

Guard Against Summer Lightning

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newswire

Being safe in summer should be a prime concern as we become more active than usual and perhaps less cautious in work and play. Accidents in backyards and vacation resorts may be taken in stride, but some dangers are seldom considered.

For example, increased activity and a high frequency of thunderstorms in summer results in a rise in the number of injuries caused by lightning. Awareness is important because nature may even provide a warning that you are about to be struck, the National Weather Bureau has observed. They have suggested a number of precautions that are worth remembering.

If you feel an electrical charge (your hair seems to stand on end or your skin is tingling) drop to the ground immediately.

If a person is struck by lightning in your presence, do not be put off from helping to resuscitate for fear of getting an electrical charge. Although burned, such people can be handled safely, the weather experts say. A person who appears to be killed by lightning often can be revived by prompt mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, cardiac massage and prolonged respiration.

Outdoor buffs should be especially wary during lightning storms. Golfers wearing exposed clothes are particularly good lightning rods. People in small boats should get out of them as soon as possible in such a storm.

Fishermen using metal rods and golfers with metal rods should seek cover.

If you are traveling in a lightning storm remember "automobiles offer excellent lightning protection." Stay in the car. If you are walking outdoors seek shelter in buildings or a cave, ditch, or canyon.

When there is no shelter, avoid the highest object in the area, these experts advise. If only isolated trees are nearby, it is best to crouch in the open, keeping trees as far away from isolated trees as the trees are high. Avoid hill tops, open spaces, wire fences, metal clotheslines, exposed sheds, and any electrically conductive

Scientists Studying Power Of Lightning

GAINESVILLE, (AP)—The odds are one in a hundred million against an individual being struck by lightning, but a person who gets hit has only a 50-50 chance of survival, says an expert in the field.

Dr. Martin Uman, an electrical engineer at the University of Florida, and a team of graduate students are conducting experiments at Cape Canaveral this summer in a mobile lightning research laboratory.

The project is designed to measure the electrical current in a bolt of lightning.

The researchers are studying the electrical and magnetic properties of lightning in experiments aimed at helping the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) come up with new techniques to avoid lightning damage to their facilities.

Spacecraft have been struck by lightning several times during electrical storms although there have been no serious injuries.

Working from a 45-foot trailer converted into a lab crammed with sensitive monitoring equipment, the Florida team plans to indirectly measure the strength of a lightning bolt by measuring the strength of lightning-caused static from a radio receiver.

'Sunshine Law' Disclosure: Rep. Hattaway Files Early

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

State Rep. Robert Hattaway (D-Altamonte Springs) filed documents with the Seminole County clerk of the circuit court's office today disclosing his net worth at just short of $1 million.

The documents already filed in Tallahassee, as required by the state law implementing the "Sunshine Amendment" to the Florida Constitution, were filed locally as well, Hattaway said.

Because "my constituents here have the right to know that I am not reaping financial benefits from office," Hattaway, serving his second term in the Florida House of Representatives, filed not only the prescribed form, but also a copy of his 1976 income tax return. The document showed that Hattaway's net income in 1976 from his business interests was $139,723 and that he paid $59,599 in federal income tax last year.

"Anyone who wishes to examine the documents may go to Clerk of the Circuit Court Arthur H. Beckwith Jr.'s office and may have copies made as well," the legislator said.

Of comments from other officials that the disclosure jeopardizes the families of elected officials or make them subject to kidnapping threats, Hattaway said, "If someone wanted to do me harm, they would not go to the courthouse and look up the financial disclosure. Rather, they would look to see if I were driving a Mercedes or lived in a $300,000 home. Anyone can find out my financial worth by calling on the credit bureau or Dun and Bradstreet for information," he said.

The documents show that Hattaway is "very heavy" in the credit bureau and Dun and Bradstreet for information, he said.

"It's up to the people to decide if they want this on the local level. If so, they can request their own city, county councilmen and zoning boards etc. to comply by changing their charters or by-laws," he said.

Hattaway filed the documents 15 days before the Aug. 1 deadline. "I decided to file early and be done with the thing," he said.

The legislator also ended speculation that he will be a candidate for either the Congress or the Florida Senate

Last Day To File ...

The 10 dozen elected and appointed city and county officials in Seminole County who have not as yet filed their financial disclosure documents face a 5 p.m. deadline today.

Gunny Huff, finance supervisor in Clerk of the Circuit Court Arthur H. Beckwith's office at the courthouse, said today that an estimated 125 officials must file today to meet the deadline.

Documents to be filed include: disclosure of income, gifts and donations received, statement of clients the officials may have represented before governmental agencies, disclosure of business interest in banks, insurance companies, mortgage concerns and other enterprises under the control of the Public Service Commission and voting conflicts of interest.

Failure to file could result in removal from office by the Florida Ethics Commission.

Some 165 officials had filed their disclosure papers prior to today.

Miss Huff said the Ethics Commission has not as yet requested Beckwith's office for a statement naming those who have complied with the law.

Seminole Residents Invited To Examine Growth Plan

By MARK WEINBERG
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Planner Bill Kercher Thursday invited county residents to visit the courthouse in Sanford to examine the planning staff's draft of a short-range development plan, which includes detailed plans for the county's unincorporated areas, capital improvements proposals and a listing of parcels of land in unincorporated areas the planning staff recommends for rezoning after the plan is adopted in late September.

"We want as many people as possible to look over the short-range development plan. We want their comments and suggestions," Kercher said.

If you can't visit the courthouse, Kercher will visit your organization. "All groups need to do is call us. We'll be happy to arrange a time to meet with any group in Seminole County," said the planner, whose staff prepared the draft of the short-range development plan.

The planning office will conduct public hearings on the short-range plan at the courthouse on July 28, at Casselberry city hall on Aug. 11 and again at the courthouse Sept. 1. All hearings will begin at 7 p.m.

The county commissioners will conduct hearings on the entire plan on Sept. 13 and 27 at 7 p.m. in the courthouse. Following the second hearing, commissioners plan to adopt the entire comprehensive plan, which includes three volumes of policy guidelines (called the development framework), the short-range plan and an intergovernmental coordination statement.

Though the draft of the short-range plan identifies what Kercher called a "small number" of parcels the planning staff recommends for rezoning, the planner emphasized that adoption of the plan will not by itself rezone any land.

The short-range plan will provide a policy guide for future zoning action by the county commissioners, and the short-range plan states that "land development ordinances (zoning, subdivision, etc.) will be amended to conform with the adopted comprehensive plan."

The short-range plans for different areas of the county may differ from current land use. The plans classify the differences in four categories:

— Where future land use proposals provide a more intense use than the current one, "the difference is not considered to be a 'conflict' between the plan and the zoning ordinance."

— Where future land use proposals exceed current zoning on undeveloped property, the planners recommend no future zoning change.

— Where the existing use exceeds the intensity of future land use proposals, "no 'conflict' will exist and the situation will be referred to as a 'non-conforming use,' and 'no action will be taken by county government to bring existing structures or uses into conformance with the plan.'"

— Where existing zoning exceeds future land use proposals, some of the parcels produce "conflicts" with the plan. These sites or subdivisions plan "is zoned for use that has no approved site or subdivision plan" is zoned for use that is more intense or dense than that indicated on the plan."

BILL KERCHER ... We want their comments.

Agencies Seeking N. Y. Blackout Culprit

HUP, TWO, THREE, FOUR

Since Monday they have been marching, drumming, spinning — all part of the Pride of the South Flag & Rifle Camp hosted this week by Lake Brantley High School in Forest City. Representatives from schools in the South are instructing about 200 students and teachers with flags, rifles, drum lines, majorettes, dance groups and drum majors. Seven Central Florida schools are represented, including three from Seminole County — Brantley, Lake Howell and Lyman.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulsing again with a heavy flow of auto traffic and nearly normal runs of subways and commuter trains, New York City went back to work today as federal officials opened their investigation into why the lights went out — and why they stayed out for so long.

Today's Federal Power Commission hearing in Manhattan, requested on Thursday by President Carter, was the first of three by governmental agencies trying to fix blame for the blackout that shut down the nation's biggest city for an entire day. Carter ordered an FPC report in two weeks.

At 8 a.m. today, Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who established a panel to conduct one of the investigations, officially lifted the state of emergency he had imposed on the city.

Beame said that following a quiet night and with electrical power restored to virtually all of the 10 million persons affected by the blackout, the city was ready to resume its regular daily routine.

During the 25 hours the power outage lasted, it spread economic damage reaching at least into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

In poorer neighborhoods around the city, merchants — mostly owners of small businesses — set about the difficult task of rebuilding from damage caused by looters, more than 3,400 of whom were arrested Wednesday night and early Thursday.

Beame said he was "deeply concerned by the economic chaos that resulted from the senseless looting that took place. The business people who were victimized must be helped as soon as possible and those who committed the crimes must be dealt with in a severe manner."

Beame planned to tour those areas hardest hit by the looters later in the day. The mayor and Gov. Hugh L. Carey joined the state's two senators, Republican Jacob K. Javits and Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan, in urging President Carter to approve federal aid to the small-business men hit by the looters.

In today's early rush-hour period, auto traffic was heavier than normal from northern suburbs, from Long Island and from New Jersey, all converging into the business districts of Manhattan. Many of the millions of commuters seemed intent on getting to work early, or at least on time.

But delays began building as traffic backed up at the bridges and tunnels which feed into the 14-mile-long island of Manhattan.

Commuter trains and the city's public transportation system of subways and buses were functioning at a near normal pace.

The Transit Authority reported that most subway trains were running on schedule. The Long Island Rail Road said it was running a full schedule with only scattered delays.

Sky King Ranch Fund-Raising Days Are Over

Sky King Youth Ranches of America Inc. will surrender its fund-raising certificate "immediately" ending its activities in Florida, according to Edd Gentry, division director, Florida Dept. of State in Miami.

"That will end the Dept. of State investigation," Gentry said today. Investigation into operation of the facility headed by Kirby and Carolyn Grant had continued intermittently since November.

"There is no penalty attached to this action, or to revocation of any fund-raising license," said Gentry.

All properties owned by the ranch must now be sold and, "I was told that funds from the sale of anything owned by the ranch would be distributed to other charitable organizations," said Gentry.

Gentry said the agreement to surrender the certificate, which permitted the organization to continue fund-raising despite the recent closing of its child-care facilities, was made with attorney for the ranch, Maurice Shams on Thursday afternoon by telephone.

Mrs. Grant had voluntarily surrendered the ranch's certification as a child-care facility early this week to the Dept. of Health and Rehabilitative Services, ending the ranch's function as a home for boys. — MARYLIN SHEDDAN

House Commerce Committee Okays Carter Energy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special House committee will consider President Carter's energy program basically in the form he wanted it.

That was assured Thursday when the House Commerce Committee voted 23-20 against a proposal to deregulate natural gas.

The vote was on a compromise that included a windfall profits tax on natural gas producers, included to counter Carter's argument that deregulation would lead to a $70 billion consumer ripoff.

They'd Rather Forget

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — One year ago today, 26 children from this community of 4,500 and the driver of their school bus were kidnapped.

The story grabbed the world's attention. Residents of Chowchilla who think about the case at all say they would rather forget it. And some think the only people who care about the kidnapping are reporters who have to cover the current pre-trial hearings for three defendants. The hearings, recessed today, were to resume Monday.

No-Fault Gets Carter Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., has a new ally in his fight for national no-fault auto insurance: President Carter.

Magnuson, who first held hearings on no-fault in 1967, said, "With that help I think we can win."

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said Carter told him that Transportation Secretary Brock Adams would testify before the panel today in support of the bill.

Apopka Officer Shot By Suspect

Last year, March 2, 1976, a white male, 6'11" tall and weighing approximately 300 pounds, was noticed by Apopka Police Officer Andy Yelvington in the vicinity of Bryan's Garage. The suspect was moving towards the rear of the garage and was carrying a six-pack of beer. Yelvington stopped his police car and got out to investigate, using his flashlight to follow the suspect around the rear corner of the garage.

As he rounded the corner of the building, he came upon the suspect, who had been joined by a second male, possibly of Mexican descent. Shining his flashlight on the two men, Yelvington shouted at them to freeze. Without warning, the second man spun towards the policeman, firing three shots, two of which struck Yelvington in the chest.

The suspect then fled the scene, running across Highway 441 and into the night. The white male also ran, but in the direction of the fence behind the garage.

Yelvington, severely wounded, began to make his way back to his patrol car. Upon reaching the front of the building, he discovered the white male suspect walking rapidly down the sidewalk immediately in front of him. Sinking to his knees, Yelvington drew his gun and commanded the suspect to halt and managed to hold him at bay until help arrived.

Police believe a Mexican male in his mid 20's, 5'8" and 155 pounds, with long black straight hair, mustache and goatee, is responsible for wounding Yelvington.

Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor ruled sentences Thursday to Mitchell Valentino Brown, 20, and Samuel William McClaren, 20.

Brown drew a five-year prison term to be served consecutive to any term pending on a probation violation. He earlier pleaded guilty to burglary of Faust's Drug Store in downtown Sanford. # Sanford Visitor Found Dead In Swimming Pool At Motel

Sanford police said an autopsy today was expected to determine if an Ohio man visiting in Sanford drowned or had a fatal heart attack while swimming at a local motel.

Samuel D. Thomas, 55, of Brook Park, Ohio, was found on the bottom of the pool at Holiday Inn about 5 p.m. Thursday by his granddaughter, police said.

Other motel visitors pulled Thomas from the water and efforts by fire department rescue and ambulance personnel to revive him were unsuccessful. Detective Sgt. William Dube said the victim, who had a heart condition and had undergone open heart surgery about 10 years ago, was dead on arrival at Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Police said Thomas and his wife had been vacationing here while visiting relatives in central Florida.

Woman Gets Artificial Windpipe

MIAMI (AP) — A Margate mother, who doctors say has been strangled slowly by a cancerous tumor, now is recovering from experimental surgery that gave her an artificial windpipe.

"I'm a rare medical case," Marge Colligan said Thursday. "I feel great. My voice is a little lower and my incision is about 14 inches, but my husband thinks it looks nice."

Dr. Abelardo Vargas, the surgeon who performed the operation June 28, said Mrs. Colligan is the first Floridian to receive an artificial trachea. He said there are only 27 other recorded cases of such an operation.

Mrs. Colligan, 26, was hospitalized in May after pressure from the tumor made every breath a battle. Surgeons in Hollywood tried to remove a piece of the tumor to aid her breathing. When that failed, she was transferred to Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital.

"She was very bad, and you cannot rebuild the trachea when the tumor is so big," said Vargas.

He said he tried to curb the tumor's growth with radiation treatments while studying information on artificial tracheas.

When he telephoned a specialist in Boston, he was warned against the procedure.

"He told me we were going to have to let her die," said Vargas. "But we couldn't do that."

Vargas also contacted Dr. William E. Neville of the New Jersey Medical School who had performed similar operations. Neville encouraged Vargas to go ahead with the procedure.

"He told me the whole story — that I had a rare cancer and that I was very serious," she recalled. "I was scared to death. I wondered what they were going to do to me."

She underwent surgery for six hours as Vargas and a team of doctors replaced 8 1/2 inches of her windpipe with the prosthetic device.

County Insurance Nets Award

Seminole County's self-insurance program for workers' compensation, liability and property coverage will receive a national achievement award from the National Association of Counties (NACo) at the organization's national convention in Detroit later this month.

NACo established the awards program "to give national recognition to progressive county developments which demonstrate an improvement in county government's service to citizens," according to Bernard F. Hillenbrand, NACo's executive director.

"All local governments can learn from your excellent program," Bob Ellis, Seminole's director of administrative services, will attend the NACo convention in Detroit July 23-27 to accept the national award on behalf of the county government. Ellis manages the self-insurance program, which was established by a September, 1976, vote of the county commissioners.

WEST PALM BEACH, (AP) — Raids by U.S. Customs and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) officials here for Laetrile were part of a two-state action against distribution of the controversial substance.

Meyer entered his plea Wednesday before Circuit Judge Dorothy Pate. She said Thursday that he must donate 96 hours during his probation to community service.

Water Conservation Is Topic

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Representatives from 35 drought-stricken counties are in Tallahassee to plan a water conservation program funded by the federal government.

Bill Knight, acting director of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said in a press release Thursday that the program will start when funds are available. He set an Aug. 1 target date.

next year.

"I am going to seek reelection to the House," he said, adding he has many opportunities there to exert leadership to benefit Seminole County.

Hattaway mentioned in particular single member districting, which should give Seminole County two legislators and one state senator, unless constitutional revision cuts the membership of the houses of the Legislature.

"I've built up a good reputation with the agricultural industry statewide and Seminole County is still heavily agricultural. There is a good possibility that I will be named chairman of the agriculture committee," he said that he was among those legislators who asked Gov. Reubin Askew to call the Legislature back into session to consider repeal of the law mandating fines and fees of $77.50 to persons convicted of moving traffic violations.

Hattaway said he had also told the speaker of the house and the president of the senate of local opposition to the law.

"Law enforcement officers have told me of their reluctance to issue citations when too high a fine is levied. The law is really an injustice to the people of the state," he said.

Hattaway said he has heard Seminoles who are considering legislative action because the Legislature might consider overriding his veto of legislation that would have placed locally elected officials under the more stringent financial disclosure laws.

He said that he does not believe the people in approving the "Sunshine Amendment" intended for local — City and County — to be included under that law.

A law is already on the books requiring a less stringent financial disclosure by local officials.

Group May Suggest Restoring Oklawaha Canal Task Force Hip-Deep In Arguments

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A Cabinet-appointed task force can't seem to agree on what to do with completed portions of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

Members of the panel stopped insulting each other just long enough Thursday to get down to work on a variety of proposals for disposing of the locks, darsas and reservoirs along the one-third completed waterway.

They even cast what one member branded a "meaningless" 96 straw vote against draining Lake Oklawaha, a key canal feature.

Although the reports won't be final until Monday, comments by the advisory panel of state, federal and local officials indicate that members lean toward a modest plan for restoring the Oklawaha River. Restoration cost estimates range from $4.8 million to $16.1 million.

The panel's comments will be presented to a three-member group that will draw up a formal recommendation to Gov. Reubin Askew, the Cabinet and top federal officials. The report ultimately will go to President Carter and Congress as a recommendation for disposing of canal lands if the waterway actually is scrapped.

Askew and the Cabinet voted 6-1 last December recommending that Congress officially kill the canal. Carter has urged Congress to reauthorize it. But some powerful legislators and canal-route counties still are fighting to keep the project alive.

The task force wrote down comments to options for disposing of all man-made features of the canal. Examination of the ballots for one vote indicated scant support for total restoration of the completed canal between the St. Johns River Swamp to Lake Oklawaha.

"Within a very few years, there will be a frenzied rush to complete the CFBC," said Ric Altoebis, a Daval County representative. "Don't waste this money. Complete the canal."

Said David Anthony, an official of Florida Defenders of the Environment: "Although philosophically we would like to see the canal filled for aesthetic reasons, we feel the price may be too high for the benefits to be gained."

Draining Lake Oklawaha and restoring it to its natural state, however, is regarded by some officials as the key to naming the Oklawaha River as a federally protected Wild and Scenic River. Officials proposed a drainage plan that would take up to six years.

Indicating the depth of remaining disagreement, the members voted against draining Lake Oklawaha even though the task force's charter requires drainage of the lake near the eastern terminus at Palatka.

Charles Lee of Maitland, a Florida Audubon Society official, urged die-hard canal supporters to look toward getting the best possible economic advantage from restoring the river. He said the influx of visitors along the river could lead to new economic opportunities.

But Lee was testy at his obstinacy and, at one point, said that a bridge across the canal should be left intact because it makes a nice place to put a marker by the road saying: "This marker commemorates the folly of man."

Graham: Convene On Fines

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — With Gov. Reubin Askew refusing to call a special legislative session to roll back stiff increases in traffic fines, one lawmaker is calling on leaders in both houses to reconvene.

Sen. Robert Graham, one of seven senators who asked Askew to call the special session, Thursday fired off a letter to Senate President Leo Brantley and House Speaker Donald Tucker asking them to recall lawmakers.

Graham, D-Miami, said the session is needed to repeal the increases and "to bring an immediate halt to the statewide crisis."

Graham and Rep. Tom Patterson, D-Pensacola, also filed bills for the 1978 session to reopen the controversial section of the auto reform law that provides for the traffic fine hikes.

Askew press secretary Paul Schmitt said the governor had no intention of calling a special session.

"It is his feeling that Florida can live with this law at least for the coming year," Schmitt said.

"The legislature spent a whole session addressing this issue. The governor feels that whatever product a special session could come up with would be no better than what they already have," he said.

Graham said he is considering appointing a blue-ribbon committee to study auto insurance and make recommendations for the 1978 legislature.

Meanwhile, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter added his voice to those calling for a special session.

Gunter sent Askew a letter urging the session, saying the auto insurance problem would cost Floridians $750 million in the next year.

The stiff new fines which brought loud protests from motorists and police were part of an auto insurance package aimed at lowering auto rates by severely penalizing bad drivers with increased fines and using the money to reward good drivers with rebates.

The minimum moving traffic violation was boosted from $25 to $57.50 while drunk driving convictions went up $200.

The senators seeking the special session said "potentially terribly destructive" efforts already were being felt, including police refusal to issue tickets.

Cruise Missile Needs Muscle

President Carter's decision to forgo the B-1 bomber emphasizes the cruise missile's development and its importance in any new strategic arms limitation agreement.

To produce the cruise missile will cost from $750,000 to $1,000,000 each, and to modify the B-52, which will launch the cruise missile, will cost $700,000 each.

The administration made two sensible proposals. One would have reduced the numbers of ballistic missiles allowable while constraining the Soviet Backfire bomber and placing new range limits — perhaps 1,500 miles — on the American cruise missile.

The President already has announced plans to explore the possibility of designing cruise missile carriers that could serve as launching platforms. The development of the cruise missile thus seems virtually assured.

The development of the cruise missile thus seems virtually assured. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said for the missile's prosperity at the SALT table.

The administration made two sensible proposals. One would have reduced the numbers of ballistic missiles allowable while constraining the Soviet Backfire bomber and placing new range limits — perhaps 1,500 miles — on the American cruise missile.

Clearly, the cruise missile then was the most important single issue between the Soviet Union and the United States. Now it is even more important, because full deployment of the cruise missile is no longer merely a possibility. It is the strongest probability.

And yet, the pattern in SALT negotiations has been that the Americans propose but Soviets "dispose." Though President Carter and Secretary Brown indicate otherwise, we wonder whether the cruise missile will wind up as a multiple warhead missile, or whether it will have a range considerably less than 1,500 miles when talks are over.

Thanks, Anyway

The action of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in canceling a 5 per cent increase in the price of oil scheduled for July 1 was taken for the sake of internal unity.

Eleven of the 13 OPEC members put a 10 per cent raise in effect last Jan. 1 and announced the plan for the additional increase at midyear, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, however, would agree only to a 5 per cent hike on Jan. 1.

And the bickering has been going on now for six months. Repeatedly, the two reluctant members have agreed to bring their prices up to those of the majority in a compromise that resulted in 10 countries forging the second increase.

The oil-rich nations will lose about $2 billion during the last half of 1977 as the price of solidarity. And their customers will save about $1 billion even with the belated increases of Saudi Arabia and the UAE. With further hikes unlikely this year, oil prices should remain relatively stable.

The energy crisis has not gone away, but thanks, anyway, OPEC.

ANGLE-WALTERS Carter's Budget Campaign

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Judging from some of the rhetoric emanating from the White House these days, it would appear that President Carter's chief economic adviser is polisher Pat Caddell.

In recent weeks, the president and those ostensibly charged with charting his economic policy have been loudly proclaiming their solemn determination to balance the federal budget by fiscal 1981.

This objective, just one of many outlined by Carter in the heat of last year's campaign, has suddenly taken on a peculiar primacy for reasons more closely related to politics than economics.

"People," says budget director Bert Lance, "restate their fears and concerns about inflation to big deficits."

What people? Why, the past and future voters Pat Caddell so astiduously interviews with an eye to perpetuating the presidency of Jimmy Carter.

In his now-famous political strategy memo to Carter last December, Caddell reported that "the public has come to view government expenditures as one of the principle causes of serious economic trouble."

There is only one hitch: most economists insist the painfully high inflation of recent years is unrelated to the federal deficit. We put the question directly to Charles L. Schultze, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisors. "Is the current deficit to blame for the current inflation? No," Schultze replied.

"The prevailing view," says House Budget Chairman Robert Giomo, D-Conn., "is that inflation in recent years has been caused by the high cost of fuel and food. And quite frankly, no one really knows what to do about it."

A good many congressional Democrats believe Carter is making a serious political mistake to insist he can balance the budget by the end of this term — primarily because they don't think his goal is realistically attainable.

"There's not a Democrat up here who wouldn't be delighted to go to the voters in 1980 and brag about how we reduced the deficit from $60 billion to $5 or $10 billion," one Senate source said. "But now we and the president will be judged as failures if we don't eliminate the deficit altogether, and that simply may not be possible by the deadline Carter has set."

The skepticism on Capitol Hill does not stem, as most voters probably suspect, from some blind determination to spend and spend, regardless of the consequences.

Rather, it relates to a well-founded suspicion that Carter and his economic advisers are overly optimistic about the speed and scope of the economic recovery.

The president has set three major economic objectives: reduction of unemployment to 4.5 per cent, reduction of inflation to 4 per cent, and achievement of a balanced budget.

Nursing Homes Kickbacks: Just Routine?

WASHINGTON — The nation's scandal-plagued nursing homes keep coming up with new ways to skin the taxpayers. Now senators have discovered that most nursing homes collect kickbacks as a routine business practice.

Just about all of those who provide a service to nursing homes — from doctors to undertakers — allegedly return part of their payments under the table. Of course, the homes collect the full amount from government Medicaid funds, and the proprietors pocket the difference.

All this petty chiseling adds up to a multimillion-dollar scandal. The sordid details have been assembled in a confidential report, which the Senate Committee on Aging will release later this month. Committee investigators found that pharmacists, laboratories, laundries, food suppliers and other businesses pay kickbacks of up to 25 per cent to nursing homes.

As one vendor explained to the committee, with a shrug: "Kickbacks are a way of life in Medicaid. There is a little larceny in all of us."

The report describes how pharmacists, for example, make their payoffs. Some simply slip cash, running into thousands each year, to the convalescent homes in plain envelopes. Other convalescent homes supply the homes with free drugs, vitamins, cosmetics and other booty.

For homes that prefer less gross transactions, the druggists secretly pay the salaries of attendants or buy stock in the homes. Some also purchase advertising in nursing home brochures at 10 times the normal rate.

Investigators found some pharmacists who even rented space in the linen closets of nursing homes at ridiculous rates up to $1,000 a month. Others made their payoffs in other television sets, boats, desks, automobiles, trading stamps, free use of ski cabins or beach houses and prepaid vacations to Hawaii or Europe.

"The evidence is overwhelming that many pharmacists are required to pay kickbacks to nursing home operators as a precondition of obtaining business," the report states. Those who refuse to play the kickback game are barred from doing business with the corrupt homes. One pharmacist lost three nursing home clients when he tried to cut his kickbacks from 25 to 20 per cent.

Complained a California pharmacist: "The 'sole concern' of many nursing homes is for the buck. Nothing else matters. The public patient in these convalescent homes and hospitals... (is) treated as a piece of living meat — a commodity."

Footnote: Although the Senate investigators found the evidence abundant, only one kickback case has been prosecuted in the last five years.

"The Internal Revenue Service has been anything but aggressive in its enforcement" of the law, the report charges. Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, wants to make kickbacks a felony and encourage a crackdown.

ICE CHEAT CAPERS — The Food and Drug Administration, already under fire for banning saccharin, is now trying to tamper with America's favorite dessert.

The agency wants to relax the recipe requirements for ice cream, permitting manufacturers to replace the milk with cheaper substances such as whey, casein and even cornstarch.

This would save the producers millions of dollars at the expense of the consumers, who would get inferior ice cream for their money.

The man behind the ice cream switch, according to our sources, was the agency's former chief counsel, Peter Hutt. By an interesting coincidence, Hutt used to represent the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers before he joined the government. This was the same association that sought the recipe change.

Hutt insisted there was no conflict. He had not handled the request for a recipe change while he was an attorney for the ice cream makers, and he merely "approved" the new regulations as the counsel for the government, he told us.

Yet internal documents show that Hutt, in his role as a government official, huddled with the ice cream men at least twice. They not only pleaded for permission to use milk substitutes but requested that the cheaper ingredients be listed as "milk products." They wanted the government to allow them to misrepresent the contents, according to the memo, because "consumers have a low opinion of whey."

The estate ice cream makers, meanwhile, are already developing cheaper mixtures. "To be honest," one admitted to us, "we'll put in just enough milk to get it on the label."

Footnote: A confidential White House memo warns that the change will cost the taxpayers as much as $183 million a year in higher price supports for the milk producers, who are already in an economic squeeze and can scarcely afford to lose the ice cream business.

President Carter told Sen. Herman Talmeridge, D-Ga., in a private letter that he is "concerned" about the impact on milk price supports.

Food and Drug officials contend, in turn, that the cheaper ingredients will lower the price of ice cream. But Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman, in an interview with our associate Howie Kurtz, disputed this prediction.

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., meanwhile, has learned of the ice cream tampering. He told us that the substitutes will "change the very character of ice cream." He will push legislation, therefore, to call the new product "imitation ice cream."

parents, teachers and students for the increased opportunities they will have would certainly seem logical. But fun has nothing to do with it.

Children who are not educated within the school systems of this country today almost have to be children whose parents have, directly or indirectly, prevented that education.

Seminole County provides programs for the unusually bright child, the average child, the child with mental, emotional or physical problems. It provides vocational training, pre-collegiate education and business experience.

In short, there is no child — under any circumstances — who may not receive an education. The rest is up to the child — and the parents. How well will the beneficiaries of this year's funding and education use their privileges?

The future of Seminole County — and the students' individual futures — depend on the answer.

Having that money means Seminole County has a better opportunity to provide healthy salaries for teachers and administrators and to make careful selections from the more than 10,000 textbook titles available as state-adopted teaching materials.

In addition to having to wade through lists of those 10,000 titles (including books on everything from ceramics and motorcycle mechanics to Hebrew and calculus) teachers are also expected to select related materials which will turn learning from drudgery to pleasure.

Why? Because children are too often taught to believe that education is their right and should be "fun."

That the state has provided $38 million to be spread around this county for the education not only of those who wish to be educated but for all people, with no exceptions under any circumstances, is something for which a silent prayer of thanks might be appropriate — a joyous shout of gratitude among

Helicopter Shooting Termed 'Unhappy Incident' By Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The official North Korean Central News Agency has called Thursday's shooting down of a U.S. Army helicopter, in which three crewmen were killed and one was injured and captured, an "unhappy incident."

It said its troops were "compelled to fire" because the U.S. crew tried to evade capture. The Americans failed to heed "repeated warnings" from North Korean soldiers, the agency said.

Issues May Spark Battles At Women's Conference

ORLANDO (AP) — A confrontation between feminists and those opposed to federally mandated programs appeared inevitable today as up to 3,000 women gathered in Orlando for an International Women's Year Conference.

Women on both sides of such issues as the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, abortions and child-care programs predicted that the Florida Women's Conference would be beset by floor fights and sharp controversy during workshops on problems faced by women.

"I would sort of look for it," said state Rep. Gwen Cherry of Miami, the conference chairman.

"It's been my hope that we would stay away from direct confrontation if we could," she added. "We have so many things in common, so many issues that we can agree on. I think it would be very foolish of us if we were to embroil ourselves in controversy."

A number of dissenting groups and individuals threaten to make a fight of it with the federally sponsored organizing committee.

They are unhappy because the coordinating group, headed by Mrs. Cherry, appears to be dominated by women's lib advocates.

Mormon women, in particular, have vowed to turn out by the hundreds to cast their votes against what they call "prepackaged resolutions signifying federal encroachment upon the family unit."

Mormons have taken over similar gatherings in Utah, Oklahoma and Mississippi, routing feminist forces and electing their own delegates to the national IWY conference in Houston in November.

"I have reports of several hundred women coming from throughout the state," said Freeman Baggett of Sanford, president of the Central Florida area of the Mormon Church. "But it's not only Mormons. Individuals who are Catholics, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopallians and other faiths will be on hand."

Baggett said a loose-knit organization was formed in a meeting in Orlando last week of "those people who are concerned and interested in the same basic philosophy of protecting the family."

Leaders of other women's groups objected to specific topics and "cut-and-dried resolutions" but said they would participate.

Shirley Spellerberg of Miami, president of the Florida Federation of Women for Responsible Legislation and a leading ERA opponent, said, "I'm very upset about the $5 million they are spending nationwide. Tax money shouldn't be used for such purposes... And Florida is getting $100,000 for the Orlando conference."

Jean Doyle of Maitland, Florida director of the National Right to Life Committee, said she disagreed with some of the objectives of the conference but wasn't beaten in the living room of his home and again in the front yard while his children begged the officers not to kill their father.

Hospital records showed Asher had an operation for removal of a ruptured spleen and had cuts and bruises on his head, arms and legs.

Witnesses said the incident began as Asher protested the arrest of a friend and neighbor. As Asher returned to his home, witnesses said, the policemen followed him.

Another jury awarded Asher $70,000 as the result of the beating. Despite the two verdicts, Underhill John Nelson said no disciplinary action will be taken.

Death Row Woman Files Bias Lawsuit

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — Sonia Jacobs says she will doesn't have all the privileges given men on Florida's death row. And her lawyer says she should be paid for some of the past inequities.

Asked if she wanted to run, she replied, "Yes, but not away. I just want something with more exertion."

When allowed to see visitors, Miss Jacobs says they have to talk through a mesh screen.

"You can't really get your heads together, so to speak," she said.

She said she is allowed only two periodicals while males get six.

Sheppard urged Schlesinger to write a permanent injunction in general terms of equal privileges rather than enumerating each privilege.

He also asked that a female ombudsman be named to represent Miss Jacobs with prison officials.

"We are males and we are dealing with a female, and like it or not, we cannot wholly comprehend the needs of a female," Sheppard said.

She was sentenced to death along with her boyfriend, Jesse Tafero, for the killing of a state trooper and a visiting Canadian constable at Fort Lauderdale.

She told U.S. Magistrate Harvey Schlesinger that she is allowed a shower each week, whereas before she had only two a week, but that she still can't shower on weekends.

On the observance of International Women's Year in 1975, President Carter reconstituted the commission and named Bella Abzug of New York chairman. Congress then funded it with $5 million and sanctioned a conference in every state and territory.

Resolutions will go to Houston and then to Congress, she said. "And that report will be a reading on what American women have accomplished."

Former President Ford created a National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year in 1975. President Carter reconstituted the commission and named Bella Abzug of New York chairman. Congress then funded it with $5 million and sanctioned a conference in every state and territory.

Leopard Brings Their Claws Out

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — "Here, Kitty, Kitty," called Mrs. Thomas Beck. "Kitty," a 165-pound leopard named Batsheba, yawned and ambled over to the side of her cage.

Mrs. Beck scratched the leopard behind the ears and Batsheba began to purr — a rumbling noise something like an idling motorcycle engine. The beast then licked the woman's hand.

"We've had her since she was a cub," said Thomas Beck. "She used to sleep in the house on our bed until she got too big."

She just loves company." Most of the Beck's neighbors have accepted their backyard pets, a 450-pound lioness named Elsa in addition to the leopard. One neighbor, however, has filed a complaint.

Beck pleaded no contest in county court Thursday but charges of violating zoning laws and confinement of an animal without sufficient water and food.

Judge Morton A. Kester found Beck guilty on both charges and put him on six months' probation.

Reasons Behind Weight Gain

DEAR DR. LAMB - As a serious dieter I understand it takes 3500 extra calories to add one pound of body weight. But how long does it take for food to transform into neutral body weight? I eat a one-pound can of spinach, for example, the scales reflect a one pound gain, even though the caloric count is very low. Please explain.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a female, age 28, married. I have had infectious mononucleosis for six weeks now. Please explain this virus. How is it caught? How long does it take to recover? If this is the "kissing" disease why doesn't my husband have it?

The spinach weighs a pound, so if you stick it in your stomach it will increase your body weight one pound. The scales would register an extra pound if you held the spinach in your hand. That weight is from indigestible fiber, water and a few calories. The fiber, and undigestible material will be eliminated from the body. The few calories that are left and that have been absorbed after digestion will then be used by your body for energy or if they are extra calories, more than your body needs, they will be stored as fat.

I am surprised how many people do not understand the difference between calories of energy in a food and the weight of a food. A pound of lean round steak with all the fat removed is almost 75 per cent water. The true food value of any food in terms of energy is expressed as its caloric content, not its weight.

Your question indicates you need help so I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Other who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it.

ASK "AS GOOD AS" An Ottawa reader wants to know if it is ever good defense to open a trump, and if so, when.

Today's hand is a good example of a very successful trump opening. There is no general rule as to when, but the usual time is when you think declarer will use dummy's trumps to ruff losers in his own hand.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobs" area of this newspaper. The Jacobs will answer individual questions if stamped self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Both South players arrived at four spades in an IMP match. The king of clubs was opened against the Italian declarer who proceeded to make live odd by eventually discarding three of dummy's diamonds on clubs.

Belladonna opened a trump. His unfortunate opponent won in his hand and played the king of hearts.

Belladonna was in with the ace and promptly led the seven of diamonds.

South studied the situation for a long time. He knew that Belladonna was perfectly capable of underleading the ace-king of a suit. He also knew that he was equally capable of leading from ace-king or king-jack which were two other possible combinations. Finally, declarer went wrong and played low from dummy whereupon the defender had three diamond tricks and a 13 IMP profit.

JDC Breakout: Youth Pleads 'Guilty'

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer

"I was mad about the whole deal... for something I didn't do," Colasante told the court in explaining the escape.

An 18-year-old Casellberry youth, who led an April escape in which 11 juveniles fled the Sanford Regional Juvenile Detention Center, has pleaded guilty to two felony charges as an adult in circuit court.

Dean Joseph Colasante, of 1942 Canterbury Circle, was waived from juvenile court to adult court for trial this week on kidnapping, aggravated assault, armed robbery and auto burglary charges in connection with the breakout.

In a Friday hearing before Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor, Colasante pleaded guilty to false imprisonment, a lesser and included offense of kidnapping, and guilty to aggravated assault. He could receive up to 10 years in prison at sentencing on Sept. 15.

Judge McGregor ordered Colasante held in jail without bond during a pre-sentence investigation.

Colasante told the court under oath that he escaped from the detention center the night of April 18 by holding a smuggled razor blade near the face of detention center staffer Valerie Cellum, 21, while gripping her waist with his other arm and forced her to accompany him out of the center on Sanford's south side as hostage.

"I didn't cut her. I took her outside to the parking lot and let her go," the youth said.

He said he took the woman hostage in a center recreation area. Police said another youth took Ms. Cellum's keys so the group could unlock doors to exit the detention center.

Colasante said he told another juvenile to open the doors. "He knew what he was supposed to do." The robbery charge against Colasante, dropped by State Atty. Douglas Cheshire's office with the entry of the youth's negotiated plea, were in connection with the taking of the keys and entry of Ms. Cellum's auto in the detention center parking lot.

Police said the youthful escapees discussed the hostage with them but quickly abandoned the plan and released Ms. Cellum when they couldn't get her car to start.

When the escape took place the detention center, with beds for only 13 juveniles, was housing 23 boys and girls. Only four staffers were on duty and officials said the overcrowding was a major factor in the escape.

Colasante fled the court he is on probation in Connecticut on burglary, larceny, criminal mischief and criminal trespass charges. He is also being held for Connecticut authorities.

Some Don't Believe In It Lawyers Take Sides On Advertising

By JANE CASSELLBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Reaction among area attorneys regarding the latest Florida Bar Association Governing Board's guidelines limiting the scope and content of newspaper advertising is mixed.

The guidelines were adopted this week in response to a recent Supreme Court ruling allowing lawyers to make use of certain types of advertising. Under the plan, a Florida-licensed lawyer can advertise the range of fees he charges for routine legal services, but still can't advertise his special field.

The new guidelines will also permit a lawyer to advertise office hours, information about bar admissions and a statement of fees charged for initial consultations. The rules did not address the use of Yellow Page listings by lawyers. Beginning last year, a Florida lawyer can list as many as three specialties or sub-specialties after his name in the telephone directory.

Frederic Hitt, Altamonte Springs attorney, plans to take advantage of the new ruling to advertise his services. He said, "Generally legal advertising has been coming on for a long time and I think it is appropriate at this time. Advertising will possibly tend to make attorney fees more realistic and ultimately it would be a good idea if specialties could be advertised."

L.W. Carroll, of the Casellberry law firm of Carroll and Jones, said his office tends to be traditional and has no plans for advertising other than the Yellow Pages listing. He fears advertising might be susceptible to subterfuge. He is not in favor of publishing fees, but if anything it would be helpful to publish the type of attorney. Carroll said his firm's policy is to issue a simple statement acquainting clients with fees for legal services in advance.

James Perry, Sanford attorney, said his reaction was ambivalent and he would take a "wait and see" attitude. Perry said he had "no difficulty" accepting advertising of routine fees. "It would probably help young attorneys as opposed to older ones with established reputations," he added. "If other people advertise and we see it is going to hurt us, sure we'll take paid advertising, too. If we charge reasonable rates it wouldn't matter that much either way."

"There may be some benefit for the public in increased competitive information," said Royce Pipkins of Casellberry. But, he added, "I plan to act extremely conservative, and won't advertise until official guidelines come down" from the ABA.

Altamonte Springs attorney, James Fisher, said he thinks advertising on the basis approved by the Florida Bar is good if handled in the dignity the Bar intended. Fisher objects to the fact that a general practice lawyer could advertise his fees, but he as a personal injury attorney could not even list his specialty. He said he would follow the guidelines, however.

Carmen Bravo, Longwood attorney, said he did not initially see a wholesale rush of attorneys to advertise, but thought it would be used more by a clinic type operation.

Gary Massey, Altamonte Springs attorney, said he did not intend to advertise, but felt in the long run the public would suffer from the ruling as the rest of advertising would be passed on the client.

Attorney James Golden of Sanford said while he was glad to see it come, and although he had no qualms about advertising by other attorneys he did not intend to do so himself. "There is a phase in the development of a private law practice when advertising might be necessary and I can see where it might be helpful to free some of the simple services to the young lawyer with low overhead," Golden said.

THOROUGH WORKOUT

The name of the game is exercise, and one of the best ways to participate is through the conditioning class at Seminole Community College as men, women and even some youngsters around town have discovered. Mike Blythe, 14, tries out a Nautilus machine in the conditioning room under the watchful eye of instructor Lewis Jacobs. Who else is shaping up? See Page 1-C for story, photos.

Offices May Leave Sanford

By MARK WEINBERG Herald Staff Writer

Within two months the Seminole County Commissioners will reach a decision to solve the problem of insufficient office space at the courthouse in Sanford that may lead to moving some county offices out of the city's downtown.

During the process of adopting the county budget for the fiscal year beginning in October, the commissioners will consider several alternatives, including: —concentrating county offices near the courthouse; —expanding courthouse office space by adding a floor on top of the courthouse; and —moving some county offices to the county's 40-acre Five Points complex.

What is certain now is that more office space is needed to accommodate the current level of services by the county clerk, state attorney and 18th Circuit Court judges.

State Atty. Douglas Cheshire filed a lawsuit in 18th Circuit Court Feb. 2 to increase his office space in the courthouse from the current 1,400 square feet to 4,819 square feet.

Circuit court judges who use three courtrooms in the courthouse will meet next Wednesday to determine their future needs for more courtrooms and supporting facilities in the courthouse. The judges have requested two more courtrooms be provided by the county commissioners.

County Sheriff John Polk hopes to move his offices and the county jail to the Five Points complex. The county has received federal funds to build a new jail at Five Points, but Polk's plans to build a law enforcement administration building in addition to the jail will have to wait until an additional $1.5 million in Economic Development Administration funds becomes available from the federal government.

The county now pays $25,000 a year to lease office space outside the courthouse, said Bob Ellis, county director of administrative services and a member of the county's space use team, appointed in May to make recommendations to the commissioners on how to solve the space problem.

Other members of the team are County Commissioners John Kimbroff and Bill Kirchhoff and budget analyst David Hotary.

The county's leased office facilities include a courtroom on Sanford's W. First Street, offices for Human Services Director Troy Todd and Veterans Services Director

Clinton Westbrook at 305 Magnolia Avenue in Sanford, public defender and state attorney's offices in the Masonic Building on Park Ave. in Sanford, an automobile, fishing, dog and boat tag office in Interstate Mall in Altamonte Springs and a combined tag-office space for 268 employees at 83 employed by the Board of County Commissioners, 118 of the county's other elected officials.

Sanford to house the manpower program, which is increasing its staff by 17 persons. None can be hired until office space is provided, according to Lois Martin, the county's manpower director.
