Sanford Women Organizing To Fight Drunk Driving

Members of the Sanford Jr. Woman's Club are very angry about drunk drivers but are not sure whether they will become MADD. But they are asking local residents to join them in a community effort against drunk driving.

Pamela Tucker, chairman of the club's drug and alcohol abuse committee, said her group is hoping to start a local organization to watchdog court proceedings and aid police in arresting drunk drivers.

The club is holding an introductory meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Sanford Police Department, 815 French Ave., to organize and decide whether to join MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers), a national activist group.

After the showing of the film, The Day 1 Died, Sanford police Sgt. William Bernosky, Jr. will be on hand to discuss what local law enforcement agencies are up against in their fight to keep the roads free of drunks.

Ms. Tucker, who is a member of the Orlando chapter of MADD, said at least 10 members of the Woman's Club have been working on the local project, compiling statistics from several sources on deaths and injuries caused by intoxicated car operators.

According to their findings:

- 26,000 people are killed annually by drunk drivers in the United States.
- 1.5 million Americans annually are seriously injured by drunk drivers.
- Drunk drivers cost the United States more than $24 billion per year in economic losses.

- Drunk drivers cost all drivers 25-percent of their auto insurance premiums.

"Our first action will be to monitor the courts, following manslaughter cases and offering assistance to the victims," she said.

The new group is also expected to work with police in getting mobile alcohol-testing equipment for Seminole County, she said.

Normally, drunk driving arrests take up to three hours to complete because police must transport suspects to stations where alcohol testing equipment is available. With mobile equipment, arrest time could be decreased to 45 minutes, Ms. Tucker said.

Remember your childhood days when the arrival of the Christmas "wish book"—the mail order catalog chocked full of marvelous toys and gifts—was one of the biggest days of the year? You couldn't wait to mark all those you hoped would be under the tree for you as a not so subtle hint to your resident Santa.

Well, now there's another

The wish book contains the hopes and needs of area social service agencies. It's a place where people who serve the community can list their Christmas wishes and year long dreams. The publication

Economic Parity In Reach, Blacks Told

By Donna Estes
 Herald Staff Writer

Blacks in Sanford and Seminole County were called on Friday night to fight for economic parity with whites.

U.S. Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Philadelphia, told them the way is to: form coalitions with people of good will, black and white; register and vote; develop unity and recognize and most of all that God is on their side.

Speaking before a capacity crowd at the 12th annual SEEDCO (Seminole Employment Economic Development Corp.) Friends Banquet held at the Sanford Civic Center, Gray said the Reagan Administration has made it harder for blacks and the poor to survive, but "we must keep the faith, keep struggling and not lose our hope."

And he emphasized that the black race has survived through slavery and poverty this long "because of our faith."

No matter what society says, no matter what is written and "what is done to us, we are God's children and God don't make no junk," he said to resounding applause from his audience of more than 200.

Outlining what blacks must do, he said a "new coalition of conscience must be formed among blacks and whites of good will."

"Don't be so super black that you can't talk with your white brothers and sisters. If a person has the same goals as we, let us walk together," Gray said.

Pointing to the passage of the national voting rights act as the late Martin Luther King's greatest achievement, Gray said King knew that a "voiceless people is a powerless people." He said that "far too many blacks are sitting around and not paying their voting rent in this democracy."

"Don't tell me what you think of that man in the White House if you are not registered to vote. You don't have the right to talk about any law made in this country if you don't vote."

To those who say they don't want to be involved in politics, Gray said that politics affects everyone's life from birth to death. One is not officially born until a political appointee signs a birth certificate and one is not officially dead until a political appointee signs a death certificate, he said.

He cautioned blacks to develop unity, "functional unity."

Gray said this doesn't mean that blacks have to follow a single leader. It means, he said, that when issues concerning jobs, housing and health care are paramount, blacks must not fight among themselves in the press or on the street corner.

"What has ripped us apart is functional disunity," he said. "We must agree to the same goals."

"But most important, we must keep the faith and God will fight our battles. What has enabled us to survive is that little book called the Bible," he said.

"I'm not worried about hard times. Keep your hand in the hand of God, keep the faith and he will give us the ability to climb mountains. Ronald Reagan is the best thing that has happened to black folks," Gray said. "I feel sorry for white brothers and sisters who have never had hard times and who are having them today."

The three-term congressman said much of the economic problems facing the poor today are caused by a wrong analysis and thus a wrong solution to heal the nation's financial ills was developed by the Reagan administration.

He said the real cause of inflation was the loss by America of access to natural resources as changes occurred in the world. He pointed specifically to new nations, wealthy with natural resources such as oil, that no longer agreed in the 1970's that the U.S. had a right to those resources.

The result was shortages, he said, and as prices went up so did inflation. As international conglomerates went to the slave markets of the world for cheap labor,

You're Under (House) Arrest

By Charles Cobb
 Herald Staff Writer

The innovative new house arrest program that allows some convicted criminals to remain home with their families instead of going to prison is getting off to a promising start in Seminole County.

But Seminole County Sheriff John E. Polk thinks the program may ultimately be a failure.

Two Seminole judges have sentenced six men to house arrest since the Florida Legislature authorized the program Oct. 1.

Under the new "community control" plan circuit judges may use their discretion in sentencing convicted felons to a period of up to two years house arrest, instead of spending that time in prison.

The men are confined to their homes except to go to their jobs and other activities approved by authorities.

"It's a program for criminals whose record is not good enough for probation and not bad enough for prison, a kind of no man's land," said Jim Lee, circuit administrator at the Sanford office of the Florida probation and parole service.

The six men sentenced to house arrest for two years by judges Dominick J.

Salfi and S. Joseph Davis Jr. were convicted of burglary, trafficking in stolen property and depositing checks with the intent to defraud.

Three of the men were sentenced by Davis and they are now in the house arrest program. The three sentenced by Salfi were also given jail sentences and they will enter the house arrest program upon completion of their jail terms.

The first Seminole County man was placed under house arrest Oct. 7 — less than two months ago. So far it's working fine.

"We've just started, but I'm really impressed," said Jim Lee, circuit administrator at the Sanford office of the Florida probation and parole service. "I think it's working very good."

Probation and parole officers are required by law to check up on the three men now in the program a minimum of seven times a week, Lee said. Six of these checks must be "personal" — meaning the officer must visit the man in person or call him on the phone. The other checks can be with someone close to the man such as his wife or employer.

"In some cases we will be checking a man more often," Lee said. Officers can check on a man at any time and any place. They can knock on a man's door at 3 a.m. to be sure he's home.

Judge Davis

Judge Salfi

In general a person on house arrest must not leave his property except to go to his job or to perform other "necessary" and approved functions such as grocery shopping and visiting a doctor. And these activities must be approved by an officer.

If a person violates the rules, he would be arrested immediately and taken back before the judge who may revoke the house arrest and place the person in jail, Lee said.

"I expect people who do get this opportunity will be very circumspect. They know they're just one step away

GOP Defends Ballot Right Of Prop. 1

The local GOP has unanimously adopted a resolution calling on state officials to "defend the civil rights of the citizens of Florida" to place Proposition 1 on the ballot in the November, 1984 elections.

Court action has been undertaken by a Miami resident to stop the state from ordering the matter onto the ballot as petitioned by 500,000 residents of the state and Attorney General Jim Smith and Secretary of State George Firestone have refused to defend the suit.

Proposition 1 seeks to limit spending at all levels of government in the state to its 1980 level plus five percent per year.

In its resolution, the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee notes that the petitions on the proposed constitutional amendment were certified by Firestone as sufficient to have the matter placed on the ballot.

The committee says that failure to permit the matter on the ballot will "deny the civil rights of the citizens of Florida to vote on the amendment to their state constitution."

While Smith has said he will not defend the suit, Firestone has said if the court decides in favor of the plaintiff he will not appeal the decision.

Gemayel Fails In Bid For Israeli Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lebanese President Amin Gemayel ended his U.S. visit Saturday, unsuccessful in his bid to re-open the agreement on Israel withdrawal of forces from his country, but with a promise the United States will push the issue in forthcoming talks.

The next step, according to Lebanese officials, will be for U.S. Middle East mediator Donald Rumsfeld to fly to the Middle East to try to persuade Israel to withdraw partially from Lebanon, in return for a partial Syrian withdrawal.

According to Lebanese officials, Gemayel asked that the United States use its influence on Israel to renegotiate a side letter to last May's cease-fire agreement — signed by Secretary of State George Shultz and Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

In the letter, the United States and Israel agreed the Israelis would not have to pull their forces out of Lebanon if the Syrians and PLO did not also withdraw.

Barriers At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Workers erected concrete barriers at the southwest entrance of the White House early Saturday, replacing dump trucks parked at the site Thanksgiving Day amid heightened security measures.

"The trucks were temporary and we are replacing them with something more permanent," said Jack Smith, deputy assistant to the director of the Secret Service.

U.S. Park Police set up roadblocks to keep traffic away from the southwest end of the presidential complex as National Park Service workers and Secret Service agents installed the 3-foot high by 15-foot long barriers.

Smith refused to comment on why the barriers were erected or if others would follow. The workers, toiling under a portable spotlight, used a crane to lift the barriers from flatbed trucks.

Pill Manufacturer Sued

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A woman suffering from breast cancer has filed a $20 civil suit against the manufacturer of a birth control pill that a recent university study said poses a cancer risk to young women.

The lawsuit against G.D. Searle and Co. charging negligence and product liability was filed Friday by attorney Nancy Adel in Superior Court on behalf of Selma Schimmel, 29, a sociology student at UCLA.

Miss Schimmel accused the pharmaceutical company of promoting the pill — a variety high in the hormone progesterone — without adequate testing.

"I would very much hope this will inform all women that birth control pills can be dangerous," Miss Schimmel said of the suit.

Baby Doe Case Continues

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two panels of judges, including the U.S. Supreme Court, have been asked to review cases concerning a severely handicapped infant known as Baby Jane Doe whose parents have blocked corrective surgery and whose condition is now complicated by pneumonia.

The lawyer for the baby's parents Friday branded the Reagan administration's attempt to get the infant's medical records an "Orwellian tragedy."

Three Mile Island 'The Truth Is Out'; Plant Officials Feel Exonerated

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Three Mile Island officials, promoting a 12,000-page report by a company-hired investigator that counters alleged safety shortfalls at the nuclear power plant, say "the truth is out."

"The great majority of allegations are unfounded," said Edwin Stier, the former director of the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice who released his 15-volume report commissioned by plant owner, General Public Utilities Corp.

"The company wanted the truth, the public wanted the truth and the regulatory agencies wanted the truth. The truth is out," said Phillip Fine, manager of public information for GPU Nuclear, the subsidiary that operates the plant. Stier said documented evidence shows many of the allegations were based on "strong personal animosity" between the workers and plant officials.

The workers included Richard Parks, employed by Bechtel Inc., a contractor retained by GPU to carry out the cleanup; Lawrence King, a former site operations director at TMI Unit 2, the damaged reactor, and King's secretary, Joyce Wenger.

Parks, King and another former GPU Nuclear supervisor, Edwin Gischel, have sworn that plant officials intentionally sacrificed agreed-to safety procedures and conducted sloppy operations to try to speed the billion-dollar cleanup.

King and Ms. Wenger, who also alleged they were harassed by plant officials for making the allegations, were fired after the incident. Ms. Wenger was rehired by the company with full back pay in a settlement of a labor relations suit.

Stier said his investigation showed the firings were not related to the public allegations. He said King's dismissal resulted from his recruitment of GPU Nuclear personnel for King's own separate company.

A spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said its investigation of Parks' allegations has not been closed but declined further comment.

Stier, who joined a private law firm after leaving his criminal justice position in the New Jersey attorney general's office, and several colleagues resigned their posts after a reported dispute with Attorney General Irwin Kimmelman.

Stier would not comment on whether the findings might support possible GPU litigation. GPU spokesman John Fidler said the company has not determined how it will use the findings.

Officials of TMI, crippled March 1979 in the worst commercial nuclear accident in history, have been trying to prove their competence and win NRC approval to restart the undamaged Unit 1 reactor.

Murder-Indicted Mother-To-Be Out On Bond

An Altamonte Springs woman, charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of her husband, posted $25,000 bond and has been released from the Seminole County jail.

Sammy Husted, 26, surrendered to authorities Friday morning after she learned that a grand jury had on Thursday indicted her for the Nov. 9th shooting.

Mrs. Husted's husband, Joseph, was shot in the left eye with a 16-gauge shotgun. The couple was alone at their home at 1131 Pine St., when Husted was killed.

Mrs. Husted's attorney, Clifton Curry said, in a Friday afternoon hearing, the shooting was accidental. He asked Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. to release her without bond. Mrs. Husted is 7 months pregnant and has two children ages 8 and 6.

Assistant State Attorney Mike Peacock said the shooting occurred during an argument between the couple and investigators believe Husted was shot either as he sat at or was getting up from the dining room table. He said that would indicate premeditation in the shooting.

The state's attorney alleges Mrs. Husted was angry with her husband because he and two other men had offered his niece money to have sex. Mrs. Husted allegedly told the niece that she would get her gun and wait for her husband to come home, Peacock said.

Curry said the shooting was accidental and Husted had a history of abusing his wife. He said Mrs. Husted alleges she was putting the gun away when it was hit and fired.

Curry asked for a trial date within six weeks, so jurors can see Mrs. Husted's condition. He said the defense will contend that she feared for her safety and the safety of her unborn child. Trial date was set for January 30.

Husted, 29, was a landscaper.

OFFICER HURT
A Sanford police officer trying to question a shoplifting suspect was assaulted by the man and received emergency room treatment for bites, scratches and a lump on his head.

Officer Mike Ansley stopped a man who fit the description of a suspect who had stolen shoes from the Payless Shoe Store on 24th Street, Sanford. A clerk at the store called the police around 8 p.m. Friday and described the man who knocked her to the floor and broke her eyeglasses.

Ansley said he stopped the suspect in the 2400 block of Myrtle Avenue. The man denied any connection with the case, but refused to go to the store to confront the clerk.

When Ansley tried to search the suspect the man hit him on the head and the men began to fight. During the struggle Ansley said the man tried to remove his gun from his holster and pulled his police radio mike from his hand.

Within five minutes the officer had the suspect somewhat subdued and was able to call police for assistance. As the man was being transported to the Seminole County jail he allegedly hit and kicked the police car, damaging its door.

Ansley was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, and was released.

Eddie Lee Smith, 18, of 615 Poltner Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 2412 Myrtle Ave., at 9:06 p.m. He is charged with battery to a police officer, retail theft and battery to the store clerk. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

CON ARREST
A Sanford man accused in an asphalt driveway paving scam was being held Saturday in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Seminole County sheriff's investigators arrested the man Friday morning after one of his alleged victims picked him out in a line-up at the jail.

George Carver of 1980 Cameron Ave., Sanford, said the man drove up to his home Nov. 26, and said he had been paving State Road 415 and had asphalt left over, which he would use to pave Carver's driveway. Carver said he paid the man $125, but the man never returned to work on his driveway.

Investigator Randy Boyd reported that about four other Sanford residents have been approached in a similar paving scam in the past few weeks.

Ashley Minkel, 31, of 615 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, is charged with grand theft.

Florida Bluefish Are Safe...Probably

Despite the grim warnings that contaminated bluefish are migrating south to Florida's waters, fisherman say the fish are perfectly safe to eat and scientists are backing them up.

The New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection warned last month that bluefish migrating to Florida from the polluted northeast Atlantic coast might contain PCBs and chlordane, both suspected of causing cancer.

Since then seafood connoisseurs have been switching to other species of fish in droves.

Lee Cooper, who has spent most of his life catching and selling fish said the bluefish are perfectly safe. To prove his point, he sent two fresh bluefish from his fish house in Marathon and had them analyzed by the Division of Biology and Living Resources at the University of Miami's marine laboratory.

"We found no chlordane, no PCBs, nor any other chlorinated pesticide in the fish," wrote Professor Emeritus Eugene Corcoran in his analysis.

Cooper said the report proves "Bluefish in our are not exposed to the pollution of the New York and New Jersey area."

Corcoran's findings "clearly demonstrate that the bluefish produced here in Florida are healthy animals and pose no danger to consumers," said Bob Jones, executive director of the Southeastern Fisheries Association Inc.

The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Affairs has also tested bluefish and found no problems, said state biologist George Fong.

Filets from 12 fish caught in the Atlantic Ocean at West Palm Beach, Merritt Island and Atlantic Beach showed PCB levels well below the tolerance level of 5 parts per million, he said.

Bluefish that spend some time in the industrially contaminated waters of the northeast migrate as far south as Miami, said Stuart Wilk, bluefish expert with the fisheries' service's Sandy Hook laboratory in New Jersey.

But the bluefish caught in the Florida Keys come from a separate population on the Florida Gulf Coast, he said. Wilk said he did not know whether the Gulf Coast bluefish suffer from contamination.

Harry Seagren, chemical contamination expert with the National Marine Fisheries Service, said, "We have not yet seen any convincing evidence that PCBs in marine fish are a problem to public health."

But Seagren described bluefish contamination as "a relatively hot issue."

The New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection warned that bluefish over six pounds should be eaten only once a week, and not at all by children, pregnant women and nursing mothers.

Most of the bluefish caught off Florida waters weigh less than four pounds, said Wilk.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Kremlin: NATO, U.S. Miss Gravity Of Talks Walkout

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Reagan and his NATO allies are increasing the threat of nuclear conflict by underestimating the gravity of the Soviet withdrawal from medium-range nuclear missile talks in Geneva, the Kremlin said.

The Foreign Ministry Friday announced a rare high-level news conference for Western journalists on Monday with top Soviet Gen. Marshal Nikolai Ogarkov and Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Kornienko.

The officials were expected to refute Western statements that the talks will most likely resume after a cooling-off period.

The Soviets broke off talks on limiting medium-range missiles in Europe last week after the United States began delivering the first of 572 Pershing-2 and cruise missiles to be deployed in Europe.

"The Soviet position is being ignored," the Novosti news agency said.

"There is a concerted effort in the West to present the break-down of the Geneva talks on limiting nuclear weapons in Europe as an occurrence of little consequence," it added.

"Each round of the arms race, resulting in the introduction of more efficient and deadlier weapons brings the danger of nuclear war closer, as it enhances chances of it being started even by a minor misunderstanding or accident."

Rebels Leaving Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A U.S. senator confirmed that Salvadoran rebels are abandoning their political base in Nicaragua but said military advisers from Cuba and other Communist nations are still in the country.

In another development, three opposition parties and two labor groups broke off negotiations with the leftist Sandinista government to protest the official censorship of talks held last week.

"We want it to be known that we strongly protest the breach of promise to allow the media covering the meeting in question total freedom of expression," the statement said, referring to talks between Carlos Nunez Tellez, president of the State Council, and the Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinator, a private sector body.

Ugandan Army Chief Killed

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Army Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. David Oyite Ojok, five other army officers and three civilians were killed in a helicopter crash on the outskirts of Kampala, Radio Uganda said Saturday.

As army chief and chairman of the Uganda Coffee Marketing Board, the main foreign exchange earner for this East African nation, Ojok was considered one of the country's most powerful men.

Seminoles End Season With Homecoming Win

With an outstanding victory over Spruce Creek, the varsity football team ended its season on a high note at Homecoming on Nov. 18.

The exciting game was led by the spirit of the players, cheerleaders, students, and faculty.

When the team came out for pre-game warm-up, black and orange balloons, bought with money raised by the Class of '84, were released over the field.

The highlight of the game occurred at halftime when members of the Homecoming Court were escorted by their fathers onto the field. Last year's queen, Kim Byrd, then crowned this year's Homecoming Queen, Sue Bisigni, and presented her with a dozen roses. Sue then took her traditional ride around the track to conclude the halftime festivities.

The affair was a very memorable experience in tune with this year's Homecoming theme, "For every dream that passes, something beautiful remains."

This week's Tribe members are Traci Brown and Nancy Turner, both seniors. Traci was on the Homecoming Court, is a senior class representative, and is a member of Alpha American United, Future Business Leaders of America, and Keyettes. She is also on the track and cross-country teams.

Nancy is the varsity head cheerleader and a member of Polyglots and Key Club. She is a Student Government Association representative, a bat girl, and will appear on the Senior Calendar.

'You Can Be Somebody Special Without Doing Drugs'

A reformed drug abuser told his story this week to Seminole County students in the hope that they will learn from his experience.

Ten years ago, Ted Stone was a successful businessman who wanted to become even more successful. At a friend's suggestion, he tried amphetamines to give him more energy to work harder.

He started taking two pills a day and within two years he developed a 15-pill-a-day habit. The 48-year-old North Carolina man said once he was hooked on speed, his personality and his perception of himself changed.

Stone no longer wanted to be a success in business, he wanted to be a master criminal. And in pursuit of that goal he carried out seven armed robberies during one two-month period and wounded a man during his final hold-up.

He wound up in the psychiatric unit of Duke University. Eventually, he was sentenced to 15 to 25 years in prison and served 4 years and 3 months of that term.

Stone has spent the past five years traveling the country talking to students, civic and church groups and parents.

The Sanford Breakfast Rotary Club brought Stone to Seminole County, because, according to club president and chief Seminole County sheriff's deputy Duane Harrell, "Stone is the best speaker on drug abuse I've heard in my 30 years of law enforcement. His approach is fresh and he is a dynamic speaker."

Stone doesn't just tell his story. He tells students how to turn down drugs when they are offered by a friend and he tells parents how to cope with their child's first encounter with drugs.

"Parents shouldn't over react," he said. "They make a big mistake because they want to handle the situation in a hurry and tend to distort the facts about drug use. Drugs usually do make you feel good when you first start using them, and they fool the user until it is too late."

He said education is the key to eliminating drug abuse, but the information given should be honest, because children know when they are being deceived about something they may have already tried.

But he said, "Despite popular opinion, not everyone is experimenting with drugs. The great majority of the one million students I've talked to and surveyed know you can be somebody special without doing drugs."

Stone said that alcohol abuse is the biggest drug problem in the nation. And prescription drugs can be as dangerous to the abuser as any illegal drug.

On Monday, Stone spoke at Sanford Middle School. He spoke at Lake Mary High School Wednesday, and on Friday Seminole High School students heard his story and advice. — Susan Loden

Women Live Longer; Ill More

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even though American women generally live longer than men, they also tend to be sick more often and to make more visits to doctors' offices, a new government report says.

The report by the National Center for Health Statistics said women seem to be more aware of their symptoms, and their awareness may be what leads them to consult their doctors more often and rest more than men do when they are sick.

"Males do just the opposite of females in this regard," said the report, written by Esther Hing and Mary Grace Kovar, both analysts for the agency, and Dorothy Rice, a lecturer at the School of Nursing at the University of California in San Francisco.

"But they apparently have more serious illnesses when they do perceive symptoms," the report added.

The report also found:

- Women stayed in bed because of their ailments 46 percent more often than men and were more likely to slow down their day-to-day activities because of their illnesses.
- Women made 43 percent more visits to doctors' offices.
- Women were hospitalized in short-stay hospitals 40 percent more often than men. Some 59 percent of all hospital stays for women in their child-bearing years were a result of gynecological conditions, and when those visits were excluded, the hospital discharge rate for both sexes was about the same.
- Women with hypertension were twice as likely as men to take medication for the ailment.

Mrs. Walesa Can Attend

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — Officials Saturday gave Mrs. Danuta Walesa and her son permission to travel to Norway next week to accept the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize on behalf of her husband, Lech.

"Of course I would love to go myself," Walesa said. But he told reporters he will remain in Poland for the Dec. 10 ceremony.

"I've never seen a king," Walesa said, joking.

The Solidarity union leader said he was still seeking permission for one of his advisers, Tadeusz Mazowiecki, to accompany his wife and eldest son, Bogdan, on the Nobel trip.

Mazowiecki has been told in Warsaw his passport application will not be considered before Dec. 12. But Walesa said he hopes "cold hearts will melt" before Mrs. Walesa's departure.

O'Neill Does Service To Country

It's easy to get cynical about the propensity of Congress to hide from painfully difficult issues, such as illegal immigration. But just when you're about to give up on democracy, a politician will do something right, something that takes courage, and the whole picture changes because of his decision.

We are talking about the decision of House Speaker Tip O'Neill to remove himself from the path of immigration reform. After an emotional meeting with the Hispanic lobby this fall, O'Neill made some cantankerous comments about the Simpson-Mazzoli bill, which imposes sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens and offers amnesty to longtime undocumented residents. O'Neill said he would prevent it from reaching the House floor in this session.

O'Neill was as good as his word. The bill, after passing twice in the Senate and being reported out of several House committees, never reached the floor. It was never debated. It was never voted on. It became a dead issue this year. Such is the power of the speaker.

But the American people reacted with anger to O'Neill's cavalier tabling of the immigration reform bill. Editorial comment from major newspapers was negative. Political cartoons were scathing. Across the Capitol, Democratic and Republican senators decried the parliamentary tactic of preventing the measure from coming up for a vote. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker and Minority Leader Robert Byrd said they would be prepared next year to put the immigration bill as a rider on other legislation that O'Neill desperately wanted, in order to get it put before the House.

O'Neill is not the kind of politician to bend to pressure. Half Falstaff and half Wizard of Oz, he knows how to weather criticism, and weather it he did, without appearing to budge.

But the speaker is not a one-dimensional character. He was willing to listen when people such as AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland and Father Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University, told him the immigration reform bill had merits. Sen. Alan Simpson, co-sponsor with Rep. Romano Mazzoli, had a meeting with O'Neill a month ago, and the two men discussed the bill in depth, with no aides present.

Recently, O'Neill surprised everyone by telling a reporter from The Boston Globe that he would let the immigration bill come up for a vote early in 1984. He said further that he believed it would pass.

What made O'Neill change his mind?

We don't know. But whether it was political considerations or conscience, we recognize the courage it took for him to reconsider his position and announce he would no longer block the bill through parliamentary means.

That is the essence of democracy, a leader responding to political pressure to confront a major issue. O'Neill may vote against the immigration reform bill. He may vote for amendments which damage its crucial balance of controls against hiring illegal aliens and compassion for longtime undocumented residents. That is his right and responsibility, if he still feels the bill is wrong.

But by removing parliamentary obstacles, O'Neill has done a service to the country. Let the immigration bill be roundly debated. Let each congressman cast his vote.

We share O'Neill's belief that if the immigration bill reaches the floor, it will pass. And it should pass, without crippling amendments.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Mommy, may I have some SEXIST toys this year?"

Enthusiasm can be contagious — very contagious.

Wednesday afternoon, I answered the telephone to a voice with a ring in every word. The man was attempting to tell me about a happening. In fact, from the sound of his voice, this was the most important single event in the world at the time.

Whoa.

He backed up and started over.

The gist of the story is that his 10th wedding anniversary is coming up this weekend. And he wanted to "pay for an announcement" to surprise his wife. The caller mentioned he had a picture he would like to have published.

A black and white photograph? Well, no. He said the picture was a color print, but "very good."

I continued to listen to his enthusiastic spiel. Or what he thought was a problem. He was pleasantly surprised when I told him there would be no charge for this service. "It's our pleasure," I said.

"But I must have the photograph in the morning by 9 to be published in Sunday's paper," I told him. He said he could make it by 7 on his way to work. "Fine," I assured him, and explained to him to leave the envelope in the mailbox outside the front door of the building.

He seemed overjoyed with his accomplishment. He kept explaining that the anniversary celebration and renewal of wedding vows a complete surprise to his wife. "I have been planning this for two months," he added.

Sure enough, the next morning the envelope was in the box. A few words on a ruled sheet of paper was wrapped around the photo. Yes, the man was correct. This is very important, just as all news is. But somehow, this seemed special.

There was just one hitch — and a bad one at that. I couldn't read the writing very well and particularly the name. The last name looked like "Bride." Appropriate enough, to say the least.

But I had the feeling this was not correct. The telephone directory had no listing anywhere close. The city directory did list a "Lawrence Bridal" at the address he gave — and a phone number.

It was my lucky day, I thought, as I began dialing the number. Oops! I suddenly remembered this was a surprise and hung up.

The next step was to phone the city of Sanford where Larry is employed to confirm the correct spelling of his name. No problem. A cooperative clerk came to the rescue.

A few minutes later, Larry phoned inquiring if I had received the photo and information. Was everything okay? Could we use the picture? This is very important.

You bet it's important. "You'll read about it in Sunday's paper," I confirmed, "picture and all." His voice rang with gratitude.

Airing Childhood Depression

By Jan Ziegler

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifteen years ago, nobody believed kids could get seriously depressed.

Now, psychiatrists know children can suffer depression just as adults do. But they say parents, teachers and other members of the public are still unaware of the problem.

Drs. Donald McKnew and Leon Cytyn, both research psychiatrists with the National Institute of Mental Health and author Herbert Yahrns, who specializes in science, have written a book they hope will get the message across.

"Our feeling and latest research would indicate probably 10 percent of children have this ailment at one time or another in their growing-up years. It presents a huge problem, yet it has not been readily diagnosed," McKnew said in an interview.

The kind of depression the psychiatrists are talking about is that which has no discernible reason, such as bereavement, and which goes on for an abnormally long time.

What the doctors mean by child is a youngster before adolescence. The teen-age years present different kinds of problems.

There are several reasons parents and others don't pay attention to childhood blues. One reason is that they don't take kids seriously and believe they'll grow out of whatever is bugging them, or it will blow over in a couple of days.

"People don't want to believe kids have mental illness. They don't want to believe kids have any illness, let alone mental illness," McKnew said.

Another reason is that kids don't act depressed and will try to hide their feelings from adults. If asked, however, they will talk.

They may tell you they don't have any energy, or they're not interested in anything, or they feel worthless, using, from the age of 5 on, the same words an adult would use, he said.

The signs McKnew and Cytyn tell parents to watch for in their child is loss of interest in usual activities, grade slippage, self-blame, irritability, poor appetite and poor sleep. The most important thing, however, is loss of interest — boredom, apathy, withdrawal, spending a lot more time than usual alone, lack of interest in friends.

"In general what we say is if you run into enough symptoms, if they last for one whole week ... you'd better go do something about it," McKnew said.

The week-long kind of depression is the more serious, he said. Such youngsters may need long-term counseling or prescription drugs. The subtler form may crop up only a couple of times a week, perhaps on a weekend.

Parents who suspect their child might be seriously depressed should talk to their children first, wait awhile to see what happens, and then seek advice from a pediatrician, family doctor, the school nurse or a counselor if necessary, McKnew and Cytyn wrote in their book.

"The important thing is to look for a pattern," McKnew said. "If you just see your kid is depressed a day or two, well, so what, that happens to all of us."

JACK ANDERSON

Deaf Ear Turned To Nicaraguan Leader

WASHINGTON — Eden Pastora, the Nicaraguan guerrilla leader, visited Washington recently. He stopped by my office for a visit. Though it was the first time we had actually met, we knew of each other.

I've reported the legendary exploits of the revolutionary "Commander Zero" since the days when he first took up arms against the U.S.-backed dictatorship of Anastasio Somoza. In 1978 and 1979 my former associate Bob Sherman spent some time with Pastora at his jungle hide-out. Not long afterward, Pastora and his Sandinista fighters captured the presidential palace in Managua. Somoza had already fled.

Now Pastora is fighting the Sandinista regime he helped to bring to power. Several months ago I sent my roving reporter, Jon Lee Anderson, to travel with Pastora in the Nicaraguan bush, where he commands approximately 2,000 guerrillas.

The charismatic rebel leader was in Washington soliciting support from the Reagan administration for his financially strapped troops. He didn't have much luck.

The reason is simple: For all his rugged charm and the glamour of his past adventures, Pastora is a political maverick whom the CIA doesn't trust. He is an outspoken revolutionary; the CIA suspects him of leaning too far to the left.

So Pastora has received only a token offering of CIA money and guns — nothing like the support enjoyed by the CIA's anti-Sandinista creation, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN). The CIA is trying to coerce Pastora to join the FDN, which he says he will never do as long as its military leadership includes former officers of Somoza's National Guard.

Instead of encouraging him, Pastora said, the CIA is actively trying to sabotage his efforts to raise funds. "They are afraid I will eclipse their Somocista army," Pastora said. "But they want me around to legitimize the FDN, which has no popular appeal in Nicaragua."

Pastora is right about the last point: The FDN's civilian leaders are conservative businessmen and politicians, and its top military officers are almost all former National Guard members. This taints the whole group as far as most Nicaraguans are concerned.

Pastora's group, on the other hand, is led mainly by former Sandinistas. Their quarrel with the Managua junta is simply that it betrayed the revolution. They are anti-communist, but they favor more socialism than the Reagan administration wants.

ROBERT WALTERS

Is Anti-Semitism Reviving?

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. (NEA) — Here in Illinois, a congressman blames "a concerted American-Jewish campaign" for his failure to win re-election. In Nebraska, a newspaper warns that "Zionists have political control" of the entire state.

In California, a candidate for a House seat characterizes his critics as women with "hard, Jewish... faces." In Texas, a candidate in another House race is accused of being insensitive to the needs of blacks because he is Jewish.

The good news is that anti-Semitism is hardly rampant in contemporary politics. The bad news is that it remains a deleterious force which surfaces with disturbing frequency in campaigns across the nation.

"Each case is an isolated instance, but the total picture is very troublesome," says Carol Boron, a political activist who has become an unofficial, one-woman clearinghouse for information about anti-Semitism in political campaigns.

Operating from her home in this Chicago suburb, Mrs. Boron has amassed a voluminous collection of hate literature, campaign materials, newspaper clippings and other data on a phenomenon that troubles her and other Jews.

Anti-semitic diatribes often are disseminated under the guise of being "unauthorized" campaign literature, she notes, thus allowing the candidate likely to benefit from the prejudicial material to disavow any connection with it.

The likelihood that anti-semitic material will surface in a political race generally is dependent upon "how desperate the candidate is," she says.

In some instances, the material is crude and blatant, as in the case of Spotlight, a newspaper published by the Washington-based Liberty Lobby, which during the 1982 campaign carried a story that bluntly proclaimed "Zionists have political control of Nebraska."

On other occasions, however, the appeal is more subtle. In 1982 Sen. James R. Sasser, D-Tenn., was the target of a sophisticated anti-semitic campaign even though neither he nor his opponent were Jewish.

Sasser's opponents distributed literature criticizing the senator's reliance upon "wealthy liberals living in other states" and "big-city money men" for campaign contributions; accompanied by selected lists of donors with unmistakably Jewish surnames.

With relations between Israel and its Arab neighbors a subject of continuing public debate, Mrs. Boron is disturbed by those who ignore the fact that Israel's supporters in this country include many people who are not Jewish.

Thus, she is critical of politicians such as Rep. David D. Marriott, R-Utah, who cited "the strength of the Jewish lobby" as an explanation for the opposition to the sale of military equipment to Saudi Arabia.

Similarly, she rejects the argument of those who insist that they are not prejudiced against Jews, but are opposed to Zionism.

"You cannot deny us the right to our homeland," she says. "You can't be anti-Zionist and not be anti-semitic."

JEFFREY HART

Steady Nerves, Please

The political fabric of the NATO alliance is now undergoing severe testing. It is this political fabric that has always been the primary target of those 260 Soviet SS-20 missiles, each with three warheads, aimed at West Europe.

As our response begins to go into place, with the deployment of cruise and Pershing II missiles, we are going to be subjected to the most intensive psychological warfare campaign we have ever seen.

We have ABC-TV's multimillion dollar horror film about nuclear war, "The Day After." In Europe, there have been large demonstrations that have crossed the threshold into violence. Because of the psychological tensions, normally sensible people — such as one of my favorite writers, Jan Morris — have been saying things they will be ashamed of five years from now. The Soviets are threatening to walk out of the Geneva arms talks.

The facts of the matter are plain enough. The Soviets have installed some 260 SS-20s, each with three warheads. The SS-20 has a longer range than the prospective Pershing II, three thousand miles to about a thousand. The Soviet missiles are targeted on both military and civilian objectives. It is very difficult to see what would be left of the U.S. deterrent posture in Europe if we did not move to counteract the Soviet deployment.

The Soviets, understandably enough, express apprehension over the fact that the Pershings can hit Soviet territory. But they are not so apprehensive that they are willing to negotiate a reduction of European nuclear weapons on both sides. They are waiting to see what they can achieve politically through psychological warfare.

But what do I find my old friend Jan Morris writing? Jan Morris is one of the unique personalities of our time. Her three-volume narrative about the decline of the British Empire is one of the most beautifully written works I have ever read. She may be better known to most readers as an exquisite writer about travel to exotic climes. After going to Eton and Oxford as James Morris, and raising a family, James Morris had a sex-change operation and became Jan Morris. Strangely and happily enough, her adjustment to all of this seems to have been excellent. As Jan Morris, she is sane and solid and remains a superb writer.

But, not so happily, far from immune to the psychological pressure of the present political crunch in Europe.

Despite the fact that Reagan has now made five separate negotiating offers about intermediate range missiles in Europe, Jan Morris in a recent essay asserts her "reluctant and terrible conviction that the greatest threat to the peace of humanity is the United States."

One reads further, "For one thing, I can no longer stomach America's insidious meddling across the face of the world."

When I read that sentence by Jan Morris, I wondered about Cubans in Angola, the East Germans in the Arab Emirates, and the Soviet presence in the Horn of Africa, as well as, of course, in Afghanistan. I wondered about North Koreans — North Koreans! — in addition to Cubans and a four-star Soviet general in Grenada.

In my own opinion, Jan Morris — like so many Europeans, and with good enough reason — has simply been unnerved by Soviet power and the ruthlessness that is so evident behind it. For the next several months, as NATO deploys the missiles that will counter-balance the SS-20, we will be subjected to a severe war of nerves. ABC-TV, with "The Day After," has been doing its part. But unless we can answer the SS-20 deployment, there will really be no Western alliance, Europe will turn neutralist, and nuclear war will be much more likely.

Steady nerves, gentlemen. Steady nerves, Jan.

Businessmen Seeking Cuts In U.S. Military Budget

By David E. Anderson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Being dead is bad for business."

It's a kind of throwaway line that businessman Stanley Weiss likes to use in speeches and interviews, guaranteed to get a laugh but also making a serious point.

Weiss is a founder and president of Business Executives for National Security, a hitherto low profile group of business leaders who are beginning to challenge the nation's military spending concept of national security.

"More and more business people," Weiss said in an interview, "are seeing that something is wrong with the nation's military spending and we have had a very narrow definition of national security."

"National security has been almost exclusively with military strength, forgetting all the wonderful things (President Dwight) Eisenhower said were part of our security — the economy, our moral fiber."

"Secondly, we seem to have been, starting with the latter part of the Carter administration, throwing money at military problems in much the same way Lyndon Johnson and others threw money at social problems."

The result, Weiss said, is making the nation less secure rather than more.

Other business leaders have been reaching similar conclusions, Weiss said, and a year ago they quietly organized Business Executives for Nations Security to challenge not only Pentagon spending and procurement policies but specific elements of the current view of national security, including President Reagan's call for the building of the MX missile system.

Weiss, president of American Minerals Inc., is an entrepreneur who went to Mexico 30 years ago, got into mining and "turned an adventure into a venture."

He said the idea for BENS could be crystallized "in a moment of time that epitomized, for me and many of my business friends, an inarticulate sense of frustration": when the helicopters did not work in the effort to free the hostages in Iran.

"Here we had this enormous nuclear arsenal we couldn't use and our conventional weapons didn't work," Weiss said. "I, and others, felt that business should get off its butt and get into the act and promote an effective and affordable defense."

To promote that effort, BENS has brought together an impressive list of executives and former government officials in a non-partisan effort to lobby for a more business-like approach to military spending, and to challenge what BENS considers to be the "myth" that unrestrained military spending is good for business.

Weiss estimates that 70 percent of its 750 to 1,000 members are Republicans or Independents. And some, he says, come from the executive suites of the nation's largest military contractors.

"You'd be surprised," Weiss said, "at the number of individuals who send in a check and say 'don't use my company affiliation.'"

BENS has spent the first year of its existence quietly courting its constituency but is now ready to become more visible and public and has already joined the fray over the MX missile, calling it a "questionable system" that will "jeopardize the economic and military strength of the United States."

"I think something like BENS would have been impossible before two years ago," he said. "Business leaders are patriots and patriotism had something to do with giving the military whatever it wanted."

He noted that only a few years ago, polls by the 560,000-member National Federation of Independent Businesses showed businessmen supporting a "give them what they want" attitude by a 9-1 ratio.

"The last polls were 50-50," he said.

BENS, he said, is not anti-defense, anti-Reagan, anti-American. Instead it is working a middle road between the "less is better" advocates who say "name a weapons system and we're against it," and, on the other side, a group "reflected by the Reagan administration but not all Republicans that says more is better."

"What we are saying is that 'better is better,'" he said. "What we want is an intelligent, effective, affordable defense."

BENS, he said, has two main goals: the prevention of nuclear war and creation of "a first class second strike deterrence."

"Those people who want to have us unilaterally disarm, we aren't interested in," he said. "The same is true of those who want to move our second strike into a counterforce (first strike) capability."

And he said most of the major business organizations, like the Chamber of Commerce, the National Federation of Independent Business and the National Association of Manufacturers, have not had people working specifically on military and national security issues.

"They know we're around now," Weiss said.

With a strong membership base in place, Weiss said, the organization is ready to move to its next stage of development, entering more fully and publicly into the national security debate on such issues as the MX.

A major project, he said, will be a detailed analysis of the military budget asking what the specific national security policy each item is based on.

"It is extraordinarily important that there is a business voice in this debate, making some real sense in redefining national security," Weiss said.

"What's more, when business talks, Congress listens."

Offer Cubans Swap

For the first time since Castro took over Cuba we have a diplomatic chance to use our powerful leverage. Let's take a bipartisan approach to the following by offering to swap the Cuban "workers" (where did they get the guns to fight?).

We should offer to swap them along the following lines:

1. Return all hijackers of U.S. planes to Cuba. This would lessen the desire to gain "freedom" there while endangering American lives.
2. Remove all Cuban soldiers from Nicaragua, El Salvador, and other Central American countries.
3. Take back the Cuban criminals (I'm told these are the worst in the world), and mental patients shipped to the U.S. during the last major Cuba-Miami boat lift.
4. Remove all Cuban troops and support personnel from Angola and other countries where they are spreading communism when people all over the world want freedom — (Poland).
5. Dismantle all offensive missiles.

Of course, Castro has told his soldiers to fight to their deaths to protect Grenada while he is surrounded by 20,000 soldiers, missiles, tanks, and thousands of cigars. Smoking one at a time while he spreads the venom of communism wherever Russia tells him to go.

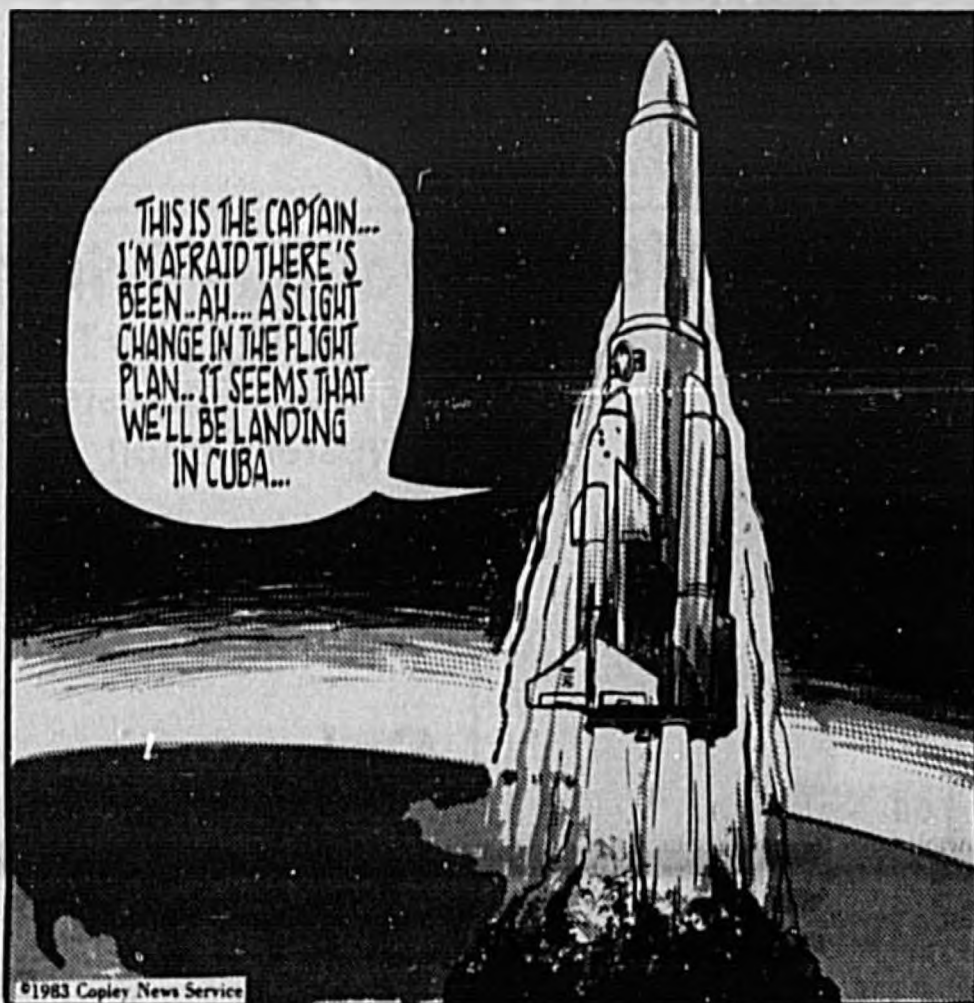

Reagan is the first President since Eisenhower to have the guts to do what's right to protect Americans (men, women, children, and many medical students) in a foreign land — Grenada. Thank God for President Ronald Reagan. I'm just sorry that Senator Percy is Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. I think my 13-year-old son, Jeff, knows more about foreign affairs than Chuck does.

Sincerely,

Mayor Sorenson Dedicated City Employee

I've been following the recent articles in your paper on the mayor of Lake Mary — Mr. Walt Sorenson. I am in no way connected to politics, but I am a resident and taxpayer of this city.

Ever since I've lived here, Mr. Sorenson has been mayor of Lake Mary and I feel a very "visible, available and dedicated" city employee! The charges brought forward against him may have some validity — but I wonder if the residents of Lake Mary really feel that a few phone calls, trips in a city car or using his desk to talk to a "client" really deems him a less effective mayor? After all, he consumes city coffee and donuts that our taxpayers buy also!

Mr. Sorenson has not done anything different than any other politician has done for years. Does this make him a bad mayor for the City of Lake Mary? He has done a lot of "good" for this city. In fact, he has probably devoted 70 percent of his "personal life" cleaning the school grounds, restoring City Hall and numerous general chores all over Lake Mary. I, for one, sure hope he never submits a bill to us taxpayers for these services!

Maybe it's about time that all the people in Lake Mary who have seen Mr. Sorenson doing city chores on a Saturday or Sunday on "personal time" should come forward and try their best to defend him now!

I feel a resignation is a very unjust ending to so many years of service — just because he disagreed with another city official! Personally, I don't feel that the people of Lake Mary will ever get this much service for their tax dollars again!

I think the city better think twice before accepting Mr. Sorenson's resignation, if he ever decided to submit one. If this is the way we pay back our mayors, we may not be able to get another as quickly as we think. If we do — he'll have to spend 90 percent of his time earning a living for his family — because he won't be able to survive on the mayor's salary.

Victim Got No Aid

Isn't it too bad that the protesters of Robert Sullivan's execution were not on hand to attempt to save the life of his victim.

I feel that when a crime is so ruthless that a death sentence is given, that if it is not carried through it is like a secret code message to other would be murderers that it is safe to kill anyone who displeases them, for they will not have to give the biblical "Eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," for what they have done.

Even a child isn't likely to do something it knows it will get a whipping for.

If only the criminal element of our population had your kind, merciful hearts, this planet would be like paradise. But since they don't, the greater number you save, the odds are that one of your loved ones may be the next victim. Will you then be one of the protesting marchers to save the life of that murderer? My attitude is strictly one of self-preservation. I feel that a rattlesnake that has struck someone should be killed before it strikes someone else.

Drug Abuse Ignored

Nothing is more contagious than a yawn, unless it is drug abuse creating crime.

We are all guilty of yawning when thinking or doing anything about drug abuse and crime.

I personally appeared before the city fathers of Sanford, Nov. 28, 1983, and personally invited each one to attend a meeting on drug abuse at the police station on Tuesday, Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m.

Commissioner Milton Smith attended the meeting and Commissioner David Farr called; the others, especially the mayor and the city manager, are still yawning.

The city government of Sanford reminds me of a watermelon patch on a red clay hill in Georgia after a three months dry spell (drying up on the vine).

Drug abuse is a fat alley cat that has nine kittens, and we, yes, we all must stop yawning at drug abuse and crime and do something to help enforce our laws on crime and drug abuse.

No Support For Age Limit On Pilots

Q. My husband is a flight engineer. They're the people who ride in the cockpit of an airplane for their technical expertise, but also have the ability to fly the plane in an emergency. He's active, alert and in good health. But because he will be turning 60 in a few months, the Federal Aviation Administration may force him to retire. I don't see how the FAA can say he's perfectly competent to perform his work one day and then, at midnight on his 60th birthday, say he's not up to the task. I remember hearing you had sponsored a bill eliminating age discrimination in employment. If this is true, how can the FAA justify this decision?

A. I can understand your disbelief at the FAA's proposal to ground flight engineers on their 60th birthday. My colleagues on the Aging Committee and I recently convened a hearing on this subject.

The legislation you remember was the anti-mandatory retirement bill signed into law in 1978. It raised the mandatory retirement age to 70 for most private-sector workers and eliminated it altogether for federal employees.

One notable exception to this liberal policy was the FAA's mandatory 60-year-old retirement rule for pilots. This arbitrary age limit was set up in 1959. No evidence was presented establishing or implying a connection between a pilot's age and his or her ability to fly a plane. A review of this policy in hearings conducted by the Aging Committee in 1979 led to Public Law 96-174, mandating a one-year study of the FAA's policy by the National Institutes of Health. Unfortunately the results of the NIH study were inconclusive. NIH suggested that extensive data on the subject be collected.

Then in 1982, without gathering the data recommended by NIH, the FAA published its intent to extend the rule to flight engineers: the rule that would apply to your husband. A full review of FAA documents by the Aging Committee showed that there was no justification for the rule.

I cannot believe a pilot or engineer's 60th birthday poses a safety hazard. We've all seen individuals who are in the prime of life, physically and mentally, well beyond age 60.

Under the current regulations, flight engineers are allowed to continue in the cockpit until age 70. All U.S. airlines, except two, employ flight engineers over the age of 60 and there is no evidence to suggest a conflict between this hiring practice and the airlines' congressional mandate to maintain the highest degree of safety possible.

In fact, the National Transportation Safety Board reported that the age of the flight engineer was not a factor in any of the 1,616 accidents and incidents between 1962 and 1981. As I remarked at the committee's hearing, I'd prefer someone a little more mature and experienced — someone who had successfully handled a variety of challenging situations — in the cockpit of any plane I was traveling in.

This issue brings to mind several general points about mandatory retirement:

In study after study, older workers are shown to be efficient and productive members of the work force, with a low turnover rate, high employee morale and a high degree of reliability.

Medical experts have shown there is an important relationship between employment and well-being. Elderly people in the work force are healthier and experience higher levels of self-esteem than their non-working counterparts.

A survey of Americans of all ages shows that nine out of 10 of us believe no one should be denied a job simply because of his or her age. The majority of business leaders also believe that mandatory retirement should be eliminated.

The growing body of evidence suggests that far from presenting a "problem" for the nation, the elderly present a golden opportunity. Instead of being a liability, older people are a valuable human resource that America can no longer afford to waste. To this end, I have introduced an amendment to the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967. It would remove the maximum age of 70 and extend all protections of the Act to workers 70 and older.

We will continue watching for Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole's decision regarding the retirement age for flight engineers. I only hope she will bear in mind this point: Individuals must be judged by health, ability, experience and productivity — not by their age.

Danger Lurks In Insolvency Abroad

By L.P. Aron
c P.R.S., 1983

All seems well. The economy is growing at an exuberant rate. Unemployment is declining. The inflation rate is hardly 5 percent and shows no sign of rising. The president has proclaimed economic victory, and the Republicans can go to the country next year feeling themselves vindicated in their sometimes severe economic prescriptions. We have suffered indeed through two tough recessions, with many businesses that welcomed the Reagan Administration having succumbed under its leadership. But now the worst is over. All seems well.

This, at least, is the prevailing understanding of our situation, and it would be comfortable to believe it. But if the last 20 years have taught us anything, they have taught that many ugly difficulties can lie beneath the happiest exterior. Before we become too easy in our pleasant expectations, we would do well to look deeper, to scout for danger while there is still time to divert it.

The first sign of worry stems from the origin of the present good times: the tap root of this excited economic recovery reaches down to the worst banking crisis America has faced since 1932. And like the great banking crisis that preceded the Great Depression, this more recent banking crisis was linked to the policy of the Federal Reserve Board. In the summer of 1982, the Federal Reserve Board shifted its policy dramatically from tight control of monetary growth to profuse expansion of the money supply.

Now, it happened that also during August, 1982, two other tremendous financial events — seemingly incompatible with each other — transpired almost simultaneously. The first was the insolvency of Mexico. The second was the beginning of the largest stock market rally in American history. Seldom have triumph and disaster been so juxtaposed.

What is the connection between these two seemingly incompatible events, and what do they tell us about the sudden reversal of Federal Reserve policy that occurred at about the same time? The American government, it seems, organized Mexico's salvation and contributed handsomely thereto. The rescue package that saved Mexico from a massive financial embarrassment was arranged in the New York offices of the Federal Reserve Board. Immediately, the Federal Reserve Board offered a billion dollars in credits, and it urged representatives of the main financial powers of the world to be no less forthcoming. Moreover — and perhaps most importantly — it accelerated an expansion of the money stock that had recently begun, and it continued that expansion at a rapid rate until June, 1983.

America gave its help urgently and without stinting, and its attitude stemmed directly from our own impossible entanglement in the situation. The twenty largest American banks have loaned out no less than 200% of their total stockholder's equity to lesser developed, Third World countries. In Latin America alone, Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, and Chile have borrowed huge sums from foreign banks, especially American banks. Each of these countries will be compelled in the coming years to spend about 50% of their total export earnings in paying interest on these loans. Each of them is troubled by balance of payments deficits even before the huge interest payments are taken into account. They are likely, therefore, to be net borrowers of foreign capital for many years to come.

The alternative for them is bankruptcy. And bankruptcy for these countries might very well mean bankruptcy for some large American financial institutions.

This is the underside of the currently bright economic outlook. We have a debt crisis that involves our whole financial structure and that affects every aspect of our economic policy, especially our monetary policy. The Federal Reserve whose instincts for steady monetary policy are in any case weak, is driven between an overzealous campaign against inflation, and an overzealous struggle to rescue the banks. Our money stock is regulated in two modes: wild growth or stern restriction. No wonder our economic performance has etched a roller coaster path.

Since June of this year, the Federal Reserve has been in its overzealous anti-inflation mode, reacting against its panicked reaction to Mexico. If it does not immediately change course, the recovery will be interrupted next year, and the likelihood of a financial collapse will increase. We need a slow, steady monetary growth. In the long term, that is the only way to eliminate inflation, to achieve steady growth, and to survive the debt crisis. Until we get a stable policy, neither our own banking system, nor the Third World debtors, will be able to adjust.

Eckert JV Upends Inconsistent Raiders, 67-62

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG — If there's one thing consistent about the Seminole Community College Raiders — it's their inconsistency. After pummeling an overmatched Eckert junior varsity team, 91-67, less than two weeks ago, SCC turned complacent Friday night and dropped a 67-62 decision to Eckert before 100 fans.

"We were just flat after the big win over (second-ranked) Indian River," said assistant coach Dean Smith. "We had 20 violations for traveling or three seconds."

The Raiders, 6-3, came out stale as the lead switched hands for 15 minutes. Then, they grew a interested and played ball the last five minutes or the half to take a 36-29 edge into intermission.

Sophomore forwards Delvin Everett and Bernard Merthie keyed the spurt as Everett scored all seven of his points and Merthie added four as SCC tallied the last 11 points of the half.

"We really played defense that last five minutes," said Smith. "But it didn't last."

That it didn't. Eckert, behind the strong play of Luis Perez and former Oak Ridge guard Chris Horne, ran off the first eight points of the second half to take a 37-36 edge.

Alan Thomas tossed in several short jumpers to keep Eckert in control until the final three minutes when he turned it back over to Horne and Perez to salt away the victory at the foul line.

J.C. Basketball

Eckert's final 12 points were charity shots. The hosts hit 23 of 27 foul shots for a torrid 85 percent. The Raiders went to the line just seven times and made four.

Horne, who didn't play much in the Eckert's lopsided loss the first time, connected on all eight of his free chances while Perez converted 6 of 6. Horne, who hit 6 of 6 in the final minute, finished with 10 points. Perez had 14 as did Thomas.

SCC, nevertheless, wasn't without its standouts. Linny Grace hit 7 of 10 shots for 14 points while Mike Phillips turned in another good effort off the bench, hitting 5 of 6 shots for 10 points.

The Raiders outrebounded Eckert, 23-14. Merthie led the way with eight boards while Jim Maher and Luis Phelps each had four. Phelps, however, was called for traveling eight times.

The setback snapped a three-game SCC winning streak. The Raiders try to start a new one Saturday night when they host Florida College at 7:30.

The Raiders whipped the defending state champs at Temple Terrace less than two weeks ago...but you know how that goes.

SCC (82) Merthie 3-9 0-0 6, Everett 2-2 3-4 7, Phelps 3-7 0-1 6, Payton 3-4 0-0 6, Grace 7-10 0-0 14, Phillips 5-6 0-0 10, Tolbert 2-6 0-0 4, Johnson 1-2 0-0 2, Adkins 2-2 0-0 4, Maher 1-2 1-2 3, Bell 0-0 0-0 0, totals 29-50 (58%) 4-7 (57%) 62

ECKERT JV (87) Perez 4-6 6-6 14, Ryan 3-6 2-4 8, Thomas 6-13 2-4 14, Rodriguez 2-6 1-1 5, Coleman 2-7 0-0 4, Richardson 2-8 2-2 6, Horne 1-2 8-8 10, Haddow 1-1 0-0 2, Schooley 1-2 2-2 4, Totals 22-51 (43%) 23-27 (85%) 67.

Brown, Turner, Morgan Boost Records To 3-0

The beat goes on for Tony Brown, Troy Turner and James "Cheese" Morgan and the Seminole wrestlers.

Brown, a tenacious 140-pounder, Turner, a precocious freshman, and Morgan, a savvy senior, all recorded their third straight wins Friday night, the Fighting Seminoles dropped to 0-3 as a team by losing to host Lake Howell, 51-19, and Oviedo, 45-26.

Once again, forfeits plagued the 'Noles as they had to give up 18 points in each match because they were lacking wrestlers at 100, 121 and 134.

Seminole looks for its first win next Friday when it joins Oak Ridge for a tri-match at Lake Brantley.

Brown, a senior, won both matches easily. "Tony wrestled better tonight than he did Friday," said coach Roger Beathard. Against Lake Howell, Brown used a variety of moves to stop Pete Rautenstrauch, 10-0. Against Oviedo, he pinned Jim Prior in just 29 seconds with a cradle.

Turner won two, tough matches. He nipped Oviedo's Karl Locklin, 5-3, and then came back to handle Lake Howell's Bob Kerr, 9-5. "His match against Locklin was our best of the night," said Beathard. "Troy just kept moving until he found something that worked. You don't see that too often with freshman wrestlers."

Morgan record his second pin of the year when he flattened Hal Crowley at 3:05 and the blanked Oviedo's Brett Morton, 13-0. "Morgan is wrestling up a weight, but he worked well," said Beathard. "He used a nice cradle move to pin Crowley."

Sanford unlimited McClain Malone turned in his first mat victory of his career in his first match in spectacular style when he pinned Oviedo's Joe Tanner in a school-record time of just 12 seconds. Malone, a 240-pounder, bearhugged Tanner, then rode him to the mat for the pin.

For the Hawks, the Cina brothers — senior Steve and sophomore Pete — had good nights. Steve pinned Seminole's Paul Mock in 1:54 and took Nick Cirocco in 1:57. Pete nailed Seminole's Charlton Mays in 2:28 and blanked Dan Harmon, 4-0.

ORLANDO — Lyman's Greyhounds found out that winning the most individual matches doesn't necessarily mean winning the whole ball of wax.

Seminole's Tony Brown (above) has Lake Howell's Pete Rautenstrauch right where he wants him during wrestling action Friday night at Lake Howell. Brown, 3-0 and 140 pounds, won, 10-0.

Below, Oviedo's Shawn Knapp executes an arm-drag takedown on Seminole's Doug Atkinson at 114 pounds. Knapp, who went to state last year, pinned Atkinson in 1:41.

The Greyhounds won seven matches compared to six for Orlando Colonial, but five of Colonial's six wins were pins while Lyman didn't have any pins. That was the difference in the match as Colonial claimed a 35-24 victory Friday night at Colonial High.

A couple of highlights for the Greyhounds Saturday included Chad Dubin at the 101 pound class, Scott Andrew at 128 and Chris Waxier at 140. Dubin pulled a reversal in the last 15 seconds of his match with Tom Hastings to pull out a 17-15 win.

Andrew, trailing 12-7 after two periods, came up with an escape, two takedowns and two near falls in the third period for a 18-14 decision over Colonial's Tom Boley.

Lady Rams Open With Easy Win

ORLANDO — Lake Mary's Lady Rams scored the first 10 points of the game and never looked back, en route to a 56-37 trouncing of Orlando Boone in the season opener for the Lady Rams Friday night at Boone High.

Laura Glass poured in 19 points, including 8 of 11 shooting from the floor, and grabbed nine rebounds to lead the way for Lake Mary which is seeking a third-straight district title. Michelle Swartz added nine points and four steals and Courtney Hall chipped in well under the boards with eight rebounds and she also added six points.

Lisa Gregory, the Lady Rams' point guard, scored only three points, but she was a very valuable performer, coming up with five steals and handing out three assists. Kim Averill handed out four assists.

"We did a real good defensive job early in the game," Lake Mary coach Bill Moore said. "We started substituting freely the beginning of the second quarter and it was good that everybody got to play."

The Lady Rams clash with county rival Sanford Seminole Monday night at Lake Mary High. Junior varsity action starts at 6:15 with varsity to follow. Seminole coach Ron Merthie said rebounding would be the key for the Lady Seminoles against Lake Mary and Moore said containing Deidre Hillery would be a key factor for the Lady Rams.

"We have to control her (Hillery) some underneath," Moore said. "That, and stopping her outlet passes will be keys for us."

Friday night, the Lady Rams stretched their early lead to 13 points, 23-9, by halftime and it that was the closest score the rest of the night. Lake Mary went with its starters again in the third quarter and outscored Boone, 22-12, to take a 45-21 lead.

Camouflaged Woodcock Flutters Hunter's Heart — Osteen Bass Set Sunday

A quick check of the hunting calendar shows that the first phase of the duck and coot season closes in the state on Sunday, Dec. 4. The second phase will open on Saturday, Dec. 10, and will last until Jan. 16.

This one week of closed season for ducks and coots is partially compensated by the opening of the season on woodcock Saturday, Dec. 3. Although the speedy "timberdoodle" does not arrive in Florida in any great numbers until their feeding areas further north are frosted out, usually in late December and January, a few can be found in the same marshy areas that harbour snipe. However, the woodcock will prefer the thickets and woods rather than the open marshes.

The woodcock's favorite food is earthworm, and a hungry bird will consume half its weight in worms in a single day. Since worms are most active at night, the bird is nocturnal, and does nearly all of its feeding and flying, including migration flights, at night.

They spend the day dozing in the thickets, so marvelously camouflaged that the hunter will never see them until they explode from under his feet. If he can recover from his near heart attack in time, he might get off a shot at the brown target as it rockets through the brush. A good bird dog is almost a necessity for a successful woodcock hunt in this area. Since the season is open until Feb. 5, there is plenty of time to plan a few hunts. The daily bag limit is five birds and the possession limit is 10.

Last Thursday, Dec. 1, marked the start of the Florida furbearer season. What that translates to, said a spokesman for the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, is that bobcat, otter, and mink may now be taken with guns or snares, or live-trapped. These species may only be harvested from Dec. 1 through March 1.

"There is no closed season on raccoon, opossum, skunk, nutria, and beaver," said Jimmie McDaniel, a biologist with the Division of Wildlife. "These species may be live-trapped, hunted with dogs, or taken with snares or guns year-round."

Trapping in Florida occurs primarily in the northern portions where the weather is cold enough for the pelts to be prime. It affords an income for some people while providing a means of outdoor recreation for others.

Persons wishing to take furbearers may do so if they possess a valid hunting license. However, in order to sell the hides to a licensed fur dealer, persons must purchase a furbearer license.

Anyone interested in taking furbearers should request a copy of the free publication, "Guidelines for the Taking of

The Commission is reminding the public that the deadline for the Florida Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest is Wednesday, Dec. 14, and that the opportunity for an artist to achieve fame and immortality as the winner of this contest is fast approaching.

Artists may submit up to two separate entries to the contest. The designs must be original and measure 7 inches by 10 inches, horizontal, and mounted on an 11 inch by 14 inch mat. Each submission must be accompanied by an official entry blank which can be obtained by writing to: Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest Coordinator, Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, 620 South Meridian St., Tallahassee, Fl 32301. The winning design will be selected at the Jan. 13 meeting of the Commission in Tampa.

Fishing in the local area has been slow for the past couple of weeks, due mainly to the high winds and colder temperatures. However, all this bad news did not faze Bo Van Goor, who caught a 9-pound bass in Lake Monroe last week on a spinner bait. Congratulations, Bo.

According to Dell Abernethy of the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp, the speckled perch fishing is starting to pick up, with some nice catches being made at the old river mouth on the east side of Lake Monroe in about four feet of water, and also along the lily pads in the river in about two to three feet of water.

The cold weather might make boating uncomfortable, but it also means that the sunshine bass will commence hitting when the water temperature drops below the low seventies. According to reports, sunshine bass and striper have been hitting at the mouths of the rivers and creeks running into Lake Monroe.

Cold weather causes these fish to increase their feeding activity, according to Tom Vaughn of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Their main food is shad and other forage fish, and these fish do not move fast in the colder temperatures, making them easy prey for the sunshine bass.

The sunshine bass, a cross between a white bass and a striped bass, cannot reproduce, and must be stocked repeatedly in the rivers and lakes of the state. The Commission stocks about 1.7 million sunshine bass annually into 174,000 acres of lakes and 430 miles of rivers throughout the state. Commission fish biologists developed the sunshine bass and began the stocking program in 1973.

Fishermen looking for sunshine bass can sometimes locate them by watching for birds diving into the water feeding on the schooling shad. If the shad are there, you can count on the voracious sunshine bass being there too.

On the St. Johns River, prime fishing locations for the sunshine bass are the power plant outflow on Lake Monroe, the jetties at the south end of Lake George, and the river between Lake Washington and Lake Monroe.

The December edition of the Osteen Bridge Bass Tournament will kick off this Sunday, Dec. 4, at safe light, with an estimated 25 boats entering the contest. The entry fee is $25, and weigh-in time is 2 p.m. The contestants compete for the biggest single bass, and the heaviest total catch. Both trophies and cash prizes will be awarded to the winning fishermen, and all live fish will be returned to the river as part of a continuing conservation program.

Rams' 10 Pins Rip Leesburg

Lake Mary's wrestling team made quick work of Leesburg Friday night, using just 40 minutes to dispose of the Yellow Jackets, 63-12. In its season opener at Lake Mary High. Last year, the Rams blanked the Yellow Jackets, 66-0.

The Rams broke quickly, pinning their first five opponents to take a commanding 30-0 lead. Craig Johnson (100) nailed William Warrick in just 18 seconds to take quick pin honors for the night. The muscular sophomore used a half-nelson to overpower Warrick.

Sophomore Dale Reisenhuber (107) didn't upset the string as he needed just another minute than Robinson's 18 seconds to subdue Tom Watkins. As expected, sophomore Ivan Carbia (114) dominated Stan Hoeck. Carbia hit a double leg into a dump, then pinned Hoeck in 1:02. "Ivan was really impressive," said coach Frank Schwartz. "When he goes down a weight, he'll be awesome."

Jack Likens (121), a defending state 3A champ, had an easy time with Bennie McCray, overpowering him with a cross face and sticking McCray in just 37 seconds. Matt Broberg (128) added the fifth flattening when he used a takedown and near fall to grab the lead, then escaped took Karl Duncan to his back for a pin in 2:59.

In all, the Rams had 10 pins for the night. Todd Beauchamp (140), Bob Olson (147) and Walter White (157) ran off a string of three in a row after Tom Olson had claimed a 7-3 decision. The run pushed the Lake Mary bulge to 51-21.

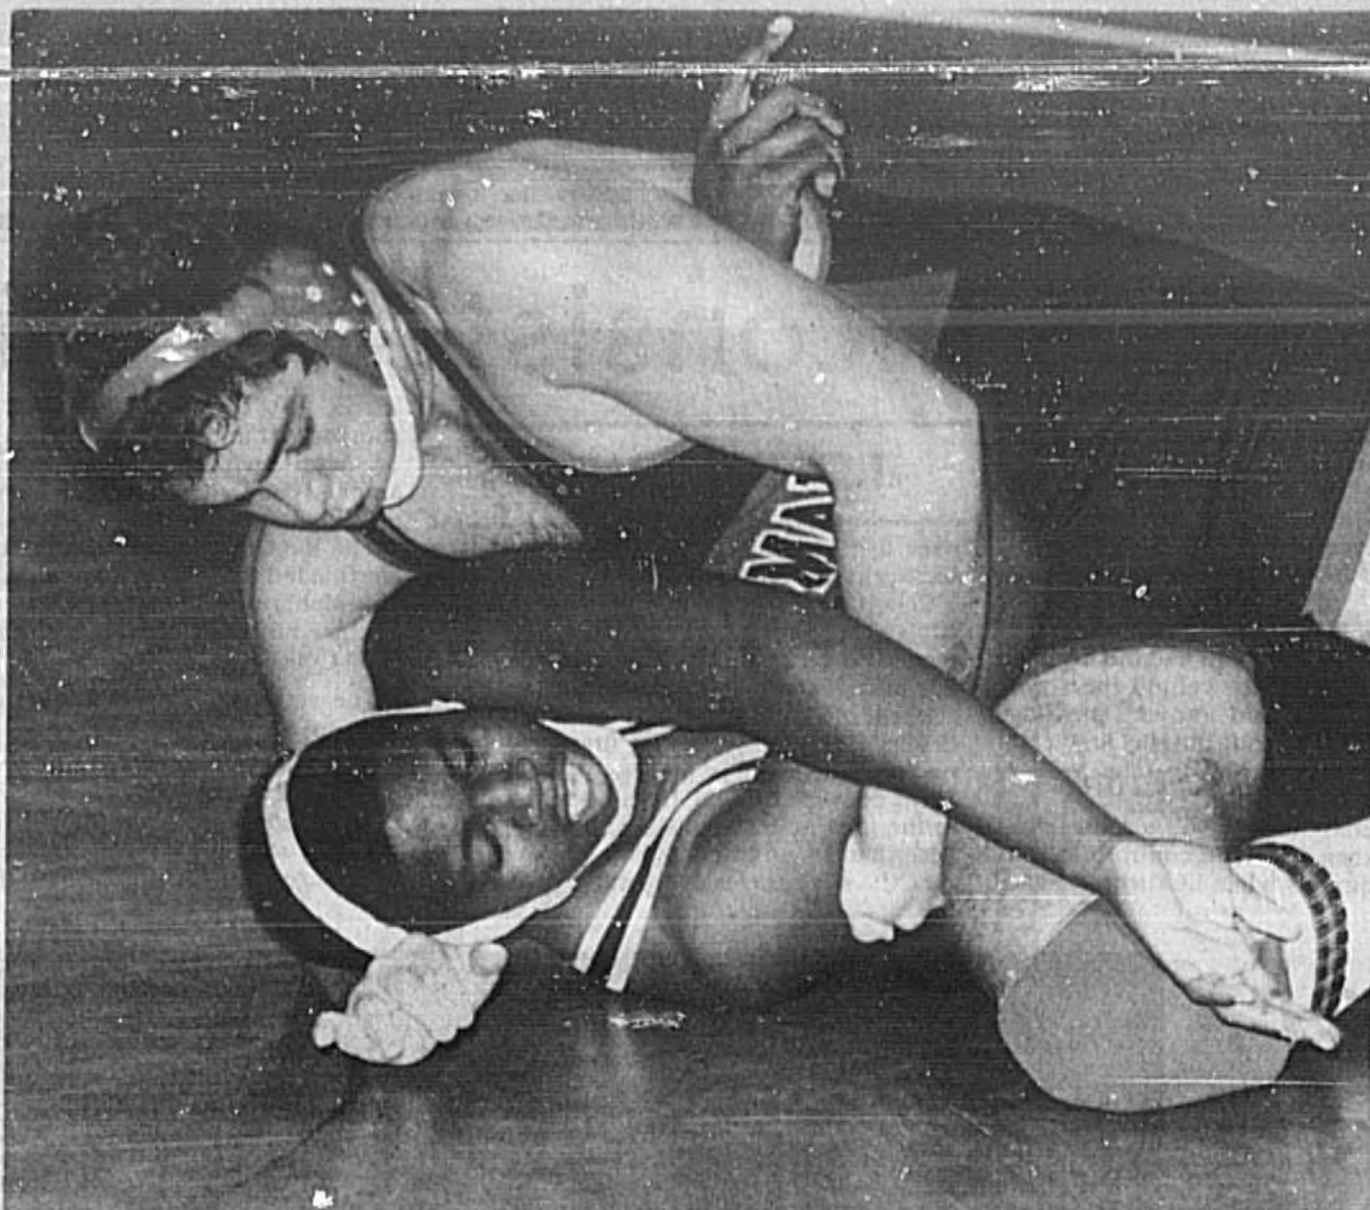

Leesburg finally got on the board when Leon Harper pinned Brent Moran and Vernon Allen (169) took care of Sanford's Willie Green with a stick at 3:57.

"Allen was the one we knew was tough," said Schwartz. "He was a district champ last year and we didn't know if Willie could stay with him. But he did, he had a 3-0 lead but he got a little too high and that was it."

The Rams closed the match on convincing note when Ned Kolbjornsen (222) used a half-nelson to smother Curtis Morrell in 1:21 and unlimited Robert Rawls crunched Garry Roundtree in 34 seconds.

"Ned just dominated his guy," said Schwartz. "Robert tried a headlock and missed, but he's got a good roll and he used it to turn the guy over."

Lake Mary, whose junior varsity also crushed Leesburg, hosts Daytona Beach Mainland on Wednesday.

Save Lifts Evans

ORLANDO — An outstanding save by Evans' goalkeeper turned the momentum in the Trojans' favor and they went on to a 3-1 victory over Lake Mary's Rams in the championship game of the Evans Kickoff

Prep Soccer

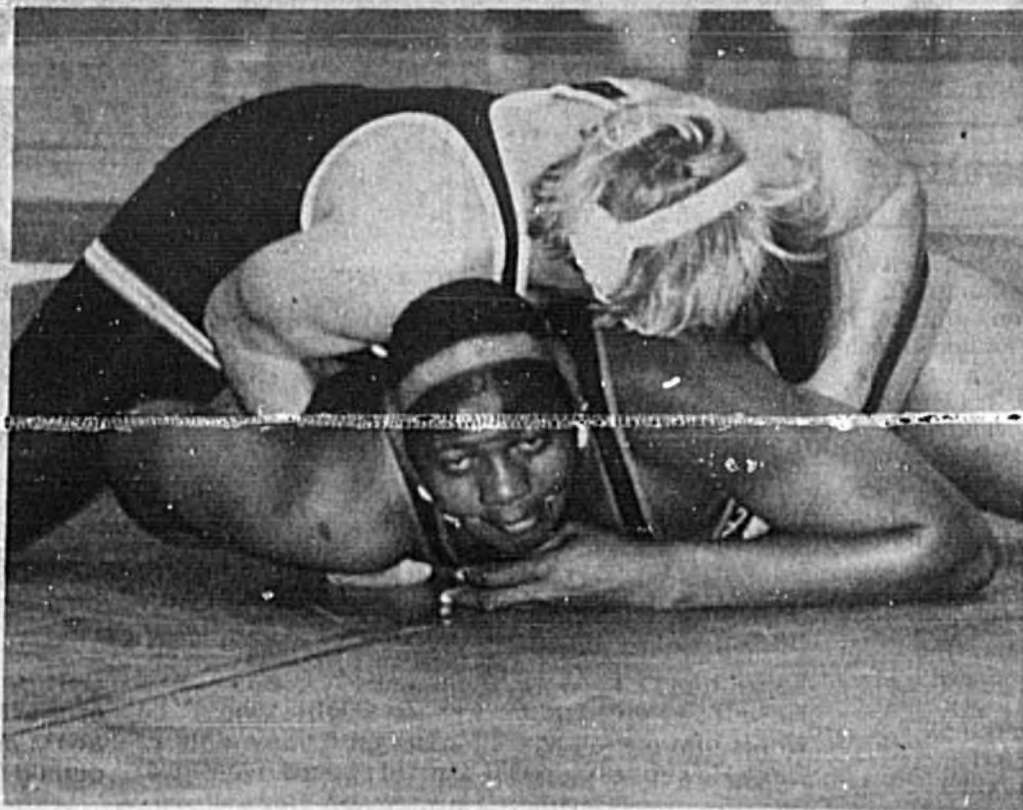

Invitational soccer tournament Friday night at Evans High's Double E Stadium.

With the score tied at 1-1 midway through the second half, Lake Mary's Donald Kelly hit teammate Andre Sanders with a nice cross and Sanders broke by the lone defender between him and the goalkeeper. Evans' goalkeeper however made a diving save of the one-on-one breakaway and, moments later, Evans, the sixth ranked 4A team in the state took a 2-1 lead on a goal by Dexter McDaniel.

"That definitely took a little wind out of our sails," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said of the keeper's save.

Lake Mary took a 1-0 lead in the first half as Tony Fiorentino headed in a deflected ball. Evans' Tony Cline knocked in a goal later in the half to make it a 1-1 deadlock at halftime.

Lake Mary's Robert Rawls, right, find himself in a strange position — the bottom — against Garry Roundtree. The 300-pound Rawls corrected the situation seconds later by rolling over for a pin in 34 seconds. Above, Ram senior Ned Kolbjornsen (top) works his way toward a pin against Curtis Morrell while at the far right, Willie Green tried to free himself from a headlock by Vernon Allen. The Rams won, 63-12.

Collier, Searcy Carry Wildcats To State Playoffs

WINTER PARK — John Searcy intercepted a pass at the goal line with 20 seconds remaining in the preserve a 28-24 victory for Winter Park's Wildcats over Merritt Island's Mustangs in the 4A-3 Sectional playoff at Showalter Field.

Running back Derek Collier led the way for the Wildcats offense as he carried 26 times for 194 yards and scored all for of Winter Park's touchdowns. Collier scored on runs of 72 and seven yards and recovered a fumble in the end zone to boost the Wildcats to a 21-7 halftime lead.

Merritt Island came back strong in the second half and scored 17 unanswered points to take a 24-21 lead after three quarters of play. Collier capped off the Wildcats' winning touchdown drive with a five-yard TD run with 6:03 left in the game.

The Mustangs drove one last time, but Searcy's interception thwarted the drive and kept Winter Park's spotless record intact. The Wildcats, 12-0, go up against Miami Southridge, also 12-0. AD Asks To Fire Stovall BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State Athletic Director Bob Brodhead asked the university's Board of Supervisors today to fire football coach Jerry Stovall.

"A coaching change is imperative if LSU is to have the kind of quality program ... expected of the university," Brodhead said.

He said Stovall had failed to provide leadership on the field and appeared to be unable to change game plans during the course of a game. He also said Stovall's lack of leadership had made LSU predictable and is to blame for its dismal 4-7 season.

Chancellor James Wharton was expected to propose LSU buy out the remaining year on Stovall's four-year contract, and Brodhead was expected to recommend Bill Arnsparger, assistant head coach for the Miami Dolphins, as Stovall's replacement.

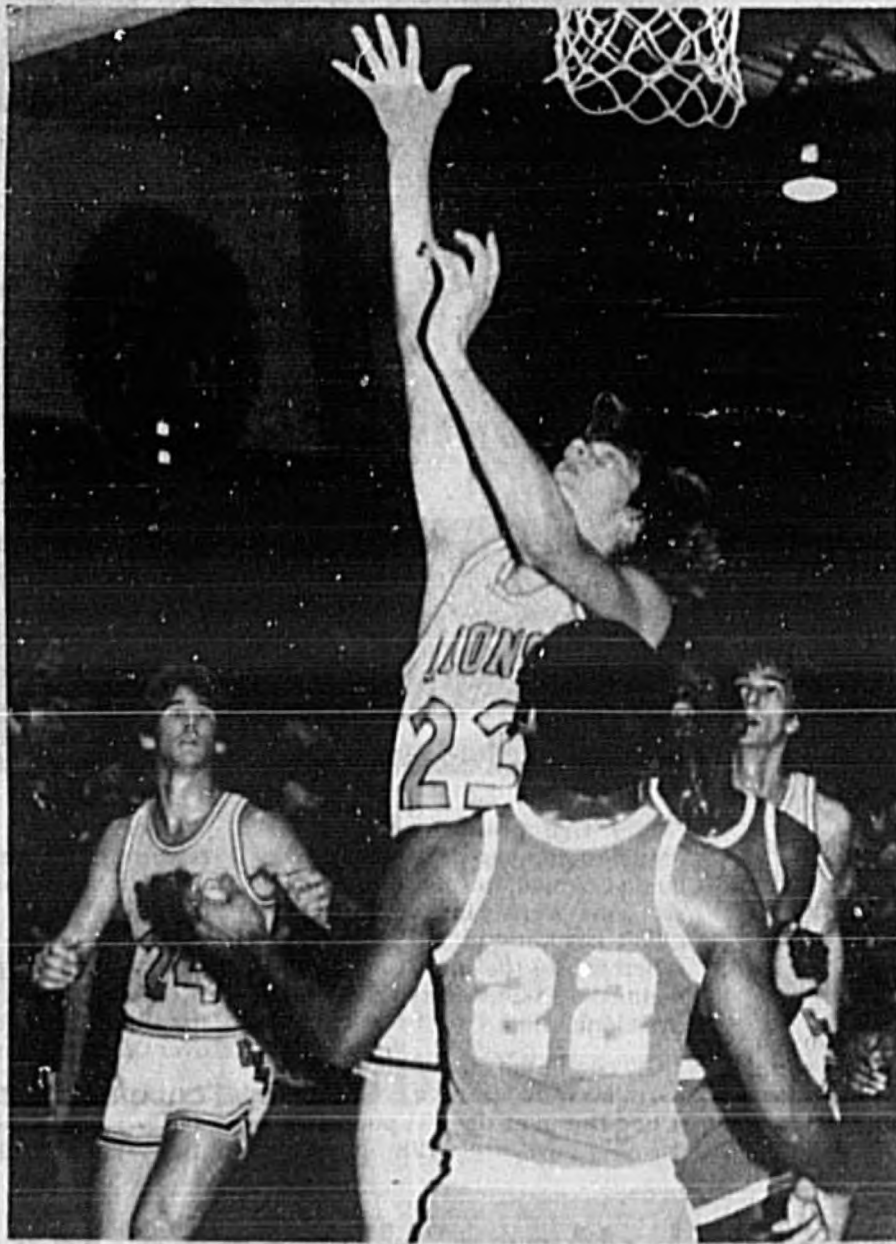

Murphy Leads Jax Rout

JACKSONVILLE. (UPI) — With Oviedo freshman Ronnie Murphy scoring 19 points, Jacksonville breezed to a 78-55 victory Friday night over Methodist College.

The Dolphins, 2-0, had little trouble handling the Division III Monarchs, 1-3, and led by 34-25 at halftime. Donald Stewart was high scorer for the Monarchs with 14 points.

Oviedo's Mike Wicks drops in a two-pointer over Lyman's Greg Pilot as teammate Darrin Reichle moves in for the rebound. Oviedo stormed back in the second half to top the Greyhounds, 59-55, in the prep basketball opener for both schools Friday night at Oviedo.

Kewley Leads Lions Past Lyman, 59-55

John Kewley did what he does best Friday night.

The Oviedo forward came off the bench to score 16 points to spearhead second-half Lion comeback which upended Lyman, 59-55, in the basketball opener for both schools at Oviedo High School.

Last year, Kewley was responsible for two Oviedo victories with his excellent play off the bench.

"We folded in the third quarter," said Lyman coach Tom Lawrence. "They changed their defense and we didn't adjust. We just didn't execute."

The game was marred by 59 fouls as Lyman lost five players via the foul route and Oviedo lost one. Lyman gets back into action Tuesday when it travels to Lake Howell. Oviedo goes to Sanford to play Seminole on Wednesday.

Both team were shaky in the first quarter as Oviedo seized a 4-2 lead, but the Greyhounds, who start just one senior, broke off a 12-4 run behind Greg Pilot and sophomore Rick Neal to take a 14-8 lead after eight minutes.

Prep Basketball

Lyman pressured the Oviedo guards in the second quarter to force numerous turnovers as Lyman built its lead to seven points. Junior guard Leeveche Nelson dropped in a 22-footer at the buzzer to send the Hounds into the locker room up, 34-27.

Oviedo coach Dale Phillips, unhappy with his team's 3-2 zone, switched to a 3-2 and it made the difference. Lyman had trouble penetrating and took some bad shots.

Kewley, along with third guard Steve Cohen, cut the Lyman margin to 42-40 going into the fourth period. In the final frame, Oviedo got some buckets from Mike Schwab inside to pull out the four-point win.

Oviedo converted 29 of 48 free throws to offset a 19-18 field goal advantage for the Greyhounds. Rick Neal to take a 14-8 lead after eight minutes.

Schwab had 11. Neal topped Lyman with 11 and Pilot finished with nine.

In the junior varsity game, T.J. Scaletta poured in 20 points while David Burgess and Al Unroe chipped in eight apiece to lead coach Norman Ready's Greyhounds to a narrow 52-50 win.

Freshman Rob Hughes led Oviedo with 13 while Demetrius Hill added 11 and Doug Murphy, Ronnie's little brother, tacked on 10.

Patriots Lag; Hawks Cruise

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

It's pretty hard to catch up when your lagging one step behind from the opening seconds of the game. Especially when your up against a quick team like the Leesburg Yellow Jackets.

Leesburg reeled off 13 straight points to open the game and never trailed again as the Yellow Jackets outran Lake Brantley's Patriots, 53-42. Friday night in the Patriot Invitational Tipoff Tournament, sponsored by Hardee's, at Lake Brantley High.

Leesburg will meet Lake Howell, which upended Wymore Tech, 58-44 in Friday's first game, in Saturday night's championship at 8. Lake Brantley and Wymore Tech play in the consolation game at 6.

"They (Leesburg) came out with great intensity," Lake Brantley coach Bob Peterson said. "We couldn't get on track. I never expected we would play that poorly. We were a step behind all night long."

Lake Brantley's poor start and horrendous shooting in the first half enabled Leesburg to build a lead it never lost. While the Patriots missed their first eight shots.

Patriot Tipoff

Leesburg built an early 13-0 lead. Lake Brantley made only 2 of 14 shots from the floor in the first quarter and the Yellow Jackets took a 16-6 lead into the second.

Lake Brantley trimmed the lead to five midway through the second quarter, but Leesburg built it back up to eight, 24-16, by halftime. The Patriots shot a frigid 5 of 30 (16 percent) in the first half.

Lake Brantley had a chance to pull within six with 2:53 left as LeRoy Brown was fouled after snatching a rebound and went to the line for a one-plus-one situation. Brown missed the front end though and, Dennis Groseclose was whistled for his fifth foul on the rebound and Brantley's comeback attempt was stymied.

LEESBURG (53) — Parker 6, F. Coleman 1, Graham 9, Casey 25, Cannon 7, Honer 3, Minich 2, Totals: 18 17-34 53.

Halftime score: Leesburg 35, Lake Brantley 25. Fouls: Leesburg 19, Lake Brantley 23. Fouled out: Garrigues, Groseclose, Parker. Technicals: Courtney, Lake Brantley bench.

In Friday's first game, Efram Brooks tossed in 17 points and Allen Banyaski added 15 to lead Lake Howell over sloppy Wymore Tech, 53-44. The Silver Hawks built a 30-21 lead by halftime, but saw Wymore fight back to within six points before pulling away in the fourth quarter.

Scott Anderton and Hayward Beasley added eight points each for the Silver Hawks. Mathew Townsend led Wymore Tech with 11 points followed by Horace Mobley with nine and Charles Laury with eight.

In the junior varsity tournament, Lake Howell and Lake Brantley meet in the championship Saturday at 4 p.m. The JV Silver Hawks advanced via a 47-35 victory over Wymore Tech. Mark Sniker led the way for Lake Howell with 18 points and Terry Gammons added 11. Lake Brantley upended Leesburg to advance to the title game.

Rozier Has Hacksaw Ready To Carve Up Heisman Parts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Rozier has already figured out what to do with the Heisman Trophy he's expected to win Saturday night.

The Nebraska running back, who has dropped NCAA rushing records like opposing tacklers, is strongly favored to be named the best player in college football for the 1983 season at the Downtown Athletic Club.

He better bring a hacksaw with him. "Quarterback Turner (Gill) will get the head, (wingback) Irving (Fryar) will get the arms, I'll get the legs and the offensive line will get the heart," said Rozier, Nebraska's leading Heisman candidate since Johnny Rodgers won it in 1972.

"If I don't get it, people around here will still know I did my job, and that will be as good as a Heisman. I'm not saying I don't want the Heisman Trophy, but it doesn't mean as much as a national championship. If I don't win the Heisman and you call me up, I'll probably still be partying."

Rozier, a 22-year-old from Camden, N.J., gained 2,148 yards in 1983 to become the second back in college history to crack 2,000 yards and stands behind Marcus Allen's 2,342 in 1981. Rozier had 128 fewer carries than Allen did in 1981.

He also broke the NCAA record with 29 rushing TDs and that figure tied the overall record set by Lydell Mitchell of Penn State in 1971. Rozier, who attended Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College for one year, tied the NCAA record with 11 straight 100-yard plus rushing games and gained over 200 in each of his last four games. His 929 yards over that four-game span is an NCAA record.

"He is the best blocking I-back we've ever had, he catches the ball well and he follows his blockers," said Nebraska coach Tom Osborne of his running back who averaged an astounding 7.8 yards per carry. "And he's physically tough and durable."

College Football

We've had backs in the past with the ability to win the Heisman, but they didn't. They weren't mentally and physically tough enough to play every week and hold up. Mike has that toughness."

Rozier, who would be the 12th straight running back to win the Heisman, is also sixth in career yardage with 4,780. Only Herschel Walker has gained more in three seasons.

Unbeaten Nebraska (12-0) is ranked No. 1 nationally and faces No. 4 Miami in the Orange Bowl Jan. 2. A victory over Miami would lock up the national championship for the Cornhuskers and make Rozier the first Heisman winner since Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh in 1976 to play for a national champion.

Other contenders for the Heisman are Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young, also no stranger to the NCAA record books with 13 standards, and Boston College junior quarterback Doug Flutie. Before this season, Oklahoma running back Marcus Dupree was considered a favorite for the award but he left the university and enrolled at Southern Mississippi, where he will not be eligible under NCAA rules until 1985.

Last year's winner, Herschel Walker of Georgia, might have repeated but chose to turn pro when offered a multi-million dollar contract by New Jersey of the U.S. Football League.

Young's major records include most total offensive yards in a season (395.1 per game), most completions in a season (306), and highest completion percentage in a season (71.3 percent) and in a career (65.8). This past season, Young threw for 3,906 yards and 33 touchdowns in leading the No. 9

ALL-AMERICA 1983

MIKE ROZIER

Cougars to a 10-1 record and a berth in the Holiday Bowl Dec. 23 against Missouri.

"Just being considered is a thrill for me," Young said. "I wasn't out to win the Heisman. After I had those first great games, I didn't want to be a shooting star. I'm the most happy about my consistency."

49er Hopes On Ropes, Need Win Over Tampa

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An inexplicable loss to the Chicago Bears last week has the San Francisco 49ers on the ropes like a battered fighter, hanging on and hoping for a miracle to keep alive their playoff hopes.

A flat performance which coach Bill Walsh couldn't explain was behind the team's 13-3 loss to the Bears. Another flat performance this Sunday against the lowly Tampa Bay Bucs and the year will be over two weeks early for the 49ers unless the Los Angeles Rams, the team San Francisco's is trying to catch in the bunched up NFC West, falls flat.

The Rams play the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday. Los Angeles and San Francisco victories would leave the Rams still a game in front with two to play. And the New Orleans Saints aren't out of the NFC West race, sharing the same 7-6 record with the 49ers. The Saints play the New England Patriots Sunday.

"We have to win our last three games if we hope to go on," is the way Walsh summarized the 49ers' chances after the loss to the Bears, a game in which San Francisco failed to score a touchdown for the first time this season.

It would seem the 49ers' best chances of making the playoffs is via a wild card. That's why they need victories over Tampa Bay Sunday, Buffalo next week and Dallas in their final game of the season. That would give them a 10-6 record. A 9-7 mark probably would not be good enough.

The Bucs won their first game of the season last Sunday, a 33-24 decision over the Houston Oilers, who have yet to win this season. So, while it was nice to finally win one, coach John McKay, who is under tremendous heat by the Bucs fans, didn't put too much stock in it.

"We are not a complete team at this point because of injuries," said McKay in looking ahead to this Sunday's matchup with the 49ers. "So it's hard to say exactly where we are. But we have the players to give a good account of ourselves and I expect the team will play as hard as it can against San Francisco."

One person who was not surprised at Chicago's victory over San Francisco was McKay, whose Bucs were shut out by the Bears the week before. 27-0.

"People may not realize this yet but the Bears are a good team with a confusing defensive scheme, especially if you don't play them often," said McKay.

And confusion is what the Bears caused for the San Francisco offense.

"I would hope we can put that game behind us and go on," said Walsh. "We know Tampa Bay has had a lot of adversity but just thing you learn in the league is that no team should be taken for granted. We'll have to play as hard against Tampa Bay as we have against teams with better records."

A fumble near the goal line by Wendell Tyler cost the 49ers a touchdown last Sunday and while Walsh pulled him in the fourth quarter, Tyler will be in the starting lineup against the Bucs.

"You can't forget some of the things he has done for our offense," said Walsh. "He's a very dedicated athlete and his fumbles have come when he has tried to get additional yards after being stopped. I'm never going to criticize a player who is trying his best to help."

Jack Thompson has moved in as Tampa Bay's quarterback since the 49ers last played the Bucs. He's one player McKay has found no fault with.

"He's an accurate thrower and I think if you give him time he will show it," said McKay.

Three Oregon State Players 'Sacked'

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Oregon State coach Ralph Miller made some key decisions in the sack early Friday night. The NCAA, however, Thursday gave three of his players plenty of time to rest.

"(No. 10) Iowa is much stronger (than No. 12 Oregon State)," Miller said after the Beavers earned a berth in the Hawkeye Classic championship game against Iowa tonight with a 49-40 victory over Arkansas State Friday night behind Rick Berry's 13 points. "We'll play him (Berry) more if he doesn't die out."

"For our first go-around, he played very well. But he re-verted back to high school a few times. His stamina factor is just not there."

Iowa downed Baylor 67-44 to earn its final berth. Charlie Sitton added 12 to help Oregon State, which had three players suspended for six games by the NCAA Thursday for selling complimentary game tickets.

Berry, a freshman from Morgan Hill, Calif., earned a start in his first game for the Beavers due to the NCAA ruling that starters A.C. Green and

Basketball

Darryl Flowers and reserve forward Tyrone Miller must sit out six games for the tickets violation.

"In the second half the kids more or less settled down," said Miller, who felt his team had too many turnovers. "When you play seven guys and two walkons you just have no experience."

"The squad as a whole knew nothing of the NCAA investigation until yesterday. It wasn't until 11 a.m. Thursday that I became fully aware of the situation."

But Miller wasn't complaining.

"There's nothing wrong with the penalty," he said. "My young men are fine people, but they made a mistake."

Dwayne Harris led Arkansas State with 14 points.

In the nightcap, Greg Stokes scored a game-high 23 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead Iowa. Senior guard Steve Carlino hit five long-range jump shots, all in the first half, and finished with 14 points to aid the Hawkeyes' third win in as many games. Baylor slipped to 5-11 after losing to Iowa State.

Iowa coach George Raveling says his team will have to watch being overconfident against the trimmed down Beavers.

"With those guys missing, our team is going to let down, but they will be just as tough," he said. "Maybe even tougher. Oregon State has the psychological advantage."

In other games involving Top 20 teams, North Carolina defeated Fordham 73-56 in the Stanford Invitational and No. 15 Georgia downed Georgia Tech 64-62.

Graham Presses Fight Against Proposition 1

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Undercover Detectives Sting Each Other

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Undercover detectives from two different police departments found themselves dealing with each other when they attempted to set up a purchase to nab two suspected drug dealers.

Pompano Beach police assigned detective Doug Cable to pose as a cocaine supplier and arrest the buyers.

Fort Lauderdale police, at the same time, were setting up a sting by pretending to be drug buyers to arrest the seller.

The mission was accomplished when two drug trafficking suspects brought the undercover agents together in a shopping center parking lot. The middlemen suspects were arrested anyway after the undercover cops discovered the set up.

But Broward County Circuit Judge Stanton Kaplan, angered when he learned the facts of the case, dismissed the charges this week.

"The government was simply buying cocaine from itself, through (the suspects), and then charging them with the crime," Kaplan said in an order filed Thursday.

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham led an impressive array of political, business, civic and education leaders this week in a well-orchestrated denunciation of Amendment 1 as a threat to Florida's future.

Graham was joined at a press conference Thursday he called to announce the leadership of his Florida's Future Inc., the group spearheading the fight against the proposed constitutional amendment, by Sen. President Curtis Peterson and Lt. Gov. Wayne Mixson.

"This is the most serious threat to the quality of life in Florida in my years in public office," Graham said of the proposed constitutional amendment.

Amendment 1 — also known as Proposition 1 and the Citizen's Choice amendment — would, if successful, roll back government revenues in 1985 to 1980-81 levels plus a partial adjustment for inflation.

It goes before the voters in the November 1984 general election, provided it can beat back a legal challenge currently pending in the 1st District Court of Appeal.

"What has made Florida great is our willingness to invest in our people," Graham said.

...Blacks Told: Seek Economic Parity

unemployment spiraled upward.

Because of a mistaken analysis of the problem, Gray said, tax cuts were given to benefit the rich for the most part. And regulations that were the foundation in some cases of prosperity were eliminated. And food stamps, housing and job programs were cut.

At the same time, defense spending was accelerated. And while some, remembering the days of World War II when defense spending meant jobs, thought this would happen again, Gray said, large numbers of people are no longer needed to produce tanks and guns.

He said that spending for defense coupled with the tax cut meant that the deficit continued to rise, causing even more problems.

After President Lyndon Johnson, who had fought to maintain segregation in 1948, reached the White House, he saw, Gray said, that one just can't pass laws to end discrimination. Laws also must be passed to help those who had been downtrodden to be able to join the competition race. He said that Johnson saw that it would take two or three generations to bring blacks to parity.

Instead blacks found that they, being the last to be hired, were the first to be laid off and policies were set down by the Reagan Administration that reversed the gains made in the last 20 years, Gray said.

"Black America today is not where it ought to be. We still do not have economic parity," said Gray, son of a former president of Florida A & M University.

Gray said SEEDCO was created out of dreams to build economic parity and 400 jobs were provided at one time. "Now that is down to about 50," he said.

Horace Orr, president of SEEDCO, said the past year has been a trying one for the organization, but one of its companies, the American Railway Service is off the ground now.

"Because things get tough is no reason to quit. We are going to keep the faith and look for a better day," Orr said.

SEEDCO's financial operations have come under scrutiny from federal authorities and the organization at this point is not receiving any federal funding, Orr has said.

After Gray's talk, the SEEDCO Board of Directors presented Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. with a plaque commemorating Davis' legal work for the organization when it was founded in the early 1970's.

"I don't remember if we ever thanked you," Orr told Davis. "But we have thanked you now."

Black Seeks Seat

Alfred G. DeLattibeaudiere, 64, of Sanford has announced his candidacy for the Seminole County Commission district 5 seat held by two-term Republican commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, a Republican.

DeLattibeaudiere

A resident of Sanford since 1957, DeLattibeaudiere, a Democrat, is employed as a Seminole County building inspector. Kirchhoff also lives in Sanford.

A native of Jamaica, DeLattibeaudiere was naturalized as an American citizen in 1966.

He ran unsuccessfully for the Sanford City Commission in 1974 and 1976.

Stano Convicted For Ninth Time

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Admitted mass killer Gerald Stano has been convicted of first-degree murder for the ninth time and prosecutors say they will ask that he be given a third death sentence.

A circuit court jury of seven women and five men deliberated about 2½ hours Friday before finding Stano guilty of first-degree murder in the 1973 slaying of 17-year-old Cathy Lee Scharf of Port Orange.

The sentencing phase of the trial will be held Monday when the jury will recommend to Circuit Judge Gil Goshorn whether Stano should be sentenced to die.

Stano, 32, already faces two death sentences and six life term sentences after confessing to killing at least nine women. He showed no emotion when the jury foreman J.R. Russo read the verdict at 3:30 p.m.

Stano had smiled and patted one of his lawyers on the back during closing arguments as his other attorney told the jury he should be acquitted of the teenager's murder because the state had not proved the cause of death.

It was the second trial for Stano on charges of killing Miss Scharf, whose skeletal remains were found near the Kennedy Space Center after she vanished in December 1973. The earlier trial ended with a hung jury after 17 hours of deliberation produced no verdict.

His lawyers presented no witnesses and concentrated on attacking the state's case in closing arguments Friday. Prosecutors dwelled on three confessions — two to investigators and one to Stano's former cellmate.

Defense attorney J.R. Russo brought out more than a dozen conflicts in testimony by state witnesses. Among them was Stano's statement that the victim was a brunette when she actually had blonde hair.

Teaching, Children, Music: That's What It's All About

By Susan Loden

Roger Harris will have no regrets when he leaves his post as assistant superintendent of finance for the Seminole County school system in December.

Why?

Because after 10 years in that high-pressure job, Harris says he is looking forward to having time for his long-time love, music.

Harris, 60, said he may combine his love of music with his love of teaching and offer his volunteer assistance to some Seminole County high school music teachers.

A West Virginia native, Harris started his career as a teacher in a little country school near Richmond, Va., where he even acted as janitor and cleaned his own classroom. He was there for a year and moved to Sanford in 1946 to teach science and math at Sanford High School for five years.

Harris said, "One of the things they say about Sanford is, be careful who you talk about, because you may be talking to that person's kin. That's the way it is with me. My relatives came here in 1928, and I used to visit here as a child. That's why I decided to move to Sanford. That and the weather. It's always cold in West Virginia."

His years at Sanford High School were happy ones, Harris said. "You can't beat teaching and you can't beat children. That's what it's all about. I'm dedicated to children."

"I think even in the position I'm leaving, if you aren't dedicated to children you're in the wrong place. But teaching was the best of everything that I have done."

When Harris started teaching he said salaries were so low that he couldn't continue working as a teacher, so he rechanneled his interests and became an administrator. He moved into auditing internal accounts, became text book manager, was in charge of central school supply, became purchasing director and in 1973 moved into his present position of assistant superintendent of finance.

When Harris decided to move into administration he needed to add to his credentials. He had a bachelor of arts degree in science from the University of Richmond, but he went on to earn his master's degree in school administration at Stetson University.

Over the years Harris has seen a lot of changes in Seminole County and its school system. He said that teachers now make a decent living and the number of schools has grown from 17 to 42.

He said, "Back in the old days there weren't any assistant principals and principals had to do bus duty. Back then I knew every teacher in this county and probably most of the secretaries and custodians."

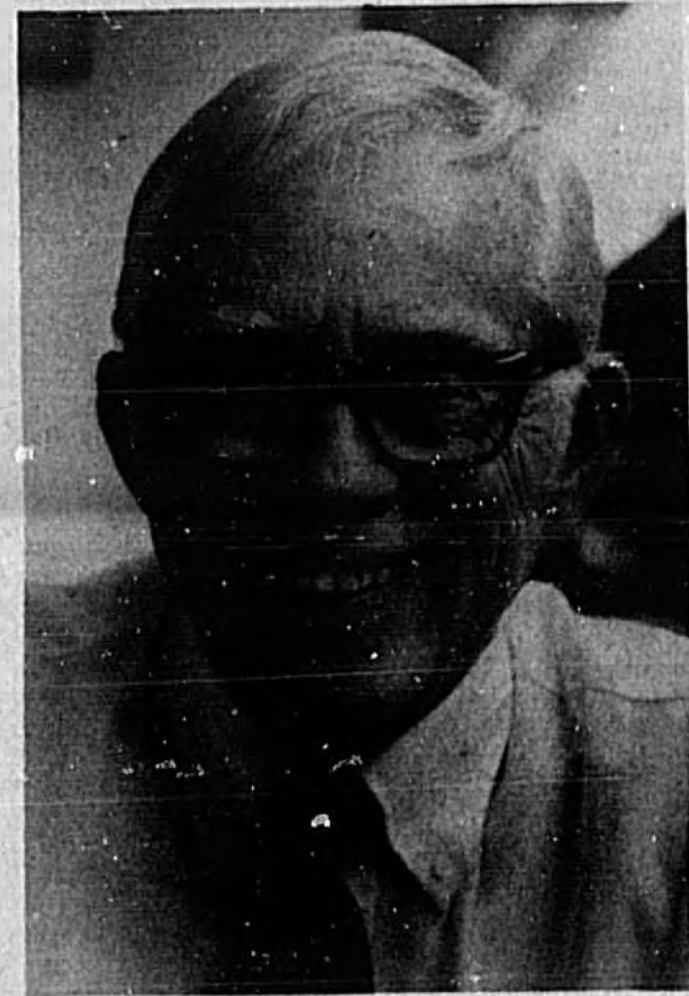

"When I came on in 1946 there were only two-and-a-half administrators for the whole system, the superintendent, a finance director and a school bus driver who filled-in part-time to write payroll checks. After 1952 things went crazy with all of this growth. Now there are hundreds of people in administration."

Harris sees lot of challenge and a lot of opportunities ahead in education in Seminole County. He said, "I don't have any fear of the future. I'm sure our people are competent to handle expansion. The children are going to be exposed to all types of computer assisted learning and we'll probably be going to two and three story schools."

When Harris leaves behind his duties of development and implementation of the Seminole County schools' budget on Dec. 15, he said he is leaving the $120 million budget in good hands. He said Carey E. Ferrell Jr., who moves into the job from a state position with the Department of Education in Tallahassee, is an ideal replacement for him.

Harris said: "I have great respect for Mr. Ferrell and his abilities. He has broad experience as a county superintendent, a former finance officer and is one of the top authorities on Florida school law. He's very well liked and well-known statewide. I feel our school system is very fortunate to get him and I believe we've offered him a good opportunity here in Seminole County."

Ferrell, 53, said: "I'm very enthusiastic about coming to Sanford. I have no special plans now. I just need to get settled and am looking forward to

Harris says he's leaving his job after 37 years because his family wants him to slow down after he had a heart attack in May.

working with the people here."

When Ferrell takes over Harris' duties, Harris hopes to center his new freedom around his family, his love of music and children. He said he's leaving

Joining The Gallery of Queens

Miss Florida Citrus Has Sanford Roots

By Doris Dietrich
PEOPLE Editor

Lori Lynn Schirard of Ft. Pierce wears the crown of Miss Florida Citrus to join the gallery of queens in the 60-year-old program. The title was formerly Miss Florida Citrus Queen and Lori is the first winner under the new title.

Lori was crowned in the 1984 Miss Florida Citrus Program held at Cypress Gardens. Florida Citrus Showcase, a non-profit organization devoted to the promotion of the citrus industry, has sponsored the Citrus Queen Program since 1924.

The pretty University of Florida senior has Sanford roots. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brantley Schirard of Ft. Pierce, formerly of Sanford. Mrs. Schirard is the former Linda Smith. Lori is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Smith and John Schirard, all of Sanford.

"I feel fantastic," she said shortly after receiving the award. "I just can't believe it."

According to Marilyn Russell, coordinator of the program, the Miss

Florida Citrus competition is no longer a beauty contest. "This is a full-time salaried position," she said. "The winner will be the goodwill and media representative of the citrus industry," she added.

Miss Schirard, a journalism and communications major, was in competition with 20 women for the coveted title. Not only is she the 1984 Miss Florida Citrus, but she won the Miss Sunshine award and the best video commercial award.

And with her spontaneous answer to a question asked by the emcee, Lori was bound to be a winner.

"When serving orange juice at a public gathering and you are trying to meet as many people as you can, a 70-year-old grandmother comes up and begins talking with you. How would you keep her from monopolizing your time?" he asked.

Lori answered, "First, I would be very nice to the lady. Then, I would try and talk her into giving out orange juice with me, and in that way, I could give out much more orange juice."

In addition to a title, crown and roses, Lori won a $4000 scholarship, a $1200 wardrobe, travel expenses, a car for a year, $200 a month for unallocated expenses and $175 a week in salary. She will travel Florida and make about 75 appearances in the United States and possibly foreign markets promoting Florida citrus.

Queen Lori will reign over festivities when she makes a traditional appearance at the Florida Citrus Bowl, Orlando, on Dec. 16 and 17 and will spend two weeks training with a public relations firm in New York for a comprehensive study of the citrus industry.

As a public relations major, Lori is a natural for her new job and says she feels the opportunities offered by the citrus industry are invaluable.

Does she like her work? You bet.

"There's definitely a lot of opportunity out there and I have my fingers crossed. I will be on the road a lot and I'm looking forward to it," Lori said.

Lori Lynn Schirard will represent the Florida citrus industry as the 1984 Miss Florida Citrus when she serves as goodwill and media representative. The salaried position calls for her making 75 personal appearances in the United States and possibly foreign markets promoting Florida citrus.

Couple To Mark 50th Anniversary

Mrs. Donnie (the former Jane Osborne) of Baxley, Ga., and Milner Osborne of Lake City, will honor their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Osborne of Sanford, on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Friends are invited to the anniversary reception to be held in the First Baptist Church social hall, from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 18.

The couple were married Dec. 14 at the First Baptist Church, Barnesville, Ga. Among the out-of-town guests will be Mrs. Don Chadwick of Tampa who attended the couple's wedding.

The Osbornes moved to Central Florida in 1936 and have lived in Sanford for 42 years. Mr. Osborne retired after 35 years as manager of the Sanford and Plymouth branches of the Asgrow Florida Company.

The couple have four grandchildren and one great grandchild.

10th Measure Of Beauty Left In Eyes Of Reader

"There are 10 measures of beauty in all the world so the sages say and nine of them are in Jerusalem."

Thus began the book review given by Mrs. Maryon Mensing of Lake Mary, at the November meeting of the Epsilon Sigma Omicron department of the Sanford Woman's Club.

Mrs. Mensing reviewed "The Tenth Measure" by Brenda Leslie Segan, an historical novel set in the first century A.D. during the war between the Romans and Jews and including the famous battle of Masada.

According to Mrs. Mensing, Alexandra Bat Harson was everything the heroine of a story should be: beautiful, witty, intelligent, headstrong and an ardent feminist in an era when women were not supposed to even think of being equal.

Although Alexandra was a fictional character, both of her husbands were real people and the action of the story was largely according to history. The author was 10 years in researching the book which was published in 1980.

"The 10th measure of beauty is never explicitly defined," said Mrs. Mensing, "but is left to reader determination."

The November ESO meeting was held at the newly opened Seminole County Historical Museum. During the social hour members toured the museum and were particularly interested in the "Early Education" room because many of the objects in the room had been donated by the Woman's Club: the blackboard, a bulletin board, a flag, a small child's chair, bookshelves and a lovely old traveling desk, such as those used by traveling preachers or school teachers.

The desk, reassembled by Art Lee, is being used as the teacher's desk.

Following the tour, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Edythe George, Louise Hayes, Lucille Stone and Kate Nash.

A brief business meeting was conducted by Chairman Melba Cooper before Mrs. Mensing was introduced to the members.

Members present were: Florence Monforton, Lillian Johndrow, Esther Penn, Estelle Davis, Jean Marcel, Louise Hayes, Lucille Stone, Edythe George, Doris Harriman, Bunnie Logan, Dottie Karns, Mrs. Ralph Auslin Smith, Melba Cooper and Kate Nash.

Maryon Mensing reviewed 'The Tenth Measure' at the November Epsilon Sigma Omicron meeting.

UDC Names Essay Winner

Members of the Norman DeVere Howard Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy met at the home of Mrs. H.B. McCall for the November meeting with Mrs. Guy Wood as co-hostess.

Presiding was Mrs. Charles Hobson, vice president. The chapter pledged allegiance to the American flag and a Salute to the Confederate flag led by Mrs. Joe L. Corley, chaplain.

A letter was read from Mrs. Walter A. Williams, District 3 director, commending student Earl Martin of Central Florida Christian School, Maitland, for being chosen as district winner in the essay contest sponsored by Norman De Vere Howard chapter. Next it will be judged by the State and General UDC. The subject of the essay is "My Favorite Confederate Hero." Mrs. Hobson, chairman of chapter committee for the Seminole Historical Museum, thanked members for their diligent efforts in furnishing the Civil War Display Room.

The program by Mrs. McCall featured a poem entitled, "The Bible Alphabet," written by Robert F. Hamilton of Hendersonville, N.C. while serving in the Union Army during The War Between the States. She also gave historical background of her home on Mellonville Avenue.

From a Chicago, Ill. press clipping, Mr. L.D. Hastings read about a former slave, Mary Duckworth, said to have been born two months after the start of the War Between the States, who died recently at age 121. Family documents said she was born into slavery June 4, 1861 near Taylorsville Miss., where her father drove oxen on land by the Tallahatchie River. In a 1982 interview, she said the first church she joined in Mount Olive, Miss., was not a church building but a "cluster of bushes and trees with a cloth background." The preacher was a white man, "who preached for the soldiers," she said.

She attributed her longevity to "telling Jesus to hold my hand and guide my feet." Thanksgiving refreshments were served by the hostesses.

In And Around Lake Mary

Fund Program To Help Needy During Holidays

As just one of the many jobs performed by Lake Mary police officer Linda Paine, reaching out to the community around the holidays is a job she finds filled with joy.

Representing the police, fire and public works departments, and city workers, Linda takes time out from her busy schedule of police work, working with juveniles, and karate instructing, to go out and raise funds for the Lake Mary Children's Community Fund program. The fund is used to help families who, perhaps, for one reason or another, are having a rough time making ends meet, especially around the holidays.

Aside from the program of supplying food baskets to those in need, funds are used to purchase Christmas gifts for area children who might otherwise have nothing to open Christmas morning.

Area businesses and individuals are asked to help those less fortunate by either a cash/check gift or by donating canned goods to be used in food baskets. Linda also asked that if anyone knows of a local family in need to contact her at the police station, or write to her c/o the Police Station, P.O. Box 725, Lake Mary, 32746.

Another area the funds are used in is passing out of small candy-filled stockings by Santa. Each year, the police, fire, safety and city workers hold a "Santa" parade through the streets of Lake Mary.

Following fire trucks and police cars will be a special float for Santa. As he passes by, each child receives a candy stocking and toy.

The parade, normally held on Dec. 24, will be held this year on Thursday, Dec. 22, from 9:00 a.m. until about 5:00 p.m., with as much of Lake Mary being covered as possible.

"Help" is the word the Lake Mary Girl Scouts are using a lot these days. They need it. According to Donna Young, Girl Scout service unit co-ordinator, the Lake Mary troops have grown so much, that they are in desperate need of a place to meet.

Donna said, "The United Presbyterian Church of Lake Mary has been so good to us. They let four of our troops meet there once a week. Now, we have even more girls, more troops, and the church can't possibly fit any more of us in there."

The newest Lake Mary troop to form is #262, Juniors, under leadership of Kathy Rathwill. It already has 15 girls attending. Anyone with information on how the Girl Scouts can find a meeting place for Wednesday and Thursday evenings, from 6:30-8:00 p.m., please call Donna at 323-3762. She promises that any place they meet will be cleaner when they leave than it was before they came.

All Lake Mary Girl Scouts, joined in recently with Scouts from Longwood and Altamonte Springs for a "Camporee" out at Camp Mahkahwee in Chuluota. Over 120 girls learned about trees, cloud formations, and the effect oil spills have on water as part of in-depth ecological studies.

Brownie Troop #504 spent a day cleaning up a part of the city recently. The troop gathered up six trash bags full of litter from over on Alma Street up to the park.

Coming up — Girl Scouts from Lake Mary, Longwood and Altamonte Springs will take part in a "Winter Sing" on Dec. 13. Area troops will gather at the center of the Altamonte Mall from 7-8 p.m. and perform a melody of Christmas carols, and favorite Girl Scout songs. The troop leaders will also have each Scout bring along a can of non-perishable food to be donated to the Community Food Bank for local distribution to the needy.

Other upcoming plans are for Lake Mary Troops #262 & #504 to join together for a Christmas party at Melodee Skating Rink.

Lake Mary Elementary School has a Christmas Skating Party set for Dec. 5 at Melodee. All students, family and guests are invited to attend. The cost is $1.25 per person (includes skate rental) and will be held from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

The "Keenagers" of the Forest Mobile Home Community have a Christmas Tree Trimming Party set for Sunday, Dec. 4 at 7:00 p.m. All Forest residents are invited. Those attending are asked to bring along a tree ornament to put on the 7 foot tree.

The evening promises sing-alongs, caroling, entertainment by the Forest Band, homemade cookies and punch. (The word is that a well-known man in a flashy "red" suit is going to make a personal appearance.) The party will be held in the Starlite Room.

Reminder — The Driftwood Village Arts & Crafts show is going on at the shopping center Saturday, Dec. 3, from 10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m., and Sunday, 11:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m. Over 60 artists and craftsmen will have their work on display.

Bridles Married 10 Years

Larry and Denise Bridle, 2015 Lake Ave., Sanford, will celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary by repeating their vows on Saturday, Dec. 3. The vows renewal will take place at 7 p.m. at the Church of God, Longwood, followed by a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The couple were married Dec. 7, 1973. He is employed by the City of Sanford in the Water Department. Mrs. Bridle is employed by All-American Vending, Airport Boulevard, Sanford.

his job after 37 years because his family wants him to slow down after he had a heart attack in May.

Harris and his wife of 36 years, Louise, have three grown children, Steven, Scott and Sandra. They also have eight grandchildren. And over the years Harris said he worked to instill a love of music in his children and grandchildren, much the way his mother influenced him as a child.

During meals at home Harris always played classical music, something it took the children a while to learn to appreciate. But he said they now enjoy all types of music. And he said his daughter even taught him to appreciate the music of the Beatles.

Harris said: "I think music should have meaning in the lives of all people, because a lot of times when you're distraught, upset or nervous music can do more for you than a tranquilizer."

When Harris was five years old he hated it when his mother forced him to sit and practice the piano. Other children laughed at him, but his mother made him stick with it. And Harris said by the time he was in high school his love of music had developed and opened many doors for him.

Harris said: "I took a beating from the guys over my music, but eventually when I got to go places and do things because I was a musician the guys who teased me wished they were in the same boat."

For about 20 years Harris, at different times, was choir director and organist at the First United Methodist Church and Grace Methodist Church, both in Sanford. He had to give that up about 10 years ago because of the demands of his job.

In recent years Harris has satisfied his need for music by listening to "swing era" classics of the 30s and 40s on his office radio. He said the old tunes sometimes trigger memories from the past.

He said: "I was taking junior lifesaving when I was 14 and it was a cold West Virginia day. There was a group called the "Sons of the Pioneers" who came on the radio singing "Cool Water". I will never forget hearing those characters say 'cool, clear water' when I was freezing in that cold, cold water. Music brings back those kinds of memories."

About 15 years ago during a teacher's strike Harris got a taste of what he would like to do during his retirement. He was called in to take over the choral classes at Seminole High School.

He said: "I loved those kids. I'm like a music teacher I once had who said he loved to teach boys and girls, because they don't know what they don't know. They don't question that you have something that they can learn from you."

"I have a lot of faith in kids today. I think they're much more honest, frank and open than when I was young. They don't mince any words and don't just say what they think you'd like to hear. It's wonderful. I love the young folks."

Harris' secretary, Loretta Hale said: "There are people here who love and are going to miss him terribly. There are a lot of his former students working here for the school board, people who go a long way back with him."

Ms. Hale said there will be a farewell dinner for Harris on Jan. 9 at the Lake Monroe Inn. Any of his former students and friends who would like to attend should contact her at the school board office.

Seminole Campers Join 38 Chapters For Campout

Seminole County Campers, a chapter of the National Campers & Hikers Association (NCHA) joined 38 other chapters for the state Thanksgiving Campout at the RV Park, Eustis. Thanksgiving dinner and joint breakfast were available for the campers. Several chapters prepared evening hospitality and turkey soup, free to the campers.

Outdoor activities for adults, teens and children were well attended. From the local chapter, Francis Cobb won the ladies competition in holey-ball and shuffleboard and brought home the two winner badges; Robert Cobb and Fernley Phillips were runners-up in their respective games. Stephany and Susan Linscott led the children's activities. All are from Sanford.

Chapter, state and directors' meetings were held and the program also included evening entertainment and the Florida State Teen-Queen contest. The NCHA state directors Elmer and Mary Lewis of Clearwater installed Seminole County chapter officers Harry Murrill, Orlando, as president and Irma Kirschstein, Sanford, vice president. This was the first time state directors participated in chapter installations and the local campers are proud of this honor.

Any camping families interested in more information about the monthly campouts and activities of the local chapter may write to: Seminole County Campers Secretary, P.O. Box 116, Sanford, Fl. 32771.

Battered Wife Has Had It With Short-Lived Marriage

DEAR ABBY: After five months of marriage I am contemplating a divorce. "Marty" and I lived together for two years, so it's not as if we didn't know each other when we married.

We are always fighting. He never wants to be with my friends or family — only his. I've done nothing but give, give, give, and he takes, takes, takes. I was in the hospital with bleeding ulcers and Marty didn't bring me a flower — not even a weed! All he brought to my hospital bed was more fighting. I could go on and on.

After I got home I told him I wanted out of this marriage. He started crying and begging me to stay. Now he's making me feel sorry for him. He wants another chance. I've already given him so many chances I've lost count. His mother reminds me that we made a vow to God to live together regardless — and this is from a woman who is on her fourth marriage! Can you believe the nerve? Now she is making me feel guilty!

Am I wrong in my decision to leave him, Abby? My mother says, "Leave him."

HAD IT IN CINCINNATI

DEAR HAD IT: Don't ask me. Don't ask your mother. And don't ask his mother. Nobody can "make you" do anything or feel anything. As an adult you must make your own decisions and take the responsibility for your own actions. From your letter I would say you have been repeatedly used and abused, and if you remain in that kind of situation, you're asking for more of the same. Separate from him, and if he doesn't convince you that he will treat you right — make that separation permanent.

DEAR ABBY: Our newspaper rarely publishes an address for those who want to write to you with a problem. Today I saw a box number where one can obtain your booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." I have just passed my 83rd birthday and have already had three lovely weddings, which were sufficient, thank you.

I remain very truly yours,

WAITING TO HEAR

DEAR WAITING: Write to P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I work with a guy who is very friendly at work. I have met his wife and she seems very nice, too. Of course, they are a married couple and I am a single man, but I would like to be their friend.

Several times I have mentioned to this man that I would like to come and visit him and his wife at their home, but I have never been invited. Last week I had to deliver something to their home, so I planned on spending the evening with them. (They knew I was coming.)

They seemed glad to see me, but after I was there for half an hour, the wife stood up and said, "I'm sorry, but we have to go somewhere." The way she said it sounded suspicious, so instead of driving home, I parked my car down the street from their house and waited for nearly two hours, but they never did come out.

I really like these people. What do I have to do to make them realize I want to be their friend?

PUZZLED IN TEXAS

DEAR PUZZLED: Please don't pursue this married couple. Most married people prefer to socialize with other married couples. Try to cultivate the friendship of single acquaintances. If you push too hard to socialize with this man, you will spoil the good relationship you have with him at work.

'Non-Sexist' Bible Readings Opposed

By David E. Anderson
UPI Religion Writer

The National Council of Churches' effort to provide an experimental series of Bible readings using non-sexist language is getting a harsh reception from many church leaders.

Bishop David Preus of the American Lutheran Church is the latest ranking church official to join the attacks on the "Inclusive Language Lectionary," which was prepared by a committee appointed by the church council's Division of Education and Ministry.

A lectionary is a cycle of Bible readings, usually covering three years, from which the major texts of the Old and New Testament are read during public worship.

In recent years, Christian feminists have increasingly argued that the male-bias of most English language translations of the Bible tend to alienate them and diminish their worship experience.

To counter that, the National Council of Churches authorized its Education and Ministry to prepare a lectionary that would attempt to minimize the male-bias where possible and to use more "inclusive" language.

It changes language dealing with God, Jesus and people, translating Son of God, for example, as Child of God. The project has been under attack since it was first announced two years ago, first by conservatives who charged the lectionary committee was "tampering" with the Bible and, more recently, by more mainline church leaders who don't like the results.

Preus, whose denomination is not a member of the National Council, in a letter to all the clergy in his church, said he will ask the ALC Church Council to adopt a resolution urging congregations not to use the lectionary.

"While the ALC is not an NCC member and has not been a participant in the lectionary work, many of us were hopeful that a reworking of the texts would provide a useful congregational resource," Preus said.

"I am deeply disappointed in the results," he added.

Bishop James Crumley of the Lutheran Church in America, which is a member of the council and which did participate in the preparation of the lectionary, has also advised his congregations not to use the experimental book.

"The overwhelming opinion is that this translation does not meet the goals of for inclusive language in a proper way because it is often inaccurate and sometimes written in a poor and inadequate linguistic style," Crumley said.

At the council's recent governing board meeting in Hartford, Conn., delegates from the nine Orthodox churches in the 31-church body sought to have the board disassociate itself from the lectionary — an action the board refused to take, noting that the lectionary is "prepared for experimental and voluntary use in the churches."

Preus said his chief difficulty with the lectionary "is that the revised texts have many mistranslations. They are paraphrases. Inclusiveness sits in judgment on the biblical texts and the result is an unfaithful translation." He did not cite any examples.

Advent Concert

The Free Methodist Church, Fourth and Laurel, Sanford, will host the musical group, "Proclamation," in a special Advent program Friday at 7 p.m. The group consisting of six students of Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., who play the piano, flute, saxophone and guitar, will sing a wide range of Christmas music, both contemporary and traditional. The pre-Christmas tour is under the leadership of the Rev. Russell Williams, director of Alumni Affairs and Outreach Ministries.

Black Clergy Support Economics, Education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As many as 100,000 black clergy and church leaders plan a meeting in New Orleans in April to launch a massive economic support and education program.

"Economics and education are the two basic keys to the successful survival of the individual, the family, the race and the country," said the Rev. T. J. Jemison, president of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., and chairman of the First National Assembly of Black Churches.

A key to the economic program, said economist Warren St. James, will be an effort to keep the approximately $150 billion annual income of blacks inside the black community for a longer period. Coalition leaders said at a news conference Wednesday they intend to establish a "national Baptist bank," handling deposits of up to $10 million a week. They also hoped to revive failing black-owned businesses.

"The black church is going to have to revive businesses in the black community that have died for lack of support,"

Jemison said. Jemison added that specific details of the programs to be presented at the assembly gathering in the Superdome have yet to be worked out, but that organizers expect it will create 1.5 million jobs within the black community.

The coalition brings together for the first time some of the most prominent black church officials in the nation. They serve more than 50,000 congregations and 20 million members.

The leadership of black denominations such as the African Methodist Episcopal Church, the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, the Church of God in Christ, the National Baptist Convention and the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church will be represented.

The coalition also includes black leaders from predominantly white denominations, such as Bishop John Walker of the Episcopal diocese of Washington, D.C., and Bishop Joseph Francis of the Roman Catholic diocese of Newark, N.J.

Israeli Chassidic Event Set

A music production on song, dance and music performed by top Israeli stars is being brought to the area by the Jewish Community Center of Central Florida for one performance only at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 15, at the Mattland Civic Center.

The first Israeli Chassidic Festival held in 1969 was intended to be a one-time contest for the best music set to Biblical verses. However, the overwhelming response changed the course of history for this musical event, according to Mark Glickman, Cultural Festival chairman.

Ever since, composers from all over the world enter their works in the spirited competition. Top Israeli performers present the songs to the Israeli people, who select the winners. The Festival attained immortality as its songs became a part of daily services. Passages of prayers which were recited for hundreds of years are now being sung to new melodies originated during the Chassidic Festival.

Following its international debut in 1971, the Chassidic Festival has come to Orlando four times. This year it has an all-new cast and completely new show. More than a high-quality concert, it is where songs become hits and soon are a part of the Jewish musical treasury.

Some good seats are still available. For more information contact David Seidenberg, Jewish Community Center program director at 645-5933.

Judge Shuts Down Party Church

WAUCONDA, Ill. (UPI) — A mall-order minister said parties at the Universal Life Church were a form of worship, but a judge called the church a public nuisance and ordered it shut down forever.

Lake County Circuit Judge William Block ruled Wednesday the Universal Life Church, operated by David and Nancy Sholl, violated local building and zoning codes and was a public nuisance.

Assistant Lake County State's Attorney Margaret Mullen said the judge also ruled church parties violated liquor license laws. Block issued a summary judgment against the church and ordered its doors closed permanently. Sholl said he may appeal.

The church — a 10,000-square-foot, $395,000 mansion — contains an indoor swimming pool, a stage, sauna, bars, Ping-Pong and pool tables, dance floors and an indoor waterfall.

The Sholls charged $8 a head for parties and receptions booked through the church.

The couple first opened the mansion as a party house in 1979, but local officials said it violated fire and zoning codes and liquor laws.

Sholl argued the zoning codes were satisfied when he turned the mansion into a "church" in the spring of 1981, and became the minister by paying the Universal Life Church in Modesto, Calif., $30 for a mail-order ordination.

Nuclear Holocaust Or Rapture?

What you have to know about Rev. Jerry Falwell is that, while the rest of us are shivering in our boots thinking about the horrors of nuclear war, he and his fellow born-again Christians go on confidently believing they will be spared in any cosmic destruction.

Unless you know this, you will not understand how Falwell could appear on "60 Minutes" on TV and dismiss the ABC-TV special "The Day After" as a political ploy on the part of those who advocate a nuclear freeze.

"The Day After" was, of course, a dramatically frightening depiction of annihilation and utter desolation that follows in the wake of a nuclear strike on one U.S. community — in this case, Lawrence, Kan.

Psychiatrists who saw a preview of the film warned parents about the effects it has on children who would watch it. Not that it would give them nightmares — imaginary fears. Instead the fears that this film would unleash would be terrifyingly real — too real for a child to cope with.

Falwell's objections on "60 Minutes" to "The Day After" were different. He demanded equal time for his side — the nuclear buildup proponents — to answer this propaganda from the left.

But doesn't Falwell dread nuclear war like the rest of us? No.

In the view of those who call themselves "Bible-believing Christians," born-again Christians will be spared from the global disaster foretold in the Bible.

They base this hope on something St. Paul said about the end of the world in 1 Thessalonians 4: "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven... and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive... shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air."

In other words, the believers will be snatched away to safety by Christ — an event known as the Rapture before the Apocalypse, the final bloody battle at the end of the world prophesied in the book of Revelation.

What will be the end for everybody else will be "the living end" for the born-again Christian.

In the words of Hal Lindsey, author of the best-selling "The Late Great Planet Earth": "In spite of the headlines, in spite of crisis after crisis throughout the world, in spite of the dark days which will strike terror in the hearts of many, every Christian has the right to be optimistic. We should be living like people who don't expect to be around much longer — living with anticipation and excitement."

This is Falwell's position. He is for a nuclear arms

Saints And Sinners

buildup because we must never let up in our fight against the Evil One (communism). This will not prevent Armageddon — the final great war in human history — since that dread day of cosmic disaster is foretold in the Bible. But on "The Day After," born-again Christians will be safe with the Lord — and unscathed.

Since the movie took no position on the freeze, Falwell's call for a rebuttal must have been to tell the American people that nuclear war would not be as horrible as the movie made out.

Of course, even the people who advocate U.S. nuclear expansion realize that the devastation that would accompany a nuclear war would be every bit as terrible as "The Day After" portrayed. They would, of course, like to keep these facts of life — facts of death really — from the public.

But that is becoming increasingly difficult. A conference of the world's top scientists in Washington early in November said the effects of a large-scale nuclear exchange would be worse than previously projected, and that the population of the world could conceivably be reduced to prehistoric levels. "The extinction of the human species itself cannot be excluded," said the scientists.

IN BRIEF

INTELSAT Head Elected To Longwood Firm's Board

LONGWOOD — Richard R. "Rich" Colino, director general-elect of the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (INTELSAT), has been elected to the board of directors of Certified Financial Services, Inc. (CFS) of Longwood, according to George K. Noga, CFS chairman and chief executive officer.

Colino has been a client of CFS since 1978. He was elected as a board member as part of a program by CFS to create a strong board with a majority of outside directors in preparation for making an initial offering of the firm's stock to the public. CFS offers personal financial services.

INTELSAT is a consortium of 109 nations which controls a global satellite communications network for telephone, telex, television, data and related communications. Colino will begin his duties as director general on December 31, 1983.

Colino began his long relationship with INTELSAT in 1964 as the spokesman on the U.S. delegation who negotiated the Interim Agreements establishing INTELSAT. He then served on INTELSAT's board of governors for six years and was elected chairman of the board in 1976.

Colino is from the Washington, D.C. area where CFS has an office with a substantial client base.

Based in Longwood, Certified Financial Services, Inc. has branch offices in Los Angeles, Ormond Beach, Tampa and Washington D.C.

McNulty is executive vice president and secretary for Flagship Banks, Inc., the Miami based holding company that will merge with Sun Banks, Inc. on January 1.

Dennis A. Courson, president of Flagship Bank of Seminole, will be named group president for eight offices in Seminole County.

Robert E. Patchett, executive vice president of Sun Bank, N.A., will be named group president of the remaining eight offices in that county. William P. Valenti, president of Flagship First National Bank of Titusville, will be appointed group president for eight offices in Brevard County, sharing that position with Sam L. Bockman, executive vice president of Sun Bank, N.A., who will also be group president in charge of eight other Brevard County offices.

Hans W. Tews will continue as president of Sun Bank, N.A. and executive vice president of Sun Banks, Inc. In addition, Clifford M. Hames and George W. Koehn will continue to serve as vice chairman and senior executive vice president, respectively, of the bank.

Sun Bank, N.A. will have 55 offices in the five-county area of Orange, Seminole, Lake, Brevard and Osceola counties and assets in excess of $2 billion after the merger with the Flagship Banks in Sanford and Titusville.

Eckerd Sales Increase

CLEARWATER — Jack Eckerd Corp.'s sales and operating revenue for the first quarter of the 1984 fiscal year, which ended Oct. 28, were a record $543 million, an increase of 15 percent over the comparable quarter last year.

Eckerd Chairman and President Stewart Turley, addressing the annual meeting of shareholders, said the first quarter's sales show the continuation of improvement in the performance of the Eckerd Drug stores and the Video Concepts stores.

His Business A Real WOW

Washing Cars Put Punch in Entrepreneur's Earnings

By Meg Parker

George Louser, who now has $1 million plus a year business, might have remained a high school teacher had it not been for city officials in a small town called Millersville, Pennsylvania.

Louser, president of Mules Punch Solar, Altamonte Springs, dabbled part-time in car washes and wanted to start one in history-conscious Millersville. But, there were zoning problems.

"I wanted to put in a colonial brick car wash but there were people in town who thought it would ruin or disfigure this old, old town. Today, it's very accepted, but in those days car washing was something new," recalls Louser.

"So, one day I said, 'This is ridiculous. Why not take the wash to the customer instead of the customer coming to the

The price is so cheap that almost anyone can own a WOW. How many businesses can you get into for less than $5,000.00?" asks Louser.

"You have no expenses other than licenses and miscellaneous. There's no secretary, no office. Your wife can answer the phone or you can get an answering service. Your only expenses are what it costs you to drive around," he says.

In addition, he says, most of the WOW operators can start their business on a part-time basis. Many have been so successful, he says, that they soon left their former occupations to become full-time WOW cleaning people.

The evolution of the WOW concept goes back to Louser's days as an economics teacher in Fairfield, Pennsylvania. Always a tinkerer, he designed and built a coin laundry that had a unique water-reclamation system.

Louser built 30 such laundries. He still owns the first one, Third Street Scottee Wash, named because it denoted thrift.

His interest in laundries led him to investigate the car wash business.

Louser says he likes teaching but he decided at the time of his Millersville experience that he wanted to make more money. He also decided that a stationary car wash involved too many problems. Car washes always needed a great deal of water, for example, and labor.

So he decided to bring the wash to the car. He designed a van to do just that and started to sell his concept.

The professional washing system was made to clean everything from trucks to aluminum siding: buses, trailers, boats, engines, airplanes, signs, factories, driveways, storage tanks, theater marquees, farm machinery, patios, swimming pools, and store fronts. The special chemicals Louser prepared allowed users to liquid sandblast, degrease, fertilize and spray lawns and shrubbery, remove graffiti and mildew. In short, practically anything you might want to clean.

Louser eventually opened a plant in Orlando and California and the company gradually grew...but then came the Arab oil embargo. After that, the recession.

"We went from a three and a half million company to a 1.7 million dollar company, losing 60 percent of our business," Louser recalls.

"In a recession, the first thing that goes is cleaning. Trucks aren't rolling or supplying goods. People put off things they don't absolutely need," says Louser.

How did he stay afloat? He closed the California plant, laid off some employees and went back to the drawing boards for his truck design.

The result was a far less expensive and portable WOW cleaning unit that could be pulled by an auto.

Another move that helped WOW stay on its feet, recalls vice-president/general manager Robert Sorger, was to eliminate in-house financing.

"This is a factor when you're setting up a new business, which is tough. There's a great commitment from people when they have to come up with their own money, whether it's through their own local bank source or whatever," says Sorger.

Sorger believes a major reason the company survived was that it created a new product line during the tough times.

"The trailer-mounted systems allow us to sell anywhere from $4,000 to $26,000. It diversified us," he says.

Another factor in the company's success: creative advertising. One of WOW's recent successful moves was to advertise in a nationwide publication that Louser would prefer not to mention to avoid alerting his competitors.

Louser says he did not want to franchise because WOW buyers have flexibility in their movements that prevents territorial restrictions. Some WOW operators, for example, even operate up north in the summer and work the Florida area in the winter.

Louser says he now has about 1,000 WOW operators, scattered all over the world. There are even some in Saudi Arabia, where Louser designed a special mix for cleaning oil tanks.

How much do operators earn? And how many are successful?

Louser says income varies, of course, but he knows of some WOW people who make over $100,000 a year. He estimates that maybe ten to twenty percent of the buyers get out or sell out of the business but he points out that many of those were probably not inclined towards the hazards of self-employment.

The average WOW investment, with accessories, is about $9,000.00, says Sorger. This consists of a comprehensive marketing and training program with sixteen hours of classroom instruction and "on-the-job" training. Also included is a chemical starter package, liquid sandblasting unit, spare parts kit, WOW custom lettering of your unit, a supply of advertising slicks, sales brochures, sample prospect letters, bidding assistance, WOW business cards, WOW hats, patches and more.

The later costs are few, Sorger says, because the name on the truck or trailers

George Louser

Thirty-six year old Chuck Ianuzzi in Orlando discovered WOW that way. A remodeling contractor in Pittsburgh, he moved here and began looking for a business. He bought a Wash On Wheels trailer that he hauls around behind his 1976 Ford van.

How did he do his first year? "Not too good. Any first year is not all peaches and cream. But this year I've had a 120% increase. My bills are paid every month. I have money left over. I can afford luxuries like hospitalization and a steak once in a while," he says.

In common with other WOW operators, Ianuzzi's wife does the books, answers the telephone and helps in other ways in the business.

One of the reasons he was successful, Ianuzzi says, is that he was determined not to fail. He was working as a framing carpenter — hot, dirty, tiring work, he says — before buying the WOW equipment.

"I also learned you've got to be able to expect and take some discouragement from time to time. You've got to understand that your first efforts don't always bring an immediate return," he said.

Another reason Ianuzzi believes he was successful: specialization. Though he has a rolodex card full of regular customers that include truck-owners and mobile homes, he has also specialized in swimming pools in the more affluent suburban areas of Orlando.

"People have money there and there's a market for what we offer," he says.

Louser, a former flyer in the Marines and the Navy, says he gets tremendous satisfaction from success stories such as Ianuzzi's. Louser, who often remarks about his own patriotism, also believes in creating company loyalty. He strongly advocates profit sharing, for example.

A down-to-earth, informal man who works in his shirtsleeves, Louser now lives in Longwood, with his wife, Rae. He commutes around the country, flying the company's twin astroair, delivering tax seminars and motivation speeches.

WOW continues along a successful path but Louser has not rested on his laurels. He has started a company called Mules Punch, which leases high pressure equipment through 200 locations along the Eastern Seaboard.

Louser has also started Mules Punch Solar. This program is offered to homeowners or others whose heating bills are more than $125 a month. The Mules Punch design by Louser is guaranteed to save energy costs by using solar energy in the sun-rich south.

In the past 18 months, the company has expanded from two employees and one service truck to 40 employees and 430 solar units in central Florida alone. Sales have gone from $166,000 in the first year to $668,000 at the end of the last fiscal year.

Louser is clearly an enthusiastic advocate of solar power. Public acceptance, however, has been somewhat slower.

"It's inevitable though. With higher energy costs, we're going to have to go to solar," he says.

You might say it's the WOW of the future.

'There's a great commitment from people when they have to come up with their own money.'

wash." So, with the knowledge I gained in the car wash business, I designed and built a 'WOW' unit," he adds.

A what unit? WOW. Wash on Wheels. The name came when Louser's special trucks were being built at a friend's shop in Columbia, Pennsylvania. A teenaged "gopher," when told the company's name was "Wash on Wheels," reacted by saying, "WOW." Louser quickly copyrighted the name.

In the 16 years since, the unusual Wash On Wheels has evolved into a successful company that Louser expects will gross $1.2 million next year. "We sort of wrote the book on companies like this," he says.

The company has prospered despite the fact it offers no franchises. And it has succeeded despite the oil shortages of the 1970's and the slumping economy that followed on its heels.

How did George Louser do it?

"Work, work, work and I've believed in what I've been doing," he says, sitting in his suburban Orlando office where the wall plaques attest to his grandfather's career as a soldier in the Civil War.

Louser's concept, which started with more expensive vans, has been scaled down in size to the point where investors can purchase a basic 570-pound cleaning unit that can be towed by auto. The price: as low as $4,000.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Ianuzzi make their Wash On Wheels a family affair.

'You've got to be able to take some discouragement from time to time. You've got to understand that your first efforts don't always bring an immediate return.'

generally acts as a moving advertisement. Probably every WOW dealer at least once a day has had someone stop next to him at a stop sign and ask what types of cleaning he does.

Part of Louser's recent customer-seeking promotions was a before-and-after picture contest. One winner was a pre-Civil War house that had seven coats of paint removed, another fire damage restoration. Five winners received $100 each. Other contestants earned $10 for their picture. Such promotions are important, Louser says, because many WOW buyers are the result of word-of-mouth and the other operators gain much information from the interplay.

American firms also put short-term capital into construction materials, chemical products, textiles, watches and toys — bringing total U.S. investment in manufacturing to about $500 million at the end of 1982.

Hong Kong: U.S. Investors Cringe At Prospect Of China Takeover

By Ann Scott

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong, a capitalist utopia perched on China's southern doorstep, has an insecurity complex.

China vows that when Britain's 99-year lease on 90 percent of the colony's land expires in 1997, Hong Kong will return to Chinese rule.

American entrepreneurs — responsible for about half the foreign investment in the colony — cringe at the prospect.

They fear socialist China's takeover would end Hong Kong's low taxes and free trade and jeopardize its role as the world's third largest financial center and hub of Asian commerce.

Even worse, American multinationals fear economic chaos could force them to abandon Hong Kong operations and forego vast earnings potential.

Negotiations between China and Britain over Hong Kong have yielded no solution to the 1997 problem so far — leaving investors hanging on vague pledges by both sides to "maintain the stability and prosperity" of the bustling port city.

Investors doubt the economic turbulence will subside unless Britain and China can agree on Hong Kong's post-1997 political, economic and judicial systems.

Business confidence, measured by the downward spiral of prices in Hong Kong's stock and foreign exchange markets in recent months, has slumped. Businessmen are getting nervous.

American firms slashed their long-term stake in Hong Kong last year, withdrawing $71 million in equity, according to U.S. Commerce Department estimates.

"Anyone who's prudent would think twice before bringing in a lot of equity investment," said Raymond Chien, head of the business expansion committee of the American Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong.

Most of the estimated 400 American firms in Hong Kong still are making short-term investments for a quick profit.

The major share of American investment in manufacturing — $272 million in 1982 — is in electronics, according to Hong Kong Industry Department statistics.

California's Silicon Valley computer companies, forced off-shore by spiraling labor costs, are lured by Hong Kong's low wages, high productivity and unregulated economy.

American firms also put short-term capital into construction materials, chemical products, textiles, watches and toys — bringing total U.S. investment in manufacturing to about $500 million at the end of 1982.

A few bold American firms are staking big claims in the colony with long-term investments involving millions of dollars worth of fixed capital.

These companies are betting that 1997 will boost business by catapulting them into China's expanding market.

Esso also is increasing its stake in Hong Kong, with the construction of two coal-fired generators scheduled to begin operating in the late 1980s.

"A growing presence here will enhance opportunities of doing business with China," said Edward Anbert, manager of Esso Hong Kong.

But fears of a 1997 nightmare remain.

"If China lets Hong Kong go down the drain, it will have a tremendous impact in terms of a greatly reduced earnings stream in this part of the world," said Chien.

from state prison at that moment," he said.
So far the three Seminole men have behaved well, Lee said. "They seem to be pleased they aren't in jail. But I expect as more people come into the program there will be violations like there are in any program dealing with human beings."

Sheriff Polk fears the state will not fund the house arrest program adequately as it grows. "I think it's a good concept and I hope it succeeds," he said, but he doesn't feel its long-term prospects are good. "It'll do okay for awhile, then as more people come into the program and pennies get tight, the state won't come up with the money. You'll have officers with 30 or 40 men to check out there's no way they can be checked the way they're supposed to be."
If the program is adequately funded it would help alleviate overcrowding in state prisons, Polk said. And "it would be cheaper than building prisons and feeding inmates."
Lee says the law states that no officer can have a case load of more than 20 persons to check. "If the state doesn't fund the program properly, it's credibility would be destroyed," he said.

"I think in certain select cases it (house arrest) has merit," said Judge Davis. "It's a new concept in sentencing. Usually the person sentenced has not committed a violent crime."
"We're going to have to experiment to see it's final outcome. It's less expensive to the state (than sending a man to jail)."
"I've been working on this (house arrest) a long time," Judge Salfi said. "I was one of the ones who initiated the concept in 1976. It's an alternative the courts should have. In the past we had only probation or prison. We need an additional alternative when the circumstances call for it. It's an attempt to be creative. You can punish people without sending them to prison at a cost of $25,000 a year to the taxpayers."
"I think we'll all be using this (house arrest) in selective cases," said Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr.
"I think it will be effective as long as the monitors don't have too heavy a case load."
