Dressing for success in the business of learning

Taking a close look at student dress code

By MARIA ORBM and SHARL BROOKS Herald Staff Writers

The Seminole County School Board may soon be looking more closely at what students wear to school every day.

Sandy Robinson, chairman of the school board, on Tuesday will update her fellow members on an effort she is spearheading to bring a "more professional look" into the schools.

"I have been very concerned about the dress code policy, Robinson told members of the Seminole County Public Schools Association of High School Student Councils on Thursday, Robinson has en-listed the help of the seven high school student councils in determining whether or not the code should be changed for the next school year.

The city of Sanford soon will decide whether to save or scrap its police de-

The final draft of a Management Review of the Sanford Police Department indicates that because of its flaws the department isn't up to dealing with its workload. Sanford's crime rate, which continues to rise, is by far the highest of any city in

Seminole County. It's time to do something to improve the situation says George Hubler, assistant director of Public Administrative Services in McLean, Va

"The system is broken down." Mayor Larry Dale said Friday. "It needs to be fixed. There are some tough decisions facing the city. The most dramatic change would be for the city to close the SPD, which has served city residents since the 1800s, and contract the Seminole County Sheriff's Department for full enforcement services.

This is one of three options suggested in the PAS review:

I. Make internal and organizational adjustments. 2. Make these adjustments and contract the Sheriff's Office for technical and aupport services.

A song for your soul, bread for your belly, neat shoes on your feet

Johnny Gilstrap is a member of a rare breed-the country cobbler.

Not only does Gilstrap repair shoes, he also sings and plays guitar for the regulars and not so regulars who frequent his modest Sanford shop on Main Street. On Mondays he distributes free bread to the needy and sometimes he holds prayer meetings out of his shop during the week.

A man of very few words. Gilatrap, 67, takes great pride in his work. The motto at Johnny's Super Shoe Repair is 'You Can't Look Nest If Your Shoce Are Beat."

"When I work on shoes I try to make them look as best as That's what people like."

Northwest county concerns: Water woes, the way traffic goes, what county knows

By MARIA ORBM Heraid Staff Writer

One of a series

Results of the community input gathered during recent workshops held by the Seminole County comprehensive planning staff were pub-lished in six area newsletters available at the county offices. County planners gathered more than 580 comments regarding issues in all the geographic regions. The public sessions are the first phase of the updating of the county's comprehensive plan and will be included in the Evaluation & Appraisal Report (EAR) the for publication late in 1988.

The Comprehensive Plan addresses growth and development, transportation, facilities and services, and environmental protection.

The newsletters are part of a program, Communities in Action, designed to keep residents informed about county government and to en-courage communication. Also avail-able, is a catalog with government listings, telephone numbers and ad-dresses of various departments. Major topics listed in the North-west portion of the county, mostly in

Sanford and the Lake Mary/Heathrow areas include concerns about coats and availability of water, stormwater problems, the protection of one-acre lot residential development patterns, increased mobility, relief from 1-4 congestion and a desire for more information from the county on current and proposed activities.

Several solutions were proposed toward maintaining an adequate water supply. The primary suggestions offered by residents were to increase access to reclaimed water and promote availability and use of a second water meter for irrigation use.

Residents would like to see a restriction on additional commercial development and more environmental lande.

More car pooling, bus ridership, and bicycle and pedestrian facilities were offered as suggestions for transportation issues.

A detailed report of the findings is available through the county and more public meetings will be held in the next months for comments on the future land use map.

Alma Mexicana dances in free SCC performance

By DAVID FRAZIER Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Community College presents the dance company Alma Mexicana on Wednesday, September 10, at 7:30 in the Fine Arts Concert Hall. The performance is free and open to the public; reservations not required.

The genre of folkloric ballet in Mexico is important in keeping the history of the Mexican people alive, and Alma Mexicana is part of this great tradition. With over 20 different dances in its repertoire, Alma Mexicana has been presenting many facets of the soul of Mexico in its performances since 1984. The name Alma Mexicana translates as "Sout of Mexico". This group of eight couples has performed numerous times on Mexican national television and at the Mexican Nations' Foundation for the Arts. The company also participates in a program for the federal government to promote the culture of dance in parks, gardens, and other nationally supported venues in Mexico: they performed often at national events at the request of the Presi ico: finally. Alma Mexicana was the Mexican entry in the 1996 International Day of Dence.

Alma Mexicana's performance at SCC will be funded jointly by La Casa de Mexico de Florida, the Mexican Consulate, and the Beminole Community College Division of Arts and Sciences. The company is being brought to the Orlando area to help with Central Florida's celebration of Mexican Independence. This cele-bration, known in Mexico as 'El Grito" (The Shout) will be held at Lake Eola on Sunday, September 14 under the aua-pices of the Mexican Consu-late.

ArtsMall is alive with culture, activity

By DAVID PRASIER Herald Staff Writer

WINTER PARK .. With the ArtsMall gearing up for its second anniversary, there is a spirit of optimism and enthusiasm. The ArtsMall is clearly alive with activity, and it is growing, with more resident artists, tenant organizations, facilities, and range of arts activities than ever before.

The individual at the center of all this activity is Rhett, the ArtsMall's new director. Rhett has been charged with taking the vision of the ArtsMall's founder and former director, Jeanic Linders, and developing it to its fullest potential over the next several years. Lind-ers, who relocated to Arkansas, promoted Rhett from facility manager to director. 'ArtaMall's continued growth in facility use demonstrates just how well the arts incubator concept works and is needed in Central Florida," says Rhett, We are more committed than ever to the future of the proj-

Among the new develop-ments Rhett is particularly excited about is the September opening of a new gallery space at the ArtaMail. The gallery is called Bella Figura —which means "fine presentation" in Italian. The way we were: Chase memoirs continued

Joshua Coffin Chase's memoirs of life in South Florida in the 1880's and 1890's.

Soon after Joshua Chase arrived in Sanford to join his brother Sidney, they formed Chase and Company, an insurance company. (This was in 1684, and the town of Sanford had only been incorporated in 1877. This company is still in existence, though the name was changed to Bunniland several years ago when they moved to their present location at five points. And they haven't sold insurance in many years: they soon changed their concentration to farming and citrus. The company's main in-terest now are in fertilizer and wholesale building materials).

Joshua Chase stated that the company, up through 1940, and survived several freezes. yellow fever, epidemics, hurricanes, panics. Medily, quarantines, NRA and the New Deal. (I'm sure they could probably add a few more problems they have overcome since then."

James E. Ingraham, new president of the South Florida Railroad, made Joshua a member of his family at his home in Fort Reid, about four miles south of Sanford.

Mr. Ingraham appointed Chase and Company as the insurance broker for the railroad and commissioned Joshua as Inaurance Inspector. He was given a free railroad pass which enabled him to cover territory along the way which helped him expand their fledgling insurance business.

Before Joshua had arrived. Sidney had purchased a small tract of land in Fort Reid with a few orange trees and an un-completed house. The brothers put the house into condition. built a barn for their horses. and set up bachelor quarters.

They were very fortunate to employ Louie Kwong, a Chinaman, who cooked, washed. cleaned, nursed and guarded... Joshua called him a faithful friend. And with Louie in charge, the brothers were able to do quite a bit of entertain-

Louie was asked many times to clean out an overflowing closet that was so full it had to be closed quickly to keep items from falling out. Finally one day he said, "Me clean closet closes not cleaned since B.C.". Upon inquity, the brothers learned that he had learned the term "B.C." at a Chinese mission in San Francisco.

Soon after moving in, they were aummoned to report for three days off road work or pay 81.25 per day. With all landowners required to do their part, roads were maintained in passable condition.

in 1884, the voting system was quite primitive according to Mr. Chase, Separate ballots were printed for each candidate and ballot boxes were provided for each office. Any ballots in the wrong box were thrown out. There were several voters who could not read, so an educated leader of the party (Republican or Democrat). would note the arrangement of the boxes when he voted. He would arrange his party's ballots between the fingers of his voters so they could be deposited in the proper order. An opposing party judge, though, might notice the scheme and re-arrange the order. An opposing party judge, though, might notice the scheme and

Problems in the Sanford Police Department

Five months after commissioning a Management Review of the Sanford Police Department, city officials have in their hands the final draft confirming the worst: The department is "seriously flawed" and not appropriate to support effective and efficient police operations.

In the next several months, officials will be weighing the choices: Fix what's broken or let the sheriff take over some or all law enforcement for the city. These options have merits and drawbacks, but we are heartened that our city officials have recognized a grave situation, and instead of ignoring it, have taken steps to begin correcting it.

The problems did not just crop up overnight; they have been sores festering long before Chief Joe Dillard inherited them. And like all unattended hurts, infection did set in, the symptoms of general malaise and a high fever of unrest running rampant through the body of employees.

Mayor Larry Dale is as determined as a surgeon with a scalpel to cut out the infection and restore effective policins in the city. Good.

effective policing in the city. Good.
Sanford Police Sgt. Darrel
Presley is weighing both sides and asks that when a decision is made,
it is one made with much care.
Good.

Chief Joe Dillard has asked for input from the community and said he will fight for what's best for the city. Good.

A broad-based Law Enforcement Options Committee is expected to be appointed later this month, and in late October, after assessing all options, is expected to report its findings to the commissioners, who will vote on a course of action. That course might be to put the issue on the March, 1998 ballot for city commission elections. Or the answer may seem so clear, commissioners will have but one recourse.

We hope in this time of turmoil for our city's law enforcement, that officers at every rank carry with them our heartfelt admiration for the job they do every day.

And we are confident that Sanford's capable leadership will effectively cure what ails the Sanford Police Department.

One faltering nation, not under God

Money, money, money...voter apathy, and political cowardiness. It all goes hand in hand. It will all come back to haunt us someday soon. We have a problem. That problem is integrity and it is undermining the structure of this nation. The concept that the resul's are all that count, not the means used, is a'solutely wrong.

This may be justified in war, but even then we

This may be justified in war, but even then we have tried to be as civilized as possible. There are even rules of war. So how do we justify our political lack of integrity, the infusion of money, and whatever else it may take, to obtain a result that may not be the will of the people...but of a minority? It can't be justified! Today people flock to our shores not for religious freedom, or just freedom from persecution, but for the good life that very seldom includes any of the before mentioned. They certainly don't see us as a nation based on a strong religious foundation. In fact, the foundation has weakened and the message diluted and rewritten.

It is my view that when a nation, or government, stifles the voices of many while in a very close relationship with special interests that, in turn, furnish large sums of money for the purpose of obtaining results that are primary for their own benefit...for the benefit of a few...then we are on a course, which will someday end in the destruction of this nation...if it hasn't aiready happened. That is how close we are to destroying ourselves from within.

Money is necessary, it is our way of conducting business. Instead of accepting a cow for a horse, which we may not want, we take money so that we may buy something that we do want...and everyone is happy. That's a simple way to put it...but that is the point. When money, gold, or whatever, is misused and is used to buy the minds and souls of others then it is not a good thing and we have lost our way as a nation under God.

Many of us have complained that God has been taken away from us. Taken out of our schools, our places of meeting. It's not true. We have expelled God from our society, and in his place you find the Golden Cow. On Saturday and Sunday we attend our places of worship. People of all religious beliefs walk out of those doors and immediately do exactly what we know is not proper. Before the next day comes we have, in our minds, already put God on the shelf until we enter our places of worship once again...where we pretend again...that we believe.

I know that I am guilty and I am truly sorry. I know that I have but two choices. Those choices are quite simple...either to believe or not to believe. If you believe then ALL of your decision, your actions, must be taken in accordance with your belief and never with the thought of how you may personally be affected. Sometimes your decision may not be what you would like, but it is the right decision.

A nation can only live, or die, on those same fundamental beliefs. The belief that we are not in charge, that there is a great deal that we do not understand, or will ever be known to us. All faiths teach us these things...certainly Christians are not alone in the belief that there is a creator, and it is not by chance, that others believe very much as we do.

The children are the products of many years of a failing nation unable to set the standards, unwilling to accept blame, and unable to see the absolute correlation between faith and the real strength of a nation. We have let others take control, expel God from our daily lives, from our schools and in his place we have provided a generic God, a generic replacement. We have tried to fill the void by other words, by other means of celebrating our religious holidays because we don't want to offend anyone. Well, we have offended God.

Children are most affected by our lack of conviction. They must ask themselves what is really true...there is little evidence around them of what is taught in Church and how we live throughout the week fits. That their parents and others believe as they say they do Money is discussed far more than God. Children are exposed to this from birth till death. How do we expect them to conduct their lives not only as children, but adults?

We know deep in our hearts that there must be more. Money cannot comfort us, it cannot really protect our families. It cannot buy our health back, or give us another life. It is now useless. We have no need for it any longer...so where do we turn? To the only place where we can find solsce. Do we set for a bag of money to be placed by our bedside? No, we sak for God and our families. So why was money so important that we placed it first during our lifetime? We could say, because it was useful in providing for our families. To find and clothe them and to provide a few lumiries. Well, that is a good use for money, but unfortunately, it is not used for those purposes only, and that is why it must never been our first priority.

Why have I chosen to discuss this today? Because we are failing badly. Our political system has abandoned the very foundation that this nation was built upon. Behind every document written to form this nation was the belief that we could not achieve a nation under God...without God. That cannot be denied...it is fact.

First, the schools, then public buildings, and who knows what will be next. We, in the meantime, have slowly let this process take place while at the same time condoning the acts of our leaders who have, by one small step at a time, dispelled the guiding force that was so clear to our founding fathers. Until our leaders take the high ground and restore the foundation upon which this nation was built, our problems will manifest themselves more and more each day until there is no truth to be found and the remaining children, not yet affected by this lack of courage, will have become a small minority unable to keep the promise of American alive any longer.

Beth, tests and inquiring minds

There's a new gunslinger in town. Steely syed and fearless, this is one tough momma. Ledies and gentlemen-meet "Cool Hand" Beth Hattaway, chairmen of the Board of Trustees at Benincle Community College. A member of the 1908 Leadership Seminole class. Mrs. Hattaway recently showed why salary negotiations at SCC could take on a whole new level of intensity. As part of the Leadership Class of 1998. Mrs. Hattaway participated in the rope course at the Grove in Winter Springs.

For those of you who don't know about the rope course, there were two exercises done about 25 feet above the ground walking horisontal telephone poles or wires. And to dismount--you turn around and fall backwards--trusting on your teammates to keep you from crashing to the ground. The final exercise is cutely called the pamper pole. That's where you shimmy up a telephone pole by using small staples hammered into the sides of the pole. Then you precariously balance yourself, finally thrusting yourself upright on top of the pole by using only one leg. No guard rails--no handholds--no nothing, but you...standing 25 feet off the ground on a swaying pole. To get down--you leap outward to grab hold of a trapeze.

Beth Hattaway did it all!

Recent articles in the newspapers spoke of the success of Seminole County students in last year's SAT tests. While the increase in test scores is always worth praising, there is one aspect of the results which should be noted. If Seminole County is recognized nationwide as one of the leading school systems—then why are our SAT scores only just marginally better than the average national score? Wouldn't you expect a top school system to be ranked closer to the top of the SAT score averages rather than mired down in the middle?

I guesa it's all in how you look at things...and where you measure success from. I expect a top ranked school system to have top ranked scores. Nothing else will suffice.

In a December 4, 1996 memo to his fellow county commissioners, Chairman Randy Morris spoke of a backlog of policy items which needed prompt attention. Morris set a time line of 90 days to deal with almost a dosen issues. Here's a report 9 months later:

Joe Laughlin has been attending School Board meetings with greater frequency, even though he has lent teaching at Lyman for a private school position. Laughlin is said to be looking at one of the races.

Paul Lovestrand has announced for a Longwood commission seat.

I was by Edgewater High School the other day. It was interesting to note that they were the second highest scoring Orange County school with their SAT scores, scores as good as most Seminole County schools. What was interesting to note was the condition of the campus. Clean---yes! But new? No! Apparently, they have discovered that it is what you teach--not what you teach it in. Keep this in mind as the bill for renovating part of Lake Brantley heads toward $40,000,000--or $9,000,000 more than building the new Winter Springs High School. No wonder the state legislators are having a hard time understanding the school building issue.

The interesting question being asked around the County Government is:

Who is the elected official that Jayon Suber has accused of sexual barasement? Inquiring minds want to know!

The FBI investigation is also interesting. Usually the FBI doesn't become involved unless there is some indication of government impropriety. Sometimes it is elected officials on the take--like Miami or North Hollywood. Other times it is staff members who are selling favorable reports or officials selling influence on projects. It would be interesting to know how many FBI investigations result in no prosecution versus how many end up with actual criminal charges being filed. Those who are in the know can tell you that some of the files saked for were ones which Joyce Suber raised questions about when they came through her department.

An interesting note in Don Boyette's editorial last Sunday. He mentioned that no School Board member had been defeated in the last four elections. He said that Nancy Warren "lost by default to Bob Coff. She didn't campaign." I guess that Boyette is right. Warren relied on the Sentinet's endorsement, several advertisements she ran in their newspaper, a mailing which featured their endorsement, and their reporting of a lawsuit she had filed to try and divert attention from her record.

Friends, Part 2

For those of you who missed last week's article "Friends in High Places". Part 1, we stated that great advances in society only take place after a significant number of people in a particular misority group has achieved some status in all areas.

If these advances are not made, then the

If those advances are not made, then the whole group seems to suffer from a lack of progression. The group that we are speaking of is the disabled, and the changes we are speaking of are the disabled being allowed to take on leadership or management roles.

So today we submit to you, the second of our two part series on why there are not enough disabled people in management roles. This may, or may not seem like it is one of the top 10 items for you to consider right now, that is providing you are not disabled. Think, what if I were disabled and trying to succeed in life? That, I'm afraid would be a different story.

I recently had the pleasure of going to a conference for the "Transportation Disadvantaged." Although I have been to these kinds of functions before, it still never ceases to small me to see that most of the participants in this gathering, company owners, managers, suppliers, etc. are not disabled.

Why is this? Cenerally speaking in the case of any organization that deals directly with the disabled, who better to know all of the traums and pain that a disabled person suffers more than another disabled person? Now this is not an indictment against any particular business or profession, but merely an example.

It is sad to realise all of this, considering the advancement of other minorities in this country. I'll be the first to admit that this, too, has taken a long time. The disabled might be the last group to be recognized. Though this might not all be society's fault. Not too long ago, we the disabled, got the notion that there was not much for us to do. So we settled, quietly, into secondary roles.

There is no simple explanation for any of the questions and opinions that we have

There is no simple explanation for any of the questions and opinions that we have raised here in the last two columns. What we hope you do is take these items as simple ideas to think about, or maybe even act upon in the near future, as in the case of business owners or managers.

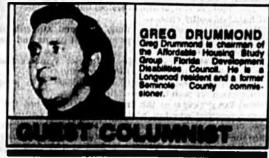

If you have a comment or if you agree or disagree with anything in "Special Feeple" or if you have a non-profit group or organization, related to the disabled, and have a fund-raiser or special event coming up, please let me know about it. Don't forget to include the name, address and phone number of the group or organization as well as the time, place and contact person for the event.

A place to live for citizens with development disabilities

In many counties such as Brevard. Pinellas, Lee and Putnam, the Affordable Housing programs administered by those counties have been a cooperative source of independent and supportive living for numerous citizens with Developmental Disabilities, in clean buildings free of roach dust and away from high crime areas. At the other end of the accessibility spectrum is Seminole County with -0- to date.

But, ironically, instead of serving native born D. D. Consumers, these affordable housing programs are usually accessed primarily by the able bodied low income and retirees who have resettled here. Meanwhile, Seminole County has 14 D. D. Consumers over the age of 55 with only elderly parents to look to for housing, with 112 over the age of 21 in the next wave.

The Florida Developmental Disabilities Council has joined with the Florida Housing Coalition in funding them for a pilot program that could make the difference in Seminole County.

Should you know of citizens with Developmental Disabilities who could benefit from this effort, you are encouraged to attend a proposal presentation to be made to the Seminole County Community Development Staff by Gladys Cook of the Florida Housing Coalition at 1:00 p.m., September 11, in Room 3301 of the Seminole County Administration Building at 1101 East First Street in Sanford.

Princess Diana's death and photojournalism at its worst

Release the hounds! Release the hounds! A hunting we will go!

Buddenly, tragedy strikes, and beauty succumbs to the shadow of death. The hounds snapping at her heels as she careens toward an avoidable fate. But the hounds amelied the blood before it spilled, and you could follow their saliva trail to the disaster.

"Paparazzi" is the name for the hounds, a relentiess hive of the worst photojournalism has to offer. This horde of miscreants blemishes those photographers true to their profession rather than the highest bidder. The "paparazzi" has caused altercations, bitter feelings towards the press, and, now, aided in the death of one of the most beloved icons of this century.

The world looks at the journalistic community as the 'monster under the bed' as it is. Now, with the said and deplorable manner in which photographers pursued Dians, the Princess of Wales, the media could shoulder the partial blame of her death. Personally, as a journalist, I am ashamed.

This is not the type of free press most journalists wish to uphold. But it is the outer lying corrosive scum that keeps the media -- the part dedicated to the original idea and institution of the press-- drawn and quartered by the public at large. Change is imperative. These hounds must be kept on a short leash so that a tragedy like Diana's will never happen again. The media must pay credence to the notion of privacy, and those that violate that privacy—be it of a public figure or not—must answer for their transgressions.

Renovate or raze?

Pine Shadow Apartments is located near Seminole High School in the Dreamwold subdivision. Recently the state closed it down for health and safety reasons. At a recent City Commission meeting, the choice as debated: RENOVATE & RE-OCCUPY the units, OR. RAZE them as condemned structures.

If they are renovated, a mortgage company will cut it's losses considerably. And as Commissioner Ekstein points out, the tax rolls will be increased. This commissioner must realize that increasing the tax base can place demands on services far greater than the tax revenues pay for.

Fact is, Pine Shadow was an economic and social disaster first time around, even as Commissioner Ekstein "Drove by them daily".

it is not the job, nor the desire of citizens to micromanage and second guess city management, but some questions must be answered if history is not to repeat itself.

if Pine Shadows is re-incarnated, will responsible people such as tradesmen, teachers, police officers, city workers, handicapped, AARP Members, etc. be willing and able to live there?

Should bailing out a mortgage company and providing a business venture for new owners be part of the formula for his decision? Has the population density overburdened the infrastructure of this area? Simply...can we travel back up the same road we just came down and avoid the same disastrous results? IP YOU lived here in Dreamwold...IP YOU had a great deal of your life and future here?

Apartment complex is inappropriate for area

I am sure we all agree that residential development in Central Florida has shown amazing growth in the past few years. However, is all development good? Many of my neighbors and I kel that some development is bad. Both for existing homeowners and the City or County involved.

There is a proposal for a high-density apartment complex being quietly moved through the Sanford city government that seems to lack any redeeming features. This proposition is for approximately 850 apartments to be built upon 50 acres in the western part of the City of Sanford. We question whether any sincere consideration was given to the impact this project would have on the nearby residential communities. These established, single family, premium homes - most in the $100,000 plus range - are within a few hundred feet of the affected land, and are serene, family neighborhoods that reflect the pride and financial commitment of their owners. An apartment complex this close to these communities can only diminish their property values and their quality of life.

I could go on with specifics regarding the additional traffic from some $50 apartments spilling out onto an already over-crowded county road; infrastructure demands; runoff, noise and visual pollution; requested change in unit-density and ROI zoning; other vacant land in the immediate vicinity that would surely follow a precedent of this nature; etc. etc. But by now you have the general concept of our objections to this atroctous land use plan, and our perceived surreptitious maneuvering over at city hall. Rumor has it that this is a "done deal", although I have no proof that this is so. We surely hope our elected representatives would not be a party to that.

Careless driving is wrong!

The number of people that are killed and/or injured every day on 1-4 Highway and in this general area is deplorable and unwarranted. Not counting the property damage that increases our insurance premiums.

If you kill someone because of a traffic violation - it used to be manufaughter. Not any more - only if you have been drinking!

If your loved one is killed in an auto accident is it any less of a loss if it was caused by a sober driver through careless or reckless driving?

Drunk driving is stupid and wrong! So is careless driving, speeding, cutting in and out of traffic, changing lanes for no reason and going through stop signs and red lights. But if they haven't been drinking - it says "No charges were filed."

If the driver was drinking, they will be charged with the accident even if they did not cause iil To charge a person for a crime that was not their fault is a miscarriage of justice. You can charge them for drunk driving, but not for an accident they did not cause.

Most of these secidents are caused by people that are going to or coming home from work. They are mostly sober so they are not charged. These accidents are mostly caused by people in a hurry and having no respect for another car on the road.

if the Police and Patrolmen would start writing tickets for these infractions of the lawit would sure cut down on accidents. But instead, they advertise the fact that they are only looking for drunk drivers! Val Colbert Sanford.

Questions for Christians

Here are honest questions for Christians to prayerfully discern the meaning of the Gospel in the wake of the Promise Keepers program.

Isn't making a promise to God binding? Ecclesiastes 5:1-7. How can they still say that they are free? Galations 5:1-5. Didn't James warn against it? James 5:12. And Paul? Romans 5:19,20. Didn't Jesus give a reason in verse 30 of Matthew 5:33-37 so that we become witnesses of Him and His workmanship in us where no man can boast? Ephesians 2:8-10 and 2 Corinthians 4:5-7. And no man can glory? I Corinthians 1:17-2:5. Shouldn't we be careful in how we build on our faith lest there be some works that voids it or deny Him? I Corinthians 3:10-23 and Galations 2:15-3:18. Isn't Jesus Christ the only real Promise Keeper and will He not finish it? Philippians 1:6-11 and Jude 1:24,25.

lan't the reasons why Jesus had never asked His followers to make a commitment, a vow. or a promise to follow Him in all the four Gospels because He knew that they couldn't keep it no matter how much the spirit was willing for the flesh was weak, and that it wasn't about them: John 7:18,19a; It was about putting their trust and faith in God's Covenant to us through the Lord Jeaus Christ that even children can come unto Him? Mark 10:13-15. Can the Gospel be so simple? John 6:28,29, Isn't that what Paul meant in verse 18 or Romans 15:14-19 of not placing any religious yoke on converts in light of the sanctification of the Holy Spirit, thus fully preaching the Gospei? Amen.

What a deal

With regard to the Attorneys General-Big Tobacco "actilement," it makes no sense. Why give Big Tobacco anything? We surely can't trust them. Their iswyers are already conniving with politicians in the back rooms to change any deal in their favor. The deal certainly won't end up being what was hailed on TV.

Big Tobacco won't suffer; nobody can punish them for what they have done. They will only raise prices to pay off those hig bucks to states and people; their profits won't go down.

So, why not just leave them out of the deal?

"I think we have a pretty good system in place and there is a very small portion (of students) that does not abide by the code, but we still have to look nt the other side," she said.

On the first day of school, students in the county's middle and high schools are given a student handbook that details discipline and dress codes. The dress code states that the principal or a designee has the final authority fro interpreting whether a student's apparel conforms.

"Some achools do a real good job while others may not do as well," Robinson said. "It is also the parents' responsibility to make sure their children are dressed appropriately when they leave for achool in the morning."

Robinson said she is concerned that enforcement of the code varies greatly because its interpretation is left up to the individual achools.

For example, through a spe-cial waiver, up to last year, students at Lake Brantley High School were allowed to wear hate. According to Robinson, the board this year voted 3-2 not to approve that waiver.

At Seminole High School, principal Getchen Schapker said students are allowed to wear hate, but not inside any of the buildings.

Seminole teachers and administration did have a problem early in the achool year with "spagnetti strap" tops for girls. Many of the students were wearing the tops with their bra straps showing. Schapker said she has tried to be consistent with how the policy is applied. She told teachers to send students to administratora to make a determination on a questionable outfit. She said she told teachers that the spagnetti straps were acceptable as long as 'appropriate" undergarments were worn.

"I think you can do a lot of nit-picking," Schapker said, "I try to understand the styles and accept them," she said. We try to enforce the school board policy. It's a good pol-

Schapker echoed Robinson's feeling that a school is a "place of business," and the business is learning.

Following a review and the presentation of the atudent group's findings, probably sometime in February, Robin-son said the portion of the code giving the schools the final any 'might be something we might take out."

The school board will meet Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

3 Close the SPD and contract the Sheriff Don Eslinger's Office for all law enforcement duties

"To be honest No. 3 looks like a very attractive and inexpensive quick fix." said Sgt. Darrel Presley of the SPD 1 hope the city doesn't jump to such a decision, though. It would be a terrible loss to the effizens - and in the long run not be as cost effective as it might appear to be.

Sanford Police Chief Jon Dillard said Friday he is going to fight for what is best for the city and its citizens, "I would like there to be sufficient input from the community, " he said. We have worked to become a more cohesive law enforcement unit We are making progress; Dillard, who took command of the SPD in January, needs a new law enforcement facility.

Hubler said Friday that the current Sanford police building i'is in very poor condition and is not functional in supporting modern police operations.

The costs of a separate new police facility built on cityowned property of sufficient size (approximately 34,000 square feet) including vehicle parking for 75 vehicles, site preparation and furnishing could range up to 86,200,000. This expenditure is not necessary if service is purchased from the Sheriff,"

The city's leaders have a timetable in place:

* On Sept. 15, Hubler will atlend a Sanford sioners' work session to discuss the PAS review. At this session. Hubler will explain in details why the city should form a broad-based Law Enforcement Optiona Committee to make recommendations to the City Commission on its options.

* In late October, the committee will report its findings to the commissioners, who will vote on a course of action.

Hubler strongly auggests one of the steps Sanford takes is to change the city charter so its police and fire departments report directly to the city manager instead of city commissioners. Voters would have to approve any charter change.

The most enormous decision, of course, is whether to save or scrap the SPD. This. Hubler said, is what will have the greatest impact on city employees and create the greatest controversy.

Hubler's statistics indicate that the city would save money and immediately upgrade its law enforcement capabilities by contracting Sheriff Don Estinger, who manages one of the best againsts in the coun-

The drawbacks would be that the city would no longer have its own police force - and may have a difficult time to form another in the future. Another nagging thought . 'how efficient is the Seminole County Sheriff's Office going to be when Don Eslinger ta no longer ita leader?"

To be sure, Ealinger is a key player in Sanford's law enforcement gameplan. His contribution to the PAS report is and figures that will be studied closely the next month and a half.

During his 40 years in his field, Glistrap has seen the number of customers drop with many shoe repair places closing. Lately he has been very concerned about being able to stay in business.

He blames this trend on mass produced foreign abuca made with cheaper materials.

Getting ready for a global economy

I just returned from a visit to the Netherlands as part of a fact finding mission from Seminole County. The Netherlands is a small country that has the highest population density in Europe. They have a centuries old tradition of being world traders. The domestic market in the country is rather small by our standards and they have learned to think globally. The children grow up in a multi-lingual society and most speak four languages. The predominant business language is English but French, German and Dutch are also used.

By accepting the economic reality of their position they have positioned themselves as the gateway to the European Union. They have a modern high tech communications industry and are able to serve as the port of entry with one of the world's busiest seaports. They have not closed themselves off to foreign invest-ment, in fact, they welcome it. The major cities actively compete against one another as potential altes for foreign companies. They have set up development companies based in Amaterdam, the Hague or Rotterdam. They exist to help investors navigate through the domestic environment and get new business off the ground.

Dutch trading partners exist that can help a U.S. producer enter the EC. Partnerships are warmly received and welcomed. The United States Commercial Bervice can provide research and contacts to begin the process. But make no mistake, they do not see trade as a one way street. They have real interest in entering the largest market in the world. When we explained to them the advantages to locating in Seminole County with our airport, good schools and highway system, they were Impressed.

Över and over again we were told that trade will be incising in both directions. As a small business person, are you pre-pared for this trend? Do you have any idea how your prod-ucts stack up in the world market place?

The Dutch have set up trade parks devoted to international trade adjacent to the Port of Rotterdam and the Rotterdam airport. These trade parks contain many producers from different countries. In one, we met a high trade official from the Republic of China. In our conversations, he was quite clear on the fact that he was interested in buying our technology. He said they need the hardware that they cannot produce. We had a chance to view the products they had for sale to the U.S. and the EC. They can be low cost providers

With barriers falling everywhere, inefficient producers will not be able to survive. As the largest market in the world. our small businesses must be prepared to compete. For more information, call my office at 328-4722 OF. email whardy@ipo.seminole.cc.fl.us.

Stress control is focus of program

By MARIA OREM Herald Staff Writer

Stress related problems are costing businesses billions of dollars in health care.

According to the American Journal of Family Physicians, two thirds of all doctor visits are stress related. Stress is the leading cause of heart attacks in both men and women.

Sandie Scheingold, a Heathrow businesswoman, is offering a stress reduction program. which teaches people how to deal with stress in their lives.

Describing her program as mindfulness based stress reduction. Scheingold teaches participants how to cope with stress through body awareness, light stretching Yoga exercises and meditation.

Scheingold said she can vouch for the program through her own personal experiences. After living 10 years with the knowledge that her son was terminally ill, Scheingold said she thought she was prepared to deal with his death. But she found that even two years later. the death was affecting her both in her personal life and health. As the owner of an interior design company, Scheingold was beginning to suffer physical symptons as well as emotional problems. She decided to go into therapy and a short time later she began to attend seminars focusing on the mind and body connection.

"Stress affects blood pres-aure and then adrenalin kicks in causing the person to go into the flight and fight mode." she said. "The body responds with anger or suppressed feel-

According to Scheingold, the medical community is beginning to acknowledge the effecliveness of her stress reduction methods. She said three new studies, 80 HMO's by Landmark Healthcare, a University of Massachusetts Medical Center study published in General Hospital Psychiatry, and a University of California study published in Psychotherapy and Psychosomatics, show strong support of the mindful-

Idyllwilde's team effort includes parents

By BOB GOFF Special to the Herald

Idyliwilde Elementary School has long been identified as an at-risk school in the Sanford area. In reality, this identification is a long way from the truth. Yes, the school has a ra-cial ratio of 69 percent nonblack and 31 percent black, but this does not qualify the school as an at-risk school by itself. The lower socio-economic levels of the surrounding area also does not much the school. But most qualify the school. But most importantly of all-the contin-tied rise of CTBS scores clearly show that the only failure at idyliwide is a deliberate failure to accept an at-risk classification as the status quo.

Principal David Scott is the biggest reason for this attitude. but he quickly diverts the at-tention from himself and directs it to his staff. He points out that all he has done is to provide a good foundation of leachers and staff to support the continued upward mobility of the student population, well supported by their parents. Mr. Scott rarely uses the word "1" when talking about his school-preferring to deflect the credit to his staff and the children's

"All I do is fight for the money," he says. "The staff's job is to implement the programs they choose to use in their classrooms."

He says that with a good staff, a cycle begins that involves the parents in their children's school activities. As the parents become involved, they create a positive learning atmosphere at home where the child has constant reinforcement that they go to school to learn--not play or cause trou-ble. As the child learns more and is rewarded for that achievement, the parents be-come more involved in positive school activities. The parental support at home transfers over to the school's recognition program -- a program idyilwilde excels in.

Idyilwilde students have many recognition opportuni-ties. There is the ICU Lunch-where teachers are said sizes to doing something good. Each week, these students are drawn from the hat to accompany Principal Scott or Assistant Principal Joyce Wagner to an area restaurant for lunch. Honor Roll students get to attend a basketball game at UCF or SCC and get to meet the players. There is an A Honor Roll Breakfast sponsored by the PTA. Each nine weeks there are awards assemblies honoring the A and A/B Honor Roll, those students with perfect attendance. Accelerated Reader top point earners, even a Principal's Award for those students who have no checks for poor behavior.

Other methods of recognition include the Pod Level Plays where each grade level sponsors an activity. The 5th grade has a science fair. The 4th grade theme is Searching for Heroes. This is where social

Each class creates little cities with three businesses. Student involvement leads to rental involvement which leads to community involvement. All this is the result of staff involvement.

"The staff wants to do these things for the students," Scott says again and again. "It's not a forced activity from the top down. They're great! This year we have a new Ecology Club-taught by Diana Brewster, a speech teacher. Ernest Startup, the guidance coun-selor, is undertaking a yearbook this year. Mary Ann Mas-soll started a reading program a couple of years ago that last year culminated just before the end of the achool year meeting a goal of 10,000 points earned by the students. It was called Race to Read" and we brought in a race car for the students to sit in when they met their goal. Pick a week and there is probably something going on at the school. Parent dinners draw upwards of 900 to 1,000 parents. (Yes, Virginia -- there are schools where parents care enough about their children to participate in their education.) Plays and band concerts play to packed houses. Several programs have become so successful that they had to be divided so that the school can accommodate the community as spectators. What Principal Scott has found is that when you recognize children's ac-compliahments—the parent's become involved in the school. His secret recipe is to support a hand-picked staff who doesn't have to be told to get involved. They all want to do it because they too receive the rewards of the children learning and growing because of their efforts. The school has several partnerships with Lake Mary and Banford little leagues, the Seminole Pony league, the YMCA basketball league, the Sanford Recreation Department's Flag football program and the Girl Scouts. There is rarely a moment when something isn't going on at the

In a five hour interview, Principal Scott could only hit upon some of the outstanding programs at Idyllwilde. There are many more that can be squeezed in this space. However, before one begins to be-lieve that all is play instead of school work at idyliwiide, it is important to view their academic success. Idyliwilde is one of the few schools in the county to measure students each year. Instead of just measuring students in the 2nd and 4th grade, idyliwide gives each student a CTBS test each year. In the class that most accurately reflects the results of the three year old "Scott Teamwork Approach", the resulta are as good as any achool in Seminole County. For the kindergarten class of August 1993, who are this year's 4th graders, the test results are as follows:

Year	Grade	Reading	Math	-C&A
Year 94/5	100	30	54	60
95/6	2nd	40	58	54
96/7	3rd	63	67
97/8	4th	7	7	7

It is the goal of the school this year to chart each child's personal scores for each year they have taken the test. This form will be shared with the teachers and the parents, so that both can continue to keep a close eye on the progress of the child. "I'm a visual learner." says Principal Scott. I need to see the picture...and statistics show the picture in such a way that all can understand it's im-portance." To beast purentel involvement, the aglicol now... has a Required Report Card Conference. Two years ago, Idyliwilde began a program that requires parents to come to the school to pick up their children's report cards. In the first year 705 of 835 students' parents picked up their child's report cards and were given a parent/teacher conference on the spot. Last year, the percentage was even greater. At Idyliwilde, students who are having difficulty are not left to wither on the vine. Immediate attention is given to all stu-dents who need it--and parents are encouraged to be a part of the solution.

For a brief moment all was right with Lake Mary's world

ORLANDO For 10 minutes, all was right with the world for anyone connected with the Lake Mary football program.

For 10 minutes, the Rams led Edgewater, .17-0, and life was about as good as it can get for a group of kids, playing their hearts out for their school, the cheerleaders, the fans, the band and Lake Mary's whole little world.

For 10 minutes, Cory Cooper was the best quarterback in the history of Seminole County, destined to make everyone forget Jeff Blake. He showed a maturity far beyond anyone's expectations for a junior that never started a varsity game.

For 10 minutes, Robbie Randall was unstoppable, breaking tackles and running through the Edgewater defense like O.J. used to before he purchased his butcher's knife.

For 10 minutes, Cam Carter, Justin Wright and the rest of the Lake Mary defense had atuffed and mounted the Edgewater offense. Just outside the Edgewater stadium, there is a large sign that reads "Watch the Engice Soar.

For 10 minutes, the sign should have read. Watch the Eagles sore.

10 minutes, Tim Spivey, a newcomer to county, hauling in two touchdowns and a two-point conversion. By the way, Spivey can also play a mean game of basketball, Rama' basketball coach Mike Gaudresu must be drooling over a speedater who, at 6-foot, can do a 360 degree dunk.

For 10 minutes, last year's disappointing 6-5 finish was nothing more than a memory that would exist only in the yellowing pages of the 1996 yearbook.

For 10 minutes, coach Doug Peters wore the smile of a winner, leading a team that is tth unlimit can coach a team loaded with talent by pushing the right buttons. With this team, Peters can put his knowledge, patience and mental games into making a winner out of an inexperienced bunch. Last year's version of the Rams, with several Division I players and tons of ability, had the talent. This year's team in more fun.

For 10 minutes, everything was fine. Visions of playoffs danced in their heads. A 10-0 regular season? Sure, why not. When you're up 17-0 and the first quarter still has two minutes to go, it's easy to dream.

For 10 minutes, the Rams were undefeated, unscored upon and running up the score. Unfortunately, football games last 48 minutes in high school.

And the final 38 minutes were ugly. Lake Mary forgot how to stop the run, and, when Maurice White of Edgewater is the man to stop, you'd better think of something pretty quickly. The Rama didn't do that, Cooper lost his edge. Spivey only caught one more catch and before anyone knew it the score was tied at 17. By the time the band played the Lake Mary school song, the Rams were smarting from a 29-23 loss that hurt. A lot. This Lake Mary team, after only one game, should be an interesting one to watch. Cooper showed incredible poise, throwing three touchdown passes without an interception and having the emarts to hold the ball instead of making a dumb pass and even throwing the ball away when necessary. Randall is Randall, a fast back who can break it from anywhere. The defense is the strength of Lake Mary but it wasn't evident last night as the Rams got torched. it could be a long season for Lake Mary. but its fans just need some patience. The Rams make up for a lack of talent with a ton of heart, so enjoy the little things.

And don't give upon Lake Mary yet. Get used to hearing the phrase "Cooper-to-

SANFORD _ Improvement.

For the two teams that composed the only inter-conference match-up of the first week of the high school football season, improvement was evident from the first snap.

Lyman traveled to Seminole's Thomas E. Whigham Stadium Friday night and put up quite a fight before falling to an also improved Noie team, 19-14.

The close score gives only a tiny reflection, however, of how much these two teams have come in just nine short months.

Our team is a lot better this year," Lyman coach Larry Baker said. "We aren't going to let one loss get us down. There are many other games to play this season and the players won't let one close game lower their confidence."

Relying heavily on a passing at-tack. Lyman came out throwing and quarterback Brian Krause completed an 14-yard pass to Eddie Boney on the third play of the game. Not only on this drive, but throughout the evening running back Tarik McCall was the go-to guy. His 11-yard carry created the cently took the same route as Princess Diana the night she met her death in a tragic accident on the Pont de l' Alma underpass.

Local tourists traveled Diana's death route

While visiting London, Jean Clontz, her daughter Lian, Gail Stewart and her daughter Shanan, took the chunnel excursion, a little more than a 3hour trip, from London to Paris for a visit to the exciting world capital.

They were surprised and devastated when the news of Diana's death was announced on television. "It was shocking, Gail said. "Kind of like when Kennedy was assastnated."

Jean said,"We took the very same route." They both talked about their cerie feelings when they saw the path the princess took on television.

The mothers and daughters went to London where Shanan, a law student, took summer classes at Oxford University. And now the young barristerto-be has returned home and is enrolled at Thomas Cooley Law School in Lansing, Mich. Sha-nan met several students from this school at Oxford and they influenced the southern belle to come join them up North. So, she did.

While at Oxford, Shanan visited Parliament and got to meet several British dignitartes. "She loved it," Gail said. She had a nice summer and did well in her courses."

The day that Gall and Shanan went to Oxford, Jean and Lina took a chance and ventured to the Wimbledon tennis matches. Jean said she always watched these matches on television, and finally got to see the famous event. The highlight of the tup, she said, The was 'to literally sit there and watch some matches." The Eiffel Tower and the Louvre were the main attractions in Paris. All admit they plan to return to London.

In the meantime, turn-about seems to be fair play. Dr. Frank Clonts and Dr. Roger Stewart went to Scotland, without their wives, last week to play golf, accompanied by about 18 others. They returned Wednesday and said many events in Great Britain were cancelled due to Diana's death. The outpour of public emotion was unreal, according to Frank.

Jean said about the People's Princess, "It's so sad. It's almost like losing a family member."

Sherwood has been mustcally inclined all of his life. He is a native of Sanford and is the youngest of the five Mobiley children. His musical attention as a teenager went to the love of being a drummer. As a young man he had the opportunity to travel to Europe with a group of high achool musicians from every state in the country.

After high school he chose to further his musical education by attending Berkley College of Music. After one year he transferred to the Boston Conservatory to concentrate on orchestral percussion

His career in music began in Atlanta in 1978 after gradua-tion. He taught percussion at several colleges and was a freelance musician. After performing with regional orchestras and a tour of Broadway. he played with several big name artists such as Frank Stnatra, Semmy Devis, Jr., Gla-dys Knight and Diana Ross. Gift of art lessons paid off

Herald Stall Writer

Donna Higgina docan't let all work and no play dominate her life. Although very devoted to her job an a clerk with the Seminole County Courthouse where she works with MaryAnn Moree, Higgins still makes plenty of time for pen and tak drawings and toll painting...two hobbies that bring joy to her day.

Higgins began her art some seven years ago. "My husband wanted to give me something as a gift that would last a little longer than most gifts," she said. "He gave me art lessons. He aigned me up for classes. It coat him a lot of money, but I enjoyed it and still do. That was ocven years ago."

Although Higgins started sewing Raggedy Ann dolls complete with the embroidered "I Love You" on the chest, her creativity blossomed when she began classes. She then launched out into pen and ink and tole painting.

Much of her work is for sale and displayed at Back Door Crafts on the corner of First Street and Palmetto Avenue. She and another woman share a small booth with beautiful work inside.

Higgins took lessons locally at Kustom Krafts and also at Lake Mary's Creative Design. "I remember my first tole painting," she said. "When I took lessons at Kustom Krafts, I made a swan towel holder for the bathroom. Now I have a friend that cuts out a lot of my wood for my tole painting 1 learned acrylic and oils and how to make landscapes at Creative Design, I had always wanted to do reflections on the water and I learned that there

For her pen and ink work she admitted that her theme is birdhouses. "I like to do birdhouses and then watercolor them in, I am learning watercolors on my own.

Little cottages were mentioned as another favorite too. Higgins is a member of the Creative Artist of Central Florida, as well as, the National Chapter. She added that members of the club recently painted on a mural on the children's wall at the Ronald McDonald House. 'It has an under the sea whimsteal theme with sea horses and fishes," she said. A very unusual hobby that Higgins and her husband also enjoy was cited as "gold mining. They are part of a Gold Minera Club out of Georgia with a membership of over 300 people.

We've been doing this for eight years," she said. "We've never found the big nugget yet. but it's a lot of fun. I wear rubher galoshes and keep looking. We do it about four times a year."

Higgins and her husband. David, have been married for 30 years. They have two daughters. Shart, and Lort and three grandchildren. They have been Sanford residents for 12 years.

Letters full of memories make father's last birthday his best

DEAR ABBY: I reed a letter in your column that described how, for their parents' anniversary, the children asked friends and family to write letters recalling a special memory they had shared with the couple. The children put all of the letters into an album and presented It to the parents on their anniver-sary. I thought it was a great idea, but it wasn't until late last summer that I decided to take that advice myself.

My father's 70th birthday was proaching instead of requesting that the letters be sent to me, I asked everyone to send the letters directly to Dad during the week of his birthday. I intended to pay him a visit on the afternoon of his special day and collect them in a folder

My father called me every day that week with such joy and excite-ment in his voice. He was getting about eight letters a day from peo ple he hadn't heard from in years. All were filled with wonderful memprice. I didn't tell him I sent the requests out, but someone who wrote him did. Dad thanked me and said it was the best gift he could have received. I promised to help him answer every letter.

Well, my father died on the afternoon of his 70th birthday of a heart attack. I am so grateful that I acted upon something I read in your column. I kept my promise and answered every letter.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart for continuing to write your column. I'm 41 years old and have been a faithful reader since I was a teen-ager. I speak from experience when I say that although some people may read your column only for enjoyment, someday they'll need to use some of your sage advice.

DEB LOGUE. EAST PETERSBURG, PA.

DEAR DEB: Please accept my sympathy on the loss of your beloved father. I'm gratified that an item you read in my column proved to be so meaningful. I have received many letters from readers who wanted me to know the pleasure that their laved ones experienced upon receiving a memory book. They make priceless, one-of-a-kind

ADVICE ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The ability to invent tools was once thought to be a uniquely human characteristic, until 1960. At that time, Jane Goodall observed wild chimpanasse making "tools" out of branches by stripping the leaves and breaking them to a proper size. These tools are made to "fish" for termites in the narrow tunnels of termite mounds, so they must be the proper thickness and free of

When she telegraphed this diswhen ane telegrapese the femous anthropologist, Dr. Louis Leakey, he sent back the reply, We must now redefine tools, redefine man, or accept chimpansees as human." Nobody would deny that we are dif-ferent from chimpansees and other apea, but the more we learn about them, the more we find that in many respects, we are not as different as perhaps we would like to

TIM SUSMAN, STAFF SCIENTIST, THE JANE GOODALL INSTI-TUTE'S CENTER FOR PRIMATE STUDIES, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR MR. SUSMAN: Thank you for enlightening me. When Mise Gondall discovered that chimpansees are closer to humans than originally thought, she also made a mon-key out of me.

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago I legan dating a man I care for very much. We discussed a future together and things seemed to fall into place. We thought it was wise to have HIV testing before we got too intimute — which means we were very cautious - but we did become intimate. His test came back positive. He wasn't too shocked, nor was I. I care deeply for this man. He's 38 and I'm 31. We both have been married several times, and now I feel like I should never be with anyone else. I know the risk involved with staying with him. However, I can't imagine not being there when he needs me.

His lifestyle has changed in the last few months, and if he continues living a healthy lifestyle, he could live a fairly normal life, which I'd very much like to be part of.

don't worry about his giving me AIDS, but I do worry about how I will take care of him if and when he geta sick. I have two wonderful kida ages 9 and 5. I want to see them

I've believed in God all my life, and never thought he would put me in a situation like this. I can't seem to understand what God wants from me, although I pray a lot lately. I'm afraid to consult our pastor with this private problem.

According to Mervyn Silver-man, M.D., past president of the American Foundation for AIDS Research (AmFAR), with proper protection, you can significantly reduce your risk and main-tain your negative HIV status. Obviously this means never letting your guard down, and always using protection with penetrative sex. For information on the best preventive

I wish you both the very beet of luck.

DEAR ABBY: Dr. James Prentice of Austin, Texas, wrote to you about being on the set of "That Hagen Girl in 1947 and seeing 'a young Ronald Reagan and a young actress whose name I don't recall."

I wonder how many people wrote to any that the young actress was probably Shirley Temple in her first "grown-up" role?

STUDENTS LEARN LAKE MARY HISTORY

What did Lake Mary look like 100 years ago? A group of 30 students from Lake Mary Elementary were researching that question on Wednesday, Sept. S at the Frank Evans Center. Cathy Lawrence's 5th grade class chose Lake Mary to study as part of their unit on rail-roads and highways. With the help of members of the Lake Mary Historical Commission, the students looked for pictures and descriptions of the town at the turn of the century. The students really enjoyed finding out what the city looked like in years past. They will be using the information to make a 3-D model of Lake Mary.

Pete Dukas, a new intern with the city, helped out during the class visit. Pete will be helping historical commission member and city liaison Maureen Liberatore, design a certificate for the children as a thank you for helping preserve the city's history. Research is, of course, him-

Now an fifth grade teacher at Stenatrom Elementary in Oviedo, Gordon has found many ways to impact the kids in the area. Besides teaching, Gordon has always had a talent and a love for basketball. He played all through high school and walked on the team at Florida A & M University where he attended college. Look out, Mayor Dale. Lisa Whitlow of Seminole High School is in town

Good Kids

Success is Whitlow's Destiny

By BOB GOFF Special to the Herald

Mayor Larry Dale had better not get too attached to his new office in Sanford City Hall. Lian Whitlow has her sights set on it-after Dale helps Seminole High School get a new pool.

But-she says-if he doesn't get on with it, she might put him out to pasture earlier. This is one directed, motivated high school Sentor. She practiced her political skills this summer as a Senator at Oirl's State. She's been a class officer all four years at SHS. Mayor Dale, a renown hunter, had better get used to running around with a bulls-eye painted between his shoulders if he can't produce that pool.

Whitlow has a list of accomplishments which read like a political brochure. She played volleyball as a freshman, was a member of the Dance Team as a freshman and Sophomore, was a diver for the Swim-Team is a junior and has been a member. of Deatiny, the show chorus for all four years. She was a member of the Grand National Championahip team in 1995.

She has narrowed her college choices

Forest, Miami, NYU, and UNC-Chapel Hill are on the list. Her brother graduates this year from Miami and there's a strong draw to go there. Lisa mentions that her brother graduated from SHS in the #3 spot. She's #5 right now due to a couple of D's when she was a sophomore, but she has hopes of at least matching his record. If she can't get by a couple of the students ahead of her ahe has studied the Watergate affair in her AP history class as part of her preparation for the political

Lisa hasn't had it all that easy in high school. Just two weeks before she started nt Seminole, her mother died. Ten years of gymnastica went out the window us transportation became a problem. But the friendships she made with Brandy Johnson and her family have survived throughout the years. 'Kathy and Brandy have been my surrogate moms. They've helped me out when things got rough." Lisa says. "Dad is a high school and college football and basketball referee. when he's not doing destructive physical analysis for F. W. Bell labs. He tries to blow things up!" Lisa is proud of her mom and has special memories of their time together. Her essay on her mother last year for the Optimist Club won the 8100 first prize.

But Lisa's real accomplishment at Seminole High School has been with the Swim Team. She became a diver when Team Orlando sent a recruiting letter to all gymnusts who had retired from competition. She tried it for a day and was hooked last summer. She then showed up and surprised Coach Tony Ackerson by leading his team with both effort and leadership. Diving on torn ligaments, she placed second in the District and was 24th in the State Championahipa. A second operation was performed this summer and now Lisa is back on the boards learning newer and more difficult diven for the upcoming championships.

Lian Whitlow--not one of your typical students. Not one of your typical kids. But she is a neat kid-one you would be proud to know. She's this week's Good Kid. Catch her at a swimming pool near you this fall--or a concert hall with Destiny this spring. Or maybe in an elected position in the near future.

Watch Miranda stick out her tongue

and is making a name for herself.

By MIRANDA HAWKING Herald Correspondent

Just like hot pants in the seventies, a new fad has struck the teens of the nineties.

Body piercing. For the last few years, teens all across America have been going out to tattoo and body piercing shops and making new holes in their bodies all for the sake of fashion.

Because of the new craze among today's youth, laws have been established in order to "stop the insanity" such as. if you are under the age of 18 you must have written permission from your parents to pierce certain parts of your anatomy. These types of laws have been created for the protection of teens who make rash" decisions.

As parents have become more and more concerned with their - "little" bebies "who just" yesterday were sitting in front of the television watching the smurfs and eating cereal the want of piercings has become more accelerated than a few years back. Now, for the sake of rebellion, teens want their eyebrows, noses, etc. full of holes.

I, being a current "teen of the 90s" have made a choice and recently pierced my tongue. For the sake of argument, my tongue is not infected and it fallen off. Also, to clear the rumors that have been circulating in order to scare youth away from this practice, my tongue did not bleed. Also, the hole in my tongue will grow back to normal if I choose to let it but at this point in my life it will remain.

Teens are constantly being harassed by adults who do not want them to make the same mistakes as they did in their childhood but, if they could recall, they had to make their own mistakes in order to learn from them. The world is constantly changing but change does not mean a thing in the minds and manners of adults who are set in their ways.

If you have a son or daughter that is considering plercing a part of their body that you do not agree with, please, do not blow them off or take what they are saying for granted. If you do not discuss and even consider the idea, your child might come home with a piercing done by their friends that would probably get infeeted and the ring would not be sanitary.

People, this is just like sex education of you do not educate then you might as well eliminate. The only drawback in that no one is going to get rid of this new trend, or sex for that matter, until it goes "out of style.

Choose to learn, choose to live, and choose to do so happily. This world is full of many different types of people with many different opinions. Without this variety life would be bland. The minority can not be pushed back on issues as big as religion or an cings. Just always remember that the main priority is to be the Leaders of Today. Clark said, "It felt like I was privileged to be there and 1 tried to enjoy every minute the best I could. Keeping husy is one thing Clark has no trouble with. He is the captain of the Seminole swimming team, a member of the golf team and involved with Future Business Leaders of America and the BETA club. besides all of that, he has a 3.4 grade point average and spends three to four hours each day studying. "I don't know how I handle it all. I don't sleep much," Clark said I enjoy doing it because I like socializing with people. When anyone has troubles they call me and I try to talk them through It."

In fact, during his time in Washington, the students were given 30 minutes for breakfast and Clark spent the time sleeping late instead. The scholars had to get up in the wee hours of the morning and then spend the majority of the day and night attending meetings, discussions and different

For two weeks, Clark received the opportunity to go to Washington, D.C., interacted and met with senators, the and key leaders throughout the three branches of government. He was one out 350 outstanding National Scholar students picked from across America to participate in the conference.

When asked about being nervous visiting a city with 350 other students and not knowing anyone, Clark simply said.
I like that kind of stuff and it doesn't bother me at all. Although everyone within the first couple of days formed their own cliques."

During day one, Clark re-ceived greetings from the members of Congress and highlights of the program from the Floor of the United States House of Representatives.

"As I was sitting in the huge leather chairs on the Floor of House, I started looking around, there was gum under the seats and peanut wrappers in them," said Clark.

While at the conference. Clark sat with journalists at the National Press Club for a panel discussion. The scholars were appointed a senator or representative to talk about important issues facing the nation and the City of Sanford. Clark sat with representative John Mica's right hand man and spoke about getting a awimming pool at Seminole High School. He also talked about the busing situation going on in the elementary schools in Sanford.

They are trying to reroute and balance the schools yet they are only doing this in Sanford. Lake Mary is practically 100 percent majority and not minority," said Clark.

Clark also participated in a number of leadership activities including one activity, where the students had to role play the President, members of the Cabinet and Representatives from Capitol Hill. The students had to respond to an international crisis that might occur.

The students also tried their hand at role playing Congress by debating, amending, and voting on proposed legislation dealing with juvenile justice. Immigration reform, and national security.

"It was hard role playing a Democratic representative considering I feel atrongly towarda republican Issues, Clark said.

The ironic twist to the whole interview came when asked about getting into politics or a government related job, he quickly said, 'No, I learned a lot about politics and found out I don't like politics especially after what I saw up in Washington. It will always be in the back of my mind but I was just interested in learning how our country is ran. I got to see the backbone of the govern-

In the future, headlines will be comparing Clark to Bill Clinton or maybe even Peter Jennings. He plans on going to college and is presently looking towards Mercer Univer-sity. Clark wants to major in Business and own his own company. His life will be nothing dull though, considering along with owning his own company, he wants to work with a Fortune 500 company and have a couple of local businesses that he can also run. That is all just in his spare time.

Nothing short of remarkable, Clark has gone to Washington to make a difference in the small city of Sanford and has represented his hometown worked out really well." For the kids, Gordon tries to be more of a big brother to them than a coach. He said that there are times, of course, when he has to get on them a little. But most of the time he tries to just be there friend.

"I am able to help them to understand the way we do things and what should be important to them because I have been through the system,* Gordon sald.

This year could improve Gordon and Gaudreau's working relationship just a little more as the freshmen talent that Gordon coached to an undefeated season is now on the varsity squad. Gordon said he feels a little like they are his kids and would like nothing more than to see them achieve the same successes this year.

Ifigh school basketball lan't Gordon's only past time. A lot of his students also play on AAU teams and Gordon makes a point of going to their games whenever he can.

"A lot of my atudenta don't have anyone to come and watch them play," Gordon said. "I think it's important that the kids look into the stands and see someone there rooting fe them. Every kid need to feel important and build self confdence.

Kids have always been top priority to Gordon. His long term goals are to help kids in low economic areas by becoming an administrator in all elementary achool in one of those areas.

When he was first hired a Stenatrom, Gordon expressed this interest and was given the advise to get into administration. He was told that he could have a greater impact on the kids at that level.

So Gordon went back to school. He enrolled at the Uni versity of South Florida where he is currently working toward a major in Educational Lead ership and hopes to use that degree to move into the administrative end of education. With basketball season right around the corner, Gordon will soon have even less spare time then usual.

It's a pretty safe bet, though, that he'll still be seen around the playgrounds once in a while and at his kids games every chance he gets.
