Mount up, we're ridin'

GENEVA — Paul L. Gagnon of Geneva spends a great deal of time on horseback. He was recently cited for logging 2,000 hours on a horse.

The citation was given by the American Quarter Horse Association's horseback riding program. It is sponsored by Drysdale's Western Store in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

AQHA members must complete an official application and pay a one-time $25 enrollment fee. They then receive an official AQHA log sheet with which to keep track of their hours.

A person does not need to own the horse, but all official hours must be accrued on a registered American Quarter Horse.

In addition to the 2,000 hour award, others are given at 50 hours, 100, 250 and 500, and 1,000 hour levels.

For attaining 2,000 hours, Gagnon received a $100 gift certificate from Dan Post ostrich-skin boots, a Resistol black and gold hat, and other prizes.

Concert free to public

The First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., Sanford, invites the public to a free spring concert "Jubilate, Sing Joyfully!" presented by youth choirs at The Riverchase United Methodist Church from Birmingham, Alabama. The concert is Friday, June 10 at 7 p.m.

The 50 singers will present a variety of selections ranging from traditional to contemporary. The choir tours annually throughout the eastern United States.

Gay Day OK at Disney World

LAKE BUENA VISTA — An unsanctioned "Gay Day" at Walt Disney World's Magic Kingdom went off without problems, a park spokeswoman said Saturday.

"It went fine. We had a lot of people with that group," said Jane Adams, a Disney spokeswoman. "I have no idea exactly how many because it's hard to tell who's with the group and who isn't."

Organizers had expected as many as 20,000 gays and lesbians to visit the park in what has become the unofficial kick-off to local celebrations of Gay Pride month.

Signs in front of ticket booths notified visitors that a gay and lesbian group would be visiting and make clear the event is not sponsored by Disney. Company officials said it is treated like any other group tour.

Adams noted there were a few complaints from park visitors who were unaware of the event. She did not know the exact number.

Although some Christian activists had mounted a media campaign against the event over the last few weeks, there were no protesters outside the park Saturday.

David Caton, director of the American Family Association, said he decided several weeks ago not to have picketers at the park on the day of the event. But he said his group did send a few "non-confrontational observers."

"The best protest comes from all the people from around the country who went to Walt Disney World not expecting this kind of thing," Caton said. "They can go back to 'Hometown USA' and tell everybody how offensive it was."

'Write' stuff tested

Students' scores up slightly

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Students in Seminole County are, on average, doing better than they did last year on a test of their writing skills.

The Florida Writing Assessment test was designed to test higher-order thinking skills. The 1990 state legislature mandated the test for fourth, eighth and tenth graders.

For the test, each student is given a topic and is asked to work independently to produce a piece of writing in a 45-minute period.

The responses are scored by two separate graders, using a holistic approach. That is, they rate the piece for its overall quality, while considering the elements of focus, organization, support and conventions (grammatical style).

Math, reading scores slip

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Math and reading test scores dropped slightly among Florida 10th graders taking a national test designed with tougher academic standards.

The state results were a point below last year's tests in the 1994 Grade Ten Assessment Test (GTAT) but that didn't disappoint state education officials.

"This assessment is helping guide Florida's school improvement effort by developing higher expectations for Florida's students," Education Commissioner Doug Jamerson said in a statement last week.

Florida's students were slightly below the national average in reading comprehension and were equal to the national average in advanced math skills, the state Department of Education said.

Almost 100,000 students took the test, which was introduced in 1992. The test includes two 40-minute multiple choice tests, 60 reading comprehension questions and 48 math questions.

Murder trial: 7 years after disappearance

SANFORD — Her middle school friend remembered Kathy Engels as a typical teenager talking about boys, sex, drinking, drugs and places she hoped to visit after getting a driver's license.

"It was big talk, that everybody tried to do," Lorna Brown testified Friday as the first witness in the first degree murder trial of Anton

Daryl Meyers, 34. "We'd just say something to fit into the peer group. Just to be cool."

Meyers is accused of killing Engels, who was 14 when she disappeared over Memorial Day weekend seven years ago. No body nor murder weapon has ever been found. A 1991 Florida Supreme Court decision permits indictment on murder charges using some circumstantial evidence when no

Employees-only restroom goes public

Woman denied access pleased, but will still pursue complaint

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The owner of the Gee Zone Beauty and Fashions store agreed to open the doors of his employees-only restrooms to the public Friday upon learning of a 20-year-old state law requiring him to do so.

A Midway woman denied access to the restroom in April said she was pleased to learn of the action, but said she would pursue a complaint against a store employee she said hurt her arm.

"That's a sheer blessing right there," said Rev. Willie Mae Lowery, minister of First Independent Free Methodist Church in Midway.

Gee Zone owner Orge Dolsenhe said Friday he didn't know about a state law which requires restroom facilities be available for the public in all buildings open to the public. On learning of the law, which dates to 1974, Dolsenhe said he would contact Sanford store manager Kim Bongsun immediately and direct her to make the two restrooms available to the public.

But Dolsenhe said he has no apologies for Lowery. "The whole thing started with an emotional outburst from her," said Dolsenhe.

Bongsun said he once allowed the public to use the toilets but stopped after checks and merchandise were stolen from the nearby stock shelves. The restrooms are located in the rear of the store. They are by a door leading outside. Bongsun said several boxes of packed merchandise were stolen through the rear door when the public was allowed to use the restroom.

Despite the losses, Dolsenhe said he will comply with the law.

"That comes first before security of my stock," he said.

In April, Lowery said she attempted to use the restrooms while shopping in Gee Zone, but a female clerk told her she could not. When she

Community help needed to save academy

By KELLEY MITCHELL
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Residents say Sanford soon will be one of the most talked about cities in central Florida.

Officials and committee members for several different projects hope patrons and history buffs will fundate the area looking for bargains and gazing upon Florida the way it was. Sanford can soon boast the completion of Seminole Town Centre, west of Sanford; development of the lakefront, and the facelift of the historic downtown and residential districts.

Another unique project in the area is the restoration of Hopper Academy, circa 1908, on Pine Avenue and 11th Street in Georgetown, in east Sanford.

The Community Improvement Association of Seminole County has taken on this endeavor with full force the past few years. Members say they've come a long way in their efforts.

"We've repaired and sealed the roof, removed the asbestos tiles from the side of the building, prepared the inside for restoration and salvaged the truss system," said Charles Rowe, president of CIA. "But as with any other major project like this, it always comes down to financing."

The CIA is in the process of applying to the State of Florida for a Special Category Historic Preservation Grants-in-Aid assistance package to complete the restoration. Rowe said the $150,000 grant will be a tremendous boost in finishing off the 90 year-old school.

"We would like to have this project completed by this time next year. But without this grant, our resources will be limited and after all, the building isn't getting any younger."

-Charles Rowe

"We would like to have this project completed by this time next year," said Rowe. "But without this grant, our resources will be limited and after all, the building isn't getting any younger."

Even with the work that has already been done to the facility, the building is in dire need of a paint job and replacement of the windows to deter any further damage to the aged wood.

"We really need to paint the building and restore all of its 77 windows this summer to protect it from any further damage," said Rowe. "The application process for this grant is long. We probably will not hear whether we are recipients of the state money until December."

"Then there is a waiting period before we actually receive the money, six months after the money is in."

Lake Mary plans for hurricanes

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary City Commissioners want to take steps to look out for their own people. Mayor Lowry Rockett, Commissioner Sheila Sawyer and other city officials have called for a working plan on dealing with hurricanes or other natural disasters.

The matter was brought up during discussion at Thursday night's city commission meeting.

While staff members commented that Seminole County was deeply involved in an overall hurricane preparedness plan, Rockett nevertheless insisted that the city should do what it can to take care of its own needs.

"We could get involved with a few other cities in some type of mutual aid plan," suggested City Manager John Litton. "If we made arrangements with, for example, Winter Garden and some other city, if one of us needed help, the other two would go in and work in that area."

"No, what we need is a plan whereby we would take care of our own needs," Rockett continued.

He suggested, "As far as anywhere in this area, if a hurricane hits, it's not going to hit just one city, it'll take out a number of areas, and the county will have its hands full doing whatever it can under its emergency plan."

He continued, "If, for example, this whole area was hit by a hurricane similar to Hurricane Andrew does anyone think that Lake Mary will get immediate assistance? They will take care of larger areas first and unless we have our own plan, there won't be anyone doing a thing for the people of our city."

Sawyer agreed with the concept. "People will be looking to the leadership of our city to continue leading in case of an emergency," she said, "and we should do whatever we can to be prepared."

Rockett admitted that the city could not afford to have large numbers of generators or earth moving equipment which would be necessary in a severe emergency. "But what happens when our people lose electricity, water or sewer service," he asked. "We have to have some plan for them to turn."

Sawyer added that while some of the area schools have already been designated as emergency shelters, other shelters may be needed.

The mayor turned the project over to Police Chief Richard Beary, Fire Chief Duane Mehl, City Manager Litton, and other department heads, to come up with a plan as soon as possible. Beary predicted it may take 60 days or longer to compile a plan, but told the mayor he would begin work on a plan specifically for the city, as soon as possible.

Mehl also responded that there were some suggestions advanced by the state which would also prove helpful, and promised to supply them to the members of the commission as soon as possible.

SCC lowers summer tuition rate

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Going to classes at Seminole Community College will be a little cheaper this summer.

But like all good things, it won't last.

For Summer Term III (which begins on June 23) the matriculation and tuition fees for college credit classes will be reduced to $31 per credit hour.

College officials said the reduction is nearly 15 percent.

Registration for those classes is currently underway. The final day to sign up for those classes is June 22. There will be a late registration period from June 23 through June 27.

The vocational classes and open campus classes are not included in this summer special pricing.

"The district board of trustees felt it would be a good way to encourage students to begin their college prep work in the summer to be ready for college classes in the fall," Robert Lyles, a spokesman for the college said.

The state regulates the tuition fees that colleges are allowed to charge for classes. There is a range, Lyles explained, that the schools can charge per credit hour.

"This is the absolute lowest amount that we can charge for classes," he said. "But after the Term III, the cost will go up again to the regular credit-hour rate."

Under normal circumstances the cost per credit hour is $35.65.

Lyles said the college experiences a slightly lower enrollment in the summer, but it is not really significantly less.

"They (the district board of trustees) just wanted to encourage students to start working on their pre-college work as soon as possible," he said.

SCC offers classes at the main campus on Weldon Boulevard in Sanford, at the Hunt Club Instructional Center, which is located at the Shoppes of Hunt Club at the intersection of State Road 436 and Hunt Club Boulevard and in the evenings at Oviedo and Lake Howell high schools.

Television classes are also available.

Students currently enrolled at SCC may register by telephone by calling 328-2743 in Seminole County or 644-2025. It is an automated system that allows students to enroll in classes without having to stand in line at the college.

For more information, call the SCC admissions office at 328-2050.

Powderpuff explodes at SHS

The tension has been mounting all year. Classes fighting to win the spirit war. The true test has finally happened. Powderpuff...is over. Meetings for all who were interested were held two weeks ago and prospective players were given permission slips to be able to participate.

Powderpuff is the annual game held every year between the juniors and the seniors. Played as a flag football game this is a popular event because it has a new twist to the conventional pads-and-helmet game. The twist is... the girls are the players and the guys are the lovely (ha-ha) cheerleaders. As practices began the girls survived long afternoons of running, playing scrimmage games, and practicing with the ball. Student coaches lead the daily routines and taught the ladies a crash course in the game of football.

Locations of the practices were (supposed to be) secret and so were the times to avoid the opposing team getting their enemies plays. And then the day came.

The first quarter stated off with seniors in possession of the ball. Not able to earn enough for first down the juniors took control. No points scored in the first part, the second quarter began and the seniors scored with a touchdown by Sheila Gillins. Juniors intercepting the seniors' try for an extra point, halftime was marked at a score of 6 to 8, juniors' favor.

While the players were pumped up in the lockerrooms the crowd was entertained by the senior cheerleaders (the juniors didn't have any, what spirit!) and the grudge match began once more.

At the start of the third quarter the seniors' tried every play possible but just couldn't break through the juniors' defensive line. Going for the impending graduates' throats was the underclassmen's goal and they strived toward it.

(I can prove that with the scratch I received on my neck.)

Unable to turn over the lopsided score the seniors accepted defeat gracefully and the juniors celebrated their victory (by two points).

At least the seniors can go away knowing that the game was not rigged and at least they weren't mean. — Jaime Dillman

Hospice needs volunteers

Each year at this time, a large percentage of Hospice of Central Florida's 600 active volunteers leave the Orlando area for northern destinations, where they spend the summer months. You must be at least 18 years of age to volunteer.

HRS reports critical need

Foster, adoptive families needed for abused, neglected children

The Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services reports that there is a critical need for additional foster homes for children in Orange, Seminole, Osceola and Brevard counties.

According to Myriam Santiago, Foster Home Recruiter for HRS, the number of children in foster care continues to rise while the number of available homes are diminishing.

Foster families volunteer their homes to provide temporary care to children who have been placed in HRS custody because of abuse, neglect or abandonment.

HRS provides preparation classes for foster parents and conducts a thorough home study on all applicants. Foster parents are not paid a salary for their services, though HRS will reimburse them for their costs for providing care.

HRS is also seeking adoptive homes for children with special needs.

"Our biggest need is adoptive homes for black children and sibling groups," said

Santiago. "Often we have three or more brothers and sisters that we want to place in the same home. It's tough to find a family that can adopt that many children at once."

Santiago adds that medical assistance and financial subsidies are often available to families who adopt special needs children.

Persons interested in more information about foster care or adoption may contact Myriam Santiago, HRS Foster Home Recruiter, at 423-6269.

Overtraining can harm elite and ordinary athletes

By IRA DREYFUSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — You don't have to work out like an all-star to get a first-class overtraining injury. Even ordinary athletes can do it.

The condition is a devil's reward for trying too hard to be good. So its prime victims are people who are highly motivated — those with the drive and self-discipline needed to work too hard, according to a report in a medical journal, The Physician and Sportsmedicine.

"Most athletes, regardless of skill level, possess an inherent drive to continually improve," the article said. "Ambition often overrides good judgment."

Overtraining syndrome is a vague diagnosis, noted the report by Dr. C. Daniel Hendrickson and physiologist Tony J. Verde, both of The Graduate Hospital Human Performance and Sports Medicine Center in Wayne, Pa. It's caused by not allowing enough time between training bouts for muscles to recover from the strain of exercise.

Among the common symptoms are continual fatigue, muscle soreness and minor infections, along with diminished performance, insomnia and a higher resting pulse rate.

But these symptoms also can have other causes, such as anemia, infection, depression, lack of sleep, excess stress, poor nutrition and excess alcohol use, the study said.

A doctor must be able to tease the various causes out. To do it, he must look at the patient's lifestyle, including exercise habits, Hendrickson and Verde said.

Doctors must keep in mind that less-active exercisers can overtrain with less work than it would take for more-active exercisers, the researchers said.

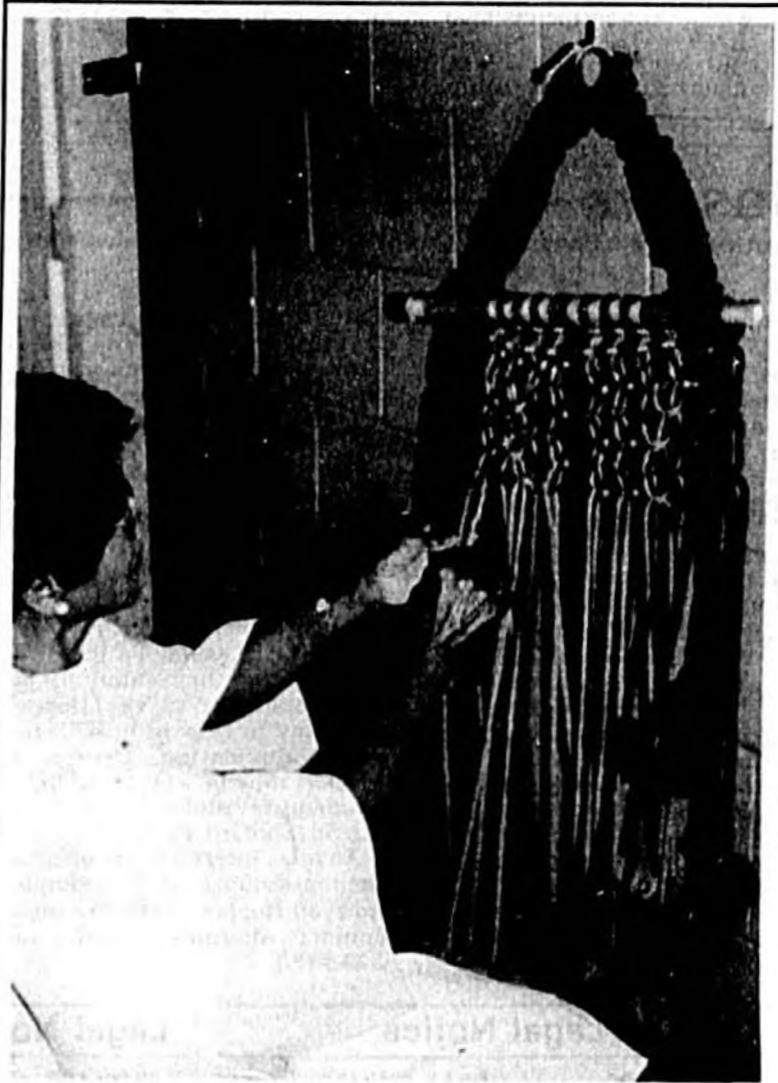

This is partly because a non-elite athlete may not realize that other physical activity in his life will add to the strain he is placing on his muscles, the study said. Elite athletes are carefully monitored and spend much of their time on their sport, leaving relatively little for other activities.

The patients also must realize their problem.

"When treating everyday active people who perceive training as something only elite athletes do, it is often difficult to convince them of a diagnosis of overtraining syndrome," the study said.

To determine a person's overtraining potential, doctors must look carefully at what the person does for exercise, the report said. One area to check is whether the person recently added to his or her exercise load. It said.

The simple way out of overtraining is to cut back on exercise. But getting an athlete to do this is not easy, Hendrickson and Verde note.

Two hours of exercise lowers health risks

By Associated Press

BOSTON — Just a couple hours of workout each week are enough to significantly lower men's risk of heart attacks, a study concludes.

Many studies have shown the merits of keeping active. Still in doubt, though, is just how strenuously people need to push themselves to benefit.

The latest work, conducted in Finland, concludes that for men, the risk of heart attack is decreased by two hours a week of "conditioning physical activity."

They defined this as such intensive exercise as jogging, walking, skiing, bicycling, swimming and gymnastics. In the study, at least, more leisurely activities, such as gardening, fishing, hunting and picking berries, did not seem to have a measurable protective effect.

"Men who engaged in more than two hours of conditioning physical activity a week had a risk 60 percent lower than that of the least active men," the researchers wrote.

The study was conducted by Dr. Timo A. Lakka and colleagues from the University of Kuopio in Finland. It was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The work was based on 1,453 outwardly healthy middle-aged men who were interviewed in the late 1980s. During five years of follow up, 42 of the men suffered heart attacks.

The researchers divided the men into three groups, depending on whether they engaged in relatively high, moderate or low levels of leisure-time activity.

Those in the top one-third averaged 2.2 hours of brisk physical activity a week.

AROUND THE NATION

Mitchell wins 10,000-meter

BOISE, Idaho — Teddy Mitchell of Arkansas surprised himself and the experts by beating Washington State's Josephat Kapkory in the 10,000 meters Friday night at the NCAA Track and Field Championships.

Nobody was more surprised about the 10,000 finish than Mitchell, who won in 29:39.54, overtaking the heavily favored Kapkory with a big kick on the final turn.

"That's probably the greatest race I ever had," said Mitchell, a graduate of Lyman High School. "I wanted to get third. That was my goal."

Arizona State dumps Miami

OMAHA, Neb. — Home runs by Todd Cady and Damon Lembi supported the shutout pitching of Billy Neal and Noah Peery as Arizona State beat top-seeded Miami 4-0 in the opening round of the College World Series on Saturday.

Arizona State (44-16) advanced to Monday's second round against the winner of the Oklahoma-Auburn game Saturday night. Miami (48-13) fell to the losers bracket and will face the loser of Saturday's second game.

Miami relief ace Danny Graves tore a knee ligament in the ninth inning, trying to make a pivot in the grass on a run-down play. He is expected to miss the rest of the tournament. Graves had 21 saves on the season, one short of the NCAA record of 22 by Fullerton State's Scott Wright in 1984.

Wallace wins Goodwrench 200

DOVER, Del. — Mike Wallace used a quick pit stop under caution to take the lead with 66 laps remaining, then held on Saturday for his first Busch Grand National victory in the Goodwrench 200.

Wallace, one of three racing brothers on the NASCAR circuit, beat Terry Labonte by three car lengths (.34 seconds) to win the $231,486 event at Dover Downs International Speedway.

Mark Martin, who won the race in 1987, finished third in a Ford, followed by the Chevrolets of Jimmy Spencer and polesitter Ricky Craven. All the leaders but Craven will race Sunday in the Budweiser 500.

Boesel on Miller 200 pole

MILWAUKEE — Raul Boesel proved Saturday he has the first step down pit, winning the pole position for the Miller Genuine Draft 200 for the second straight year.

Now the Brazilian would like to get that second step accomplished at the Milwaukee Mile on Sunday by giving himself and team owner Dick Simon their first Indy-car victories.

With a smaller rear wing — a move by sanctioning body CART to slow the cars on the one-mile ovals — Boesel's fast lap of 161.364 mph was well short of the track-record 165.752 he ran last June.

Paul Tracy, a Penske Racing teammate of Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser Jr. and Emerson Fittipaldi, who dominated Indy until a crash late in the race, were the runners-up Saturday at 160.757.

AROUND THE WORLD

Seikaly would play for Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Miami Heat star Rony Seikaly, visiting his birthplace, was asked if he would consider playing basketball for the Lebanese national team.

"Certainly, I'll play," Seikaly was quoted as saying on Saturday by As-Safir, a Beirut newspaper.

"But first certain things have to be accomplished — improvement of stadiums, retention of qualified coaches and enhancement of players' fitness to upgrade the national team's standards."

Lebanon's sports facilities were devastated during the 1975-90 civil war.

Seikaly left Lebanon during the war. He has both the Lebanese and American citizenships.

He was in Beirut on a promotional trip for Pepsi Cola.

Drenched and disappointed, 18,000 Center Court fans went home Saturday evening without being able to see Mary Pierce try to become the first French woman in 27 years to win the French Open.

Pierce's final against Arantxa Sanchez Vicario began 4½ hours late because of rain and lasted less than four games before play was halted for the day.

The match is scheduled to resume at noon Sunday, followed by the men's final between Sergi Bruguera and Alberto Berasategui.

Butler, DiTore named to FSWA All-State squads

From Staff Reports

SARASOTA — Hitting .400 over the course of the season is the holiest of grails in baseball; it's the result of consistently superior accomplishment.

How important is it? Lake Brantley High School's Jeff Butler led the state of Florida in rushing during the football season, racking up 1,737 yards for the Patriots, yet was "only" worthy of a second-team berth on the Florida Sports Writers Association's Class 5A All-State team.

This spring, Butler hit a team-leading .419 while playing outfield for the Patriots, who reached the Class 5A state semifinals. For that, he was named to the first team of the FSWA's Class 5A All-State baseball team announced Saturday.

Lake Howell's Rich DiTore, who hit .427 for the Silver Hawks, was a third-team All-State choice.

Butler, who has accepted a scholarship from North Carolina State to play baseball and football, also led the Patriots in runs scored (30), runs batted in (38), hits (47), and home runs (four). DiTore, who was listed among the third-team infielders, played first base, outfield, and pitched for the Silver Hawks. Besides his two home runs and 20-plus RBI, DiTore also fashioned an earned run average of 1/15.

Class 5A All-State selections from Orange County were Dr. Phillips catcher A.J. Pierzynski (first team), Colonial infielder Kevin Gomez (second team), and West Orange pitcher Larry Wimberly (third team).

Tribe boasts quality

Seminole octet earn scholarships

Triple jumper Andre Scott, whose leap of 53 feet, 7.5 inches is recognized as the national high school record, will attend Auburn University.

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — There numbers may be small, but there is a lot of quality in the athletes from Seminole High School that have signed college scholarships this year.

The group of eight young men is led by All-American track star Andre Scott.

The best high school triple jumper in the country the past two seasons, Scott, whose leap of 53 feet, 7½ inches is recognized as the best ever jump by an athlete in a sanctioned high school meet, will attend Southeastern Conference (SEC) power Auburn University.

Scott was undefeated in the triple jump the last two years. In addition to his two state championships in the triple jump, he also added the long jump state championship to his collection this year.

Two other track stars have also decided on where to pursue their collegiate futures.

Bernard Sparrow, the two-time state champion in the shot put who helped lead the Tribe to two state championships and a second place finish this year, will ply his trade at Wallace State Community College in Hanceville, Alabama.

Cory Wilson, who excels in the sprints but was injured during the preliminaries at the state meet, has yet to decide on whether he will either join Sparrow at Wallace or accept an offer from Arkansas State University in State University, Arkansas.

A fourth track athlete, Bryant Moore, has decided to enlist in the United States Navy rather than accept a scholarship offer from Arkansas State.

The only other Seminole graduate beside Scott to sign on with an NCAA Division I program is golfer Steve Sowards, who has accepted a scholarship to attend Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton.

The top two pitchers for Coach Mike Powers' baseball team have decided to try their luck in the tough Florida junior college circuit.

Todd Braden, who was the starting pitcher in the 1992 state championship game, will stay close to home and try to help Jack Pantelias' Seminole Community College Raiders get back into the state championships.

Braden, a righthander, was 8-3 with an earned run average of around 1.80. He was also one of the Tribe's top hitters this season.

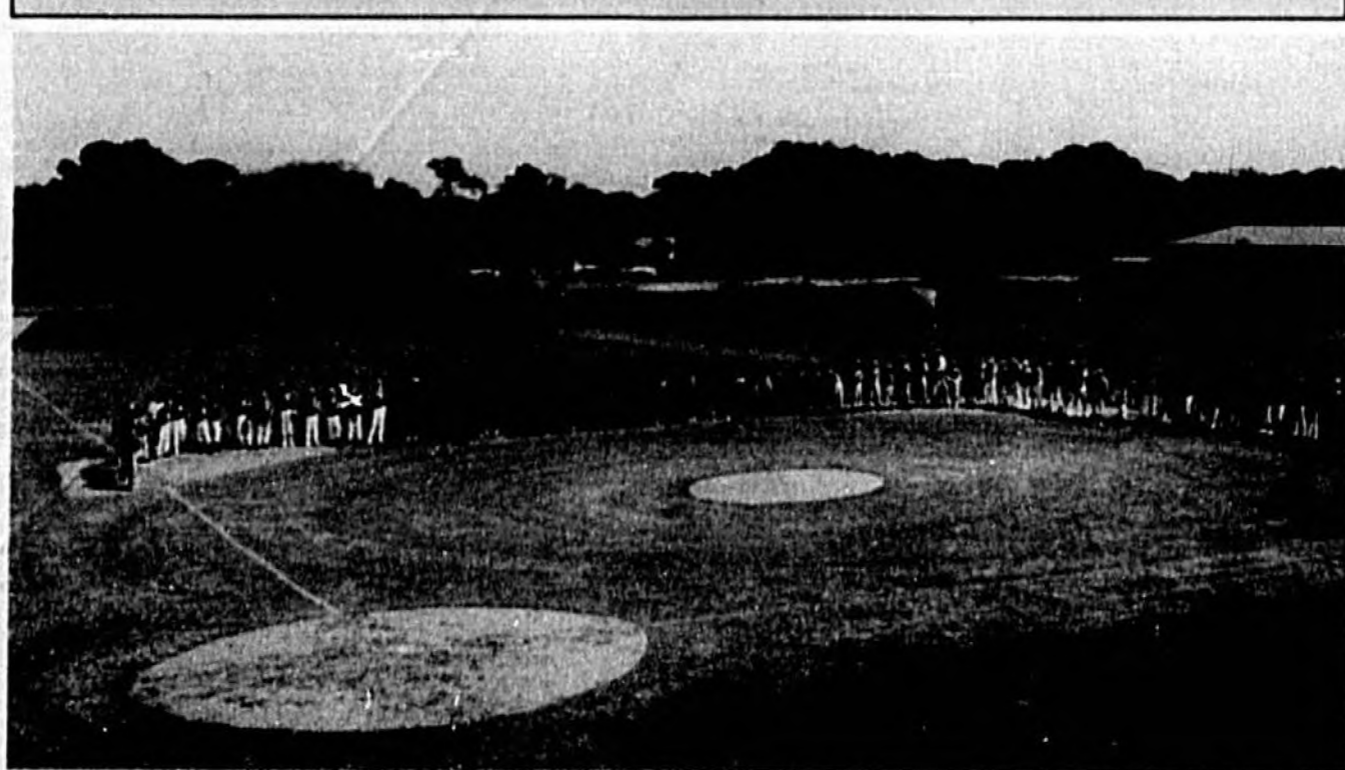

Another righthander, Dean Dantels, will travel a little farther down Interstate 4, heading to Winter Haven to play for the Vikings of Polk Community College.

The hard throwing Dantels was just 7-7 this season, but his earned run average was less than two runs a game and he was tabbed as the 4A District 6 player of the year.

Seminole Community College head basketball coach Bernard Merthie has also returned to his alma mater to pick up some much needed height for his Raider squad, signing 6-foot, 7-inch Andre Hall, who was a major cog in coach Bob Trina's 27-7 team that advanced to the regional semifinals this season.

Also making plans to continue his athletic career in college is Andre Hawkins, who is headed to Wingate College in Wingate, North Carolina on a football grant. The wide receiver/kick return specialist helped the Seminoles reach the regional championship game this year.

Stadium 'must be preserved'

Recreation department continues restoration efforts

By TONY DeSORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Sometimes life does mimic fiction. Tom Farnsworth hadn't been with the Sanford Recreation Department six months when he inherited an assignment that echoed of the movie "Field of Dreams": restore Sanford Memorial Stadium.

"I have a great interest in baseball and a great interest in this facility," said Farnsworth, his eyes sweeping lovingly across the stadium grounds. "This is a marvelous asset to the City of Sanford. It must be preserved."

Once the spring home of the New York Giants — a rookie outfielder named Willie Mays caught the eye of Giant manager Leo Durocher during workouts here — and the site of a Florida State League team, the stadium has gradually fallen into relative disuse.

After the Giants left, the stadium became the site of Seminole High School football and baseball games and graduation ceremonies. But Seminole eventually built its own on-campus football stadium and, recently, baseball facility and vacated the premises as well.

For much of the last two decades, the stadium was the home of Wes Rinker's Florida Baseball School. Every spring, Rinker brought in college teams to play at the facility and adjoining Zinn Beck Field.

The city regained control of the stadium last year when Rinker's lease was voided for failure to pay property taxes and secure appropriate insurance. That's when it became the responsibility of the Sanford Recreation Department.

Some saw it as the last stop on the way to an inevitable date with the wrecking ball for the stadium. But Farnsworth and the rest of the recreation department attacked the project like men on a mission, determined not to let go of a potential gold mine for their programs and the city.

According to Farnsworth, their efforts have been met with unconditional support from the community and the rest of the city's administrative staff.

"Everybody I've come in contact with over the last year has been very positive in their support of what we're doing," he said. "They want us to be successful."

The restoration project has been making steady progress.

"When we took over, we made a rough list of priorities," Farnsworth said. "First, we wanted to get the playing surface into decent shape. Then we wanted to make sure it was safe for the spectators. And then we were going to address the issue of lighting the field and MIAMI — Knight-Ridder's Vu/Text Library Services Inc. and Harris Corp. plan to develop new products allowing newspapers to expand the electronic services offered to subscribers.

The goal is to develop the next generation of library systems, said Vu/Text vice president Joe DiMarino.

"Library systems as we know them will become profit centers for newspapers by adding to the services newspapers may provide to their subscribers," he said.

Harris vice president R. Stan Padgett expects newspapers to develop new revenue sources by re-selling newspaper material as electronic information.

Coffee complications

BOCA RATON — A Chicago coffee-roasting plant will be shut down by Brothers Gourmet Coffee, and its operations will be shifted to larger plants in Denver and Pittsburgh, the company said.

The plant was purchased by Brothers last November when it bought Gloria Jean's, a 233-outlet gourmet coffee retailer based in Chicago.

"Prudent management" required the shutdown because the Chicago plant was "simply not adequately equipped" to meet Brothers' quality standards and growth plans, company president Dennis Boyer said Thursday.

Negotiations are under way to determine the status of 18 roasting plant employees represented by the Food and Commercial Workers Union in Chicago, said Brothers vice president Tony McHale.

Gloria Jean's 65 administrative employees at its Chicago headquarters are unaffected by the closing, he said.

The plant roasted 3.8 million pounds of beans annually, while the Pittsburgh and new Denver plants have a capacity of about 15 million pounds. A newly acquired Houston plant will build up to 70 million pounds within three years.

Fabric forcing

TAMPA — Three creditors of Fabric King, a 30-year-old chain of 80 fabric stores in Florida, are trying to force the retailer to liquidate so they can collect on late bills.

The creditors filed a petition Wednesday to push the company into an involuntary Chapter 7 bankruptcy. A court-appointed trustee would be sought to supervise the sale of all assets.

But Tampa-based Fabric King, which has more than 400 employees, has no plans to liquidate.

The retailer plans to seek a dismissal of the creditors' filing or submit a petition to convert it to a Chapter 11 reorganization case, said Dennis Levine, Fabric King's attorney.

"This is not a company that's going to liquidate," Levine said. "It's a healthy company. It has debt problems it's trying to work out."

The creditors are Capital Factors Inc. of Mineola, N.Y., which says it is owed $71,535 for fabric; Century Business Credit Corp. of New York, which says it is owed $14,316 for fabric; and Lanesco-Arlen Fabrics Inc. of New York, which says it is owed $13,707 from a default judgment Feb. 7.

The Sanford store will employ approximately 160 people, who are presently undergoing extensive training. Archambault commented, "We are working hard with our crew in order to give our customers the best possible old country store experience."

Dan Evins, founder and president of the company said, "This is our fifteenth store in Florida and we are pleased to be expanding into this area."

He continued, "Traditionally, we locate our restaurants along interstate interchanges with easy access for travelers as well as area residents. This concept has proven very successful for us. We hope that this new store will meet our Sanford-area customer's needs because of its convenient location off of Interstate 4."

Evins founded the chain in 1969 in Lebanon, Tenn, which presently serves as head-

Each store features a gift shop that possesses a nostalgic country charm. They are decorated with old photographs, antiques and memorabilia even real cracker barrels.

Food items as well as clothing, toys, and household items are also part of the offerings in the

Make way

Land clearing work is underway at the southeast corner of 25th Street and French Avenue. Two former residences and two commercial buildings, one a former restaurant, are to be removed in order to build a Walgreens Pharmacy store. The standalone store will be one of only a few in Central Florida not to be located in a mall area.

Florida Chamber set for Tampa meeting

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

Employers facing what could be serious workplace problems involving health and safety should seek professional help. The Florida Chamber of Commerce is ready to offer such help, but Central Floridians will have to drive to Tampa to obtain it from them.

The Chamber is holding a special seminar on June 13, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., at the Tampa Airport Hilton, at MetroCenter.

These special chamber workshops are offered for $140 for Florida Chamber members, and $200 for non-members, with discounts for additional workshops which are planned.

In commenting on this June 13th session, Fran Conway, spokesperson for the chamber asks, "An employee is too seriously injured to work, but he's in good enough shape to fix his roof and go bowling. Is he entitled to collect worker's comp?"

Conway says that's the kind of troubling personnel questions to be answered at this seminar called, "Health and Safety: How to Manage, How to Comply."

Conway explained that while high-level state and national debate continues in the areas of healthcare reform and environmental regulation, employers face the daily challenges of balancing regulatory compliance with effective management practices. This workshop is designed to help personnel and human resource managers, employee relations specialists, safety and risk managers, owners/operators, front-line supervisors and payroll managers identify key issues and take practical steps to improve employees' productivity.

"For example," said presenter and human resource expert Duane DeBruiler, "if an employer or manager doesn't know the in's and out's regarding workers' compensation -- particularly with the recent changes in Florida law -- he or she might as well be using a blank check to pay for a firm's workers' comp coverage."

"This seminar will give owners and managers the confidence to stand up for their rights as well as help them manage claims and reduce costs," DeBruiler commented.

For additional information on this seminar, phone Fran Conway at (804) 425-1219, or toll-free at 1-800-940-4879.

Unemployment lower here

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The national unemployment rate was 6.2 percent in April, Seminole County was better at 6.0 percent.

The state's total unemployment rate was 6.8 percent, Seminole County was better.

According to statistics revealed recently by the state's Department of Labor and Employment Security, Seminole County had one of the lowest unemployment rates in all of Central Florida. The closest county with a lower percentage is Flagler at 5.2.

Volusia and Orange Counties were second lowest in Central Florida at 6.2. Lake County had 6.7 percent, Brevard recorded 7.8 percent and Polk was 8.0 percent.

The department says agricultural production was beginning its seasonal decline when the April figures were compiled, which could explain the lower percentages than during March.

For counties where unemployment percentages were high, the report says, "Many of these areas have high percentages of government employment, which contributes to their normally low unemployment figures."

The worst unemployment rate in the state was shared by Hendry and Taylor counties at 13.2 percent. Monroe was the lowest at 3.7 percent.

In preliminary figures for the month of April, 1994, Seminole had 10,783 persons listed as unemployed. This was approximately 200 more than March of 1994, and slightly over 1,000 more than April in 1993.

Statistics were also revealed based on MSA's Metropolitan Statistical Areas. Seminole County is included in the Orlando MSA with Lake, Orange and Ocala Counties. As a result, the total MSA unemployment rate was 6.2 percent, to the state average, but .2 percent above Seminole County.

The department cautions about using these figures for economic analysis. They are, however, used in determining federal fund allocations.

Final figures are expected to be slightly different from those listed as preliminary, as they will be based on updated current population surveys.

Clara Swain all smiles at 90 Metts honored as president's term expires

Clara May Lloyd Swain was all smiles when her church congregation sang the birthday song to her at the 8:30 a.m. service last Sunday.

More smiles and radiance came that afternoon when Clara was honored at her 90th birthday celebration at the home of a son and wife, Lloyd and Denise Swain.

Clara's good friend, Hazel Cash, said, "I never saw Clara happier and more alert."

And Clara was in the pink. The dining room table, lined in pink, was covered with a crisp white Army-Navy cloth, pink punch, a beautifully embossed pink and white birthday cake, pink candles and a spring floral arrangement highlighted the serving table with a large arrangement of pink balloons hovering overhead.

Clara greeted the guests wearing a black and white dot cordress enhanced with a pink carnation corsage.

Assisting at the party were: Clara's children and grandchildren, Martha Bouquard and Betty Jo Swain.

Clara's sons are Lloyd and Leon, both of Sanford. There are seven grandchildren: Susan Durham, Sanford; Judy Sullins, Richardson, Texas; Alison

Born in Virginia on May 28, 1904, Clara came to Lake Mary with her parents in the early '20s. Her father was an engineer with Atlantic Coastline Railroad and the family recalls their home was destroyed by fire twice. Clara's grandfather was a Confederate veteran and her family is of Welsh background.

Clara married Leon Swain in 1927. He owned a battery company in Sanford and they were members of the First United Methodist Church where they were married in the parsonage and were active in the Judge Ware Bible class.

Clara was employed by the Seminole County School Board for years and retired while she was secretary at Southside School. She is an active member. See Dietrich, Page 6B

JoAnne Lucas presented the chamber with a framed, numbered copy of the most recent poster for the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts. Lucas is chairman of the festival and thanked the chamber for its continuing support of the event which raises funds for scholarships for local high school students.

The Lake Mary-Heathrow Chamber of Commerce was graced with the humor of nationally syndicated columnist, cartoonist and author Jake Vest at their monthly breakfast meeting, June 1, at Heathrow Country Club.

Vest told the members of the chamber what he did and did not like about each area of his "business." Of course, each area was accompanied with an anecdotal story full of Vest's trademark Southern humor. On a serious note, Vest spoke of the children's charities, in Texas, Alabama and Tennessee, for which he sponsors benefit golf tournaments. Added to that list this year will be a tournament to benefit the Boys and Girls Club of Central Florida, Inc., at Heathrow Country Club, the end of October.

Prior to the featured speaker, chamber executive director Diane Parker presented Don Holt, production manager for WOFL-TV 35, with the "Chamber Chain" award for endless contributions of time he has made to the chamber.

The chamber's schedule of June events includes ribbon cuttings at new member businesses on Wednesday, June 8, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The monthly "Business After Hours" networking function will be held, Thursday, June 16 at WOFL-TV 35, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Contact Sam at the office for more information on these events, 333-4748.

Senior update

Classes at the senior center are continuing as usual. In addition, the AARP Drive Alive class will be offered at the senior center June 15 and 16 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. both days. SANFORD — Some people may say that Bud Tobin likes to live in the past because of his collection of old coins and war medals. Tobin simply refers to himself as a coin collector or a numismatist.

Tobin was born in New York. He retired years ago from the field of bookkeeping and accounting. He and his wife, of 49 years, Mary, have lived in Sanford for 29 years. They have eight children, Timothy, Terry, Jeffrey, Matthew, Jennifer (Joney), Maureen, Patricia and Paul. Like a proud See Hobby, Page 6B

Student lands first acting role in college production

Lorenzo Tillman Jr. is an Aquarian, born Jan. 21, 1978. This special, sensitive boy is a dynamic kid who is well loved by his parents, family, teachers and friends. He is a lover of people, kindhearted, and, yes, we had found out some time ago that he was talented. Lorenzo Tillman Jr. is a 10th grader at Seminole High School. He aspires to be an actor/director.

His first step in that regard came when he won the great part he auditioned for — Fleance, son of Banquo, in Shakespeare's "Macbeth." The production was put on by Rollins College's Department of Theatre and Dance and the Rollins Players.

Lorenzo says he is indeed grateful for this opportunity in the field of acting. He says he will cherish this first production. He has played other parts in his 10th grade drama class under the leadership of Jane Epps, his school drama teacher.

Lorenzo Tillman Jr

MARVA HAWKINS

I received a call from Lorenzo; he has just recently been an extra in the play "My Brother and Me" at Nickelodeon and he has been invited to audition for a play planned for Universal Studios in the fall. This summer Lorenzo will be attending St. Johns River Community College where he will study acting. This experience has been awarded him through his drama teacher, Ms. Epps.

Tillman gives the praise for his success to his being a student of Tajiri Arts International where he has studied under the direction of Patricia Merritt Whatley. She has presented the original production of "Into the Lives of Urban Princes," an all-male musical drama that addressed the social and moral issues of the black male population.

Tillman is also a member of the Seminole County Boys Glee Club which has traveled throughout Florida and Georgia. He will travel with Tajiri Arts International to the busy theater setting of New York City where the students will experience the bright lights of Broadway and view a number of plays.

Another talent Tillman has shown is as a rapper with "Rap Against Drugs." This group from Seminole High got a shot at stardom when he appeared with the group. They rapped their message to over 90,000 students in Seminole, Orange and Osceola Counties. He is a member of New Mt. Calvary Baptist Church and son of Laverne and Lorenzo Tillman.

Pageant set

Eleganza, in conjunction with the Boys and Girls Club of West Sanford and the Westside Community Association, will host the first Junior Mr. and Ms. Boys and Girls Club Pageant to be held July 2 at 7 p.m. The purpose for this pageant is to help build self confidence for children ages 10-13, to participate in competition as a contestant. Children 8-13 years of age will build self confidence through active participation in the dance segments.

The following criteria will be used and the contestants will be judged on grandeur, questions and response, general appearance, talent. The Most Dedicated and Ms. Congeniality awards will be given. A small fee to participate will be $5.

To prepare, the contestants will have to attend formal training seminars at the Boys and Girls Club on Saturday, June 11, 18 and 25. Classes are held from 9-11 a.m. Classes are free and are open to all ages. For information, contact Joyce Riggins, 321-4379 or Cheryl Knight, 328-8370.

SANFORD — Carylton Cohen was born in Sanford 43 years ago and this has remained her home since. She has two children, Shawna and Kimberly. Although her children and employment as a stenographic reporter with the Clerk of the Circuit Court keeps her busy, she still found the time to volunteer with the Adult Literacy Program with Seminole Community College. She actively works with the Learn to Read program. "I always had the thought of volunteering in the Read program," she said. "I knew it was needed and something important. When I started I was at a point in my life that I knew I could do it. I had the free time and there was nothing holding me back so I went through the training." Cohen has been with the program now for a year and a half.

Harriett Little, coordinator of the Adult Literacy Program, spoke of Cohen and the program. "We provide professional support and materials to the volunteers. They do the real work. We think Carylton is great. We maintain a library of texts to be used and supplements here. Some people can't read but someone close to them can pass on the information that there is help. We're here to help. We see the students' incentive, self esteem and personal commitment grow." There is a nine-hour training class to go through to become a volunteer.

Cohen spoke of the student she presently works with. "She's from Trinidad. In her country she didn't have the opportunity to learn to read. There isn't much of a language barrier. It's not a problem, her accent is just different. There's certain words and things she says differently. We've really become friends. It's great to know I've really done something to help her. She keeps me going and encouraged. I realized this is a benefit that will last a lifetime." Cohen and Little spoke of the different curriculums used as the Laubach Way to Reading text and Focus on Phonics. Cohen also said, "My student didn't get to go to school. There were some gaps because she didn't have structured learning. It's given her confidence just knowing she could do it."

but says, "This is one program I could fit in and do, was the reading. It makes you more aware of so many people in need. It makes you aware too that people sometimes don't know there's help available. They are fearful, afraid or shy." Cohen also felt if a person has any interest in the work, to try it. "You're only helping the other person," she said. "It's helping you too. Anytime you help or give to another it comes back to you. It builds your own self confidence as well as the other person. You feel worthy that someone needs you."

Cohen concluded by saying, "People shouldn't be fearful or bashful about stepping out and seeking and taking hold of what they need. Some people are ashamed that they don't know how to read. They need to realize that they aren't alone and they don't have to stay that way. If you can't read, your whole life is immobilized. Trying to keep that secret is hard to do."

Club honors Metts

Jean Metts has just completed serving as president of the Woman's Club of Sanford Inc. for the past two years. She did an excellent job, which she loved, but is now ready to move on to her numerous benevolent undertakings. In keeping with club tradition, Marty Colegrove, immediate past president, hosted a luncheon honoring Jean on May 25, following the regularly scheduled board meeting at the clubhouse. All total, 30 board members and appointed officers attended the event in the private dining room of the Holiday Inn, Sanford Marina. The guest of honor was the hallmark of fashion in a dressy pantsuit complemented with a wide straw picture hat and gold jewelry. She was lauded by those attending for her outstanding accomplishments during the past two years. The women seemed to enjoy themselves just chatting while relishing the chicken or roast beef entrees. DeLores Lash, incoming president, presented Jean with a beautiful silver tray embossed in gold, from the guests. The tray, selected by Marty, was inscribed with Jean's name, the club's name and date. About the gathering, Marty said, "I was very, very pleased. Everyone there thoroughly en-

The wedding of weddings

There are weddings...and then there are weddings. May 27 was a red-letter day at the Herald. In the hustle bustle of a retirement luncheon on the premises for Wayne Doyle, publisher, a surprise wedding reception was shaping up in the new room for Lacy Domen, editor. It was business as usual when Lacy reported to work before the sun that day to supervise getting out the daily newspaper. As soon as the Seminole County Courthouse opened for business, Lacy and her intended, Timothy "Tim" Loar, applied for the license, got married and she was back to work in about 45 minutes. Also, Tim was scheduled to be on his job at 10 a.m. in Winter Park. So far, no problems.

Clockwork. The bride, from Lakewood, Ohio, wore a red suit and carried a nosegay, provided by Tracy Schneider, notary public, who also conducted the nuptials at the courthouse. The bridegroom, from Columbus, Ohio, wore green denim shorts, dock shoes and an off-white T-shirt imprinted with a wine label, "Big House Prison," featuring a drawing of a prisoner trying to escape from a prison. This is the attire he wears to his job as a managing partner at the Wine Club in Winter Park. Tracy, circulation manager of the Herald, read a poem while the couple clasped a quartz crystal to signify their love. Following the ceremony, the couple kissed as Mr. and Mrs. Loar, and kissed again to say good-bye for the day as they went their separate ways. They are making their home in Sanford. Incidentally, the paper was out 20 minutes early that day. So long, publisher Speaking of Tracy Schneider, she had a busy May 27 performing a wedding and hosting a luncheon for Wayne D. Doyle, Herald publisher. But she came through with flying colors. Employees brought their favorite specialties to work and dined in splendor from a select variety of delicious foods. Among those attending to wish Wayne well after 20 years as publisher were Lena, his wife; Walter A. Gielow, former publisher, his wife Winifred "Bill"; Jane Casseberry, Casseberry; George Black, DelRay; and Harriett Waddell, Bradenton.

grandpa he bragged on his eight grandchildren and one great grandchild. They attend Central Baptist Church. "I began collecting," he said. "Then it just got out of hand. Someone had given me a few large U.S. cents from the 1800s. That's what got me started. I collected all the large cents like the Lincoln and Indian heads. I have half dimes and three cents too." Tobin's interest in coins was sparked when he was a student at Stetson. He majored in history and he said coins just go along with history. "I constantly read and learn things about coins," said Tobin. His coins range from some like the widow's mite found in times before Christ to some of the Caesars. "I have an unusual coin from Brabant, Holland," he said. "It's actually dated 1942. There are only six coins known to exist from Brabant with that date. I have coins from over 600 different governments. There are drawers of ancient coins to 300 and 400 B.C. I just dearly love a piece of history in my hand." Another favorite pastime of Tobin's is researching and reading about the coins. Many publications come to his home to keep up with his hobby. Membership in many organizations helps to keep information coming his way too. "I'm in a group called FUN," he said. "That stands for Florida United Numismatists. The American Numismatists Association has another of my memberships. If you're a member of that organization you can borrow books from their library. They have a tremendous collection that can be borrowed. It's great to go the Smithsonian too and see their collection of coins." "I'm past president of a couple of different coin clubs. In 1968 I was elected a fellow in the Royal Numismatists Society of London; that was a big honor. With the science of numismatics it covers art, geography, history and metallurgy. It also includes collecting medals so I started collecting war medals."

Not only does Tobin have a wide variety of war medals and weapons but some newspapers dating to the mid 1800s. I have a 1794 paper from Philadelphia," he said. "I have a Harper's Weekly from 1862 or 1863. I have a Jacksonville News from 1918 with the Japanese, and A Stars and Stripes declaring the surrender of the Nazis." A beautiful old original 13 star flag from 1777 to 1795 hung proudly in what the Tobins refer to as their "war room." Tobin's knowledge as well as his collections were quite impressive. One couldn't help but hum a few bars of the National Anthem while parting with such history left behind.

dramatic measures in order to gain attention. You'll do better keeping a low profile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In competitive developments today, you might have only a slight edge with which to begin. If you're falsely self-assured or too careless, this edge will have little value.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you're a charming conversationalist, and friends enjoy listening to what you have to say. Today, however, try to give others a chance to speak as well.

When dealing with friends today, use generous, gentle measures instead of forceful directives. Kind words strengthen relationships, harsh words sever them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions that seemed to oppose you yesterday might do a complete turnaround today and function for your benefit. You may be able to transform losses into gains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It might be your lot today to negotiate a matter that affects others as well as yourself. If this is done with everyone's best interest at heart, it could be very successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In order to make this a memorable, productive day, you must really have your heart in your work. Take pride in all of your assignments, be they large or little.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually it proves unwise to let your heart rule your head, but today could be an exception. Give compassion and concern preference over materialism.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Much personal satisfaction can be derived today from doing things that benefit members of your family more than they do you. Strive to be unselfish.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make it a point today to let the one you love know how much you really care. Do so through a series of thoughtful, small gestures. He or she will get the message.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone with whom you have strong emotional bonds might play a key role at this time in helping you succeed in a materialistic endeavor. This person won't be looking for a piece of the action.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Charm, wit and tact are your most valuable assets today. Instinctively, you'll know how to use them effectively to sway others to go along with your way of thinking.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

To end the week, another of those unintentionally amusing signs. In Australia, on the main road heading northeast to Brisbane, is a notice stating: "You are now entering a rabbit-free area. Penalty $1,000."

Well, you are now entering an error-free area. Penalty: not money, just undertricks. What do you make of today's deal? How would you plan the play in six no-trump after the diamond-10 lead runs to your jack?

The auction was unscientific, but it reached a respectable spot. South unblocked the spade king, played a club to dummy's ace and cashed the A-Q of spades, discarding a heart and a diamond from hand. West's discard was a blow. Now South played a club to his queen, but

West failed to follow suit for a second time. Declarer had no option but to concede a club trick to East, who cashed the spade jack to defeat the contract.

True, it was unlucky to find East with four cards in each black suit, but South's line was right only if he were playing in seven no-trump. He should have concentrated on winning the 12 tricks he contracted for.

The correct play can take a while to spot if you haven't seen the theme before. But it is like riding a bicycle: once learned, it stays with you for life.

After unblocking the spade king, you should duck a club. This maneuver retains communication with the dummy and brings home the contract if the spades are 3-3 or the clubs are no worse than 4-1.
