Standard Insurance...
Al Capone, whose income in 1932 and '33 was in the top brackets of American multi-millionaires, and whose confinement in Alcatraz finally resulted from income tax prosecutions though he was credited with scores of killings, has finally cracked under the strain of his abnormal life and the remorse of a guilty conscience.

Crime Does Not Pay

Attendants at the government's formidable prison in San Francisco report that he has had a complete mental breakdown, that for a while he spent his time making and unmaking his bed, that he gibbers like an idiot, frequently bursts into tears, and finally lashed out viciously at his guards. It has not been necessary to confine him to a straight jacket yet, but apparently every other precaution is being taken to prevent him from injuring himself or others.

And we have again another lesson that crime does not pay. Sentenced for a comparatively short term in view of the seriousness of his crimes and the fortune he had amassed, Capone would have been released from prison within another year, a free man again, able to enjoy the fruits of his ill-gotten gains, reported to have been carefully salted away, and to spend the next thirty or forty years leading the life of a country gentleman.

The six or eight years he has spent in prison seemed small enough penalty for the man Johnnie Torrio brought from New York early in the last decade to "manage" his Chicago bootlegging interests. For it was Capone who introduced strong arm methods into the profession of racketeering which became so popular and so lucrative shortly after the war. Capone had served in that war, and remembered how effective the 45 had been in settling arguments with the Germans.

He was convinced that it could be equally effective in handling the dumb guys who tried to muscle in on his racket. At first he picked them off discreetly, but the 45 soon proved to be too slow a weapon to keep out competition, so the machine gun was brought into action. On St. Valentine's Day, during the very peak of his career, Capone and his mob lined nine competitors against a wall and mowed them down like rats.

It wasn't so long after this that he went to Miami to spend the season. Prominent citizens fell all over themselves seeking his favors. Miami had hit the bottom of its post boom slump and it was worth something to have a man with a roll, even a big shot racketeer, walk into a store and order $3,000 worth of shirts, neckties, and linen suits. He bought a mansion on exclusive Palm Island, right in the midst of the social elite, and settled down to enjoy himself in the style to which he hoped to become accustomed.

If it hadn't been for that little matter of income taxes, "Scarface" Al Capone might have been there yet, entertaining extensively all who were willing to believe that he was no worse than a diamond in the rough, and he might even have engaged in a little business on the side just to amuse himself during the season, possibly cornering the very profitable gambling racket.

And he might have done that, even after his sojourn at Alcatraz, if it hadn't been for the haunting memories of Jim Collins, Dion O'Banion, and the other thugs who got in his way back there in those run-running days. Better to easier to rub out the blood and bone of a rival gangster than it is the agonizing ghost which keeps hanging around after he is gone.

It is a score of such ghosts that have been bothering Capone and they have finally got him on the spot.

Survey Reveals Huge Increase in Auto Tag Sales

It shows how the licensing of automobiles increased from 1,000 tags in the five-year period of 1905-1910 to 450,000 tags in 1933. About 100 different makes of automobiles are shown on the old license records, being cataloged by workers on a WPA project here. Only a dozen of them are present on the new tags.

Prison Population Gains 89 in January

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Florida's prison population showed a net gain of 89 during January. The prison bureau reported there were 2,335 convicts in prisons and road camps on Dec. 31, 1937, and the number increased to 2,424 by the end of January.

Deaths Occur in Florida Industry During Past Month

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 10.—Industrial accidents accounted for 7 deaths in 41 counties of Florida during the month of January. These counties also reported 284 industrial accidents for the same period.

Among the counties reporting more than 100 accidents Dade county led with a total of 606. Duval reported 587, Gulf Breeze 178, Hillsborough 152, Palm Beach 140, Monroe 125, Orange 105, Pinellas 102.

The counties reporting deaths from industrial accidents were Palm Beach with 3, Hillsborough 2, Leon 1, Seminole 1.

General contracting led all industries in this type of accident with 532, followed by saw mills with 146, automotive industry 140, hotels, restaurants and clubs 138, highway construction 109, packing houses 100. The balance of 1975 accidents were reported by 140 various industries.

The drop from 4078 industrial accidents in December to 3245 in January is very gratifying, stated H. J. Egan, director of the Safety department of the Florida industrial commission. "We feel confident that it shows a tendency on the part of both the employer and the employee to observe the laws of safety which will lead to increased efficiency in administration, and less accidents and physical suffering for the worker."

The safety director announced that his department would hold a number of safety councils throughout the State. The next council being scheduled for Miami sometime in March.

PLENTY OF TIME

LONDON.—(AP)—Much of the old still lives in modern London. Despite the fact that a nearby clock does the job quite well, an old nightwatchman still calls out the hours of the night in Elyplace, a tiny dead end street in the heart of the city.

Nightly from 10 until dawn he takes his cue from the neighboring clock and walks his little beat after the hour has struck, calling "It's ten, past ten," or whatever the hour may be.

Special Desires Information About Florida Animals

LANHAM, Feb. 16.—(By) Mr. Kennedy, secretary of the game and fish commission, wants to know if any one in Florida ever killed a panther with more than 23 antlers. He wants to know the record in deer. He also wants to know the record in alligators. Mr. Kennedy said he had heard recently about Durrance's big deer. He asked the Oklawaha man if he had killed a panther. Durrance brought the panther to the game and fish department to prove his story. He left the antlers there for a while. A deer horn was placed in the antlers and a rattle was made of a panther which weighed 155 pounds. Kennedy killed the panther in the average in 1931. He had 23 antlers. A game warden killed the panther near Brighton several years ago and gave the skin to Kennedy who said he believed it was the biggest ever killed in this state. He would like to know all about it in Florida game. Kennedy writes people to tell us they know.

FOR SMOOTH MUSH
To prevent cornmeal from becoming lumpy in making mush, add one cup of cold water to a cup of meal. Mix the two well. Then add four cups of boiling water and one and a half teaspoons of salt. Mix thoroughly and add the meal slowly. Let boil for two minutes. Then allow to boil an additional hour in a covered double boiler placed over a low heat. Stir frequently and serve hot with milk. The mush may also be poured into a hot, oiled pan and fried into a crisp, golden brown. Heat as soon as the pans or griddles are removed from the fire.

Helps For Housewives

If your kitchen work table is too low put casters on each leg. Protect your waffle iron and other seldom-used kitchen utensils by keeping them in a flour or sugar sack fastened with a rubber band or string. Make your own kitchen containers out of coffee, baking powder or cracker cans. Remove all paper coverings, then paint or shellac the cans and put labels on them.

A coating will often form over the top if boiled custard is left standing. To prevent this, stir the custard a minute or two after it is cooked, let it cool, then stir again. Pour the custard into a dish, cover tightly and allow it to chill.

Bananas "Ah Rhum" may be made by sprinkling one tablespoon of rum, a few drops of lemon juice and a bit of brown sugar over the fruit. Arrange the bananas in a shallow well-buttered pan and bake them until they are soft. (About twenty minutes.)

Scrappe can be made at home by adding chopped cook meat, cheese or chicken to thick cornmeal mush. Put this mixture in a bowl and chill it. Then slice it and brown the slices in a little fat in a frying pan. Serve plain or with syrup or scrambled eggs. Try serving minted lamb sandwiches at your next tea. You mix half a cup of chopped cooked lamb with two tablespoons of mint jelly, one tablespoon of chopped sweet pickle and three tablespoons of salad dressing. This mixture will fill eighteen small sandwiches.

Fishermen Puzzled Over Strange Fish

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10.—(P)—Members of the shrimp boat "Ramos" were puzzled recently when they captured in their nets a large fish which appeared to be a cross between a shark and a porpoise. Investigation revealed that it apparently was a thresher shark, approximately 11 feet long and measuring about four feet in circumference around the largest part of its body. There are four under fins, two near the front and others toward the back part of the body. One fin grows out of the back of the fish and the long tail is of a semi-curved shape.

To prevent chipping or cracking of dishes and glassware when they are being washed, place a folded towel in the bottom of the dish pan and lay another one in the rack used for rinsing.

U.S. Re-enters Armament Race Five Years Late

Government Has Been Marking Time Since 1921 Naval Treaty

WASHINGTON—All this talk of the United States building "a navy second to none" boils down to this: Uncle Sam is getting into the naval armament race—five years behind the leaders.

In naval building, the United States has been marking time since the Washington naval treaty was signed in 1921.

That treaty halted the maddest building race the world had seen until then, and established the ratio among the three leading naval powers at 5-5-3. It meant Great Britain and the United States each could maintain 15 battleships to Japan's 9, and the rest of their fleets in like proportion.

The British and Japanese were happy to sign the dotted line back in 1921, because the race was getting tough, and Uncle Sam was about to go away out in front with the mightiest fleet ever known.

What It Cost Your Uncle They were glad, indeed, to scrap hundreds of millions of dollars worth of blueprints—mere navies on paper—and in turn persuade Uncle Sam to scrap construction, plus plans for three more.

The 1921 treaty was renewed in 1930, continuing the old ratio for six years. And why not? The world was a fairly peaceful place to live in about that time.

But by 1930, things had changed a good deal. Hell had popped in Ethiopia, was even then popping in Spain, and was about to pop in China.

Japan decided she could not risk signing any more treaties, and notified the world she would be through with agreements on January 1, 1937. Exactly a year ago, therefore, the race was on in earnest all over again.

There had been plenty of indications that the Japanese would be unwilling to sign up again long before she announced her decision. In fact, both the Japanese and the British had been building up to the limits allowed by the treaties of 1921 and 1930.

Such strong words sound strange from the tongue of a mild-mannered, slow-witted, old-fashioned fellow. He failed to build even all the treaty allowed him to have.

U. S. Gets Underway In 1934 circumstances conspired to draw the old boy back into the sea-saw naval race that even then was in the making.

War clouds were gathering in Europe and the Far East, and Congress was trying to find some way to spend billions in re-arming money on top of that, our navy was getting no younger.

Calculating the effective life of a battleship at 25 years, the first of our battleships would be too old to fight by 1938; half of them would be unfit for modern warfare by 1942 and the whole line of battleships would be obsolete by 1949. The rest of the fleet was aging accordingly.

So Congress passed the Vinson-Trammell act—a law authorizing the navy to build up to par with the British fleet and justify our slogan, "a navy second to none."

The program goes through—the navy will have spent more than a billion dollars for new ships.

A New Program To make our position secure, the navy now wants to finish the program started in 1934—and to start a brand new one besides. It is the request for new building that the President is passing to Congress.

Navy experts say the Vinson-Trammell building program will merely give the United States a fleet in 1942 comparable to the British fleet of January 1, 1937—some five years behind the parade.

Meanwhile other powers have put on another building spurt. The British are taking the lead with five new battleships. Nobody knows what the Japanese are doing now, but gossip says they are building three 44,000-ton battleships. The United States is building two; and France, Italy, Germany and Russia account for the rest of a total of 50 battleships now building or about to start.

It looks as if the military music is going round and round—with no stop sign in sight.

Writer Believes Japanese Invasion Only Just Begun

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN, HORSHAM, England, Feb. 10.—The man who takes credit for adding a new phrase to the English language—"Yellow Peril"—sits by his fire these days and reads of a Japanese invasion which he believes has only just begun.

India, Australia, the Philippines—Japan will have them all before she gets through, in the opinion of gray-haired Matthew Phipps Shiel, who writes blood and thunder novels in a country cottage near this bustling Sussex town.

Not that he disapproves. Japan's rightful place, he maintains, is at the head of Asia. But "Japan is becoming insolent, forgetting her power is a borrowed power. All of her machine runs, battleships, airplanes and such are the inventions of other races."

China's Millions Shiel, who says he has made a special study of the Orient, hammers home with statements like that his strong belief in the superiority of white man's intellect, over yellow.

"Russia or England or America may have to sink a few of her ships and knock Tokyo down to bring Japan to her senses," he goes on. "But I don't think that will be difficult. The yellow race is only the limits allowed by the treaties of 1921 and 1930. Uncle Sam, from the tongue of a mild-mannered, slow-witted, old-fashioned fellow, failed to build even all the treaty allowed him to have.

U. S. Gets Underway In 1934 circumstances conspired to draw the old boy back into the sea-saw naval race that even then was in the making.

War clouds were gathering in Europe and the Far East, and Congress was trying to find some way to spend billions in re-arming money on top of that, our navy was getting no younger.

Calculating the effective life of a battleship at 25 years, the first of our battleships would be too old to fight by 1938; half of them would be unfit for modern warfare by 1942 and the whole line of battleships would be obsolete by 1949. The rest of the fleet was aging accordingly.

So Congress passed the Vinson-Trammell act—a law authorizing the navy to build up to par with the British fleet and justify our slogan, "a navy second to none."

The program goes through—the navy will have spent more than a billion dollars for new ships.

A New Program To make our position secure, the navy now wants to finish the program started in 1934—and to start a brand new one besides. It is the request for new building that the President is passing to Congress.

Navy experts say the Vinson-Trammell building program will merely give the United States a fleet in 1942 comparable to the British fleet of January 1, 1937—some five years behind the parade.

Meanwhile other powers have put on another building spurt. The British are taking the lead with five new battleships. Nobody knows what the Japanese are doing now, but gossip says they are building three 44,000-ton battleships. The United States is building two; and France, Italy, Germany and Russia account for the rest of a total of 50 battleships now building or about to start.

It looks as if the military music is going round and round—with no stop sign in sight.

One of the most enthusiastic passengers aboard Wisconsin's Good Will Train which is to tour the South and East, Feb. 24 to Mar. 9, will be Miss Alice Baker, 17, Wisconsin's dairy queen.

Citrus Commission Conducts Chemical Research Program

LAKELAND, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Scientific research in the medicinal and nutritional values of citrus fruits, oranges and tangerines will be undertaken by the Florida Citrus Commission under a program adopted yesterday which also continues the chemical research work in citrus fruits which it started two years ago.

Eminent nutritionists and chemists will be asked to serve on a board to advise the Commission in studies to develop new information about the food and health values of Florida citrus fruit and to correlate this information with the dissemination of information already developed. Employment of a qualified bibliographer, to search all literature bearing upon the nutritional and medicinal and chemical properties of citrus fruits and to correlate this information for publication and distribution to the medical and dental professions, also was authorized.

The Commission's new research program was adopted following a recent plea by Dr. P. Phillips, Orlando shipper, that it promote the sale of Florida citrus by developing new information about its health values. In the selection of an advisory committee of scientists it will be assisted by Dr. A. W. Thomas, of Columbia University, who has directed its chemical research. Acting upon the request of grovers and shippers that it support an effort to advance the time for selling Florida fruit on the New York auction market, the Commission adopted a resolution en-ing upon the United States Department of Agriculture, through the state agricultural extension service, to make a complete survey of the present methods of selling Florida citrus and other farm crops at auction in New York, and make recommendations for any changes in the system which it finds desirable.

to both growers and shippers. The motion was unanimously approved and it was tentatively decided that 98 to 99 percent of the growers and shippers must agree on the program before the advertising campaign will be launched.

Some prominent growers and shippers in the industry outlined their views in the meeting. Listened to the consensus of opinion was to be in favor of advertising. The shippers, however, expressed doubts as to whether the benefits from a campaign in the season will be sufficient to warrant the expenditure of money.

Many growers also expressed opinions that shippers should bear a greater portion of advertising costs than was indicated in the tentative setup by Mr. Gottschaldt.

Traveling Around America

LOCAL color in every sense of the word is found here—a display of gorgeous dress in a native market in the highlands of Peru. The masterpiece of dress, however, is no modern idea of the Indians—their accoutrements are in fact and origin days were past matters in the art of dress. Although wool, and even cotton, we are told, in those days were endowed by nature with various lovely tints, the Indians found these natural colors too common for a steady diet, and accordingly brewed themselves lovely dyes from plants and animal substances—wisely introducing minerals as mordants to make colors deep and fast.

These early peoples also loved to mix their colors—seemingly having much less fondness for the strong primary colors than some of the aboriginal races. They often loved down yellow with green or brown or delicate mauve cast; and in various shades, in various ways, the lovely shades were combined with the almost dull and rather drab ancient weavers employed in these primitive colors. The fabric of the moderns would never think of doing together and they did it successfully—the secret being the introduction of black outlines between the color-bearing colors. The fabric is in the museums included in the enlightening program of the weekly cruises in Florida are available examples of perfect color harmony.

Brother Of "Great Commoner" May Be In Running Again

LINCOLN, Neb.—(A)—Charles Bryan doesn't say yes and he doesn't say no, but the brother of the "Great Commoner" may be in the running again for governor in 1928.

He retired as mayor of Lincoln last spring, hided he was just about through with politics, the seat of the Bryans to leave politics after approximately 50 years of representation by one member or another of the famous family.

Now Charles W. Bryan recalling he said on his retirement from the mayor's office he had "one wood fight" left, thinks the occasion may be at hand to get that fight out of his system. He's contemplating to enact his "tax equalization plan."

To carry out the proposal, he says he has pledged his active support to place a slate of independent candidates for state office in the field "if it is necessary."

He wouldn't say whether he'd be a candidate himself, but pointed out "I never have promised or pledged I will not again be a candidate."

"Brother Charlie", as he was dubbed when he teamed with the distinguished William Jennings Bryan in the latter's political tactics, is so enthusiastic about his plan he has announced he is giving up operation of his three large farms to devote more time to "special legislation in which I am interested."

Program of the man who was three times governor includes extending of home owners from taxation and enactment of provisions in favor of cars and singing Eire's calling for a state income tax directed at persons investing their money in stocks and bonds; a tax on present tax-exempt securities; a sales tax on luxuries; a tax on the salaries of governmental employes; a reduction in state government costs which he claims are 30 to 40 per cent too high.

The homestead tax exemption proposal will be placed on the ballot as a constitutional amendment if sufficient petitions are obtained.

Chinese Battle To Save Railway Capture By Japs May Open Road To Capital Now At Hankow

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Reliable foreign sources today that the Chinese had refused a Japanese request for large-scale assistance in the war against Japan. They asserted Russia would not supply arms or munitions to the Chinese, and that the Chinese were unwilling to fight a war which would open the door to Japanese domination of the country.

This report came as the Chinese fought to keep eight Japanese columns from closing in on central China corridor along the Langhai railway which lies between the Japanese dominated portions of north and central China.

Vinson Plans To Hike Size Of Naval Bill

Fleet Big Enough To Protect Both U. S.
Coasts A D v o c a t e d
By Representative

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson, Georgia Democrat, told the House Naval Committee he would try to amend the pending $300,000,000 naval expansion bill so as to authorize a fleet big enough to protect both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts at the same time.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, told the committee the fleet now is inadequate.

Major General Johnson Harzog, retired army officer, told the committee the country's national defense and security "is being made a football of politics" because Congress had neglected its duties to make rules and regulations for the land and naval forces.

The United States and Great Britain have agreed to embark on construction of "super" battleships and cruisers exceeding the limits fixed by the 1922 London naval treaty, it was learned last night on high authority.

Efforts Fail To Stop Farm Bill In Senate

Western Solons Ask
Measure Be Given
Back To Committee
For Consideration

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The Senate defeated a move today to delay action on the Administration's farm program. It voted down a request to send the compromise farm legislation back to conference with the House which already has approved the bill. The vote was 43 to 31.

Western senators asked that the bill be sent back to the joint conference committee because of changes made in the provision intended to protect dairy and livestock producers from competition by farmers who reduce their plantings of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice.

The bill ran into a jam yesterday afternoon when Senator Schweigenbach (D Wash.), usually a loyal administration follower, asked that it be sent back to a joint Senate-House committee.

The Westerner argued that the joint committee, which spent five weary weeks drafting the program for controls over production and marketing of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice, violated a Senate rule by modifying the "dairy-livestock" provision.

Celery Group Studies Plan To Advertise

Shippers Committee
Named To Consider
Division Of Costs
For Big Campaign

Fifty-Fifty Basis
May Be Reached
Assessment On Growers
Under This Plan
Is 1 1/2 C Per Crate

A decision on the proposed advertising campaign to increase the consumption of Florida celery was left in the hands of Seminole County Shippers by the growers' representatives of a committee appointed by County Assessor C. R. Dawson at a meeting in the Court House last night, after several preliminary growers declared that action on the proposition was impossible until a definite proposal had been made by the shippers.

As a result, M. J. Cullen, manager for Chase and Company and chairman of the Shippers Committee, called a meeting of shippers for this afternoon at 8 o'clock. Grower members of the committee present also expressed opposition to the proposed plan, which the grower will be assessed three cents per crate while the shipper will be required to pay one dollar per car, but declared that a large majority of growers favor the proposition with shippers sharing the costs with the growers on a fifty-fifty basis as was proposed by the Chase Company representative last night. The growers' assessment is 1 1/2 cents per crate with the shippers paying the amount. Allied industries will also be asked for contributions.

Following adjournment of the meeting several leading shippers intimated that shippers might consider this proposal for this year in view of the existing circumstances in the industry but expressed doubt as to the consideration of the proposal on a permanent basis, declaring that the grower through the increased demand which is expected to result from the drive will benefit to a large extent.
