Abbano sentenced to 12 years

SANFORD — A Winter Park man convicted last month of taking his ex-girlfriend hostage was sentenced to 12 years in prison Tuesday.

Robert Richard Abbano, 41, was also sentenced to eight years probation following the prison term imposed for attempted second degree murder with a firearm, aggravated assault with a firearm, false imprisonment and armed trespassing.

Abbano went to the Lady Fingers Nail Salon in Goldenrod last October the day after Cynthia Henry threw him out of her apartment. Abbano, who was armed, told police he wanted to talk to Henry before killing himself. Henry was released by Abbano after faking a heart attack. He was charged with attempted murder after trying to kill a salon employee who refused to leave during the incident.

Accident snarls I-4

A multiple car pile up on Interstate 4 at the Lake Monroe Bridge near the Seminole-Volusia county line, led to a lot of headaches and late arrivals at work this morning.

The Florida Highway Patrol reported that the accident occurred at about 7:45 a.m. in the westbound lanes of the interstate.

They reported that the back up stretched "at least four miles" into Volusia County. They said there was also a "pretty bad" back up in the east bound direction that was caused by emergency vehicles responding to assist with the accident and parking in one of the eastbound lanes.

The FHP said there were no fatalities. No other information about the accident was available at press time.

Negotiations end with Battle

Seminole County deputy sheriffs have had no further contact with 47-year-old Warren Battle of 309 Continental Ct., Altamonte Springs.

The last contact with him was made at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

On Monday, Battle had threatened to kill himself. Deputies and hostage negotiators responded and began telephone conversations in an effort to convince Battle to be hospitalized. He refused.

After 32 hours of negotiations, Undersheriff Steve Harriett decided it was "pointless to continue" and ordered the operation to end.

Hearing scheduled for Meyers

SANFORD — A hearing has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday before Circuit Court Judge Alan A. Dickey in the first degree murder case against Daryl Anton Meyers.

Defense attorney Ed Leinster requested the hearing and filed a motion to compel the state to turn over evidence in the case. He could not be reached for comment.

Assistant state attorney Chris White said he has not seen the defense request but believes the defense is seeking evidence from private citizens, not police officials. White said he was not at liberty to discuss the evidence.

County nixes gambling

Church Street developer linked to riverboat venture

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writers

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners stated a firm "No!" to riverboat gambling here Tuesday, voting unanimously to oppose an Orlando-based proposal for Port of Sanford to include a land-based amusement venture by Church Street Station developer Bob Snow.

In a resolution which was first drafted in mid-February, commissioners expressed their "firm opposition" to gambling riverboats or land-based casinos in Seminole County. Commissioners added a clause to the original resolution saying if state lawmakers do allow gambling in the state, they should allow voters of each county to decide to allow gambling locally.

If approved, commissioners stated city and county officials be allowed to regulate the gambling enterprises. Commissioner Pat Warren called for the land-based provision.

The resolution will be sent to the governor, legislative leaders, and local lawmakers.

Most commissioners have opposed the Port of Sanford riverboat gambling proposal since learning of it last month. However, after discussion Tuesday morning, commissioners added wording calling for local vote and control if the Legislature moves ahead with legalized gambling in the state.

Commissioner Larry Furlong, who originally did not oppose the venture, said he has found few supporters in the county. Furlong said after speaking with a college friend in a rural Mississippi town that has a gambling venture, he

Feds help fight crime in Florida

Local cops say it's about time

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Local law enforcement officials are enthused that federal help may be forthcoming in areas where violent crime is extreme.

"It's about time the federal government became more aware of these problems," said Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell. "Some crime statistics came out recently, and Florida is still way up there," he added. "I expect we will remain number one in the nation when the new FBI list comes out soon."

Lake Mary Police Chief Richard Beary commented, "They should have become involved years ago. I hope they do it in a hurry because eventually, we could reach the point of no-return, where we can no longer return the streets to the people."

Attorney General Janet Reno has now ordered

New rule: Keep your guns off campus

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — If you're thinking about bringing a gun onto a school campus in Seminole County, the school board wants you to think again.

While the code of student conduct already prohibits students from bringing guns on campus, there is nothing to keep non-students from taking a gun to school.

Last night, the school board unanimously approved a resolution asking the state legislature to prohibit everyone but law enforcement officers to bring guns on campus.

Moved by a recent incident at Lake Mary High School where a loaded, unholstered gun was reportedly found on the front seat of a guest speaker's car, board vice chairman Sandy Robinson proposed the resolution to make sure that never happens again.

The gun at Lake Mary High was never removed from the car. No shots were ever fired.

"But we don't want there to be that opportunity," said Robinson.

According to school board attorney Ned Julian, the person who brought the gun to Lake Mary High was arrested and promptly "unarrested" because there was not enough reason to search the person's car.

"There was an empty holster in plain sight and what appeared to be a gun in the front seat under a handkerchief," Julian said. "But that wasn't enough."

Robinson said that current state law does not "absolutely prevent" someone who is licensed to carry a gun from bringing that firearm onto a campus.

"It's too inconsistent," she said. Julian said he believes the school board's resolution will encourage the state to make the prohibition of guns complete.

"We need to close the loop," Julian said.

Prayer in school bill

Couch withdraws support, say the timing is wrong

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A bill before the Florida Legislature to support prayer in schools is expected to be brought up for a formal vote within the next few weeks. One of the co-sponsors however, is withdrawing his support.

Dist. 33 Representative Marvin Couch, of Oviedo, says he has studied the proposal, and believes he can no longer support it at this time. "It's definitely a good idea," he said, "but it's time hasn't come yet. This is something we should consider after we learn of the results of a number of court cases."

Couch, reached in his Tallahassee office this morning, said there are cases scheduled in Jacksonville, and various parts of the state and nation, including the 5th District Court of Appeals, pertaining to school prayers. "If the legislature passes something at this point," he said, "the courts may make our laws inactive, and the legislature would end up with pie in its face."

"Another point I'm concerned about," he continued, "is that the proposal, as it stands now, calls for non-sectarian prayers to be allowed. Who is to determine what a non-

Arrest made in cemetery floral thefts

CHIPLEY — A woman accused of stealing floral arrangements from graves in Florida Panhandle cemeteries, then selling them at yard sales, has been arrested.

Police found a storage shed packed with silk flowers during a search of the woman's Panama City Beach home after a 20-month investigation, said Washington County Sheriff Danny Haasy.

"There was a truck load," Haasy said. "We've got probably in excess of $2,000 in arrangements."

Julia Georgiadis, 46, was arrested late Tuesday at her home. She is charged with three counts of removing and disturbing the contents of a grave or tomb, a third-degree felony punishable by up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine on each count.

Haasy had said earlier that more charges were likely and another suspect also may be charged.

Twin boys abandoned, mom sought

QUINCY — Authorities are looking for the mother of newborn twin boys found abandoned in a utility shed.

The babies were discovered Tuesday morning when a man went to get something out of his utility shed and heard a baby crying.

"He went to check it and saw a baby lying down naked on a blanket on top of some junk," said Capt. Robert Barkley with the Quincy Police Department.

The man left to call for help, and when he returned spotted the second baby in a corner on the floor. That infant was barely breathing, Barkley said.

The babies appeared to be full-term and may have been in the shed up to 48 hours, he said.

The infants, weighing more than 5 pounds each, were in serious but stable condition Tuesday night at Tallahassee Memorial Regional Medical Center, said the hospital's vice president, Ron Bradford.

Air cushion saves bungee jumper

TALLAHASSEE — An air cushion required by state regulations may have saved the life of a bungee jumper who fell when his cord broke in Orlando. Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford said.

Rick Unrein, 36, of Fleming, Colo., fell 300 feet Saturday when the elastic cord snapped after he jumped off a 100-foot platform at Radical Sensation Bungee.

Unrein was released from Sand Lake Hospital later Saturday after being treated for bruises to his face, chest and arms caused when the cord snapped back and struck him.

Radical Sensations was closed after the accident and remained closed Tuesday, pending a reinspection to determine if it meets all regulations, Crawford said.

Coach leaves job to face assault charges

FORT MYERS — Bill Hewett was personally introduced to faculty and staff at Riverdale High School as the new head football coach only hours before he met with the principal to discuss leaving the job.

Hewett is scheduled to stand trial next month on two counts of assault on female students at his former school in North Carolina. He was scheduled to teach Tuesday, but has been replaced by a substitute.

"The principal met with the coach last evening and they discussed the situation, and the coach decided he was unemployable so long as he had these charges pending," Lee County district spokesman Allen Caraway said Tuesday. "He felt he had been charged unfairly."

Caraway said Hewett is "no longer employed by this school district."

Riverdale principal Robert Durham said checking references should have disclosed the problem.

Hewett, both the football coach and athletic director at South Brunswick High School in Bolling Spring Lakes, N.C., was charged with fondling two female students at two separate restaurants on the evening of Nov. 16. Hewett resigned in January after the allegations were brought.

Hewett's trial in a North Carolina District Court was postponed until April 14.

Colonel reportedly killed himself

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE — A colonel under investigation for possible inappropriate relationships with contractors apparently killed himself, Air Force officials said.

Col. Michael J. Tyce, 46, was reported missing Saturday by his wife when he failed to return to his home in nearby Valparaiso.

His body was found Tuesday in a wooded area of this sprawling base in the Florida Panhandle, about 200 feet from a road leading to an Army Ranger camp, according to an Air Force news release.

Tyce was commander of the 96th Services Squadron and responsible for overseeing housing, food services and recreation facilities at Eglin.

Farmers could sue if their fruits or vegetables are defamed

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida farmers could sue for damages to protect the fruits and vegetables of their labor under legislation moving ahead in the Legislature.

The Senate passed a bill 32-6 Tuesday that would allow the agricultural industry to sue someone who has defamed perishable food products without scientific evidence to back up the accusations.

"This is going to allow them to have the opportunity to fight back when somebody intentionally and willfully spreads lies," said Sen. Toni Jennings, the sponsor of the bill (CS-SB 1072).

If it becomes law, Florida would join a handful of other states that are using the threat of a legal hammer to help protect one of their biggest businesses.

"We've got to protect our food industry," said Sen. Mark Foley, R-West Palm Beach. "It's a $41 billion industry in Florida. Stand behind your farmers."

A similar bill (HB 1535) is pending in the House.

Supporters are concerned Florida's agriculture industry could face the same type of devastating financial losses sustained by some apple growers in Washington in 1989 after the Alar pesticide scare.

There was limited scientific data to prove the allegations about the chemical, but apple growers had no recourse against their accusers, supporters of the legislation said.

"The same could happen to Florida oranges. It could happen to Florida grapefruit. It could happen to Florida peppers or tomatoes," said Jennings, R-Orlando.

The legislation would allow farmers to recover compensatory and punitive damages as well as other damages deemed appropriate by the court. It also would allow them to collect triple damages if someone intentionally disparaged a food product with the purpose of harming the farmer or grower.

The bill has a two-year statute of limitation beginning from the date of the disparagement.

Limbaugh too controversial to sell orange juice

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Lawmakers upset over Rush Limbaugh pitching Florida orange juice put the squeeze on those who hired him.

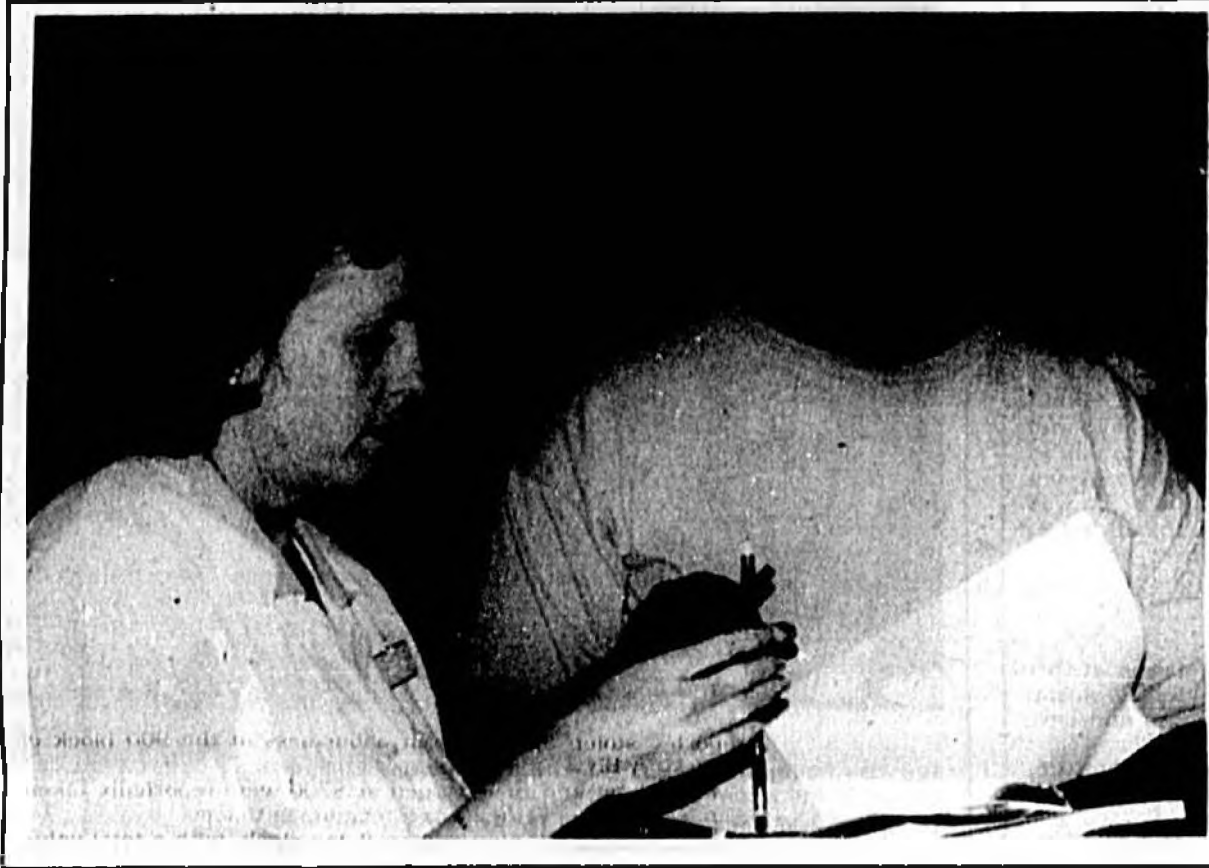

A Senate committee on Tuesday showed their displeasure by holding up confirmation of three appointees to the Florida Citrus Commission.

"We're looking for people who will present the best possible image for Florida citrus — not people who will engender hate, disregard for minorities, or represent any political philosophy," said

Sen. Peter Weinstein, D-Coral Springs. "I just wonder what prompted them to hire someone so unbelievably controversial."

But Senate Agriculture Chairman Mark Foley, R-West Palm Beach, said the decision to hire the radio talk show host was strictly business. He said it was based on the ratings of Limbaugh's syndicated show.

Limbaugh's $1 million contract to sell Florida's best-known export has sparked protests from the NAACP, the National Organization for Women and gay-rights activists.

'Calorically disadvantaged' excluded

By BILL BERNSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A Davie lawmaker says she hopes to succeed this year with a new bill favoring more women and minorities on state boards and commissions.

The bill by Rep. Debbie Wasserman-Schultz, D-Davie, survived a facelift Tuesday by a group of heavyweight House members to include "calorically disadvantaged" members on regulatory panels.

Schultz said her new version (HB 653) says boards "should" rather than "shall" have balanced representation, "making the bill a goal rather than a mandate."

Her mandatory proposal made it through the House and Senate last year but was vetoed by Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Rep. Carlos Valdes, R-Miami Springs, proposed an amendment to restore the mandatory language, but Wasserman-Schultz argued against it and House members voted it down.

Instead, the bill would merely set a goal of having women and minority members on the state's 1,200 regulatory boards and commissions in proportion to their numbers in the population. There would be no penalties for failure.

The House approved an amendment to include physically disabled people as well as women and minorities.

But the amendment to add "calorically disadvantaged" people didn't come to a vote.

"People don't understand being calorically disadvantaged. It's difficult when you want to fly on planes. It's difficult when you want to bend down and tie your shoes," Rep. Luis Rojas, R-Hialeah, said on behalf of himself and other rotund sponsors including Reps. James King, R-Jacksonville; Tracy Stafford, D-Wilton Manors; and Jack Tobin, D-Margate.

"Wouldn't this have the effect of giving greater weight to this category of people?" asked slender Rep. Mimi McAndrews, D-Royal Palm Beach, shortly before Rojas withdrew the proposal.

After action on amendments, the bill is ready for a final vote at a subsequent House meeting. It also must go to the Senate and the governor.

Vehicle burglarly charged

Dennis Grooms Sr., 42, 821 S. Holly Ave., Sanford, was arrested Monday on charges of vehicle burglary and dealing in stolen property. According to Sanford police reports, Grooms took property worth $520 from a vehicle parked at a Jefferson Avenue residence earlier this month. An investigation revealed Grooms, along with Bernard Thorne, 23, pawned the items locally for $150. Both accused the other of taking the items, but both admitted to pawning the items, according to reports. Thorne was arrested March 14. The victim had to pay $150 to get his possessions out of lock.

Forgery, grand theft charged

Sam Vendul Stafford, 40, address unknown, was arrested on several forgery and grand theft charges Monday. According to Sanford police reports, Stafford forged three checks reported stolen in December and cashed them for $600. Police report Stafford subsequently cashed four checks stolen in February for a total of $350. Stafford was held on seven forgery charges and two grand theft charges.

Petit theft charged

Tyrone Reid, 35, 117 McKay Blvd., Sanford, was arrested on a petit theft charge by Altamonte Springs police Monday. Police report a Gayfer's department store security guard witnessed Reid take a piece of unpurchased jewelry from a counter to a cashier and ask for a refund. After receiving a credit slip, he obtained cash from a clerk, according to reports.

Warrant arrests

The following wanted persons were taken into custody:
 • Marilyn Ann Bailey, 44, 2601 Marshall Ave., Sanford, charged with leaving the scene of an accident with damages and driving with a suspended license.
 • Earl Elijah Williams, 43, 3150 Midway Ave., Midway, charged with a probation violation for carrying a concealed weapon conviction and failure to appear to court to answer to two motor vehicle violations.
 • Christopher S. Phillips, 21, Arbor Circle, Sanford, charged with failure to appear in court to answer to a forgery charge.

Crimes reported to county deputies

Violence:
 • A Lincoln Heights man reported four men in a maroon Chevrolet drove off the road and at him as he walked his dog along Airport Boulevard near Academy Avenue at 11:30 p.m. Monday. The man reported he was able to jump away, but the car's fender struck his dog's head. The only description he gave was the vehicle was occupied by three black men and a white man.

Burglaries and thefts:

• 100 block Bunker Lane, Lake Mary, tires, wheels, compressor valued at $939 taken sometime between 11 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Monday.

Man wouldn't leave

Sanford police arrested James Paul Thompson, 41, of 808 Northlake Drive, Sanford, on Saturday. Officers said he had reportedly been causing a disturbance with the manager and clients of a restaurant in the 1500 block of S. French Avenue, and had been ordered to leave by officers. Police said the man returned approximately an hour later and continued to cause a disruption. Police were called again, and Thompson was reportedly arrested on a charge of trespassing after a written warning.

Officer struck

Willie George Church, 33, 83 Castle Brewer Court, was arrested by Sanford police at William Clark Court Saturday. Police were summoned when it was reported that Church had struck a 57-year old Lake Helen man. When police arrived, they said Church attempted to flee, and later struck the officer in the hip while he was being apprehended. Church was charged with resisting arrest without violence, aggravated battery, and battery on a law enforcement officer.

Stolen vehicles

Sanford police said a number of stolen vehicles were reported during this past weekend.
 • A 1979 Toyota station wagon was reportedly stolen

Saturday from a parking lot in the 2400 block of Airport Blvd. The vehicle license number is listed as QBC-87N.

• A 1978 Toyota pickup truck, green, red and blue, was reported stolen Saturday from the parking lot at Central Florida Regional Hospital. The license number is listed as NJY-78R. The truck reportedly has a bumper sticker saying, "My child is an honor student at Geneva Elementary".

• A 1993 Cadillac Sedan Deville, belonging to a man from Rochester, N.Y., was reported stolen early Monday from the 100 block of Academy Avenue. The vehicle was said to be blue/green, with New York license number MPY-788.

Domestic cases

• Marvin Killingsworth, 25, 24 Seminole Gardens, was arrested at his residence by Sanford police Sunday following a dispute with a female. He was charged with domestic violence, battery.

• Milton William, 189, 141 Coachlight Court, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police in the 000 block of Bay Avenue following an altercation with a female. He was charged with aggravated battery (domestic violence).

Warrants served

• William Edward Harrell, 53, of Casselberry, was served warrants at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Sunday. He was wanted on seven separate warrants for obtaining property with worthless checks.

• Tracy Lynn Stone, 29, 220 S. Holly Ave., Sanford, was arrested by police at her residence Sunday. She was wanted for failure to appear on charges of no child restraint and driving with a suspended/revoked license.

• Charles Howard, 31, 3706 S. Sanford Avenue, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at Lake Jessup Park Sunday. He was wanted on a Monroe County warrant for violation of parole on a conviction of possession of cocaine.

Traffic stop

Jeffrey Lee Howell, 37, of Mt. Dora, was arrested by Lake Mary police on Lake Mary Blvd. at Heathrow Sunday. He was charged with speeding 69 miles per hour in a 45 mile zone and driving under the influence of alcohol.

Incidents reported to the sheriff

• Two 12-packs of soft drinks valued at $10 were reported stolen Saturday from a residence in the 2000 block of Celery Avenue. $75 in damage was reported during the burglary.

• Six flood lamps, valued at $25 were reportedly broken Friday at a development entrance at Lake Way and Spinnaker Drive near Lake Mary.

• Three vehicles were reportedly burglarized Sunday at Fire Station 41 in Midway. Two vehicles had $250 AM/FM/Cassette radios stolen. The third owner reported $1 was missing.

• A 1984 Oldsmobile belonging to an Orlando man was reportedly found on fire, off McCrackin Road Saturday, near the railroad tracks. Deputies said the tires and wheels were gone at the time.

• A $400 bracelet was reported stolen Sunday from a residence in the 800 block of E. Charring Cross Circle near Lake Mary.

• A VCR valued at $250 was reported stolen Sunday from a residence in the 1200 block of John Lord Street near Sanford.

• Deputies responded to an alarm call Sunday at a business in the 3200 block of N. Orlando Drive. $200 in damage was reported but nothing was determined to be missing.

• A portable 6-channel radio valued at $628 was reportedly stolen Friday from a vehicle parked near the Greenway construction site on S.R. 417.

• A TV and other items valued at $400 were reportedly stolen early Monday from a residence in Castle Brewer Court.

Cabinet expresses doubts about funding for welfare reform

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Senior-level Clinton administration officials balked at a proposal to pay for an ambitious, $15 billion welfare reform plan by way of deep cuts in other poverty programs. The New York Times reported today.

They voiced their concerns Tuesday during a meeting at which mid-level officials who have been struggling to find ways of paying for the package of training and work programs presented their ideas to President Clinton and some of his top advisers.

No firm decisions were made at the meeting, the Times said, citing unidentified sources.

One cut suggested by the mid-level officials would save $800 million a year by making 250,000 children ineligible for welfare. Another would deny cash payments to needy immigrants. A third would cap emergency welfare.

None of these were popular at the top, the Times said.

Some Cabinet members, joined by senior advisers George Stephanopoulos and David Gergen, seemed to agree that cuts alone would be unfair to the poor and would not find support among Democrats in Congress, the newspaper said.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich and Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros were said to be among those concerned about the cuts.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen agreed to consider tax increases to avoid some of the cuts, the Times reported.

It was reported earlier that the administration is considering a new tax on gambling establishments such as racetracks, riverboats and Las Vegas casinos.

Clinton promised during his campaign to "end welfare as we know it" and to require all able-bodied recipients to take a job after two years on welfare.

Clinton aides said the White House will unveil a plan in April to reform the main federal-state welfare program, which supports 5 million families.

Follow the rules

"We're doing this for your own good."
That's something all of us probably heard from our parents as they imposed rules and restrictions on us as we were growing up. Of course, at the time, it seemed unfair, stifling and, most assuredly, wrong. "They have no right to do that," we would bellow, slinking away, yet following the edict. Sometimes we'd talk it out and reach a more palatable compromise. But, always, it was for the best. Their rules, as those imposed on us by society, are designed to protect us...sometimes from others, sometimes from ourselves. We believe the codes implemented by the Sanford Historic Preservation Board regulating the restoration and renovation of the downtown residential historic district are basically for the good of the area. They are in need of some fine tuning, perhaps, as some have suggested. But they are designed to be sure that investors do not renovate homes in the cheapest way possible and then leave them to deteriorate into cheap flop houses or worse. The Sanford Historic Preservation Board, however, has shown a willingness to make some changes in the codes. The codes are in place to help bring the Sanford downtown historic district up from a long period of misuse and degradation. The codes will help keep the area from falling back into disrepair.

Government's big lie

Maybe it's my imagination running amuck. Then again, maybe not. Maybe — just maybe — I actually did see and hear on network TV, on a recent broadcast, what I think I saw and heard on network TV. Our own Janet Reno, the new national attorney general of the United States, apparently side-stepping every or nearly every question directed to her by the TV interviewer. And that interview was on a one-to-one basis, before the State of the Union speech. The questions were clear and concise with no room for misunderstanding, even for a glib-tongued lawyer. The answers these old ears heard or think they heard, seemed to cover nearly everything from soup to nuts — except — the question(s) asked. And this seemed to occur question after question. I do know that totally evasive verbal agility is almost a mandatory prerequisite of anyone entering the Washington scene. If you can't talk for an hour and a half while really saying nothing, you just don't cut the mustard and you can't play in their game. In some circles it's called "talking governmentese." In other circles it's called "bureaucratic B.S." The casual mention of the infamous "BBS" (no — I don't mean "British Broadcasting Station") brings to mind another truism that I'd like to lay on you. Chew on this, if you will. Which one of the following three conditions do you think would be the easiest to get a suspicious American citizenry to accept? a) a flat out lie, b) a half-truth, c) the absolute truth assuming of course that all emanated from D.C. Got your minds made up? Great! Let's see how well you did. Did you pick c) — the absolute truth? Naw! More and more people are getting the feeling that most (not quite all) DC politicians are physically incapable of speaking the truth, that if they ever tried to, their tongues would fall off. And nearly everyone knows that a tongueless DC politician is a dead horse. How about b) — the half-truth? You did — huh! A whole big bunch of you picked b) as your choice. Well now, let me congratulate you — on being about half right. Just enough truth to make it sound plausible and just enough lies to totally negate the truth...and you fell for it. Shame on you. You downright disappointed me. OK! That leaves a). Let's have a show of hands...all those in favor of a), raise 'em. One, two, three, four...Aw come on now, there's gotta be more than four. Hey you — over there in the back — you voted for a), didn't you? Not Well then, go stand in the corner for the rest of this letter. Four...four out of thousands. And you're right. I never cease to be amazed by the wisdom of the few. It is a known fact that a bald-faced, down-and-out lie will become accepted as the truth if it is repeated often enough, loud enough, and long enough. It may take years but it will happen. Take the federal Brady Bill. Highly touted as a giant step in crime control. Nothing but one gigantic lie. Even the sponsors and/or backers of the bill admit that it won't do a nickel's worth of good in reducing crime. But you bought it. You bought the "big lie" hook, line and sinker. Sure hope you get smarter quicker. Very soon, it's going to look like opening day on a very hot trout stream. The DC anti-gun crowd is about to flail the air with dozens more lies, each one loaded with hooks. Watch your derriere. Nelson B. Tullar Winter Springs

Population explosion is fizzling

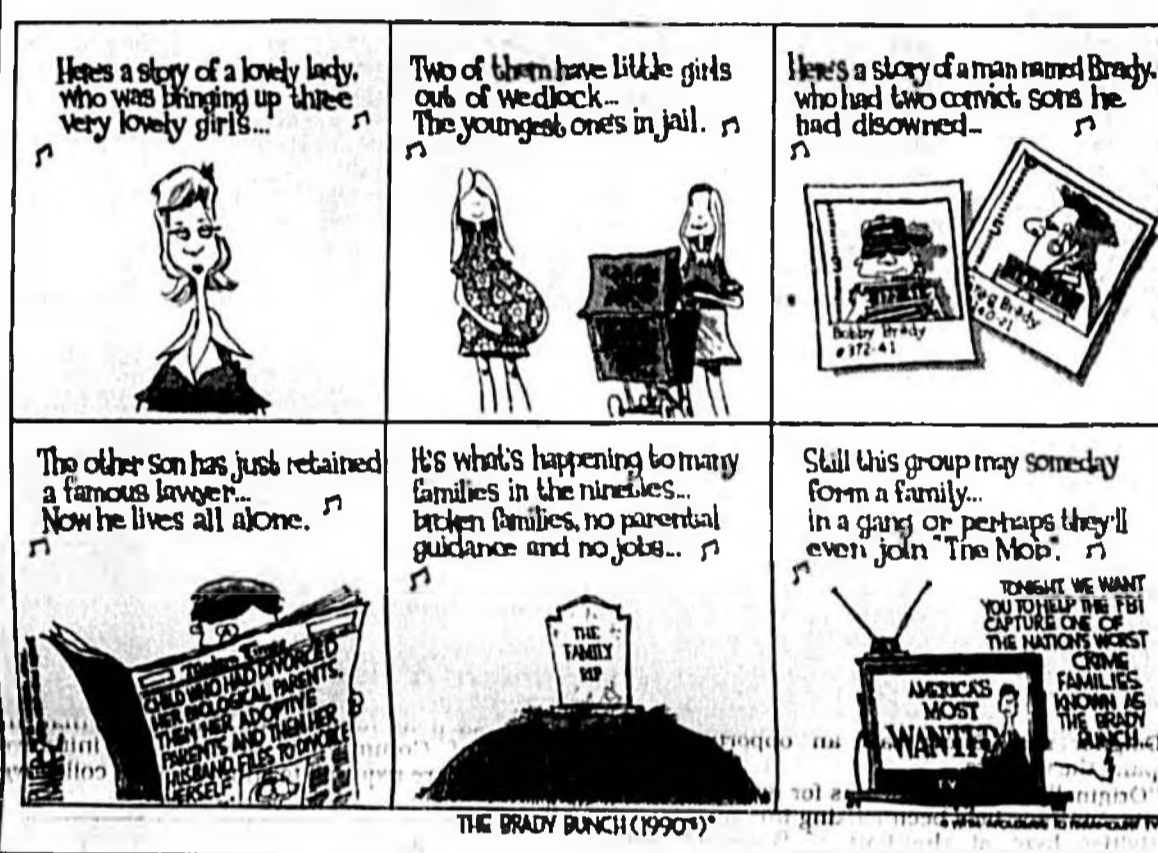

We're going to hear a lot, soon, about how there are "too many people" and "people spoil the environment." That will be a central thesis of the massive U.N. Conference on Population and Development in Cairo in September. Is it so? A recent article in Scientific American ("The Fertility Decline in Developing Countries") sheds light on one major aspect of the argument. Birth rates in sub-Saharan Africa — the last main redoubt of super-high fertility — are plunging. Kenya offers a dramatic example. It has been the fertility Frankenstein of the Less Developed Countries. In 1977-78 it had a Total Fertility Rate of 8.3 children per woman. But by 1989 the rate was 6.7, and in 1993 dropped to 5.4, of which the Population Reference Bureau said: "The 20 percent decline in just over four years is one of the swiftest ever recorded." (It takes 2.4 children to reach population stability in a developing society, and 2.1 in a modern one.) The new African data means we will likely get less global population than imagined. It means that whatever the environmental threat posed by population growth (if any) — will be less than predicted. It means that the Explosionists will have a more difficult time promulgating demographic doom (a proclamation-in-waiting deferred from the U.N.'s raucous 1992 environmental conference in Rio De Janeiro). Paradoxically, it may mean that the U.N. will have a better case for more global family-planning money. (The super-pro-green Clinton administration is anxious to pitch in.) Kenya is not alone, according to demographic experts Bryant Robey, Leo Morris and Shea O. Rutstein, authors of the December 1993 Scientific American article. Zimbabwe, Botswana and others have also seen dramatic drops. More important, the authors report healthy leading indicators of change elsewhere in sub-Saharan Africa, even where little economic growth is apparent: rise in age of first marriage, more education for women, more use of contraception, greater urbanization. Says co-author Rutstein about falling African fertility: "What was a controversial theory a few years ago, is now clearly established." This is happening against a backdrop of stunning decreases in fertility over three decades in Latin America (a 50 percent drop in Mexico and Brazil), Northern Africa (Egypt down 42 percent), and Asia (64 percent in Thailand and 43 percent in Indonesia, with new data due soon showing lower Indian fertility rates). Add to that what's happening in former Iron Curtain nations. The Russian rate has collapsed from 2.1 to 1.4. Incredibly, the TFR in the former East Germany has fallen below 0.8 children per woman. Moreover, the ongoing birth dearth continues in many parts of the developed world. Spain is now at 1.3 and Japan at 1.5 and sinking. ("Never before have TFRs reached levels as low as those recently observed in some countries," according to the U.N. Population Newsletter.) New U.N. projections will be issued prior to Cairo.

NASA's IG under investigation

WASHINGTON — The tables have been turned on NASA Inspector General Bill Colvin, who is being investigated for allegations of serious misconduct. The probe is being conducted by the Office of Special Investigations, which exclusively handles cases involving allegations of fraud and other serious abuses for the General Accounting Office. Two of OSI's 22 investigators have been working on the probe since late 1992 Colvin told us he is aware of the investigation. "It concerns me greatly because it is a personal attack on my integrity," Colvin said. "I have given it very serious consideration and... I know the facts. But I think anytime that you have an attack upon a person's integrity... certainly that hurts." GAO's investigation centers on whether Colvin has lost the independence necessary for a watchdog. More than a dozen of Colvin's own staffers have told us they think Colvin's independence has been compromised because his relationship is too cozy with NASA executives. "I have seen him try to shut down any kind of investigation or audit that is going to result in any sort of embarrassment for the agency," one high official in Colvin's office told our associate Ed Henry. Several officials allege that Colvin has alerted NASA officials to pending investigations, irking investigators who rely on the element of surprise. Colvin refused to comment on the allegation but did say he values the element of surprise. The GAO is probing one case in which Colvin allegedly tipped off the target of an investigation into misuse of executive aircraft. According to an internal NASA report, a NASA official in Ohio used two flights on executive aircraft to shuttle his wife and 20 other non-federal guests to an air show in Oshkosh, Wis., in August 1992. The report concluded that the official, John Hairston, used the aircraft improperly. Officials allege that when the complaint originally came in over the inspector general's hotline, Colvin immediately notified the NASA administrator's office that one of his agents was about to confront Hairston. Colvin suggested that Hairston could defuse the situation by writing a personal check to reimburse the government. The early warning stunned an agent assigned to confront Hairston. "The element of surprise was lost along with any other opportunity to gather evidence about other potential problems or crimes that may have been uncovered," said one source close to the case. Colvin was appointed by President Reagan in 1985, and many of his subordinates think it's time for a change. But Colvin says experience is his best weapon. "I think there's something to be said for that longevity," he explained. "I think I'm probably more effective than I've ever been. It has taken a considerable amount of time to gain the trust and confidence of the recipients of our work." But inspector general sources point out that Colvin has also spent a considerable amount of time hobnobbing with those "recipients." One close aide said Colvin "never misses a day of eating lunch in the upstairs dining room (reserved) for NASA executives." Like all executive dining rooms, it was closed at the beginning of the Clinton administration to cut costs. But Colvin acknowledges he has resumed eating lunch there since it reopened. Inspector general officials are appalled at the appearance. "You become close friends with (the executives) and then you don't want to issue things that will embarrass them," said one inspector general source.

GAO's investigation centers on whether Colvin has lost the independence necessary for a watchdog.

Conflicting principle of the thing

BOSTON — If you were trying to create a fantasy to fit every stereotype about welfare, or for that matter about government, you couldn't have scripted a more incendiary plot. Imagine this one: In Massachusetts, the government has been paying for fertility drugs given to Medicaid patients. The same society concerned about the number of children born in and to poverty, the same government trying to get mothers and children off AFDC, paid to help poor parents conceive more children. It's no wonder the story made headlines and made heads shake. In the scheme of things, there wasn't much money involved. The cost came to $45,000 in a state Medicaid budget of $3.2 billion. Nor were that many people involved. Only about 260 were prescribed the drugs. But it was the principle of the thing. Or rather, the conflicting principles of the thing. Or the lack of any guiding principle behind the thing. Of the patients who received fertility treatments, 58 percent were on AFDC and 63 percent already had one or more children. While a handful of them were using these drugs to treat breast or prostate cancer, most were trying to get pregnant. And while the decision to prescribe these drugs had been left to individual doctors, the bill — and the shock — went to the state. It didn't take long for Bill Weld, the Republican governor with a two-point program to get criminals in jail and welfare mothers off the dole, to cut off the payments. Even Ted Kennedy, the ninth child of the Kennedy family, said, "Our goal in using tax dollars wisely is to reduce welfare dependency, not create more of it." So much then for this story of "creation." But before we close the book, we should note that it wasn't wholly unique. What happened in Massachusetts was just a reverse, upside-down, inside-out, extreme example of the conflicting policies about reproduction that are commonplace. It was another angle on the confused ways that we deal with poverty and fertility. Consider a composite picture of what's going on in the country. Yes, Massachusetts briefly paid for AFDC mothers to conceive more children. But while that happened, New Jersey and Georgia decided not to pay when additional children were born to welfare mothers. Twenty-one states are now considering capping welfare payments for the second or third child born to an AFDC mother. But again, at the same time, 38 states refuse to pay for Medicaid abortions. Some don't want to pay for poor women to have abortions or to raise the children. Everyone agrees that teen-agers should become adults before they become parents. But do our laws and our policies support that common belief? Increasingly we make teens jump over hurdles — gain parental consent or stand before a judge — to get an abortion. We make them jump through hoops to get birth control. We make it harder for them, not easier. Today, old Draconian attitudes about controlling the poor and fertile appear with a certain vengeance. In the last two years, a rash of states from Mississippi to Maryland have considered proposals that would require women to be sterilized or get long-term contraceptives like Norplant before they could receive welfare. Do the legislators who introduce these laws know or care if women have voluntary access to family planning? A survey in Nevada, for example, showed that 80 percent of those on AFDC receive no counseling at all. Massachusetts, which mandates that private insurers cover fertility treatments — including the expensive and dicey in vitro fertilization — may have assumed that the public insurer should provide equal treatment for the poor. But Massachusetts got it wrong. In a time when words like "rationing" appear next to health care, we have to decide what to do with limited dollars. Paying for fertility treatments for those who already have a child — through Medicaid or through a national health plan — ranks so far down the list of priorities it falls off the page. A society, like a family, has to balance the needs of the children they have against those they might have. How do you justify paying for fertility treatments while cutting payments for existing children? Government-funded conception files in the face of common sense. It's this sixth sense, this common sense that seems in such short supply. But it's what we need to straighten out the policy messages about poverty and fertility that are being sold now under the generic and dangerous label of welfare reform.

It was another angle on the confused ways that we deal with poverty and fertility.

Lyman ups security, Henley squelches rumors of fights

By VICKI DeBORNIE
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — While there is beefed up security around Lyman High School today, principal Carlton Henley said they are not there to squelch gang activity at the school.

"There is not gang activity here," Henley said. "There's just a lot of rumor."

According to Henley, a pair of students got into a fight last week. Punches were thrown, though the fight was quickly broken up, he said.

As soon as the altercation began, Henley said, "the herding instinct" brought a large crowd of students rushing to root for their favorite combatant. He said that as many as 100 students may have been in the area by the time the students were separated and taken to the office to be disciplined.

As students gathered to take sides in the fight, two or three other punching matches broke out and were quickly squelched, he noted.

Henley said all of the students who were involved in fights were suspended from school for 10 days.

"I think it has just gotten blown all out of proportion," Henley said. "It was the same kind of thing that happens at high schools all the time. It's been happening as long as I've been in education...and that's been close to 40 years. It was happening even when I was in school. I think that people hear about violence and they exaggerate it."

Henley said he has heard widely divergent rumors including one in which Henley had confiscated 40 guns at school (he said he has not found even one gun on campus) to another claiming Henley had either beaten up a student or that he had been beaten by a student (neither is true, he said).

"The rumor mill is running rampant," he concluded.

He said there are additional officers on duty at the school today to "allay the fears of those who had heard the rumors."

Ed McDonough, public information officer for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, said there are six extra officers on duty at Lyman today. He agreed that the officers were there only to be sure the students felt safe, though they were in no danger.

McDonough said the students who were returning from suspension today were "agitators" and they were "just looking for attention."

The suspended students, he believed, had started most of the rumors themselves. And, he had been told, they might have even contacted some of the local television stations in an attempt to draw attention to themselves.

"I can assure you that there'll be no fights today," he said.

U.S. Attorneys to facilitate and monitor the development and implementation of a District-Level Anti-Violent Crime Initiative.

Reno has reported the rate of violent crime in the nation increased 41 percent in the past 10 years, and 81 percent in the past 20, based on data received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime Reports.

The study ordered by Reno is to be conducted on an area-by-area level. U.S. Attorney Larry

H. Colleton has named Bruce Hinshelwood, First Assistant U.S. Attorney, as Violent Crime Coordinator for the Middle District of Florida. The district is based in Tampa and includes all of central Florida.

Colleton stated, "Clearly, a strategy that involves the entire community is crucial. There are no easy or quick solutions. The Middle District's Anti-Violent Crime Initiative is a plan that requires a full exchange of ideas and information."

He continued, "The focus from the criminal justice viewpoint is to identify those career violent offenders and to obtain the longest possible sentences. The victim and his or her family must never be forgotten."

Sanford's Chief Russell questioned why the study is being considered as just getting underway. "They already have all of the statistics on violent crimes, law enforcement, drugs and other information," he said. "Every time we apply for anything, such as funding for the hiring of Community Based Police, we are required to submit this information." Russell suggested rather than conduct another study, the government should take what they already have and get on with a specific direction toward fighting these crimes.

Beary called the study, "an analysis paralysis." "Every time they undertake another study," he commented, "it's using time and money. I believe they should take the money used to conduct this study and direct it in a more productive way toward crime fighting."

"Of course government programs often bring about another concern," Russell said. "Every time we enter into an agreement with the state or federal government in a crime-fighting endeavor, they want something in return, and we often end up losing some control."

The Middle District's Anti-Violent Crime Analysis and Operational Plan is expected to be drafted by mid June.

Colleton commented, "It is my hope that the development of this initiative will incorporate the collective wisdom of law secular prayer is," he asked, "the legislature? If that's the case we could be opening ourselves up to all kinds of legal action from anyone who didn't agree with the exact wording we declared to be non-sectarian."

Couch said there are still many co-sponsors of the bill. "I'm going to E-mail the reasons for my pulling out of the support to every one of them," he said, "so that they know my reasons for withdrawing support. I'm not against prayer in schools, I'm just against the present timing of what the legislature is proposing."

"People should also consider that students are presently allowed to pray in schools, if they initiate it," he said. "It's not the individual rights which are being dealt with here, but whether or not the school should become involved."

Gambling

decided he did not want the traffic problems and hassles.

"It convinced me, not from a moral standpoint, but from the economic development point of view, that I don't want Seminole County to become a gambling center," Furlong said.

Florida Riverboat Gambling Corp. of Orlando wants to float a riverboat gambling casino on the St. Johns River and Lake Monroe. Florida Riverboat president Gerald Braley, chairman of the Orange County Republican Executive Committee, says the group intends to invest $40 million to $100 million to develop the venture. Based at Port of Sanford, the average wage will be $24,000 annually, says Braley.

The enterprise will generate $5 million to $10 million each year for local governments. Braley says the enterprise won't attract negatives such as crime or "leaze" because the gambling will be conducted during limited cruises, restricting access to criminal and sleazy activities and deterring impulse gambling.

Tuesday, Braley presented Church Street Station's Snow who told commissioners he intends to develop a land-based restaurant and amusement center at the port to accompany the gambling venture. Snow said he'd been talking to Braley "for months" about the venture.

Dennis Dolgner, administrator of the Seminole County Port Authority, said this morning he was disappointed at the commission's decision. The port has granted Florida Riverboat a lease option for 10 acres.

Dolgner said Snow saw an opportunity to expand the venture.

"Originally, the concept was for gambling on the boats, but now he's been looking into land-based activities here at the Port of Sanford," said Dolgner. "I'm looking toward economic development of the Port," he said. "There are four million visitors driving past here on Interstate 4 each year. This would be one way to capture part of this market. If this comes about here at the port, it could easily be the largest project we could have in as far as job opportunities and tax dollars."

"If (the commission) were determined to pass this, they should first get all parties together in a workshop and discuss all the points in this," said Dolgner. "This hasn't come to a vote of the people yet. How can they say what the people want?"

Staff writer Nick Pfeiffert contributed to this report.

Teen hangs self; teacher beats student to death ...

By MARI YAMAUCHI
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO — A ninth-grader depressed by school discipline hangs himself. A teacher slams a school gate on a student, crushing her skull. Another teacher beats a student to death on a school outing, just for carrying a hair dryer.

Japan's regimented schools produce some of the world's best students, but researchers and educators feel the tough discipline is too often abused. Confucian authoritarianism in the wrong hands, the critics say, has fostered a culture of violence in the schools.

"I've decided, all by myself, to die ... I don't want to be with a teacher who uses violence," said a note left by the 14-year-old who hanged himself last fall in a park in Molegi-machi, about 60 miles northeast of Tokyo.

His 27-year-old teacher, whose name was withheld by school authorities, later admitted he had slapped the boy several times in the face as part of "disciplinary measures."

Although corporal punishment is against the law, many teachers say they find it an effective educational tool if it does not result in serious injury. According to Education Ministry reports, some even consider it a sign of a teacher's enthusiasm or concern for the students.

In a nation that prizes conformity and obedience to authority, parents rarely protest even if their children dare to complain.

During the academic year April 1991-March 1992, 855 cases of corporal punishment, or "taibatsu," were reported in grades 1 through 12, the Education Ministry said. Researchers say the cases reported are a small part of the total.

A report provided by the Tokyo metropolitan government gives a rare glimpse of some physical disciplinary measures used by junior high teachers.

The report, with substantial parts blacked out to conceal identities, indicated all but one of the disciplined students suffered injuries ranging from bruises to broken bones.

In July 1991, a teacher punched a 12-year-old in the face and kicked him in the stomach and thighs for reading a classmate's diary, causing a bone fracture around his eye that required hospitalization for a month, the report said.

Two months later, a 15-year-old at another school suffered a broken leg when he was slapped, punched in the face and tripped by a teacher for bringing a cassette player to school.

Typically, children are hit on the head, punched in the face, kicked or beaten with sticks for missing homework deadlines or breaking the rules.

One rule that applies in all public schools requires students to wear dark-colored military-style uniforms. Most schools have more detailed codes that, for example, govern the color of socks and limit hair styles to very short crew cuts for boys and pageboys for girls.

Students can be barred from entering coffee shops or obtaining drivers' licenses. The contents of school bags are restricted: no cassette players, playing cards or hair dryers.

To some, the routine habit of administering slaps to the head or face is the most worrisome aspect of school discipline.

"It reminds me of Japan's wartime military," said Susumu Nakano, a former high school teacher who lectures in education at Chuo University, referring to brutal behavior that was taken for granted in the militaristic period before and during World War II.

"Corporal punishment is a threat that simply forces children to obey," Nakano said. "It can temporarily stop certain actions, but has no positive educational effect."

Municipal governments reluctantly began disclosing reports on serious cases of corporal punishment after human rights groups accused schools of trying to cover up the practice.

The teacher who beat the student to death for taking a hair dryer on a school outing was sentenced to three years in prison, but most teachers who injure students receive only reprimands or suspensions.

After the 14-year-old hanged himself in the park, his teacher was given a six-month cut in salary for having used corporal punishment. He took a leave of absence and later resigned.

In Kobe, western Japan, the junior high school teacher who killed a 15-year-old by slamming a quarter-ton gate on her head received a three-year jail sentence for professional negligence. It was suspended.

The school halted its practice of slamming the gates at 8:30 a.m. to teach students a lesson about punctuality.

Of 295 teachers punished for using corporal punishment in 1992, four were suspended and 10 suffered cuts in salary. The others were merely reprimanded.

Critics urge school officials to reconsider traditional ways of enforcing discipline.

"With good relationships and trust, they shouldn't have to use violence to make kids listen," said Norio Seto, a lawyer and child-rights advocate.

Doctors' final word: MSG doesn't sicken eaters; what does?

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Some doctors are proclaiming they've debunked the theory that the flavor enhancer MSG makes people sick — but their patients don't believe them.

So scientists have a problem: how to find another culprit if the patients won't cooperate.

"It's frustrating," said Dr. Steve Taylor, head of food science at the University of Nebraska. "You can't make them come into the clinic and get tested ... so they're not getting help for a real problem."

Tell that to Anna Davis. "Doctors didn't know why I got dizzy headaches," the Washington resident said after insisting that a Chinese restaurant put none of the flavor enhancer in her order. "I stopped eating MSG and now I don't. End of story."

MSG, or monosodium glutamate, has been used in Oriental cooking for nearly 2,000 years but also is commonly found in everything from tomato sauce to snack chips. It is a version of glutamic acid, one of 20 amino acids naturally present in nearly all protein.

In 1968, a doctor who experienced temporary numbness and weakness after eating Chinese food labeled the symptoms Chinese restaurant syndrome and speculated that MSG, cooking wine or excess salt could be to blame.

Early studies said MSG was the culprit, but in 1980 scientists began reversing that opinion. Now the largest study of the issue says MSG is innocent.

An Australian chemist, Dr. Len Tarasoff of the University of Western Sydney, randomly fed 71 people various doses of MSG and a placebo for five days. He told participants he was studying ingredients in a new soft drink, and fed them either capsules or a grapefruit-like drink before a standardized breakfast.

Fifteen percent reported some symptoms after ingesting the MSG — but so did 14 percent after taking the placebo, said his report in the British journal Food and Chemical Toxicology.

But an unknown number of Americans still blame MSG for symptoms ranging from headaches and flushing to numbness or dizziness. They asked the Food and Drug Administration to require more stringent labeling of MSG in foods.

Fed move portends higher interest rates for consumers

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve may not be slamming the brakes on the economy, but it is easing off the accelerator. As a result, consumers and businesses can expect a range of interest rates to rise.

After the Fed's announcement Tuesday that it was tightening credit for a second time this year, analysts predicted higher rates on everything from adjustable mortgages to auto and small-business loans.

The increases could start coming quickly if large commercial banks decide to follow the Fed's lead and boost their prime lending rate, a key benchmark rate that affects a variety of business and consumer loan rates.

The prime rate has been at 6 percent since July 1992, but analysts believe the Fed's continued credit tightening will spur an increase, although they were split on the timing.

Some economists predicted that banks would start pushing the prime rate higher starting today, while others argued that banks are enjoying nice profits currently and may be content to wait until the Fed raises rates again.

After a five-hour meeting of Fed policy-makers, the central bank issued a brief statement Tuesday saying it planned to tighten credit conditions slightly.

Analysts viewed the wording of the announcement as signaling that the Fed had decided to push its target for the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other, to 3.5 percent, up from 3.25 percent currently.

They expected that view to be confirmed by the way the Fed handles its open market securities operations today.

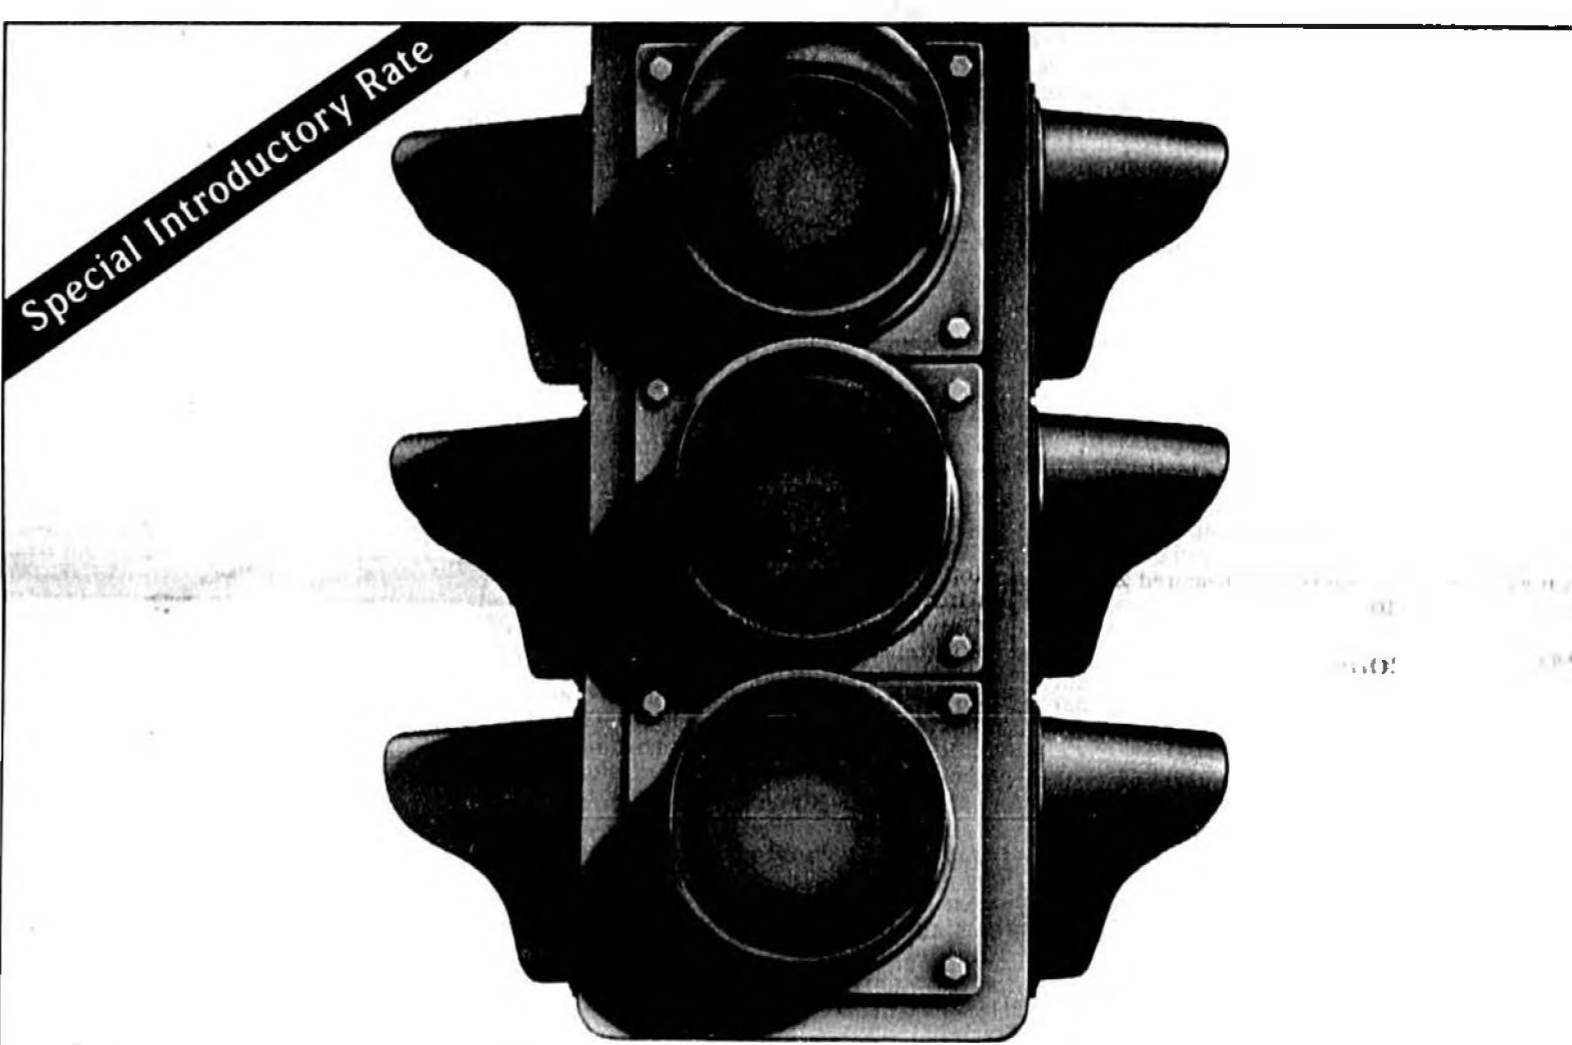

Small quarter-point changes in interest rates are in keeping with the gradualist approach of the central bank under Chairman Alan Greenspan.

"The Fed is trying to do the right thing by raising interest rates a little bit now so that they don't have to raise rates a lot later on when inflation becomes a problem," said Paul Getman, an economist at Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

The Fed hopes that in this effort to fine-tune the economy, it will be able to prolong the current expansion, which becomes three years old this month, and avoid the sharp boosts in interest rates that can throw the economy into recession.

While the Fed's first rate hike in five years — also a quarter-point increase on Feb. 4 — caused a 96-point drop in the stock market, the reaction this time was much more subdued. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped a slight 2.30 points and bond prices rallied, with the yield on 30-year Treasuries, which move in the opposite direction from the price, dropping to 6.85 percent.

This was the type of response the Fed had hoped to elicit with its first interest rate move. However, instead of reassuring markets that it was on guard against inflation, the Feb. 4 announcement triggered the big decline in stock prices and a sharp jump in bond yields as investors demanded a better cushion against inflation fears.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Expos double up Marlins
MELBOURNE — Kirk Rueter and Butch Henry combined for five shutout innings Tuesday as Montreal beat Florida 6-3 at Space Coast Stadium.

Florida's offense awoke when Dave Magadan singled in a run in the bottom of the sixth. In the ninth, Mitch Lyden had a two-run homer to cut the deficit to three.

Diaz powers Gators' win

GAINESVILLE — Alex Diaz was 2-for-4, including a solo homer, to lead Florida in a 7-3 win over Georgia State on Tuesday night.

Charles Roberts (1-0) gave up only two hits and one run in five innings of work to pick up his first collegiate win. Danny Wheeler tossed the final 1 1/2 innings to earn his fourth save.

AROUND THE NATION

Warriors overtake Magic

OAKLAND, Calif. — Billy Owens' tip-in with 21 seconds left put Golden State ahead and Chris Webber blocked Orlando's last-ditch shot as the Warriors overcame a 16-point, fourth-quarter deficit to beat the Magic 117-116 Tuesday night.

The Magic argued with the officials to no avail that Webber should have been called for goaltending when he rejected Dennis Scott's shot in the lane with just over five seconds left.

Golden State overcame a 29-point effort by Shaquille O'Neal, who fouled out with 2:12 left in the game. Arnette Hardaway also had a season-high 15 assists to go with his 18 points. Webber led the Warriors with 25 points.

Green, Suns rally by Heat

PHOENIX — A.C. Green had seven points and three rebounds in overtime Tuesday night as Phoenix, which trailed by 18 points in the third quarter, rallied to beat Miami 124-118.

Kevin Johnson led the comeback, scoring 24 of his 35 points in the second half and overtime.

For the Heat, Willie Burton tied his career high with 28 points. Steve Smith scored 27, and Timbo Coles had 16.

'Magic' to coach Lakers

LOS ANGELES — Retired basketball star Magic Johnson is returning to the NBA to coach the Los Angeles Lakers, the club said Tuesday night.

Johnson replaces Randy Pfund and will be reunited with his former team at a news conference at the Forum today at 11 a.m. PST.

Johnson, 34, led the Lakers to five NBA championships in his 12 seasons with the team. He retired from the Lakers in November 1991 after learning he was infected with the virus that causes AIDS.

FAMU duo tosses 2 no-hitters

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Shohn Lewis and James Harris each threw a no-hitter to lead Florida A&M to a pair of 8-0 victories over North Carolina A&T Wednesday.

Lewis picked up his first win of the year after two losses in the opener. He struck out six and walked four.

In the nightcap, Harris was a little more erratic, striking out four and walking five for his second victory in five decisions.

Two-win afternoon boosts Raiders in M-FC race

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Don't look now, but the Raiders are alive and kicking.

A week ago, the Seminole Community College baseball team was struggling and looked as if might be ready to spiral right out of the Mid-Florida Conference race.

But Tuesday afternoon at Raider Field, SCC took two wins from St. John's River Community College, 11-10 in 13 innings and 5-4, giving the Raiders three straight conference victories and a 6-6 M-FC mark, good for third place and very realistic chance of earning a spot in the state tournament in May.

The first game was a completion of a game that was halted because of darkness back on Feb. 15.

SCC (12-15 overall) will continue its seven-game homestand with a non-conference game against Indian River Community College from Ft. Pierce on Thursday starting at 3 p.m.

The Raiders came back from deficits of 8-4 and 10-6 in the first game to tie the game at 10-10 with a run in the bottom of the ninth inning on Feb. 15, then won the game in the 13th inning

'Hounds shut out Eustis

From Staff Reports

EUSTIS — Even though they had just seven hits, the Lyman High School softball team still generated enough offense to pound the Eustis Panthers 18-0 Tuesday afternoon.

In their last three games, the undefeated Greyhounds (9-0) have scored a total of 62 runs.

On Tuesday, Lyman struck for five runs in the top of the first inning and took a 6-0 lead into the top of the fourth, when hits, walks, and wild pitches helped the Greyhounds explode for 10 runs.

Catcher Wendie Acey collected a double, two runs, and an RBI to lead the Lyman attack. Kacey Snead contributed a single, RBI, and two runs. Maggie Majewski drove in a run with a ground-rule double. Jamie Sharp scored three runs.

Jonnie Beland and Jodie Beland each hit a single and scored two runs. Stacey Ritter singled and drove in two runs. Michelle Bishop hit a single and scored a run. Jill Mendelsohn scored two runs. Carolyn Crager, Jamie Beland, and Karen Kalicak each scored a run.

Lyman won't play again until next week, when the Greyhounds will travel to Kissimmee to play in the Osceola tournament.

Shipley, Lyman turn back 'Crabs

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — There's two levels of baseball defense: making ordinary plays and making game-turning plays.

Tuesday night, Lyman third baseman Jason Shipley made one of the latter, a play of such quality and relative importance that it impressed even veteran Greyhound coach Bob McCullough.

With Lyman leading Daytona Beach-Seabreeze 4-1 in the sixth inning, Rance Winn walked and Scott Biggers was hit by a pitch to give the Sandcrabs runners at first and second base with one out.

Designated hitter Nate Curry then chopped a ball toward third that Shipley charged and fielded before turning and firing a strike to second baseman Kiley Calapa, who made the relay throw to first base for the inning-ending double play.

"That's big-league baseball right there," said McCullough. "I can't remember the last time I had a third baseman that could make that play, pivot, and fire a perfect strike to second base. That's a big league."

It was the second double play of the game turned by the Greyhounds in support of pitchers Eric Katauskas and Kyle Hayde, who limited Seabreeze to one run despite giving up six hits, walking four batters, and hitting two (both by Hayde).

By comparison, the Greyhounds had just three hits. In the first inning, Ted Koller doubled and scored when Shipley's ground ball was thrown away. Two innings later, Kyle Games beat out a one-out bunt for a base hit and Koller walked. After the two advanced on a wild pitch, Shipley singled them both home.

Shipley, who took second when the Seabreeze catcher dropped the throw from the outfield, scored Lyman's fourth run when the Seabreeze shortstop attempted Kiley Calapa's ground ball into the Sandcrab dugout.

Lyman, which has won three in a row and seven of its last eight, will host the DeLand Bulldogs in a 5A-District 4 contest tonight at 7 p.m.

Defending city champs register 2nd no-hit victory

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Red Sox are rolling. Only two games into the 1994 Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League season and the defending city champions are already showing the rest of the league that they have their sights set on that title again.

Tuesday night at Roy Holler Junior Field, the Red Sox collected their second straight 10-0, four-inning victory and also got their second no-hitter of the season.

The victim this time were the Royals (1-1), who only had one runner reach base — a walk to Donovan Redden in the second inning — as Bud Bennett and Levi Raines Jr. combined to strike out 12.

Providing the offense for the Red Sox (2-0) were Jim Franklin (home run, single, two runs), Adam Frank (double, single, two runs), Raines (single, three runs), Bennett, Randy Ford and Matt Mergo (one single and one run each) and Ed Morales and Troy Brinson (one single each).

In the other American Division game at Roy Holler, the White Sox raced to a 3-0 lead, then held on for a 3-2 victory over the Blue Jays.

Pacing the White Sox (2-0) attack were Donovan Daniels (two doubles), Michael White and Joseph Blake (one single and one run each), Danny Weyh (single) and Lee Frederick (run).

Doing the hitting for the Blue Jays (0-2) were Charles Stokes (double, single, run), Ed Jones (two singles), Chris Evans and J.R. Lester (one single each) and Brian Shannis (run).

In National Division action at Fort Mellon Field, the Cubs became the first team in the division to go to 2-0 as they tripped the Marlins 6-2 and the Pirates scored the most runs of the evening, blasting the Expos 18-3.

Aaron Richardson and David Brock combined on a one-hitter as the Cubs (2-0) beat the Marlins (0-2).

Optimists, Metzger Ent. post 1st wins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department girls' spring slowpitch softball league played its first games of the season under the lights Monday night at Pinehurst Park with Sanford Optimist Club and Metzger Enterprises claiming their first wins.

The League opened its season with four games this past Saturday.

The scores from Saturday's games had Insurance World blanking Rachel Creek 21-0; Arthur Brooks topping Metzger Enterprises 9-5; Rotary Breakfast Club whitewashing Sanford Optimist Club 22-0; and Sanford First Baptist whipping Regatta Shores 17-5.

In Monday's games, Sanford Optimist Club (1-1) built a 9-0 lead on the strength of a six-run third inning as it beat Regatta Shores 9-4. Regatta Shores (0-2) scored its four runs in the fourth inning without the benefit of a hit.

Balough cruises to 7th win in 8 starts

By PAUL MARBEGLIA Special to the Herald ORLANDO - Panama City's Gary Balough continued his dominance in the Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (FASCAR) Late Model division as he cruised to victory last Friday, March 18, at Orlando Speedway.

Editor's note: Saturday's results from New Smyrna Beach and Volusia County speedways will appear in Thursday's Sanford Herald.

Balough, who started the race from the sixth position, was in second place on lap two. On the following lap, Balough blew by early race leader Ricky Wood with a high groove pass.

charged his way back through the field and by lap six, was back in second place.

"It's hard not to win when you have a car as good as mine," said Balough, who drives the Pee Wee Griffin/Robert Hamke/Crane Cans Camaro.

"I'm real pleased with this win," said Pierce, who has six feature wins on the season. "For the last half of the race, the engine was really misfiring."

Following Balough and Wood to the stripe were Ed Meredith, Dennis Demers, and Mack Hanbury.

When asked about the rough driving allegations, Johns stated, "When I bang someone, they call it rough racing. If another driver does it, they say he's just racing hard. Hell, I've always raced like this and I'm not going to change now."

Pierce jumped out to the early lead with Johns right on her rear bumper. During the sixth lap, Johns, in an attempt to take over the No. 1 slot, drove into the side of Pierce's racer.

Other feature event winners were Glen Carter (Limited Late Models), Dink Sullivan (Mini-Stocks), John Smith (Modifieds), Robert Jenkins (Bombers), Tim Nicholas (Run-A-Bouts), and Darrell Erb (Mini-Bombers).

Cook of the Week

World traveler dishes up international cuisine

GENEVA — Cook of the Week Libby Prevatt is a "delightful find" in today's fast-paced lifestyle. Her endless amount of energy enables her to fulfill the many activities she has going on each day. And no matter what the task or duties of the day might be, Prevatt gets the job done with her special touch of class and her forever warm smile.

Prevatt is married to her husband, Thomas Denton Prevatt, and they have lived in Geneva for the last five years. She is mother of two grown children. Her son Larry White lives in Seattle, Wash., and her daughter, Karen Sinclair, lives in Knoxville, Tenn. She is also the grandmother of four grandchildren ranging from 6 to 18 years of age.

Prevatt is a retired travel agent and has traveled extensively in North and South America, Europe, Scandinavia, the Middle East and the Orient. "With all the traveling I've done I have managed to pick up on some wonderful cooking techniques and some great recipes," said Prevatt.

Some of her many other interests include the theater, music, reading, arts and crafts of all kinds, collecting antiques and entertaining. She is also an active member of the Sanford Woman's Club currently serving as the chairman for the Sanford Woman's Club bridge socials. She is also a member of Epsilon Sigma Omicron (ESO).

Having the experience of being a world traveler, Prevatt explains "that is how I acquired a taste for international cuisine." She goes on to explain how she has had the pleasure of dining in some of the finest restaurants in the world.

There's no doubt, among Prevatt's family and friends, that she completely enjoys every minute of entertaining Saint Patrick's Day, for example. Prevatt had prepared a wonderful lunch for three of her friends, Rose Terry, Betty Flamm and Frances Mitchell. Her table was set with green antique dinnerware, candles, linen, and fresh cut flowers. As her friends were arriving, Prevatt greeted them all with her wonderful warm smile. Her friends were all in agreement when it came to knowing that they were in for a delicious luncheon treat.

Grow your own herbs for a savory taste experience

Fresh herbs can add a subtle, delicate and flavorful touch to many foods. When compared to their dried counterparts many would say there is no comparison at all. I would agree. Fresh herbs must be tried to freely appreciate the fine flavor they can impart.

This is an ideal time to plant a few herbs in a garden plot or in a pot on the porch or patio. Remember, these plants love sun.

Herbs that do particularly well in central Florida are: rosemary, sage, basil, Mexican tarragon, thyme, chives, marjoram, oregano, cilantro, parsley and dill. Many herbs are perennials in Florida and always available fresh from the garden. They can also be kept and savored throughout the year by freezing and drying. When substituting dry herbs for fresh, allow about 1/2 the quantity. If a recipe calls for 1 tablespoon (3 teaspoons) fresh herbs only use 1 teaspoon of the dried product.

By the way there is an herb nursery in Eustis called Sunny Hill Farms. Owner Dolores Corey is a wonderful young woman who shares her knowledge as well as the herbs she grows. Call me for her number if you're interested.

Pesto has been a culinary pleasure for a long time. Although it is usually associated with basil, it can be a combination of any herb flavors you prefer. It makes a tasty addition to salads, casseroles, meats, vegetables and breads. Stir it into hot pasta for a simple first course or side dish.

HERB PESTO

1/2 cups lightly packed fresh spinach leaves

1/2 cup lightly packed fresh herb leaves (oregano, basil, marjoram, tarragon, thyme, savory, rosemary or a combination)

1/2 cup olive or vegetable oil
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

Combine all ingredients in food processor or blender container. Process until smooth.

Use immediately as a seasoning or cover and refrigerate.

For longer storage, pour into ice cube tray containers and with a great Caesar Salad. Next is Prevatt's own recipe for Crab Quiche. "You can use lobster instead of crab if you like," said Prevatt. Her recipe for Parmesan Tomatoe is a great side dish for almost any meat entree. And of course, dessert. Once again, we have Prevatt's own recipe for English Trifle. This is most definitely a prize-winning dessert. Strawberries, pound cake, sour cream and vanilla pudding name a few of the ingredients Prevatt uses to turn out this marvelous dessert.

CRAB QUICHE

2 Tbsp. minced green pepper
2 Tbsp. minced green onions
3 Tbsp. butter
1 cup fresh or canned crab meat

1/2 tsp. garlic salt
Pinch of pepper
1/4 cup dry white Vermouth
3 eggs
1 cup whipping cream
1 Tbsp. tomato paste
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup Swiss or Gruyere cheese, grated

1 9-inch unbaked pie crust

Saute pepper and onions in butter over moderate heat, but do not brown. Add crabmeat, garlic salt, and pepper, stirring gently. Add Vermouth. Raise heat and boil for a minute. Remove from heat and allow to cool slightly. Beat eggs, blend in remaining ingredients, except cheese. Gradually add crabmeat mixture and then fold in cheese.

Pour into unbaked pie crust (can be divided between 2 ready-made pie shells). Bake in upper third of oven (375°F.)

Malpractice insurance a necessity today

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is malpractice insurance and why do doctors and hospitals pay such high premiums for the coverage?

DEAR READER: Malpractice insurance, a necessity in today's litigious society, is purchased by doctors, nurses, hospitals, and health care facilities -- as well as by increasing numbers of attorneys and other professionals. If a patient claims that the services he or she received were deficient, or below a certain standard of care, a lawsuit may result. The plaintiff can sue for millions of dollars, to cover pain, loss of income and damages.

The defendant then turns to his malpractice insurer to protect him, defend him and -- if necessary -- pay all or part of the court-awarded judgment. Without such insurance, the defendant would have to pay all legal expenses and awards out of pocket, a daunting possibility.

Malpractice insurance is like homeowners' insurance: You may never use it but when you do, it's nice to have. To a large degree, insurance companies set their premiums in relation to risk. For example, the risks of neurosurgery are much higher than those of routine general medical practice. Thus, neurosurgeons pay much more in annual premiums (tens of thousands of dollars) than do low-risk practitioners, such as family physicians (several thousand dollars).

Doctors and hospitals pay more in insurance premiums than used to be the case because people are more likely to sue and dollar judgments have increased over the years. Of course, these added costs are passed on to the patient, thereby inflating the price of medical care.

There are no easy answers to this increasingly troublesome problem. However, to control burgeoning insurance costs, some experts have urged that legislators pass laws to cap

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Until the mid-1920s, golfers used to tee their balls on a mound of sand. But in 1920 William Lowell, of Maplewood, N.J., made the first wooden tee. He was awarded a patent in 1925, but he didn't make much money. Many players made their own tees without contravening the patent, which had been written too imprecisely.

In bridge, if you stroke the cards as recommended by the textbooks, normally you will hit down the middle, but sometimes you will slice badly. East made a good shot on today's deal, but South got his ball into the cup first.

Against three no-trump, West led the spade six; three, queen, four. With two spades left, East would normally return his higher card. But he realized that if he led the 10 and South had the singleton jack left, South would get two spade tricks. So East returned the spade five.

The declarer was Jose Le Dentu, one of France's top player-writers. He could have blocked the suit at trick two by winning West's spade king with dummy's ace, but, not knowing who held the 10, he ducked. However, after winning the third trick with dummy's spade ace, Le Dentu led a low club from the dummy, winning with the ace when East played low. Back to dummy with a heart. Le Dentu led another low club through East. If East had played the queen, declarer would have ducked. When East played low, South won with the king and led a third club. Le Dentu had established nine tricks without letting West gain the lead to cash his two spade winners.

This was an excellent example of avoidance play.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 24, 1994

The year ahead could be a good time for you to take up a new sport or hobby or try to enhance your skills in those in which you're already participating. Recognition and status might be in the offing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Interesting developments which could be of benefit to you socially and materially are surging today. You may work in harmony with them without even realizing it. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4485, New York, N.Y. 10183.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you might experience fulfillment of your expectations regarding something important for which you've been hoping. Observers will realize you weren't just a daydreamer after all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're both enterprising and bold today desirable end results are indicated. Establish your objectives and vigorously pursue them.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) You should be able to discern the difference today between a calculated risk and a foolish gamble. If you feel the odds are in your favor, make your move.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Channels that could provide you with additional income should be given top priority today. The window of opportunity is open, but perhaps only briefly, so don't waste time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Partnership arrangements today could prove much luckier for you than anything you'll attempt single handed. Don't go it alone if a capable cohort is willing to assist.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It might take you a bit longer than others to get your act together today. However, when you do reach your stride, it isn't likely you'll finish up as an "also ran."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your chart indicates beneficial

developments today in involvements you have with influential persons, especially if you know them on a first name basis.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today when you establish an objective, keep the bottom line uppermost in your mind at all times. Your end results might not be optimum, but they could be pretty darn good.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a good organizer today and you could be more fortunate than usual in manipulating an endeavor of considerable scope. However, don't make personal gain your major aim.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't despair if you're a salesperson who hasn't been doing too well this week. Big changes could occur today where call backs are concerned. Make as many as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might be better equipped today to deal with large, challenging issues than you will be with insignificant things. In your instance, big is lucky.

Coconut desserts luscious

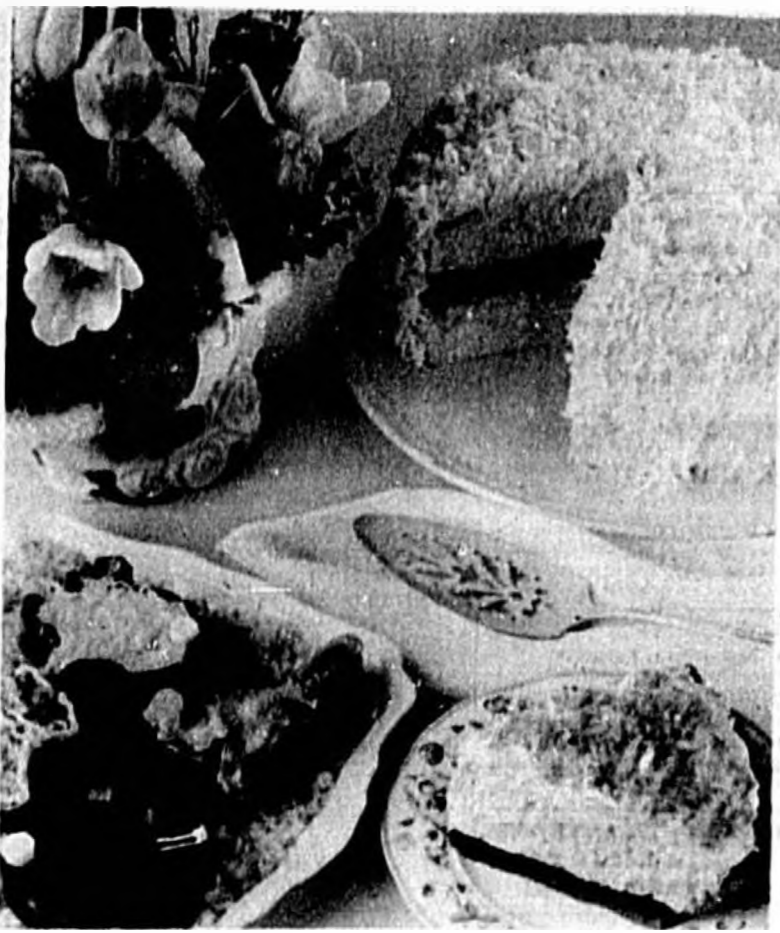

Fluffy white coconut seems made for springtime and the special celebrations that season brings — Easter, Mothers' Day, bridal showers and weddings. Assemble a basket of bright-colored spring flowers and serve a luscious coconut dessert and you've captured the spirit of this lusted-for season.

CHOCOLATE RIBBON COCONUT PIE

2 cups Baker's Angel Flake coconut, divided
4 squares Baker's semi-sweet chocolate
2 Tbsp. milk
1 Tbsp. margarine or butter
1 prepared graham cracker crumb crust (8 oz.)
1 1/2 cups cold milk
2 packages (4-serving size) vanilla flavor instant pudding and pie filling
1 tub (8 oz.) non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
Heat oven to 350°F.

Spread 1 cup of the coconut evenly in shallow baking pan. Toast 7 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned, stirring frequently. Cool.

Microwave chocolate, 2 tablespoons milk and margarine in small microwavable bowl on high 2 minutes or until chocolate is almost melted, stirring halfway through heating time. Stir until chocolate is completely melted. Spread on bottom of crust. Refrigerate 15 minutes or until chocolate is firm.

Coconut cake and pie and cake herald spring.

Pour 1 1/2 cups milk into large bowl. Add pudding mixes. Beat with wire whisk 2 minutes. Let stand 1 minute or until thickened. Gently stir in 1 1/2 cups of the whipped topping and remaining 1 cup untoasted coconut. Spread mixture over chocolate in crust.

Stir 3/4 cup of the toasted coconut into remaining whipped topping. Spread over pudding layer. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup toasted coconut.

Refrigerate 4 hours or until set. Store leftover pie in refrigerator. Make 8 servings.

Prenuptial agreement may prevent untold situations

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the woman who was upset because her fiance wanted a prenuptial agreement, I had to write.

She should be happy about it — unless she plans to "take him to the cleaners" someday.

How I wish I had had a prenuptial agreement! I am presently in the final stages of a very messy divorce. My house, which was in my name alone for four years prior to our marriage, is now his by law!

The lawyer who prepared a "quit-claim" deed for me in 1984 incorrectly put both our names on it. This was supposed to be a "quit-claim" deed in the event that I died first, my husband could continue to live in my house as long as he wanted to, then it would go to my daughter. No so! Now I have to pay my husband half the appraised value of my home in our divorce settlement. It was paid for by my money that I inherited from my parents before I married him!

How's that for a trusting spouse? He doesn't need the money; he has a good retirement plus Social Security. I still work.

ADVICE

and will have to for several more years, just to pay him off.

I trusted him 10 years ago, and look where it's gotten me. If you print this, it may help someone out. Use my name if you must; otherwise, sign me...

LEARNED THE HARD WAY

DEAR LEARNED: Your name is not necessary, but many men as well as women could benefit from your costly experience, so thanks for writing. For varied viewpoints, read on.

DEAR ABBY: A prenuptial agreement is a vote of no confidence. I come from a family whose parents are divorced. (My father is on his sixth marriage.) I spend much time trying to figure out what makes a marriage work. Albert Einstein once said, "You cannot simultaneously prepare for and prevent war."

BEEN THERE (AND BACK)

DEAR ABBY: Prenuptial and postnuptial agreements can be hazardous to your pocketbook!

My mother was married for 24 years to my stepfather. Seven months after they married, under duress, she signed an agreement stating that everything would go to his children.

His children refused to give up her part of the estate, thinking that the agreement would hold. It didn't.

After lawyers' fees and court costs, everyone ended up losing. Worst of all were the bitterness and stress everyone involved experienced.

Cook

25-30 minutes until quiche has puffed and browned.

Serves 6.

PARMESAN TOMATOES

4 medium tomatoes, halved
Olive oil
2 tsp. minced garlic
Buttered bread cubes (2 slices bread)

1 Tbsp. parsley
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
Place halved tomatoes on baking sheet or in broiler pan. Put a few drops of olive oil on each half. Spread over tomato halves. Put 1/2 teaspoon minced garlic on each half. Place under broiler 5 minutes or until tender. Remove from broiler, adding bread cubes, parsley and Parmesan cheese. Return to broiler until golden brown. Serves 4-6.

Note: This is a great side dish for almost any meat entree.

ENGLISH TRIFLE

1/2 pound cake, cubed
1 or 2 oz. Sherry wine
1 (8 oz.) container sour cream
2 packages frozen strawberries, thawed
3 cups vanilla pudding
1 cup whipping cream
1/2 cup sliced almonds
Sprinkle sherry over cubed pound cake in bottom of clear glass bowl. Spread cubed cake with sour cream. Next spread thawed strawberries over sour cream. Spread a layer of vanilla pudding over berries. Sprinkle pudding with sliced almonds.

Microwave

freeze. Remove from tray and store in plastic freezer bag.

Add pesto to cream cheese or butter for a tasty spread.

HERBED FRENCH BREAD

1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
1 Tbsp. pesto
1 small loaf French bread
2 Tbsp. Parmesan cheese
Microwave on 100 percent power cream cheese in uncovered bowl 30-45 seconds or until softened. Stir until smooth. Mix in pesto. Slice bread almost in half lengthwise. Spread cream cheese mixture over cut sides of bottom half; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Close bread and wrap in paper toweling.
Microwave on 100 percent power 20-25 seconds or until just warm. Cut into slices.

Combine pasta, vegetable and pesto for a tasty casserole.

PASTA-VEGETABLE CASSE-ROLE

4 oz. thin spaghetti (vermicelli)
1 clove garlic, minced
1 small onion, sliced
2 medium carrots, sliced
2 cups cauliflower pieces
1 small zucchini, sliced
1 Tbsp. vegetable oil
3-4 Tbsp. pesto
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
Parmesan cheese, if desired
Cook vermicelli as directed on package. Drain, rinse and set aside.

Combine garlic, onion, carrots, cauliflower, zucchini and oil in 1 1/2 quart casserole; mix lightly. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100 percent

Repeat layers 2 to 3 times. Refrigerate.

Whip cream with few drops of vanilla extract and sugar to taste. When ready to serve, top with whipped cream, sliced almonds and a sprinkle of nutmeg.

Serves 6.

Note: You can make this a day ahead, adding whipped cream, nuts and nutmeg when ready to serve the next day. Also, portions should be small because it is a very rich dessert.

VANILLA PUDDING

3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
1 Tbsp. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
3 egg yolks
3 cups milk
1/2 tsp. vanilla extract
2 Tbsp. melted butter
Mix sugar, cornstarch, flour salt in top of double boiler, giving a brisk stir with wire whisk. Add milk. Cook over boiling water until mixture begins to thicken (stir often to keep filling smooth). Add a little of the hot mixture to slightly beaten egg yolks. Return to mixture. Continue cooking and keep stirring occasionally until thick. Add vanilla and butter. Cool mixture over ice. Continue stirring with whisk to prevent crusting.

power 5-6 minutes or until tender-crisp, stirring once. Add pesto, salt, pepper and cooked vermicelli; toss to coat evenly.

Microwave (100 percent) uncovered, 2-3 minutes or until heated through. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese just before serving.

About 5 servings.

Herbs and wine add flavor to chicken pieces. Table ready in about 30 minutes.

CHICKEN OREGANO

3 lbs. chicken pieces
1/2 cup white wine
1/2 tsp. garlic salt
Pepper
2 Tbsp. chopped fresh oregano leaves
1/2 tsp. poultry seasoning
Paprika
Arrange chicken pieces in 12x8-inch microwave-safe baking dish with larger pieces toward edge of dish and smaller portions in center. Combine wine, garlic salt, pepper, oregano, and poultry seasoning, mix well. Spoon evenly over chicken. Sprinkle with paprika. Cover with waxed paper.

Microwave (100 percent) 23-25 minutes or until tender. Let stand a few minutes before serving.

About six servings.
