

KIWANIAN TO OPPOSE FRENCH AVENUE ROUTE

The visit of the Washington Americans to Florida in 1924 was the first real spring training session of any club, was the belief expressed by Connie Mack, the great Athletics leader. He related the amusing eccentricities of Rube Waddell, an outstanding pitcher of last year.

"Ball players of today are fitted to the last minute. They must take better care of themselves than the average business man," Mr. Mack asserted. "I believe the training undergone by the Milwaukee team here should bring results and the prospects for their winning the pennant, I believe are unusually good."

E. F. Lane presided at the request of Rev. E. D. Brown, president, and called for all those present to introduce themselves. Short talks were delivered by J. Putnam Stevens, past imperial potentate of the atistic Shrine, from Portland, Mo.; Art Shiners, Bryn Griffith and Manning Vaughn, Milwaukee newspapermen; Harry Clark, manager of the Browns; Rev. Brownie, R. H. Berg, business manager of The Sanford Herald; L. C. Bebout, secretary of the Kiwanis Club and Sherry Maggee, former big league star.

Judge Sharon, chairman, and L. B. Steele, members of the committee to secure a fire whistle, were requested to inquire as to when the whistle will be installed here. The death of two negroes in a fire Monday night caused the matter to be discussed.

Sid Rivo, local business man, and former catcher of the Chicago Cubs, rendered several vocal numbers, as well as a quartet from the Milwaukee club composed of Meillo, Thompson, Walgal and McCarthy. The accompanist was J. Van Houten.

A request that the Milwaukee club make Sanford their permanent training camp was made in the adoption of a resolution.

WALTER SHEAN IDENTIFIED AS COP'S ASSAILER

(Continued from page 1) among all the crooks of the country as the man who conducts a haven for ex-convicts at your father's hotel, the Cooley, in Springfield, and who 'stakes' men out of prison until they do a 'job' when you get your usual 15 per cent out of the booty.

Shean's reply was an angrily chanted "no."

Admits Trouble.

Frodded by Groat's searching questions, he admitted he had trouble with the government on at least two stolen bond deals. He insisted that in one case he had purchased the bonds, which he knew to have been stolen, from Joseph Marshall, of Springfield, and then telephoned the department of justice at Washington about it. At this point Groat introduced two of Shean's admittedly worthless checks, one of them with shall, having been cashed by a Mrs. Cunningham, an elderly maid in the Hotel Somerset, New York. It was for $350. Shean insisted he had given the check to Marshall and that he had not received the money, although he finally admitted that his father had been in communication with Mrs. Cunningham concerning repayment of her loss. Shean denied he had been promised leniency or immunity for his testimony.

AVIATORS LOST IN EVERGLADES ARE FOUND IN SAFETY

"The lost men were a most happy pair," said Mr. Haldeeman, who returned here at 7 o'clock tonight with the news. He said that they had some light food and plenty of good water and with some tape repaired the cracked cylinder and although the lost men were not considered strong enough to man their ships, they insisted and were off for Sebring as fast as possible, no trouble being experienced in taking on the landing field at Sebring is six miles from that city. A leaky cylinder when the two were speeding homeward at an altitude of about 1,000 feet forced them to seek safety in a forced landing, immediately after lighting they set to work to repair the motor. How Will You Meet THIS First?

Today's mail will be heavy with statements of accounts. Literally thousands of Sanford's people—people whose character and honor are unquestioned—will receive the customary reports and immediately tens of thousands of dollars will begin to come back to the merchants for the goods which they have been selling during the past month.

It's a wonderful thing—Credit is. It is the very foundation of commerce and prosperity. And it is a wonderful tribute to mankind that a mere gentleman's agreement is all that is necessary, in most cases, to permit the average citizen to buy whatever he may need.

If you have been in the habit of letting your accounts drag, forcing the merchant to carry you for excessive periods of time, this is a great time to make a new start. Make SOME KIND of a settlement by the tenth. You will think more of yourself for it.

it's never uphill to the man on the level.

Make A Week Of It

Who will take the lead for a great May Day party for Sanford?

The Herald has in mind a "party" lasting a week and two days, beginning with a big community picnic, with a "Queen of the May", a maypole dance 'n everything, on Friday, May 1, opening a week-and-a-day program of town betterment of one kind and another.

Friday's ceremonies could include the festival idea and some "get started" speech-making—short and snappy speeches—dealing with different phases of possible improvement work for Sanford and Seminole county. Each speaker could represent a committee selected to carry on some special part of the intended work, and recruits could be mustered from the festival crowd which would be composed of everybody who gives a thought to Sanford's better fortunes.

Saturday, following the picnic, could be turned over to the boys and girls of Sanford, with teams competing in public service stunts. Several groups of sturdy boys could do wonders toward the removal of weeds and rubbish from vacant lots and neglected door yards. Several groups of girls could be organized to do plant hundreds of hardy foliage plants, and pledge the care of such plants until they are safely growing in their new homes.

There isn't space here, nor would The Herald feel competent, to list all the good "stunts" that Sanford boys and girls could do in that one big Saturday. Interested leaders in such work could plan and achieve some wonderful things.

On Sunday the preachers and the churches could contrive some special community service whose influence would continue in week-day carrying out of brotherhood work. This program, too, is one that could be safely left in the hands of the fine men and women who are responsible for the success of Sanford church work. Spiritual and moral betterment of Sanford could be included in a "Town Improvement Week" quite effectively.

On Monday the city authorities could take a hand and use the week in a general clean-up program. Streets could be washed, side-walks scrubbed, and every ordinance providing for sanitary conditions in the city enforced with the strictest impartiality.

Altogether such a week, with a "Clean Up, Paint Up, Plant-A-Flower" slogan could set Sanford forward many a mile on its road of progress. Every civic organization, every social organization, every business concern, and every individual could contribute to the success of such a week, with Sanford getting a whole lot of good advertising along with the practical home benefits that would immediately result. Give us a May Day with plenty of pep, and "A Week of Stunts for Sanford."

Beware of Crooks

Florida people are continually being warned by newspapers against crooks, shysters, second story men and wire tappers, who seem to find this state a lucrative field for operation, and yet doubtless there will ever remain enough gullible people to provide a good living for the lawbreakers.

Quite recently a woman, Ethel B. Thompson, appeared with something rather original in the line of fleecing. According to the daily report of the Sanford Credit Association, she went about her work as follows:

This woman is about thirty-three years of age, five feet and ten inches tall, rather dark complexion, dresses neat, has the appearance of outdoor sports, pleasing personality and talks very fluently, weighs about one hundred and forty pounds.

She came to Winter Haven, Fla., some ten days ago, deposited eighty-one dollars in a local bank there, asking this bank to take care of money which would be sent to her at this bank, leaving the impression that the money expected would come as rent from property which she owned. She then came to Lakeland and bought any amount of goods from local stores, giving checks in the amounts of twenty, thirty and thirty-five dollars for said goods, securing a part of these amounts in cash.

She seems to have operated very successfully and secured between four and five hundred dollars in merchandise and cash money, beating it back to Winter Haven, drawing out her deposit and leaving to parts unknown, and she will very likely operate this same plan in other cities in Florida. Be on the look out for this party. If apprehended notify this office Phone 666.

So while it is always well to be courteous to strangers, lend them a helping hand in every way possible, be generous with your hospitality, in money matters it is perhaps best to keep at least one hand in the immediate vicinity of your pocketbook, and when in doubt, notify your banker, or the police department.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

BY IRVIN S. COBB

When the circus reached the small Vermont town the proprietor feared for a while that his afternoon performance might lack its chief feature. The star of the aggregation was Zeno, the Mexican knife thrower, answering in private life to the name of Hennessy. Twice a day Zeno, dressed in gaudy trappings would enter the arena accompanied by his wife, a young, plump and pretty woman in pink tights, and followed by a roustabout bearing a basket full of long bowie-knives and shining battle axes. While the band played an appropriate selection of shivery music the young woman would flatter herself against a background of blue blanking which had been erected in the middle of the ring. There she would pose motionless, her arms outstretched and her feet close together. Then Zeno, stationed himself 40 feet from her, would fling his knives and axes at her missing her each time by the narrowest of margins. Presently her form would be completely outlined by the deadly steel blades which pinned her fast.

As Brisbane Sees It

It Rained in Wall Street. A Hint to Soldiers. Mr. Bircher's Dead Wife. Cocktails, Then Food. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1924)

SAD TIMES in Wall Street yesterday. The sky was weeping, and so were the speculators. Many "active" stocks showed their activity on the way downhill, going to new, low prices for the year. However, this is the richest country and the most fortunate country in the world. It has the wealth, the industrial intelligence, it has the gold and it has the future.

Nothing to worry those that invest. Those that gamble must always worry, more or less.

ON APRIL 26 General Mitchell to whom this country owes what information it has about the air defense situation, becomes a Colonel and will be sent to Texas to work under General Hines. The latter probably will learn something about flying.

Men in the Army now learn that the way to get ahead is to keep their mouths shut, uttering no protest against their superior officials if the latter happen to be more interested in the profits of battleship builders than in the welfare of their country.

JOHN BIRCHER, seventy-three years old, murdered his wife, then killed himself.

Mr. Bircher had prayed in public for the conversion of his wife to exactly the religious ideas that he carried around in his massive brain. When she declined to be converted, he murdered her. By killing himself he at least rid the world of one dangerous nuisance.

YOU READ with horror of such a crime, but you find comfort in this thought:

There was a time, not long ago, when nations and organized religions within the nations did on a gigantic scale exactly what this half crazy man in Ohio did to his wife.

It is a blessing that murdering people because of religious ideas is now confined to maniacs. We no longer torture and burn human beings because we don't happen to like their ideas on religion.

CHARLES A. WOOD, a probation officer, who sees a good deal of family trouble, says that drink as a wrecker of homes has become worse under prohibition.

You understand that when you hear about "combination cocktail and dinner parties." Ladies and gentlemen gather at the house of some friend to drink cocktails, and having thus thoroughly poisoned their systems, and searched their mucous membrane from one end to the other, they adjourn to a restaurant to eat.

The result of this charming American custom will appear in death statistics later on.

PERU AND Chile have a misunderstanding about certain territories, and a plebiscite, a vote of people living on the spot, will decide the matter.

Peru asks the United States to guarantee the fairness of that plebiscite, and that might mean meddling with affairs not ours. This nation has the friendliest feeling for Peru, and the same for Chile.

Our interference in South American affairs should be limited to interfering if powers from across the oceans try to seize South American territory. Outside of that we should leave it to the South Americans to settle South American matters.

IN AMERICA we have money traveling in families, generation after generation—the Astors, Vanderbilts, for instance.

In England they seem to have here and there, mental power traveling in families, not for one or two generations only, but for centuries.

Lord Salisbury is to succeed Lord Curzon as Government leader in the House of Commons. Salisbury's father was Prime Minister but rather old-fashioned. Salisbury's cousin is Balfour and his brother is Lord Robert Cecil, one of the most astute British statesmen.

Ability in this family runs all the way back to the days of Queen Elizabeth, who had Lord Bureleigh, ancestor of the Cecil, doing her thinking for her.

They take statesmanship seriously in England, where young men of wealth often devote themselves to public affairs at an age when our young men devote themselves to Palm Beach, race horses and young ladies with emotional temperaments.

IN THE German election for President no candidate got enough votes to elect him, so another election is necessary. The vote was encouraging for the German people and for solid government. The Republican party got 2,900,000 more votes than Braun, the Socialist candidate.

YOU KNOW THAT SPRING GARDEN FEELING

TRIUMPHANT FLORIDA

Florida is—or rather was five-years ago—the last great unclaimed wilderness in the United States. Today, hand in hand with a real estate boom that makes a Klondike rush seem tame, a southern boom is in progress, the child of the best pioneer instinct. The skeptical, reading of vast fortunes made on the proverbial shoestring, shake their heads and recall dimly the boom days elsewhere.

For the moment, however, development is the rage. It is the great game, just as building up the West was a magnificent adventure for so many. Moreover, much of it is in the hands of men who have made good elsewhere, and who, coming to Florida for brief winter vacation, have been fired with the possible future of this great Winter garden, and beginning first by "taking a fling" on the side, have had the old boom spirit reborn in them, and have joined in reclaiming new life and unlimited optimism.

Under all this extravagance there are sound foundations. They fall into two general classes, the resorters, who fill the hotels and cover the beaches and golf links, and those who want a quite home away from the bitter northern cold. These are the salvation of the State for these are the ones who will become producers. The others bring wealth and boom the tourist business. But the real future of Florida lies in the richness of her soil. Once drained, it will grow almost anything. To those who do not want to live in complete idleness these garden qualities offer a great attraction.

SERIOUS HORSEMANSHIP

While the country waits anxiously for some intimation that President Coolidge will change his mind and buy a new hat for Easter, it is reassuring to know that he takes his horsemanship seriously. The steed the President rides is, as the world knows, neither a prancing baby, nor a champing chestnut, nor a black, hard mouth gallopers. If the animal gallops it is on the wings of the President's fiery imagination. If he bucks—and we are assured he does buck—it is because some one has pressed an electric button.

Miss Lake Figures In Tampa Wedding

An elaborate account of the beautiful wedding of Miss Sarah Lakes Kelley and Charles Carroll Green which took place in Tampa, Florida, in which Miss Lakes was the bride, appeared in the Tampa Tribune of Wednesday.

Among the descriptions of the many beautiful gowns worn by the members of the wedding party was the following:

Miss Lakes was attired in a particularly lovely gown of gray georgette, the close fitting waist made plain, save for a lavender ribbon caught at one shoulder with soft, full skirt ornamented with large lavender lilies and roses, and embroidered in between in green and white. A picture hat of lavender horsehair braid trimmed in roses, was most becoming.

Library Notes

The library wishes to acknowledge with many thanks a valuable set of books, "Confederate Military History," which was given to the S. de V. Chapter of the U. D. C. in memory of the late Dr. D. C. V. Howard, and presented by them to the library. The set is edited by Gen. Clement A. Evans, of Atlanta, and it is a library of Confederate States History, in 12 volumes, written by distinguished men of the South.

There are many calls for historical writings from the Southern point of view, it is a valuable addition to the library collection, and the gift is much appreciated.

BURNS PROGRAM

The Robert Burns program given by Mrs. Owen last week was very much enjoyed by the large number present. Mrs. Owen gave many interesting facts gathered from personal knowledge of that part of Scotland, and several Scotch records were played, loaned by Mrs. Paxton for the occasion. Next week Mr. Halt has been asked to give a Nature number, which will probably include some of the Lake poets of England. All are invited to attend.

STORY HOUR

Miss May Holly will conduct the Library Story Hour next Saturday morning, and will give a delightful program. The children who will assist are Margaret Torrance, Sarah Moyer, Eva Cunningham, Gayle Peabody and T. W. Russell. There were over fifty present last week, and all greatly enjoyed the stories told by Mrs. Sainholzer and the other numbers given by several of the children present.

Negro Speaker To Make Address Here

Charles S. Morris, Jr., negro, Ph. D. of the University of Chicago, will deliver a lecture at 8 o'clock at the Trinity Church, C. M. E. Thursday night on "The Measure of the Man." Morris is characterized as a brilliant speaker and an invitation to both white persons and negroes to attend the lecture has been extended.

Morris recently completed a tour of California where, it is estimated, he addressed more than 50,000 persons during the trip. He will make only one talk in Sanford.

50 Acres of Hot Water Is Found

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Apr. 2.—A second hot water lake, 50 acres in extent has been discovered in the Mount Baker national forest in northwestern Washington, it was announced here recently by W. J. Elliott, prospector and explorer, who said he found it last summer. The other lake of hot water in the Mount Baker preserve is about 300 acres in size.

The new lake, Elliott said, is at an altitude of about 5,000 feet, and he estimated the temperature of its waters at 112 degrees Fahrenheit. It is located in very rugged country to the east of Mount Baker.

Three hot springs have been located in the Mount Baker national forest.

BRASS KNOPS STILL UNPAID

LONDON, April 2.—Furnituremen who suffered damages during the war from the German air raids over London have been paid a total of $25,000,000 as compensation by the government. This amount is, however, considered inadequate by the claimants, some of whom have received nothing, and they now suggest that German reparation money be diverted to their benefit.

Former Vice-President Says Cal's Silence Is 'Unanswerable Argument'

HARRY B. HUNT
WASHINGTON, Apr. 2.—Membership in the United States Senate has become almost a family affair in Delaware. Both politically and financially, the Bayard-du Pont families seem to have this small but wealthy commonwealth safely pocketed.

Thomas Francis Bayard, senior senator from the gunpowder state, is the sixth in his immediate line to sit in the Senate.

A Bayard as senator from Delaware has come to seem a necessity. It has become almost a tradition to appoint a Bayard.

And down east, here, precedent and tradition are still mighty powerful.

Bayard's father, his grandfather, his great-grandfather and a great-uncle, on his maternal side, have served his state in the Senate.

On his mother's side, his great-grandfather, Richard Bassett, sat in the Senate at the same time his great-grandfather, James Ashton Bayard, held Delaware's other seat.

Both Delaware seats, for that matter, might be said to be in the same family today. For T. Coleman du Pont, financial overlord of the state and junior senator, is a cousin also to Mrs. du Pont, which further interweaves the relationship.

For that matter, Mrs. Bayard is a cousin also to Mrs. du Pont, which further interweaves the relationship.

At First Thought It May Seem Strange That One Family Should Obtain Such Lasting Political Dominance Over a State.

When one turns to the census figures, however, and discovers that the total population of Delaware is less than that of the average single congressional district in most states, it seems less surprising.

Rio Spends $400,000 In Carnival Games

Rio de Janeiro, April 12.—The carnival of 1925 is over and the city today is festering from its three days and four nights of merry-making. Banks and business houses are closed, and the street cleaners are huddled away cart loads of colored paper from the principal streets like snow in an American city after a winter storm.

Confetti and serpentine cost more this year than they did in 1924, but even the increase in price did not prevent a large consumption. One hundred tons of the former and 250 of the latter were tossed about the streets by the pleasure-seeking crowds, it is estimated. Rio's bill for the celebration is placed at $400,000.

No masks were worn this year on account of recent political disturbances.

Some large species of trout are found in Australian streams.

The Outlet is offering wonderful values in the latest Spring fashions. Millinery for Easter is also reduced.
