Mayor: Do you want to raise ad valorem taxes?

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Preparing the annual City of Sanford budget has always been difficult when talk turns to the need for tax increases. This year is no exception.

Preliminary work got under way earlier this month when department heads submitted their requests for new personnel and upgrades of present employees. A total of 50 new city employees have been requested, but the number is expected to be trimmed by the city manager and as the result of commission discussion.

Monday night, the personnel matter continued. There were items scheduled for work session discussion pertaining to personnel requests, the status of the present revenue and expenses and preliminary revenue projections for this coming year.

While the number of new personnel requested had already been discussed, Monday's attention was on additional upgrades, salaries and COLAs (Cost of Living Adjustments). See Budget, Page 5A

Adams may challenge county attorney today

By RUSSELL WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County Commissioner Wit Adams may ask for more than sweeping changes in the county's adult entertainment laws at a special meeting by the board today; he may also request a change of direction inside the county attorney's office.

Adams told County Attorney Robert McMillan on Thursday that he was concerned that the county's citizens may not be getting their money's worth from the legal office. He also said he might ask for a vote of the five-member board to terminate McMillan's services.

"We pay a lot for legal services and we expect a lot," Adams said today before the meeting at the County Services Building. "I am concerned that instead of being proactive in this particular issue (adult entertainment laws) - and perhaps in others - we've been totally reactive."

Adams said this morning he may challenge McMillan's leadership role. "There are no sacred cows in government," Adams said.

McMillan, 49, has worked for the county since 1979. He has served as the assistant and deputy county attorney, county attorney and was interim county manager for 16 months. See County, Page 5A

SHS students host a different kind of car show

By DAVID FRAZIER
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole High School held its annual "car show" recently. It never has been a conventional car show. Rather it is a means for auto shop students to display the projects that they have been working on throughout the year.

Under the tutelage of teacher Henry Messer and his assistant Larry Harris, the students have worked hard during the 1996-97 school term and the display is proof they're ready to show the fruits of that labor. On display was an '87 black Ford Ranger, a purplish '89 Chevy Truck, a '78 white Corvette Stingray, a '92 black Isuzu, a gray '89 Ford Taurus L station-wagon, an '88 black Ford Thunderbird and an '87 Chevy Cavalier CL. They ran the circumference of the main concourse of the high school.

Veteran Central Florida newsman, Nick Pfeifau, heads for retirement

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - So, Nick Pfeifau thinks he's leaving. Thinks he's retiring from the Sanford Herald news staff.

Well, OK, he is, but that's no reason to think that this beloved newsman will be gone for long. He has the news in his blood and we all know he won't be able to get it out of his system so easily.

Nick is a seasoned professional (that would explain the salt and pepper hair).

His career as a reporter followed a stint in the Navy and a few automobile related jobs.

Following his discharge from the Navy, he spend several months in the employ of Touchtons Drug Store where he was a stock clerk.

When the opportunity arose, however, he eagerly joined the staff of radio station WTRR, where he remained until 1964. He augmented his income by working afternoons at the radio station, with his band in the evenings, and in the body shop of Holler Chevrolet in Sanford in the mornings.

He perfected the system of working without sleeping that he has since turned into working while sleeping for which he is so famous today.

Nonetheless, he found time to marry Eloise Snyder of Osteen, (on Dec. 31, 1954) and to raise three children, Linda, Kenneth and Donna.

World celebrates trade week in the local area

The historic Presidents' Summit For America's Future, just concluded in Philadelphia, has focused attention nationwide on volunteerism and organizations that effectively use volunteer efforts to improve opportunities for young people. The Summit's objective is to save two million young people by the year 2000 by involving corporate America and private citizens in local programs also dedicated to this goal.

Barnett Banks, Inc., Florida's leading financial services institution, has partnered with organizations throughout the state to create or support community based initiatives directed at improving public education (kindergarten through 12th grade) and improving opportunities for at-risk children to complete high school and obtain a college education.

Take Stock in Children, a statewide program which Barnett helped found in 1996, is an excellent example of the kind of community volunteerism called for at the President's Summit. Take Stock in Children now exists in 51 county school systems in Florida and has 1,600 scholars enrolled. The program's goals are to increase the number of mentors working with youngsters and to provide more guaranteed scholarships for a growing number of qualifying students.

This program and others supported by Barnett's Community Vision Initiatives and your local Barnett affiliates serve as excellent examples of the kind of positive local initiatives that can be created through the volunteerism and corporate support sought by the Presidents' Summit.

For more information about the Barnett programs in your area, contact Barnett Corporate Communication at (904)791-7238.

While others flew, Nick will flee

Today is...
NICK PFEIFAUF
Staff Writer

Today in history honors two of the most famous aviators in America. It was May 20, 1932 when Amelia Earhart landed near Londonderry, Ireland, a 2,026-mile flight from New Foundland. She became the first female to fly solo across the Atlantic. The trip took 13 hours and 30 minutes. Three years earlier, on May 20, 1927, Charles Lindberg, 25, took off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, N.Y., in a Ryan monoplane — Spirit of St. Louis. He landed the following day at Le Bourget airfield, Paris, winning the $25,000 prize offered for the first nonstop flight from New York to Paris (3,600 miles).

(And believe it or not, my mother was his part-time housekeeper during his flight. He only lived two blocks from where I was born in Michigan.)

And while we're discussing flight, it was May 20, 1978 when Pioneer/Venus 1 was launched from the cape to become the first spaceship to orbit the planet Venus (it arrived the following Dec. 4).

Today is Eliza Doolittle Day. She was the young lady in "My Fair Lady" and "Pygmalion" who was taught by Professor "Enry Iggins" (Henry Higgins) to speak properly. In effect, he made a lady out of her because she could speak well. It's been designated Eliza Doolittle Day to demonstrate the importance and the advantage of speaking one's native language properly.

They're having a big event in honor of it in Ann Arbor, Michigan today. It's not exactly what I would call a large gathering however. The attendance for the event is guessed to be about 15 people.

President Clinton signed the Motor Voter Bill on May 20, 1993. It enables people to register to vote by mail or when applying for a new drivers license.

In historic birthdays, Italian tenor Beniamino Gigli was born May 20, 1890. Dolly Madison (wife of James Madison, 4th president), was born May 20, 1768.

For today's birthdays, Cher (Cherilyn Sarkisian) turns 51; singer, Joe Cocker turns 53; actor Bronson Pinchot is 38; Ronald Reagan Jr. (talk show host and former first-son) is 39; and actor Jimmy Stewart turns 89.

And with that, it's now O-DTMR (days 'til my retirement). Included in the events, one might say, "Nick Pfeifauf" is now history as well, although I doubt it will ever appear in any of the resource books in the future, which have been used in preparation for this.

This "Today is..." column will now become the responsibility of Vicki DeSormier, who I hope will have as much fun writing this as I have over the past number of months.

Preservation prize

The New Tribes Mission building on First Street in Sanford was once the magnificent Mayfair Hotel. The building has been restored and maintained by the New Tribes Mission and now looks much as it did in the early part of this century when the New York Giants spent their springs in the majestic facility.

Mayor Larry Dale recently honored the New Tribes Mission officials, Macon Hare and Scott Ross, for their work in maintaining the facility. During the recent celebration of Historic Preservation Week, Dale gave them the first Mayoral Award for Commercial Preservation.

Spring walk

This past weekend, residents of the downtown residential historic district opened their gardens to the public to show off their meticulously coiffed lawns and carefully landscaped floral areas. The second annual Spring Garden Tour brought out not only horticultural enthusiasts, but also those who just wanted a look beyond the garden gates of some of the finest homes in Sanford. Those who took part had the chance to walk from home to home in the beautiful historic district and enter the shady oases from urban strife not far away. The Spring Garden Tour was a part of the city's celebration of National Historic Preservation Week. The event included the presentation of Mayor Larry Dale's first preservation awards for the city. In addition, families and friends had the opportunity to make the trek through town. And vendors, such as Andy Ulianna of Pennsylvania, hawked his wares at Park on Park for those who were strolling by.

A new story for veteran newsman Nick Pfeifauf

Nick Pfeifauf was never supposed to leave us. He has always been the newsroom's Energizer Bunny...he kept going and going and going.

But now, with sadness, the news staff of the Sanford Herald sends veteran newsman Pfeifauf into retirement. We tried to stop him, but he said it was time to go. He has served his community, and his fellow journalists, well.

Oh, what we've learned from this charming, ethical, bright and caring man!

Nick, as patriarch of the newsroom, has been a mentor to us all, with his vast knowledge of Central Florida, media and human nature. His roots are in radio and television, he came to us later in his career. (We like to think he saved the best for last.)

We learned from him that politicians are people, too.

That every story revolves around people, and people have feelings. Write with compassion and fairness, he said.

We learned government meetings can be pretty juicy, sometimes more so than the police beat.

And Nick, a history buff, taught us that the past is a conduit to the present, charging our lives with the richness of past endeavors and other people's dreams.

We hope his retirement is as much fun as we had working with him. We'll miss him.

Open primaries

There needs to be an OPEN PRIMARY in Florida in which every registered voter can vote.

The majority of officials elected to office in Florida are elected in the PRIMARY. When a registered voter cannot vote in the PRIMARY he does not have a part in this selection and does not have a choice of who will represent him, resulting in TAXATION without representation.

There are approximately 1,000,000 independent voters registered other than Republican or Democrat in Florida who because of prohibitive voting statutes are not allowed to vote in the PRIMARY. There are approximately 3,300,000 registered Republicans and 3,700,000 registered Democrats.

In several counties the voters registered for one PARTY outnumber the registered voters of the other PARTY such that there are no candidates for office from the minority PARTY and voters from this PARTY have no one to vote for.

I suggest Florida Statutes governing voting be changed to permit voters registered other than Republican or Democrat to vote in the PRIMARY for the candidate of their choice.

Further, I suggest that any REGISTERED VOTER regardless of party affiliation be allowed to be a candidate for office in the PRIMARY.

Also, where there are TWO or MORE candidates for the same office from the same PARTY and no candidates for this office from the other PARTY registered voters of the PARTY without a candidate be permitted to vote for their choice of the candidates of the other PARTY.

Recently California became the 30th State to have an OPEN PRIMARY. It is time for Florida to become the 31st. All it takes is a change in the voting Statutes by members of the Florida Legislature. Failing this, independent registered voters and registered voters of a PARTY outnumbered by registered voters of the other Party will have to appeal to the Federal Courts.

WRITER'S BLOCK

It's -30- for this story, on to the next

This is a writer's block. In the literary community, it means when a person no longer can write because of a lack of ideas. I certainly don't lack ideas, but I believe it's time to move on from the news profession.

With 10 years at WTRR radio, over 25 years at WESH-TV and over seven years at the Sanford Herald, I've been on hand for some historical events. Perhaps the saddest was at the radio station, Nov. 22, 1963 when I broke into a music program to report on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Another was in the late 1950s when I had to report a U.S. Navy plane, with three close friends, crashed into two houses just off E. 25th Street in Sanford, killing all three.

One of the most exciting events was 26 years ago when I was the first TV anchor in Central Florida to report Walt Disney had announced plans to build a massive entertainment complex in Florida.

I've interviewed some wonderful people. Maurice Chevalier was my favorite. Others included Jack Benny, John Glenn, John Young, Barbara Walters, and a host of political and religious figures. I even played an accordion duet with Myron Floren. I also fondly recall co-hosting the first 24 hour Muscular Dystrophy telethons carried on WESH-TV and meeting the MDA people including Jerry Lewis.

In the newspaper world, I tried to be as fair as possible in all my stories, attempting to tell people what was going on, rather than expressing a personal opinion. I hope I was somewhat successful in this, though I'll admit it was difficult at times.

A number of people have commented regarding my retirement. Friday morning, a 72-year-old man called to say I was doing the area a great disservice in retiring from the newspaper.

Herald columnist Marva Hawkins asked me, "What do you want, a rake or a rocking chair?" She explained: did I plan to keep active or just sit down and forget everything. I told her I'd take the rake. I already own three rocking chairs.

Several months ago, a friend, former Herald Publisher Wayne Doyle told me, rather than focusing on the end of a long-time career, I should look at retirement as the beginning of a new lifestyle. This is excellent advice and I thoroughly intend to follow it. I have many "projects" I plan to undertake, as well as spending more time camping, visiting family, and other fun things. I owe my career to many people. At the radio station, it was the late Jim Williamson and Marlon Harmon among others. In television it was the late John F. Perry, Jr., Walter Strouse and John Haberlan.

At the Herald, it was Wayne Doyle and some of the finest co-workers a person could ask for.

Mostly however, there is one person who has not just been there through each of these individual careers, but through them all. My wife of more than 42 years, Eloise, was my strength. Imagine what it's like having a husband coming home night after night complaining that I didn't get a story I was working on, or that some official gave me a hard time, or that I had fallen flat on my face while trying to accomplish something I felt was important.

Yet she managed to get me calmed down and bring me back to reality. It took a strong woman to put up with that, year after year.

Without support from Eloise, I don't believe I could have made it.

She will continue working at her job for at least three more years, (after all, she's younger). Perhaps it's time for me to return some of this support. At least I'll try as best I can.

For all of the people who played an important part in my journalistic life, I extend my sincere appreciation. (Most of you at least returned my phone calls.)

Now, as they say at the end of a news story, "30." It's been great knowing and working with all of you. I can't say more - I have a writer's block.

ELLEN GOODMAN

We write the rules of the game

BOSTON--From the reaction, you would assume that another John Henry had split his gut competing against a steam drill.

When Garry Kasparov was beaten by an IBM computer called Deep Blue, a collective howl arose from his hometown human team. Machine Beats Man. Computer Is Chess Champ. Deep Blue Sixes Man. Humans Lose.

The head of the winning IBM team, C. J. Tan, was ecstatic, of course, exclaiming, "A hundred years from now, people will say this day was the beginning of the Information Age." It was a moment he compared to landing on the moon.

But the chair of the chess committee for a computing association was more typically gloomy. He declared that this match "had the impact of a Greek tragedy."

All in all, the post-game analysis was enough to make you pity poor humanity. Cloned in March, we were checkmated in May.

I suspect there was more than a touch of anxiety in the post-game analysis of the contest for mental championship of the world. You didn't need to know a rook from a hard disk to share the moment. It struck a chord with anyone who has ever been downsized or cyberized and come to regard the brave new computer world as a people-unfriendly environment.

Kasparov, who had never had occasion until now to learn how to be a good loser, started mumbling darkly about "a big corporation with unlimited resources" and "a zeal to beat Garry Kasparov." He was suddenly protesting that "you have to give a human a chance to rest" and demanding a rematch.

The advantages that Deep Blue had over a quirky, cantankerous chess master did seem so familiar. Deep Blue doesn't get tired. It doesn't have moods. Deep Blue doesn't even want the $700,000 prize money.

Did you notice that IBM stock went up six points or roughly 84 billion the day after the match? Any champ with half a brain would have had an agent yelling, "Sweetheart, we don't pick up the next pawn for less than $100 million!" Deep Blue gave it back to the company.

Nevertheless, I don't think people have been outwitted yet. And not just because our team programmed the winner. We are also the ones who define what smart is. When computers beat us at our own game, we have this thoroughly human little habit of revising it to our advantage.

Did you notice what happened after the laments about Greek tragedies had all been fled? After the IBM team went out for a celebratory drink--and, by the way, didn't even invite Deep Blue?

The post-game analysis was enough to make you pity poor humanity.

Following the initial moans about the computer as the victor, about the artificial intelligence as the greater intelligence, there was a second wave of comments designed to proclaim our own superiority.

The same IBM man who had compared this event to a moon landing, backtracked saying, "Humans have unique qualities. They are creative, they are psychological beings." A physicist writing a letter to The New York Times looked down at a computer which "doesn't get tired, bored, happy or sad, and doesn't know in any meaningful way whether it wins or loses."

Meanwhile on the radio, a caller exclaimed that a computer can't even cry. An editorial writer huffed that it can't even dream or debate the existence of God.

In the Not-so-distant past, anyone who could perform math feats in their head was considered a certified genius. Now that a palm-size calculator can perform them, the skill is less valued.

The ability to play chess like an automaton also once made for a master. Now anyone playing against a real automaton may just be a loser.

But at the same time, we are already on the way to redefining and re-evaluating other characteristics that are ours. Our ability to get tired and bored? The capacity to cry? Suddenly these booby prizes are at the top of the warm and fuzzy human heap.

As machines do the computing, we already re-compute who we are. We are emotional, intuitive creatures who wrestle with meaningful stuff that cannot be programmed.

Like a lot of folks, I lost to computers long before Kasparov. I can't even keep pace with the program on a stationary bicycle. I have exhibited enough hostility to new software to make the chess master look laid-back.

But I have no doubt that in the match between human and machine, we'll always be one move ahead. Because we write the rules of this game. Checkmate.

SARA ECKEL

In other words, they're paying schools to make teachers keep their mouths shut.

Teen rights: The fight goes on

Members of Congress want high-school teachers to tell their students that sex outside of marriage "is likely to have harmful psychological and physical effects."

Well, I guess they ought to know. Part of the new welfare legislation, the directive sets aside $250 million for states to fund abstinence-only programs, rather than ones that give teens information about birth control.

In other words, they're paying schools to make teachers keep their mouths shut.

Many state leaders have balked at the regulation, and have decided to decline the money rather than get into a situation where teachers might be legally forbidden from answering a student's question on a controversial issue. Connecticut state representative Mary Mushinsky says her state will be passing. "We ought not to pursue (the funding) if it comes with handcuffs," she told the New York Times.

Of course, Congress is not the only entity that is actively limiting the rights of teenagers. The Supreme Court has ruled that schools have the right to search students' lockers and to test student athletes for drugs. Over the years federal, state and local governments have restricted teens' rights to welfare benefits, medical attention and even mobility. Curfew laws are now in place in 75 percent of all major U.S. cities, with police-enforced curfew times as early as 8 p.m. And then there are the schools themselves. There is the school that had an 11-year-old girl arrested for packing a steak knife in her lunch box. There is the school that suspended an eighth-grade boy for popping Alka-Seltzers.

Oh, and did I mention the 12-year-old girl who spent the night at a children's detention center because she refused to visit her father, who, she said, threw a guitar at her and told her that her mother and grandparents were "wicked"?

The last example is extreme and, like many of the above-cited examples, the result of extremely bad judgment on the part of one or a handful of adults. However, such breaches can exist because young people have very few rights in this society. In almost every instance they are assumed to be mindless and weak, empty vessels helpless to whatever whims and notions are put before them. Unless, of course, they commit a crime. Then they miraculously become rational and clear-headed. Then politicians cry out that they be treated like adults. That is what happened early this month, when the House of Representatives passed a juvenile crime bill that would send $1.5 billion in block grants to states that try teenagers accused of violent crimes as adults. The bill also stipulates that the federal courts do the same. In the words of my friend Chrissy, this is totally bogus.

Are teens rational adults or formless infants? Obviously, they are neither. But if we are going to insist that kids who commit crimes are treated as adults, perhaps we should afford a little of that same respect to their law-abiding cohorts.

Budget

"One of the questions we have right now," said City Manager Bill Simmons, "is what impact new personnel and salaries will have on revenues for next year. Personnel is a large portion of our budget."

Commissioner Whitey Eckstein began the comments by stating that he was totally against the city's present merit pay plan. "I think the people we have now should be paid better and any leftover money should be put into the COLAs. But as I see it, this merit pay is killing us." Merit pay rewards an employee who does a good job with a year-end bonus.

He continued, "Before we try to fill up these positions, let's catch up on salaries, get rid of merit pay and concentrate on COLAs."

Commissioner Kerry Lyons agreed, but said the matter must be considered as two separate items, positions, and pay.

"What we need to do," said Mayor Larry Dale, "is give the city manager directions on this budget preparation. Do you want to raise the ad valorem taxes?"

According to previous discussion, salaries and benefits for the 50 additional employees which have been requested amount to approximately $1.3 million.

During an analysis of the city's financial status, Finance Director Carolyn Small told the commission that at present, personnel costs for the city amount to $11,928,534. With the new personnel added, at a cost of $1,290,562, the amount to be taken from the general fund would have to be $13,219,096 including salaries and benefits. She added that the amounts do not include regrades which are also proposed.

Sanford's millage rate is presently 6.8759, the highest of any municipality in the area. Should the rate be increased by a half mill, Small said the city could obtain an additional $482,418 in taxes. If the rate was increased by one mill, the city would receive $924,834 additional money in the coming year.

She said projected revenue at the present time, with the present millage, for this coming year was $17,352,716, but total expenses which are ongoing or presently being requested would amount to $20,313,782.

"It looks like we are only going to do one thing or another," Lyons said. "We are either going to have to pay better or hire new people. As for my position, I say hold the line on new hires."

Commissioner Velma Williams said she was entertaining the concept of looking at increased pay as well as new employees.

"But are we going to hold the line on new taxes?" asked Mayor Dale.

"We can accomplish these needs if we raise taxes," Eckstein observed. "But if we do so, we are going to hurt the influx of new businesses and residents who may want to move into our community. We seem to lose either way we go."

Commissioner Brady Lessard said he was opposed to raising taxes. "But I believe you all agree that public safety and the fire department are major needs. I'm in favor of paying less people, but paying them more money."

While there was no consensus regarding taxation increases, new hires, elimination of the merit pay plan or increasing COLAs, further discussion is expected in the near future.

The city is now in the process of setting up specific dates for work session meetings on the 1997/98 fiscal year budget, with dates to be announced.

Many of the new vehicles have been repaired. Some more than twice. Some nicks and dents have been fixed. Parts have been replaced. Interiors are being refurbished. But not all of these fixtures have been done in the course of the year. Some vehicles are worked on through the three years that the students may take for auto shop. The class is worth five credits.

On the average, it takes two months for repairs and upgrades to be accomplished. The students work on an average of 32 cars a year. The students work not only on cars and trucks, but also boat trailers, motorcycles and even the Sanford Fire Department's 1921 La France Fire Truck, which assistant Harris said will look "brand new".

Auto repairs and auto "face lifts" are not the only thing these students do through the year. There is also book work to supplement their mechanic training. Most of these students attain hours for the job training and scholarships. Harris said that students can also go to Seminole Community College to continue their "auto training" which will ready them for the workforce.

His untimely retirement is due in part to Linda's wedding next week. (Aren't fathers of the bride supposed to take on extra work rather than reduce their income potential?)

When Nick left WTRR in 1964, he joined the staff of WESH-TV in Daytona Beach. He went on the air as noon news anchor within two days, and within two years, was promoted to news director and chief anchor for the 6 and 11 p.m. news.

In 1970 he was promoted to Director of Research and Development. We told you he was good.

After graduating in the first class at Seminole Junior College and attending business and journalism courses at Rollins College in Winter Park, he was promoted to vice president of WESH-TV. A natural to the journalism field, he only took classes to keep moving up the corporate ladder. In some cases, he was older than his teachers.

In the meantime, however, in order to keep his hands in the on-air work, he hosted a country music show "2's Country" during 1988, 1989 and part of 1990.

He left the world of television in April, 1990, and joined the staff of the Sanford Herald where he has been heralded as the best reporter in Central Florida ever since.

Nick was born June 23, 1932 in Hamtramck, Michigan. It was such a shocking event that within a week, it ceased to be an official city and was annexed into Detroit.

He attended schools in Detroit and Allenton, Mich., and high school in Capac Michigan. During his high school years he worked as a door-fitter on the production line of Hudson Motors body plant, and as a foreman for Armada Wood Products, making wooden windows.

He joined the U.S. Navy after high school graduation in 1950. During most of his navy career, he produced and directed variety shows which were seen throughout the Fifth Naval District. His navy tour eventually brought him to the Sanford Auxiliary Naval Air Station in 1952, with a brief overseas excursion to Port Lyauite, French Morocco, Africa.

Last Friday was proclaimed Nick Pfeifau Day in Lake Mary and the city of Sanford Recreation Department hosted a gathering last night.

Nick will be missed, but he has promised to fill in for those of us on the staff who might earn a vacation.

Breaking ground with Habitat

All female crew builds home for local family

By STEVE BARNES
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - A dream came true for Maria Vargas and her family Saturday, as they broke ground on the site of their new home.

Vargas beamed as she threw out the first shovel full of dirt and thanked the people who had helped make her dream a reality.

Her new property, located on the corner of 4th Street and Locust Avenue in Sanford, was donated to Habitat for Humanity by Wayne Thompson, to provide a place for her new home. Thompson said he gave the property to the Habitat on the advice of his pastor, Jim Schrader of Sanford Alliance Church. He said the property had once been a garden, but that it had not been used recently.

That former garden will soon be a place where Maria's two daughters, Anna and Carmen, can grow. Women at Work, an all female construction crew which falls under the auspices of Habitat for Huagree - this will be a much nicer place to live.

Jean Metz, Chairman of the Women's Project, also thanked Thompson and presented him manily, will begin building Vargas's new home soon. Supplies and funding for the project are being supplied by a number of sponsors, including: The Home Depot, Crown Bank, Energy Property Management, Magic 107.7 and Prudential Florida Realty. The new home should be ready in the next two to three months.

The completion of the home won't be soon enough for Vargas, who says she has been burglarized twice in her current residence in an apartment complex on Lake Mary Boulevard. Vargas says she originally moved her family to the apartments to escape her former neighborhood which was riddled with drugs and crime. Her daughter Carmen, 10, recounted the address she felt when she discovered the family's television set had been stolen, along with the stereo. She and her sister, Anna, 12, with a copy of No More Shacks, by Millard Fuller, as a token of the Habitat's appreciation. Thompson jokingly told the crowd of about 30 supporters that he gave the property away because he was "tired of mowing the grass." In a more serious note he added that, "God has blessed me, and I am glad to pass it on."

months before resuming the county attorney's position in 1989.

How many other commissioners share Adams' concern about the county attorney's office is unclear. It is doubtful, one said, Adams would receive much support if he made a motion to remove McMillan. "He could be pretty much on his own on this one," Commission Chairman Randy Morris said.

Morris said that the complex adult entertainment issue may require outside legal help - and that it would not be unusual for government to bring in legal assistance.

"Actually, we've got it," McMillan said today, citing the cooperation from David Cortman of the American Center for Law and Justice, Joe Cocchiarella of the Orange-Osceola Attorney's Office, and MaryAnn Klein, counsel for the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

McMillan gave the county legal staff's presentation to the BCC this morning, requesting the commissioners schedule and advertise a public hearing on the issue of adult entertainment and sex-oriented businesses.

McMillan expressed confidence that the county would reconstruct its outdated adult entertainment law with stricter laws that would provide reasonable accommodation to existing establishments and discourage the possibilities of new entries.

China trade

WASHINGTON - Regardless of complaints, President Clinton is moving ahead on renewing trade privileges for the United States with China. Clinton explained that the opening of trade would be beneficial for the nation, better than what may appear to be isolationism.

Critics however object, based on their beliefs of China's abuse of human rights.

In China itself, difficulties are mounting up, with Beijing taking over Hong Kong, and a threat of a reorganization of top leadership.

Trial continues

DENVER - The Oklahoma City bombing trial of Timothy McVeigh continues today. Monday's testimony dealt with McVeigh's clothing, which has been reportedly shown to have traces of explosives similar to those used on a bomb detonator.

Other testimony is focusing on the rental truck used in the bombing.

For the defense however, McVeigh's attorney is questioning what he considers errors in what the prosecution says were the gathering of evidence at the scene and photographs which appear to be missing from a roll taken at the bombing site.

Minuteman launch

LOMFOC, CAL. - NASA is set to launch a Minuteman III rocket at Vandenberg Air Force Base near Lompoc, California at 4 a.m. Wednesday morning.

In cooperation with the U.S. Air Force and the India National Laboratories, NASA engineers will be testing an Mk 12A re-entry vehicle, equipped with a new ultra-high temperature ceramic-material nose tip, believed to provide better thermal protection than current methods.

Data are being gathered on the performance of the material on a vehicle with a sharp leading edge design. Depending on the outcome of the test, it may result in new material construction on manned space vehicles.

Penicillin progress

ORLANDO - A report being presented today to the American Lung Association says the common bacteria that cause illness from bronchitis to pneumonia are four times more likely to be resistant to penicillin now than in 1984. The study shows a growing percentage of the bacteria are also immune to other antibiotics.

The results vary around the nation, but samples from the Southeast showed the most resistance.

Two University of Central Florida researchers have particular expertise in this area. Dr. Debopam Chakrabarti has been working with a specific focus on new forms of resistant Malaria.

Dr. Saleh Naser has particular experience with developing new drugs to fight resistant tuberculosis. Both are scheduled to make presentations to the American Lung Association meeting.

Base closings

WASHINGTON - If a number of leaders in the Clinton administration have their way, there will be a large number of military base closings this year.

Defense Secretary William Cohen is attempting to persuade Congress to close more bases. If approved, he said it would reduce the number of military bases, but in order to cover the losses, opponents complain that it will require excessive spending of money in other military operations.

As an example, reducing the number of active attack submarines from 73 to 50 would save a considerable amount of money, but at the same time, it would require a $2.3 billion upgrading of the national missile defense development to compensate for the sub losses.

A survey of congressmen indicates many support base closings elsewhere, but not in their own respective states.

Name change

ZAIRE - It appears on maps made for the past 26 years, but officially, Zaire no longer exists. As of this past Friday, the term has been changed in official United States (and other nation) documents.

Former Zaire President Mobutu has been ousted by the Kabila, aided by anti-Mobutu civilians.

During the takeover, violence is said to be nationwide. The Red Cross has indicated the death toll at well over 200.

The new leadership has renamed the nation Kinshasa: the Democratic Republic of Congo.

At the present time, Kinshasa is being ruled by a military force. There have been no immediate plans to hold a nationwide election or establish governmental organization.

Angel named

SAN DIEGO - The woman who generously donated $2,000 to each family which suffered severe losses in the recent flooding of Grand Forks, N.D., has been identified. She is Joan Kroc, the widow of Ray Kroc, founder of McDonald's.

In all, she has donated $15 million since April, and had asked that she not be identified.

Coaches deserve some recognition

This past season has taught me a lot about high school athletics.

One fact, however, stands out in my mind. Coaches are very unique.

I have had the opportunity to speak with and get to know many of the coaches in the area. I have realized that they have some of the toughest jobs in education.

These men and women take on the responsibility of coaching a team in addition to being educators and in most cases, parents. It's hard enough to juggle family and profession, but when you add hours of practice and sometimes several games a week to the mix, there is a lot of pressure on these coaches.

I've also learned that not all coaches take the same strategy.

There are yellors. Those coaches who scream and yell and go ballistic on the sidelines when one of their players makes a mistake.

Just last week at the football jamboree at Lake Mary High School, one of the more verbal coaches actually called his player over to the side line and while he was screaming at him, he slapped the kid on the front of the helmet.

Then there are the coaches who don't say much of anything. Some of the areas finest choose to allow their kids to play the games and then deal with the problems afterward.

No matter what the coaching style, it is obvious that these coaches care. They give their hearts to their teams and treat the student athletes as if they were their children.

Coaches have so much to deal with. They have to be parent figures to kids who are trying to deal with high school life and the terrors of just being teenagers. Tempers flare, tears are shed, problems are brought onto the playing fields. And the coaches have to have a sympathetic ear all the while.

In addition, grades are the top priority on any team and it is up to the coaches to monitor grades, get on the kids when they aren't doing their schoolwork, and face possibly losing even their star players if grades are a problem.

Then there is motivation. Coaches are responsible for keeping the kids in shape, making sure they practice, and motivating them to play to the best of their abilities at each and every game.

All of this is done on mental salaries. These educators are barely compensated for their extra work before and after school, in the evenings, and on the weekends. Ask any coach and they will tell you that they are definitely not coaching because they expect to get rich. They are in it because they thoroughly enjoy working with the kids.

And the kids love their coaches. It doesn't matter if the coach is beating them on the front of their helmet, driving them to do the extra set of reps, or forcing them to run the extra lap. It also doesn't matter if the team is winning or losing. These kids adore their coaches. There is an understanding that the coaches care about their athletes and these kids are going to give them their all. That includes unconditional respect.

So the next time you're out at a game, take a minute to think about the coaches. They are out there because they care about the kids and they're doing the best job they can. After the game, introduce yourself and thank the coach. They don't get nearly the appreciation they deserve.

'Noles on the right track'

Boys finish 4th at Class 5A state meet; Girls score 11th place; Gilchrist wins title

By JEFF BERLINCKE
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole girls track team had a tough act to live up to.

Last year, the girls continued a run which included a state championship in 1994 and top two finishes in each of the past two years.

The year's edition didn't do quite so well but it did bring home a state champion - Tamara Gilchrist in the shot put. Overall, Seminole came home with a tie for 13th at the Class 5A state meet in Gainesville.

Seminole's boys fared a little better, netting a fourth-place finish overall.

For Seminole's girls, it was the first look at state competition for many of them, but Gilchrist, a junior, looked like it was no big deal, firing the shot a personal-best 43 feet, 1 3/4 inches to claim the state championship.

For the boys, it was another successful season including the 15th straight district championship and another Seminole Athletic Conference title for Ken Braumann's team. The Seminoles also kept its record of success at the state level alive with a pair of championships.

The 4 x 800 relay team of Willie Lawson, James Swain, Jeremiah Mitchell and Tony Martin set a new Seminole High record, running away with the field with a time of 8:00.26 to bring home the state title.

Willie Lawson opened the race with a 1:56.7 and the 'Noles were never seriously challenged as Martin closed out the race with a 1:59 anchor.

Bobby Williams continued his dominance in the triple jump, winning the state title with a leap of 48 feet, 11 inches. It wasn't Williams' only success, as he finished eighth in the long jump and eighth in the 110 meter high hurdles.

Lawson duplicated his third place performance of last year to finish third in the 800 meters with a seasonal best of 1:57.

Lawson missed most of the season with a broken jaw and was kept on a liquid diet for much of the season but he came on strong at the end and was in peak form for the states.

Gary Rivers was a strong sixth overall in the 110 hurdles with a 15:02 to round out the Seminole scoring.

For Seminole, it is a warning that they could be stronger than ever next season with 10 of 12 qualifiers returning next year.

Sanford gymnasts have winning Edge

By JEFF BERLINCKE
Herald Staff Writer

Two weeks ago, the Sanford Gymnastics Association was just hoping to survive.

Fortunately, Bob Edge missed the kids and the gym is back to being as healthy as ever.

The whole thing started last fall when Edge left the area to explore business options in Georgia. He had coached the kids for several years and the kids missed him dearly.

That's when SGA President Jeanette Stiffey stepped in and brought Edge back to Florida.

Edge was a favorite of the kids and his return has everyone excited.

Edge has been teaching for over 15 years and has taught from coast to coast, including in Washington and Colorado. He hasn't competed since high school but has forged a strong reputation as a teacher.

"We are so glad he came back," Stiffey said. "All the kids were aching for him to come back. This is so positive and now we should have no problem getting kids to come through the door."

That was a small problem but with Edge back, enrollment is expected to soar as kids learn they can have fun at an affordable rate.

"We are trying to present a community program that caters to the economics of the town," Edge said. His students come from all over the Sanford and Lake Mary area.

To encourage even more kids, Edge said the SGA will offer a summer sports camp featuring basketball, soccer, baseball and gymnastics, all on the gym's property at 25th Place in Sanford. Cost is only $75 per week and the programs will run from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Edge said the benefits from See Gymnasts, Page 2B

'Never walk away from a challenge'

Oviedo's Lindsay Wynegar signs hoops scholarship

By COURTNEY LEPPER
Herald Correspondent

Imagine waiting for something a good part of your life and wondering if it will ever come true.

For Oviedo senior, Lindsay Wynegar her dream has been fulfilled. All the long hours, hard work, and overtime has paid off. Monday afternoon Lindsay signed a full four-year basketball scholarship to Lynn University in Boca Raton.

"This school has a lot to offer me especially in the business area. I'm probably looking towards going into Sports Business or Small Business Management," Lindsay said.

Nothing was given easily to her except maybe love and support from her parents. Lindsay first picked up a basketball at the age of eight.

Her step-father Glenn remembered, "She couldn't even bounce a ball and control it. She was terrible. But she did not make it this far because she was a natural athlete. Lindsay was the kid who came to practice early and stayed late; she was the one who would get in trouble for sneaking into the gym to work on her game."

Her story is that of pure will, desire, and determination. Everyone told her she would never make it. Basketball was not her sport.

Lindsay stated, "I never walk away from a challenge and that's why I have stuck with it through all the disappointments."

Lindsay has given up and dealt with more than most teenagers could. She decided basketball would be number one and having a boyfriend and hanging out with friends would have to fall somewhere under that. On many nights when most would be out at parties and the beach Lindsay would be practicing.

Remembering memories Glenn said, "There would be nights when we would go over old game films, study the game; so it would not just be something she played but something she understood."

No pressure was given to Lindsay so she pushed herself. And she doesn't feel her social life or childhood has been compromised. One thing that she managed to fit into her tight schedule was riding horses which she also plans to do in her future.

Her Grandmother Phyllis said, "When Lindsay was younger and was at a riding completion, all the other girls got pennants but Lindsay did not."

Phyllis was worried about how she would react but Lindsay looked into her Grandmother's eyes and said, "I guess I'll just have to work harder."

That advice has made her a well-rounded, friendly young girl with a very bright future.

"Lindsay has taken her inabilities and turned them around. Many said she could not do it but she did. She has had numerous walls fall in front of her pathway but her heart, desire, and determination has never weakened," stated her mother, Gretchen.

One person that has helped in this struggle is Tom Berry. See Wynegar, Page 2B gymnastics extend far beyond competitions.

"Gymnastics is a basis for teaching kids about life," Edge said. It's about being aggressive and that's why I teach. Gymnastics is a tough sport and it takes a strong work ethic to participate. Sports is the best investment a parent can make in their child.
There are other gymnastics schools in the Lake Mary area but Tom Lenzini, owner of Broadway Gymnastics which has supplied teachers to the SGA since Edge's departure, said Sanford Gymnastics is a quality program at an affordable rate.

"Our thought was to open more of a community program," Lenzini said. "It is not less quality but we can bring a quality program for less than others. Here, they can get quality training for $30 a month. We're just trying to give something to the community."

For now, Sanford Gymnastics Association holds an edge on the entertainment dollar in the area, but they are still looking for interested students.

Hockey Night In Sanford

Team members celebrated at an awards ceremony last week, including coach Joe Strada, and players Matt Crowe, Anthony Strada, Michael Strada, Michael Sencio, Eric Whazan, Alexander Yun, Zachary Meers, Wesley Avant and Daniel Strada. In other age divisions, the Goon Snipers won the Bantams and the Blast were winners in the Mites Division.

Oviedo's High School girls basketball coach.
Berry enforces team work and Lindsay learned that from him. She would rather go on the court and act up a shot than take a three-pointer herself. When you looked at a stats sheet for the team you would not see the two top players, no, you would see every player's name.
A mental key that Glenn said, "You have to keep bettering yourself. Most kids get to the point they want and then stop. Not Lindsay, she gets to the top and keeps going; no one is ever too good."
For Lindsay her journey of hard work and new experiences is just beginning. Whether it is riding a horse in the Maryland Hunt Cup or playing in the NCAA Lindsay's life is very promising.

Chaplain ready for Cops for Christ

By SUSAN WISMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Many in the community know Jordan Beckner for his tireless service to others but his recent appointment as Police Chaplain to the Sanford Police Department allows him to continue to exercise his volunteer efforts and serve in a field that he loves.

As Beckner put it, these "ministers on patrol" hope to encourage and uplift a group of men serving the public and putting their lives on the line daily. He and Mick Bennett, a former officer at Sanford Police Department, plan to help in whatever capacity possible to keep a positive spirit and allow an outlet for frustrations.

"We want to be spiritual leaders to the police officers in whatever capacity they need," he said. "They're out there in the battlefield daily. We will ride with the officers. If the officers or their family members are hospitalized we'll call on them. We want them to realize that we have a heart for them."

Beckner shared that the "mayor and commission are very supportive" of the Police Chaplain Program. "We want to be there for guidance too," he said. "We will be facilitators to help them with problems. We will set up a bank of pastors to counsel or just talk to these people. The pastors can offer marital counseling, help with drug or alcohol problems or whatever help they may need."

He continued by saying, "We plan to get involved in Cops for Christ. It's like Fellowship for Christian Athletes. We're looking to start that here. Those guys are behind the wheel and out there battling sometimes with no one to talk to. Some of these plans and programs can really help them."

The chaplains are now certified with the International Conference of Police Chaplains and the Home Mission Board of Southern Baptist.

Rise-Up! Sanford is another volunteer work in which Beckner is involved. It is an organization of church leaders. It was formed out of the Sanford-Lake Mary Ministerial Association and is an avenue for layleaders to serve the community.

Beckner serves as head of security for Promise Keepers for the southeast region. He is a member of the National PTA and heads the men's ministry and is a deacon at First Baptist Church in Sanford.

He and his wife, JoAnne, have lived in Sanford and have been married for nine years. They have two daughters, Emily and Jessica.

Lovebugs damage cars and homes

Lovebugs are small black flies with a red thorax that have been invading our lives for the past several weeks. They are considered a nuisance because they congregate in large numbers along highways and splatter on windshields and grills of our cars.

Damage: Car's windshields become covered with the fatty residue that can become thick enough to obscure vision. The flies can also clog radiators and cause our cars to overheat. The fatty residue can pit our car's finish if not removed within a few days. Do not paint our house now, lovebugs can mar freshly painted surfaces.

Feeding: Adult lovebugs are harmless—they do not sting or bite. They feed on the nectar of various plants, especially sweet clover, Brazilian pepper and goldenrod.

Frequency of flight: Two flights of lovebugs occur each year in Central Florida. The spring flight occurs during late April and May. A second flight occurs in fall around late August and September. Flight periods generally last 4-5 weeks. Mating takes place almost immediately after emergence of the females. Adult females live only 2-3 days.

Control: There are several effective insecticides available for lovebug control, but spraying can be impractical because infestations occur over such a vast area and for a short period of time. You can control lovebugs in confined areas like porches and around your home with aerosol sprays available for other household insects. Predators have substantially reduced the population of lovebugs in Central Florida during the past several years. Lovebug larvae populations are extremely high in pasture areas, making an ideal environment for certain bird predators like robins and quail. Armadillos are thought to be predators as well, but scientific data has yet to back this up. Lovebugs are predators as well, feeding on certain beetle larvae, earwigs and centipedes.

GARDENING

There are several things a motorist can do to lessen the lovebug nuisance. First, traveling at night can reduce the incidence of lovebugs since they are active only in the day, usually after 10:00 a.m. Also traveling at a lower speed will reduce the number of bugs splattered on your car. There are many types of screens available that can be placed on the front grill of your car to protect the finish and prevent the radiator from becoming clogged. If a large screen can't be used on the front of the car, a smaller screen can be put behind the grill but in front of the radiator.

Splattered lovebugs should be washed off the car as soon as possible. Cars that have been waxed recently are more protected from damage by lovebug residue. Soaking the area with water for several minutes will aid in removal too. When lovebugs are numerous, or you know you will be traveling at the peak times, you can spread a light film of baby oil or use an aerosol oil spray over the front of the hood, above the windshield, and the grill and bumper. This practice will make lovebug removal easier.

Great lovers know when to try a little tenderness

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you opened the floodgates when you asked your readers for their definition of either a lousy or a great lover. I have always thought there should be a school to teach people how to be great lovers. There are so few of them around. A lady is lucky indeed to run into one, and truly blessed to be married to one.

Your definition that a lousy lover is hurried, selfish and inconsiderate was right on, but the list also should include being insensitive, having poor hygiene, poor verbal skills, and unwilling to give more than he gets, etc. I hope you print some of the responses you get. It will be interesting to see what your readers have to say on the subject.

DEAR BEBE: I certainly hit a nerve when I asked the question, because the responses are still pouring in. I had no idea so many women (and men) would have so much to say on the subject. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A good lover, male or female, is one who is teachable.
SUZANNE IN PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: In an interview, the actor Ricardo Montalban was asked, "What is a great lover?" He replied, "A great lover is someone who can satisfy one woman her entire lifetime and be satisfied with one woman his entire lifetime. It is not someone who goes from woman to woman; any dog can do that."
PATRICK IN NASHVILLE

DEAR ABBY: Great lovers have the same qualities both in and out of bed — they just manifest them differently in public (fortunately). They are chronically kind, have an incredible memory for what you like, touch you often, aren't in a rush, welcome new ideas, never fall asleep without saying, "I love you," and treat you like the most beautiful woman in the world, even if in reality you're 49 and porky.

ADVICE

STEVES INCREDIBLY LUCKY WIFE IN LA JOLLA

DEAR ABBY: A good lover is a person who takes into consideration the needs of the other person. He is unselfish and wants to satisfy his partner. He's always patient and takes his time when he is making love. A good lover makes every effort to find out what his partner wants and then he fulfills those needs. A good lover is gentle and caring with his partner. He gives soft touches, gentle caresses and sweet kisses in all the right spots. He also is passionate and honest. I was very fortunate to fall in love with a fabulous lover.
CRAZY IN LOVE IN RANCHO SANTA MARGARITA

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd ever have a chance at a great lover. However, at 65 I've been lucky enough to meet him. He is trustworthy in all things, not just sex; he wants to please and provide happiness in his life; he's able to control his own sexuality and bring us ultimately to even higher heights. By the way, my guy is in his late 70s.
P.S. I completely agree with your definition of a lousy lover. Been there — had that!
SEXY LADY IN ARLINGTON, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: Mom and I have been arguing about something for a week or so. Recently while Mom was visiting her parents, she went into the bedroom for something and saw Grandpa's checkbook lying open on the dresser. She looked through it and discovered that for the past year, her parents had been giving large sums of money to her brothers and sisters. When she came to me about it, I told her that it was none of her business and she was guilty of snooping. Mom says the fact that she was snooping is beside the point. She feels that she should talk to her parents about those checks her siblings are getting — because she would like to get some money, too. What do you think?
TROUBLED DAUGHTER

DEAR TROUBLED DAUGHTER: Your mother was wrong to have gone through her father's checkbook. But since she did, she should now discuss it with her parents. If she doesn't, jealousy and resentment could fester and cause serious problems later among her siblings. I agree it seems unfair. But her parents may have good reason for doing what they're doing.

Is vitamin E therapy risky?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Everything I read about vitamin supplements stresses vitamin E. Is there a toxic level? I have been taking 400 units a day, without side effects.

DEAR READER: Vitamin E has been the object of considerable attention in both the lay and scientific press. Because the vitamin is so abundant in foods (especially vegetable oils), deficiencies are unheard of.

The interest in the vitamin stems from the supposed benefits of mega-doses. The Recommended Dietary Allowance is about 10 units a day; some vitamin proponents have advised taking up to 2,000 units.

Medical studies have shown that vitamin E in large doses can relieve the symptoms (pain and cramping) of vascular disease in the legs, may act as a weak anticoagulant, often helps the discomfort caused by cystic breasts in women, and sometimes retards the progression of Peyronie's disease (crossed penis).

Doses above 800 units are sometimes associated with fatigue, headache, weakness, chapped lips, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms. The vitamin should not be taken with anticoagulant drugs, such as Coumadin, except under medical supervision.

Nonetheless, vitamin E is surprisingly safe in doses up to 1,000 units a day. There is no known toxic level, but if you choose to take E supplements, I wouldn't exceed 1,000 units.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Fads I: Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $3 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10154. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been bothered by burning feet for 15 years. Nerve tests and arterial X-rays have been normal, yet — at 78 — I am in quite a bit of discomfort and don't know what to do.

DEAR READER: This common symptom may reflect nerve damage or — as is more likely given your age — a circulatory deficiency. With appropriate testing, your doctor has properly ruled out nerve damage and blockages in the large arteries to your feet.

I say "large arteries" because they are the ones that are X-rayed; smaller arteries simply can't be seen during this test. Therefore, I conclude that you probably have "small artery" disease: arteriosclerotic blockages in the tiny blood vessels.

The good news is that you don't need surgery to unblock these arteries — technically, they are too small for surgery. The bad news is that treatment to relieve your symptoms is not altogether satisfactory, and consists mainly of keeping your feet warm at all times, stopping smoking, using an aspirin a day (to prevent blood clots), and remaining as active as you can; in fact, daily exercise (such as walking) will improve circulation to your feet.

This is a disorder that comes with age. Keep walking and follow your doctor's advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a previous column, you stated that aloe vera pills exert no known health benefit. Wouldn't they help heal my ulcerative colitis?

DEAR READER: Nope, 'frad not. As I have written before, aloe creams and lotions are soothing when applied to the skin, but the compound produces no known advantages when taken internally.

The cause of ulcerative colitis is unknown. The disease is marked by extensive inflammation of the large intestine, leading to abdominal pain, bloody diarrhea, weight loss, and other complications.

MEDICINE

Treatment includes prescription drugs, such as prednisone, sulfasalazine and others; surgery may be necessary (and is often curative).

Rather than using aloe vera, you would be better off — in my opinion — to place yourself under the care of a reputable gastroenterologist.

WIN A

The youngest in 18 years

By Phillip Alder

The winners of the Open Pairs I national title at the Spring Nationals in Dallas were Geoff Hampson and Eric Greco. Aged 28 and 21, respectively, they are the youngest winners of a national title since Jeff Meckstroth (then 23) and Eric Rodwell (then 22) won the Open Pairs title in March 1979.

Hampson, who won a silver medal on the Canadian team at the World Junior Championship in 1991, was gaining his third North American title. He is a bridge professional who lives in Fenton, Mich.

Greco is a senior at the University of Virginia. He won the Youth Player of the Year title (for age 19 and under) five years in a row.

Greco used the auction to guide his play on this deal from the final session. The bidding is typical of a pairs event, with no one willing to pass when he might bid.

Against two no-trump, West led the heart six. East won with the ace and returned a low heart in the hope that the positions of the heart 10 and jack were reversed. After winning with the heart queen, Greco cashed his five diamond tricks, throwing a spade from the dummy. East had to make four discards. He selected the spade two, club seven and two hearts.

Declarer cashed the club ace before exiting with the heart jack. East could take two heart tricks and the spade ace, but then he had to lead away from the club queen into dummy's king-jack tenace. Winning the overtrick, which is so vital in a pairs event, gave Hampson and Greco 62 out of 77 matchpoints.

Improvements in material conditions are indicated for the year ahead. Conversely, however, your extravagant inclinations may also be stronger.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strong self-motivation is required today if you hope to be successful. Lady Luck might not play a leading role at this point in time, so fend for yourself. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, if you feel compelled to take a chance, gamble on your own abilities and not on another's. Betting blind could be disappointing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're anxious to keep your household budget in line today, maintain control over your credit cards and ask your mate to reduce charging as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Results could be gratifying today, provided that a surrogate comes out your ideas. You may not be inclined to do much about them yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Little financial surpluses you've accumulated could go out the window today if you go on a shopping spree. Keep this in mind before starting your trek.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually, you're a goal-oriented person who is tenacious in pursuing your objectives. Today, however, if things don't go easy, you might back off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Associates will cooperate today if there's something in it for them. They won't put themselves out, though, if you're the only one who benefits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before making any large purchases today, give the matter much thought. Take care that your other expenditures don't get you in over your head.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You will have to exert a bit more conscientious effort than usual today if you hope to make the most of your areas of immediate advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A carefully thought-out decision might not go as anticipated today if you begin making little last minute changes. Be consistent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very selective in choosing your business involvements at this time. Do not plunge into deals before investigating everything thoroughly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not expect too much today business-wise from someone you know on a purely social basis. Try to keep your two worlds divided.
