Each side accused the other of atrocities in Korea while the Panmunjom cease-fire talks were in a one-day recess asked by the Communists. Atrocities In Korea

Americans are shocked by the charge that United Nations prisoners of war, including Americans numbered in the thousands, have been murdered by the Communists in Korea. There seems to be official conflict as to the figures and their accuracy, but there is little room for doubt that massacres have taken place. From the outset of the war the Koreans of both North and South have exhibited a casual disregard for the lives of captives. No matter how much we are warned what to expect, however, Americans can't help being staggered by such revelations.

There was immediate speculation that the accusation may seriously damage the truce talks, perhaps make it impossible to go on with them. There was a suggestion that the United States could not accept a truce unless all prisoners are accounted for, a noble and natural reaction but not a logical one. If it is true that American prisoners in large numbers have been massacred, that is not a reason for more war, which could only result in the capture and massacre of more prisoners. It is another reason for ending the war as quickly as possible.

The truce negotiations have been prolonged beyond all reason. Apparently each side expects to gain something by outwitting the other side. But the longer dickering and fighting go on, the more American lives will be lost.

Accidents With Guns

If more people would discard the feeling that they are immune to accidents there might be fewer tragedies. During hunting season many people are killed or injured in mishaps which a little caution and common sense could have prevented. Some of these accidents are the result of improper handling of weapons by inexperienced persons who are ignorant of safety measures. Too many other accidents happen to persons who are aware of proper safety procedures but who grow overconfident and careless.

A wise man is constantly aware that any weapon he handles is potentially dangerous and can be discharged accidentally. He knows that the shot from his rifle or shotgun may carry far beyond his target, can cause damage of which he may not even be aware if he does not make allowance for the full range. The man who wishes to assure his own safety in the woods will take into account the possible ineptitude and carelessness of other hunters and will make allowances for that danger, too.

A gun in the hands of a hunter or in the closet at home is safe only if its user takes the trouble and time to make certain that it is safe. Even momentary carelessness can have tragic consequences.

Solace Amid Woe

When one is beset by problems, it may be of some comfort to know that others are no better off. Americans sometimes are deeply disturbed by the world troubles we face, and understandably so. It might be cheering to recall occasionally that the Russians are having their troubles, too.

A recent collection of reports from the supposed paradise behind the Iron Curtain indicated that production goals are not being reached; The introduction of collective farming in the satellite countries is encountering many obstacles. Constant executions of Communist leaders in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere indicate Moscow's deep dissatisfaction with the situation. The Korean war is costing the Russians heavily in arms.

In their secret souls the Russian leaders may wish that their nation were doing half as well as ours. We can take what comfort there is in this probability.

Sanford's Terminal

We rush into print to admire the civic-minded Mr. Albert Fitts, of Sanford, who, when the newly elected city council said it would not hold an election to spend money on a terminal, bought a page advertisement in the Sanford Herald offering to be the first one of 500 citizens to give $1,000.

In his paid argument for his fellow citizens to bestir themselves, Mr. Fitts leans heavily upon town pride, trying to rekindle the flames of competition which burned in Sanford 30 years ago, thus:

"Either Sanford or Orlando will be the city, which do you want?"

Ever since the Sanford municipal election, in which the river terminal was an issue, we have been curious as to why Sanford does not move heaven and earth to get it.

But Sanford has its own very good and very aggressive daily newspaper to handle Sanford's politics and answer Sanford's own questions.

The Sentinel has no business sticking its nose in our neighbor's troubles.

But, from the sidelines, we certainly can declare ourselves for water transportation, ports and harbors and river warehouses, because those things mean growth and jobs and better pay and better living conditions and more beautiful and more healthful cities.

So, we are pleased to see at least one citizen of Sanford, Mr. Albert Fitts, speak up with his mouth and with his money for Sanford's progress.

We are inclined to disagree with Mr. Fitts' intimation, however, that there will be only one city in Central Florida. We assume he alludes to growth over the next 25 years, which isn't a long time.

Sgt. Ward

Capt. Arthur Knox.
When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor he re-enlisted and, having ten years experience in radio repair and maintenance, was assigned to a signal company of the 37th Infantry Division.

After a short stay with the Division, he asked for combat duty and was assigned to the 86th Signal Company of the 28th Infantry Division and served with them on the Florida Islands, New Georgia and Guadalcanal.

While stationed at the "Canal" he was chief radio operator on General J. Lawton Collins' yacht. He was also responsible for the construction of a transmitter for the Red Cross, which was used to entertain the troops on the island.

He first saw combat on Guadalcanal where he suffered a brain concussion during a Jap bombing mission in this raid. Sgt. Ward said of the 240 Jap planes which knocked out 230 of them with the Navy cleaning up the rest at sea.

"We only lost one plane," Sgt. Ward added, "which goes to show you how much better our fighting men are than the Japs."

After his injury Sgt. Ward spent many weeks in one island hospital after another until he eventually returned to the United States where he remained until the end of the war when he was discharged.

While in the States during the war he served in the Army as a movie technician, radio repair man and so-called "lab" relations advisor. This latter phase consisted of mingling with strikers and pickets showing them pictures of suffering combat soldiers and encouraging them to return to work.

Company officials cited him on one occasion as being instrumental in early settlement of a dispute.

After his discharge in 1945 Sgt. Ward went to Akron, Ohio to take further schooling in radio and television with an equal amount of time spent in the active reserve of the Army.

Among Sgt. Ward's trophies are the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Asiatic Pacific medals, Defense Pearl Harbor he gained the American Theater, Good Conduct and Victory medals.
Badges he has received include: Combat Infantryman, Arrow Head, Unit Citation, and Paratrooper.
His remarkable skill with weapons of all kinds is exemplified by expert badges in all of the following: marksmanship, pistol, carbine, sub-machine gun, rifle, hand grenade and bayonet.
"I guess I will make my 20 years even though it is rough," but I like it," Sgt. Ward says.

Many holiday recipes call for delicious blanched almonds. Almonds in a part of the shell are available in see-through bags; shelled almonds are also on the market in handy six-ounce cans. To blanch the almonds at home just cover them with cold water and bring to a boil over moderate heat; drain at once, press off the skins with thumb and forefinger, and place the nuts on an absorbent towel to dry thoroughly. If you want to halve the almonds, split them with a small sharp knife as soon as you've pressed off their skins and while the nut meats are still warm.

When a recipe calls for "roasted" blanched almonds, put the prepared nut meats in a shallow pan and toss them with a little melted butter or margarine (1 teaspoon to 1 cup of the nuts) and roast in a slow (300 F.) oven, stirring occasionally, for 20 to 25 minutes.

HOLLYWOOD By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20 (AP)—Gene Kelly, today attacked "snobism", which he said kept some musicals and their stars from being given academy awards.

The issue arose when I suggested that Kelly and his latest picture might be up for Oscars next March. The actor-dancer-director said he doubted it.

"There is a strange sort of reasoning in Hollywood that musicals are less worthy of academy consideration than dramas," he remarked. "It is a form of snobism the same sort that perpetuates the idea that drama is more deserving of awards than comedy."

"I don't argue that musicals should be given a special category after winning. I think musicals can and should stand on their own merit in competition with straight pictures. And I think people here next year or at least within 10 years, the movie musical will have progressed so far that the academy voters will not be able to overlook it."

"After all, what do you expect of a movie? You expect it to make you laugh and to cry and to be entertaining. For my dough, pictures like 'Cover Girl' or 'On The Town' do a better job of that than any 'A' Place in the Sun, which I consider one of the great old dramas in recent years."

Kelly mentioned that musicals have been rewarded in the past by the academy. James Cagney was Oscar for portraying George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and best picture award went to "Broadway Melody" and "The Great Ziegfeld." Also, musical stars such as Kelly and Larry Parks, have been nominated for awards. Kelly feels that there will be more recognition for musicals in future years.

The same thing is true on the stage," he said. "The legitimate drama has stood still for about 20 years, while musicals produce the really exciting things in the theater. Shows like 'Pal Joey', 'Milk and Honey', and 'Carousel' are worlds apart from the operettas of the past."

"The culmination is in 'South Pacific', which I think is the greatest show I have ever seen. It combines the techniques of every medium, including the movie and radio."

The actor feels the movie musical is progressing in the same direction. "But I don't mean the musicals of two other studios,

All Weather Fighting Planes With Electronic Eyes Are Being Pushed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The Air Force is beginning to build toward a new interceptor fleet in which all fighter planes instead of only a few will have electronic eyes for hunting down enemy bombers in any kind of weather, day or night.

Discussing the trend toward the "all-weather" fighter force, one official commented today that it didn't seem to make sense to have interceptor planes which can work only in daylight and in good visual conditions.

Back of his comment was the fact that the best conditions for a modern bomber force, equipped with radar bomb sight, is in the blanketing protection of darkness and clouds.

The move toward a complete all-weather force started some time ago, but now is being accelerated in the USAF's new aircraft procurement program. Quantities of all-weather fighters are on order to add to planes already delivered.

Revision of estimates during the last two years of Russia's strategic bombing capabilities have given urgency to an effort to provide the Air Force with interceptors capable of operating at any time under any conditions. Russia has added large numbers of long range bombers, based on the American B-29 design, to her strategic force and has demonstrated she now has the atomic bomb.

Strategists assume that if Russia's navigation radar equipment has progressed at the pace of the Soviet bomber and jet fighter progress, Red airmen would be able to make a surprise strike aimed at bringing the bombers in over the United States under cover of darkness and, if possible, in cloud cover.

An alert from the radar warning net, construction of which is nearing completion, therefore might be flashed at night. What ever the flying conditions, the interceptor force would have to go into action instantly.

The Soviet Air Force reported by its use at least one type of all-weather fighter to bolster Russia's defense against attack— the twin-engine Lavochkin night fighter. Also, in recent months, there has been some indication that the day-fighter MIG-15 are using at least some airborne radar equipment in working against American B-29 and jet fighters.

The U. S. Air Force now has in operation three types of all-weather fighters, two of them with advanced P-51C and Northrop F-8D, and the piston-engine, twin Mustang North American P-51D, an older plane outclassed by the jets' speed.

Currently, the most advanced of the North American F-8D Sabre, the day fighter which has had the most frequent duels with Soviet MIG-15's over Korea, are being tried as night fighters. Radar equipment has been fitted into the nose of the new series, designated as F-8D.

Korean Atrocities (Continued From Page 5) war or bombing them to cause death, (2) killing or injuring 14,500 North Korean civilians in bomb raids, and (3) shipping out 1,000 Korean and Chinese Reds for use in atomic tests.

A U. N. command spokesman called the atom story "pure fabrication." Simultaneously top level Reds made an abrupt switch in their true aims.

Red radios gave no indication whether Communist armistice negotiators would advance this new pattern when truce talks resume at Panmunjom at 11 A.M. Wednesday (9 P.M. Tuesday, EST).

The new high level Red statements could set truce talks back to where they were when they started four months ago. The North Korean foreign minister proposed injecting punishment for war crimes—against Koreans. Red China's foreign minister endorsed the truce plan of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky including an immediate ceasefire, a buffer zone along the 38th parallel and immediate withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

U. N. command negotiators have turned all these points down and indicated they would do so again unless the truce plan, Communist negotiators themselves long since abandoned these points and switched to talking about a ceasefire along the battle line.

Realistic Dream Of Child Keeps Dad From Sleep

By HAL HOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Notebook jottings by a pavement painter: One of the saddest aspects of the weird times we live in is the unexpected impact they have on the minds of our young.

The other night a father woke up to hear his small son crying bitterly in the dark. He arose and went into the boy's room to find out what was wrong. "I forgot the Lord's Prayer, daddy," sobbed his son.

"But you said it just before you went to bed," said the father. "I know," replied the child. "But I dreamed I was talking to a scientist, and he told me all the air was escaping from the earth, and everybody in the world would soon be dead. And I tried to say the Lord's Prayer, and I couldn't remember it."

The father soothed his fears and said, "Of course, you remember it, son. Let's say it together." And they chanted, "Our Father, who art in heaven—" Soon the small boy was sound asleep again. But the father stayed awake for a long, long time.

Seatrains To Run From New York To Savannah Nov. 30

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Seatrain Service—the carrying of loaded freight cars by ship—will begin between the port of the New York and Savannah, Ga., on Nov. 30.

The first seatrain for Savannah will leave on that date from Edgewater, N. J., across the Hudson River from Manhattan, Seatrain Lines, Inc., announced today. The seatrain will leave Savannah for Edgewater the following Tuesday.

Thereafter there will be one round trip each week, leaving Savannah each Tuesday afternoon. The run will be made by the seatrain "Havana" now in operation between New York and New Orleans and Texas City, Tex.

She will be re-christened the "Savannah" on her arrival in Savannah on Dec. 1. She will be replaced on the New York-Gulf Coast run by a new 563-foot seatrain, the "Louisiana," which was launched in October at Dover, Pa.

Seatrain lines on their regular steamship service between Savannah and New York was interrupted in 1942 by the war and never resumed. The Interstate Commerce Commission, in granting the line temporary authority Nov. 13 to operate on that run, found that there was "an immediate and urgent need" for the service. The line has an application pending to operate the service permanently.

Each seatrain is capable of carrying about 100 loaded freight cars. The cars are driven out a pier alongside the seatrain and are hoisted with their contents into the ship.

The cars are stowed on three decks and a superstructure. They are packed in such a way that no weight rests on their wheels or springs and so they will remain steady during the voyage. A powerful crane lifts them out and sets them on railroad tracks at their destination.

Seatrain lines said it already had completed construction of a terminal at the Central of Georgia Railroad pier in Savannah in anticipation of approval of this service by the ICC. The lines said seatrain and the Central of Georgia each spent $400,000 on the terminal project.

The Edgewater piers connect with the Susquehanna and Western line Susquehanna and Western line. Seatrain said it service would carry general cargo including textiles, liquor, asphalt, iron and steel products, lumber, fiber, board, candy and numerous other articles.

Involved in various investigations and that it was possible some law enforcement agency might, on learning of his projected trip, take action to keep him in this vicinity as a possible witness. The New York City Anti-Crime Committee is headed by Spruille Braden, former U.S. Ambassador to Argentina, and was formed to combat local crime on the pattern of the Senate crime committee.

The committee spokesman said Anastasia was slated to accompany himself to Joe's Restaurant in Cliffside Park on Oct. 4 and was slated for death along with Martelli. Anastasia apparently was tipped off regarding possible trouble and went, instead, to a hospital for X-ray treatment, the spokesman said.

He indicated the underworld later decided to give Anastasia the chance to go to the Mid-West. Anastasia has a painful home at Fort Lee, N.J., across the Hudson from New York, and reputedly has been ordered by the underworld to close it up, the spokesman said.

U. N. Food (Continued From Page 5) Just now we have fully achieved the first two of those objectives. Progress toward the third—building adequate reserves—still leaves much to be desired.

He declared, however, that "total agricultural production for 1951 will be the highest ever achieved in the United States about 40 per cent greater than the average production for the pre-war period from 1935 to 1939.

"Our population has increased about one-fifth since then; the food needs of our armed forces have risen from a negligible amount to nearly four per cent of our total supply; our food exports have increased four-fold; and yet our larger civilian population has had more food per person."

Brannan said the United States food exports in the year ended last June totaled 20,000,000 tons—four fourth higher than the previous year. He added: "Given average weather, we expect total agricultural production in the United States this year to surpass even the current year's all-time high."

Air Force has mobilized 15 planes at Treviso, Italy. These planes will fly into Yugoslavia at daylight tomorrow and search for the missing plane.

Earlier, the embassy inquired of U. S. missions in Hungary and Romania whether there were any reports of the plane in those countries. There has been no reply to these inquiries. U. S. Ambassador George Allen said that "Yugoslav civil and military authorities have offered full cooperation" in the hunt.

"During today," he said, "they have been making efforts throughout Yugoslavia collecting evidence to help trace the lost plane." Frankfurt reported the "last emergency message it had received from the pilot was at 4:16 P. M. (10:16 A. M. EST) yesterday when he said he was low on fuel and was not sure he could make it to Venice for an emergency landing."
