CHAMPION SEMINOLES

When Seminole High School safety Vince Edwards (left) and tight end Frank Rowe went up for this pass in preparation for the Fighting Seminoles' District 4A-9 showdown against Daytona Beach Mainland, it was tough to tell who snagged the ball. On Friday night at Daytona Beach, however, it was no contest. Seminole used its usual excellent defense and a ground-control offense to bury the Buccaneers, 21-6, for the district and Five Star Conference championships. See Page 1B for a look at coach Jerry Posey's championship Seminoles, who earned a spot in the state football playoffs.

Inspection Stations Gone, But Troopers Can Nail You

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

The inspection stations are gone, but you could still get "parked" for those bald tires, burned-out brake lights or other faulty equipment if it renders your car unsafe.

The Florida Highway Patrol (FHP), which has always had the authority to pull a car off the road if it appeared to be unsafe, will be increasingly interested in spotting unsafe vehicles.

"We've informed our field people as time goes on to increase that kind of equipment checks," said Lt. Col. Roger Collar, deputy director of the FHP.

"The farther we get away from the time of the inspection stations, the greater the opportunity for vehicle neglect." Collar said it's too soon to see such an increase, and it traditionally has been left up to the troopers' discretion to make safety checks as they deem it necessary.

Ordinarily, he said, a trooper will spend two to four hours a week on such inspections.

Usually two troopers will get together, he explained, and set up a roadblock for an hour or so. Then they'll check all the cars that come along for such things as lights, brakes, windshield wipers, horn, steering and tires, he said.

"Of course, brakes can't be checked as they were at the inspection stations, where they could test if they're balanced in the way they grab," Collar said, "but the roadblock-type inspection would be the same insofar as men can do it at the side of the road."

Typically, he said, if a trooper finds something is wrong he'll issue a 48-hour correction notice. That's like a postcard that must be mailed back to the trooper by the person who does the repair.

But if the trooper thinks the defect presents an immediate hazard — such as no brakes — he can require that the car be parked and not driven. The driver also can be charged for operating an unsafe vehicle, he said.

Collar said that if the troopers are busy doing other things they're unlikely to set up such roadblocks.

"They may feel that moving violations and other hazards take priority," he said. "But any time a trooper sees a car with a hazardous defect he can remove it from the road. He may spot a defect in the course of his other work. He can at any time, Collar said, pull the car over for a safety check."

The FHP has jurisdiction on all public roads in the state, but primarily patrols rural areas outside municipalities and interstate highways, Collar said.

"Maintaining a safe car is so fundamental that everyone recognizes it," he said. "Everyone knows their safety and that of their family depends first on their driving and next on keeping their vehicle in good shape."

"Everyone needs to devote a certain amount of attention to their car's condition. But being human, we tend to procrastinate. So it's good to know there will be checks. And we need to be reminded of that," he added.

If you want to make sure you won't have a problem should you run into a trooper inspection, a number of area service stations are offering safety checks of the same type performed at the now defunct county inspection stations.

Reapportionment

Will Seminole Undergo Redistricting?

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Reapportionment — the division of the state into new legislative and congressional districts — will be the major problem confronting the Florida Legislature when its 1982 session convenes Jan. 18.

The decennial (every 10 years) task, required by the Florida Constitution the second year after each federal census, would seem an easy one. The legislators need only draw district boundaries as nearly equal in population as possible from which 120 members of the Florida House of Representatives, 40 members of the state senate and 19 members of Congress will be elected.

But the task is not simple. The shift in population in Florida with the influx of new residents during the 1970s means more districts must be created in the central and southern parts of the state, leaving fewer districts for Florida's panhandle and the Jacksonville area.

Depending on how district lines are drawn, some legislators and congressmen may find themselves having to compete with past friends and former allies for reelection.

And incumbent congressmen will be at the mercy of the legislators for their political lives.

Not only will legislators decide the location of district boundaries, they also will decide whether Florida will have single-member or multi-member legislative districts.

Advocate groups like Common Cause and the League of Women Voters will continue lobbying for single legislators to be elected from each district.

Currently, Seminole County has two state representatives — Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, and Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs. Brantley's district includes part of Seminole County, plus Lake County and part of Marion County. Hattaway's district includes part of Seminole and an Orange County precinct.

Hattaway is serving his fourth two-year term, while Brantley is in his second term.

The county also is represented by two state senators, both of whom live in Brevard County. The multi-member district from which Sen. John Vogt, D-Cocoa Beach, and Sen. Clark Maxwell Jr., R-Melbourne, run includes all of Brevard County, most of Seminole and Osceola and a small section of Orange. If a new single-member district were drawn for Brevard, Vogt and Maxwell would have to run against each other for the seat.

The rules, which the Legislature must follow in the redistricting process, are few. The districts must be as nearly equal in population as possible and the territory within a district must be contiguous (touching). That is, pieces of counties could not be combined into a district unless the land area actually touches.

Finally, critics will be watching the Legislature for clues to whether "gerrymandering" is taking place.

The term gerrymandering is generally defined as excessive manipulation of the shape of a legislative district to benefit a certain incumbent or party. The name originated in 1812 when the Massachusetts Legislature carved out of Essex County a district which historian John Fiske said had a "dragonlike contour." A newspaper editor, Benjamin Russell, promptly coined the term gerrymander for the district line manipulation, after Elbridge Gerry, then governor of the state.

The Florida Legislature, with its apportionment plan in 1972, was accused of gerrymandering. A congressional district, the Fifth, was carved out of south Seminole County, part of Orange and all or parts of six other counties to give State Sen. Bill Gunter, D-Orlando, then a member of the reapportionment committee, a district from which to run for Congress.

Gunter successfully ran for Congress and served one term there before running unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate. He was later elected state treasurer and insurance commissioner, a position he still holds. He was unsuccessful in a bid for the Senate again in 1980.

In 1812 Massachusetts' Gov. Elbridge Gerry manipulated portions of Essex County into a congressional district with this shape, to which an artist of the time later added the snake's head and the wings. Upon first seeing the district one politician remarked, "It looks like a salamander." A companion rejoined, "Let's call it a Gerrymander." The name stuck.

Other congressional districts in the state also were drawn to favor incumbents in 1972.

The record, compiled by the advocacy group Common Cause, shows that anyone running against a Florida legislator during the last decade had less than one chance in 10 of winning. And only one member of Congress from Florida has been unseated by a challenger in the last decade.

U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly, R-New Port Richey, after serving four terms representing the Fifth Congressional District, was ousted in 1980 by the Republicans of the district, who opted for Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, instead in the GOP primary. McCollum went on to win the general election. Kelly was defeated after he was tagged by the FBI in its "Abscam" investigation into corruption in government.

In 1972 the Legislature drew districts that took the shape of a barbell, an upside-down camel, a fish and a llama. These oddly drawn districts were designed to block competition and they did, according to Common Cause. Since that reapportionment, Common Cause says, 85 to 95 percent of all incumbent Florida legislators have been returned to office.

Will gerrymandering be a factor again in the 1982 redistricting?

Brantley, a member of the House Reapportionment Committee and a member of its subcommittee on congressional reapportionment, says "a lot of infighting" is going on and committee members are beginning to receive a "lot of mail" from incumbent congressmen.

The reapportionment committee has held 21 public hearings around the state, Brantley said. "Testimony at all of them has been about the same. Eighty-five percent of those testifying are in favor of single-member districts and anti-gerrymandering guidelines. Most want to make sure the districts are compact and the district boundaries are contiguous."

Of the four new congressional districts Florida has been assigned because of its increased population, Brantley predicted Central Florida will definitely get one. "Volusia County may be tied in with either Flagler or Brevard for one congressional seat," he said.

"It's likely Seminole, Lake and Sumter will be tied together for a congressional seat. Orange County is fighting very hard to have its own congressional district. Orange's population is a little shy of the 512,000 necessary for a congressional district. Maybe Orange can pick up a little piece of Osceola to form a district," Brantley added.

He said a big battle is brewing in Orange County, with Sen. Rep. Dick Batchelor, D-Orlando, and Toni Jennings, R-Winter Park, each looking at that

The failure of an electrical generator Friday meant the shuttle would have to cut its mission short and land at California's Edwards Air Force Base late Saturday afternoon.

A 24-Karat Week For Golden Age Games

The Lichtenbergers Will Bowl You Over

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

The Lichtenbergers enjoy doing things as a family. So when Charles C. Lichtenberger wanted to compete in the Golden Age Games, he asked his son to join him.

That wasn't breaking any rules because both Charles senior and Charles junior are "seniors" by Golden Age Games standards.

Charles C., who lives in Winter Park, is 83. Charles W., of Altamonte Springs, is 59. The games are open to anyone 55 and older.

It's the first time either father or son have entered the Golden Age Games, but already they're planning their return engagement.

This year they entered bowling, the softball throw and the 50-yard dash.

"Next year we'll go into more things," Charles W. said. "It was dad's idea. He read about the games last year, then he set his mind to it."

"Now he's elated with this whole thing." In practicing for the 50-yard dash, Charles W. said his father proved "his wind and legs are just as good as mine."

"But then, he's more active than I am," he said. "I walk a lot," explained Charles C., "15 or 16 miles a week."

"I'm just in and out of the car a lot," Charles W. said.

Both father and son are natives of Brooklyn and moved to central Florida about 18 months ago.

"We're very happy here. We enjoy ourselves," Charles C. said. "But it's a lot like Long Island—we lived near the beach. Except it wasn't so hot there. But I don't mind the heat."

Charles C. has been retired for 16 years from his job as supervisor of a fountain and ball-point pen factory. Charles W. recently retired as sales promotion manager for Canadian Club Whiskey. But now he works part time for American Express. "I just couldn't sit home," he said. "It got to me."

Both Charleses said their wives are also interested in the Golden Age Games. But Charles C. said his wife Ruth was slightly injured in a fall a few days ago and had to curtail her activities.

Charles W. said his wife Joan is too young to participate.

"She's not 55 yet," he said. "But she'd like to enter the dance competition. She said, 'If you can hold up for six more years we'll enter the jitterbug contest.'"

In the bowling competition Wednesday, Charles C. scored 515 for three games, while his son scored 596.

"I've never been really good at it," the elder Charles said. "That's why I still try."

He said he's only been bowling since 1913. He played softball a lot more. "I've got a good arm," he said.

Although Charles C. served in the Navy in World War I and Charles W. served in the Marines Corps in World War II, father and son claim they really have little in common—except that they're drinking buddies.

"We enjoy cocktails together," Charles W. said. "And going out to dinner."

"But if my wife were here, she'd say I'm more like my mother."

Charles C. said he has two other children besides Charles W. plus eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. But when the whole family got together for Charles and Ruth's 50th wedding anniversary, there were 87 family members present. Another family reunion saw 152 gather.

The Lichtenbergers — Charles C. Sr. and Charles W. Jr. were the first father-and-son team to enter the Golden Age Games. They're both bowlers. Guess who won?

The Golden Age Games are often viewed as something of a senior citizens olympics, a place where old folks can run and jump like kids, putting their minds and bodies through efforts that would make any athlete proud. And that, in large part, is just what the games are. Decathletes (above) sprint in the 100-yard dash while Barton Haigh (left) of Dunedin, Fla. demonstrates his broad jumping form. But Sanford's Peggy Sawyer, 60, demonstrates that the games are not reserved exclusively for the muscle-and-dirty-sweat-socks set. Knitting, too, can be a Golden Age Game.

...Carving Up The State With A Political Knife

seat for themselves. Both want Orange to compose most of the new district.

Currently, Orange is split into two congressional districts. Part of it is combined with all of Brevard for the Ninth District. The remainder is combined with most of Seminole and part of all of Sumter, Lake, Citrus, Hernando, Pasco and Pinellas into the Fifth.

U.S. Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Cocoa, is the incumbent congressman in the Ninth. A two-term congressman, "Nelson doesn't want to lose any part of his district," Brantley said.

A few Sanford precincts are included with several counties in the Fourth Congressional District, served by seven-term Democrat Bill Chappell of Ocala. Before the reapportionment of 1972, Chappell's district included all of Seminole County. And many people, especially in the Sanford area, say Chappell still has a warm place in his heart for Seminole, pointing to his recent assistance in keeping the construction of the planned State Road 46 railroad overpass on schedule for early next year.

Brantley said the talk in the halls of the state capitol in Tallahassee is that House Majority Leader Sam Bell of Daytona Beach would like to take a crack at Chappell's congressional seat but doesn't really want to run against Chappell. Bell also is chairman of the Criteria and Rule Committee, charged with the responsibility of establishing the rules on how district boundaries will be drawn, Brantley said.

"Chappell's district has to be cut some. The district's population is just over 512,000 — the number of residents to be included in each congressional district in Florida," Brantley said.

McCollum's district, similarly, must be split almost in two. McCollum's Fifth Congressional District, with 815,000 to one million residents, is the largest in the nation and the state in population, according to McCollum's Altamonte Springs office staff. It is also the largest in the state in land area. "Some of the Orange County people are trying to come up with ways to cut McCollum out," Brantley, a personal friend of McCollum's, said.

He said the Florida Senate, meanwhile, has passed the word to House members that it has no interest in drawing House district lines. "We've been told they plan to pass a bill setting their own district lines as Part I of reapportionment, and Part II, House Reapportionment, will be blank pages. The word we've received is that we may do whatever we want with Part II, but don't touch Part I," Brantley said.

How many state representatives will Seminole have after reapportionment, and will the county be kept intact in the districts?

Brantley said Seminole now has 179,000 residents. For a single-member House district, 81,167 residents are necessary. "We have too many people for just two House seats," he said. "It appears Seminole could have two complete House districts, with the balance of the county included with some other district for a third legislator."

He said 223,000 residents are necessary for a Florida Senate seat. With Seminole's population of 179,000, it will be joined with some other county for a Senate seat, Brantley said. He added that a lot concerning Seminole will depend on whether the districting process begins in Tallahassee and works south or begins in south Florida and works north.

Hattaway says he sees no reason why the districting process has to begin in either the northern or southern part of the state. "There's no reason why I can't begin in the middle — in central Florida — and work north and south from here," Hattaway said.

Noting that he has looked over the computer printouts of suggested districting plans in the state, Hattaway said he believes the Fifth District is "certainly going to be cut up." He said a new congressional district could be made up of Orange, Seminole and part of either Lake or Volusia.

As far as someone out to cut out McCollum, Hattaway said he is not part of any such movement. "Whoever runs for the Fifth District will have to run against McCollum if he stays in this area. But I've heard rumors that McCollum may move to the Dade City or Brooksville area where he came from," he said.

"There's a distinct possibility that Chappell may have to run against Sam Bell. Bell is a potential candidate. The word is that Chappell will move to Daytona Beach and will take Sam head on. It would be a tough race," Hattaway said.

Bell has been in the Legislature eight years. Prior to running for Congress successfully in 1968, Chappell was speaker of the Florida House.

"Chappell had a lot to do with keeping the federal money (nearly $4 million) allocated for the State Road 46 overpass," Hattaway said. "Even though Chappell has only a few precincts in Seminole, he has been very effective for the county."

Hattaway, chairman of the Seminole legislative delegation, said his efforts and those of the delegation will be directed toward keeping Seminole intact in congressional, senatorial and legislative districts.

According to the computer's guidelines, Hattaway said, Seminole will have two resident legislators and Orange will take a portion of Seminole for a third legislator.

He said he has prefled two bills for consideration in the upcoming session. One calls for single-member districts in the House, the other for single-member districts in the Senate.

"The people have to get the word to the senators if they believe in single-member districts. Lee Moffitt, House speaker-designate, has to be convinced that single-member districts is what the people want," he said.

Hattaway objects to any movement that would continue Seminole as a minority in a senatorial district with Brevard County. "If we take the 179,000 people in Seminole and add 50,000 from another county, we could have a senatorial district controlled by Seminole," Hattaway said. "It's not fair that Brevard, with 275,000, should have two resident senators while Seminole, with almost 180,000, has none. Seminole has much more in common with Orange. I've been talking with Sen. George Stewart, D-Orlando, about putting Seminole and Orange together."

"We ought to be back where we were in the early 1970s, when Orange and Seminole were linked together. Orange and Seminole have much more in common than Seminole and Brevard."

"That's nothing against either Vogt or Maxwell. Both have been responsive to the needs of Seminole County. But it breaks down to where the people should be able to recognize those who are working for them," Hattaway said.

In the Senate, both Maxwell and Vogt are on the Reapportionment Committee. Vogt is serving on the legislative apportionment subcommittee, while Maxwell is on the congressional apportionment subcommittee.

Maxwell said it would be a disservice to Seminole to fragment it, to cut a piece of this and that, to assure single-member districts. "I'll do everything possible in the congressional and legislative reapportionment to maintain the integrity of the county," he said. "My basic position is to maintain Seminole and other counties as a whole rather than cutting them into pieces. But that's easier said than done," he said.

"If an area could have two districts, I would just as soon see it have one district with two members representing the county," Maxwell said.

Of Senate districts, Maxwell said he prefers a combination of single-member and multi-member districts. "It would be better," he said, "for Seminole County to be the dominant population in a Senate district. Perhaps Seminole and Lake could be combined in one senatorial district."

Maxwell, who served two terms in the House before his current term in the Senate, said the most important thing is for the Legislature to come up with a "reasonable" districting plan. "If we don't, a plan will be written by the court," he said.

Of the certainty that McCollum's Fifth District will be split, Maxwell said, "I think Bill is a very fine congressman and I'll do my damndest to make sure he gets fair treatment."

"The real issue of reapportionment is not single or multi-member districts. The issue is whether the state will be gerrymandered. Single member districts can be gerrymandered as well as multi-member districts," Maxwell said.

Maxwell said that if Brevard were made a single-member senatorial district, he and Vogt might wind up vying for the same seat. But, he added, Melbourne, his home town, "has a higher population than Cocon Beach," Vogt's base — thus he would probably win.

Interferon May Be Key To Conquering Cancer

HOUSTON (UPI) — A cancer researcher trying to unravel the mysteries of the anti-viral drug interferon, which tests have shown to be an effective tumor shrinking agent, called the early results "remarkable and miraculous."

Scientists from three major cancer research centers — Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston and the Stanford University School of Medicine in Palo Alto, Calif. — agreed the drug may be the key to defeating cancer.

A House Divided

We may infer from President Reagan's head-knocking exercise recently with Secretary of State Alexander Haig and National Security Adviser Richard Allen that he is personally intervening to end the disarray in his administration's foreign policy apparatus. And none too soon.

The long-rumored Haig-Allen feud came to a head after Secretary Haig complained to the President about the "guerrilla campaign" by a certain White House aide to discredit him. But, even as David Gergen, presidential press spokesman, reported the private hour-long Haig-Allen meeting with President Reagan to heal their differences and "to stop internal criticism," he denied that Mr. Allen was the person Mr. Haig had complained about. Incredible.

Almost as incredible are other worrisome foreign-policy flaps that have been piling up one upon another, day after day:

Secretary Haig disclosed in astonishing testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "there are contingency plans in the NATO doctrine to fire a nuclear weapon for demonstrative purposes to demonstrate to the other side they are exceeding the limits of toleration in the conventional area...."

In other words, if the Soviets in a future war should use more tanks or artillery than we consider tolerable, we'll frighten them into reducing their offensive by firing a nuclear weapon across their bow. Of course, this revelation further excited Europeans who fear the United States and the Soviet Union will fight a nuclear war on their soil.

Then, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger flatly contradicted Secretary Haig's nuclear warning statement in remarks before the Senate Armed Services Committee. None of it was true, he said. But later the same day, the State and Defense Departments in a joint statement said both Haig and Weinberger were right; NATO had such a plan some years ago but not now.

The State Department a few days earlier startled world capitals by announcing a sudden tilt to an eight-point peace plan proposed two months ago by Saudi Arabia and rejected by Washington at the time. In the ensuing uproar, President Reagan has been at pains to delineate the good and bad parts of that plan and to reassert U.S. adherence to the Camp David peace process.

Still not content to let well enough alone in the aftermath of the President's AWACS victory, State Department Arabists, we learned, have pushed a plan for the United States to make available a communications satellite for Arab nations including Libya and South Yemen. When Secretary Weinberger later was asked about the military implications of this deal on Capitol Hill, he confessed that he had not heard of it before. Redfaced, the administration quickly withdrew the proposed satellite sale. Maybe later.

Almost forgotten in all of these recent foul-ups is the disturbing departure in mid-October of Maj. Gen. Robert L. Schweitzer, top military adviser to the National Security Council. Gen. Schweitzer publicly warned of Soviet nuclear superiority and an impending Soviet strike without proper White House clearance and was, accordingly, reassigned.

All of this is increasingly worrisome. We're glad, therefore, the President is intervening personally to bring about some order and coherence. But we doubt that jaw-boning with Alexander Haig and Richard Allen is going to straighten things out. Some basic changes seem to be required. Too much is wrong; too much has happened; too much is at stake for the President to delay some tough decisions out of his well-known loyalty for subordinates.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Would you please stop acting like George Steinbrenner?"

This week's cool snap caught many folks combing closets in search of warmer clothing and blankets.

But the oldtimers around are the first to predict that it won't really be cold until after the first week in December.

Just a hint of fall accompanying Indian Summer, they say.

The phone rang one night this week and the caller was a northern friend—checking on the weather before leaving New York. I advised her to bring some warm clothing along with her short shorts and bikini bathing suit.

I also explained that we have a rather full social calendar for the season. "Bring something fussy to wear after five," I advised, "and a coat and tie for Tom (her husband)."

"But we are coming down there to get away from that drag," she insisted.

For what it's worth, people in our community are about as well dressed as in any metropolitan area. It's the same old story. There are those who have self respect which shows in their attire and personal appearance. Then, there are those who simply don't give a rip about themselves or anyone else.

During the years, it has been my experience to confront some pretty gross characters on the early morning scene. Some look like they have rolled out of the sack into one.

Just this week, a colleague said he likes to see the "female form expressed" in something fitted. He mentioned he thought he would like to see a woman in a black body stocking and expressed delight at the mini skirt.

"Really, I like dresses," he said, "just below the knee."

A middle-aged man says he favors dresses. "The low cut kind," he laughed, making an hour glass gesture. "I'm a leg man," he admitted.

An older man thinks "shorts are too short—show too much—slacks are too long—something in between," he chuckled.

What turns women on? One woman says she "goes wild over a man in a silk shirt, open low at the neck with a bit of hair and gold jewelry playing peek-a-boo." A conservative woman says three-piece suits and good looking ties turn her on.

Another woman said she likes shined shoes, and good cologne.

The final woman summed it all up. "Just a man, Sweetie, a loving man."

RUSTY BROWN

Blessed Are The Writers

Somewhere in the middle of the marriage ceremony — it happens.

I think it's near the part where the woman is promising to care for him in sickness and health. That's when the groom suddenly develops the affliction most commonly diagnosed as writers' cramp. It comes on without warning and attacks only the male of the species. By the time the couple are proclaimed man and wife, she has also been proclaimed Chief Pen Pal.

From that moment on, the wife has to do all the correspondence by mail. This involves letters to his mother and sisters, his best friends from college and old sailing buddies, former girlfriends and even, on occasion, former wives.

In addition, she is designated to pick out, write a note on and address the birthday card to his brother. She sends the Father's Day card to his father.

And those friendly, newsy, personal notes on Christmas cards? You know who pens them, of course.

Sometimes I find myself writing to people I've never even seen. I have to ask my husband: "What did you tell me he does? How many children do they have? How long ago did they move?"

With many men, this palsy extends to writing checks, filling out deposit slips and change-of-address cards — even checking the YES box to renew a magazine subscription.

In the last few months, however, I've been amazed to receive four — yes, four — letters from men.

One of these prized communications came from a longtime business associate of my husband's. He and his wife are both friends, actually, but "on the road" somewhere and alone in a motel room one night, he took out a legal pad and scribbled three pages of personal news, closing the letter with "lots of good feelings, affection and warmth to you both."

Another letter from a husband was enclosed with his wife's. She commented: "You better frame this. I have never known Paul to write a letter before."

The biggest surprises were two "bread-and-butter" notes from husbands after the couples had come to dinner parties at our house.

One began: "Many thanks for the most enchanted evening at your home last night." "Enchanted" is really overrating it, but I loved the fact that he wrote. And, notice how promptly — the very next day!

The second thank-you was equally profuse. The writer said the meal was prepared by a "gourmet" — which is far more than any chicken casserole deserves — and he also called the dessert "acrumptious" and the conversation "unusually stimulating."

I don't know what precipitated these rare correspondences from men, but I'm holding my breath that it's the beginning of a trend. Perhaps now that husbands of working wives — God love 'em — are helping out in the kitchen and with the laundry, they have decided to share the letter writing, too.

Foreign Aid Projects Feel Reagan Knife

WASHINGTON — For what comfort it may give worried Medicaid and Social Security recipients, domestic programs aren't the only target of the Reagan administration's budget cutters. U.S. contributions to several United Nations agencies are being cut back drastically or eliminated outright.

Unlike threatened domestic programs, foreign aid projects have no influential constituency to bring pressure on Congress. Their demise will go largely unnoticed and unwept — except in the countries that benefited from them.

Critics of the administration's cutback in support for U.N. programs suspect that some of the cuts are politically motivated. They cite the following examples:

The South Africa Trust Fund. This program gives legal aid and humanitarian relief to opponents of South Africa's apartheid policy. The fund was always regarded with some suspicion at the State Department, where it was seen as encouraging "subversive" activities. One of the fund's main activities is to provide legal counsel to persons accused of political crimes by the South African regime.

Despite these perennial misgivings, the United States contributed up to $400,000 a year to the trust fund. President Carter had asked for $400,000 in fiscal 1982. The Reagan budget will provide nothing.

Although the sum involved is insignificant in a multibillion-dollar budget, the U.S. contribution was viewed by its supporters as

JEFFREY HART

The AWACS Revolution

President Reagan accomplished a great deal with his AWACS victory in the Senate.

First of all, he recovered the political momentum that seemed to have been lost as he returned from California at the end of the summer and occupied himself with politically meaningless chores like the North-South conference in Cancun, Mexico. Reagan could gain nothing politically at Cancun; all he could do was avoid a disastrous commitment, which he succeeded in doing.

But now Reagan has demonstrated once again his effectiveness at dealing with Congress, and the efficiency of the whole White House congressional liaison operation. On the next flight, that will count in his favor.

The real AWACS issue was never the threat the plane posed to the military security of Israel. If another Arab-Israeli war broke out, the Saudi AWACS would be a sitting duck. It is a slow, sub-sonic plane without much maneuverability. It could be destroyed either on the ground or in the air within minutes.

The issue was deeply political. Smarting from defeats at the hands of Reagan on the tax and budget cuts, the Democratic leadership had been casting about for some issue over which to hand him a setback.

AWACS seemed perfect, since the Democrats could combine a partisan appeal with the powerful reinforcement provided by the pro-Israeli lobby in Washington.

It was a plausible battle-plan. At least a half-dozen pro-Israeli American groups lobbied tirelessly to defeat the sale.

I repeat, the issue was never really the military security of Israel, but the American posture in the Middle East itself.

What the deal on arms with Saudi Arabia means — and it goes far beyond AWACS — is a new role for the Saudis in the political equation. If they are to tilt further toward the West, they need serious reassurance of American support.

Saudi Arabia will never be a military power. Hardly anyone lives there. That nation is a legless cow that pours out oil instead of milk. Its highest priority is protection.

And Reagan's plan is moving ahead. I notice that within hours after the Senate AWACS vote, the Saudis in an unprecedented move had asked other Arab states to stop attacking Egypt over its peace agreement with Israel.

But what the Israelis dislike about this new policy is the recognition that, somewhere down the line, Saudi cooperation is going to mean some movement on the Palestinian issue. They know that Reagan's projected "strategic consensus" in the area will not come cheaply as far as they are concerned.

I never cease to find hilarious the media commentary that asserts that Reagan lacks a "coherent strategy" in the Middle East.

Menachem Begin would not agree. He sees the policy very clearly, and he does not like what he sees.

And so, therefore, the all-out effort Begin made to block AWACS. It involved the personal lobbying of senators visiting Jerusalem, and it involved the most intense kind of lobbying in Washington.

If Begin had been able to defeat AWACS, flex his political muscle, he might have been able to turn the whole policy around — and discipline Reagan for the rest of his first term.

That effort crashed when the Senate voted. And the Israeli cabinet immediately went into emergency night session — but not over any military threat from AWACS. It certainly met to discuss the new "strategic consensus" — that is, the changed configuration in the Middle East.

Everyone knows why the Israelis experience a high degree of anxiety, but in this case they are also certainly overwrought.

Throughout his political career, Ronald Reagan has supported the state of Israel and has also regarded it as a prime strategic asset. When he now says that he is committed to its survival, he means it.

JULIAN BOND

The Era Of Racial Violence

Racially motivated random violence. That's a mouthful you'll have trouble saying five times fast. By the time you have done so, another black person may have become its victim.

Such violence occurs more often than your worst nightmares might suggest. Of course, even one incident is too many.

"Racially Motivated Random Violence" is also the name of a privately published monthly newsletter that lists instances in which a white person (usually a policeman) made an inexplicable and unprovoked assault upon a black person (usually a young man).

"The perpetrators of violence against blacks are, in more than half the cases reported, precisely those whom we pay to protect us against it," says the newsletter. For example, the publication charges that policemen in New Orleans have shot at least 10 blacks and killed eight of them during the past 10 months.

Other reports culled from the local and national press reveal an increasing number of assaults upon blacks by law-enforcement officials and private citizens. These attacks range from a drunken off-duty policeman's firing into a sidewalk crowd to a white woman's hitting two black women with her car.

The monthly reports from the Southern Poverty Law Center's Klanwatch publication detail the increasingly public activities of a resurgent Ku Klux Klan, unashamed in 1981 to publicly pronounce racist diatribes and urge whites to arm themselves for an impending war between the races.

In Washington, the Reagan administration has already announced plans to weaken or erase many of the civil-rights protections erected over the past three decades.

Through politically motivated decisions by the attorney general, revisions of anti-discrimination and affirmative-action regulations by various federal agencies and an outright refusal in one case to obey a Supreme Court decision, the Reagan administration has made it clear that it plans to give little — if any — attention to school desegregation, enforcement of the 1965 Voting Rights Act and integration of the nation's workforce.

The new racist ethic is pervasive in American foreign policy as well.

The secretary of state is a man who during his service in the Nixon administration reportedly pounded with his palms on the table as if it were a tom-tom when African affairs were discussed.

The U.S. ambassador to the United Nations has received military officials of South Africa in clear violation of policy.

And the Commerce Department is trying to relax rules against U.S. exports to South Africa's military and police forces.

The old racism was never bearable. But the new variety is even less so.

Whatever its origins, the current renaissance of racism constitutes a clear threat to all minority Americans.

OPINION

Evening Herald, Sanford, FL. Sunday, Nov. 15, 1981—5A

Should Public Employees Be Allowed To Strike?

By DAVID Y. DENHOLM
Special to the Herald

The abortive strike by PATCO has focused renewed attention on the question of the illegality of strikes by public employees. The day after the strike began, Rep. John Conyers (D-MI) introduced a bill, H.R. 4375, which would legalize strikes by federal workers and retroactively sanction the PATCO strike.

Public sector union officials like Kenneth Blaylock, president of the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), the largest union of federal workers, are engaged in a battle for the hearts and minds of their members and the American public. To achieve their ends they portray President Reagan as "stiff-necked," laws against public sector strikes as "archaic" and PATCO's action as "heroic."

Public sector strikes are illegal, not just because there is a law on the books that says "Thou shalt not strike," but because there is a long tradition in common law that imposes upon the holder of a natural legal or economic monopoly the obligation to provide the service over which he or she enjoys the monopoly. A strike which made impossible the delivery of the service would violate this common law obligation.

A number of union officials are contemptuous of laws prohibiting public sector strikes. Arnold Zack, in his book, "Public Workers and Public Unions," points out that "the power to strike is of far greater relevance than the right to strike." Robert Poll, the president of PATCO, was even more blunt when he declared, "The only illegal strike is an unsuccessful one." Very recently, an official of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AF-SCME), admitted that "all our strikes are illegal, but generally... workers are granted amnesty as part of a strike settlement."

Public sector strikes have several dimensions, only one of which is usually visible to the general public. Whether it is a strike by air traffic controllers, teachers, the police or sanitation workers, the public usually knows immediately that a public service is not being delivered.

The real harm of public sector strikes and the true safety of the air traffic control system, even before the strike began.

Beyond this, a union leadership intent on striking must develop within its own cadre a sense of being exploited. This forces union officials to be extremely hyperbolic when it comes to communicating with the membership. In such a situation, such as the PATCO debacle, a strike becomes much more an inevitability than a last resort. The union leadership is actually forced by its own rhetoric to engage in an action that is unreasonable and self-defeating.

Elected public officials, when faced with a strike or a strike threat, must decide whether they wish to maintain control over the size, cost and quality of government or relinquish that control to the extortionate demands of a special interest group — in this case, a public sector union.

Recently, it has been fashionable to quote the taciturn Calvin Coolidge as the authority on public sector strikes. During the 1919 Boston police strike, Mr. Coolidge declared, "there is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, anytime."

This might lead us to imagine that such a philosophy was limited to Republican presidents, but no less a liberal Democrat than Franklin D. Roosevelt made the same point when he wrote: "A strike of public employees manifests nothing less than an intention on their part to obstruct the operations of government until their demands are satisfied. Such action looking toward the paralysis of government by those who have sworn to support it is unthinkable and intolerable."

justification for their prohibition, however, is more subtle and far more important than the temporary deprivation of public service.

A strike by a public sector union is a political, not an economic, action. Its purpose is to mobilize pressure against the elected representatives of the people to make it politically more advantageous for them to agree to union demands rather than suffer the political disadvantage of public discontent arising from the lack of service.

Union officials recognize that in order to succeed, they must create a climate of public opinion in which government is discredited. This frequently leads to charges by unions of waste and mismanagement in government. In the PATCO affair, for instance, PATCO went to great lengths to question

'I recruited them at a local video-game arcade...They never have less than a perfect score.'

Merit Pay Hikes: Who Gets Them?

The possibility of the city of Sanford's eight department heads and City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles getting merit pay raises in the 1981-82 fiscal year is "remote at best."

At least that's how Mayor Lee P. Moore sees the issue after this past Monday night's City Commission meeting when the board emphatically turned down a suggestion by Commissioner David Farr. Farr had said a merit increase should be based on a formula of one-quarter of one percent annually times the number of years each department head had held the supervisory position.

Moore brought up the idea of a merit increase several weeks ago, noting that the various department heads had not been considered for merit raises since 1979. He said at the time that someone ought to review the department heads' efforts.

All city employees, including Knowles and the city's department heads, received a five percent cost-of-living pay raise Oct. 1. All employees are scheduled for a four percent cost-of-living increase April 1.

And all employees received longevity pay raises annually after eight years of continuous service. The longevity pay raises are calculated on a formula of $1 per month times the number of years of continuous service.

Additionally, city employees, with the exception of department heads and the city manager, are considered by their superiors for merit pay raises once a year.

The pay plan for Altamonte Springs, the city closest to Sanford's size in the county, is different.

According to Altamonte Springs City Manager Jeff Etchberger, all employees, including department heads, will receive an eight percent cost-of-living raise Jan. 1. All employees, including department heads, receive a 2½ percent longevity increase on the anniversary of their employment, and all employees are considered annually for merit increases.

Parties & Politics

Donna Estes

Sanford's population, according to the 1980 census, was 23,176, compared with Altamonte's 22,028. For the current fiscal year, Sanford's budget totals $8.2 million, including $2.2 million for utility operation. Altamonte's budget is about $16 million, with about $9 million of that for the water and sewer utility operation.

The two city governments are similar in more ways than they are dissimilar. Both have city-manager forms of government. Both are governed by a five-member commission, with the mayor-commissioner conducting meetings.

Knowles, with 28½ years as Sanford's manager, receives an annual salary of $44,625, while Etchberger, Altamonte's first city manager, hired a year ago when the city's charter was changed, is paid $43,817 annually.

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler, 30 years with the city and 14 years as chief, receives $30,197.28 annually, while Altamonte Springs Police Chief Barry Cook, eight years with the department and one year as chief, receives $23,698.98.

Sanford's Fire Chief William C. Galley, 29 years with the city and one year as chief, receives $24,636.68, while Altamonte Fire Chief Tom Siegfried, 11 years with the department and nine years as chief, receives $26,516.

Sanford Public Works Director Bob Kelly, with the city 26 years, 13½ years as department head, receives $26,394.28. Altamonte Springs Public Works Director Don Newnham also serves as utility director. He has been with the city more than four years and his annual salary is $29,632.

Sanford's City Clerk and Finance Director Henry Tamn, with the city 12 years, receives $30,487.70 annually. Altamonte Springs City Clerk Bobbi Floyd, with the city about eight months and city clerk for one month, receives $15,700, while Finance Director Brenda Donnen, with the city for a year, receives $24,095.

Sanford's Director of Parks and Recreation Jim Jernigan, with the city for 20 years, receives $27,633.23, while Altamonte's Director of Parks and Recreation Bill James, eight years with the city and five years as director, gets $22,157.

Sanford's City Engineer and Utility Director Mack LaZenby, with the city 10 years, receives $38,356.25, while Altamonte's City Engineer Scott Gilbertson (engineering is a division rather than a department) has been with the city two years and receives $24,169.

Sanford's Personnel Director and Equal Employment Opportunity Officer Francie Wynalda (not a department head) has been with the city four years and receives $17,041.50, while Altamonte's Personnel Director Sam Prazze (who is a department head) and has been with the city six years, one year as department head, receives $18,741.

Altamonte's director of Community Development Jon Martin has been with Altamonte one month and receives $23,500. His job includes building, zoning and planning. The similar non-department head with the city of Sanford is Gary Winn, building and zoning official, has been with the city 11 years, one year in his current position, is paid $20,387.85.

Sanford's assistant to the city manager, Steven Harriett, whose job responsibilities include those of purchasing agent, has been with the city for six years, two as assistant. He receives $21,974.40 annually.

Altamonte's purchasing agent, Fred Hepper, has been with the city for eight years and receives $18,408 annually.

Never Mind The Memories, Look Ahead

Someone complained, "Your memory is going, Lou."

"Wrong," I replied. "My memory never really existed. When I was young, I discovered that details or sets of facts don't need to be remembered. They can be looked up in books and other resources."

"My opinion is that if data are not recorded somewhere, they're probably not worth remembering in the first place."

Michel Montaigne, the 16th century French essayist, knew this well. In this essay on memory, he contended that storing up facts was a waste of brain power.

Montaigne said that bare facts, divorced from ideas and interrelationships, hang in the middle distance like puffs of smoke. Where, for example, can conversations or ideas go after someone recites a baseball statistic?

What started these reflections was a paragraph in an article on aging. The suggestion was made that we should not forget our past.

"We must look backward," wrote the author, "and cherish the sweet memories of yesterday, selecting those which still have significance." Luckily, this kind of nonsense is no longer featured in advice to us elders. Many of us learn quickly after we retire that nobody cares about our past.

After we've identified our former occupation, the questions are "What are you doing now?" and "What plans do you have?" That is as it should be. Your answers to these questions can be revealing.

For example, suppose you reply, "Well, I've just retired and mean to look around a bit." That tells us three things about you:

First, you've left your wife out of the retirement decision entirely. Second, you're floundering, stalling in the hope that no definite decision will be demanded of you.

Third, except for a discussion with your banker or broker, you haven't prepared at all for life in retirement. Yes, there are pre-retirement courses that may guide you to useful and pleasant activity during retirement. In fact, there's a whole smorgasbord of projects through which a retiree may find satisfaction.

You'll have two avenues of choice in deciding upon a continuing project for retirement.

You can look back at your past and continue to be useful because of the special experience you have to offer. Or you can look for new fields to conquer, find new challenges for your agile mind and strike out in new directions.

There are cogent arguments for either decision. If you're adventurous, the beginning of your retirement will trigger a change of activity — something new and exciting.

'Quislings' Threaten U.S.

The editorial of Nov. 3 — "Sixth Column Threatens U.S. — was great and was long overdue.

However, there is a column of "Quislings" that is a far greater threat to the survival of this Constitutional Republic than anything that former CIA agents, Kadhafi, Castro or the Weather Underground can throw at us.

This organization fulfills the saying of that great Roman, Cicero — "A nation can survive its fools, and even the ambitious, but it can not survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable for he carries his banner openly. But the traitor moves within the gates freely, his sly-whispers rustle through the alleys, heard in the very halls of government itself. For the traitor appears no traitor, speaking in accents familiar to his victims, and wears their faces and their garments, and he appeals to the baseness that lies deep in the hearts of all men."

Of such, in my opinion, is that organization known as The Members of Congress for Peace Through Law. They work unceasingly to put this country into One-World Government.

They subscribe and adhere to the tenets of the Declaration of Inter-Dependence.

This Declaration says, in effect, that our natural resources belong to the world, not to us. That we should have no army, no navy and no air force; these to be gradually eliminated and our weapons systems put under international supervision. That our processes of production and our money system be put under regulation by international authority.

Members of this organization hold the chairmanships of most of the standing committees in the House of Representatives, and some in the Senate. Their membership crosses party lines, some Republicans some Democrats.

If this Constitutional Republic is to survive, these people MUST BE removed from their seats of power. Nov. 4, 1982 is the time to do this. It is possibly our last chance to give this Republic a chance to survive. Read their voting record.

Evansdale Paving Issue Resurfaces

I submit this letter in response to Mr. Flaherty's letter which was published on Sunday, October 4, 1981.

I can understand that Mr. Flaherty is upset because he bought a lot on Evansdale Road, and he was under the impression that the road would be paved. My son, Glenn, lives in our family's house next door to Mr. Flaherty's lot, and Glenn told me that Mr. Flaherty is a real gentleman. However, I do believe that there is more to the "paving issue" than Mr. Flaherty realizes.

Part of the problem revolves around the issue of who is going to pay and how much, and who benefits most by the paving and who benefits least. Also, should the city be making payments for a road that will only benefit a very limited group of people without a comprehensive road program for the whole city? These and other issues have been discussed and debated for at least three (3) years.

It is my understanding that Mr. Gilmore took a poll of people who would be affected by the paving, and found that 21 people were against and 22 people were for. Because I was never consulted, I assume that my vote was not counted.

In any event, said poll indicates that those directly concerned are divided as to whether or not Evansdale Road should be paved.

I, therefore, have considerable respect for Mr. McDonald, Mr. Olivera, and Mr. Fox for voting, as they must have felt for the interests of the whole city.

In addition, as a lawyer, Mr. Manney's legal opinions seem logical and correct.

It appears to me that much of the difficulty lies in the lack of a comprehensive road program which would evaluate all of the roads in town and expend city funds where they would do the most good for the most people.

I also feel that if the land owners affected by the paving of Evansdale Road really want to pave the road, they would consult with one another on a friendly basis to determine what each person might be willing to do. It is possible that there may be enough people who would be willing to contribute to the paving and, thus, something could be worked out.

Each person seems to see the problem as being a very simple matter, but each person looks at the problem from his own, individual point of view. Of course, the City Council should take everyone's point of view into consideration, including the other citizens of Lake Mary, who will never use the road but would be required to help pay for it.

An Alternative To X-Mas Seals

Very soon many Central Florida residents will be receiving those pretty little Christmas Seals sent out by the American Lung Association. It is predicted that our generous American families will pour back almost 60 million dollars to the ALA and its 161 affiliate organizations.

"Your Christmas Seal contribution," says the American Lung Association, "will help us help more Americans to give up cigarettes."

What the ALA does not tell us is that less than two percent of our donations will be spent on research needed to help answer the perplexing questions concerning lung diseases. In 1979-1980, the ALA's expenses totaled more than $50 million. It spent more money on its telephone and telegraph bills ($882,100) than for its research grants ($813,943). Shouldn't we take a moment to consider an alternative?

The Damon-Runyon-Walter Winchell Cancer Fund, 33 West 64th Street, New York, N.Y. 10015, devotes the deductible contributions it receives exclusively to the training of scientists at the beginning of their careers in the finest research labs in the United States.

"The encouragement of the best minds to become committed to solving the cancer problem is the cornerstone on which future success will rest," according to the fund's annual report. How do we want our money spent? It's certainly food for thought.

Hotel Blaze That Killed 3 Might Be Arsonist's Work

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A hotel blaze that killed three people Friday and forced others to leap from third-floor windows could have been the work of an arsonist, officials say.

"The thing just started too fast and it looks so suspicious," said Fire Chief Branford Dorris. Investigators are searching for the cause of the fire.

Retirement Home Probed

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — State officials are investigating a Fort Lauderdale retirement home where outraged police officers said conditions are so "deplorable" that residents are "living like caged animals."

The investigation began Thursday when Fort Lauderdale police found an elderly man clad only in underwear and carrying a sheet wandering along a busy intersection early in the morning.

Judge Cleared In Theft

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — The Duval County grand jury exonerated Circuit Judge Henry F. Martin Jr. on Friday of shoplifting a $25 bottle of perfume from a department store.

Martin declined comment but Lacy Mahon, his lawyer, said, "I know the judge is extremely relieved over the action of the grand jury." Asked whether the fact he was accused of shoplifting at all might taint his judicial reputation, Mahon said, "I don't think so. It's past and that's the end of that."

'Inexcusable' Accounting

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Auditor General Ernest Ellison says he can't vouch for the accuracy of Department of Transportation records on two large trust fund accounts because of "inexcusable" lapses in accounting.

Ellison said Friday he found several "material differences" between the year-end figures the DOT reported for various accounts and the figures for the same accounts as kept by the state comptroller's office. In one instance, the DOT and comptroller's figures differed by $173 million.

Factory Production Down, But Mortgage Rates Drop

United Press International
Factory production was down in October and that means more Americans could find themselves on the unemployment lines.

There was a bit of good news for prospective homebuyers however, with rates for federally insured mortgage loans falling to 15.5 percent Friday.

Allen: I Did Nothing Wrong

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National security adviser Richard Allen says he did nothing wrong and can only be faulted for forgetfulness by not immediately reporting $1,000 he received from a Japanese reporter for an interview with Nancy Reagan.

The national security adviser said at a White House briefing that he "received" the money, rejecting the terminology that he "accepted" the $1,000 "Honorarium" on the day after President Reagan's inauguration.

Rickover Forced To Retire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adm. Hyman Rickover has little choice but to obey an order from his commander-in-chief that he retire next year, but left undetermined today is whether he will accept the post of White House adviser on nuclear science.

A Policeman Did WHAT?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A rookie policeman showed his gun and robbed a man of two tickets to a Rolling Stones concert, authorities say.

Scott Vogel, 23, assigned to a Neighborhood Stabilization Unit in Manhattan, approached the fan, Louis Izz, 23, outside the Thursday night concert in Madison Square Garden, police said. "He identified himself as a police officer, showed him a gun and ripped off two Rolling Stones tickets," a police spokesman said Friday.

Man, Hit By Truck, Critically Injured

A man struck by a pickup truck late Friday on a highway ramp at Interstate 4 and State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, still unidentified today, was listed in critical condition in the intensive-care unit at Florida Hospital-Orlando.

A hospital spokesman said the man was first taken to Florida Hospital-Altamonte, but transferred during the night to the Orlando hospital.

The man apparently was hitchhiking and was not carrying identification, according to the Florida Highway Patrol. Trooper G.H. Schluter of the DeLand FHP office is in charge of the investigation.

TOOLS TAKEN

A large tool box with assorted tools, a hydraulic jack and an ice cooler were swiped from the porch at 536 Valencia Court, Sanford, sometime between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, police report.

Berman Bridges, owner of the items, told police they were worth about $600.

RESTAURANT BREAK-IN

The Double O Restaurant, 107 W. 1st Street, Sanford, was broken into sometime between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday.

Owner Nick Vanikollis of Sanford said entry was gained through the back door and the thieves took only $150 in currency from the cash register.

Mock Assault Tests U.S. Paratroops' Readiness

CAIRO WEST AIRBASE, Egypt (UPI) — More than 800 American paratroops mounted a mock airborne assault on an Egyptian desert location today in a joint exercise aimed at demonstrating U.S. ability to quickly move combat forces into the Middle East.

In less than six minutes, 24 giant military transport planes coming from the United States and Europe dropped 856 paratroops from the Rapid Deployment Force and 10

Egyptian air force men as well as 180 tons of equipment into a five-square-mile zone.

When asked what lesson the exercise would give the Soviet Union or any other potentially hostile power in the Middle East, Lt. Gen. Robert C. Kingston, Commander of the Rapid Deployment Force, said "The main lesson is that, first of all, we have to be invited in."

"Secondly, we will work in coordination and cooperation with the host countries, and thirdly we have the capability to protect sizeable force in a limited time."

Kingston watching the air-drop along with senior Egyptian military commanders said today's operation had been in the planning for a long time. But he said in a real emergency, "I could have this size force in less than four days on the ground here."

The zone is located in the Western Desert area of Djabal Hamza, five miles from the Cairo West airbase.

The exercise is the largest part of war games code-named Bright Star 82 which the United States is having with Egypt, Sudan, Somalia and Oman between now and mid-December.

The airborne assault began at 9 a.m. (2 a.m. EST) when 12 C-141 transport aircraft, flying in formations of three each, dropped 57 loads of equipment.

"This play was a joy to be involved in. Everyone, from the director, me, to the xylophone player, Patty Grey, performed with joy. There was harmony beyond just musical. What talent! David Hamilton's contribution shouldn't go unrecognized. The cast will agree with me when I say, 'he's the real 'lead' in this play. Even if the cost of production, ($700.00) will not be made up, it's worth it to the Thespians if only one person enjoyed it," said director Jane F. Epps.

The first play of the year, "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown", was a big success. "Homestaying" has passed and Lake Mary High School has its very first court.

On Nov. 5, the Lake Mary Rams battled the Lyman Greyhounds at the LMHS football stadium. Although the Rams were defeated by a score of 23-12, the halftime activities went unsurpassed.

As usual, the band, drill team, and flag corps performed to perfection. After their appearances, came the climactic event of the evening. They rolled out the red carpet, and the homestaying court filed onto the field.

It's Great To Be A Seminole! 'Quick Vic,' Davis, Litton Lift Sanford To District Title

Herald Photos by Tom Vincent

Sanford's Victor "Quick Vic" Williams turned on the burners for this 54-yard touchdown jaunt for Seminole's first touchdown Friday night. Sanford whipped Mainland, 21-6, to capture the district and conference titles and a berth in the state playoff.

Seminole's speedy slotback Johnnie "Bull" Littles breaks loose for some of his 85 yards on the ground in the Tribe's big victory over Mainland

Friday night. Seminole improved its record to 7-2 and closes the season Friday against Spruce Creek.

Herald Sports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH — With ever rising inflation raising havoc with everyone, maybe it was a case of Jerry Posey's Fighting Seminoles deciding the buck had to stop somewhere.

The Bucs did at approximately 10:31 p.m. Friday night in spooky Daytona Beach Memorial Stadium.

More precisely, Posey's Fighting Tribe laid claim to the District 4A-9 and Five Star Conference football titles by cashing in on a big play offense and a tenacious defense, taking Mainland's young Buccaneers to the bank en route to a 21-6 win that wrapped up the twin titles.

"It feels great, absolutely great," smiled a chilled Posey after the win.

"We knew going in that they played good defense and we play good defense. It was going to be a question of our offensive consistency that would decide the game."

A quick start and an impressive finish were all the consistency Posey's offense needed. In fact, the Seminoles could have won 7-6 thanks to its defensive prowess. But for the second straight week coming down the home stretch of the schedule, Posey asked for four good quarters from his Seminoles, and he got it.

After allowing Mainland a pair of first downs on the Buccaneers' first possession of the night, Seminole struck the first time the Tribe offense laid its hands on the pigskin.

Pleasantly-poised senior quarterback Jeff Litton sent fullback Lenny Sutton off left tackle a couple of times for eight yards before pitching wide to speedy "Quick Vic" Williams who turned the corner, raced down the right sideline then cut back against the grain to cap a 53-yard scoring jaunt with 8:33 remaining in the opening period. Junior place kicker Paul Griffin added a mile high PAT kick to give the Seminoles an early 7-0 advantage.

Mainland spent the remainder of the first period trying to get its ground game untracked with little success. The Buccaneer's sophomore quarterback Eric Childs then went to the air and found even less good fortune thanks to an alert Antonio Davis.

The senior linebacker played peek-a-boo as Childs attempted to connect with his tight end Eric Somerlad in the right flat. Davis helped himself to the airborne pigskin then skipped 34-yards down the sideline to push Seminole in front 13-0 with just 14 seconds remaining in the first period. Griffin's second PAT of the night closed out Seminole's first half scoring, 14-0.

"Antonio's play was just beautiful," applauded Posey. Davis gave his coach more to cheer about in the second half with his second interception of the night, a late third-quarter theft.

The Buccaneers came right back with a beautiful play of their own on the ensuing kickoff.

Junior Earl Griggs returned Seminole's kickoff 65 yards and would have scored had it not been for linebacker Byron Washington's speed. The Tribe defensive captain caught Griggs from behind with pure hustle to save a Mainland score — but only momentarily.

Mainland's leading ground gainer, Isaac Bell, limited to spotty action due to an ankle injury, scored Mainland's only touchdown on the night three plays later with a five-yard burst. The Bucs couldn't convert the PAT despite two tries thanks to a Seminole encroachment penalty. Bad snaps on both kick attempts left Mainland trailing 14-6 at the half.

While neither team budged much in the third period, the Buccaneers appeared to have solved Seminole's offensive riddle, closing down the running game that saw fullback Lenny Sutton, Williams and Johnny Littles string together drive-sustaining runs.

"They played a 5-2 defense in the first half and then showed a split-six defense after intermission," pointed out Posey of the offensive stall.

"They've got a good defense with some good people playing it for them, just like a look at Mainland's record (6-3)."

It took Seminole about 14 minutes to figure out Mainland's defensive switches, but patience had its virtue, in the form of a 72-yard clock eating drive that nailed the fourth-quarter 14/2 on the Buccaneers' coffin.

With 10 minutes remaining and the Tribe clinging to a precarious 14-6 lead, quarterback Jeff Litton used the legs of his backfield trio of Sutton, Littles and Williams to march all the way to Mainland's six-yard line. Sutton then lined up with a first and goal-to-go, but called for a timeout when he didn't like the looks of the Buc's goal-line defense.

"We felt they would be looking for Sutton that close to the goal line," explained Posey of the ensuing play. "They were lined up real low, ready to submerge the line of scrimmage and go after Lenny. So we had Jeff check off at the line and take it himself."

The quarterback keeper worked to perfection as Litton skipped in untouched for the score with a grin as big as the full moon that hung over the visitor's end zone.

Griffin's third PAT of the night pushed Seminole to a 21-6 lead with 2:41 remaining.

Behind senior quarterback Marty Edwards, Mainland's two-minute offense got the Bucs to Seminoles 48-yard line, but three near interceptions and an incomplete fourth down pass turned the ball over to Seminole with only 24 seconds left.

Litton sent Sutton into the line for two yards and capped the night by leading the Tribe offense in a countdown of the final 10 seconds on the clock.

"Our long drive in the second half was the key to the ball game," pointed out Posey, whose district title was a perfect rebound from his only losing season (4-6) at Seminole High a year ago.

"We just marched it down the field and ate the clock." With the conference and district championships already decided, Posey and the Seminoles will try to add victory number eight to the win column when the Seminoles return home for their annual homecoming tilt against Spruce Creek's Hawks.

Since Spruce Creek already has a pair of losses in district play, the outcome of the Seminole-Spruce Creek match up will have no bearing on the conference championship.

Sutton was again the "main man" in the Seminole rushing scheme. The swift and strong 192-pounder rumbled for 119 yards on 29 carries. "Bull" Littles raced for 85 on just 12 totes and V. Williams tacked on 58. Litton slipped for nine to give the Tribe 271 yards on the night. Litton was 3-of-8 through the air for 45 yards and no interceptions.

Friday's game against Spruce Creek is homecoming for Sanford. Tickets are available at Sanford and Lakeview Middle Schools, Sweeney's Office Supply, the Flagship Bank on 17-92 across from Sanford Plaza, Crooms High School and at Seminole. There are still some reserved seat tickets available for $4. Call 322-4352 and ask for Sherry Coke for information.

Last Volleyball Plantation On Left Turns Into Friday 13th Tribe Horror

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

PLANTATION — Thirty minutes into Friday's Section 4A-3 Championship volleyball match here, Seminole High coach Donalyn Knight and her netters wouldn't have minded one bit if someone had crouched behind them and eerily whispered, "It's only a movie, it's only a movie."

Call it what you want, "Last Plantation on the Left" or "13 Serves," the results of Plantation's 15-12, 15-5 sectional victory over the Lady Tribe was perfectly suited for this Friday the 13th evening.

Plantation's victory—its fifth straight sectional title—propels the Colonels to next Friday's state tournament which will be held at Plantation. The Colonels have won one state championship and been runners-up three other times.

Friday night, though, it looks as if that Sectional 4A-3 title string may break. Sanford jumped to an early lead as jumping-jack senior Tony Hardy put on a volleyball clinic.

After Plantation served a point, Hardy whistled a slam off the hardwood. Senior Laura Grace then reeled off four service points on which Hardy had two spikes and the nervous Colonels belted two into the net.

Plantation regrouped to pull within, 4-2, but Hardy took things into her own hands with an ace serve plus two more points for a 7-4 edge.

The Colonels' Cindy Springer moved Plantation close again with three straight points, but Sanford's best server Jackie Link soon gave the 'Noles breathing room.

Volleyball

Link, picking her spots perfectly, ran off three straight points as she picked on the weaker Plantation defenders at will. Hardy gave Seminole a 10-7 lead with a tremendous smash from the middle of the court into an open area.

Plantation added two of its own to pull close, but senior Cathy Hall smacked two service points for a 12-9 lead which put Seminole in the driver's seat.

On Hall's next serve, however, came the play which switched the momentum of the match and subsequently signalled the demise of the Sanford season.

Hall served deep and Grace nailed the return into the middle of the Colonels. Cici Coffee set up Tammy Whittington who slammed the ball out of bounds.

Hardy had gone up high to blocked the hit, but realizing it might go long, pulled back at the last minute. The referee, nevertheless, called Hardy for a net violation.

"I never touched it," Hardy moaned after the match. "She said, 'I hit the top of the net,' but I never did."

After a brief discussion with the referees, Colonel was awarded the point and instead of a Seminole's 13-9 edge and serve, the Colonels took over the serve down 12-9.

"That's all it takes sometimes to change the game," pointed out Plantation coach Marge Payton. "The game can really turn on one call."

Payton couldn't have been more correct about the Seminole U-turn.

Junior Patty Hepler served one point and after Hardy failed to convert on her service, Coffee served out the remaining five points, the game-winner when senior Cindy Pendarvis was called for a "catch."

"They called a tighter game here," Knight observed about the numerous violations on both teams for unclear sets. "I'm still trying to figure out what happened to us."

While the first match was a definite shocker to Sanford, it couldn't match the horror story which developed after the Tribe again assumed an early lead in game two.

Link again picked apart the Plantation backline for a 4-0 bulge. Hardy was devastating with a slam for the second point and a tricky tip for point four.

What happened next borders on the supernatural. Colonel senior Liz Bridges rattled off 12 straight service points as the frustrated Seminoles could hit it everywhere but in play.

Three of Bridges' shots were aces and

Hardy, who had been so awesome before, found her slams going out of bounds or into the net.

Seminole finally got the serve back when Hardy regained her spiking form, but after a point by Grace, Coffee and Whittington sent the Seminoles back to Sanford.

"We played sorry," surmised Hardy after the game. "We deserved to lose." While that adjective may have described the Seminoles Friday night, Knight was anything but sorry about the spectacular season for the Seminoles.

"I'm just as proud of them as if we would have won it," said Knight. "We played consistent volleyball all year. I'm just thankful that we had the success (conference, district and regional titles) that we did."

"One of these years we're going to get one of these teams from the South. But we finished in a tie for fifth in the state, that's not too bad."

Nobody can argue with that, sorry or not.

17-yard pass from quarterback Carl Jones for a second-quarter score from 17 yards away. Sopp sent the Lions into halftime with a 14-0 bulge.

The Hornets finally lit up the board in the third period as QB Chuck Baumann found Todd Schieffelin with a seven-yard scoring toss. A pass for the two points failed.

The Lions put it safely in the den with two third-period scores. Smith's third TD burst — from one yard out — made it 20-6 and Sopp nailed number 21.

George Dumas wrapped up the final touchdown with an eight-yard jaunt into the end zone. Sopp, "Mr. Reliable," made it a perfect night, 28-6.

Oviedo concludes the season this Friday by hosting Cocoa Beach.

In other county football, Dave Tullis' Lake Brantley Patriots snapped a four-game losing string by scoring 14 second-half points for a 17-7 victory at DeLand.

Standout running back Kevin Besaw, who had a 45-yard TD romp called back by a penalty, gave the Patriots a 3-0 first-half edge by kicking a 20-yard field goal with just three ticks left before intermission.

In the second half, Besaw's running mate Rob Brown sailed 34 yards on a reverse to give Brantley a comfortable, 10-0 advantage. Besaw kicked the PAT.

Linebacker-running back Otis Clait sealed the victory in the fourth quarter by gathering in a 22-yard spiral from Fred Baber to boost the Pats lead to 17-0.

DeLand added a meaningless TD in the fourth quarter when Brandon Williams hit Terry Nettles with a 20-yard scoring toss. Brian Killory converted the PAT.

The Patriots, 4-3, conclude their season Friday at Lyman in a Five Star Conference clash.

In the county's other game, Trinity Prep quarterback Gary Crayton slipped in from one yard out to give the Saints a 7-0 overtime victory at Vero Beach against St. Edwards.

Coach Ron Vierling's junior-laden Saints finished the year at 3-5. Exciting junior tailback Gerald Sutton rolled for 47 yards on just seven carries.

Oviedo's Lamar Smith breaks loose for one of his ripped Bishop Moore, 28-6 at Oviedo. Smith three touchdowns Friday night as the Lions rambled for 71 yards in 12 carries.

Silver Hawks Fly Higher, Capture Third Straight Win

By BILLY STRIPP
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Howell

Stranger things have been known to happen on Friday the 13th. However, it was good news for the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, who managed a 7-0 victory over Apopka.

The strange thing about it was, Howell hadn't won a home game all year, and finally did.

Coach Mike Bisceglia told his players, "You proved it to yourselves that you can win, now prove it to the fans." The Silver Hawks needed only seven points to shoot down the Darters, a three-run burst by Senior Scott Grant proved to be the only score in the third quarter.

The Silver Hawks controlled the football as they outran Apopka, 67 to 38 plays on offense.

Lake Howell could and should have put the scoreboard to work as they were inside Blue Darter territory 7-out-of-10 possessions.

The Hawks opened the ball game up at their own 30 yard line, after Grant returned the ball 28 yards and nearly breaking his second kickoff return of the year.

The Hawks moved into Apopka territory early, with runs of 19, and 14 by Billy Mosblech and Grant. The Hawk drive stalled, as Grant attempted a 41-yard field goal which just fell short.

"Our defense played well all game," stated the Silver Hawks boss, who saw his team record its first shutout and third straight win against six losses.

Howell took its next drive to the Darter 46 before giving way of an interception. With neither team showing serious scoring threats, the first quarter came to an end as both defenses forced each other to punt.

Starting the second quarter off from their own 18, quarterback Brian Pitts led his team to the Silver Hawks six before turning the ball over. Pitts found Hosea Schman for 14 yards, and gave way to Othellus Swift for a 28-yard burst through the Hawk defense. Robert Black moved the ball from the Hawk 41 to the 20 on three carries before Pitts would break loose down to the six. The Hawks hit Pitts hard on the next play and Scott Grant found the ball in his arms.

The Silver Hawks would threaten twice more before the half, failing to score as field-goals from 47, and 46 yards were just missed.

With Howell's defense giving up very little, the Hawks would finally take advantage of their total control, as they moved 65 yards in 13 plays. Grant sneaked his way for 18, while Scott Grant found tight end Jeff Whipple moving to the Apopka 49. With nice running by Magaro, Mosblech, and Grant, the Hawks moved to within the four on a fourth and inches play. Scott Frick found room and kept the eventual winning score drive alive. They wasted no time, as Grant took the ball easily in the end zone from three yards out. He connected the PAT with :54 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

Lake Howell would try and add more problems to the Apopka team, as Dave Ornstein recovered a swift fumble at the 26 of Apopka. Scott Frick found Whipple on a third and nine call moving to the 14. A Frick to Jeff Hughes pass just missed on a third and ten situation, as Grant would attempt his fourth field-goal.

Although Friday the 13th didn't help his kicking game, he had enough luck to give the Hawks a 7-0 victory. His kick sailed left as the referees signaled wide.

With time running out for the Blue Darters, Chip Glerka hoped to catch the Silver Birds asleep. Unfortunately, they forgot to tell Doug Fugleberg, and Mike Palmer who both led tremendous tackles on Apopka's next drive.

Howell would threaten one more time, but an interception killed the drive. Pitts returned the ball across the 50, but Apopka was nailed for a clip moving the ball back inside the 25.

With less than four minutes to go in the game, Apopka would try one more time to get a score and send this game into overtime. Pitts hit passes for 14 and 16 yards moving down to the Hawk 36. With

SCOTT GRANT ... three-yard burst

:24 seconds left in the game, the Silver Hawk defense rose to the occasion and held the Darters and secured their third straight victory.

"I told my boys to keep rolling as we have been, and we did." The Hawks will try to end the season next week by winning four in a row against the winless Boone Braves.

Steinbrenner Must Battle To Return Jackson, Guidry

Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's been said, especially by people who travel in elevators, that George Steinbrenner loves a good fight.

Well, he's got two beauties on his hands right now and, unless he changes his attitude, the principal owner of the New York Yankees is going to lose two of his biggest gate attractions — pitcher Ron Guidry and outfielder Reggie Jackson.

Guidry and Jackson, a vital part of two world championship and four American League pennant winning teams for the Yankees, entered major league baseball's sixth annual re-entry draft Friday and were among the most sought after commodities.

Pitcher John Denny of Cleveland, pitcher Joaquin Andujar of St. Louis and outfielder Dave Collins of Cincinnati also were popular choices in the draft, which was conducted for the first time under the new rules established by the Basic Agreement which ended last summer's 50-day strike.

Twenty-one players from a list of 41 eligibles were selected by four or more clubs, with Guidry leading the way. Seventeen of the 23 teams who participated in the draft selected the hard-throwing lefthander and at least four of those — Houston, Toronto, Atlanta and the New York Mets — can be expected to challenge the Yankees for his services.

Guidry, who has posted an 87-34 record with a 2.73 ERA during his seven-year career, is seeking a five-year guaranteed contract in excess of $1 million per season and his agent, John Schneider, said his client would listen carefully to all interested parties.

"We're not going to say the Yankees have the last offer," said Schneider, who attended the draft. "They've had 10 years to get Ron under contract. We're going to be fair and listen to offers from every club. The Yankees will have their own opportunity to make their best offer."

"Every one we wanted to draft him, drafted him. He's excited about it. We're looking for a five-year, no trade, no cut contract in excess of one million dollars per year. We're flexible on the payroll scale."

Although he has stated he would like to remain with the Yankees, Guidry turned down an offer from the Yankees last week which was less than $1 million per year and Steinbrenner has stated publicly that he does not believe pitchers are worth as much as the lefthander is seeking.

Still, Steinbrenner is not expected to give up without a fight.

"I would say our chances of signing both Guidry and Jackson are at least as good as the clubs that drafted them," said Yankee executive vice president Cedric Tallis. "As competitive as George is, if it's possible to sign them within reason it will be done."

Under the new guidelines, if Guidry signs with another club, the Yankees will receive a professional player from a pool of all non-protected players.

SCC SMASH

The Seminole Community College Raiders opened their 1981-82 basketball season Friday night with a 113-38 drubbing of Warner Southern in the second game of the four-team SCC Raider Tournament. Leading the way for SCC was former Lake Brantley ace Doug Dershlimer with 24 points, followed by Mike Smith and Travis Flier with 12 each. Saturday Joe Sterling's quintet faces Valencia Community College, an 88-85 victor over Brevard. Tipoff is 8:30 p.m. There will be no third place game due to the state of the Warner Southern squad. Above, Raider guard Jesse Woods fires a two-pointer.

Homecoming Spoiled

Creek Floods Lyman, 18-8

By JEFF KERR
Herald Sports Writer

Kerney Flowers' 34-yard touchdown run with 4:11 left in the fourth quarter gave the Hawks of Spruce Creek an 18-8 victory over Lyman to spoil the Greyhounds' homecoming Friday night at Lyman High School before a crowd of 2,000 cold fans in Five Star Conference play.

The loss dropped the Hounds under .500 for the year at 4-5 while the Hawks improved to 5-4.

The first quarter started out with the Hawks' Flowers taking the opening kickoff 40 yards to their own 45. The Hawks were unable to move the ball and were forced to punt the ball to Lyman.

The 'Hounds then took over at their own 35 and they were also unable to move the ball as Vince Presley was stopped three times by a tough Hawk defense.

"Vince is probably only 80 percent healthy right now plus it was a cold night," said Coach Bill Scott of his junior running back.

Lyman was then forced to punt. The Hawks took over at their own 26 and moved the ball down to the 38 of Lyman behind the running of Flowers and running mate Willie Winfield. A tough defense by Lyman though forced the Hawks to punt again, this time to the 'Hound 11-yard line where Lyman took over.

Three straight plays again by the 'Hounds again forced them to punt but a poor punt by Johnny Poor gave the Hawks good field position at Lyman's 37 as the first quarter ended, 0-0.

The opening play of the second quarter saw the Hawks on the 33 of Lyman, but a clipping penalty moved them back and they were forced to kick again. This time Lyman started on their own three-yard line and were turned away by the Hawks' stiff defense. Another poor Poor kick gave the Hawks good field position at the 'Hounds 33. This time the Hawks took advantage of good field position and on third and 12 Hawk quarterback John Lavin rushed for 35 yards and a Hawk touchdown with 7:32 remaining in the half. The extra point was good and Spruce Creek led 7-0.

Lyman on their next position, tried to pass and found that to be unsuccessful and was forced to punt again. Poor again got off a bid kick this time for only 11 yards to the 43 where Spruce Creek took over.

On the Creek's next play Winfield rambled 17 yards to the 'Hounds 26 before he coughed the ball up in the hands of a herd of Greyhounds.

Lyman again not able to move the ball this time with the help of a clipping penalty and an offensive pass interference were forced all the way back to their own six.

Poor got off another bad kick and the Hawks took over at Lyman's 34. After moving the ball to the eight of Lyman, on fourth and one Spruce Creek elected to go for the field goal.

The 26-yard attempt by Hawk kicker Paul Ching was good to the end of the first half with the Hawks leading 10-0.

"We just had poor field position and we had to play tight with our back into the end zone and they played good defense," said Scott of his 'Hounds inability to score in the first half.

The third quarter started off bad for the 'Hounds when on second and six tailback Theo Jones fumbled the ball over to the Hawks at their own 44. The Hawks were unable to move the ball and were forced to punt. Lyman this time seemed to be moving the ball well as they marched the ball all the way to the 21 of the Hawks. Then on third and 10, Jerry Axley threw an interception to Flowers who returned it to the 28. The Hawks were unable to move the ball again and were forced to punt as the third quarter ended, 18-0.

The fourth quarter started with the 'Hounds on the 47 of Spruce Creek but an incomplete pass on third down forced the 'Hounds to punt. Spruce Creek then used a long drive to move the ball to the 16 of Lyman where they on fourth and one elected to try another field goal this time.

A bad snap forced the Hawks to give the ball up at their own 25. Lyman, now relying on the pass on first and ten from their own 37, saw Axley hit wide receiver Todd Marriott with a 67-yard scoring strike to make the score 10-6.

Dwayne Johnson ran the two point conversion in to make it 10-8 with 4:56 left in the game.

Lyman then elected to go for an onside kick on the ensuing kick-off and failed. "It was my decision to go for the onside kick, we just didn't get a good bounce, we work on it in practice all the time and Chris Tschieder does a good job with it, said Scott of his decision.

Three plays later Flowers put the game away with his 33-yard TD run. Lyman's last chance failed when on first and ten from the Hawk 19 Axley threw four incomplete passes to end any chance of a Lyman comeback.

Lyman will play host to inter-county rival Lake Brantley next Friday night at 8:00 p.m.

NFL's Passing Fancy

For the past several weeks, I have viewed with alarm certain indications of drastic changes in the performance of NFL teams as compared with their statistical ability. The number of upsets is on the rise. Last week, for example, there were three overtime games and eight games were won by three points or less. I do not remember this happening during the past five years.

Sports writers and commentators around the nation are beginning to note this change in professional football, and I am sure that coaches are also aware of the situation and are frantically bolstering their defense—especially defense against the pass. Pass defense is undoubtedly the key to preventing an upset. With nearly every team calling more pass plays than running plays, the successful passing quarterback can win regardless of his team's past record. On the other hand, the defenses that rush the passing quarterback successfully can cause turnovers and shut off the opponent's scoring.

DALLAS gave a beautiful demonstration of this against BUFFALO in the last half of the game last Monday night. This new passing game of the pros is great for the viewing audience, but results in an inconsistent offense.

However, so long as the defense is consistent, the game results will still be predictable. For example, the statistical favorite in offense was topped in eight games last week, whereas the better defense was only beaten three times. In fact the best defense has won more games this year than has the best offense in every week of play. Now I am flexible enough to change when change is indicated.

The sad state of my predictions the past several weeks has prompted this change. Last week I was upset seven times for my all time low of 50 percent, leaving me with a season record of 61 percent. HARRAH'S was upset 6 times for 57 percent, and a 59 percent season record. I am only allowed 17 more upsets for the remainder of this season to score an overall 70 percent for this column.

OAKLAND (4-6) at MIAMI (7-2-1)
The DOLPHINS still lead the AFC EAST by one and a half games, but they can not afford to let up for a minute. They have a one point edge in defense over the RAIDERS, the home field advantage, and lead in every other statistic. I expect MIAMI to win this one handily by 15 points.

LOS ANGELES (5-5) at CINCINNATI (7-3)
The BENGALS have stepped out to a two game lead in the AFC CENTRAL and are playing three points per game over predictions. They are 4 points per game better than the RAMS in defense, but the RAMS are one point better in overall offense. The teams index out fairly even, but the RAMS are scoring about 9 points below predictions.

CINCINNATI has a small 2 point home field advantage, and the formula indicates they will win by 9 points.

UPSET CLIFFHANGER OF THE WEEK
DENVER (7-3) at TAMPA BAY (5-5)
DENVER leads the AFC WEST by one game over SAN DIEGO, while TAMPA is one game behind MINNESOTA in the NFC CENTRAL. Without looking at any statistics, I would have unhesitatingly picked the BRONCOS to take the BUCS anytime, but the figures changed my mind. The BUCS have a 2 point better defense at home than the BRONCOS do on the road, as well as a 10 point better offense. The BRONCOS have a one point advantage in overall offense, and are playing without their whopping 13 point home field advantage, whereas the BUCS are 8 points per game better at home.

In spite of DENVER'S 6 point better index, I pick TAMPA to upset them by 2 points.

BALTIMORE (1-9) at PHILADELPHIA (8-2)
PHILADELPHIA and DALLAS are tied for the lead in the NFC EAST.

BALTIMORE appears to be simply outclassed in this contest. The EAGLES index out better by 35 points, have a 19 point better defense, and a 4 point better overall offense.

The COLTS will benefit by the negative 10 point home field advantage of the EAGLES, but there it ends. The EAGLES have won over common enemies by 18 points per game better than the COLTS. PHILADELPHIA should win this one by 6 points or more if they don't fall asleep in the huddle from boredom.

CLIFFHANGER OF THE WEEK
DALLAS (5-2) at DETROIT (4-6)
I could have called this an upset, but it really is not. DALLAS indexes out a mere 1 point better than the LIONS, and has averaged 1 point per game better over common enemies. However, DETROIT has a 7 point better defense, an 8 point better offense at home, a 10 point home field advantage, and is playing 2 points per game better than predictions. Although you can't ever count the COWBOYS completely out of any game, all formulas have DETROIT winning this one by 7 points or more.

NEW ORLEANS (3-7) at MINNESOTA (6-4)
MINNESOTA has a one game lead over TAMPA in the NFC CENTRAL DIVISION. Surprisingly, the SAINTS have a 3 point better defense than the VIKINGS, and have played better than predicted by 6 points per game.

I believe rookie running back George Rogers will rush for another 150 yards and score a couple of touchdowns, but I think also that the VIKING defense will bottle him up in the second half for a 4 point or more MINNESOTA win.

CLEVELAND (4-6) at SAN FRANCISCO (8-2)
I wanted to call this game a HUNDINGER, but that was before I studied the stats. The 49ers have won all their games except the 1st and 3rd, and still have the football hotshots shaking their collective heads in amazement over the 49er's 3 game lead in the NFC WESTERN DIVISION. Although it will still be a very fine game, and a much closer game than most people expect, the prediction is for SAN FRANCISCO to win by 5 points or more.

Super Bowl, Or Survival Bowl?

Pro Football

ATLANTA (UPI) — What earlier might have been billed as a Super Bowl preview becomes a battle for survival Sunday when the Atlanta Falcons host the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Both teams are down on their luck, but still hopeful of earning a playoff berth, so their first regular-season meeting in the South since 1970 earns a "crucial" label even with their matching 5-5 records.

Atlanta trails San Francisco by three games in the NFC West. Pittsburgh trails Cincinnati by two in the AFC Central.

"Obviously, we're both in a situation where we must win each week," said Falcons Coach Leeman Bennett. "The Steelers need this game as badly as we do. We expect them to play an excellent football game and we will have to match it."

The Falcons are 3-point favorites.

Sunday's game pairs off a young team (the Falcons) still making its climb in the NFL and a four-time Super Bowl champion (the Steelers) on the downward slope.

"The Steelers have run into hard times, just like we have, but they are still a very physical football team," said Bennett. "They're still running Franco Harris like they have for the past 10 years and Terry Bradshaw still knows how to move them down the field."

"Both teams are coming off emotional losses (Atlanta 17-14 at San Francisco, Pittsburgh 24-21 at Seattle) and I anticipate the Steelers playing an excellent football game," said Bennett. "We will have to be more consistent than we were last week and also must take advantage of our opportunities better than we have in recent games."

"Pittsburgh has a strong tradition and we had better be prepared to play. We are still alive for postseason play, but it is obvious time is running out rapidly."

Sunday's game is expected to feature a passing duel between Bradshaw and Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski and a running duel between Harris and Atlanta's William Andrews.

Bradshaw has thrown for 2,183 yards and 13 touchdowns, Bartkowski for 2,310 yards and 22 touchdowns. Harris, who last week became the third runner in NFL history to gain more than 10,000 yards, has rushed for 631 yards so far this season; Andrews for 815.

Harris' next touchdown will tie him for second place on the all-time list with Jim Taylor at 83 and he needs to average only 58 yards in his six remaining games to reach 1,000 yards for a record eighth time. At present he shares the record with Jim Brown.

If anything happens to Bradshaw Sunday, the Steelers quarterback will be third stringer Mark Malone whose only appearances this season has been as a wide receiver and a kickoff returner. Pittsburgh's backup quarterback, Cliff Stoudt, may be lost for the rest of the season after injuring his arm while hitting a mechanical punting bag.

The Falcons may be missing three starters Sunday — linebacker Joel Williams (knee) and offensive linemen Warren Bryant (thigh) and Dave Scott (knee). Two of Pittsburgh's wide receivers, Lynn Swann (hamstring) and Jim Smith (knee) missed last Sunday's game at Seattle.

Pittsburgh, which won its fourth Super Bowl crown in 1980, is now 12-2 over its last 24 games and in danger of snapping a streak of nine straight winning seasons.

"I'm looking for six straight wins," said Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "I refuse to accept that we aren't good enough to do that. I'll never accept that even if we don't win another game all year."

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE: YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the Estate of WINIFRED STILES, deceased, Case No. 81-443-CP, is pending in the Circuit Court for Seminole County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is the Seminole County Courthouse, Sanford, Florida 32771. The name and address of the Personal Representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the Estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the Clerk of the above Court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the Clerk to enable the Clerk to mail one copy to the Personal Representative. All persons interested in the Estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the Decedent's Will, the qualifications of the Personal Representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the Court. ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED. Date of the first publication of the Notice of Administration: November 8, 1981. PATRICIA ALLIGOOD, FRANKLIN W. BUSINESS

IN BRIEF

Local Government Units Get In-Lieu Payments

The Secretary of the Interior has announced that U.S. Government payments totaling $103.4 million have been mailed to 1,894 units of local government nationwide to partly offset the fiscal impact of certain tax-exempt federal lands within their boundaries.

The annual payments, authorized by federal legislation passed in 1976, are commonly called "in-lieu of taxes payments." They supplement other federal land payments regularly shared with state and local governments from the sales of minerals, timber and other materials removed from the public lands.

The Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management recently began distributing the payments to counties, townships and other local governments. Use of the money is at local government's discretion.

New Distribution Center

The Clow Corp. has opened a new distribution center in Orlando to expand its sales and marketing services to the municipal water, sewer and underground contractor markets in central Florida.

In making the announcement, David K. Click, Orlando manager, said the new facility will operate as one of nine existing full-service distribution centers located in the East, Midwest and Southeast. He said 1981 sales of these centers are estimated to exceed $30 million.

All-Time Coal Records

Family Lines Rail System and Chesapeake System Railroads, units of the CSX Corp., set several all-time coal records in October, together hauling more than 18 million tons to domestic customers and export piers.

A. Paul Funkhouser, president and chief executive officer of Family Lines in Jacksonville, and John T. Collinson, president and chief executive officer of Chesapeake in Cleveland, said in reporting the records, "We remain bullish on the coal market and we believe these continuing records prove our optimism is well founded."

PR Firm's New Office

Ellis Singer & Webb, one of Florida's newest advertising and public-relations agencies, recently celebrated its new location in the central Orlando area with an open house.

The celebration marked the introduction of its modern offices in the Loch Haven Building at 615 E. Princeton St.

Brucellosis Takes Toll

Results of a new study show Florida cattlemen losing an estimated $5.5 million a year because of the cattle disease brucellosis.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture survey, just completed for the calendar year 1979, reveals Florida beef cattle owners lost an estimated $4,297,076 in potential profits, while state dairymen lost another estimated $1,424,524 in revenue for a grand total of $5,841,600.

Mutual-Funds Sales Drop

Sales of mutual funds other than short-term funds fell to $677.4 million in September from $686.4 million in August and $665.2 million in September a year ago. Redemptions dropped more sharply to $585.2 million from $719.8 million in August and $787.8 million a year ago September. So the industry moved back into net sales for the eighth month this year. Net sales were $42.2 million compared with net redemptions of $32.8 million in August.

Sales of equity funds — aggressive growth, growth-and-income, and balanced — declined to $383 million from $417 million in August. Long-term municipal bond fund sales fell to $84 million from $102 million and sales of corporate bond funds were $100 million compared with $111 million in August.

Auto Insurance Pool Drops

Florida's high-risk private passenger auto insurance pool has for the first time dropped to below 300,000 drivers — a 61 percent decrease from the 743,000 drivers in the pool just three years ago, state Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter has announced.

Robert Juran Named Herald News Editor

Robert A. Juran has been named news editor of the Evening Herald.

Juran, 53, is in charge of the daily operation of the newsroom staff, coordinating the production of local, state and national news.

A veteran of 35 years in the newspaper business, the Chicago native started his career as a copy boy for the Washington Star and the New York Times, and as a teen-age soldier was a copy editor on the Army newspaper Pacific Stars & Stripes in Tokyo.

After receiving his journalism degree at Syracuse University, Juran was a reporter in the New Orleans bureau of the Associated Press. Since then he has been editor of large weeklies and a staff editor on daily newspapers, including news editor of the San Fernando Valley section of the Los Angeles Times and of the Pasadena (Calif.) Star-News. Most recently he was editor of

ROBERT A. JURAN ... in newsroom job

The Neighbor in Tampa, the largest weekly in Florida and one of the largest in the nation.

A consistent journalism award winner over the years, during the last 12 months he won state and national awards for editorial writing from four newspaper organizations — the International Society of Weekly Newspaper Editors, the National Newspaper Association, the Florida Press Club and the Florida Press Association (FPA). The FPA award was the first-place sweepstakes for the best editorial writing in all Florida weeklies.

Juran has for many years been involved in folk music, singing a large repertoire of folk songs and accompanying himself on guitar and autoharp. His principal avocation, however, is old movies — especially American movies of the 1930s, of which he has seen more than a thousand. His collection of books about them covers most of a living-room wall.

Juran and his wife, Celia, are making their home in Sanford.

Single-Family Home Sales Drop Sharply

High interest rates began to show their effect on Florida's housing market during the third quarter of this year, as the number of single-family home sales declined 29.7 percent from the same quarter a year ago, while the dollar volume for single-family home sales in the third quarter was 22.5 percent lower than for the comparable quarter in 1980.

According to statistics compiled quarterly by the Florida Association of Realtors (FAR), the number of single-family homes sold in Florida during the first three quarters of 1981 was down 15.8 percent from the level of sales for the first three quarters of 1980. The dollar volume of sales for single-family homes in the first nine months of this year, however, was down only 6.8 percent from the comparable 1980 period.

The average sales price for a single-family home sold in Florida during the third quarter this year reached a record $77,597, up 7.2 percent over the average sales price of $72,326 recorded during the comparable quarter of last year. The third-quarter average was also up 4.1 percent over the average sales price during the second quarter of this year.

Since the third quarter of 1977, when FAR first began compiling statistical data on Florida's housing market, the average sales price for a single-family home has risen 74.4 percent, from $44,487 in 1977 to $77,597 this year. The largest jump came between the first quarter of 1979 and the first quarter of 1980, when it soared 22.2 percent, from $51,316 to $62,983.

Since 1977, the number of sales of single-family homes recorded during the third quarter each year has risen over the second quarter of the year. That trend was reversed this year, however, when the number of sales declined 15.5 percent between the second and third quarters.

The average sales price for condominiums, co-ops and townhouses during the third quarter also rose to a record high of $78,685, 9.4 percent above the average sales price of $71,878 in the third quarter of last year.

FAR's housing data are compiled from the Multiple Listing Service statistics of 16 Boards of Realtors in all geographical sections of the state, representing approximately 40 percent of the state association's total membership of nearly 67,000.

Florida's Interest-Rate Cap Called Outdated

Florida's interest-rate cap, raised two years ago to meet the changing money market, already is outdated and creates more problems than it solves.

That is the position of Florida bankers and retail merchants. Various industry groups seek legislative correction of the state's usury law when the Legislature's session opens Jan. 18. They seek removal of the artificial rate cap, as well as more uniform language in the wide array of Florida lending laws. Hearings on the proposals will begin Dec. 1 before a House Commerce subcommittee, and before the full committee Dec. 14.

The problems created for both borrower and lender by a rate cap are manifold. Some are obvious, some more subtle, experts in banking say.

First, economists agree it is impossible in today's volatile money environment to legislate an intelligent rate ceiling. Rates fluctuate greatly, as the recent past history of the prime rate shows. Market forces today set the true cost of borrowed funds far more than in the past. Florida and other states with a rate cap place their consumers and lenders at a disadvantage in this fast-changing market.

When Florida's rate cap was revised in 1979 from 10 to 18 percent, it was expected to accommodate needs of the market for some time. Before the end of the year, however, rates across the country had made the Florida cap obsolete.

Some relief came in 1980 with the federal Depository

Institutions Deregulation and Monetary Control Act. One section allowed rates for business and agricultural loans over $1,000 to be pegged to the so-called federal discount rate, preempting state caps. In Florida it meant some loan rates went to about 23 percent.

But that limited federal help has not solved the problem. The rate cap is seen by economists as hurting the very class of persons it was intended to help—relatively lower-income borrowers believed less informed about money costs. The cap is driving funds out of their hands because lenders are forced to cut high-risk loans.

Additionally, the rate cap hurts qualified small borrowers because lenders must shorten maturity periods, require larger down payments or get compensating balances to reduce loan size.

Moreover, studies indicate that when the true cost of funds exceeds the artificial rate cap, damage is done to the crucial supply of home-building money. Mortgage loans dry up as lenders turn to commercial or industrial loans whose rates fluctuate more flexibly with the flow of the market.

Retail sales also suffer under a rate cap. A classic example can be found in Arkansas, according to Dr. Arnold A. Heggstad, chairman of the Department of Finance, Insurance and Real Estate at the University of Florida.

That state has a very low usury ceiling (10 percent),

Heggstad says. There have been no consumer finance companies in Arkansas since 1975, he has found, and commercial banks offer fewer consumer loans than those in other states.

"Further, retailers who were unable to charge rates greater than (the cap) were not able to recoup the costs of credit transactions," he has noted. Their attempt, however, resulted in retail prices being higher, he found, than in neighboring states.

Similar patterns exist in Maine and Tennessee which also have very low caps, he says.

The evidence is clear, according to Heggstad: "Poor, unformed borrowers do not receive credit at low interest rates. Instead, they are foreclosed from credit markets completely when the ceilings are binding.

"All would benefit from the removal of usury ceilings. Low income borrowers would have better access to credit. The financial institutions would benefit by being able to make loans to their local customers in their own markets.

"Finally, the entire economy of the state would benefit by being insulated from fluctuations in retail sales and housing construction brought about by usury ceilings in periods of high interest rates."

It is to obtain these benefits that the Florida Bankers Association and the Florida Retail Federation seek legislative correction of the state rate-cap law.

Vegetable Growers Have Too Much Clean Air?

It's bad enough that Florida vegetable growers this year have had to face a freeze and then a drought—but soon they may even have to start worrying about air that's too clean.

The problem is that Florida's air may soon not have enough sulfur in it to provide an adequate supply for growing vegetable crops, according to specialists at the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

Sulfur in the air comes from burning "dirty" fossil fuels such as oil, gasoline or coal. But since the advent of the Clean Air Act in 1967, which controls such things as auto emissions, sulfur in the atmosphere has lessened, according to W.M. Stall, associate professor, and James Montelaro, professor emeritus.

"Sulfur deficiency could be the next headache for the Florida vegetable grower," says Stall.

He says the problem isn't serious yet in commercial vegetable production but points to indications that it may be one

Extension specialists, he says, already are recommending supplemental sulfur for some agronomic crops in north and west Florida. These areas are isolated from the large population centers and away from the air pollution that often accompanies such urban areas, he explains. Also, a sulfur deficiency was found on turnips recently in Georgia.

Stall adds that what appears to be a lack of sulfur on mustard greens growing in the sandy soils of central Florida was found last year.

He says sulfur deficiency can easily be confused with nitrogen deficiency. Both deficiencies cause a yellowing of leaves.

Stall says there is no need at the present time for vegetable growers to make a special attempt to apply sulfur. Some fertilizers contain sulfur. He says, however, in the future it may become necessary to apply additional sulfur to soils producing vegetables.

He says growers should watch for possible sulfur deficiency and check with their county agent or Extension specialists if they have any suspicions.

Builders Given A Tour Of Longwood's Landings

Representatives from the recent Southeast Builders Conference in Orlando were given a tour of The Landings, Florida Residential Communities' (FRC) zero-lot-line patio home community in Longwood which was one of 12 Central Florida residential communities selected for a special housing tour.

The planned 135-home California-styled lakeshore community was showcased in the high-density category, one of four housing classifications designed to acquaint those in the home building industry from the Southeast with the latest in Orlando area housing designs and planning concepts.

On hand to welcome the more than 40 visitors to see the community were FRC principals Burton A. Bines and Howard B. Lefkowitz, who answered questions on the community's construction, land planning and marketing.

One of nine residential communities being developed in the Orlando area and Daytona Beach by FRC, The Landings has drawn national attention from those in the industry for its distinctive styling and residential planning. The private, clustered community features security and a variety of amenities, including a swim and racquet club, lake activities, and bicycle and jogging paths.

She Did It!

10-Year-Old Rider Wins On Borrowed Horse

By DIANE JEFFERSON
Herald Feature Writer

Ten-year-old Kathy Davis of Longwood looked up at the horse she would be riding into competition. Baby Jane Sarah was a lot taller than she was. Kathy stretched every inch of her 4-foot, 2-inch-height and grabbed the saddle horn. Thrusting her foot into a stirrup, she paused in mid-air, then swung her other leg up and over the saddle.

Her mother Janice had offered to help her. So had Carol Conway, her riding instructor. But Kathy had gently and politely refused their help. She wanted to mount the horse herself. And she did. In her own fashion.

Baby Jane Sarah was loaned to Kathy by John Reilly when he heard Kathy's horse, Brandy, could not compete. A splinter pierced Brandy's hoof the day before the competition, while Kathy rode her along a trail.

Janice said Kathy had been very upset when Brandy limped home, and heartbroken that her beloved horse could not compete with her in Kathy's second show. But if Kathy felt upset today, she masked it very well.

As she rode into the ring, Kathy knew the other contestants had more experience riding and showing their horses than she had. Her father, Art, had bought Brandy six months ago at an auction, but Kathy had only been training six weeks with her instructor before entering in this show.

She had faced more experienced contestants in her first show, also at the Wilco arena, sponsored by the Dusty Boots Riding Association. She had ridden away placing third, fourth and fifth.

Now she led Baby Jane Sarah into the ring, aware her mother and trainer would be standing along the white railing, watching her every move and hoping, hoping for a first place trophy.

She flashed a confident smile, and threw her shoulders back. Her light brown hair was pulled into a chignon and tucked under a brown cowgirl hat. Traces of femininity softened the severity: silver stud earrings, a bit of eyeliner piped on her brown-and-white striped shirt. Brown suede chaps with long fringes added a classy accent to her outfit.

She rode the mare at an easy pace around the ring, a polished horsewoman with the face of a 10-year-old child. Spectators leaned on the fence along the ring, and Judge Erick Redmond impassively watched the contestants, his eyes hidden behind dark sunglasses. Occasionally he scribbled a notation on a clipboard he held.

"When you are in the ring, there are 9,000 people watching you along the rail," said Carol, who has competed in shows across the state. "The first two to three shows, it's nerve-wracking. I've come out crying even though I've won. You know the judge just happens to be looking at you when your horse messes up. It feels like the world comes crashing down on you."

Carol watched Kathy riding around the ring as she talked. Suddenly she turned away and leaned over the rail. Kathy was passing near her.

"Smile!" she yelled, coaching her prize student.

Kathy's face lit up with the dazzling smile she wore for the judges. A bee buzzed around her horse's head, and she watched it out of the corner of her eye as she flashed that professional smile.

Kathy had trained hard for this moment.

Every day she finishes her homework by 4 p.m., and leaves with her mother to travel 15 miles to the stables where she boards her horse Brandy. Once there, Kathy rides the horse, bathes her, checks her hooves, and brushes her down. Weekends the family spends with their horses. Kathy's brother, Billy, and her sister, Laura, have their own horses, also.

Brandy is a combination quarterhorse and Morgan mare. She is not registered. Eventually Kathy will need another horse, a registered one, if she is to continue competing in horse shows.

"I don't think she'll ever get rid of Brandy," said Janice. "There's too much love there."

"A horse is a friend," explained Carol. "There are times when there is trouble in your life, when you talk to your horse. I've gone walking my horse in the woods, I've sung to my horse, I've cried to my horse. A horse you can tell anything to, and it never talks back. A horse just listens."

Janice said Kathy has a little "click-click" all her own that will make Brandy do anything she wants. Janice's

Sand Sculpture Race Car A Memorable Shot For Photographer

Tedd Liggett holds his recently published photograph of "Formula Atlantic." The photograph, picturing his wife, Lesley, seated in a

"car" made of sand with the couple's Volkswagen in the background, was published in the November issue of Road and Track magazine.

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A picture may be worth 1,000 words to some, but to Tedd Liggett, a picture is worth the long hours and expense necessary to shoot it.

"I've been involved in photography as a hobby since 1966," 29-year-old Liggett said. "And, I was pretty excited to have one of my photos published recently in the Road and Track magazine."

Liggett's photo appeared in the magazine's November issue and shows his wife, Lesley, sitting in a "race car" made of sand with their Volkswagen convertible in the background.

"I just got the idea for the picture off the top of my head and so Lesley, a friend of ours, Joe Suzanaki, and I decided to do it. We went to Ponce Inlet in South Daytona and built the car. I call it "Formula Atlantic."

Liggett, who lives on Park Avenue in Sanford, said he enjoys photography and although he doesn't want it ever to become work, he does enjoy free-lancing and being paid for his efforts.

"I've got a good job with the Seminole County School Board as a graphic artist in the audio visual department," he says. "I'd like to stay with the board for awhile — about 10 years. But, I really enjoy shooting pictures, especially action pictures. I shoot at least a roll of film each week."

Liggett said he has been free-lancing for about five years, including selling pictures to national magazines and poster companies, but the photograph which appeared in the Road and Track magazine is the first photo he has had appear in a world-wide distribution publication. He submitted the photo to the magazine in January.

"It's been real exciting for me," Liggett says. "I even had a friend from West Virginia call and say he saw my photo in the magazine. It's also given me and my friends the incentive to keep working to get more work published."

But, it wasn't easy for Liggett to get his photograph published.

"I've submitted work to Road and Track about four times and this is the first time I've gotten any acknowledgement from them." He said he hasn't received payment for the photograph as yet only that, "they said payment would be sent upon publication."

"I'm into fast action, mostly," he said. "I like taking pictures of motion in its environment, its natural surroundings."

Liggett said although he takes pictures of children occasionally, he almost never takes pictures of adults.

"I don't like to bother people or invade their privacy," he said. "Plus, you can get into trouble shooting people sometimes who don't like their picture taken."

Liggett said he always carries his camera with him and he also has a small, instamatic camera in his car, "just in case I need a back-up."

"It's all a matter of being at the right place, at the right time — with a camera," Liggett said, concerning getting good photographs. "A photographer has to be bold and not be afraid to get in there and take pictures. He also has to be creative. Get unusual shots."

Liggett said his hobby costs him about $5 to $10 per week. He said he prefers to shoot slides and that his house is "full of slide trays."

"Photography is exciting because it deals with time," Liggett said. "It only takes a fraction of a second to take the picture, but in that instant, time can be constant, moving or frozen."

Liggett said he has no intentions of quitting his hobby now that his work has been published. He said, if anything, he will work even harder to continue to have his work appear in more publications and again in Road and Track.

"I'm going to the 24-hours in Daytona motor car race in February and hope to get a lot of shots there," he said. "I'm also going to be in an art show in April in Apopka. Like I said, for now I'm interested in photography as a hobby. I just enjoy it."

Paul Kagle Rotarian Of The Year

Paul Kagle was named Rotarian of the Year at the Rotary Clubs Annual Charter and Awards night, Nov. 6 at the Greenhouse in the Crossings.

This award is based on accomplishments in the interest of the community and the club. He was presented with a plaque.

President Everett Mitchell was master of ceremonies and Don Jackson spoke on the founding of the club.

The Board of Directors, secretary and treasurer were recognized for work done and awards for perfect attendance for 1-8 years were presented. Vern Feddersen, last year's president, was recognized for accomplishments during his term of office.

Maureen Liberatore was guest of honor at a surprise baby shower, Nov. 7 at her mother's home in Altamonte.

Over 20 guests were there to enjoy a lovely luncheon. She received many useful gifts for the baby.

Maureen decided to surprise everyone the following day. At 1:30 p.m. she and husband, Frank, became the proud parents of a baby girl. Amanda Ann weighed 8 lbs., 11 ozs. Maureen returned home from the hospital Monday and Amanda returned Tuesday.

goods and a limited number of live cedar trees.

David King and six friends celebrated David's birthday at McDonald's. He received many nice gifts. Mother Christy and father Ken bought him bunk beds and a watch. David's friends who helped him enjoy his day were: Shelly Olaszewski, C.K. Coriel, Brent and Kevin Murphy and Laurie and Jason Junker.

The Greenwood Lakes Homeowners Association invited the Chamber of Commerce officers and directors to their annual meeting to acquaint newcomers to the area.

DeLora Lash, chamber president, introduced new businesses and Phil Kulbes, City Manager, gave a short history of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Don (Joanne) Mattoon recently returned from a 2-week vacation. They began their trip visiting Don's mother in Corning, N.Y. They then went up to Woodhull and visited the cheese factory and purchased 38 lbs. of cheese. Joanne says, they stopped at a roadside table and had an Italian lunch of wine, cheese, bread and grapes.

They drove into Lancaster, Pa., and stayed overnight in the Amish community. While there, they shopped and bought some ceramic molds. From Lancaster, they went on to Rockville, Md., to visit with Joanne's aunt for two days.

The longtime residents that I spoke to this week are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond (LuRene) Ball, 295 W. Lakeview Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Ball came to Lake Mary in August, 1925. Mr. Ball owned a real estate and insurance company in Sanford from 1925 until his retirement in 1960. Mrs. Ball was a secretary for the Sanford School system for 18 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Ball recall the 1925 Florida boom when many New Englanders moved down here. He says, in 1928 the boom collapsed and these people had to leave their homes and move back up north. They also remember the grocery stores owned by the Sjoloms and the Gleasons, the sawmill on Longwood-Lake Mary Road and the skating rink on Crystal Lake.

The Balls have two children, Raymond Jr. and Mrs. Tyler Dedmon. Raymond Jr. lives in Brazil, South America. The Dedmons reside in Lake Mary but at the present time are in Portugal. Mr. Dedmon is a Rear Admiral in the U.S. Navy and is on the NATO Staff. Mr.

and Mrs. Ball have five grandchildren.

The fifth grade elected officials for Youth Week and spent a busy day Nov. 5. Their day began with breakfast at the Greenhouse with the Rotary Club. They then spent three hours at city hall preparing for the evening council meeting. At noon, they returned to the Greenhouse for lunch.

That evening, before the regular council meeting, they took their seats at the council table. The "mayor" read the two items on their agenda, the council discussed them and they came to their decisions.

Everett Mitchell, president of the Rotary, Marty Bacon and mayor Walt Sorenson, presented the 11 students with certificates of appreciation.

Several city employees and residents were busy at city hall this morning, helping to prepare stockings for Santa. These stockings will be distributed by Santa to the children Dec. 20, when he makes his annual visit to city hall.

Refreshments were served to all of Santa's busy elves.

Storer Cablevision will hold Open House, Mon., Nov. 16, from 7:30-9 p.m. at city hall. All Lake Mary residents are invited to attend.

There will be televisions connected to the cable to demonstrate the 32 channels they have to offer. Refreshments will be served.

other children have tried to make Brandy do things, but Brandy will not respond to them as she does to Kathy. Carol said a horse and rider must have personalities that blend well together, otherwise a rider will try to accomplish things with a horse and find it frustrating because the animal will resist.

As Carol watched Kathy ride Baby Jane Sarah around the ring at Dusty Boots, she felt pride for both pupil and horse. She had once owned Baby Jane Sarah and had trained her for competition.

"Talk to her. Talk to her, Kathy, tell her 'Good girl.' She loves to hear 'Good girl,'" Carol said.

"Line 'em up, line 'em up for the judge," boomed announcer Lewis Dellarco's voice across the arena. Carol and Janice stood together on the edge of the railing. Carol nervously clenched and unclenched her hands. By the end of the day Carol would be drained, a knot in her stomach from the emotional ordeal she went through every time one of her students competed. Kathy would compete in three categories that day.

Kathy allowed Baby Jane from a trot and walked her into position. She dismounted and stood beside the horse, that same smile flashing. Judge Redmond walked up to horse and rider. He looked up at the horse, then down at the 10-year-old horsewoman. He made a notation on the clipboard in his hand and moved to the next contestant.

He gave a slip of paper to a man beside him. The man ran with the results to a building beside the ring, where the news of who won was relayed to announcer Dellarco. "First place, Kathy Davis, riding Baby Jane Sarah," he cried.

"Oh my God!" shrieked Carol. "She did it!" screamed Janice. Mother and trainer hugged each other.

Kathy accepted the blue and silver trophy calmly, her composure unruffled, her professional smile still in place. Then, as she rode her horse out of the ring and dismounted, she saw her mother running toward her.

"Honey, I'm so proud of you!" Janice Davis grabbed her daughter in a hug.

The professional smile dissolved from Kathy's face, and she was just a 10-year-old little girl, exhausted from the tension, the pressure, the desire to make her parents and teacher proud of her, the relentless drive to be number one, the best.

She threw her arms around her mother's neck. And then she cried.

Before the day ended, Kathy would gain three trophies and one ribbon: first place, Beginner Showmanship, 10 and Under; fourth place, Walk-Trot Equitation, 10 and Under; first place, Walk-Trot Pleasure, 10 and Under. She snared the most coveted prize of the lot: Youth High Point.

Among all contestants 10 and under competing that day, Judge Redmond proclaimed Kathy the best, awarding her the Youth High Point trophy.

Kathy took home three trophies and one ribbon. But that was for today's competition. In three weeks, she would be entering another competition.

And it would all start over again.

Barbara Graham shows butterfly design quilt she won through a combined effort of Seminole County Extension Homemakers Clubs at the annual Bazaar, Holiday Showcase.

Quilt Winner: 'I Never Won Anything Before'

By DEE GATRELL
Head Correspondent

"I never won anything in my life before," said Barbara Graham, winner of the quilt made by the Seminole County Extension Homemakers Clubs.

The Seminole County Extension Homemakers held their annual bazaar on November 4, at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center. Each club from the county had a table set up with handmade Christmas items. Also there was a country store selling homemade bed goods.

The individual clubs each held a drawing made up of hand-crafted items, with the main prize being an off-white handmade quilt with butterfly designs. Each club made three to five sections of the quilt which was then sewn together to make the quilt into a job effort.

According to Ray Artman, public relations director, there were over 500 people attending the bazaar, a record turnout, she said.

Anyone interested in joining a homemakers club can contact Barbara Hughes, 323-2500.

Birth Certificate Haunts Mother

DEAR ABBY: In 1930 I gave birth to a baby girl out of wedlock. When she was a year old I married a man who she thinks is her father. Today she is a lovely Christian wife and mother.

I am worried now because I'm afraid one day she will have to send for her birth certificate to get a passport or some other reason, and she will learn the truth. Abby, I have cried this room full of tears. Is there any way I can get a birth certificate for my daughter with my husband's name on it as her father?

I am desperate to get this done before I die. I am 73 and more than willing to pay for any trouble you have to go to get this information for me.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Two important questions need answering: Did the man who fathered your daughter sign any paternity papers? Did your husband legally adopt your daughter?

If no paternity papers were signed, and your husband legally adopted your daughter, when the adoption occurred a new set of birth certificates would have been made up naming your husband as your daughter's father. (No mention of adoption appears on these new birth certificates.)

Your state department of health (birth and death records division) has this information on file. It would be wise to ask a lawyer to guide you. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a good man, but he doesn't know how to be a father. He says he loves our children (6, 9 and 11), but he rarely talks to them except when they ask him a

All women who are interested in nursing their babies are invited as are their babies. You need not be pregnant or have a family to attend. If you are a wife and hope some day to have children, if you are a grandmother, nurse or student nurse, you are welcome.

Dear Abby

question or when discipline is needed. He rarely even touches them or takes them anywhere. He rarely goes to school functions or sports events, even when the children are involved. And those very rare occasions when he goes, he always acts as though he'd rather be somewhere else.

We do very little as a family together. Their childish noise dries him into a gloomy silence and he takes off to be alone. On days when he's home, he finds numerous errands to busy himself, or he sleeps late.

I've tried hard to love him and accept him as he is, but I get few compliments on a meal or a well-run house. I know God can heal this home and that is what I am hoping for. I've mentioned my sad situation to some of my friends and find that others have it, too.

When are husbands going to wake up and realize their responsibilities to their families? What do you tell a child who feels fatherless with a father in the house?

Abby, I know he loves us, but how I wish he'd show it. Print this. It might help.

NAMELESS IN MAINE

DEAR NAMELESS: Your problem is a familiar one in many homes. Fathers who don't know how to show love or relate to their children are usually men who themselves had no father-son relationship while growing up. I urge you both to talk to a marriage or family counselor. And if you belong to a church, your clergyman will be happy to counsel you. If your husband is, as you say, a good man, he will want to learn how to be an involved family man. Help him.

Seminole Heights Baptist Church, Sanford, will hear Helen Ruth Masters, a missionary nurse in Nigeria since 1950, in its 7 p.m. service this Sunday, in the Lake Mary High School auditorium. Her message will be the kick-off for the annual emphasis on foreign missions.

A native of Miami, she received her nursing degree from Southern Baptist Hospital in New Orleans, La., then attended Blue Mountain College in Mississippi and Stetson University, from which she received the B.A. degree. Returning to New Orleans, she attended the seminary and completed all the requirements for a Master of Religious Education degree. Later while on furlough, she studied at Maternity Center Association in New York.

Luncheon Speaker

Mrs. Cindy McKinnon from Hospice of Central Florida will speak Monday at the fall luncheon meeting of the Holy Cross Episcopal Churchwomen. The luncheon will be at noon in the church parish hall. Hospice is a program of quality care for the terminally ill and their families which started in England and is now growing in this country. All members of the church are welcome to attend and bring a salad or dessert to share.

Women's Fellowship Meets

The Christian Women's Fellowship will have its monthly meeting Saturday, Nov. 21, at the Ambassadors for Christ House of Prayer, 910 W. Ninth St., Sanford. Coffee and fellowship begin at 5:30 p.m. and the meeting will start at 6 p.m. Guest speaker will be missionary Belinda Robinson from Sanford's Tabernacle of Prayer. The group is open to women of all denominations.

Prison Chaplain To Speak

The Rev. Max Jones a prison chaplain for 35 years who is now involved in a jail ministry with youth in this area will speak this Sunday at the 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. services at First Church of the Nazarene, Sanford, located at 2581 Sanford Ave.

Women Hold Brunch

The Altamonte-Maitland Christian Women's Club will hold its November brunch Thursday from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at Maitland Civic Center on Maitland Avenue. The program will feature a fashion show by The Wearhouse located in Altamonte Springs. Sam Bennett of Pierson will provide the music and Gay Martin of Summerfield will speak.

Anniversary Service Set

The Pulpit Aid Board of New Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church of Midway will celebrate its anniversary this Sunday. Speaker at the 3 p.m. service will be Evangelist Carrie Bousy-Bryant of Sanford. The service is open to the public.

Senior Adult Day

The Senior Adults of First Baptist Church, Sanford, will participate in the 11 a.m. worship service this Sunday. Mrs. Bill Pippin will bring a special piano prelude and Mrs. Elaine Drake will sing "Precious Memories." Shirley Ryan will lead the congregation in singing "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms," "Because I Have Been Given Much," and "The Family of God." R.F. Cooper, Harland Muhs, Mildred Thompson, Roy Britt and Mel Wilkins will lead in the invocation, scripture reading and prayer portions of the service. A Senior Adult Choir will fill the choir loft and open with the call to worship "Surely the Presence." Rev. Paul Murphy will bring a message on "The Art of Aging."

The "Glowing Embers" Senior Adult Organization of First Baptist Church will have its Thanksgiving Dinner Monday, at 6 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Turkey and all the trimmings will be served.

Christian Science Lecture

Bruce Fitzwater, of Portland, Oregon, member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will give a free Christian Science lecture Saturday, Nov. 21, at 3 p.m. in the First Church of Christ Scientist, Orlando, auditorium at 915 N. Fern Creek Ave. His topic will be "The Logical Certainty of Christian Healing."

All Day Meeting

Mildred Len's Evangelistic Ministry, Inc., will hold an all day meeting this Sunday at its new location at Beardall Chapel on South Beardall Road, Sanford. There will be several special speakers and dinner on the ground.

'Good News Is For Sharing'

The final film in the "Good News is for Sharing" series by Leighton Ford will be shown Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at New Life Fellowship Church at the corner of Tusawilla Road and Lake Drive in Casselberry. The topic will be "Sharing Naturally."

Drama in Worship

The Westminster United Presbyterian Church, 2641 Red Bug Road, Casselberry is presenting an all-day workshop this Sunday. Entitled "Creative Worship Through Drama," the morning worship service will deal with "The Drama Of Worship" and will include creative and innovative ways to worship. The service will feature worship through dance, special readings, an illustrated choral work, choral reading as well as the preaching of the Word.

In the afternoon, the workshop will present two contemporary dramas in the sanctuary. Featured will be "The Case Of The Crushed Potatoes" by Tennessee Williams and "The Neighbors" by Zona Gale. Performers are from the Workshop Theatre of Winter Park, Janina Cavin, director.

The all-day workshop is sponsored by the church in cooperation with the Christian Education Committee of Northeast Florida Presbytery. The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. and conclude by 6:30 p.m. Lunch will be served and nursery facilities are available. The public is invited.

'The Lonely Housewife'

"The Lonely Housewife" is the next film in the Dr. James C. Dobson, "Focus on the Family" series to be shown at Longwood Hills Baptist Mission, 1266 E.E. Williamson Road. It will be shown this Sunday at 8:15 p.m. and is open to the public. A nursery is provided. The final film, "Money, Sex and Children" will be shown Nov. 22 at 8:15 p.m.

Bishop Dedicates All Souls Addition

The most Rev. Thomas J. Grady, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Orlando, was the special guest of the Rev. William Ennis and the All Souls Catholic Community last Sunday, afternoon for the open house and dedication of the newly constructed addition to All Souls Catholic School of Sanford. Bishop Grady and Father Ennis led the community in a dedication service featuring the Liturgy of the Word and a Blessing of each new facility.

The building program for All Souls

Catholic School included the renovation of four existing classrooms, the second story construction of four additional classrooms, and the construction of a 4,000 sq. ft. library and community classroom facility. The renovation work included new ceiling, lighting, heating, air-conditioning and additional plumbing for the existing four classrooms. The second story classroom addition consolidated all eight grades of the school into one building. (Grades one through four were previously located a block away). The school and parish activities are now integrated into a total educational and community-centered complex. The architect for the program, William G. Kramer, Ala., designed the library-community facility to provide maximum flexibility of size and use. The northern portion of the building can be used as two classrooms, two community rooms, or one large meeting room seating at least 75 people. The southern portion of the building was designed to accommodate future parish offices, but is now being used for parish executive meetings.

Funds for the $317,000 renovation work and approximately 8,000 sq. ft. of new construction were provided through pledges and donation of the parish community. The architectural firm for the project was Kramer and Kramer Architecture and Planning, and R.W. Roberts Construction Co., Inc. was the contractor. Robert Daehn was chairman of the building committee.

Mrs. Sue Cann sang and played the guitar and led those attending in singing. Also accompanying on the guitar was All Souls student Steve LaPeters.

Flags for the classrooms were presented by the Veteran of Foreign Wars Post 10108 Commander Orville Heiley and his wife, Ada, president of the VFW Auxiliary.

The bishop was assisted by the Rev. Robert Hoeffner, liturgist for the diocese. Servers were All Souls students David Sierputowski, Steve Harrison, and Jimmy Bemosky.

Praise-R-Cise Plans Free Demonstration

Grace United Methodist Church, 114 W. Airport Boulevard, Sanford, will host a free demonstration class for Praise-R-Cise, Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. The new non-denominational Christian Exercise Program is open to the public.

Bernadette DiFrancesco is founder of Praise-R-Cise and Donna Mangold will be the instructor. Dr. Tom Hynowski provides Christian Health Counseling.

Praise-R-Cise includes Christian Aerobic Exercise Routines, Christian music, fellowship, testimonies and commitment, weight control, proper nutrition, stress management, and prayer and praise.

FAITHFUL SERVICE

Mrs. Carl Cherpensing was honored by the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, for 56 years of faithful service to the church. Mrs. Cherpensing, a former school bus driver, was presented by Mrs. Albert Jarrell.

The Holistic Approach To Healing

A growing (but still small) number of doctors in the United States are practicing a new kind of healing. Known as holistic healing, it has brought the accusation of quackery from some members of the medical profession.

There are now 600 members of the American Holistic Association. All of them are licensed medical doctors who charge that orthodox medicine has moved away from treating the whole person (the holistic or wholistic approach) to merely treating the disease.

"A doctor can cure your stomach ulcer but if he doesn't do anything about what caused the ulcer, it can return time and time again," says Dr. Gladys T. McGarey, M.D., president-elect of the American Holistic Medical Association.

Since 1968 she and her husband, Dr. William A. McGarey, M.D., have operated a holistic medical clinic in Phoenix, Ariz. Both are students of the teachings of Edgar Cayce, the late mystic.

"Cayce taught that man is spirit, mind and body," says William McGarey. "The spirit is the life, the mind is the builder and the body is the result. All healing must be done with this total being in mind."

What makes holistic medicine controversial among many medical practitioners is its use of such things as castor oil packs, potato poultices for the eyes ("excellent in the treatment of sties"), acupuncture, visualization (in which the patient pictures healing taking place in the diseased parts of the body), even hypnosis.

"There is no such thing as giving a patient false hope," says Gladys McGarey. "Anything we can do to generate hope in a patient will help him. Every thought produces electrical impulses that can have the same effect as an acupuncture needle."

Such things as drugs and surgery may be used in holistic medicine but Dr. C. Norman Shealy, M.D., a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, is a holistic doctor who believes that "surgery is not always necessary . . ."

SAINTS AND SINNERS

George Plagenz

"Surgery," he says, "is performed four times as often on Blue Cross-Blue Shield patients as on prepaid care patients. This strongly suggests that not all surgeons operate strictly out of necessity."

Author of "Occult Medicine Can Save Your Life," Shealy contends that "herb medicines, folk medicine, faith healing, electrical and magnetic influences, diet, homeopathy and osteopathy all have their adherents and we must not forget their successes."

Shealy adds that "the real challenge for doctors is to learn the true value of all therapeutic systems and to know our patients well enough to make suggestions that suit their condition."

Acupuncture, he says, helps about 25 percent of chronic-pain sufferers.

Dr. Robert J. White, the nationally renowned neurosurgeon, is one who resents the charge of holistic doctors that the medical profession today is made up of doctors who show a lack of caring for their patients as persons.

"We are reported and described as insensitive and unknowledgeable in the subtleties of dealing with the whole patient and looked upon as incomplete physicians," says White.

Holistic critics of the medical profession, he says, "have missed the very core of the requirement of the physician—the need to be a highly trained and experienced scientist-technician."

What Is Poverty?

What is poverty? By all means realize that poverty is not a state of a man's finances; not being without a job; not living in a run down condition; and being hungry. It is far more than that.

In truth there is as much poverty among the rich as the poor. There are many people rich, who are worth a lot of money, but nothing else. They are poor, so very poor, they contribute nothing to noble living; they are poor in character, conduct, in any grasp of a spiritual life, poor in the training of their children, and often their home life is a disgrace to society.

Poverty then is not easy to put your hand on and cure. The poor are injured and sick, and no government has a cure for their many and serious ills. Jesus knew that when He sent His apostles to preach the gospel to the poor.

What is poverty then? It is living in a state of no knowledge of God, no truth about divine things, and no real respect for mankind. It is low and degrading to itself and seriously harmful to others.

And this, too: anyone can be poor. Christ says poverty is inside man and not on the outside, and unless something radical is done within him, he will forever be useless and in need.

This is not to say Jesus neglected those who were poverty stricken materially, but it does mean it gives the word "poverty" a greater expanded meaning than what we commonly limit it to in everyday terminology. Winifred Holby wrote, "South Hiding," and someone who read the book objected to it saying there were no genuinely good people in it. She gives an intriguing reply, "I intended to make them good, but they would not be good." Man-made schemes to make poverty stricken people good will end in failure. The poverty stricken, be they rich or poor in material things, need the gospel preached to them. This is the answer to true poverty.

Congregational

The late Will Rogers was asked on one occasion "Mr. Rogers, what is wrong with the world?" His meaningful answer was, "I guess it's people."

What then is poverty? It is usually a failure to make use of time and talent, a lack of faith in God and His word. Benjamin Franklin said, "Poverty often deprives a man of all spirit and virtue; it is hard for an empty bag to stand upright."

The poverty stricken need the gospel preached to them. A new man in an old suit is far better than an old man in a new suit.

Adventists Conduct Appeal

Sanford Adventist Church at 708 Elm Ave., will join sister congregations throughout the state in conducting its annual door-to-door appeal to raise funds for its community services. Area business men will also be contacted between now and Dec. 31. The church's goal is $3,000.

The unpaid volunteers who will be soliciting can be identified by their lapel badge and the "These Times" booklets they will be handing out, according to Pastor Ken Bryant.

Year-round contributions from church members pay for 90 percent of the costs of community services such as the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking and the Natural Way to Weight Control programs, held recently in Sanford, and leper colonies, clinics, child-tutoring, and health screening projects in 180 countries.

Thanksgiving At Holy Cross

Holy Cross Episcopal Church, Sanford, will celebrate Thanksgiving Day with a Holy Eucharist in the church at 11 a.m. Afterwards there will be a covered dish dinner in the parish hall. This will be a family Thanksgiving dinner for those members who cannot spend the holiday with their families. Turkey will be provided and those attending will bring vegetables or salads to share. Entertainment is planned.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL For Sunday, November 15, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY November 15, 1981 You'll be able to recognize and take advantage of opportunities that friends or co-workers may overlook in the coming year. Knowledge gained from experience is what will enable you to capitalize. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're capable today, which may be more obvious to others than to you. The only thing that could hold you back is needless self-doubt. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 488, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep those who are not directly involved out of your personal affairs today. An onlooker with no vested interest may try to gum things up for you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Compromise will be necessary today if you hope to work out an important agreement amicably. Be prepared to yield a little in order to make a deal. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Once you set your mind to something today, there's your small doubt you'll achieve your purpose. Be careful, though, not to drive those who assist you too hard. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be a gracious winner today in a competitive activity.

For Monday, November 16, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY November 16, 1981 You will be lucky and resourceful this coming year in ways that can add to your material growth and enhance your security. Unusual changes and conditions will work out for your ultimate benefit. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your intuitive perceptions, usually rather accurate, could be off target today. However, if you rely totally on that splendid mind of yours, success is inevitable. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 488, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Some unusual, but beneficial, conditions are stirring at this time. They could represent a major turning point in your life. Be doubly alert today. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A venture that hasn't looked too promising could take a surprising turn for the better today. The new conditions may be brought about by someone else. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you could learn an important lesson - not to prejudice someone before you get to know him or her. You'll find a pal where you didn't think one existed. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't despair if things haven't been going too well lately where your career is concerned. Beginning today, there should be a marked improvement. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wary of making snap decisions today. Your initial evaluations may not be your best. After you study matters, your judgment improves. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Workwise, plan your moves carefully today if you hope to be productive. Once you take on a task, be sure to see it through. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are shopping for a large ticket item today, don't be afraid to haggle for a bargain. With some shrewd horse trading, you can get a better price. CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have the ability today to turn losing situations into profitable ones if you apply yourself. Use your smarts where dollars and cents are concerned. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Not too much is likely to be accomplished today unless you are pressed or challenged. When the burners are turned up, it ignites your enthusiasm and drive. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find yourself in a situation today where you feel you are giving more than you are getting in return. Keep cool. All will balance out eventually. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An opportunity may present itself today to give you a chance to strengthen bonds in a relationship that has been a bit shaky lately.
