Rocket launch delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL — After last week's nail-biting shuttle mission, the organization that owns the satellite saved by spacewalking astronauts wanted nothing more than a quiet launch Wednesday of an unmanned rocket. It was quiet all right. The launch was canceled because of a last-minute engine fuel problem.

Cuts hurt high schools

Lake Mary says they're serious

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The impact of the staff cuts at Lake Mary High School, according to principal Don Smith, is going to be "serious."

Smith said that 11 teachers, an assistant principal, two counselors, an occupational specialist, four clerical employees and two custodial workers will be unemployed at the end of the month. Three of the teaching jobs were temporary in nature, but eight full-time positions were cut.

"We're, of course, going to try to restructure to attempt to meet the needs of our young people," Smith said. "It won't be easy, though."

The teacher cuts at Lake Mary came from the areas of language arts, fine arts, business and science. While the losses have not touched every area, Smith said, the impact of the losses will be felt by the whole school community.

As at all schools, the cuts were made based on seniority. The date of hire was the sole basis for the decision. That, the principal said, was not an easy task.

"It's certainly not something we'd choose to do," Smith noted. "It's not easy to bring people into the office who are doing a satisfactory, positive job and to have to tell them

Seminole says pupils suffer

SANFORD — The bottom line, Gretchen Schapker said, is that students will suffer.

Schapker, principal of Seminole High School, said that the loss of three classroom teachers, an occupational specialist, a guidance counselor and five clerical assistance will make things more difficult at the school.

"These cuts are not good for anyone, especially the students," Schapker said.

The class size at the school will average 29 students per teacher, up from 28 per teacher this year.

"It may not sound like much," Schapker said, "but it is."

The teachers lost were in the English, social studies and physical education departments, according to Schapker. Two were first year teachers, the third was in the second year on the job.

Assistant principal Verna Jackson, whose administrative position has been eliminated, will return to the classroom as an English teacher. She had been employed in that capacity at Seminole High for several years before becoming an assistant principal at the start of this school year.

Sanford Mayor Betty Smith proclaimed Memorial Day, May 28, as "A Special Day to Honor our Heroic Dead." With her at a World War II artillery piece at the Sanford American Legion Post 53, 2874 Sanford Ave., are: Horace Paul, (left) chairman of the Seminole County Area Veterans Advisory Council and president of the Fleet Reserve Association; Russ Germain, VFW District 18 employment officer and parade coordinator; Bill Hill, commander of American Legion Post 83; and Kenneth Golden, commander of DAV Chapter 30.

Parade steps off Monday

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — The annual Memorial Day Parade is scheduled for Monday through the streets of downtown Sanford. The event will culminate with services at the Memorial Park flag pole area on the Lake Monroe lakefront.

The parade will step off from the Chamber of Commerce parking lot on First Street at Sanford Avenue, at approximately 10:45 Monday morning. It will then travel west on First Street to Park, then north on Park, expecting to reach the flag at Memorial Park on the lakefront at 11 a.m.

Approximately 20 units are expected in the parade, including those from the Jr. ROTC, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, American Legion, Fleet Reserve, Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, and many others.

Music for the marchers will be supplied by the Dixieland Rascals.

The Seminole County Veterans Advisory Council is heading up the parade organization. □ See Parade, Page 8A

Furlong wants borrow-pit ordinance study

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioner Larry Furlong said the county's 15-month-old borrow pit ordinance may need revisions to assure adequate groundwater protection.

"I was not comfortable making decisions about borrow pit requests because it appears staff was not reviewing all the aspects of these pits," said Furlong Tuesday.

The North Lake Jesup Property Owners Association will ask county commissioners next Tuesday to not allow any new borrow pits until a study of the cumulative impacts of the mining operations can be studied. Commissioners will consider a request by expressway builder White Construction Co. to build a 18.5-acre pit next to the expressway path southwest of South Sanford Avenue and Pine Way.

White has also applied for a permit to dig a 19.5-acre pit east of South Sanford Avenue and north of Pine Way. County staff area also reviewing a third proposed pit northeast of Silver Lake Drive.

At Furlong's request, Glenn Semanisin, director of the county Development Review Division, is comparing a year-old Lake County ordinance with the county's own borrow pit ordinance, strengthened in January 1991 at the request of Geneva residents who were concerned about a flurry of pit proposals in their community.

Furlong said the Lake County ordinance appears to address water quality issues in a more comprehensive manner, but admitted to a lack of expertise in such issues and referred the document to Semanisin. Semanisin said the dirt mining circumstances in Lake County may be different than those in Seminole County. Semanisin said many of the pits in Lake County are many times larger than any sought or approved in Seminole County. The largest borrow pit permit granted by the county so far is about 2 million cubic yards. Semanisin said Lake County's pits are often 100 million cubic yards in size or larger.

Sexual abuse charged

Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrested Alonzo Kirk Harmon, 34, of Altamonte Springs on Tuesday. The arrest was made at 1345 28th Street in Sanford where he was located by deputies. According to the deputies report, two cases of child abuse were originally reported on April 1, from girls aged 9 and 12, at Hungerford Elementary School in Eatonville. During their investigation, deputies report the children identified Harmon, who was described in the report as a friend of their family and an occasional baby sitter. The sexual assaults were said to have taken place during a five year time period. Harmon has been placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, on two charges of sexual battery on a child.

Traffic stop brings arrest

Seminole sheriff's deputies arrested Dennis R. Lawrence, 24, of 37 Lake Monroe Terrace Tuesday, following a license check at Interstate 4. He was charged with driving with a revoked driver's license, and driving with a suspended driver's license. The deputy reported a computer check revealed Lawrence had 10 previous license suspensions.

Additional charge against jailed man

•Huron James Braxton, 40, 106 Franklin Arms Apartments, Sanford, who had been confined to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Saturday on five separate charges plus being wanted on an outstanding warrant, has also been served a writ on Tuesday for a contempt of court charge.

Warrants served:

•Joseph John Ruvalo, 50, of 311 Park Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his home Tuesday afternoon. He was wanted on a Governor's Warrant issued by the State of Colorado, for unlawful possession of a controlled substance.

•Sydell DeCarlo Brundige, 27, of 3041 W. 23rd Street, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Tuesday near his residence. He was wanted on a Seminole County warrant charging him with failure to make a court appearance.

•Donna Sherrie Thornton, 27, of 1124 Pomegranate Street, Sanford, was arrested at her residence by sheriff's deputies Tuesday. She was wanted on a warrant charging her with violation of parole on a conviction of delivery of cocaine to a minor.

•Joseph Williams, 36, of 1750 Rose Berry Lane, Sanford, was located by sheriff's deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a battery conviction and violation of parole on a conviction of possession of more than 20 grams of a controlled substance. During an investigation, the deputy reported finding a number of drug related items in his home. He was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

Incidents reported to Sanford police

•Nine classrooms of Hamilton Elementary School, 1501 E. 8th Street, Sanford, were reported burglarized early Tuesday morning. Principal Caren Gager reported entry had apparently been made by breaking open the glass doors of the rooms. Deputies report the rooms had been ransacked, but the items that may have been taken were not immediately determined.

•A semi-trailer was reportedly burglarized Tuesday, in a fenced compound, at Consolidated Freightways Company, 110 Rand Yard Road. Police report the lock on the gate had been broken, and the trailer entered. Items taken were reported to be 12 boxes of shoes valued at $900.

•A residential burglary was reported Tuesday morning at the home of Lori Ann Howington, 2504 Clairmont Avenue in Sanford. Items missing were reported to be $30 in currency taken from the master bedroom, and five packs of cigarettes.

Shooting may be attempted murder, suicide

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Patricia Martin Parrish, bleeding from a stab wound in her back and a bullet hole in her neck apparently leapt through a glass window to avoid her murder in the pre-dawn hours at Redding Gardens Wednesday, police now believe.

"We are waiting for some additional test results but we are heading in the direction that it was an attempted murder-suicide," said Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett this morning.

Parrish, 37, had improved from serious to stable condition by this morning at Orlando Regional Medical Center and was expected to be moved out of the intensive care unit today. Parrish, believed to live at 818 E. 10th St., was airlifted to ORMC at about 5 a.m. yesterday after she was found lying on the ground in a bed of broken glass beneath the shattered window.

Harriett said Parrish told investigators last night she and General Rhyem, 55, began the fight in Rhyem's bedroom at his 16 Redding Gardens apartment. Parrish told police Rhyem produced a knife and stabbed her at least once in the back. The couple then moved into the living room area where Parrish said Rhyem brandished a handgun at her.

Harriett said Parrish was shot once in the neck and she told police she jumped through the screen and glass window to escape.

Be careful

The American dream is hindered by too many obstacles: unsafe cities, slow economic growth, an out-of-date education system and dependency-creating government programs. So said President Bush upon striking an agreement with congressional leaders to provide post-riot help for the nation's cities.

Mr. Bush announced a six-point "action plan" that attempts to lift those obstacles. It includes tax breaks for new businesses that locate in impoverished inner cities, an anti-crime initiative, incentives for home ownership, welfare changes, education reforms and jobs for inner-city youths.

The object, Mr. Bush said, is "to restore hope and to bring some cohesion to these communities and offer these young people some opportunities."

Each of the six planks of the president's urban agenda has merit. The administration's proposed Weed and Seed program, for instance, is modeled after successful pilot projects in Trenton, N.J., and Kansas City, Mo. It aims to "weed" inner city neighborhoods of drug dealers and violent criminals and "seed" these poor communities with job-placement and other social services.

The president's so-called HOPE program would provide grants to help public housing residents purchase and manage their dwellings. Initially, 36,000 low-income families would be eligible for home ownership. Another 65,000 would qualify later.

Mr. Bush proposes to designate 50 urban enterprise zones throughout the country over the next five years. Businesses that start up in such zones and provide jobs for inner-city workers would not pay federal taxes on profits made from their investment.

The president also would offer poor parents a choice of educating their children in either public, private or parochial schools. Unfortunately, school choice for the poor is the least likely of Mr. Bush's empowerment proposals to be approved by Congress.

The administration's welfare reform plank would encourage thrift among poor families by increasing the asset limit to $10,000 for recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. As it is now, a poor family can lose its benefits if it saves more than $1,000, and even that paltry sum is not indexed for inflation.

Finally, Mr. Bush aims to bring all of the federal job-training programs under one tent to improve the coordination, and thus the efficiency, of government efforts to train and employ inner-city youths.

Altogether, this adds up to a radical departure from present approaches to inner-city poverty, the President declared. If adopted, his action plan will cost taxpayers at least $2 billion.

Before the president and Congress move full speed ahead with a multibillion-dollar plan for inner cities, they should ask themselves whether it will provide more than a negligible improvement in urban poverty rates. If they can say with confidence that inner-city problems will subside appreciably, they should move forward. If they cannot, they should go back to the drawing board in search of bolder approaches to ameliorate the fundamental causes of urban decay.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

What should new world order do?

President Bush stirred up quite a williwaw when he used the expression "a new world order" to describe the presumably better world that he hoped would emerge following the end of the Cold War.

Various chronic hysterics immediately drew wildly implausible parallels with Hitler's use of the same expression to describe his own vision of a Nazi-dominated globe. More cautious critics charged that what Mr. Bush really had in mind was a relatively benign "Pax Americana": The domination of the world by a single superpower, with the United Nations reduced to playing the role of fig-leaf for exercises of American influence. Far better, they argued, to leave the world's future to the United Nations, the true "last, best hope of Earth."

Now, I happen to think — and also to hope — that what Mr. Bush has in mind is indeed a sort of Pax Americana. It seems perfectly clear to me that, for the foreseeable future, the United States alone will possess the military and economic power, and the political prestige, to lead the world's nations. That is not to say it won't need the help of its recent Cold War allies, or that Germany and Japan may not, in the 21st century, give Uncle Sam serious competition for global economic primacy. But this country certainly cannot retreat now (as the America Firsters would have it do) into an inward-looking isolationism that ignores the deep inter-relations between our interests and those of the rest of the world. Still less should we try to clothe with real power a United Nations whose majority, as recently as four or five years ago, was actively seeking to cripple the free world.

But what does, or ought, "leading the world" amount to? New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis is appalled at Serbia's aggression against Croatia and Bosnia, and he correctly noted in a recent column: "The only thing that would have stopped (Serbia) was a credible threat of force." He then exclaimed sarcastically: "Some world order.... What has happened to the man who three days after Iraq grabbed Kuwait said, 'This will not stand?'"

In short, Lewis conceives it as Mr. Bush's duty to lead the world in a retaliatory military strike; specifically, to seize control of the air over the former Yugoslavia, with a clear threat to do more if Serbia's aggression does not cease.

If that isn't calling on Uncle Sam to "act as the world's policeman," what would be? Such blind insistence on the status quo, or even on strictly peaceful methods of changing the status quo, is precisely what the new world order ought not to try to compel.

The analogy to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait is fallacious. Saddam Hussein was clearly threatening to invade Saudi Arabia and the oil emirates. If he had occupied these he could have brought Japan and Western Europe to their knees in a matter of weeks by cutting off a critical proportion of their oil supply. To prevent such a catastrophe was a thoroughly proper concern of the new world order, and of the United States as its leader.

Unfortunately, even our State Department shows signs of being unable to distinguish between the truly important and the merely distressing.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Amend the U.S. Constitution

I argue today in favor of two amendments to the U.S. Constitution, and I want you to know that I do not come lightly to this conclusion.

The founding documents are to me the nearest thing to Holy Writ ever conceived by mortal man. Unlike George Bush, who is on record in favor of six constitutional amendments, I believe as a matter of principle that these hallowed instruments should not be altered except to address the most profound matters.

The integrity of the national treasury and the integrity of Congress are, I believe, profound matters. An amendment requiring a balanced budget should thus be speedily passed. The amendment forbidding Congress from giving itself a mid-term pay raise — recently ratified by the requisite number of states 202 years after it was proposed — and currently awaiting consideration by Congress — should therefore be immediately adopted as law.

Several balanced budget amendments have been proposed. One popular version, sponsored by Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., declares "the president shall transmit to the Congress a proposed budget ... in which total outlays do not exceed total receipts."

Can there be a more fundamental proposition than that? It says we should spend no more than we take in. It says we must get away from this abominable notion that we can sprinkle fairy dust on the books and make them OK. It says we must stop running up bills for future generations to make good on.

The arguments against a balanced budget amendment are many. Congress and the president will never be able to agree on an "income" figure, they say, and the courts will be arbitrating the budget. Liberals will tend to raise taxes to make ends meet, they say, and conservatives will try to dismantle the government. Failure to balance the budget is a failure of political will, they say, and addressing it by constitutional fiat trivializes that great document.

I emphatically disagree. It is true that the primary problem is a crisis of political will.

Congress acts like a school of piranha tearing at the taxpayers' flesh and lacks the discipline to change. There is not a molecule of hope in my body that the lawmakers will suddenly see the error of their ways and correct them. I am sick of stewing over it. Our esteemed leaders have tired our minds and it's time we concentrated theirs.

Nor would it diminish the grandeur of the Constitution to address this matter. The deficit and the national debt are arguably this nation's supreme problems. The former will amount to $400 billion at the end of the current fiscal year; the latter will stand at $4.1 trillion. It will cost us $319 billion a year — $873,972,600 a day — just to pay the interest on it. That's a lot of bridges and libraries.

The congressional pay amendment was conceived by James Madison and sent to the states for ratification in 1789 along with 11 other amendments, 10 of which became the Bill of Rights. It holds that "No law, varying the compensation for the services of the senators and representatives, shall take effect, until an election of representatives shall have intervened."

The point is pretty simple: Members of Congress should not simply mandate their pay raises; they should ask their employers — that's us — for them.

It is a wonderful idea that would address one of the biggest dilemmas of our time — the fact that, thanks to the most recent pay hikes the Congress granted itself, we are now ruled by plutocrats who make more than 99 percent of their constituents. I would deeply appreciate the opportunity to pass judgment on the next raise they bequeath themselves.

It bothers me a great deal to argue in favor of two Constitutional amendments, but I can see no other way of dealing with these problems. I allay my remorse by telling myself that George wants six and I only want two, so I'm still three times more principled than the president.

We are now ruled by plutocrats who make more than 99 percent of their constituents.

MARTIN SCHRAM

Bush zigzags over the environment

George Bush, to the surprise of none who know him well, has turned out to be a uniquely tacky Environment President.

One day, he tucks to the left. The next, he tucks to the right.

It's a zigzag strategy suitable for retaining America's presidency, or the America's Cup. In recent days, beset by conflicting pressures from environmentalists and industry (also strategists and ideologues), Bush:

Zigged — He agreed, but only reluctantly, to attend the Earth Summit of world leaders in Rio de Janeiro on June 3, much to the consternation of conservatives in industry and his Republican Party. They fear Bush will get lured into agreements to protect the ozone that will cut a hole in their profits.

Zagged — He overruled, but oh-so-quietly, his own Environmental Protection Agency and backed industry by subverting a crucial provision in the new Clean Air Act that he once hailed. Without announcement, he ordered regulators to ignore the provision his experts said requires an industry to notify the public (in time to permit a challenge) if it wants to increase pollution emissions beyond permitted levels.

So goes the Odyssey of our Environment President. In Bush's unending effort to be all things to all interests, every new decision must be viewed not on its merits, but in light of his last decision. Consistency isn't Bush's prime goal; counterbalance is.

In 1988, Bush committed himself to a comprehensive clean air law — and to protect the planet's ozone layer. Recall Candidate Bush's words: "Those who think we're powerless to do anything about the 'greenhouse effect' are forgetting about the 'White House effect.' As president, I intend to do something about it."

But as president, Bush has done "worse than nothing," according to Washington's most effective fighter for a clean environment, Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. The chairman of the House subcommittee on health and the environment wrote in the Los Angeles Times in April that while European allies were urging basic initial agreements to cut carbon dioxide emissions by the year 2000 to where they were in 1990, Bush was urging more studies.

America's conservatives argued that the ozone hole hasn't happened — yet. So why go to Rio? But Bush's top political strategists punctured a hole in that no-zone by warning that the TV pictures from Rio would be a campaign video disaster — every caring world leader sitting there, with one empty chair labeled "USA." So Bush forced the world to scrap all action timetables for a pack of platitudes. Now he'll go to Rio; since pictures never lie, he'll look like an Environment President.

Conservatives feared Bush really believed that campaign stuff. On Nov. 15, 1990, in the East Room, he signed the new Clean Air Bill, hailed "a new era for clean air" and said: "It's time for a new kind of environmentalism — driven by the knowledge that a sound ecology and a strong economy can coexist."

Industry, fighting to pollute more and spend less, was losing in the back rooms. EPA's general counsel issued a 1991 opinion upholding "the public's right to comment and opportunity for a hearing" before a company can exceed its pollution limits. The Comptroller General agreed in writing; Assistant Attorney General Richard Stewart agreed in a White House meeting.

Not to worry, titans of industry (and bankrollers of Bush-Quayle '92). Bush has ordered his attorney general to find a legal way to say the law he signed so proudly doesn't really mean what it says.

As president, Bush has done worse than nothing.

 "She has tenure," Schapker said. "I will miss her as an administrator, but she will serve the students well in the classroom."
 Schapker said she is concerned that the loss of the clerical assistants will make it difficult for the school to perform the duties required by the state.

"I don't know how we'll get things done next year," Schapker said.
 She noted that, depending on the results of next month's special legislative session, the money to rehire some of those who lost their jobs earlier this week may become available.
 "But we can't count on that," she said. "We are making our plans based on not having those positions."

 Schapker said she is concerned with the loss of guidance services for the students. The guidance counselor and occupational specialist are, she believes, important service providers for the students.
 "I'm real concerned about taking those services away from the children," she said.

 that they are not going to be reapointed for next year."
 Smith said that telling the employees who are being let go that their positions are being eliminated has been the hardest thing he has had to do as principal.
 The loss of the classroom teachers will increase the average class size to 29 to 1, up from 28 to 1.

 "That is a big impact on the students," Smith said.
 The loss of the occupational specialist and the counselors will take away services needed by the students as well.
 "The occupational specialist provided students with career guidance and assistance in planning for their future," Smith said. "And students have needs that the counselors help them meet."

 The counselors will now have to handle about 500 students each, Smith said.
 "This will not be easy on anyone," he added. "But I am very concerned about the impact it will have on the students next year."

Parade

 this year. DAV Chapter 30 will host a luncheon for the participants following the parade.
 Horace Paul, of the Fleet Reserve will be the master of ceremonies, with an official proclamation to be given by Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith. The American Legion honor guard will fire the salute, followed by the playing of "Taps". Local Boy Scouts will lead the gathering in the pledge of allegiance.

 Guest speaker for the ceremony will be Marilyn Cobb Croach, from the University of Central Florida. She is director of operations for the Office of Defense Transition Services at the college. Her department helps service personnel and their spouses who are being separated from the armed service, in relocating, obtaining additional education, and other needs.

 Kenneth Golden, with the VFW commented, "We're very pleased to have a speaker such as Marilyn Croach. She knows of the problems we faced, that are still causing difficulty for newly discharged service personnel."
 Golden added, "This is a parade and observance for all the people, and we would like to see everyone turn out for this Memorial Day event."

Unity

 She predicted at least 50, possibly 100 or more people might march in the event with even more expected to attend the rally at Fort Meon Park.
 As for the use of the holiday for the march, she said, "One of the people who have helped put this together suggested it, because he felt it's a time to honor our Desert Storm veterans as well as all of the other former service personnel who may also believe the nation needs to get back together again."
 The march is scheduled to get underway at 1 p.m., at the intersection of First Street and Locust Avenue. It will head south on Locust to 8th Street, west to Sanford Avenue, north back to First, then east to Fort Meon Park.
 Williams said, "We'll have a large group of Black, White and Hispanic speakers, many of whom are ministers, to call for a unity among the people."
 She said the march is being given a double title, "Unity Forever" and "We can get along." "If this works out," she said, "we will keep a group together and call ourselves Unity Forever, and try to have other events to get the people back together again."

ist Church, Sanford City Commissioner Bob Thomas, Orlando Police Lt. Sam Ings, Turner Clayton, president of the local NAACP, and local area citizen, Steve Rampley.
 Williams commented, "We also have local residents Bruce Scott and Antonio Redden, who will speak from the younger generation's viewpoint."

 "Two other persons will be on hand, not as speakers, but to talk with us or make comments," she said. "They include Sanford Police Chief Steve Harrett and Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger."

"I never had to dial the area code when I called my sister before, why do I have to now?"

"Will this new dialing plan cost me more?"

New Dialing Directions for the Information Generation.

Because Florida's growing so quickly, the supply of telephone number combinations is running low. But the answer to this problem is simple. And it won't cost you a dime.

Now, when you dial a long distance number within the same area code, you need to dial it like any other long distance call - by including the area code.

This new dialing plan will dramatically increase the supply of available telephone numbers.

So, remember to dial the area code on all long distance calls within your area code. And, remember to re-program speed-dial numbers, programmed FUI machines, computer modems or alarm systems affected by this new dialing system.

Here's The New Way To Call Long Distance Within Your Area Code.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Man proclaims innocence, is executed

JARRATT, Va. — Coal miner Roger Keith Coleman went to his death in the electric chair for the 1981 rape and murder of his sister-in-law, proclaiming his innocence to the very end. Coleman, who had pleaded his case on talk shows, in newspapers and in magazines as well as in the courts, was executed shortly after 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, minutes after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected his final appeal. "An innocent man is going to be murdered tonight," the 33-year-old Coleman, strapped in the chair, said as a prison chaplain held his typewritten final statement for him to read.

"When my innocence is proven, I hope America will realize the injustice of the death penalty as all other civilized countries have."

Senate OKs voter registration

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans, particularly those up for re-election, are beginning to join Democrats in believing that if it were easier to vote, the public might feel less disenfranchised with them.

With billionaire Ross Perot's independent bid for the presidency surging, even the White House is backing off earlier administration condemnations of a Democratic bill to register voters when they apply for driver's licenses.

Six Republicans bolted from their party's leaders Wednesday to help pass, 61-38, a Democratic bill requiring states to register voters not only when they apply for driver's licenses, but also when they seek welfare, disability or unemployment benefits.

Senate GOP leaders, who had filibustered the bill for three years, predicted President Bush would veto it, citing Justice Department assertions that the measure could spawn wide-scale voter fraud. But the White House itself issued no such threat.

Energy bill advances in House

WASHINGTON — The House is making it easier to license nuclear power plants, as lawmakers move closer to passing a far-reaching energy bill aimed at reducing the country's dependence on oil.

Sponsors of the energy package, which totals 1,500 pages and was crafted by eight House committees, said they hoped to get a final vote on the legislation by late today. The Senate already has passed a similar bill.

A major hurdle was overcome Wednesday night when the House voted 254-160 to make it easier for utilities to build and operate new nuclear power plants by streamlining the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's licensing process.

Mutual Fund investment gets easier

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal stock market regulators plan to make it simpler, easier and possibly cheaper to buy into mutual funds — the last refuge of America's Mom and Pop investors.

The Securities and Exchange Commission today unveiled a hefty set of proposals that would:

- Allow investors to buy into mutual funds without having to send away for a formal sales offering, or prospectus.

- Permit investors to negotiate commissions with their brokers.

- Create new kinds of funds that can invest in smaller companies and present new opportunities to investors.

- Simplify the fees funds charge investors for managing their money.

About 25 percent of American households have money in investment firms, either directly or through pension funds and insurance companies. Some 95 percent of all investment companies are mutual funds, according to the SEC.

The 525-page report, two years in the making, suggests ways to overhaul the Investment Company Act of 1940, which governs the $1 trillion mutual fund industry. It only previous major overhaul was in 1970.

The SEC can implement some of the changes itself through its rule-making authority, while others will require congressional action.

Mutual funds are investment companies run by professional money managers that pool the money of many shareholders, investing it in a wider portfolio of stocks, bonds or other securities than any one individual could afford.

Hamilton vandalized again, damage light

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Hamilton Elementary School, 1501 E. 8th Street, has reported two separate break-ins since this past weekend. A total of 11 classrooms have been vandalized.

Hamilton Principal Carem Gager commented, "There wasn't much damage, and I consider that we were very lucky." He added, "The only thing they did was go through the teachers desks and some of the cabinets, but there wasn't any damage or things thrown around the classrooms."

The only items he has determined to be missing at this time are a number of baseball cards. "One teacher said she believed a Tampa Bay Bucs towel was missing from her classroom," he added.

According to Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett, "The first incident was reported to us early Monday morning. We believe it happened sometime during the weekend." He said, "Two classrooms in building 500 were broken into, and desks, file drawers and closets were gone through but we don't believe anything was taken."

Harriett continued, "The second incident was reported by Principal Gager on Tuesday morning. This time, nine classrooms in three other buildings were entered, late Monday night or early Tuesday morning. Again," he added, "nothing was believed to be missing."

Gager explained, "They didn't actually break into the individual classrooms, all they did was break open a plate glass window in our planning area to unlock the door, and once they were in, it gave them access to the other rooms."

He said he expected the cost of replacing the windows would be minimal.

Both during the weekend and early Tuesday, police report entry was made by breaking windows open on several doors leading into the rooms.

"None of our class schedule was interrupted," Gager said.

Sunken ship remains to be excavated

Associated Press

KEY WEST — A team of archaeologists and maritime historians plans to excavate the remains of a sunken ship believed to date back to the era of Christopher Columbus.

A five-man team representing the Mel Fisher Maritime Heritage Society will set sail Saturday for the Bahamas aboard a 60-foot salvaging boat.

"I think the artifacts will be like none that have ever been seen," said John Browning, president of the Palatka-based St. Johns Expeditions, the treasure-salvaging company that has laid claim to the wreck. "This will be a treasure for historians and archaeologists."

"It will answer the question as to how much treasure was carried on the early Columbus-era ships."

All artifacts lifted from the vessel will be preserved at the non-profit Heritage Society, Browning said.

The ship is believed to be dated sometime between 1492 and 1540. It was found off Grand Bahama Island in 15 feet of water last June by a treasure salvor with St. Johns Expeditions.

A National Geographic photographer will accompany the Key West crew.

The expedition was expected to take about three months, said Corey Malcolm, the Heritage Society's director of archaeology.

ORLANDO — Phil Dauphin had a three-run homer and went 2-for-5 Wednesday as Charlotte topped Orlando 8-6 in a Southern League game.

The Knights jumped out to an 8-1 lead before Orlando could answer with five runs in the bottom of the ninth.

Dave Stevens (2-6) went 8½ innings to earn the win while Rusty Richards (3-3) took the loss.

AROUND THE STATE

Marlins, Rangers join forces

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins' first team will play in the Dominican Summer League alongside players under contract with the Texas Rangers.

The Marlins and Rangers have signed a joint operating agreement to field a team — the Dominican Rangers-Marlins — in the rookie league beginning June 1. The Marlins will wear white pants and black shirts; the Rangers will clash with blue and red.

"It will look like an all-star team," said Marty Scott, Rangers director of player personnel.

The Rangers-Marlins won't play like an all-star team. In all likelihood, the 21-team league is the lowest level of the minors, and its 70 games are used to determine if a player is worth transporting to the United States.

The team will feature six to 10 Marlins, most of them 17 years old. The Marlins' two other '92 minor-league teams will begin play in mid-June.

FSU, Stetson in same region

TALLAHASSEE — Second-seeded Florida State will enjoy a home field advantage today at the NCAA South II Regional Baseball Tournament for the ninth time in ten years.

"We were the top seed and the favorite here in 1988, and we ended up getting bumped out by the No. 5 team (Stetson)," said FSU coach Mike Martin. "It doesn't matter who the favorite is."

Unfortunately for the Seminoles (43-18), Stetson (38-19) has made the trip to Tallahassee again. But this time, the Hatters, seeded sixth, face the No. 1 Stanford Cardinal (37-12), which won successive national championships in 1987 and 1988. That game kicks off the tournament at 11 a.m. Thursday.

In other opening-day games of the double-elimination tournament, No. 3 Georgia (35-23) faces No. 4 Kent State (44-11) at 3 p.m. and Florida State takes on No. 5 Western Carolina (41-19-1) in the nightcap.

Gators open with Rider

GAINESVILLE — Top-seeded Florida will begin pursuit of its second consecutive berth in the College World Series when it meets Rider in the opening game of the NCAA East baseball regional today.

The Gators (43-18), ranked seventh by Collegiate Baseball and 11th by Baseball America, are looking for their third trip to the CWS in five seasons.

Rider (18-33) is 15 games under .500 this season but earned a berth in the national playoffs by winning the East Coast Conference tournament.

Georgia Tech (43-17) is the No. 2 seed and will play George Mason (36-18) in its first game. Texas A&M (38-18) and California (31-25) complete the six-team field in the double-elimination tournament at McKethan Stadium.

FAMU withdraws from TAAC

MACON, Ga. — The Trans America Athletic Conference said Wednesday that Florida A&M has submitted a letter of withdrawal from the conference.

Florida A&M participated in TAAC women's sports last year and in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference for men's sports. The women will move to the MEAC also.

In 1985, FAMU was one of six founding members of the New South Women's Athletic Conference that merged with the TAAC last spring.

Hammer Time tops Crew in 8th

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Donnie McCoy and Keith Acree each hit run-scoring singles in the top of the eighth inning Wednesday night at Chase Park to help Hammer Time knock off the Wrecking Crew 7-5 and remain undefeated in the Sanford Recreation Men's Class C Slowpitch Softball League.

In earlier games, Hall's Stucco trimmed the Touchdown Pub 5-4 and the Royal Oak Pub out-slugged Hancock Hardware 16-11 for its first win of the season.

Hammer Time now leads the league with a 4-0 mark. The Touchdown Pub, Hall's Stucco and Hancock Hardware are in a three-way tie for second at 3-3 ahead of the Royal Oak Pub and the Wrecking Crew (both 1-3).

Next week's schedule has Hall's Stucco taking on the Royal Oak Pub at 8:30 p.m., Hancock Hardware challenging Hammer Time at 7:30 p.m. and the Wrecking Crew squaring off with the Touchdown Pub at 8:30 p.m.

Hall's Stucco scored twice in the bottom of the first inning to take an early 2-0 lead over the Touchdown Pub. The lead last three innings as the Touchdown Pub rallied for three runs in the top of the fifth and added a solo run in the sixth.

After tying the score with two runs in the bottom of the sixth, Hall's Stucco pulled out the win in the home half of the seventh as James Garner and Mike Dick hit back-to-back singles and Dwain Towery followed with a double that scored Garner.

Taking precautions with pain in bones

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been having a lot of bone pain in the right hip that's been diagnosed as osteoarthritis and Paget's disease. What can you tell me about my condition? Should I be concerned about cancer?

X-rays to monitor the success of your therapy. If the Paget's progresses, you should, in my opinion, be under the care of an endocrinologist.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

my Health Reports "Managing Chronic Pain" and "Understanding Osteoarthritis."

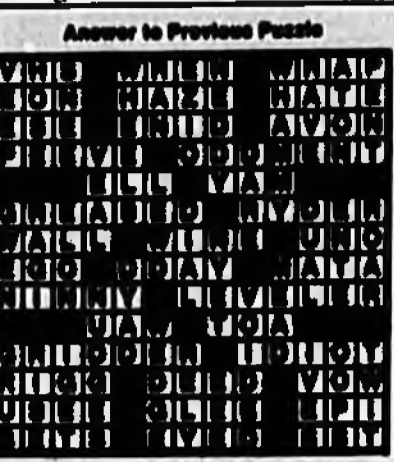

DEAR READER: Osteoarthritis is a common cause of joint pain as we age. Due to a wearing down of the joint surfaces (particularly in weight-bearing joints, such as hips and knees), osteoarthritis causes stiffness, pain and swelling. Over-the-counter anti-inflammatory medicine (such as Advil or Nuprin) is often effective in relieving discomfort. Should this fail, many prescription drugs (such as Voltaren, Lodine or Motrin) are available.

Paget's disease, on the other hand, is different. Marked by spotty areas of bone destruction and deficient repair, this disorder is less common than arthritis and, actually, rarely causes joint pain. Paget's disease often affects the pelvis, the skull and the shafts of bones in the legs.

The cause is unknown. Many patients are discovered by accident to have Paget's disease, during routine blood tests (showing an elevation of the enzyme alkaline phosphatase) and X-rays (revealing the typical "moth-eaten" appearance of affected bones). These bones may ache, however; also, they tend to fracture easily, further adding to the degree of disability. In general, Paget's disease is treated with Didronel or Calcimar, two drugs that appear to retard the hyperactive bone metabolism.

About 1 percent of Paget's patients develop bone cancer at the site of the bone disease. Since this complication is so rare, I don't believe you need to worry about it. What I do worry about is your hip disease and whether, with time, you could easily fracture this hip. You should have periodic follow-up

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Othello asks, "Who can control his fate?" Well, at the bridge table, declarer is in control of his fate more often than not. It isn't recorded whether Othello played bridge, but let's imagine what might have happened if Desdemona and Othello had sat North-South on today's deal.

break 3-3, but he wasn't worried. Surely West had the diamond king for his two-level overcall. At trick seven, Othello finessed the diamond queen. However, East produced the diamond king and led his last club. West overtaking and cashing three tricks in the suit: two down.

Cover the East-West cards. Against four spades, West leads the club king and continues with the club ace. East playing first the five, then the eight. What is your plan? The bidding was tricky. As it happens, five diamonds would have been better, but Othello liked the look of the strong 5-2 fit. Besides, a spade contract meant that Desdemona would be the dummy rather than declarer. Othello ruffed the club ace at trick two and drew trumps. He was miffed that they didn't

"O Ill-starr'd wench!" cried Othello, presumably referring to the diamond queen. Yet Desdemona had spotted a better line. "When your eyes roll so, I fear you. But, my love, when you discover that the clubs are 5-3 from East's failure to echo, you should discard a diamond at trick two. Ruff the third club, draw trumps and finesse in diamonds. This loses, but East doesn't have a club left." (Othello glared across the table.) "Kill me tomorrow; let me live tonight."

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 23, 1993

Improved financial conditions are indicated for the year ahead. However, these gains will have to be earned. Nothing will be awarded gratis.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might be privy to some very valuable and confidential information today, yet it could prove to be of small worth; you may not know how to use it advantageously. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for Gemini's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Subdue the inclination to take a big gamble for small stakes today. Be grateful for what you have, instead of raking everything in order to get a few farthings more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In a competitive development today, your position might not be as strong as you think it is. Therefore, if it can be avoided, don't invite a confrontation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not attempt to impose your ideas on an unreceptive audience today; you might encounter someone who will express resentment in nasty terms.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A friendly associate might put you in an embarrassing position today by requesting things you can't deliver. Don't let your ego give you the impression you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're in a rather strong bargaining position today, and you should be able to get the terms you desire. However, this is likely to be achieved in an unbecoming way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you have to delegate authority today, use your best judgment. Assigning tasks to inept assistants could do you harm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Give friends the same freedom of choice you want for yourself today. If you are too possessive or demanding, you could send a pal away.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You must be able to distinguish today between getting things done and getting things done properly. Poor end results will have to be unwound later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Under testy conditions today, you might reject your basic beliefs rather than garner strength from them. Without guidelines, you may be ineffective.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to get involved in an endeavor at this time that could put additional strain on your resources. It may start with a small requirement, but it has the potential to snowball.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to deal with someone today who will be diametrically opposed to your way of doing things. This individual is the type who is gifted at making mountains out of molehills, too.
