Rose Ball

Plans are going forward rapidly for the Rose Ball which will be held at the Sanford House Friday evening, Nov. 27th, under the auspices of the Woman's Club. A special effort is being made to promote the wearing of cotton gowns upon this occasion. The dry goods merchants of Sanford, Messrs. Yowell, D. A. Caldwell & Sons, J. K. Mettinger and Chas. Kanner are cooperating with the ladies to make the cotton feature a success. D. A. Caldwell & Sons and the N. P. Yowell Co. have offered a prize of $10.00. One is for the handsomest gown made of cotton materials and the other for the most artistic gown made of the cheaper cotton materials. The merchants will put on a cotton sale previous to the ball, in plenty of time to have gowns made. Much enthusiasm and interest is being manifested in the ball that promises a splendid success. The following committees have been appointed:

VEGETABLES START FROM SANFORD

EGG PLANT STARTS OFF WITH GOOD PRICES

Sanford growers are beginning to perk up a bit and are bringing in the first shipments of the season. The city is beginning to feel the first pulsings of the great vegetable business that has placed Sanford foremost in the winter vegetable growing sections of the world.

First car of vegetables for the season moves on Saturday. Eggplants made up from various shippers and shipped to New York. Previous sales eggplant from Sanford sold from $2.25 to $2.50. Prospects for later shipments at an advanced price good.

Various western markets beginning to inquire for eggplant, also lettuce and romaine, these markets advising that the cold weather has practically destroyed home grown vegetables, and that by the time our supplies are liberal there should be a fairly good market.

Both Texas and California are getting a good average in lettuce, but not good quality and proper pack, and that much as we will be earlier than those points, we should secure the trade and maintain it.

Send Us a Fish. He is a member of the Ananias Club and will be taken out on their first outing.

Handsome Yacht Here. One of the finest yachts that has been seen here this season was the Willrose that tied up at the city dock last Friday night.

Dutton who is engaged in the crate, growers' supplies and commission business. Mr. Dutton has the utmost faith in the future of Sanford and has recently purchased several fine automobile trucks for the transportation of feed and supplies and he keeps them moving.

CHRISTMAS BOX TO EUROPE'S TOTS

BIG HEARTED PEOPLE OF SANFORD RESPOND MOST LIBERALLY

The people of the public schools met with a generous response. The box is being filled for the children of Europe, and the children of Paris agree that the box is being filled for the children of Europe.

There in Europe. Teachers, merchants, club women and the people at large did their share in filling the box.

Over nine dollars in cash was contributed by the high school and grammar school, that was judiciously expended by Mrs. R. J. Holly.

From the Children of Sanford to the Children of Europe, A Merry Christmas. The box will go on the U. S. Collier "Lason" that will leave New York City Nov. 10.

CITY BEAUTIFUL CAMPAIGN GROWS

GOOD LADIES OF SANFORD DOING GREAT WORK OF IMPROVEMENT

There seems to be some misapprehension about the meaning of the City Beautiful article published in the Herald two weeks ago. The words semi-annual do not refer to a class of plants, but to the fact that it is the intention of the committee to hold competitions semi-annually.

For the spring show, which will be held in April or May, it is the object to encourage the planting of flowers that will make an immediate show, and this for two reasons. Firstly, when one begins to plant in a small way, like nasturtiums, pinks and the like, the gardening germ gets in its best work.

Next time this month the Civic Department of the Woman's Club expects to hold a plant sale, and it would be a good idea for intending customers to study their plant catalogues a bit, and indicate to some member of the committee just what sorts of things they would like to have.

This thing of studying a flower catalogue is a very curious development. At the staff one may order a miscellaneous fifty cent collection, or maybe in a great spurt of extravagance decides to blow in a whole dollar in plants of the florist's own selection.

By and by the germ grows more active and one begins to have ideas of one's own, ordering a twenty-five cent novelty to try out, or several of some favorite plants. When this begins the infection is serious, and by the easiest degree one comes to the point where they are almost buying themselves.

SEMINOLE COUNTY WILL ASSIST THE COUNTY FAIR. Seminole county will have a fair in February. This has been decided upon by the action of the citizens and council last night in making an additional appropriation for the Seminole county fair and the board of county commissioners will do the same today.

TURKEY COMES IN

The war, still are progressing with fury almost unparalleled, but there have been no changes of importance at any point along the 300-mile line of the official reports. The battle of the Marne, which was the turning point of the war, is still being fought.

The French statement is equally hopeful in tone. The allies are said to have made slight progress at various points, including the blood-soaked fields of Flanders, in the vicinity of Dixmude. On the center and right of the allied lines, assaults of the Germans are said to have been repulsed.

The German and Austrian forces in the east, compelled to retire before the Russian advance, have left flank are claimed in Berlin. Apparently Turkey is now definitely involved in the general war.

The play is being given under the auspices of the Civic Department of the Woman's Club and hearty cooperation of all is requested. There will be a percentage of the proceeds raised given to the general fund of the club and also a donation to the rest room, a feature of the club that from a practical viewpoint was a success, and yet needs encouragement financially.

Each of the cast has been selected because of their individual talents from the various parts and are displaying an enthusiasm which means SUCCESS.

Local Stars to Twinkle

Never before in the history of Sanford have the people had the opportunity that will be given them on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, at the Imperial, to see local stars playing in a most creditable manner, a comic rural drama that has had a New York run.

The play, "Out of the Fold," by Langdon McCormick, is the dramatization of Moody and Sankey's "Ninety and Nine," and is arranged so as to present a succession of appealing scenes, each scene containing a clever plot and a telling moral interspersed with enough humor to make one forget the sterner things of life.

Delightful Porch Dance

Mr and Mrs Frank Miller entertained Friday evening with a charming porch dance, one of the most delightful events of the season. The attractive home was very lovely with its decorations of red and green, red roses and pom-poms being used with artistic effect among the green. The softened glow of red shaded lights completed a scene of charm and beauty most pleasing and effective.

The broad verandas are especially adapted for dancing. The music was excellent and the dancing enjoyed until a late hour. Punch was served throughout the evening, a sandwich course was also served. Mrs. Morris presided over the punch bowl and Mrs. F. J. Gonzales poured coffee. The invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Connelly, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hallowe'en Party

One of the very happiest affairs of Hallowe'en week was the lovely party given by the girls of the Kewpie Club to the boys of the C. C. C. Club, in return for their delightful attentions during the summer. The girls entertained Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. T. Brady. The evening was brimful of fun and frolic, for this gay crowd of young people know how to enjoy the many pleasures that come their way, and this Hallowe'en party was one of the most enjoyable. The house was charming. Under the artistic hands of the Kewpie elves the parlor had been transformed into a pumpkin patch with its walls and draperies covered with pumpkins. The "den" was truly a witch's den for owls, cats and witches were so visible everywhere that it gave one the "creeps" just to pass through the door hung with draperies of red and black crepe paper. The hall was an attractive entrance, with its artistic decorations, while the dining room was the prettiest of all. The ceiling was screened with alternating ribbons of black and yellow and black cats were in evidence, on the curtains, the side-board covers and in every available place. Great masses of daisies completed the charm of the room. The back porch was a bower of green ing, apple bobbing, ghost stories and all sorts of Hallowe'en games were enjoyed by the young people until a late hour, and delicious cake and punch were served. The best of the whole party were the charming young girls in their masquerade costumes, for the boys to guess "which was who." Alice Caldwell, as a dainty little fairy queen won the prize, a pretty tango tie. Rush Murphy won the prize for being the best Barnum & Bailey clown on record, who generously shared his box of candy with the girls. In the word guessing contest, the prizes "pickles," tied with pink and red ribbons respectively were won by Ruth McDaniel, a very attractive Seminole Indian maiden, and Allan Jones. Agnes Bothamly was the dearest little clown imaginable.

Helen Hand was a very handsome king of hearts quite proud of his escort, Elizabeth Stafford, a charming queen of hearts, in black and red. Fern Ward was a gracious and graceful dame of "ye olden tyme," while the Yum Yum girl was altogether kissable in the person of May Thrasher. If all the ladies of the Turkish harem are as attractive and lovely as Virginia Brady, who impersonated one of the harem beauties it is no wonder the Sultan is a jealous guardian. Enjoying the hospitality of the Kewpies were Dick Brown, J. D. Woodruff, G. W. Spencer, Fred Wight, Allan Jones and Rush Murphy.

Ghost Party

Little Miss Sarah Whyeless was the happy young hostess of a creepy, shivery ghost party Friday night in celebration of her ninth birthday, at the home of her parents on Oak avenue. After the little ghosts were assembled there came knocking at the door, a great, big pumpkin ghost, at least it must have been, for it had a pumpkin head, and then the fun began. The lights were put out and it was indeed ghostly to see all these dreadful ghosts of live people sitting around and telling in supernatural whispers the most blood curdling ghost stories.

After the story telling the big ghost took the little ghosts visiting. Dr. Neeb was frightened almost to death when they called on him, and other people were just as scared, most out of their wits, but recovered when they found out they were real live girls and boys.

Returning to the Whyeless home, delicious refreshments were served in the dining room which was lovely and attractive with quantities of yellow flowers. The fun and frolic was finished out on the lawn in the moonlight, the little folks departing at last with the full conviction that Ghost parties were the best fun yet. Sarah's guests were Ruth and Addie Marshall, Virginia DeCoursey, Nan Paxton, Margaret Berner, Helep and Sidney Kennedy, Carolyn Shuman, Donald Brock and William Wheelers.

Masquerade Birthday Party

Another happy birthday party enjoyed by the little folks was given by Marie Stemper Saturday afternoon in honor of her tenth birthday. The children came in fanciful masquerade costumes, ghosts, Indians, cow boys, daisies, fairies and all sorts of non-descript characters, mingling together in happy unconcern.

Amusing Hallowe'en games were enjoyed, as well as the dainty refreshments served by Marie's mother. About fifteen guests responded to the invitations, bringing with them lots of pretty gifts for the little hostess.

For Mr. Meisch

Mr. and Mrs. John Meisch entertained with a Hallowe'en party Saturday evening in honor of their brother, Mr. Frank Meisch. The pretty home was made very attractive with Hallowe'en devices, the color scheme of black and yellow blending harmoniously beneath the softened glow of shaded candles. The hall was artistically hung with ribbons of black and yellow, festooned from the walls and ceiling and lightened with owl lanterns. The fireplace and mantel in the parlor was banked with moss, daisies and goldenrod, from which peeped wise owl faces, blinking at other owls and cats lanterns, placed about the rooms. The library was especially attractive with its more elaborate decorations. Ropes of fern, from which hung Jack-o-lanterns and ribbons of black and yellow, were suspended from the chandeliers, reaching to the four corners of the rooms. Masses of goldenrod and daisies the dining room red and black featured the decorations, with bowls of yellow daisies. A witches' cauldron hung in one corner. Punch was served from the cauldron, with fancy wafers. The souvenirs were yellow and black, baskets of nuts and candies. The guests were received in the hall by a ghost. The rooms were lighted only by the lanterns, giving an eerie touch of ghostliness to the scene. Hallowe'en games were enjoyed, old and young entering into them with the jollity and spirit of the season. In the ghost guessing contest the prize, a pretty souvenir apron was won by Mrs. A. D. Smith. Dancing was enjoyed by the young people until 12 o'clock warned them that Sunday was at hand. Enjoying the hospitality of their gracious hosts were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ferguson, Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Witte, Mr. and Mrs. Secord, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dale, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Terheun, Mesdames A. D. Smith, T. L. O'Connor, Anna Walker, Randall, W. H. Peters, J. C. Ensminger and Townsend; Misses Eva Walker, Amelia Schnaar, Agnes Renfro, Flora Walker, Carrie Ensminger and Gussie Post; Rev. G. B. Waldron, Walter Post, Gus Schnaar, Joe Meisch and Mr. Minerick.

Surprise Party

Little Miss Norma Herndon received the surprise of her life, when forty little friends, all in masquerade costumes, marched up to her home Saturday night to give her a beautiful surprise party—and such a pretty sight is seldom seen, for that joyous party were made up of kings and queens in gorgeous raiment, grotesque clowns, dear little fairies, a charming colonial dame, a beautiful Bo-Peep, ghosts, Yum Yum girls and boys of all nations, Indian braves and princesses, and last but not least, the Gold Dust Twins were there too, the cutest pair of masqueraders imaginable. The costumes were beautiful, many of them displaying taste and ingenuity in the development of the character represented. By a unanimous vote of the little folks, the girls prize, a box of fine bon-bons was awarded to the Gold Dust Twins, who proved to be Sarah Wight and Francis Patton. The boys' prize of a pair of gold and bottom was won by Harvey French, wearing a most costume. Amusing games were played throughout the evening, interspersed with dancing and singing, and ending up with the Virginia Red, the most popular of all. The refreshments were a joy and a delight for the young folks, who were treated with all sorts of good things to tempt the appetite of young people. Assisting Mrs. Herndon were Mrs. Forrest Lake and Mrs. A. P. Connelly. Norma was delighted and the little folks' heads glow with the memory of the party.

Hallowe'en Social

One of the most delightful and enjoyable of the Hallowe'en affairs was given at the Presbyterian Manse Friday night, by the home societies in honor of the delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention.

The parlors were tastefully decorated with potted plants and ferns and hung with Jack-o-lanterns. Bats, owls and cats covered the walls, creating a strong impression that speaks might be abroad. The witches' cauldron seethed and simmered a most delicious concoction, ordinarily called punch, that was served with sandwiches. A fine program of music and song was rendered by Miss Mamie Devlin, Miss Lettie Caldwell and Mrs. Terwilliger. Mrs. Maxwell gave a reading entitled "Sandalphon" and responded to an encore with "He Wasn't Ready." Miss Annie Lee Caldwell gave two clever little readings, "Manny's Pickanniny" and "Three Little Chestnuts." Upstairs a bewitching fortune teller read the "signs in the palms" of those brave enough to have their past, present and future laid bare to public curiosity; while in another room the "penny fortune" brought forth roars of laughter and fun. Altogether it was an evening of pleasure and happiness, for which much credit is due the various committees responsible for its success.

BARTLETT TELLS OF ARCTIC WALK

Trapped Over Ice to Save His Comrades.

CRAWLED PART OF WAY.

"All in Day's Work," Says Explorer and Navigator Returned From Far North With Eight of Party After Losing Eleven Others—He Made Perilous Trip With Only One Eskimo.

After a bitter experience in the northern wastes, nine survivors of the Canadian Arctic expedition, which left Esquimaux in June, 1913, arrived at Victoria, B. C. They were brought from Nome, Alaska, on the United States revenue cutter Bear. The party was headed by Captain Robert A. Bartlett, the famous explorer.

Eight of the expedition party were lost on the journey from the point where their ship Karlok was crushed by the ice to Wrangel island and three died in camp at the island, one from an accident.

"All in the Day's Work." Captain Bartlett told the story of the Karlok's last voyage in bare facts. Relating a few of the obstacles he had to overcome on his tramp across the ice from Wrangel island to Emma Harbor, Siberia, he dismissed most questions as to his perils with a nonchalant: "Well, it's all in the day's work."

Realizing that help must be summoned from somewhere in the entire party on Wrangel island would succumb through starvation, Captain Bartlett decided to set out on a walk which would bring him to the outside world. He knew the journey meant terrible hardships and possibly death.

"On March 18," he said, "I left the camp with an Eskimo boy, Kattovick, seven dogs and a sledge made by Mr. Hadley, the exact copy of a sledge used by Peary in his trips. We had supplies for ourselves and dogs for thirty-eight days. I intended to get to East Cape, Siberia. We had difficulty in crossing the strait which separates Wrangel island from the mainland, the air line distance being 100 miles. "I thought when I left the island that I would make it in seven days, but strong easterly and westerly gales and the moving ice retarded our progress. As we neared the Siberian coast we had considerable difficulty with the rafted ice and deep, soft snow.

"On one occasion I was seventeen days making a distance of ninety miles. In some places the young ice was barely strong enough to support our sledge, and the ice would not support us in walking, so we had to cross it by lying flat on our stomachs and crawling across. Owing to the hardship of the journey several of my dogs gave out completely, and my native boy showed signs of losing his nerve.

"Early one morning I sighted land and hoped to reach it that evening. On seeing the land Kattovick became very active. More leads were encountered during the day, and I had to spend another night on the ice. The next day northerly winds set in and rafted the ice up on the Siberian shore. By working hard all day we managed to reach North Cape, Siberia.

"I saw no signs of habitation, so we camped for the night. The next morning we started along the Siberian coast for East Cape. One lone Eskimo was sighted and we went in. In the ice hut I found a Siberian native, his wife and one child.

Saw Their First White Man.

"I came across the first white man at Kattovick bay. He made both of us at home and we got considerable bread and tea. Being in need of a couple of good dogs I traded my blueprints to a native for two huskies. At Cape Sertze, Siberia, I met a trader who, after taking us in and feeding us, assisted us in getting to East Cape.

Bart Kattovick and myself were beginning to feel the effects of our hardships. My legs were swelling and at times I experienced difficulty in walking. After more hardships I reached East Cape and there met an English trader. It was here that I met Baron Kliest, the Russian district commissioner for that part of Siberia.

"The baron offered to take me to Emma Harbor, Siberia, where his headquarters were located.

"The whaler Herman reached Emma Harbor during the latter part of May, and I found that my arrangements to take the whaler back to Nome, Alaska, when we arrived off Nome, the roadstead was blocked with ice, so we headed for St. Michael.

Eyes and Legs in Bad Shape.

"Arriving there, I was still suffering from swollen legs and feet, and my eyes also were giving me trouble. After notifying the Canadian government by telegraph I received medical attention. In a week's time I had nearly recovered from my illness.

"While I was recuperating at St. Michael the cutter Bear arrived on June 5. She reached Nome Aug. 30. Four days later we started out on our second attempt to rescue the men at Wrangel island.

"On Sept. 8 we met the schooner King and Wing, and she informed us that she had the eight survivors from Wrangel island on board. The men were transferred to the Bear in order to receive medical attention. We then returned to Nome."

Sometimes That Way.

"SILENT MAN" WILL HEAD CHICAGO'S RESERVE BANK.

McDougal, Chosen For the $30,000,000 Place, Investigated John R. Walsh.

James B. McDougal, the "silent man" of Chicago's financial district, has been elected to the governorship of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

When the bank is eventually opened it will have only 575 depositors. They will include national banks in federal reserve district No. 7 and the few state banks that have signalled their intention of entering the new monetary system. The capital of the new bank will be approximately $12,700,000.

The man who was selected as governor of the new bank by the board of directors of the reserve bank has been little known outside of banking circles. It is expected that the position will carry with it a salary of $30,000 a year, although this has not been definitely decided upon.

As governor of the bank, Mr. McDougal will have much to do with passing upon commercial paper offered to the federal bank for rediscount by banks in time of financial stress and will act as a safety valve of the business affairs of the district.

Since 1908, Mr. McDougal has been bank examiner for the clearing house association. For five years prior to that time he was a national bank examiner and was one in charge of the investigation into the affairs of John R. Walsh.

Following the Walsh failure and the installation of the present clearing house system of bank examinations he was selected as the man who could best carry out the plan. So successful was he that the New York banks decided to install the same system and determine all operations through a who would be in charge. He is supposed to have a salary of $12,000 a year, but the Chicago banks refused to let him go and he retains him increased his salary to $17,000 a year.

$5,000,000 SENT BY MAIL.

Government Adopts Parcel Post Method of Shipping Gold.

Five million dollars in gold was sent by parcel post to the United States treasury in Boston from the mint in Chicago, by a special train. The method of money by the government in this way of the parcel post system. The loads of gold were received at the South station by Superintendent Leonard of the United States railway men service and a crew of four clerks. It took them several hours to untangle the gold on to a regulation postal screen wagon which carried it across the city to the Boston Federal building.

It has been the custom of the government to ship its money by express, but this experiment of sending it by parcel post has proved successful and it is not improbable that the treasury department will use the mails from now on for this purpose.

Russia's Steam Roller; Well Equipped Armies Enormous in Numbers

"I WILL go to Berlin if it takes my last breath," is the remark recently attributed to Nicholas II, czar of Russia, and certain it is that this statement would not imply more in the way of sacrifice of soldiers on the part of any other of the rulers of the earth. The resources of the czar in armed men are enormous and have given rise to the expression, "The steam roller campaign."

The mere numbers of the Russian forces are appalling, and they are, moreover, extremely well trained and well equipped. The lesson taught by the Russo-Japanese war has been well driven home, and if the armies of the czar are not only ready for anything in the way of distance and distances to be overcome they probably never will be. Moreover, they are more than ever before inspired by an intense loyalty and personal devotion to their chief, and their racial and political differences, once so numerous, are in the present campaign apparently largely placed in the background.

As in most of the other great nations of Europe, military service in Russia is both compulsory and universal. Most of the men are of the peasant or farmer class, for Russia is a country of few large cities, and the tilling of the soil is the peaceful occupation of a majority of her inhabitants. Such men are "militants," or peasants, and all are potentially soldiers, hence the use of the term by Nicholas. Service, or rather, liability to service, begins at the age of twenty and lasts until the forty-second birthday.

Most countries have armies. Russia has three, each a force large enough to guard an ordinary sized kingdom. They are known as the Army of European Russia, the Army of the Caucasus and the Army of Asia. Each is trained to different terms, and each has a different term.

CZAR OF RUSSIA WITH ARTILLERY OFFICERS

of soldiers, but probably something more in the way of the forces usually found in a large country. It is three years of the military, and will last for a long time in the other world.

With the many Cossack troops serving the house of Romanoff it is different, however. These are men in the southwestern portion of European Russia, holds its lands by military tenure and is liable to service for life, and every Cossack of any age can be called out in an emergency of national defense. There is also a certain system whereby men volunteering for one year and paying their own expenses can become officers for reserve troops in case of their mobilization.

Twenty-seven army corps comprise the field army of European Russia, the guard corps, the grenadier corps and twenty-five regular line corps. The cavalry includes two guard divisions, a guard brigade and fifteen line divisions. Of the twenty cavalry divisions fifteen are permanently attached to the various army corps and four are formed into two entirely mounted corps. In all, the first of the three Russian armies includes the surprising total of 1,038 battalions of infantry, 612 squadrons of cavalry and 497 batteries of artillery, three aerial battalions, eleven independent companies and a special instruction section.

The second army, that of the Caucasus, consists of three army corps, four cavalry divisions, a brigade of Cossack infantry and two brigades of Caucasian rifles, one of Christians and the other of non-Christians.

The Asiatic army is in a way a misnomer, for its men, with the exception of a few Turkomen irregular horse bodies, are all Russians. The largest part of this great force is in East Siberia, and these forces have been increased and reorganized since 1904 until they are most formidable. The peace strength of the armies of the czar at the most moderate estimate is 1,200,000 of all ranks. The full war strength numbers several million more. Russia has such an enormous population to draw upon that her real war strength can only be guessed at.

CURBSTONE GLEANINGS

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

One of my hobbies here in Sanford town has been a city market and by a city market I have not meant a city market in every sense of the word but simply a place where the small grower or the large grower and the general farmer can bring his small crop to market and sell it fresh from the wagon. I was explaining it very laboriously and painfully to a gentleman of the school whatever that means the other day and he at once informed me that the housewives of Sanford would never come down to a market in the morning to buy stuff and carry it home. Now, I had never thought of that, or that the ladies of Sanford were so very select that they could not come down to purchase articles at the market place. Of course this would preclude the idea of the city market and again brings to my mind the high cost of living. Old H. C. of I. is made by our manner of buying and having the best by the very easiest methods, never minding the cost of same and under present conditions the H. C. of I. will never be reduced. The Miami Metropolis sums it up pretty well in the following:

"The New York food supply committee recently issued a circular instructing the purchasing public how to buy. This circular which has been called a treatise on the lost art of marketing. Says the board of trade: 'The full pound of butter, the wooden dish in which the butter is weighed, the paper in which it is wrapped must not under the law be weighed as butter. There are other helpful suggestions that mean prices paid on every article purchased, prices which at the end of the week amount to a dollar or more. The gist of this catechism on marketing, however, is that the woman must have more interest in marketing for the family. She must go to the store in person instead of using the telephone. She must not give the merchant a chance to turn to petty dishonesty.'"

The Chicago Tribune, and there will be many Chicago housewives who will listen to that advice, not only as members of the Housewives' League which is making good progress in the reduction of the cost of living, but as individuals who want to make the family income go farther.

The other day a Miami merchant told us that the fault of high prices for groceries rested with the buyers, that it took two delivery wagons, and two drivers to deliver goods that one clerk could put up, and which could be carried home by the purchaser with but little trouble.

"Hello, is that the So-and-So grocery? Well, please send me a can of sardines immediately" and the groceryman delivers the order twelve blocks! That can of sardines takes the time of a man, the wear and tear on the wagon or the bicycle and the customer wonders why groceries are so high!

And yet, merchants do not make any reduction for goods that are bought and paid for and carried away by the customer, and in this, is the incentive for many housewives to send away for their supplies. They find that even if they are avoiding the careless ways of other buyers, they do not get the benefit of it and are perhaps to be praised for seeking methods of getting the most for their money, if they patronize mail order houses.

Perhaps some Miami merchant will devise the plan of making two prices. One for those who pay for the goods and provide for their delivery, and another for those who require long credit accounts and the delivery of every little parcel.

That great armies are needed to protect the frontiers of contiguous nations is a fallacy conspicuously disproved in the case of this country and Canada where an imaginary line nearly four thousand miles long divides the two nations and there isn't a soldier along the whole length except a few for police and custom house duties. Those governments in Europe ought to have learned from us in that respect, and they probably will after the war is over. On this point the Saturday Evening Post says:

"For four thousand miles on the north a mere chalk mark separates us from the British Empire. No boy on either side is uneasy about that. Years of fair dealing, mutual respect, courtesy and good will against war between north and south, or between the United States and Canada, than if we had all the Kaiser's soldiers or all the King's ships. The relations between this country and Central America and South America are probably better at the writing than they have ever been before. The moderation, patience and convincing proofs of peace in the Mexican affair are the reasons for this. We could have driven Huerta out of Mexico at the point of the bayonet and the rebuy earned a quantity of Latin-American suspicion, irritation and hatred, which in turn would have made it advisable for us to strengthen our army and navy. Our most dependable national defenses against war are justice, moderation and good will. This war is not an argument for another army corps or a new stride in navy building. That is the road Europe has traveled. In North-eastern France we see its goal.

Autumn is loath to depart and lingers an amazing length of time. Nature is weaving a covering of wonderful hue from the discarded dress of the forest for the protection of the tender seedlings that will flourish again in the spring and contribute their share to the beauty of the great out of door world.

A tramp through the woods is an extraordinary experience at this time of year. The leaves of mixed colors rustle beneath the tread of the explorer, the million tiny, golden seeds falling through the almost leafy branches of the trees and fill the air with a soft, muffled sound.

There is an exhilarating tang in the air and the squirrels labor in the nut trees. The drooping limbs of maples has given color to the clouds of the sky and the ground is a soft, warm yellow.

The autumnal hypnosis gradually taking effect and some morning we shall awake to find that Jack Frost has claimed the world for his own. The Christmas stories are ready for the next issue of the magazine and the merchants are impatient for the rush of buying occasioned by the perpetual market of the seasons. And yet autumn is loath to depart.

Sanford could build a cold storage plant and it would be a paying institution. By a cold storage plant I also mean an abattoir or place to slaughter cattle, hogs and sheep and keep them on cold storage. I see that Orlando will erect a cold storage plant and the manager expects to make ice cream, sell ice and do other stunts. My idea of a cold storage plant would be a place where the meats and vegetables could be stored when the markets were off. The day of the Florida beef is at hand and the big packing men of the northwest are coming down here and buying our cattle, shipping them north, killing them up there and placing them on cold storage and shipping them back here to sell us as western beef at a high price. Now why couldn't our own people take their cattle when they are fat, kill them here and put them on cold storage and sell them to the local trade? In connection with the abattoir could be a canning and preserving plant, gelatine could be manufactured from the cattle and all the surplus fruits and vegetables could be preserved here and sold all over the south. Sanford is the natural location for a big cold storage and preserving plant and some day the man who sees these things ahead of us can come here and erect one.

Don't let the idea of a cold storage plant pass you by. It is a good idea and the time will soon be ripe to get before them about the pavilion and harbor for boats. The pavilion idea was introduced at the county fair time to build a pavilion for the handicrafts in progress. Let us have the pavilion for all means. It will be the first pleasure park in Sanford.

a job printing plant, not two blocks from the jail. He was permitted to continue his work, coming back to the jail at noon for lunch and returning directly from work to his cell. Then the sheriff locked him up for the night. The next day's program was the same and so on for forty days. After forty days of go drinking, whoopums food and regular habits the man came out of jail a healthy citizen. Then he was put on the black list, that is saloons were forbidden to sell intoxicants to him.

The moneyed men of Sanford are neglecting to build a Y. M. C. A. in Sanford for the young boys and men are neglecting the future salvation of their soul. There are a dozen men in Sanford who could start this building and let the Y. M. C. A. pay them interest on their investment. I mean a money interest, the interest for the investment in saving the young men who are now running the streets at night would be inestimable. The men of Sanford who are well able to do this and are not attending to it will suffer in the hereafter. They have neglected their duty to the boys of "Sanford" and to the teachings of the Bible and they will never prosper. They may get by for awhile but this will always be a blot on their character and their peace of mind. They are assisting the devil in his nefarious schemes when they allow the young boys of Sanford to roam the streets and frequent the places that are not fit for them and some of the men who are neglecting this great work have boys of their own to look after and this will rise to haunt them in future years. There is no use to attempt to bring boys into the churches and Sunday schools if they are allowed to run wild six days out of the week and especially on Sunday. The Y. M. C. A. in Sanford should be great work, just big, great and big for nothing, no one should let us know that the Y. M. C. A. is not getting a fair share now and the men of means in Sanford are to blame for this.

Did you ever stop to think what a consummate fool you are? You are a fool because you are not getting a fair share now and the men of means in Sanford are to blame for this.

SIX FEET PARTED INTRENCHED FOES

Belgian Soldiers Could Hear Germans Whispering.

FIRED THROUGH THE MUD.

Volunteer Who Took Officers' Place When All His Superiors Were Killed Tells Story of Endurance and Valor on Banks of the Yser—Twenty-two Days' Continuous Fighting.

Writing from an unnamed place in Belgium, a correspondent of the London Daily News quotes a young volunteer member of a Belgian regiment which had been fighting, marching and drilling continuously for twenty-two days as follows:

"The town was evacuated by the Germans, and we were sent to at nightfall. As soon as they saw our lights they began shelling us. We lost terribly. We were 600 who went in and must have left a third there.

"In the morning we started down to re-enforce a network of trenches on our bank of the Yser. We got into the trenches. They were full of water. I was firing for six hours myself thigh deep in muddy water.

Could Not Show Head or Hand.

"The Germans got across the bridge. We could not show head or hand over our bank. German machine guns shot us from crevices in their raised bank across the river only a few yards away. I was hours and hours dragging our wounded out of the cross trenches. We lost our officers, but I got the men to listen to me.

"Some Germans shelled us with a cross fire. They got into the cross trenches. They fired down our lines from the side. We had to run back. I was too tired and sleepy to drag my feet. I think I must have fallen asleep.

"We had an order to advance again. The French were behind us on either wing in support. I was too tired to get up. Some one kicked me. I looked up. They were three of my friends, volunteers like myself.

"I found myself running forward again. I called to men lying and running near and held my revolver at them. We were all charging with our backs to the Germans shooting us from our own trenches under the raised bank. They did not wait for us. They looked like frightened gray beetles as they scrambled up away over one bank and down into the river. It was dark but we shot at them over the bank. The Germans seemed full of them. We ground in a big trench.

Heard the Enemy Whispering.

"There were perhaps 200 left of our men. I think there was one officer further along, but it was quite dark. Some of the men talked very low. Then I heard voices whispering and talking to each other on the north side of our bank. It was of course perhaps five feet high and six feet thick. On the other side the slope fell steeply to the river.

"I sent a rush along the line. We listened quite silent. I thought I heard German words, an order passed along on the other side. I crawled up on to the bank, not showing my head, you know. It was really about 300 Germans who had stayed there on our side under the bank, fearing to cross the river under our fire. So we stayed all through the night. We did not sleep, nor did they.

"There was just six feet of piled wet earth between us. We only whispered and could hear them muttering and the sound of their belts creaking and of water bottles being opened.

"There was a thick gray mist hanging low in the morning. I crawled up to the bank again, holding my revolver outstretched. A gray figure stood up in the mist below close to me. He looked like a British soldier in khaki. He said, 'It's all right; we are English,' and I said, 'But your accent isn't,' and I shot him through with my revolver. Some of our men crept to the bank, but they shot them, and some of them climbed over, but we fired at their heads or arms as they showed only a few feet away, and they fell backward or on to us or lay hanging on the bank. Then we all waited.

Neither Side Dared Move.

"As it grew lighter they did not dare move away, and none of us could get our all over the bank to use the bayonet. A few men made holes in the looser earth, and so we fired at each other through the bank here and there.

"Somebody threw a cartridge case across close to me. On a paper inside was scrawled one word—'Surrender!' We did not know if they wanted to surrender themselves or wanted us to surrender. They were more numerous, but we were better placed, so we went on scarping and crawling around to get a shot at them.

"Perhaps it was the French who got around at the end. There was heavy firing. We heard quite close through the raised bank a few whistles down on the river edge and water splashing. Some of us pulled ourselves up on to the bank. I heard our men scrambling up on either side of me, but could not see them. I think I was too sleepy, I shouted to charge and then must have fallen over on my head, rolling down the bank."
