Computer Fritz Delays Shuttle

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A puzzling problem with the electronic brains of the space shuttle today forced at least a two-day delay in the launch of astronaut John W. Young and Robert L. Crippen on the Columbia's maiden orbital test flight.

The astronauts, looking tired and somber, left the flight deck of the world's first reusable spaceship about 11:10 a.m. EST. They had spent six hours lying uncomfortably on their backs for the blast-off that never came.

"We're sorry you had to spend so much time in the cockpit this morning," spacecraft communicator Daniel C. Brandenstein told Young and Crippen. "We're going to try harder on Sunday morning." "Well, Dan, we had everything going for us," Young replied. "Everything was just beautiful. You all did everything that you could. I thought it was just great."

Later, just before unhooking from the countdown had come within nine minutes of an on-time 8:50 a.m. launch of the winged space freighter before the pesky computer problem emerged.

At first, it appeared the difficulty had been resolved, but it soon became apparent that it was serious. The ship's backup computer refused to communicate with the four primary computers. That was a "no go" for the long-awaited launch.

The shuttle, the key to the nation's future in space, relies heavily on computers to determine where the ship should be going and to figure out what to command the engines and flight control surfaces to do to get there.

It is because the computer system is so important that four redundant computers are aboard the Columbia plus the backup of a different design and containing different instructions. In addition, a spare computer is stashed in a locker in the Columbia's lower deck.

The computer system has been designed to fail operational, meaning if one of the brains fails in flight, the crew can proceed with a normal mission. A second, third and even fourth failure would be a fail safe condition as long as the backup was working properly.

The Columbia's five computers are manufactured by IBM and company spokesman Dan Udell said the problem could be either in the hardware or in the "software," the programs that give the machines their "intelligence."

The computer laboratory at the Johnson Space Center in Houston was testing the programming to see if it contained an error.

Saturday was ruled out for a launch attempt because it took 24 hours to rid the external fuel tank of all traces of hydrogen and oxygen before it can be reloaded.

Today started out with everything looking "go" for launch at 6:50 a.m. EST. Hundreds of thousands of "bird watchers" gathered around the area to watch the show. Even a Soviet spy ship was reported standing by in international waters off the Florida coast.

"We feel terribly disappointed," said Brenda Schatz, from Corydon, Iowa. "We're just trying to decide now what we are going to do but we are probably going to hang in there through Sunday."

"We'll try to stick it out," said Joy Schermer of Detroit.

"Through you, today, we feel as giants once more again," the president said.

also became apparent that engineers would be unable to fix the balky computer quickly.

After engineers in Houston reported "no joy" in a second attempt to remedy the problem, launch director George Page and Richard Smith, director of the Kennedy Space Center, made the decision to call it a day.

The Columbia is the world's first reusable spaceship. Its launch had been set back more than 2½ years by a variety of technical problems. Today's problems, however, were of the kind not unexpected on a new spacecraft during the final hours of its first countdown to launch.

It was apparent as the morning dragged on that the astronauts were getting tired of waiting.

"How are you holding out up there?" Page asked the astronauts at one point.

"Just laying here, you know," replied Young, the veteran flight commander who was strapped on his back in his spacecraft seat, a position doctors have said the crew could hold for no more than six hours.

"Getting uncomfortable at all?" Page asked.

"We're getting there, George," Young replied after a long pause. "We're getting there."

Young, 50-year-old veteran of four spaceflights, and space rookie Crippen, 43, crawled into the Columbia's cabin at 4:15 a.m., two and a half hours after they began their day at the spaceport's special crew quarters.

The countdown went relatively smoothly up to the final minutes. The shuttle's 15-story tall external fuel tank was filled quickly with more than 500,000 gallons of frigid liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen.

The shuttle, standing 184 feet tall on the oceanic launch pad, looked like a brilliant white monument before dawn in the glow of 50 xenon floodlights.

The shuttle was developed on a shoestring budget and its problems were significant. But project officials were confident all the question marks had been erased by the time the countdown started late last Sunday.

The shuttle is the key to America's future in space. It will be a spacefaring cargo ship replacing conventional unmanned satellite launchers used for a few minutes and then dumped into the ocean or discarded in space.

ship's communications link, Young told controllers.

"We'll try again as soon as we can," Launch control spokesman Hugh Harris said the earliest new launch time for the crucial 36-orbit, 5½-hour mission was 6:50 a.m. EST Sunday. But the computer difficulty has to be found and fixed first.

The initial weather forecast for Sunday was discouraging. Air Force meteorologists said conditions similar to the excellent weather today were likely Sunday.

Before the abortive launch attempt, President Reagan said in a message to the astronauts that they carry the "hopes and prayers of all Americans."

"Through you, today, we feel as giants once more again," the president said.

"We're just trying to decide now what we are going to do but we are probably going to hang in there through Sunday."

"We'll try to stick it out," said Joy Schermer of Detroit.

HIDDEN TREASURE

An Easter candy egg hunt sent excited youngsters from Sanford's Head Start Center scrambling for hidden treats Wednesday at the Seminole County Library in Downtown Sanford. The children were accompanied by their teachers, Mrs. Betty Roberson and Mrs. Sadie Brown.

FOX Y LADY

"I'll catch a fox and put him in a box and then I'll let him go" goes the old children's song and that's precisely what Seminole County Animal Control Officer Debbie Burrow was called on to do this week. She proved clever enough to rescue a red fox perched on an old piling in the water along the Lake Monroe seawall. Capture was accomplished by slipping the loop of a snare over the animal's head then tightening it around the animal's body. The Fox was later released in a wooded area of the county.

UCF May Tighten Entry Criteria

By DONNA ESTES

The day may be coming when the "average" high school student will not be able to gain admittance to the Florida state university system.

Whether that happens depends on the extent of financing to be given the system by the Florida Legislature.

The University of Central Florida near Oviedo may have to deny admittance to as many as 3,000 students for the winter session, according to John Bolte, associate vice president for academic affairs.

"It depends on what the enrollment cap is determined to be for 1981-82," Bolte said. And that's dependent upon the funding which is forthcoming from the Legislature.

UCF during the past year has admitted about 5,400 new students and transfer and turned down applications of about 1,800 qualified students. Current enrollment at UCF is 12,600. Even full financing would permit an enrollment of only 13,281 students, meaning many would still have to be turned away.

Enrollment standards at UCF call for high school students to have a grade point average (GPA) of 2.0 (C) and obtain a score of 800 on their standard aptitude tests (SAT), Bolte said.

Beginning in the spring of 1982, Bolte said, it is expected that the standards will be raised requiring a GPA of 2.5 (C+) and an SAT score of 850.

"This will have some impact," Bolte said. "But the number of students that fall into this category now is not large."

"If very stringent funding and limitations are imposed, the university can and should raise the test scores above 850," Bolte said. He added that the university has adhered very rigidly to its minimum admission requirements.

Many of the students now have an average score of 900 on SATs. UCF students have very high average test scores when compared to the other nine universities in the state system, Bolte said.

"The average test score of new students at UCF is second only to the University of Florida at Gainesville," he said.

Bolte said students applying at this time for the summer and fall semesters are being processed in the normal manner.

Seismic Activity Up

Mount St. Helens May Erupt Today

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Seismic activity on volcanic Mount St. Helens increased today, prompting scientists to say at 6:30 a.m. PST "an eruption is likely this morning."

Geologists said they did not know if the eruption would be explosive or a non-explosive dome-building event.

"We do not yet know what type of eruption is most likely," said A.B. Adams of the University of Washington geophysics program.

Volcanic earthquakes were recorded beneath the mountain at the rate of about one per hour until midnight, then they increased to two per hour, Adams said. After 2:30 a.m., low frequency activity was almost constant. It was the highest level of seismic activity since the volcano's last eruptive period Feb. 5-7.

The increase in the low magnitude volcanic earthquakes began Thursday evening, causing the U.S. Geological Survey to issue an advisory just before midnight.

"There has been an increase in the number of shallow earthquakes beneath Mount St. Helens over the past six hours. If seismicity continues to increase, an eruption will probably occur within the next day," the advisory stated.

Adams said, "We don't know what type of eruption may be coming. But usually when we have this sequence of events, it means something."

Scientists monitoring the volcano have been wary ever since noting an increase in ground deformation in the mountain's crater almost two weeks ago.

The buildup of seismic activity was similar to the periods before the mountain's last two, non-explosive eruptions on Dec. 27-Jan. 3 and Feb. 5-7, said Adams. But he emphasized that scientists weren't predicting what type of eruption might be coming this time.

The last two eruptions were characterized by the growth of a lava dome inside the volcano's huge crater. At the end of the February eruption, the dome stood more than 600 feet high and had a diameter of about 2,000 feet.

The mountain blew about 1,300 feet off its summit last May 18 in a catastrophic eruption that left 60 people dead or missing. Major explosive eruptions also occurred May 25, June 12, July 22, August 7 and Oct. 16-18.

19 Injured In Pileup On U.S. 27

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — At least 19 persons were injured, some seriously, in a chain reaction accident involving about 30 cars and trucks in a fog-shrouded section of U.S. 27 just south of Lake Wales early today.

The accident occurred about 6 a.m. near the junction of U.S. 27 and State Road 60 and closed a four-mile stretch of the road until mid-morning.

Seven people were admitted and 11 others were treated and released for various injuries at Lake Wales Hospital. At least one other person was treated and released at Polk General Hospital in Bartow. Florida Highway Patrol spokesmen said some of the injured were seriously hurt.

The FHP at Lake Wales said heavy fog combined with smoke from muck fires caused the accident.

Women's Groups Issue Warning

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Five feminist organizations today warned that a "right to life" amendment banning abortion would interfere with personal and religious freedoms guaranteed by other parts of the U.S. Constitution.

Mary Charlotte McCall, coordinator of the Florida Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, said her organization, the National Organization for Women legislative office denounced a resolution pending in the Senate rules committee, a coalition of 20 religious groups, felt "under certain circumstances an abortion may be the only ethical choice."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Premier Asks Renegotiation Of Pact With Solidarity

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Prime Minister Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski threatened to resign today unless the Polish parliament banned all strikes for two months and asked to renegotiate the labor pact that ended last summer's strikes.

Jaruzelski, in his first major address since his inaugural speech Feb. 12, said the economic situation was so bad it was impossible to fulfill totally the agreement signed with workers to end strikes last summer and called for a renegotiation of the pact.

The premier told the nation's lawmakers most of Solidarity's 10 million members want peace to strengthen "social Poland" but some groups in the independent union have "overgrown political ambitions."

"Restoration of peace becomes more and more difficult," he said in the nationally televised speech. "Therefore, he said, 'The government submits a bill on a suspension of strikes for two months.'"

He called the ban a "patriotic duty" that would ease tensions. The government has the right to order a two-month emergency suspension of strikes once a year under the new labor law, which has not yet been formally passed.

Were 1,500 Sealed In Cave?

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Government officials, already tending off charges police summarily executed 24 people, dismissed as "disinformation campaign" new accusations that troops massacred 1,500 peasants by sealing them in a cave.

The head of the nation's controversial treasury police charged for a third time Thursday the government version of the Tuesday incident in which 24 people were killed in a San Salvador slum, blaming the executions on guerrillas.

Leticia in nearby Honduras charged 1,500 peasants fleeing battles in El Salvador's northeastern Morazan province were forced into a cave by attacking government jets and then sealed in when the planes bombed the entrance.

The Honduran Committee for Solidarity with the Salvadoran People, which previously gave reports found to be exaggerated but to have a basis, cited Salvadoran refugees who said they saw the alleged March 25 massacre as their sources for the report.

Other reports reaching San Salvador said troops sealed the cave with explosives. Independent confirmation of the incident, first reported Wednesday, was not available.

Another Hearing Set

School Board Deadlocked On Teacher's Dismissal

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

By a 2-2 vote, the Seminole County School Board Tuesday rejected Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes' recommendation that it initiate dismissal proceedings against a Seminole High School teacher.

Chorus instructor Robert Maguire, accused of "willful neglect of duty" and "misconduct in office," after failing to report for work on April 1, now faces a second hearing date, scheduled for Wednesday, April 22 at 3:00 p.m.

After the board's vote, Hughes authorized a suspension with pay for Maguire, which he is empowered to do without board approval.

School board members Allen Keith and chairman Bill Kroll voted Tuesday to support Hughes' original recommendation while members, Nancy Warren and Pat Telson opposed it. Both Warren and Telson expressed doubt that there was cause of misconduct.

Mrs. Telson made an additional motion that disciplinary hearings not be held unless all 5 board members are present since a tie prevents any decision from being made.

Vice-Chairman Roland Williams, who was recently re-elected to the board, was absent at the afternoon meeting.

Charged with "willful neglect of duty" and "misconduct in office," Maguire claimed he was ill on April 1 and proper steps to notify the school had been made. Recounting the events leading up to his April 3 suspension by Principal William Layer, Maguire told the board he called the school secretary on Tuesday night, March 31, about 9:30 to say he would not be in until 10:00 a.m. on April 1 because of a doctor's appointment.

Maguire, however, admitted that he had not actually made an appointment but that he was trying to see his doctor that morning.

After he could not get an appointment Wednesday morning, Maguire said he went back to bed because he wasn't well. It was 10:15 when he awoke, board members were told, and he was already late for his third period which begins at 10:30.

"I got dressed and jumped in my van, but I got sick on the way to school. So I turned around and came back home," Maguire stated.

Before he went back to bed, the chorus teacher said, he called Crooms High School to notify its principal, Edward

Developers, City: Half A Victory Each

The city of Casselberry and the Bonaire Development Co., embroiled in a legal dispute over construction of high-rise buildings in the city, came out of a court hearing Thursday having both won and lost.

Circuit Judge Robert McGregor ordered the city to show cause by April 30 why Bonaire's proposed Carmel-By-The-Lake high-rise condominium project shouldn't be approved. But at the same time, McGregor denied Bonaire's request for a temporary injunction prohibiting the city from passing any law or amendment to existing law which would restrict the company's planned use of the property.

The city council is considering an ordinance which would ban any construction over 35 feet in the city. As proposed, Carmel-By-The-Lake would contain several 10- and 11-story buildings on a 44-acre site on Lake Howell.

The controversy began on March 16 when the city council, by a 3-2 vote, rejected the Bonaire proposal. Bonaire then filed a lawsuit March 30 against the city and the three councilmen who voted against the project — Frank Schulte, Thomas Embree, and John Leighty — asking the court to order the city

ALLEGED BANK ROBBERY ON TRIAL

Trial continued in Circuit Court today for two Winter Springs men accused of robbing a Longwood bank of an undetermined amount of money last Halloween Eve.

Timothy Paul Privett, 20, and Bruce Sidney Thorndike, 37, both of 211 S. Cortez Ave., are charged with robbery and conspiracy to commit robbery in connection with the October 30 stick-up of the Lee Road branch Security First Federal Savings and Loan.

Then police searched the men's home on Dec. 19, they found two toy pistols, a wig, and some clothes reportedly worn by the bandits.

Testimony was continuing this afternoon. FROM BAD TO WORSE

When things started off, Sanford police wanted Ronald N. Mayors only for violating his probation. But the way things wound up, Mayors ended up in jail charged not only with probation violation, but also with burglary and possession of a controlled substance.

According to a city police report, all this began about 1 p.m. Thursday when police detective Tony Brooks and Sgt. Joe Dillard spotted Mayors, 21, address unknown, who they knew to be wanted for violating his probation.

They attempted to stop Mayors, but he fled. Brooks and Dillard gave chase and cornered Mayors. Making matters worse was the fact that he had amphetamines in his possession when arrested.

Mayors was being held in the Seminole County Jail today in lieu of $5,250 bond.

'Fewer People Means Better People'

China Struggles To Control Population

By JOHN L. STROHM
Fourth in a Series

China — with 1 billion people to feed, clothe and shelter — is winning its birth-control battle.

In the most far-reaching family-planning effort in history, the country is using new incentives, punishments and contraceptives to hold back its exploding population.

This all-out drive is paying off. In 1970, 75,000 Chinese babies were born every day. In 1979, only 47,000 were born daily.

But the net population growth rate of just 1.17 percent is considered "unacceptable." China's goal is zero population growth by the year 2,000, when its population is expected to level off at 1.2 billion.

"Fewer people means better people" is the theme blazoned on posters all over China. This is a complete switch from my last visit in 1958, when the Chinese contended that "more people means more productivity."

At that time, an economics professor had scoffed, "We're not worried about Malthus." (Thomas Malthus, an English political economist of the 18th and 19th centuries, theorized that unchecked population growth far outruns the growth of the food supply.)

And an engineer at a fertilizer factory engineer had boasted, "We can feed 15 billion people if we have to."

Contrast that attitude from these observations gathered during my recent visit to China:

- On a commune near Shanghai, 3,800 of its 4,400 women of child-bearing age practice birth control.

— In the city itself, 95 percent of all married couples with children between ages 4 and 16 have registered their declaration not to have a second child.

— A citation on the wall of a commune clinic near Wuhan attests that 98 percent of the 160 women of child-bearing age practice family planning.

— And on a commune near the Yangtze River in Hubei Province, 95 percent of all women of child-bearing age have only one child.

"What sort of controls does it take to achieve this," I asked the chief of the planning committee.

"We do not order people; we try to persuade them," he replied.

One-child families are rewarded with an additional $2.85 in cash monthly, a bigger garden plot, more housing space, free medical care and education for the child.

If one parent is sterilized after the child's birth, both father and mother get to work in a commune factory instead of in the fields.

Similar incentives are taking effect throughout the country. For example, a new law tells bureaucrats that they will not be eligible for promotion for two years if they have more than two children.

Similar incentives are taking effect throughout the country. For example, a new law tells bureaucrats that they will not be eligible for promotion for two years if they have more than two children. In Peking, couples must take a pay cut of 10 percent for having a third child, 15 percent for a fourth and 20 percent for a fifth.

The Chinese are encouraging one-child families with incentives such as larger private plots, more housing space, cash bonuses, free medical services and free education.

Missing Retarded Youth Found Dead In Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — Police searched "inch-by-inch" today for fingerprints and other evidence of Atlanta's black child killer in the abandoned apartment building where they found the decomposed body of the 23rd victim.

Larry Rogers, 21, a retarded black with the mind of a 7-year-old, was found dead Thursday only a mile from where he vanished March 30. He was the only victim to be found indoors since 1978.

"The chances of the killer having touched a wall or floor are pretty high," one investigator said. "I'm sure they're going over it inch-by-inch and taking full advantage."

Coal Miner Talks Slated?

By United Press International
United Mine Workers' President Sam Church, calling for a resumption of contract negotiations in the 15-day-old nationwide coal strike, summoned top union leaders to a crucial meeting in Washington today.

Church and B.R. "Bobby" Brown, top negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, were reported in touch by telephone.

"I call upon the industry's negotiators to return to the table," Church said in a statement from Washington. "I, and members of the union's negotiating team, have continually bargained in good faith and we will continue to do so."

Brady May Work Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James Brady, shot in the head during the attempted assassination of President Reagan, has to be the medical odds and may some day be able to return to his job as White House press secretary, doctors say.

Brady, who had a section of his brain removed last week, will most likely suffer no mental impairment but may continue to have problems with physical functions on his right side, doctors said Thursday.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, said it is possible Brady, 40, may one day be able to "resume his profession."

Gray Sues For $5.5 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III says Justice Department lawyers conducted a haphazard and negligent investigation resulting in an indictment against him that later was dismissed.

Gray, in a lawsuit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Washington, wants $5.5 million in damages for alleged violations of his constitutional rights and the anguish the case caused him.

U.S. Nuclear Sub Rams Into Freighter

TOKYO (UPI) — A U.S. nuclear submarine collided with a Japanese freighter, sinking the cargo vessel and leaving two of its crewmen missing and 13 other sailors drifting in the East China sea for 18 hours before they were picked up by a Japanese destroyer, authorities said today.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman identified the submarine as the U.S.S. George Washington. Officials of Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said the submarine collided with the 2,350-ton Nissho Maru this morning in the East China sea, and 13 survivors from the freighter's crew were found drifting in a rubber dinghy 18 hours later, 40 miles off the Japanese coast.

Two members of the freighter crew were missing, the Japanese officials said.

The George Washington was the West's first ship to be armed with ballistic missiles. It is 381 feet long and has a normal complement of 140 crewmen, including 12 officers and 128 enlisted men.

The submarine, which was carrying Polaris missiles, suffered no damage to its nuclear plant or weapons systems, a U.S. Navy spokesman said.

The collision occurred about 10 a.m. (8 p.m. EST Thursday) in the East China sea, about 94 miles west of Japan's southern main island of Kyushu.

The George Washington surfaced after the collision to offer assistance to the freighter, but "the vessel disappeared from sight due to poor visibility caused by fog and rain," a Navy statement said.

The submarine then submerged and the Navy refused to say where it went.

"We do not discuss submarine locations," the spokesman said.

Commissioned in 1959, the 6,700-ton George Washington is the first of the strategic Polaris missile subs. It is nuclear powered and carries 16 missiles.

Japanese officials quoted the freighter's survivors as saying they saw a "star insignia bordered with a white line" painted on the submarine, which they said surfaced after the collision, but then dove and disappeared.

Military experts noted the area is one of the routes used by warships from the Soviet base at Vladivostok. The Soviet Union currently has 125 submarines, including 60 nuclear-powered ones, operating in the Far East, according to Western military figures.

The Nissho Maru, which left Kobe on Tuesday, was bound for Shanghai when the collision occurred. Officials said the 13 survivors were picked up by the Japanese destroyer Akigumo.

Reagan May Be Released From Hospital Saturday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will be released from the hospital Saturday morning, to begin his White House convalescence from a bullet wound to the chest, it was learned today.

Doctors have cleared the president to return to the White House on what would be the 13th day of his hospital stay, administration sources said today.

Reagan had no visitors this morning aside from his three top aides and awoke early to join the rest of the nation in watching the launch countdown for the space shuttle Columbia. Doctors treating the 70-year-old Reagan for a bullet wound suffered during last week's assassination attempt said the president had a "very good and restful night's sleep" in the hospital and his temperature remained normal.

Reagan read the morning newspapers and briefing papers, took a stroll and had orange juice, granola and decaffeinated coffee for breakfast, aides said. He switched on the television to watch preparations for the spacecraft launching, which was stalled by a computer problem.

"The president has had another excellent day," Dr. Dennis O'Leary, spokesman for George Washington University Medical Center, said in an interview on ABC's "Good Morning America." "He's doing extremely well."

O'Leary said it "looks real close to sure" that Reagan will return to the White House this weekend, but he said doctors are "still not yet totally decided between Saturday and Sunday."

"All thumbs up," O'Leary added, saying a final decision on when Reagan can leave the hospital would be made after chest X-rays were taken today.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Grand Jury To Probe Child Porn Material

FOUNTAIN (UPI) — Thousands of pieces of child pornography seized at a secluded farm apparently run by an occult religious group will be turned over to a federal grand jury, Bay County Sheriff Lavelle Pitts says.

The child-porn, part of a mass of material found Thursday when deputies and federal agents raided the "Natural Science Church Inc." farm in deep woods near this Panhandle town, was the object of a U.S. Postal Service investigation, Pitts said.

The mailing list, which was seized indicated this was a nationwide distribution point for hardcore pornography, including child pornography, said Pitts. "We believe this is one of the largest pornography operations in the southeastern United States."

Orange Production Down

LAKELAND (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has lopped another 1.4 million boxes from the estimated Florida production of early and mid-season oranges this year.

The USDA, in its April estimate released Thursday, predicted Florida's orange production for the 1980-81 season would be 171.6 million boxes, down 1 percent from last month and 17 percent from last year.

The Florida grapefruit crop was estimated at 50 million boxes, up 1.5 million boxes from last month, but down 9 percent from last year.

Bendectin 'Exonerated'

ORLANDO (UPI) — The manufacturers of the morning-sickness drug Bendectin say a jury's decision that it wasn't responsible for a young boy's birth defects "exonerates" the drug, used by millions of women around the world.

But the couple who sued the company for $10 million blamed their attorneys for the jury's verdict Thursday in a re-trial ordered because the first jury's verdict was "ambiguous."

A federal court jury took over two hours to decide against the parents of 6-year-old David Mekdecki. The Mekdeckis claimed the Bendectin Mrs. Mekdecki took while pregnant deformed David's right arm and chest.

Speed Limit Bill Buried

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Washington's attempt to force states to comply with the national 55-mph speed limit by threatening withdrawal of federal highway funds apparently worked in Florida.

"We simply cannot afford to jeopardize programs that depend on this federal money," Tampa Sen. Pat Frank said shortly before the Senate Finance Committee buried proposals to raise the speed limit — a move that would cost Florida $24 million in federal transportation funds.

Oil Imports Decline Proves Out Old Law

Oil imports by the United States dropped to 5.7 million barrels a day last month — the lowest figure since 1975. The amount of gasoline in storage in this country is at an all-time high.

We are seeing a classic demonstration of an old law of the marketplace: As the price of a commodity rises, consumption declines. The decline in demand for oil and gasoline is the direct result of price increases decreed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in the last decade.

In 1971 the posted price of oil from the Middle East was about $20 a barrel. Today it averages $35 a barrel, or 14 times the old figure, and the shock to the economies of oil-importing nations has been profound. We can regret that as a nation our response to the shock has taken so long — that we did not move more swiftly with the conservation efforts, stimulus to production and other measures now reflected in reduced imports and high fuel inventories.

What we have achieved so far, however, is significant. We see the refreshing news that OPEC ministers will meet in Geneva next month to discuss something other than a further increase in prices. Their meeting is more likely to result in a new strategy to keep prices from falling.

There is some comfort in that, but no cause for complacency. The $35-a-barrel price has grown "soft" only because Saudi Arabia has been pumping oil at a relatively generous rate to make up for the interruption in the flow of oil from Iran and Iraq earlier in their now-dormant war. The Saudis can firm up prices by cutting back production.

This suggests the world is as much in bondage to the OPEC cartel as ever, but that is not entirely true. Not only are we making headway in reducing demand for petroleum, but more is coming onto the market from non-OPEC sources. Mexico increased its production last year by 32 percent. Oil from the North Sea was up 10 percent. There is a boom in drilling in the United States.

What is a barrel of oil really worth? Economists quoted by the Congressional Budget Office in a recent report say the "competitive price" of petroleum today should lie between $15 and $20 a barrel. That price would serve to ration its consumption as a scarce commodity and stretch out supplies until alternate fuel sources are fully developed to replace it. A price in that range also would not have the wrenching economic consequences of oil bills at $35 a barrel, especially for developing countries.

If we accept $20 as the theoretical value of a barrel of oil, it underlines the magnitude of the "tax" which Arab governments dominating the OPEC Cartel are imposing on the world economy to amass huge capital surpluses and finance their grandiose development schemes and military ambitions.

Even with imports at 5.7 million barrels a day, Americans are paying $75 billion a year for foreign oil — much of it pure tribute to OPEC. Had we not managed to bring imports down from the 8.3 million barrels per day they reached in 1978, the bill would be $109 billion. That's some consolation, and reason to try harder to loosen OPEC's hold on the petroleum market.

BERRY'S WORLD

"No more kiss-and-tell lobbyists for the rest of us."

ROBERT WALTERS Challenge To Union Injustice

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Daniel Boswell, a New Jersey electrician, probably didn't realize that joining a union required him to relinquish the First Amendment rights of freedom of speech and assembly guaranteed to other citizens.

In fact, those constitutional rights of Boswell and millions of other union members supposedly are protected by the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act, a 1959 federal law popularly known as the Landrum-Griffin Act.

"Every member of any labor organization shall have the right to meet and assemble freely," says the statute, "and to express any views, arguments or opinions."

Court decisions in recent decades have held that the law applies to criticism of a union's policies, the conduct of its officers and the handling of its financial matters — even if the charges are libelous, malicious or false.

In addition, the law prohibits any union from seeking "to fine, suspend, expel or otherwise discipline any of its members for exercising any right to which he is entitled under the provisions of this act."

But Boswell, a member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers since 1964, discovered that those guarantees weren't worth much when he joined a group of union reformers in criticizing the leadership of his IBEW local.

After a long campaign in which he and other insurgents alleged inadequacies in the handling of union funds and representation in collective bargaining, Boswell was elected to his local's executive board in mid-1977.

But within the ensuing 30 months, Boswell was formally accused of making "false accusations," found guilty in a union disciplinary proceeding, removed from the executive board, fined $1,500 and prohibited from holding any union office for the following six years.

After a brief reinstatement, he was charged in early 1979 with provoking a work stoppage, fined $150, again removed from office.

Hundreds of other union insurgents are similarly punished every year, but few have the fortitude, patience, time or money to mount an effective challenge.

Boswell's case, however, attracted the attention of the Association for Union Democracy, a non-profit organization dedicated to defending the rights of union members, and a New York City law firm that volunteered its services.

A civil suit filed on Boswell's behalf in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J., was resolved in March when IBEW officials signed an agreement mandating broad union-wide reforms believed to be unprecedented in scope.

WASHINGTON WINDOW Democrats Bide Time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Having been badly mauled in the last election, Democrats are biding their time and avoiding a direct confrontation with the Republican forces, particularly with the Reagan White House.

Democratic leaders are clearly skeptical of President Reagan's plan to revive the nation's economy by drastic budget and tax cuts, but they are faced with the harsh reality of the election sweep that put Reagan in the White House, turned control of the Senate over to Republicans, and sharply reduced the Democratic majority in the House.

The voters expressed their will and the Democrats are not anxious to oppose that will, lest their ranks be further decimated in the next election. Their chief hope seems to be that the voters will have a change of heart or that the administration's proposed remedies will be proven wrong.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill promised Reagan a political honeymoon, free of criticism, for the first several months of his administration. And in his daily meeting with reporters, O'Neill regularly intones that the Democrats "are not going to be obstructionists."

Both the House and Senate the Democrats have gone to remarkable lengths to cooperate with Republicans in arranging timetables for the administration's proposals to get prompt and fair consideration.

And when the administration was slow in getting its economic plan to Congress, the Democrats complained indignantly that their cooperative spirit was being abused and the committees could not begin work on Reagan's plan.

The Democratic leadership's record of cooperation with the Reagan mandate is thus exemplarily, but in their hearts the Democrats remain firm nonbelievers. And they expect — or at least hope — that the public will soon see through the plan.

There is "widespread misunderstanding" about the administration's economic drastically they are not understood how the program goes through, O'Neill said recently. "I think the average person on the street has no concept of the severe changes" in store for them under the Reagan administration, he said.

In the past few weeks, O'Neill has often indicated he expects the public will eventually reach such an understanding and, presumably, protest.

JEFFREY HART A Rural Leftist Beehive

Populist conservatives often talk as if the Leftist beehive has twin headquarters in Manhattan and Washington, D.C.

Those are indeed interesting places, containing all sorts of busy Leftist bees accomplishing different tasks, but little bees flourished even in white-steepled rural New Hampshire.

The New York Times recently published on its Op-Ed page a little piece by a Mary Ellen Donovan, dailyminded Plainfield, New Hampshire. Donovan was described as "a writer active in the women's and disarmament movements."

The adjectives "women's" and "disarmament" arrest the alert eye, of which more in a moment.

The garden of the Donovan piece, which the Times found worthy of mass circulation, was that the town meeting of Plainfield had voted, 67-17, for a freeze on all nuclear arms.

She noted that Hanover, N.H., had voted 308 to 38 for the same thing, and that East Theford, Vt., "even went so far as to pass a resolution to inform Ronald Reagan and Co. that the United States should send neither aid nor military personnel to El Salvador."

So, there the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot — or at least the vote — heard, if not around the world, at least on the Op-Ed page of the Times.

A few observations, if you please. Donovan makes every effort to link these events to the town meeting democracy of the Colonial era. "It was the town meeting that the ideas and ideals embodied in the Constitution were first tested out."

Hogwash to that linkage. The sociology involved today is entirely different. The farmers of the Revolutionary era were a producing class.

(1) Dry weather and insufficient water — With the recent dry spell we've had, this is the most likely cause. Browning may occur gradually or suddenly, associated with dry hot weather. Dead roots and twigs usually have a dry, shriveled appearance. Corrective measures: Water thoroughly every week or ten days during dry weather.

(2) Spider mite damage — Gradual yellowing or browning, particularly during dry weather. Strike a twig or branch against a white sheet of paper and look for minute, red, spider-like insects. They can be controlled by spraying with Kelthane.

(3) Twig blight (fungus disease) — Twigs throughout plant turn brown and die. Control: Remove and destroy diseased twigs and spray at 10-day intervals with either Benomyl, Copper or Zineb fungicides.

(4) Leafspot (fungus disease) — Usually it affects one side, but may hurt the entire plant. The foliage and/or twigs die.

'Run For Health' Starts Super Saturday

Saturday in Seminole County promises to be a super busy day from early morning until late in the start night.

Toi Fitzpatrick Seminole Correspondent 322-4297

First, the Pilot Club of Sanford, Inc. will sponsor its first annual Run For Health at the Centennial Park in Sanford on the corner of Oak Avenue and Fourth Street.

Beginning at 8 a.m. is a Fun Run (400 yards) for handicapped children. At 9 a.m., the Run For Health (5,000 meters) is scheduled for runners of all ages (5 to 60 and over).

There will be awards for the first three places in each of 10 age divisions for both male and female. Complimentary T-shirts will be given to the first 200 entrants, plus many merchandise awards. Entry fee is $6.

Over the weekend, 2,000 members of Sweet Adelines, Inc. from Florida, Georgia, and Alabama met at the Marriott Hotel on International Drive for their annual Regional Convention and Competition.

The event, called "The Last Roundup" was hosted by the Sound of Sunshine Chapter which meets in Seminole County.

Competition between quartets and choruses was held Friday and Saturday at the Tupperware Auditorium. The winners of the 20 quartets competing were: First Place: The Goldrush, Sound of Atlanta Chapter; Second Place: Syndicated Sound, the Pride of Pinellas Chapter; Third Place: Nelson Ratings, the Jacksonville Chapter; Fourth Place: Prime Time from Royal Palm and Success Chapter; Fifth Place: Phase IV from Chapter at Large and Georgia Harmony Chapter. The Novice Award went to Dixieland Clan from Georgia.

Out of 30 choruses competing, the following received top awards: First: Royal Palm Chapter, West Palm Beach; Second: Sound of Sunshine, Seminole County; Third: Pride of Pinellas Chapter, Pinellas Park; Fourth: Circus City Chapter, Sarasota; Fifth: Jacksonville Chapter, Jacksonville.

The award winning, 80 member chorus, Sound of Sunshine Chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc. is available for booking at civic events, charitable functions, hospitals, churches, clubs and conventions. For further information, call Doris Smith at 644-3193.

The Sweetwater Oaks Garden Club will meet Monday, at 10:30 a.m. at the Wekiva Presbyterian Church on Wekiva Springs Road and State Road 434. Mrs. Sue High, the club's immediate past president and an ardent rose grower, will speak on "The Joy of Growing Roses."

Besides the election of new officers for the 1981-82 year, a bonus workshop follows the reception. Members are asked to bring small flowers of their choice (silk, dried, plastic or cloth) suitable for a miniature (approximately 2 inches high) basket.

Department of Florida Veteran of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary president, Evelyn Hart will be honored at a Testimonial Dinner on April 18. Post and Auxiliary members from throughout the state will attend to honor her.

This special event will be held by the VFW Post 8207 Ladies Auxiliary at the Post home, State Road 427, Longwood.

Seminole Symphony Orchestra will present the annual pops concert, "Splendor at the Springs," conducted by Alfred Savia, at 8 p.m. at the Springs, State Road 434.

Come early to hear the Florida Symphony Youth Concert, conducted by Charles Gottschalk, from 7 until 7:30 p.m.

The Lorelei of Shardon Aquatic, a 35-girl water ballet team will perform to the music by the Florida Symphony Orchestra, an added attraction for the evening entertainment.

Food, beer, wine and soft drinks will be catered or you can bring your own refreshments as well as your own lawn chair or blanket for seating.

Tickets are on sale at the various outlets.

Browning Of Junipers Explained

Questions are a sign of an intelligent mind. One of our many services offered at the Agricultural Center is answering questions pertaining to plants and gardening. Here are some questions recently asked. I hope the answers will help other county residents who may be experiencing the same problems.

Q. My arborvitae is turning brown. I sprayed it with an insecticide, but it didn't seem to help. What causes this? A. Browning of arborvitae, as well as other Junipers, may be caused by one of the following problems:

(1) Dry weather and insufficient water — With the recent dry spell we've had, this is the most likely cause. Browning may occur gradually or suddenly, associated with dry hot weather. Dead roots and twigs usually have a dry, shriveled appearance. Corrective measures: Water thoroughly every week or ten days during dry weather.

(2) Spider mite damage — Gradual yellowing or browning, particularly during dry weather. Strike a twig or branch against a white sheet of paper and look for minute, red, spider-like insects. They can be controlled by spraying with Kelthane.

(3) Twig blight (fungus disease) — Twigs throughout plant turn brown and die. Control: Remove and destroy diseased twigs and spray at 10-day intervals with either Benomyl, Copper or Zineb fungicides.

(4) Leafspot (fungus disease) — Usually it affects one side, but may hurt the entire plant. The foliage and/or twigs die.

Sometimes the plant may lose foliage and then put out new foliage. Control: Spray when disease is noted with one of the fungicides recommended for twig blight above.

(5) Root problems — Gradual browning of entire plant, usually starting from the bottom and moving upward. Many factors can cause root problems to develop and very little can be done to save the plant, except for trying to prevent them from getting started. Root disorders can be caused by nematodes, overwatering, poor drainage, mechanical injury to the plant or planting an extremely root-bound plant without loosening up the root ball.

Q. I read in a gardening book that many woody plants are attacked by a disease called mushroom root rot. Can you tell me how this can be prevented? A. Mushroom root rot attacks a large number of our fruit trees, shade trees and woody ornamentals. This disease is caused by a fungus which is parasitic on roots of pines, oaks, etc. When pieces of these roots remain in the soil when the land is cleared, the fungus may attack cultivated shrubs and trees.

Also, overwatering and/or poor drainage can contribute to the spread of mushroom root rot. It may require several years for it to injure the roots enough to be evident. Many times the mushroom will appear on the trunk base or crown roots before the top of the plant shows evidence of being unhealthy.

Phi Beta Lambda Takes Honors

Ann Hernandez and Mary Ann Spina, Seminole Community College's Phi Beta Lambda District III Conference winners, represented SCC at the recent State Leadership Conference held in Tampa.

Ann Hernandez won second place trophies in both the Data Processing I event and the Job Interview event. Nearly 400 business students from throughout Florida competed in written test events, interview events and skills competition events. Participating schools included seven universities, 15 community colleges, and 14 vocational schools.

Next year, SCC plans to expand its entries to include Court Reporting, Business Law, Accounting, Economics, and Extemporaneous Speaking.

Phi Beta Lambda is the largest post-secondary business organization in the United States. PBL strives to promote a sense of civic and personal responsibility as well as to develop vocational competencies for business, office occupations, and business teacher education.

Pair, Wed Twice, Questions Date To Mark Anniversary

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married May 10, 1956. We were divorced in 1970 and stayed divorced for a year and a half. Then we were married again in November 1972.

We have always celebrated our anniversary on May 10, but now we have a question. Should we celebrate our wedding anniversary on May 10, 1981, and forget about the year and a half we weren't married? Or should we wait until the time we spent as man and wife actually totals 25 years? This is a true love and a lot of people here know that we were apart for a year and a half. What do we say if somebody mentions it?

We'd really like to have a nice 25th anniversary celebration in May.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 15 and have a brother who is 11. We both have our own rooms, although we might as well have only one between us. My problem started last summer when my mother put a cot in my bedroom so my brother could sleep there. The reason was to save energy by turning only one air-conditioner instead of two if I didn't put up with a fuss, although I hated not having my privacy. It's nearly a year later, and my brother is still sleeping in my room. He uses the excuse that he has nightmares about robbers and murderers. Maybe this is true, but I think he should face this problem and sleep in his own bedroom.

I've talked to my mother about it and get nowhere. She says she can't make him sleep in his own room if he says he has nightmares. If it doesn't, he should get professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more "other woman" story? I became the other woman when I was a girl of 19. He was 43 at the time. I worked for him (but don't say doing what). He was married and had children (but don't say how many).

I wasn't particularly sexy-looking, but I was competent, always available and had nothing else in my life but him. He was a workaholic and we spent a lot of time together, in the office and out. If there was any gossip about us, I never heard it. I was like a piece of office equipment.

I never dated anyone else, but it was no sacrifice for me. I loved him. He told me he loved me, too, and when his kids were grown he'd leave his wife and marry me. I never pressured him, and I was content to let time take care of things.

Well, time did. I am 38 now and he is 62. His wife died four months ago and yesterday he married a 27-year-old girl he had known for only six weeks!

Now I know how Jean Harris (the woman who shot that diet doctor) felt. STILL IN SHOCK.

DEAR TROUBLE: I'm all for conserving energy, but the nightmare excuse is a horse of a different color! Perhaps a night-light would eliminate his nightmares. If it doesn't, he should get professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more "other woman" story? I became the

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, April 11, 1981

April 11, 1981
 This coming year you should avoid giving up something good which you are going for on a gamble for what you think is better in the long run by building upon what you already have.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not a good day to have too many irons in the fire. It could cause you to go off on unproductive tangents. Do less, but do everything well. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be on guard against a tendency today to worry too much about things which may never happen. Negative thinking will sap your vitality and success drive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It may seem like everything you want to do today will cost you more money than you wish to spend. If so, seek less expensive diversions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to maintain a middle-of-the-road policy today if you find yourself caught between two opposing factions. Don't be the scapegoat for whom each may be looking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Frustrations or problems you may have to contend with today are likely to be of your own making. They'll be precipitated either by neglect or poor planning.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be realistic today regarding your expectations. You'll be severely disappointed if you think others will do more for you than you would for them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons you may have to deal with today will be as anxious to satisfy their ambitions as you will yours. A failure to compromise spells problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The principal thing to keep in mind with coworkers today is getting the job done properly, not whose ideas or methods should get the credit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though your intentions may be good today, don't try to manipulate or control friends. They might misunderstand your motives and it could cause bad feelings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Those with whom you associate today may lose respect for you if you try to be all things to all people. Your best course of action is to be sincere and be yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you fail to be helpful where you know you could be, even though the potential beneficiary may never have done anything for you, you might end up with a guilty conscience.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Be on your best behavior if you're socializing today with any individual who contributes to your security or income. A responsible image is a "must."

Cholesterol Link Not Yet Proven

DEAR DR. LAMB—In one of your columns you mentioned a relationship between vasectomies and fatty cholesterol in the arteries. My husband had a vasectomy nine years ago. Last summer we found his cholesterol count was 360.

After losing 30 pounds under doctor's orders, and staying on a low-cholesterol diet, his cholesterol count is now 225 and he's feeling great. He's 46 years old.

Would you explain why a vasectomy might cause a cholesterol build-up? Will he have to remain on a low-cholesterol diet from now on?

DEAR READER—We don't know that a vasectomy really does cause an increase in cholesterol levels in men, even though it was observed in monkeys. The monkeys were on a diet that contained about twice the level of fat and cholesterol as we usually consume.

The theory is that because the sperm cells are trapped and must be absorbed, they behave like a foreign body. This stimulates the body's immune system which in turn stimulates an increased production of cholesterol. Remember that is just a theory, not yet proven.

I suspect that those 30 pounds of extra fat your husband was carrying had a lot more to do with his high-cholesterol count. I want to use his example to point out what diet can do for some people in terms of lowering cholesterol levels. Those occasional stories claiming that diet is not useful in this regard are uneducated bunk.

In the individual who has a high level, as in your husband's case, a proper diet may be very important in lowering levels. It doesn't work for everyone but it sure works for a lot of people.

Yes, your husband will be wise to stay on a diet that is low in fat and cholesterol and to keep his weight down. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4, Diet To Prevent Heart Attacks and Strokes, which summarizes the basic diet principles you can use for him. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Encourage him to stay physically active.

DEAR DR. LAMB—About two years ago I began to notice spots before my eyes. They move in the same direction my eyes move. When I keep my eyes still I do not see them.

An eye doctor told me the spots were floaters. I don't know what they are. These floaters play tricks on me. There are times when I see one from the corner of my eye, like someone is coming from behind me, only to realize that it was a large floater disappearing into the corner of my eye. It startles me. I'd appreciate it if you would explain floaters.

DEAR READER—Your eyeball is filled with a gelatinous material. As you get older, areas inside it may liquify. As light rays pass through this area they cause distortions or spots. Also spots can occur where this gel (vitreous) separates from the retina layer at the back of your eye or with a retinal detachment. Showers of spots can occur from a hemorrhage in the eye. You can have fixed floaters from a spot (early cataract) in the lens of the eye.

In many cases they are harmless other than the annoyance they cause, but anyone who develops floaters must have an examination to be sure what the real cause is. Some of my readers tell me that a blue-tinted piece of plastic over the printed page makes floaters less bothersome while reading.

WIN AT BRIDGE

he is in dummy with dummy's ace of spades.

He counts one loser in each black suit and one potential loser in each red suit. He also has finesse possibilities against both red kings. It would be nice if he could lead four times from dummy and pick up both red kings if they were placed properly, but he is in dummy now and will be there just once more.

He can finesse once in each red suit or twice in one red suit. Obviously, he must concentrate on just one. Which one?

The normal way would be to attack trumps, but that is the wrong way here. The reason why is that if the diamond finesse is going to work everything will be fine if the suit breaks 3-2. But suppose it breaks 4-1. Two finesses won't pick up the king.

Therefore, after this consideration, South takes a diamond finesse. Then he plays ace-10 of hearts, and the game with the ace of clubs, finesses again for the king of diamonds and scores the game.

Mud Racing Proves Men Will Be Boys

By CINDY MOOY
 Herald Staff Writer

'Boys will be boys' as any mother knows who has laundered her young son's clothes after a day of outdoor play. And as the wife of any mud slinger knows, men will be boys sometimes, too.

A mud slinger by definition is a full-grown, adult man (who some would think should know better) who works with the mud with the ace of clubs, finesses again for the king of diamonds and scores the game.

As a slinger on the bumper of one mud slinger's truck said, "The only difference between a boy and a man is the price of his toys."

A version of this "good, clean sport," the Sorrento Mud Sling, is held on the first Sunday of each month on a dairy farm west of Sanford, east of Sorrento. The first meet was held in January.

Frank Tedder of Astatula, Fla., is one of the man-boy mud slingers. He has spent $5,000 conditioning a 1959 Ford truck and "I've got $3,000 under the hood," which she spoke was $3,000 worth of engine caked in thick, wet mud.

Tedder would spend the rest of the week washing the truck and cleaning the motor until the next Sunday when he will compete in Lakeland or Plant City of Blitho or any other town around the state where a mud sling is held.

"You've got to wash it inside and out. You've got to pull out the radiator and clean it out. You've got to wash the breaks out," Tedder said. "It's a lot of work."

Mud racers have another bumper sticker slogan—"Work eight days a week to run 300 feet."

Now the question—why?

"I can't afford stock car racing or drag racing, so this is the next best thing," Tedder said. "Mud racing is the latest, the most popular thing right now."

"Anybody can do it. You can take your street car in there if you have four-wheel drive."

Anybody includes women, who sometimes enter the competitions, proving at times women will be girls, too.

Tedder's wife, Sharon, has been driving in mud races along with her husband for a year. At the mud sling last Pull came to push for this jeep and driver (left) when a little extra shove was needed because the engine wouldn't start after a tractor rescued it from the mud. Spectators (right) watch the mud sling proceedings at a safe and clean distance. One popular vantage point is the top of one's own truck.

...Mud Sling Latest Thing

Sunday, a day when the mud was a little too deep and no drivers were going very far, Sharon beat out her husband and quite a few of the male drivers getting farther through the mud.

The women compete against each other in their own category, the powderpuff division. The other divisions are divided by the type of vehicles used: two-wheel and four-wheel drive vehicles, 1200 and 1400 size tires, jeeps, ap open class and a class for experimental vehicles.

Mud racers compete against time and distance—until they and their vehicle get stuck and have to be pulled out with an earthmover tractor. Each driver has only one shot at the mud in each category, though they may try to back up one time and move farther forward.

Drivers come from all over the state and from Georgia to compete for cash prizes and trophies. Drivers of two-wheel drive vehicles pay a $10 entry fee aiming for a $100 first prize and trophy. Second and third prizes are $75 and $25. All other classes pay a $25 entry fee for a trophy and $350 first prize, $150 second prize and $75 third prize.

"It's the skill of the driver," said Jack McDonald, that determines how far drivers make it through the muck. McDonald is a Lake County deputy and a mud slinger, but Sunday he had the job of measuring the distance driven by others.

"They (the better drivers) hit the mud better, they get a better start, they spin the steering wheel better, they can look at the mud for the best place to go," McDonald said.

"It can also be 'blind luck,' he had to add.

McDonald's brother, Bert, had the job of "volunteer" who has to slog through the mud to attach a hook and line from the earthmover to the stuck vehicles so they can be pulled out.

"Now I know what Humphrey Bogart felt like in "The African Queen," Bert said upon emerging from waist-deep mud after several hours of hooking truck to tractor.

Mud slinging is a spectator sport as well. Although the day's races didn't begin until noon, "By 8:30 this morning, we had 25 cars lined up outside the gate waiting to get in," McDonald said. "We had two campers set up overnight."

McDonald said he too had his truck there early positioned along the fence that lines the mud trough and near the starting post, so his family would have a good view.

For many, the mud sling is a family affair. Spectators bring coolers and lunch baskets and sit on top of their trucks or in folding chairs and spend the day watching others drive into the mud.

"A lot of it is people saying, 'Oh, I can do better than that,'" said McDonald. About 700 people were at the April Sorrento Mud Sling.

The mud sling area is located on State Road 46A between State Roads 44 and 46 about half way between Sanford and Sorrento. Admission is $5 and free for children 12 and under.

Proceeds for the refreshment sales and truck wash go to the Sorrento Volunteer Fire Department.

The name of every continent ends with the same letter with which it begins: America, Antarctica, Europe, Asia, Australia, and Africa.

Harold Gould, as David Ross, discusses a case with Alice Drummond, left, as Frances Heine, and Mary Elaine Monti, as Jo Keene, in "Park Place," Thursday, (8:30-9 p.m., ET) on CBS.

Mansion On 'Dynasty' Is Historic Landmark

Filoli, the magnificent 48-room house Blake Carrington (John Forsythe) calls home in "Dynasty," is actually near San Mateo, some 30 miles south of San Francisco, and not in Denver where "Dynasty" is set. The mansion is almost a personality in itself, and plays a principal role in the series that airs every Monday night on ABC.

Framed by well-manicured lawns and lush gardens, the imposing brick mansion sits on a gentle rise on the eastern slope of the Coast Range Mountains. The central portion of the 654-acre estate, which contains the main residence and the Lurline B. Roth Gardens, is a registered state landmark and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Built in 1916-19 for Mr. and Mrs. William P. Bourn II, the mansion and its 16 acres of gardens were to become world-renowned for their beauty and design, especially after being purchased by Mr. and Mrs. William P. Roth in 1937.

The residence was designed by Willis Polk, an inventive California architect who was comfortable with a variety of styles and who frequently combined several in one building. Though basically modified Georgian in style, many of the doors are French, the exterior brick is laid in Flemish bond, the tile roof is Spanish and details of the trim are from the Stuart period.

Filoli, an outstanding and important example of country house architecture in the United States, is one of the few in California that remains intact in its original setting. The house covers 18,000 square feet with 36,000 square feet of interior floor space.

The spacious and finely proportioned major main floor rooms have 17-foot-high ceilings, with ballroom's ceiling soaring to a height of 20 feet. It has 17 wood-burning fireplaces. Several small buildings are adjacent to the main house.

Surrounding the house are the formal gardens laid out in a succession of separate areas, each with a distinct character and designed to take

Sanford May Take Over Housing Rehabilitation Work

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Many believe that state and federal agencies are tough, if not impossible, to deal with. But Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles has proved he is up to the task.

The agencies involved were the state Department of Environmental Regulation (DER), the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The resulting action was:

—After many months of delay, DER has finally scheduled a specific time to take samples from 3,200 barrels of apparently toxic waste stored in a field in the city.

—The city will probably take over direct supervision of the housing rehabilitation project which got into trouble with HUD when the Sanford Housing Authority was handling it.

Knowles said today a DER technician is scheduled to take the chemical samples at the two-acre waste chemical storage site off Jowett Lane and Airport Boulevard on April 21.

The testing of the chemicals is a necessary part of the city and DER pursuing lawsuits against City Chemicals Co. Inc. of Orlando, operators of the site.

The city and DER have claimed that the chemicals are toxic and hazardous and should be moved from the site. To successfully get the circuit court to order the removal, a chemical analysis had to be done to prove the point.

Knowles, in a memo to the city commission, listed the dozens of telephone calls he has made to the EPA and DER and finally to Sen. John Vogt, D-Melbourne, and State Rep. Robert Hattaway D-Altamonte Springs before the date for taking samples was scheduled.

At the same time, City Attorney Bill Colbert has thrown up his hands in despair over DER's lack of action.

"It is a frustrating experience but I believe they (DER) are either ill-equipped or unwilling or a little of both to handle the job they are charged by law to do," Colbert said in a letter to Knowles. "I apparently do not have any clout with them. I suggest a renewed effort to get their attention via the governor's office, legislators etc."

Knowles, in a letter to Kenneth H. MacKay Jr., chairman of the state Hazardous Waste Policy Advisory Council, this past week outlined the city's problem with DER's failure to take action against City Chemical since Nov. 12, 1980 when the existence of the chemical storage site was reported by the city to the state agency.

"Florida is without a hazardous waste program and is not capable of enforcing existing state laws," Knowles told MacKay.

After all the correspondence and telephone calls, Knowles was notified late Friday that the DER will take the samples on April 21.

On the housing rehabilitation project, Knowles reported to HUD on Feb. 27 that the Sanford Housing Authority (SHA) was having management problems with the federally funded program.

Following a recommendation of HUD officials in Jacksonville and Atlanta, Knowles will tell Sanford City Commissioners at a 7 p.m. meeting Monday, that the city should consider removing the program from SHA.

Space Shuttle: A 'Go' Sunday?

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Astronauts John W. Young and Robert L. Crippen got in more landing practice Saturday while officials debated whether to clear them for a second launch attempt Sunday on the maiden test flight of the space shuttle Columbia.

The pilots, following the early-to-rise timetable of their 36-orbit mission, were in the air an hour after sunrise, rehearsing landing approaches in a twin-jet airplane rigged to fly like the shuttle.

They would return to the Kennedy Space Center's new three-mile-long runway in the event of an engine failure during the first four minutes of the shuttle's climb into space.

The Columbia is the first spaceship designed to return to Earth like an airplane for use again and again.

Engineers blamed Friday's launch scrub on a computer programming problem, but they were unsure whether the problem could be fixed, and retested, in time for a 6:50 a.m. EST blastoff Sunday. A decision was expected by early afternoon Saturday.

Arnold D. Aldrich, deputy manager of the shuttle program at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, said the trouble had been traced to the programming for the computers that are the heart of the Columbia's flight control system. It was sort of an electronic language barrier.

Aldrich said Friday night the problem was an "unexpected 'time skew'" — a foulup in the rhythm of signal exchanges between computers — that prevented the shuttle's four main computers from talking properly to the ship's fifth, vital backup computer.

After spending an uncomfortable six hours strapped in their cockpit, the astronauts relaxed for a while, then joined engineers in trying to trace the electronic gremlin responsible for their flight delay.

Their ground-launch crew drained more than 500,000 gallons of super-cold liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen from the ship's external tank in preparation for a new launch attempt.

Aside from the balky computer system, conditions looked good for a launch at 6:50 a.m. EST Sunday. A preliminary forecast for that day is for the same nearly ideal conditions that prevailed Friday — sunny skies with a few clouds, and light winds.

Project officials made tentative plans late Friday to resume the countdown at 6 p.m. EST today at a point 10½ hours before launch.

Sunday marks the 20th anniversary of the day Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin soared into orbit aboard Vostok 1, becoming the first man in space. Gagarin's flight on April 12, 1961, beat the initial Mercury mission of America's Alan B. Shepard by just 23 days.

HERE'S LOOKIN' AT, ER, FOR YA

This radar plane is one of the interesting aircraft on display at the Sanford-Central Florida Airport Saturday and Sunday during the Eighth Annual Central Florida Air Show sponsored by the Rotary Clubs of Sanford. This model, the EA-2C, is a radar plane that flies from aircraft carriers and is used to detect submarines. The activity continues Sunday with gates open at 9 a.m. and an air show scheduled at 1:30 p.m. featuring performances by the U.S. Navy Blue Angels, the U.S. Army Golden Knights'

Parachute Team, the Eagle Aerobatic Team, Bobby Bishop and Wayne Pierce. Also on display will be the only flying B-29 bomber left from World War II flown here from Harlingen, Texas by the Confederate Air Force for the occasion. Other vintage aircraft will be a P-3C Orin and an F-14 Tomcat. Admission to the air show is $5 at the gate and children under 12 will be admitted free. Proceeds will benefit Central Florida charities.

16 Hurt In 6 Wrecks On Fog-Shrouded 27

Sanford Man In Critical Condition

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

A 23-year-old Sanford man remained in critical condition today at a Lake Wales hospital following surgery on his near-severed leg and recovering from other injuries suffered in one of six separate crashes on U.S. 27 involving more than 20 vehicles.

The Sanford man, Robert Johnson, was driving his 18-wheeler tractor-trailer from Miami to Sanford early Friday when it collided with several other vehicles already at a stop following earlier collisions on the fog-shrouded highway just south of Lake Wales.

Heavy smoke from burning mixed mixed with fog blotted out the vision of motorists on four-lane U.S. 27 early Friday. Twenty-one vehicles piled up in rapid order about 6 a.m. in six separate accidents, three on each side of the road, the Florida Highway Patrol said.

Sixteen people were injured. Seven including two babies, remained hospitalized Saturday. Nine others were treated for minor injuries and released.

Johnson, the most seriously injured of the 16, was trapped with his wife Bonnie, 32, and their dog, Tutor, in the rig for more than an hour after the wreck.

Mrs. Johnson, who was also admitted to Lake Wales Hospital following the accident, was still listed in fair condition with minor injuries.

"I'm just in a lot pain right now. My muscles hurt all over," Mrs. Johnson said Saturday.

Mrs. Johnson admitted she remembers very little about the actual crash.

"My husband was hurt, I knew. But while we were trapped and waiting for someone to pull us out, he kept making sure our dog, Tutor was okay. And he was. Tutor was just fine," Mrs. Johnson said.

The smoke that made the fog thicker apparently came from a 70-acre blaze which began as a permitted fire and became a smoldering muck fire. Local Civil Defense officials, concerned about the fire because of smoke crossing U.S. 27 and State Road 60, tried to extinguish it earlier this week using inmates from a correctional facility.

Mark Hebb, district forester for the Florida Division of Forestry said Friday the issuance of the permit was ill-advised and noted the forest ranger who approved it had been disciplined.

Christensen Tours Seminole County Jail For A First-Hand Evaluation

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk is asking the county commission for an increase in his budget for the new fiscal year of $300,043 over the present budget year. And County Commissioner Barbara Christensen wants to know why.

At her request Friday afternoon, she was given a tour of the eight-month-old, multi-million dollar corrections facility, sampling a typical dinner served to inmates, taking note of the superior construction of the facility and the need for additional correction officers.

Personally conducting the tour was Steve Saunders, corrections administrator. Accompanying Mrs. Christensen was her son, Dale.

Mrs. Christensen said she was very pleased with the 3½ hour tour and the quality of the facility. She said she saw a real need for at least a few more correction officers.

Of the food, she said, "I thought the food was very good and that the inmates eat well. The inmates do not have it rough as far as the food is concerned."

Mrs. Christensen praised Saunders for being "very efficient, very thorough and well qualified."

She said she will be looking at all areas of the sheriff's department before she makes up her mind on whether to vote for the increase Polk is asking for.

Polk has submitted a new budget call for the 1981-1982 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 of $6.15 million. His budget for the current year totaled $5.22 million.

More than one-third of the $900,043 increase — $334,826 — is for operating the jail, off U.S. 17-92 in South Sanford.

Budgeted for the correction facility's operation in the current fiscal year was $95,528. Requested for the new year is $1,365,355.

To evaluate the proposed increase, Mrs. Christensen asked for a tour of the jail as the first step.

Saunders said the jail is currently rated by the state for 212 beds. On a recent weekend 250 persons were housed at the facility, he said.

Saunders said a projection was made in January that the jail would process 668 prisoners during the month of March alone. In fact, he said, the jail processed 622 prisoners. The projection for December, 1982 is 672. But Saunders said this figure could be off by as much as 100-125 prisoners.

Douse That Cigar

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — State Representative John Vincent took quick action against a fellow lawmaker puffing his cigar on the House floor — he sprayed him with a fire extinguisher.

Vincent Friday asked Les Kitzelman to put out his cigar because the smoke was bothering him. When Kitzelman ignored the request, Vincent grabbed the extinguisher and took action.

Seminole County Commissioner Barbara Christensen, Casselberry, Gets A First-Hand Taste of County Jail Food With Steve Saunders, Corrections Administrator at Seminole County Correctional Facility on U.S. 17-92 Near Five Points in Sanford, Mr. Christensen Asked for a Tour of the Jail

Saunders said the projections were based on past history at the jail with allowances for the growth in population, and crime statistics through the latter part of last year. He said obviously there is some other variable that he and the officer who made the projections were not aware of.

While there are now 53 persons employed at the jail including 31 corrections officers, one lieutenant, four sergeants and three corporals, the new budget calls for eight additional corrections officers, an additional bookkeeper-clerk and an additional cook.

The new officers are needed, he said, to assist the men already on hand. He showed Mrs. Christensen that one officer is on duty at the central control area, visually scanning television cameras showing activities in the three-inmate pods, watching various lights showing which doors are open and the fire alarm system. At the same time, he is operating switches to open and close the security doors. Saunders said the workload is too much for the one officer who is constantly moving in the booth.

Almost one third — $92,951 — of the increase for the corrections facility operation is for food. In the current year's budget $965,829 was allocated for food.

Cost per prisoner meal at the beginning of the fiscal year, October, 1980, was as part of her evaluation of the Sheriff John Polk's $6.15 million budget request for fiscal 1981-82. Mrs. Christensen ate fish, french fries, tossed salad, sweet pickles and washed it down with a fruit drink, the same meal served to inmates Friday night.
