessings of the Catholic Church. The archbishop of this territory. which is 90 percent Catholic, vociferously threatened to excommunicate any senator who voted against it.

The attorney general and prosecutor of Guain. Elizabeth Barrett-Anderson, warned the governor that, in her opinion, the law was unconstitutional. He signed it anyway saying. In my heart. I believe that a fetus is a human being Barrett Anderson is now compelled to Re-enter Janet Bensholl, Hours after the bill was signed. Benshoff gave a speech to the Guam Press Club. She deliberately told the women of Goam where they could get an

Bensholf read aloud from the Hawaii Yellow

Pages to the press and medicar audience. This isn't normally a controversial text. But the new law bans speech as well as medical procedures. Among the audience were three investigators who taped her words. She was later served with a complaint.

On Wednesday. Benshoff was arraigned in court for violating the law. At this writing, it is entirely possible that th ACLU lawyer, last seen arguing a case before the Supreme Court, will next appear as a defendant.

The Guam law doesn't fit any de-Antation of a compromise. It's pure anti-choice. The American women who need abortions in Guam can't drive across the state line for medical services. The more than 12,000 military and family members can't get the medical care they could get at home. It costs $600 just to fly to Hawaii.

the nearest state. Of course, the law could go down in defeat in November when a vote is scheduled. It could be overturned by a lower court. It could also be overturned by Congress. which retains power over territorial laws. But if the Supreme Court membership changes any more, this could be the case that lets them undo Roe. "They are playing Pacific Roulette," says Harvard constitutional scholar Larry stroke of a

pen, abortion became illegal

Benshoof, on her way to be arraigned in Guam, said with incredulity, "This is part of the United States and now you can't speak about abortion here."

In the frantie few days Benshoff has spent on the island, she has met women whose appointments were canceled, including one who is pregnant with a severly deformed fetus. She has also seen the alarm of Guam's women and doctors, who were nearly as surprised as people in the states.

Guam is not the only place in the world to have passed such a radically restrictive bill. In Ireland, too, it is illegal to have an abortion or tell a woman she could get one in England. But a doubt has lingered in American minds: Can It happen here!

Erase that doubt. Guam is here.

NRC still all bark and no bite

WASHINGTON - The nuclear power industry just ducked a polygraph. In a rare show of teeth, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission drafted a letter ordering power companies to sign "sworn statements" that their safety plans for nuclear power plants are what they say they

But the nuclear industry got wind of the idea, raised a fuss and forced the NRC to drop

The NRC's timid attempt to get tough with the industry followed revelations that some utilities were bluffing or taking shortcuts with their plans for providing backup power in the case of a plant blackout.

A power failure at a nuclear plant is considered a precursor to a meltdown because it hampers the ability to keep the reactor core cool. The NRC's safety division has de-termined that if a meltdown does occur, there is about a 90 percent likelihood that it would be brought on by a blackout.

Nine years ago, the NRC told Congress that developing emergency plans for station blackouts was one of its top priorities.

Apparently, top priority at the NRC doesn't count for much. The regulatory agency lumbered through the 1980s trying to figure out how best to draft safety rules. A regulation finally passed in 1988. Then, after giving the industry time to think about it, the NRC inspected several nuclear power plants last year. Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that the six utilities were: Brunswick, N.C.; Maine Yankee, Maine; Point Beach, Wis.; Turkey Point, Fla.; Millstone, Conn.; and Crystal River. Fla. The NRC would not say which plants raised concerns. But the investigators found that some utilities chose the cheapest way out and avoided design changes or the cost of buying auxiliary power to survive a station blackout.

One utility's idea of an emergency plan. according to NRC documents, was to turn off the plant's control room and evacuate it to save power. Another proposed plan was transferring abbreviated controls to a panel outside the control room. Those schemes are about as smart as abandoning the bridge of the Starship Enterprise and flying it from a

In a rare burst of regulatory indignation. the NRC drafted a letter to the industry ordering utility officials to sign statements verifying that their safety plans were legitimate and met NRC standards.

An industry group, Nuclear Utility Management and Resources Council, immediately hopped on its high horse and complained that the reason the companies were not satisfying the NRC inspectors was because the regula tions were muddy.

The NRC buckled under pressure and abandoned its honesty test. It has now agreed to let the industry write its own guidelines for meeting NRC blackout regulations.

Paul Gill, the NRC's lead engineer for blackout planning, claimed that the agency decided on its own to drop the swornstatement policy. He said the utilities did not 'fully understand" the regulation.

Robert Pollard of the Union of Concerned Scientists, is a former NRC engineer. He thinks that the NRC just doesn't want to admit it caved in. Pollard said the utilities 'don't want to spend any money to buy more

School board to discuss record sales

Included on the agenda for this evening's meeting is a plea by Rev. John Butler Book that the achool board support his efforts to stop the sale of music by "2 Live Crew." Book claims the lyrics of their songs are obscene.

Book, the pastor of Northside Church of Christ in Maitland, has the support of Seminole County Sheriff John Polk.

Also on the agenda is the renewal of an agreement between the district and the Seminole Community College board of trustees to allow high school students in accelerated classes to enroll at SCC for some classes.

Residents stop road blockage

SANFORD - A portion of Loch Low Drive between Hidden Lake Drive and Old Lake Mary Road will not be closed to public ecess at this time, city commissioners last night told a group of Hidden Lake residents who requested the closing.

"It is not fair or appropriate to ever dump traffic into our community and into your constituents' front yard." Hidden Lake resident Mary Turnin said. "Don't do this to us."

Loch Low Drive dead-ends at a peninsula southwest of Hidden Lake Drive. Residents fear the road will be extended as a cut-through for the Groveview aubdivision to Lake Mary

A.B. Peterson Jr., who owns property adjacent to the dead end of Loch Low Drive, opposed the road closing. The city should not forever forbid extension of the road until plans have been presented to develop the property, he said.

Several months ago, Hidden Lake residents had submitted to the city a 100-signature petition opposing a proposed development in the area that would extend Loch Low Drive.

creased more than 100 percent.

For example, a new home in the Sanford-Lake Mary area currently has a $445 county road impact fee assessed when the home is completed. That amount is proposed to be in-creased to $650.22, a 91 percent increase. A new home in the southwest section of the county now has a $529 road impact fee. That amount could increase to $1.273. a 140 percent increase.

The county's road impact fee Technical Advisory Committee determined a total of more than 70 miles of roadways in the county will need to be widened or otherwise improved, nearly a 32 percent increase over what was thought needed in 1987. Average costs to buy land and build road improvements have increased by about 35 percent during the last two years, the committee found.

Taubenace said she did not object to the increases or the need for the increased costs.

Taubensee did suggest the fees be paid at the time the new home or building is sold, rather than the current pay-when-complete method. Under the current method, a developer must pay the costs then recoup them in the sale price when a home is sold.

Taubenace anid buyers would then be able to make the decision whether to pay the costs

"up front," or to include the amount in their mortgage. which could quadruple the actual amount paid over 30 years. She said is would also help educate buyers about the existence of the fee and of the fact they pay it, not the develop-

Commissioners were reluctant to delay collection of the fees from the time the building is completed to the time it is sold. They said buyers could pay the impact fee to the builder or developer in closing costs rather than mortgaging the amount.

Commissioners did allow a 'cap" to be placed on the road fee paid by developers of conve-nience stores and fast-food restaurants to about a 50 percent increase from the current fee. Store representatives argued the proposed fee, which exceeds $84,000 in some portions of the county for a 3,000-square-foot convenience store is equal to half the cost of construction.

Convenience store owners Continued from Page 1A hired traffic engineer William Tipton to survey five stores in Seminole County and five stores in Volusia County. Tipton said based on the average length of a trip to a convenience store, the increase should be no more than 10 percent, but a 50 percent increase is fair.

"What we're asking for is a reasonable break - much less of a break than the figures show it should be," Tipton said. But fee reviewers said the fee should not be adjusted because It could lead to other fee reductions for other types of construction and forcing increases for new home fees.

I believe that we will see an Imbalance throughout the system." said Sanford Engineer William Simmons, chairman of the county road Impact fee TAC.

'What's fair for them might not be fair for someone else," said Gerald Korman, a member of the county road impact fee Citizens Advisory Committee. "In fact, it may shift the burden to them."

Commissioners said they would allow the cap for the two types of construction, saying they would review the impact of the loss of fees in two years.

Langley said $140 million had been spent in Florida last year to encourage childeren to stay in school. "We lowered the dropout rate zero percent," he said. "No wonder the bond tasue failed. I don't have the solution," he Grindle said he had predicted the bond issue would fail. "I guessed by 65 percent and it went down by 70 percent. Voting day should never have been scheduled on such an obscure day," he said.

Grindle preferred to talk about options and possibilities instead of what is wrong with the school system. "I like the positive," he said, suggesting modular classrooms, year-round sessions, and double sessions to relieve the overcrowding that now

Grindle suggested rewarding school systems based on the percentage of graduates. "We've got to keep these kids in school," he said. "I can't imagine not having a college degree today. but certainly without a high school educaton you're destined to work minimum wage jobs forever," he said.

Stone said pumping money into the education system is not the answer.

He feels the system does not put enough emphasis on vocational education. "We take away these kids' driver's licenses if they drop out of school, so they att in academic classes taking up space. We need to offer them an alternative program to solve the dropout program." Stone said. Langley said the dismal failure of the system is reflected in the business community. "Martin Marietta hires production line people and promptly puts them in a six week course. The course is to leach them how to read." Langley said.

potential problems with the ordinance, which allows ramps to be used only between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 8 p.m. on weekends. During summer recess, she said, youth will be prohibited from skateboarding earlier in the day.

The Begalas sought approval for a skateboard Joseph placed in his front yard last year. before the city had considered regulating the ramps. But Colbert, addressing the commission's confusion over the ordinance, said no approval was needed for ramps existing when the ordinance was adopted.

"I am sorry the commissioners felt there needed to be an ordinance at all." the skateboarder's mother said.

"Although we have received no complaints, my son has been judged guilty until he can prove his innocence.

"If a skateboard is causing a problem to a neighbor, why can't that issue be discussed as a nuisance? Why is everybody (who skates) considered a nuisance until proven otherwise?" she asked.

The issue first came to city hall late last year when Thomas Hood, 2425 Lake Ave., complained that skateboarders were disturbing his sick daughter. Several times since then, he has tearfully pleaded with the city for relief from what he calls aggravation associated with living next door to skateboarders.

Again last night. Hood cried as he asked for help. Commissioners and Colbert agreed. however, his problem is one to be resolved in civil court - not in city half or county court.

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

Supervenes casorie absorption

SWEDEN-Medical researchers at the University of Kuopio, in Finiand, have discovered (accidentally) a new weight-loss formula. The new discovery appears to enable an overweight individual to lose pounds and fatty tissue without conventional dieting or exercise.

Scientists made the discovery while searching for a formula to lower cholesterol. In a controlled study of a test group of people, cholesterol levels remained unchanged but the doctors were assounded to find that levels remained unchanged but the doctors were astounded to find that every patient who used the formula lost weight. The published report of this study stated, "A highly significant decrease in body weight was seen in patients who received the formula.

The formula was then tested at another prestigious European university hospital. Again, all patients lost weight even though they did not change their enting habits. The report detailing this study, published in the British Journal of Nutrition, stated: "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits". One patient in this study lost more than 30 pounds.

alter their dictary habits". One patient in this study lost more than 30 pounds.

According to one informed source, the active ingredient comes from a 100% natural botanical source and contains no drugs or stimulants. When taken before mealtime it bonds with the food you eat and "ties un" calories, especially those from fats, suppressing their absorption.

A significant portion of the calories ingested therefore pass through the diseative system unabsurbed. The body has to get energy to replace the lost calories, so it starts to hum stored fat, which can result in rapid body weight loss. Clinical testing has verified the safety of this formula for long-term use.

The formula is marketed in capsule form in the United States under the trade name Cal-Ban 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida, has exclusive North American distribution rights. A review of the customer files of this company revealed the names of hundreds of people who have lost as much as 20, 40 or 80 or more pounds overall with Cal-Ban 3000. This suppears to be a golden opportunity. For people who are plagued by fat and cellulite that they can't seem to lose by conventional methods.

Guam judge kills tough abortion law

AGANA, Guarn - A federal Judge in Guarn Monday suspended enforcement of the most restrictive abortion law in the United States or its territories, saying the statute was "obviously unconstitutional."

U.S. District Court Judge Alex Munson postponed until May 8 a hearing on a class-action petition filed Friday challenging the constitutionality of the law, which had been in force since March 19 until Munson's action.

Attorney Anita Arriola, daughter of Sen. Elizabeth Arriola, who sponsored the bill signed into law by Gov. Joseph Ada. said that based on comments Munson made concerning her petition. "I am confident that the law will be thrown out by the Labor may call for new elections

JERUSALEM - The Labor Party, deflated by the noncommittal speech by a key religious party leader, indicated Tuesday it might support early elections in Israel if it cannot form a coalition government.

Rabbi Eliezer Schach gave a much-anticipated speech Monday to some 10,000 ultra-Orthodox Jews but did not specify whether two small religious parties would back center left Labor or the right-wing Likud Party - who are vying to form a new government.

During his address at the annual convention of the Deget Hatorah religious party, the diminuttive elderly rabbinic scholar instead admonished secular Jews for forgetting their Judaism and said the Jewish people are a nation with or without territory.

India bus crash kills 41

CALCUTTA, India - A private bus with more than 60 people aboard plunged from a bridge west of Calcutta and struck power lines, igniting the vehicle, killing at least 41 people and injuring 20 others, police said.

The mishap occurred about 11 p.m. Monday near the town of Kharagpara, located about 60 miles west of the West Bengal state capital of Calcutta, police said.

The privately operated bus was carrying more than 60 people from Calcutta to Bhubaneswar, the capital of neighboring Orissa state, when it skidded off a bridge spanning

The bus snagged on a set of high-voltage power lines and hung from the cables momentarily before erashing to the train tracks, said survivor Madan Das, a trader from the West Bengal town of Ranaghat.

Patrols reinforced in township

JOHANESBURG, South Africa - Reinforced police units patrolled the black township of Schokeng Tuesday a day after nine blacks were killed and nearly 450 wounded in police gunfire during a protest against poor living conditions.

The police commissioner Tuesday declared the unvest 'under control.'

In their first detailed comment on Monday's bloodshed in Schokeng, police said a crowd of about 50,000 blacks armed with stones, sticks, bottles and fron pipes began attacking officers, forcing them to return fire in self-defense.

Weight-loss diets attacked

UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON - The government's fathere to properly police the $33 billion a year weight-loss industry could threaten the health of the estimated 65 million Americans who are dicting, a congressman said.

At a hearing into weight-loss programs. Rep. Ron Wyden. D-Ore., chairman of a House Small Business subcommittee. said Monday that a recent survey found about 20 percent of American adults are "constantly dicting," making them prime targets of the "largely unregulated" diet industry.

Wyden acknowledged pound-shedding potions have been around for generations. But he said. "A new mix of questionable products, untrained providers and deceptive advertising is exposing our citizens to unexpected and unnecessary health risks."

A survey, conducted for the committee by MarketData Enterprises, estimated the market for weight loss products is growing about 10.6 percent annually and will exceed $50 billion by 1995. The estimate included exercise spas, diet bev crages and artificial sweeteners. as well as weight-loss programs and low-calorie formulas.

Wyden said the evidence indicates many products peddled by diet clinics are untested with little or no scientific proof of their safety and effectiveness." There are no minimum standards for staff training, although many employees are touted to the public as specialists," he said.

Nancy Wellman, president of the American Dietetic Association, stressed that rapid weight loss requires a doctor's supervision.

"The most significant drawback to an unsupervised. very low calorie diet is the potential for life-threstening side-effects," Wellman said. "Loss of body protein may affect cardiac function and could be related to heart failure. Other potential side effects include anemia, light-headedness, constipation, diarrhea and menatraal irregularities." Last week. 19 Florida women filed suit against Nutri-System of programs "meet accepted nutri- plans.

tional principles."
Carol Householder, of Flagsiaff, Artz., testified how her 44-year-old husband suffered a cardiac arrest and brain damage after losing nearly 30 pounds on a Nutri-System diet.

Householder said doctors told her that her husband had early signs of coronary heart disease. but his attack probably was triggered by nutritional deficiencies and he should not have gone on a diet without medical supervision.

Wyden criticized the Food and Drug Administration and Federal Trade Commission for failing to investigate leaders in the weight-loss industry.

"It is no surprise that the 13 weight-loss cases the FTC has brought since 1980 focused on gadgets and gimmicks - the Gut Buster and the Fat Magnet to name a couple," he said. "No FTC case to date has tackled the potentially greater threats - the fast-growing trends toward commercial weight loss cinics and physician-supervised dict programs."

Soviet troops get rough in Lithuania

By JAMES ROSEN United Press International

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. - Soviet soldiers drugged Lithuanian army deserters from a hospital Tuesday and took over the headquarters of Lithuania's independent Communists in a forceful reassertion of Moscow's control over the dissident

Oviedo capitalizes on walks, errors to win 'exhibition'

By TONY DeSORMIER Herald Sports Editor

OVIEDO - Generally, you don't play exhibition games in the middle of the season. But that's just about what Monday's high school baseball game between Ovicdo and Northport of Long Island, N.Y. amounted to, an exhibition

For the Northport Tigers, this is their first week of being able to practice outdoors. And it showed on Monday night in an 11-2 loss to the Lions as they committed six errors, walked eight Oviedo hitters, had two passed balls, two wild pitches and a balk.

The Lions' only earned run was their 11th, seored in the sixth inning on four walks.

As the game dragged on, the two teams substituted extensively, as they might in an exhibition game, Overall, 28 different players made an appearance in the contest.

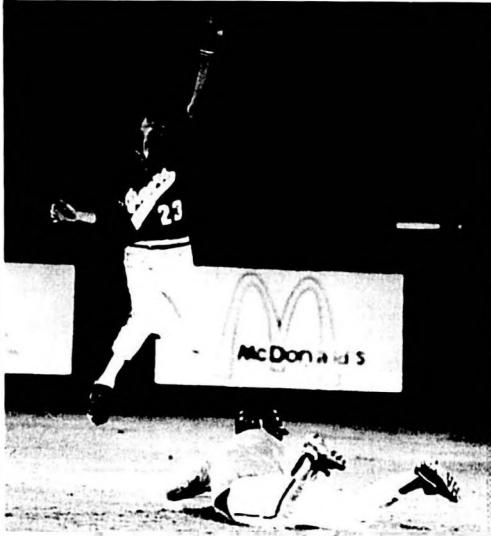

Possibly the most impressive was Northport starting ottober Tim McKenna, who reportedly is being heavily recruited by Florida State and Florida Southern College. In his three innings on the mound, he did not allow an carned run (althought eight unearned were scored). At the plate, he was 24or-4 with a triple, RBI and run "That lod can really stroke the ball," said Oyledo. coach Mike Ferrell, whose team improved to 13-4 with the victory. "They (Northport) look good, I think that they ran out of gas. They've played a lot of games since coming down last Thursday.

"The difference was the errors and walks. That's the way it goes. We've been playing well lately. They made some mistakes and we made them pay, Almost as impressive as McKenna was Oviedo pitcher

Having had only one week of practice outdoors, the Northport Tigers (of Long. Island, N.Y.) had a tough time hanging on to the ball in an 11-2 loss to Oviedo Darren Feeney (No. 23) and his Tiger leammates made six errors that led to 10 unearned runs.

Spring training games begin without major league umps

United Press International

Fans treat all unpites the same, whether they come from the majors, the minors or fante-League. The impires will always ment the wrath of the taux.

Monday it was minor league timps who received the majority of the razzing. Featisplayed the first exhibition games of the spring using minor league unpires while the majorleague umps started a job action.

The major league unipires, who say they will work the regular season, contend they are being short changed on salaries and benefits because of the shortened training season resulting from the 32 day lockout that ended March 19. The union also objects to not being consulted on the three day extension of the regular season. A trio of Triple A uniques worked the Cleveland Indians San Francisco Giants, game in-Scottsdale Ariz. They took some abuse from the tans, but nothing out of the ordinary. The Pacific Coast League crew of Dan Wickham. Tom Mellor and Hank Schwartz even called a balk and drew praise from both managers.

Gaints Manager Roger Crang poked his head into their locker foom and said mee game Cleveland Manager John McNamara complemented the crew by saying he didn't really notice them.

I thought they did really good," said Cleveland pitcher Tom Candiotti, who was called for the balk. You got to think it's tough it he hadn't seen the pitchers before, especially the kmackleball. He called a balk on me and I really balked."

Three umpires from the Class A South Atlanta League worked the Pirates-Cardinals game attended by Commissioner Fay Vincent in Bradenton

Gibson took batting practice six days near his Michigan home, hoping to get a head start on spring training before reporting to the Dodgers' classy facility on the Florida East VERO BEACH — Los Angeles Dodgers' outfleider Kirk Gibson faces the fact his career may be over the same way he approaches the game equarely. Gibson, who can't even take batting practice standing up yet, scknowledges he probably won't be ready for opening day April 9. He also admits, though disbelieving, his playing days may be at an end.

"Who knows, I might be through right now." Gibson said Monday before putting himself through another day of rigorous off-field workouts. "If so. I'll just have to do something else.

"It will be tough to accept, but I'll accept it. I don't think it's going to happen, but I can accept it if it does."

The problem is Gibson's left leg. He limped through 71 games last season, batting a career low .213 with nine home runs, 26 RBI and 12 stolen bases. It was a continuation of the knee and hamstring pro-

High court to review policy barring women from hazardous jobs

By HENRY J. RESKE UPI Supreme Court Reporter

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide if employers can ber women of child bearing age from certain jobs because the work could lead to birth defects.

The court will hear arguments in the fall in the case brought by a group of Wisconsin women seeking review of a ruling by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that upheld the ban. A decision is not expected before next year.

At issue is a clash between job safety and women's rights. The employer, Johnson Controls inc., makes batteries of which the primary material used is lead, which is a recognized health hazard to workers. Medical experts also believe lead poses a serious threat to a developing fetua that can lead to stillbirth, reduced birth weight and retardation.

The company, which owns battery plants around the country, decided to bar potential child-bearing women from working with lead.

Such "fetal protection policies" have become increasingly widespread in industries where lead or other chemicals are used, and are a common feature in the high-tech semiconductor industry. Defenders say they're needed to prevent damage to the unborn child, and to shield a company from being sued as a consequence.

Women's groups and labor unions, however, say the policies discriminate against women by barring them from high-paid jobs on the mere belief they might become pregnant and the work might pose a danger to a fetus.

While courts have generally stated such policies do discriminate against women, they have also said such policies can be justified.

Denise M. Zutz, a Johnson Controls spokeswoman, said the company welcomed the "Court's review and we're confident the court will render a decision favorable to our policy."

Quentin Riegel, deputy general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers in Washington, said companies are worried about being sued by the parents of children born with birth defects.

"A parent cannot consent to an injury to a third party," he said. "The women want to be able to make that decision. The problem for manufacturers is they are not let of the hook. They're still liable under tort laws for a decision the worker makes.

In other action, the court:

 Agreed to decide at what point a desegrega-tion order should be lifted for a public school that has achieved integration goals. The case concerns the Oklahoma City school system, which contends confusion exists over a school system's obligation to a desegregation order once that order has been met.

• Refused to become involved in a lawsuit arising from the McMartin Pre-School child molestation case, the longest and costllest criminal trial in U.S. history.

• Refused to enter a case involving a claim that a bank discriminated against a man for refusing to tasue him a credit card because he was not a

In seeking high court review, lawyers for the women argued that previous lower court rulings significantly narrowed Title 7 of the Civil Rights Act that bars discrimination based on sex.

They also said that exposure to lead can also cause reproductive harm in men by lowering sperm counts and cause genetic damage that can lead to birth defects in offspring, contentions that were disputed by varying experts.

A number of women's groups and labor unions. in a friend-of-the-court brief, also urged the court to hear the case and said it could affect as many as 20 million women.

The truth is that most women work because they have to: whether in single-parent or in two wage-earner households, women's contributions to family income are critical," they said. "Johnson Control's policy and others like it thus between their fertility and their jobs."

However, arguing against review, the company said that "while emphasizing that fetal protection policies are permissible only in extremely narrow circumstances and may not be based in any way upon notions of romantic paternalism or stereotyped characterizations of the sexes, the courts have unanimously recognized that Title 7 allows sex-based distinctions where necessary to industrial safety."

The case stems from Johnson Controls' decision to bar many women from working in sections of its battery division where lead is used to prevent birth defects to their children.

Liz Batemon, 56, said she lost wages of as much as $100 a week because she had been unable to transfer back to the lead-exposure area of the company's Milwaukee plant, a part of the operation in which she worked until 1982.

So Batemon and other women manufacturing employees charged the company was discriminating against them on the basis of sex. They have the backing of the AFL-CIO.

The Johnson Controls policy bars fertile women from sections of the plant where workers risk being exposed to lead used to make automobile batteries. The policy has been in effect since Johnson Controls said an earlier voluntary policy failed, while the company has spent as much as $15 million to reduce lead in the factory. Women who were transferred received compensation to make up for some of their losses, but women remain barred from the higher paying jobs where lead is used.

FBI arrests reputed crime family boss

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - Federal authorities Monday arrested reputed mob boss Raymond "Junior" Patriarca and his associates on charges including murder, extortion, kidnapping, drug running and gambling...

"It's the most significant organized crime case in the history of New England," U.S. Attorney Lincoln C. Almond said. "It virtually indicts the entire Patriarea family. If successful, it could be the end of the Patriarea family."

FBI agents arrested Patriarea, 43, at his Lincoln home at 6:30 a.m., Almond said.

He faces a 65-count indictment that spans 15 years and alleges "a pattern of murder, robbery, extortion, kidnapping, narcotics trafficking and obstruction of justice," Almond said.

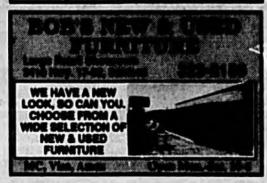

"The indictment sitting on my desk must be 1 inches thick." the prosecutor said.

CLIFTON PARK, N.Y. - Robert Tottey has found a way to beat the Great American rat race

Tottey, 42, says racing gerbils down a 6-foot straightaway enclosed in plexiglass nicely mixes two favorite American pastimes - gambling and entertainment.

He sets up his Rodentvelt Raceway in bars and restaurants — and once, a yacht club — and guarantees his racing gerbils will rake in customers. Tottey charges between $250 and $500. "just like a band," but generally works weekdays when bar bustnesa is slack.

"It makes money for them." Tottey said. "They get people in when they normally wouldn't. 1 haven't had to solicit business for three years."

Customers receive betting slips and a copy of gerbil racing's official program and play for free. Instead of cash, winners receive a mund of drinks, a T-shirt, or some other freeble.

At one restaurant outside Albany, N.Y. one recent Monday night, 100 or so race fans clamored for a good view as Tottey loaded eight gerbils into the starting gate.

Service links communications systems

By TERENCE FINAM UPI Business Writer

SEATTLE - While technological advances have created seemingly endless possibilities in the telecommunications industry, they also have led to new frustrations that can drive consumers up

Telephone tag, for example. This 20th century curse rankles those who use the phone frequently. and can be expensive to sales people and others who need to contact someone quickly without going through a receptionist, or worse, through answering machines and voice mail services.

A Scattle area company hopes to change that with "Personal AccessLine," a unique service that assigns a phone number to a person instead of a phone, allowing the person to immediately take calls wherever he or she may be.

The service has been test-marketed in Scattle during the past year, and now AccessPlus Communications Inc., a Bellevue, Wash., startup company, is embarking on an ambitious expansion plan of entering 10 major metropolitan markets around the country within the next year... "We have found that as people understand how the system works and what it can do for them. sales have skyrocketed," said Dan Kranzler, president of AccessPlus.

The "meet me" and screening features can be particularly valuable to business people such as sales agents and realtors whose income often depends on making quick contact with potential clients. Kranzler said.

fronteally, some recent media coverage has predicted that this super call-forwarding technology will arrive in the near future. Kranzler laughs at this, knowing it is here now, but has kept it relatively low key while working to penetrate markets and refine the service.

Kranzler said market studies show 11 percent of businesses surveyed nationwide showed a "very strong interest" in the service. He said he hopes his company can tap into that lucrative market before others beat him to the punch.

Part of AccessPlus Communication's strategy is to enter markets served by McCaw Cellular Communications Inc., the Kirkland, Wash, based company that dominates the national cellular market.

By the time you are infirm enough to need institutional care, you're expected to have outgrown such improper activity, which popular wisdom and nursing home administrators have judged unbecoming to el-derly ladies and gentlemen who are not cemented by marriage vows - or, often, even those

In most nursing homes, lack of privacy impedes intimacy. Lights out means no stealthy nocturnal visitations leading to funny business. Actually, in some nursing homes, sexy behavior can be grounds for

As a resident, you can raise Cain at night (until the nurse shuts down your after-burner with a tranquilizer), scream bloody murder about the steam-willed food, complain vociferously that your family visits only once a year, bite the nurse that feeds you, and engage in a splendid variety of anti-social acts: Refuse bingo, play hooky from Bible-study classes, nod off during the sing-along, put your britches on backward or hide a bottle of Seagram's 7 in your dirty laundry. All this is as predictable as a falling rock. Nursing homes are geared for it. They expect it: it's built into the system for which you're paying megabucks.

However, the moment your aging (but operational) hormones begin to race your engine, you're in trouble. The ciderly, like preadolescent children, are expected to be asexual. All the groping and panting belongs to a past generation, to a time when your nursing caretakers were transferring spoonfuls of Pablum from their heated plates to the linoleum kitchen floor. Nursinghome residents are supposed to have given up the touchy-feely stuff - except for old Mr. Hartley who can't resist pinching a starched bottom. ("He's just senile, Betsy, but you've really got to watch those hands. especially at bath time.")

Nursing-home authorities usually resemble traditional prep-school masters, and they insist on equally prudish regulations. However, the adolescent rules (no unchaperoned visitation, doors open at all times. both feet on the floor) have been pre-empted by a more invidious attitude: the priggish assump-tion that the elderly are uninterested in and incapable of sexual expression.

By James Jacoby

Today's deal was played in the Staten Bank Cap Gemint Pandata invitational pairs tournament in The Hague. Netherlands, early this year. The participants believe that this is the best-conducted competitive event in bridge. As always, all of us wish we could replay certain deals, and as declarer in four clubs doubled, I regret carelessly ruffing with the three of clubs at the second trick. That mustake gave my friend Zia Mahmood the opportunity to slune. The tack of diamonds was covered with the queen and king, and declarer ruffed the second diamond with club was played to the king, and the jack of clubs was led and finessed. Another spade was played to the jack in dummy. and the ace of clubs was cashed. If West follows low on the club ace, the doubled contract will make. Declarer will simply play a heart back to his jack, cash the queen of hearts and throw West on lead with the queen of clubs to force him to lead once more into the dummy's A-Q of spades. That will be 10 tricks. The result will not change if West ruffs one of the hearts, since he will still be endplayed. Unfortunately for declarer, West unblocked the queen of clubs under the ace. There was now no way for the club three. Next came the declarer to force West on lead. king of hearts. West, Zia, won and declarer had to go down one the ace and played the nine of trick, East winning the last two spades. Dummy's 10 won. A tricks with good hearts.
