"Airhead" Seized By Airborne Men

is Essential Part of Operations

By HERMAN K. ALLEN
 STOUT FIELD, Indianapolis, Ind.—More and more Army men are using a new word "airhead." An airhead is a patch of ground seized by airborne forces—parachutists and glider troops. It compares to a beachhead or bridgehead seized by ground troops.

The reason Army men are using the word more and more is this: Top war planners are no longer thinking in terms of airborne divisions or battalions or detachments, but in terms of airborne armies.

One good tip-off is the fact that the Army now has its own laundry units, ice cream plants, shower units, many other things needed by troops staying a long time in the field.

Up until now, with the exception of the Normandy and Holland jobs, airborne operations were limited to the capture of a few key points, such as airfields, bridges, etc. Now the standard ground troops would expand the airhead, make it a battlefield in its own right.

Now the planners are beginning to think about something they call "development." Standard ground troops—infantry, artillery, etc.—would be flown in after the specially trained airborne troops have secured the airhead. The standard ground troops would expand the airhead, make it a battlefield in its own right.

Courses in Aviation

Begin At Stetson

DELAND, Jan. 22 (Special).—John B. Stetson University authorities, Deland, announced today the initiation of ground school courses in aviation which will follow a special arrangement with the Orange State Flying Service, Orange City, Fla. make it possible for Stetson students as well as other interested persons in Florida to obtain the necessary training and experience to qualify for pilots' licenses under the regulations of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Ground school studies, including navigation, theory of flight, Civil Air regulations, meteorology, and airplane and engine maintenance, have been included in the university's curriculum for the Winter Quarter and will be presented in connection with actual flying instruction in Taylorcraft trainers under the direction of the Orange State Flying Service, of which Major General Coleman of Miami is the head.

At today's interview, Coleman stated that government aviationists placed on civilian flying at the time of Pearl Harbor have now been substantially remedied and it is again possible for civilians to receive flight instructions without crippling limitations. Formerly a flight supervisor for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Coleman began his flying career at Miami, Fla., where he sold in 1928 in connection with the government defense measures, he was an instructor in the Civil Pilot Training Program and for many months flight instructor at the Army Primary school, Douglas, Georgia. With previous flight experience in the CAA in 1943, Coleman supervised training programs for both the Army and the Navy in many parts of the South.

All ground school work will be under the supervision of Dr. H. J. Allen, head of Stetson University's department of physical education, holding the primary CAA license for ground school instructor. He was formerly in charge of Stetson's Civil Pilot Training Program giving ground school instruction to cover the student "in part" which failed to pass the CAA examinations," states Dr. W.S. Allen, president of Stetson.

The ground school will begin immediately, according to official state, but registration will not be closed for several weeks. Aviation is issued to all interested persons, in addition to students regularly enrolled in the university," said Dr. Allen. "Stetson students will be required to have written permission from their parents or guardians before they are regularly enrolled in the CAA license program. This regulation is established by the university itself and does not apply to those ground school students not attending the university."

Service Bill Is Helped By War Reports

Resignation of Madame Perkins As Secretary Of Labor Rejected By President

LONDON, Jan. 24. (AP)—The battle of the sexes developed in the House of Commons today over the question of sending the British equivalent of the WACS overseas, with the men mostly in favor and the women for sending them abroad. The main issue hinged on the temptation the girls would face.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP)—The heads of the armed forces made a secret war report to Congress today and backers promptly claimed a big boost for National Service legislation. The meeting, an annual event started last year, was attended by most of the members who heard talks by General George Marshall, Admiral Ernest King, War Secretary Stimson, and Navy Secretary Forrestal. Representative Wadsworth, New York, said the talks dealt primarily with the progress of the war, stressing the need for an all-out effort.

The resignation of Frances Perkins has been turned down by President Roosevelt and she will continue as Secretary of Labor. It was learned authoritatively that she had intended her resignation, submitted as a formality, to "stick" and had been preparing to leave after the inauguration. The President rejected her resignation orally last Saturday and followed through with a letter.

Meanwhile from the Pacific it was reported that Superforts joined today in softening up two Japanese island fortresses 750 miles south of Tokyo. The planes, a potential American invasion objective, enemy radios intimated that carrier raids on Formosa have gone into the third successive day.

U. S. Fourteenth Corps spearheads driving on Manila cautiously toward Clark field, one of the Philippines, after recapturing Camp O'Donnell which the Japanese had turned into a concentration camp and a mass cemetery for the heroes of Bataan.

Pfc. McIntyre Repairs Captured Equipment

Repairing captured German equipment is one of the specialties of Pfc. Charles H. McIntyre, a member of the 29th Central Postal Directory, 1st Air Force, who is currently assigned to the 1st Air Force at the Atlantic Food Supply Company of Orlando, according to a recent article in the Jersey Shore (Pa.) Herald.

Prior to entering the Army at Camp Blanding four years ago, Pfc. McIntyre was a member of the National Guards unit in Sanford for three years.

The article refers to a unit of the Seventh Army, a cannon company. "In battle outside an Alsatian town, the unit set up alongside a river mill, Sgt. Anthony Augustine of Minneapolis, Minn. and Pfc. Charles H. McIntyre of Jersey Shore, Pa., the company's spare time mechanics went to work on the captured mill's electric generator and plugged in two German radios captured on the road to Germany. As a result, each battery fired to the tunes of Tommy Dorsey and other orchestras."

Red Cross Appeals For Poor Family

The local chapter of American Red Cross today made an appeal for clothing for five members of a colored family whose house has been completely destroyed by fire.

Trucks United To Move Fruit In Rail Jam

ODT Orders All Rail Shipments Of Fruit And Vegetables Deferred Till Sunday

Hasty efforts are being made by vegetable and fruit shipping organizations here to mobilize trucks to move, at least partially, Seminole County's large supplies of vegetable and citrus fruits, rail shipments of which into freight congested northern areas were blocked at 11:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by action of the Office of Defense Transportation due to rail traffic jam caused by blizzards.

During a seven day period ending Tuesday, food shipments by rail from Seminole County were estimated to have been 500 cars or about 50 percent each of citrus fruits and vegetables. Citrus shipped from the Sanford district by rail amounted to 50 cars in this period, according to estimates by J. E. Wathen, secretary of American Fruit Groves, Inc. and of the Seminole County Farm Bureau.

Total shipments by rail from the Sanford area during the seven day period were estimated to have been 150 cars of which 100 were vegetables and 45 citrus.

Robert H. Early, sales manager of Chase and Company, declared that the embargo of rail shipments only applied to citrus north of the Titusville-Viera road and that citrus which is shipped to the south and west of the Mississippi River will be in effect until tonight only.

Most of the concentrated market for citrus is in the northern areas affected by the embargo and demand is high for the smaller sizes of citrus which are plentiful in this area. Shippers declined to estimate the price effect of the embargo on citrus of vegetable, but stated that it was likely to cause a higher rate of shipment than usual.

R. D. Keene, of Orlando, president of the Florida Growers and Shippers League has been quoted as saying that the embargo would prove beneficial to growers. He added that this would benefit Florida growers by preventing citrus from being sent to the market by a traffic snarl at this time. Some fruit in packing houses that cannot be shipped may be diverted to canneries.

The ODT order does not affect truck shipments and Motor Vehicle Division of the State Farm Bureau Market predicts that truck shipments of fruit and vegetables from the market would be very heavy during the week as the result of the embargo. Trucks haul up will probably be heavy.

On Monday, Gladys Randall, negro, was acquitted of intent to commit murder in the second degree in connection with the slaying of her husband, Charles Randall.

On Tuesday, Johnnie B. Austin, negro, charged with entering without breaking into a garage with intent to commit a misdemeanor, was found not guilty in the afternoon trial. ### Rebuilding the Soldier

Returned War Correspondent Describes the Long Process
By Richard L. Tobin

UNITED STATES ARMY REHABILITATION CENTER, Lake Placid, N. Y.—Up here in the still and frosty Adirondacks, where the slim pined birch and the feathered fir creak in zero wind, the United States Army has been learning the answers to some vital questions about returning United States soldiers. For Lake Placid is no longer the social apex of the winter snow season. Lake Placid has been turned over to stock, barrel and lock, to the Army for what the Army likes to call "returnees."

Some Army men come here to be shipped out to another theater. This is a two or three weeks' vacation at government expense. Some are here to be rehabilitated. Some are here only for a few hours in transit. All have some nerve to them, and all are helping the Army psychiatrist and medical doctor solve the average woman's first post-war question: "What will he be like when he gets home?"

Piecing together some of the answers, I am able to report a few generalities which seem worth passing along. Most of the soldiers have had these common factors, and I know a great many of them to be true from personal experience, being a freshly returned war correspondent myself. Here, then, are a few of the general laws which appear to govern the returnees.

First, he won't sleep well for quite a while. He will have trouble getting to sleep, and he'll have trouble staying asleep. He may wake up sharply, and have difficulty relaxing at all. If you're his wife, you may be irritated at his restlessness and the fact that he seems to follow you around so much. He may not want to be left alone for more than a few minutes. His very best friend will be uninterrupted sleep.

He's likely not to be able to sleep all the way through a night for some weeks. Perhaps he's been sleeping in foxholes and under guns and in a rickety London rooming house that would collapse like a card house if a flying bomb came anywhere near it. He may sit bolt upright in bed because he hears a tree branch crack and snap in the cold or a twigback backfire on the icy street below.

A man returning from war won't want to talk about what he's just been through. Not until the sharpness of activity has been dulled and he can talk about it and not fear instinctively that he is going to have to go through it soon again. Bombing can do strange things to a man's nervous system. It can make a normal man who never was afraid of anything before jump when a door slams—or you've dropped a dish in the kitchen.

Probably he will not want to talk about what has happened to him or his friends. If he is cross-questioned he won't like it, and the questions will make him nervous. If you just forget about it and not try to pry answers out of him, answers you're trying to know because that's a part of his life you've missed out on, he may blurt out things and feel much better for it. Little by little you will catch up the threads.

Probably the returning soldier will be temperamental, but he'll get over it pretty fast if you listen and say nothing. The returning soldier will have great difficulty making decisions. This returning soldier probably will not talk about being things at all, but instead he'll tell stories of such triviality that you may wonder if he's changed in his mind, or if he knows what's interesting conversation and what isn't any more. He may repeat them, too, these unimportant things that make so little sense out of context, although a his-context they are sharp and clear. If he's been wounded he may become upset by small things. He may have been seriously injured. That will take more real courage on the part of his wife and family than on his own. Especially if this returning soldier is your husband, and you're young, and he is badly hurt, there is only one way to make the thing work at all—simply take no notice of his injury. Treat him as though he were whole. Don't baby him. Don't help him out of chairs and put his coat on for him. Make him forget he's not quite whole; make him think he is, and he will be.

These Army rehabilitation doctors tell me that an ocean what the sleeping part of it will be extremely important. This man has been dodging sounds for a long time. He has been conditioned to saving his own life several times a hour by sound—for days on end. He is like a marathon dancer who has become accustomed to the fifteen minutes of sleep every hour, and may have difficulty conditioning himself to normal sleep when the marathon is over.

The doctors I've seen convinced that fighting over a woman's make the returning soldier more belligerent than he was before. Probably he will be likely to flare up, but he won't care much about fighting. He may seek companionship, for he's been with companions for a long time. He may have gone away the most joyful soul in the world, and that may have been part of the reason that his wife fell in love with him and married him. But he's come home so gloomy you almost don't know him at times, and you don't like him when he's like that. It will pass.

He may be shy as far as sex goes. His language and his personal habits may offend occasionally. But all this will come back to normal. Remember, these Army doctors tell me that he has been living in one of the strangest of all possible worlds. He may have a first flush of normality in the early days at home, and then a deep depression will set in. It's as natural as the reaction from an illness. It, too, will pass. In this depression he will hide himself for having been lucky enough to escape death or serious permanent injury, while his buddy was killed or maimed and he will now begin to feel guilty that he was the one to live while his friend died or was hurt.

Probably the most common characteristic of the returned soldier is restlessness. He finds it almost impossible to sit at an office, sit at a desk and do a day's ordinary work. He can no more go straight back to his old routine at first, than a child who has been playing out of doors can suddenly play inside the house for days on end without becoming restless. It's physically illogical that the returning soldier should come straight back to his old environment and be as though he'd never been away. That wouldn't make sense medically, any more than a woman can go through childbirth and be the same person mentally and physically, afterward. Childbirth and war appear to be two experiences through which adult women and men go, respectively, never to be the same again.

The "returnee" in this beautiful mountain setting is finding the quiet almost unbearable. The quiet is the loudest thing he's ever heard. He seems to avoid the snow-mantled mountain for the smoky snoon. He has more fun playing the juke box in the converted Lake Placid Clubhouse than in taking a silent stroll through some of the most gorgeous country in the East. For another thing, he may be about to be re-assigned, and he worries the whole of his vacation in Lake Placid what he's going to do when it's over.

The consensus among the doctors here is that it might be better for the Army to tell him where he's going next before he comes to Lake Placid, for then, in most cases, the soldier would sit feet and might begin to relax, and the two weeks of winter vacation in this cold fairytale might do him some good. How much good it does him now, worrying as he does over his next assignment, is debatable.

It may be some years before all of the American soldiers who have gone overseas get back to their peaceful ways of life and their families. But whenever they do come, the United States Army will be ready for them, and able to tell almost precisely how they will act in every circumstance and stage. It will be over for the young American wife or the worried parent to find out about these things ahead of time, so they can be taken in stride and not end in misunderstanding and disaster.

Medals Presented Naval Personnel At Local Station

The men thus honored and their citation were as follows:
Lieut. Comdr. William Denton, Jr., USN—Received the Distinguished Flying Cross for his meritorious performance of duty aboard an American cruiser during the invasion of the coast of Normandy and the city of Cherbourg and during the invasion of Southern France. In the face of heavy antiaircraft fire he successfully directed naval gunfire on enemy positions and vehicle concentration and destroyed a large ammunition dump. His professional skill, personal courage and outstanding leadership was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service. Mr. Denton's citation was signed by Admiral H. H. Stark, USN, Commander, U.S. Naval Forces in Europe. The name of Lieut. Comdr. Denton is in Memphis, Tenn.

THIS TRAGIC AND DRAMATIC MOMENT was photographed a few hundred feet off the ground over an English airfield as two American Flying Fortresses collided while returning from a mission against the enemy. A British English pilot was killed and the other was injured.

VARIED TYPES OF LANDING CRAFT, loaded with American troops and supplies, line the beach at Bimalee on Langvay Gulf on Luzon. A dredging machine (foreground) is clearing away obstacles to facilitate the landing of additional men and material. The busy scene is regularly repeated at other spots on the gulf as the Allies go about the job of driving the Japs back on the road to Manila.

Russian Assault Troops Mass Along 50 Miles of River

Since opening an attack on the day before yesterday, the assault, mounted against the northern side of the Colmar pocket, was said to have achieved "total surprise."
At the northern end of the front the British Second Army gained two miles on a six-mile front in less than seven miles north to southward the American Third Army made gains up to two miles along a 20-mile front against stiffening resistance in the lower portion of the Belgian bulge.
German Fight Back
Germans opposing the Third Army at the lower end of the Colmar pocket, however, offered the first substantial resistance in days from the hills along the Clerf River.
Near the center of the front the Sixth Cavalry group cut two miles east to Westerville and then wheeled five miles north to Eacelorn. This action reconnaissance met slight opposition, indicating that the Germans had withdrawn at least to the Clerf River.
Eacelorn is 13 miles northeast of Bastogne and less than five miles from the German border and the Siegfried Line along the Ourthe River.
Premier Stalin issued four orders in the day, bringing the total of his announcements to 26 in a week of phenomenal Red Army advances. Two orders dealt with the East Prussian victories, the first commending advances in northwest Poland; and the fourth announced that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine Army had reached the Oder near Breslau, capital of lower Silesia.
The Oder long has been advertised as the German's best natural defense line on the east. Now the Red Army is putting it to the test. Should it be crossed, a long step would have been taken toward ultimate victory.
East Prussian Citadel Fall
Stalin did not give exact locations where the river was reached, but the Germans themselves broadcast a news account of a tank battle on the two and one-half miles of Breslau, capital and key city of lower Silesia.
Stalin announced the capture of the Baltic port of Gdansk by Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's troops thrusting northward on the southwest side of East Prussia.
Another order shortly announced the capture of Wehlau and Labiau, 27 and 33 miles from Konigsberg, the East Prussian capital, by the army of Gen. Ivan D. Chernakhovsky.
Stalin also disclosed capture of Poznan at the entrance to the Polish corridor.
It was the Germans themselves who reported the imminent threat to Poznan, the High Command's communique stating that Russian armored spearheads had "penetrated as far as the region east of Poznan."
It was Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian Army which took Bydgoszcz and was hammering at the gate of Poznan.
The German Transoceanic Agency reported fierce fighting west of Interberg along the Pregel River, which empties into the Baltic at Konigsberg.
Some wartime identification badges are marked by secret design, visible only under special light rays.

Lieut. Swaim Is Pilot Of Plane Supplying Troops

Low lying clouds and a ground haze provided additional hazards as we flew over France and into Belgium. An endless stream of Troop Carrier planes stretched before and behind us, visible only when the haze dissipated for short periods.
1st Lieut. Edward C. Little, pilot from Pennsylvania and Lieut. Swaim were busy holding formation, watching instruments, all the while keeping one eye aloft for possible enemy fighters. Thirty minutes from the drop zone the sky cleared; for the first time the full extent of the great air armada was apparent. The sun glinted from the fuselages of hundreds of Troop Carrier aircraft, dotting the sky as far as the naked eye could see.
Lieut. Swaim came back to tell us that it was time to put on our flak suits. We donned these modern counterparts of medieval knights' armor and looking for the Air Cargo drop-man riding with us, Private first class Carl P. Spencer, a California rancher hooked the door lead, three packs of Tommy ammunition and one pack of rations, to the stable line in a hurried conference, he checked the drop technique with radio operator, Staff Sergeant Tony C. Verano and Tech Sergeant John A. Rinke, the aerial engineer, both from the returning 1947's approach.
As we flew the approach empty, passed on our left. There could distinguish people and vehicles I saw Sergeant Verano smile as we passed over a small town. Looking down, I saw why. A girl in a red skirt was standing in the town square, waving at the formation, and just behind her, the inevitable—GI Joe. The pilot brought the plane still closer to earth, now blanketed with a puff of enemy flak blossomed in the sky as tracers spewed their fiery trails. Over the DZ already covered with vari-colored chutes, the boys salvaged the paratrocks by the other crew men. The load was out in a matter of seconds and we followed the packs with our eyes as they floated earthward. On the drop zone, a beehive of activity, OD uniforms sprung from foxholes to wrestle the supplies onto waiting vehicles. One pack needed no manhandling as it landed squarely on a truck.
We passed over the DZ, made a U turn deep over enemy ground, and flew out at a course parallel to our incoming route. We could see aircraft passing us as they now went in to drop their loads of supplies. One of them suddenly nosed over, and in one sickening moment dove straight into the ground. It burst into flames, burning with a dense black smoke. Another smoke plume appeared off in the distance, but this time it was enemy wounds. A flight of P-47's had intercepted a column of German armored vehicles, then strafing them with machine guns.
In formation, we flew on to our base, making a perfect landing in the rapidly descending dark. Further observed by returning ground units.
These men with whom I had just completed this dangerous trip are no exceptions. Quite the contrary, they are the very best of the U.S. Army's fighting force supplementing the all-out combat.

Nursing Day To Be Observed In Florida Jan. 26

Nurses in protecting health of communities.
In his presidential address at the annual meeting of the American Nurses Association, Dr. Hanson, because of her skill and knowledge, nursing is an inflexible part of the public health service, the Public Health Nurse has gone about her duties faithfully day by day and hour by hour, stayed neither by fear of disease nor weariness, nor lack of public acclaim. I do not think that our citizens on this day pay tribute to the members of this profession more than their sustaining respect.
More than 25,000,000 citizens are seeking the health of the United States, according to Dr. Hanson, with at least 10,000,000 more needed for gooding the well-being of our nation's front to help stamp out preventable disease and epidemics; restore the health of men rejected for military service; to help war babies get the right start in life; helping in the rehabilitation of soldiers invalidated home. And, said Dr. Hanson, their work is equally essential in peace as in war.
An Dr. Hanson's request to the Governor in proclaiming Public Health Nursing Day, he said: "Like other registered graduate nurses, a public health nurse aids in the treatment of sickness. But her chief concern is its prevention. She is both nurse and health teacher. She promotes not only the physical health of her patient, but his mental, social and emotional well-being as well. Because sickness is often closely allied to social or economic problems, she helps bring together all community resources needed for solving these problems. To do this, she works closely with hospitals, health and welfare agencies and many other groups.

Trucks United To Move Fruit In Rail Jam

Dogs Are Trained In England To Detect Nazi Land Mines

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN, AP Newsfeatures.
LONDON—One of Britain's most effective ground searchers is the method used in training dogs to detect German mines. Since these diabolical contraptions were first sprinkled by the Nazis along their trail of retreat, the Army has been finding means of counter-acting them.
Months ago, specially trained dogs—their scent sharpened by months of schooling—were sent to the front. They have proved highly successful in sniffing out mines. Thousands of lives and millions of dollars worth of material have been saved by this comparatively simple way of detection.
Mine scenting is just one of the new important jobs of protecting and saving lives that is being tackled by the dog army. Recently when a hotel was hit in southern England, "Barkie" a German police dog was credited with finding the spot where several children were buried. Rescuers dug them out in time.
Hundreds In Action
Several hundred mine counters are now in action on the front in France, Belgium and Holland, helping clear the road to Berlin. Many dogs flunked out of school during their secret training period, but they could smell nothing but the meat for their dinner. Trainers, who teach the dogs to explain that keen scent is the individual characteristic of the dog and not the breed. Therefore German police dogs collect ball, they sniff out mines, and sniff out degree as well as mongrels.
Some of the best dogs are ordinary street hounds which have sharpened their olfactory organs by a change of diet and training. Cut at the front they know better than to scamper off across the fields, sniffing indifferently. It is not until their master has a roll and leash around their necks that the realize they are ready for work just like a horse. A's work time when he is harrassed.
The dog usually has down on its side when he comes within a few feet of a mine. The sapper does the rest. Some breeds of hunting dogs are so highly specialized that they stop dead in their tracks and pull out the buried mine just as if they had spotted a rove of grouse.
Four-Legged Commandos
There has been no report of a dog being killed while on a mine hunt. They may stop only a few inches from the explosive, but they always stop in time.
Some 200 dogs have been used for patrol duty at ammunition dumps and air bases to help guard against attempts at sabotage. These animals were selected for their viciousness and were put through a "commando" course to intensify their dislike for strangers.
After the war many of the dogs will be kept by their Army masters, whose sole duty is to keep their charges groomed, fed and cared for. The soldiers are required to visit a letter once a month to the dog owner telling of the animal's welfare.
The British government already is making plans for mobilizing its dog army after the war. According to health regulations, the dogs which have left the country must go into quarantine for six months before being brought into England.
The government realizes it will have a terrific problem when it comes up with thousands of animals which have seen service and are itching to get back home to hunt for their buried bones instead of mines.

Germania Plead Epic Stand

The German radio again called upon the people of the Reich to make an epic stand before the Soviet avalanche. It spoke of fresh forces deploying on the Eastern Front, but there was no indication in either German or Russian reports of a cohesive line being developed against Stalin's five advancing armies.
With Tiltit, Interberg and Gumbinnen behind him, Chernakhovsky was driving hard for Konigsberg and his forces were spread at points 2 to 30 miles from the capital. The capture of Wehlau and Labiau followed crossings of the Leina and Pregel Rivers.
The German Transoceanic Agency reported fierce fighting west of Interberg along the Pregel River, which empties into the Baltic at Konigsberg.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

CHRIST MADE A PATH AND CLEARLY MARKED IT. IF YOU LEAVE THE PATH IT IS A REPUTATION OF HIM WHO SO CLEARLY MARKED THE PATH. Why call ye me Lord, Lord and do not the things that I say?—Luke 4:46.

Last Door (From The Erasmus, Erasmus Hall High School) HOW? WHEN?

How will it come? Who knows? Will it be sudden? Like the flight of birds? Will it be dark? Like the cloud before dawn? Will it be cold? Like frost on a window pane? Or will it be warm and gentle? Like a friendly smile? O Lord will it be soon? BEATRICE PRESSMENT.

We see where Claire Booth Luce made the list of America's ten best women, a rather dubious honor in this day and time of restricted warships.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is planning on going into the movies. Yes, and we're thinking of taking up singing.

"Capture Two Big Cities in East Prussia" boldly proclaims the Tampa Tribune in blaring headlines. Even the big papers are having their troubles with errors these days.

The Miami Post suggests that someone should invent a new dance step called the Ration Stamp. Didn't they have one a few years ago called the Black Market, or was it the Black Bottom?

One good way to reduce the manure, shortage would be to reduce the income taxes for working wives so they would have something left for themselves after earning their money and paying their taxes.

The trouble with so many people these days is that they are losing their sense of humor. They get simply furious when the carrier boy throws their paper in the mud puddle. And when they go to a restaurant and order sweet milk and get sour milk instead and the waitress explains between popping her gum, "Don't you know there's a war on?" they don't see the joke at all.

Superintendent of the State Prison Chapman quotes Oliver Wendell Holmes as saying, "If I had my life to live over I'd spend three times as much time fishing as I did" and mentions a farmer who said that God must have intended for him to fish a lot since he made three times as much water on the earth's surface as land and therefore he should fish three times as much as he plowed. But while some people fish too little and others fish too much, striking the happy medium is the hardest thing in life.

It was a pleasure to talk with Major Henry Louttit, former rector of Holy Cross Church, recently returned from the Pacific. Henry has been in the Army now for four and a half years, long enough to make a man a veteran even in this day and time. Slight of stature, gentle in his ways, brilliant in intellect, he is not the kind of a person one would think of as a grizzled veteran of war, and yet people are finding that it is not the tough alone who make a good soldier. Except for his complexion which reveals traces of malaria, he is the same friendly, happy, courteous Henry we knew ten years ago.

There are those who will rejoice in the elevation of Henry Wallace to Jesse Jones' job as assistant AFD and indeed funds into the many billions of dollars because Henry is a so-called liberal and the liberal use of other people's money by one who is sure to be more profuse than proficient appears to them as an opportunity of getting some of it for themselves. However, it is far in to be another WPA after this war. It will probably be on a world-wide scale, but every Hotshot will get his quart of milk, as Henry is wont to say, and Americans instead of profiting will not be as the 1937 Secretary Wallace can easily become the world's most generous, if not its most generous.

Immigrants admitted to the United States decreased from 1,000,000 in 1940 to 500,000 in 1943.

Sabotage

A strike which threatens to tie up war plants in time of war is sabotage. A strike which threatens to leave homes and hospitals dark and cold, with food spoiling in kitchens, with telephones and transportation crippled or dead, is sabotage.

The history of the exploitation of human labor is a bad one—from that of the Greek helots on whose slavery that beautiful civilization rested, on through the feudalism of the Middle Ages and the nineteenth century period of Big Business and industrial slavery. The history of trade unionism is a history of revolt against that exploitation. So far, it is justified.

But in a time when the nation is at war for its life and the liberty of every man, woman and child in it, there is no justification under heaven for a strike or the threat of a strike which would imperil the life and liberty of every man, woman and child in that nation and in the whole world.

There is a word in the Constitution for an act which "gives aid and comfort to the enemy." It is a stronger word than sabotage. It is Treason.

Military Parades

There was a parade in Athens recently, and a joyful affair it was. Tens of thousands of Greeks marched through the city waving British, American and Greek flags, celebrating the restoration of peace, while 100,000 cheered.

That might be regarded as a token or a prophecy of the great day that is coming sooner or later, when general peace will be declared and the armies will engage in a general parade, before they return to their homes.

There should be millions and tens of millions in that final parade, spreading around the earth in one grand, final march of all the militant armies in all the nations participating in the great war. It should string out to cover the globe, and march all day and all night, with the drums beating and the bands playing.

Then the armies should return to their homes, eager to turn their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, according to the old Biblical prophecy. When will that great day come?

Deaf-Mute Ballplayers

Being a deaf-mute is not always a handicap, as Dick Sipek finds. A hard-hitting outfielder with Birmingham, Ala., he has just been signed by Cincinnati.

While it is years since the Major leagues have had a deaf-mute player, there have been some successful ones. Curiously enough, the two of longest service also played with Cincinnati. Hoy, an outfielder, was a star of the 90's. Luther Taylor, after serving in the Queen City, was for years a valuable pitcher on the first New York Championship teams managed by John J. McGraw.

Deaf-mute should make good ballplayers. They attend strictly to their work, and are not distracted by yells from opposing coaches or the crowd. If Sipek lives up to his advance notices, Cincinnati has a prize.

Junior's Income

Minors' incomes. If less than $500 are not shown in tax reports, except where a refund is claimed. A parent furnishing more than half the support of a child with any income up to $499.99 gets the full exemption of $500 for a dependent, but does not include the youngster's income in his or her statement. However, if taxes have been withheld on the child's income, the minor can file a report and get a refund.

If a minor's income is $500 or more the parent loses the exemption. The minor must file a separate return and pay a tax if any is due. The parent is liable for this tax if not paid.

The age limit of 18 year for dependent children was removed in the 1944 act. A parent supporting a son at college, for example, can now claim an exemption for his support regardless of his age.—Wall Street Journal.

SANFORD FORUM

Editor The Herald: January 15, 1945

The Sixth War Loan was the most successful sales program in the history of the world—total sales amounted to $1,631,000,000. Preliminary Treasury figures show that a greater amount of news and editorial space was devoted to the Sixth Drive, than to any other.

That news, was made by news. In every department of the press of the Nation pounded away with powerful front page stories—editorials—special articles—comic strips—comic panels—editorial cartoons—special features—pictures, etc. with the urgent message of our Nation's financial needs.

The proof of the power of that tremendous support by the press is shown in the final sales figures of the greatest of all money raising programs—the Sixth War Loan Drive. To say that newspapers played a vital part in that great effort is not enough. The job that they did in answer to America's call for funds represents an accomplishment that it will worthy of special recognition.

The free press of our Nation has demonstrated again that there is no limitation on what it can accomplish when voluntarily united in a common cause for the benefit of mankind. The American people should feel proud of the job that they have done.

The importance of War Bond sales cannot be overemphasized. As some of our leaders have said on many occasions, "Next to the actual fighting, the War Bond Program is the most vital part of our war effort."

Your cooperation with the Treasury through the Allied News Editor Council and the Newspaper Editorial Advisory Committee, both under the chairmanship of Frank E. Trippe, is proving most helpful to our program, and all of us here at the Treasury sincerely appreciate the outstanding support that newspapers are giving this vital cause.

Sincerely, R. L. Dean, Special Consultant, War Finance Division

"HAND OF DESTINY"

Too Late To Classify

By RUSSELL KAY

The citizens school committee, appointed by Spessard Holland with the full approval of Governor Millard Caldwell and the State Department of Education, seems to be taking its job seriously and if it continues to function as constructively and effectively as it has started, much good should result.

We should not lose sight of the fact that the schools are a major concern to all the people. The schools do not belong to the Department of Education, the trustees, the Educational Association or the teachers. They belong to the people, the taxpayers, and it is proper and fitting that the people themselves should have the last word as to their operation.

When the committee was appointed and announced in the press, the impression was given that it was an "investigation committee" but if my information is correct, it is nothing of the sort.

prevented early. Precancerous conditions can be discovered and controlled in detection clinics. The lot of the advanced cancer patient can be eased with adequate care. And scientists now see the promise of hope in the research laboratories.

The medical authorities of the Society tell me that without the discovery of a single new cancer-fighting drug, the number of potential cancer victims can be saved. This means that through an adequate educational program, adequate detection clinics, equipment and training, and periodic medical examinations, 4,000,000 to 6,500,000 of the 17,000,000 Americans now doomed to die of cancer could be spared the ravages of this disease. With full-scale, integrated research program also in operation, cancer sooner or later, might be made a minor cause of death.

The American Cancer Society, founded in 1913 and made up of the leading cancer doctors and scientists of the nation, augmented by an executive council of distinguished laymen, has planned just such a program.

But that program cannot be conducted on the $750,000 collected last year. A minimum of $5,000,000 annually is needed.

That amount will not be forthcoming unless the public stirred by its opportunity to contribute to and participate in this great and vital effort—an effort which can take rank with our conquest of smallpox, yellow fever, typhoid and other once-great killers—goes forward with the same vigor and determination that has saved so many lives.

The Society's fund campaign will be held in April which has been designated by an Act of Congress as "Cancer Control Month." My purpose in writing you and other leaders in the publication and radio field is to ask your help in acquainting the public with the facts. I have just given, and with the same urgency of this cause.

Only with the full cooperation of such mediums as yours—immediately prior to and throughout the month of April—can the public be aroused.

I need your help and need it urgently. Have I provided sufficient basis in the letter for editorial treatment through your medium in April? Do you wish our staff to furnish you with additional material?

I shall deeply appreciate hearing from you. Sincerely yours, R. L. Dean doesn't like it and switches to something else. The same holds true with her courses at the Florida State College for Women, she takes a subject, then drops it for something else and consequently never learns much of anything that will be of practical use to her later in life. It is all over my head, and being a dumb clerk of a layman and taxpayer, maybe I'm not supposed to know.

School officials and public concern that there is plenty of room for improvement in connection with Florida's school system. The problems can only be solved when complete knowledge of conditions and objectives are understood and appreciated both by officials and the public and it is the hope of the Governor and the Department of Education that the citizens committee will bring all interests closer together and accomplish the desired end.

On several occasions Governor Caldwell called attention to the fact that Florida students appointed to Annapolis or West Point found it necessary to attend prep schools prior to taking examinations.

Offhand, this might seem to indicate that Florida's educational system was lax, but this is no reflection on Florida, for the same condition exists in every other state and most appointees to these academies, be they from Florida or elsewhere, find it necessary to take preparatory courses before submitting themselves to the stiff examinations of either Annapolis or West Point. I can speak with authority, as I have been appointed to West Point and Annapolis and their clientele comes from appointees in every state, so if Florida is lax so are all states.

I simply mention this in an effort to clarify the picture and it is not my purpose or intention to imply that Florida's schools are up to the standard they should be or that improvement is not possible or desired.

The problem of finances is one that calls for careful consideration. I believe that every one agrees that our teachers deserve an increase in pay. We cannot expect to obtain able and competent teachers unless we pay them a living wage and anyone familiar with the situation today must admit that they are underpaid.

Not being an "educator" and never having attended Teachers College at Columbia, I probably am not qualified to discuss the subject of education, but as a parent and a taxpayer, I cannot help but feel that there is a lot of waste motion and waste effort in connection with the present day system. We do a back of a lot of so-called teaching that fails to result in what the country folks term "learning." My daughter, for example, studies Algebra, Spanish and other subjects in high school. She received credits for her effort but she can't speak or read a word of Spanish and as for Algebra, she can't even spell it. She takes this and that subject for a semester,

Fifth Birthday Is Celebrated By Pilots

Members of the Pilot Club celebrated their fifth birthday anniversary with a dinner in the Hotel Mayfair last night. The table, lighted by white candles in crystal holders had for its centerpiece a large crystal bowl filled with white gladioli placed upon a mirror reflector. At one end of the table was placed a large white birthday cake holding five lighter candles. Place cards were in keeping with the chosen theme.

A poem, written by Mrs. R. C. Maxwell and dedicated to the Sanford Pilot Club, was read by Mrs. R. M. Harrison. Hostesses for the party were Miss Lucille Johnson, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Margaret Erickson.

Much fun was derived when secret pilots of the past year were described by original poems written by the members. New secret pilots were drawn and plans were made to send a "sunshine" box to Lieut. Janet Meacham who is ill in the S. Naval Hospital in Jacksonville. The club voted to donate to the Red Cross fund and a tree will offering was taken for this.

PLANE DIVISION OF U.S. AIR FORCE

PLANE DIVISION OF U.S. AIR FORCE... Great costs, tremendous quantities of pulp wood and wood stores, large quantities of munitions, planes, ships, guns and other material are needed to overwhelm the enemy. They must be produced with less labor than before, but they must be produced if American forces are to continue to have superiority in arms and equipment and supply over the enemy.

PLANE DIVISION OF U.S. AIR FORCE... That story should be taken to heart by every American producing crops, material, and equipment needed for victory. First it's a reversal of the situation which existed in the Philippines three years ago when American forces were without planes and the Japs had plenty of them. Second, it is striking evidence of the great war production job Americans have been doing for three years, giving American forces a superiority in air power and other things needed for turning the tables on the enemy.

Clark Field Is Captured By Americans

Yanks In Philippines Are Now Only 20 Miles From Bataan, 40 From Manila

(By Associated Press)

Powerful American columns crashed through light but increasing Japanese resistance and seized the Philippines' finest airfield at Clark Field, pushing on to about 40 miles from Manila and only 20 from the Bataan peninsula.

Tokyo reported the Americans massing ships and troops in the Philippines for a new strike. They linked this forecast with growing air raids on Manila Bay, Formosa and Okinawa islands southwest of Japan.

Tokyo said several Superfortresses attacked Singapore but claimed "absolutely no damage." The Americans have captured Angeles, five miles south of Clark field. To the northeast of Angeles, other columns have Magalang, a highway junction on the direct route to Manila.

On the west coast, below Davao bay, the Yanks have surged more than five miles south from Infanta to take the town of Santa Cruz.

American warplanes mounting bombed historic Corregidor fortress in Manila bay for the second straight day, but enemy air attacks in Subic bay, south of the north as well as the port of Aparri on the northern coast of Luzon.

First army corps doughboys maintained heavy pressure on Japanese entrenched at Rosario, on the highway to Ibaigui, southern capital of the Philippines. Resistance here has been the most pronounced of the Luzon campaign.

One of two Japanese bombers attacking American shipping in Lingayen Gulf, "Mitsubishi" Mar. Ator's Jan. 27, was shot down.

Liberator bombers operating with a fighter escort heavily attacked the big Cavite naval base in Manila bay, causing large explosions and fires, MacArthur reported.

A 10,000-ton tanker was destroyed off Aparri.

Clean Out Troops

MacArthur said his ground forces, after taking Clark field, were engaged in cleaning enemy troops from nearby hills while advance units probed toward Manila.

American engineers, which are moving right along with the Yanks, are working on the disorganized nature of the enemy resistance, probably will go to work at once on Clark's network of runways.

That air base will tremendously expand American air power which already has been able to dominate the skies over Luzon from an airfield seized at Lingayen Jan. 9 on the opening day of the invasion. Since then other airfields have been seized at Tarlac, Rosales, Carmen and Ibaigui.

Gas Company Is Sold To Florida Utilities Group

Services Rendered By Power Corporation Divided Under Act

The Florida Power Corporation has entered into a contract with Florida Utilities Corporation, a Florida corporation with offices at Orlando, for sale of all of its gas systems of Florida Power Corporation located in the cities of Orlando, Winter Park, Maitland, Orange City, Deland and Sanford.

The Florida Power Corporation is a public utility company owned and operated by Florida Public Service Company, which was merged with Florida Power Corporation on Jan. 11, 1944. Under the terms of an order issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission, following passage of the Public Utility Holding Act of 1935, the Florida Power Corporation has been directed to dispose of its gas properties. It was stated that the contract provides for the final consummation of the sale and the transfer of the property by May 1, 1945.

F. Huron Smith, Florida Utilities Corporation official, who negotiated the purchase of the gas systems, stated that they were being purchased as an investment, and would be operated as a complete integral unit. Virtually the same operating personnel will be retained, thus assuring a continuation of the progressive management policy that has prevailed in recent years. Included in the property purchased is the building at the corner of Central Avenue and Main Street, Orlando, which is now occupied by Florida Power Corporation and which will be headquarters of the new company.

F. Monroe Allman, also an official of Florida Utilities Corporation, was instrumental in arranging for the financing. Mr. Allman stated that the corporate structure for the new enterprise has not been fully completed but will include substantial local interests. He further stated that financing plans have been worked out on a basis of providing adequate funds for future expansion and betterments that will be needed in the growing territory served by these gas systems.

Wallace said he would do the job for the common man and small business.

Without naming the man President Roosevelt wants him to succeed as Secretary of Commerce, the multi-millionaire banker R. C. Wallace lashed back at Jones yesterday called himself unqualified to preside over such business matters.

Wallace did not say if he proposed to the Senate Commerce Committee that Congress investigate the administration of the lending agencies in determining if they should be stripped from the Commerce Department.

The committee is considering such a divorce in a proposed bill.
