Athlete Dies Day Before Wedding

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) -An autopsy was planned Saturday to determine what killed Cleveland Browns star Don Rogers, a former UCLA athlete who collapsed and died at age 23 on the day before his planned wedding.

Rogers was stricken Friday morning in his family's Sacramento home after reportedly attending a bachelor's party the night before. He was rushed to a hospital but doctors could not revive him, officials said.

The reason for the death Friday afternoon was listed by doctors at the hospital as cardio-pulmonary arrest - a shutdown of the heaft and lungs. But the categorical determination actually said nothing about the cause of the fatal episode.

A spokesman for the coroner's office said the results of the autopsy probably would not be known until Monday.

Rogers, the No. 1 draft pick of the Browns two years ago, was the second prominent athlete to die suddenly in the past several days. Maryland basketball star Len Bias died June 19, two days after he became the No. 1 draft choice of the NBA's Boston Celties, Blas' death was blamed on cocaine intoxication.

Asked if drug use could be involved in Rogers' death. Mercy Hospital spokeswoman Connie Huff replied, "There was no sign Lake Mary's population is projected to explode during the next 25 years, according to the city's Comprehensive Land Use Plan, adopted in 1980.

The 1986 population of about 5,000 will double to over 10,000 by 1990, according to the plans projections. By 1996, that figure doubles to 20,000.

The plan's estimates originally projected a population figure of

Panel Seeks Ways To Lift Mayfair Woes

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

An ambitious expansion of clubhouse services, a membership drive and monthly membership fees to support operations were discussed by the Mayfair advisory board Friday as possible avenues to enhance the city of Sanford owned golf course and country club and stabilize the somewhat rocky position it has been in during recent months.

Advisory board members include Sanford Mayor Bettye cited for his experience in golf Smith and Mayfair manager course management when rec-Jack Daniels, who leases the commended for appointment to facility from Sanford, and is being investigated by the city commission in regard to his compliance with lease terms.

Friday's meeting, which was held at the Mayfair Country Club, was the board's first, and Daniels said he is "open to anything" that would enable continued improvement of Mayfair, promote positive relations between patrons and mangement and provide him the opportunity to turn a profit.

Mayor Smith said city residents, including herself, "want Mayfair to be a place we can socialize and feel welcome."

A possibile way to achieve this would involve Daniels' subleasing the clubhouse restaurant to a private firm, to expand services and provide Daniels with fuller opportunity to concentrate on other areas of course operation.

The firm would handle regular dining hours, as well as corporate and resident functions. and could result in Mayfair's again becoming a social gathering spot, board members said.

Prior to Daniels assuming operation of Mayfair five years ago, board member Jack Bridges said he recalled regular parties held at the clubhouse, especially during the holiday season.

Rounding out the advisory board are Daniels' wife, Alice, representatives of the Mayfair Men's and Women's Associations and Barry Lock, who was the board by City Commissioner John Mercer.

The board was formed in April, soon after the city commission began investigating Daniels' compilance with lease terms. Formation of the board and the commission probe came in response to patrons' complaints about the manner in which Mayfair is operated. The condition of the course has never been an issue although patrons said they feel alienated by Mayfair staff and management while using the city owned property.

According to Mrs. Daniels, the same holds true for she and her husband. She said they've encountered difficulties because they were not city residents.

Similar problems were not encountered by the previous lessees, because they operated Mayfair with a "good old boy" attitude, while Daniels has taken

The commission heard presentations on options from two engineering and consulting firms, and a Seminole County

Seminole County civil engineer Tim Weaver also gave the commission the option of doing a map in conjunction with the county and the St. John's Water Management District. He estimated the cost to the city to be about $25,000.

"I don't want state of the art information if we don't have the staff (to operate a computer analysis enhancement system). or the capability to understand it." commissioner Paul Tremel

"I just want to be able to show a developer where the flood plain is, not where every water valve in the city is." Tremel continued.

Hardy Asian Cockroach Latest To Invade Florida

GAINESVILLE (UPI) - Florida has been invaded by walking catfish. paint-cating giant snails, stream-choking plants and other foreign pests. Now the Asian cockroach. 'a major pest." is taking up residence.

Two researchers at the University of Florida reported Friday the Asian invader has never been seen before in the Western hemisphere. They have determined that it is not skittish around humans, has been quietly infesting central Florida and is spreading.

"If you had to design a roach to be a major pest, the Asian cockroach would be it." said Richard Brenner, an entomologist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Service. "It matures very quickly - in six to seven weeks, compared to two to three months for the German cockroach.

"This could be the roach that rulns the backyard barbecue," said Phil Koehler, extension entomologist with the UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

"At this point," said Kochler, "nearly every pesticide we tested kills 99 to 100 percent of them. However, they can interbreed with the German roach, which is resistant to almost every known pesticide, and the offspring might inherit that resistance."

State Awaits Next Bundy Move

STARKE (UPI) - Defense lawyers for condemned serial killers Theodore Bundy and Gerald Stano must start at the hottom of the judicial appeals process Monday with less than 48 hours to win reprieves from the scheduled executions of the two men.

Both Bundy and Stano are scheduled for execution in the Florida State Prison electric chair at Starke shortly after dawn Wednesday - the 10th anniversary of the reinstatement of the death penalty by the Supreme Court.

Trial court judges denied appeals for Bundy and Stano last Wednesday. The Florida Supreme Court rejected their appeals the following day. The high court said the petitions failed to challenge the convictions and death penalties on constitutional grounds and sent the defense lawyers back to the trial courts.

Lawyers familiar with the two cases said the defense lawyers will be working on new petitions during the weekend with plans to file them Monday. Bundy's case goes back before Circuit Judge Edward Cowart in Miami. Stano's appeal will be filed again before Brevard County Circuit Judge Gilbert Goshorn at Titusville.

"It's a pretty safe bet that no more appeals will be filed until Monday in Miami - and that they'll start back at the trial court," said Larry Spaulding of Capital Collateral Representative, the state-sponsored lawyers' group that represents indigent death row defendants and is helping research Bundy's appeal.

The State Department, speaking for Reagan, said Friday The International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands, has "no standing in fact or in law" to order the United States to pay damages for "aggression" against

The world court found the United States guilty of violating international law by supporting Nicaraguan rebels and ruled Washington was responsible for making reparations to Managua.

The president has been out of the public eye since his arrival Wednesday evening when he learned that he had won a major foreign policy victory with House approval of a $100 million aid package for the Contra rebels.

When he gets back to Washington Monday. Congress will be away on a two-week Fourth of July recess. But in the last few weeks, the lawmakers have given him his top domestic priority - tax reform and military aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas.

B-6 May Help Asthma Victims

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Researchers studying sickle cell anemia stumbled onto a discovery that vitamin B-6 may help asthma patients.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that a two-year study at Columbia University showed vitamin B-6 helped alleviate shortness of breath and other symptoms of bronchial asthma.

The discovery was an unexpected offshoot of work showing that vitamin B-6 relieves some symptoms of sickle cell anemia which affects about 50,000 black Americans.

A researcher provided a 100-milligram dose of the vitamin to 15 asthma patients dally, all of whom experienced fewer and less serious attacks.

"For the first time, we have confirmed that blood of adult asthma sufferers is low in vitamin B-6," said Robert Reynolds, a chemist with the Agriculture Department, who performed laboratory analyses in the research.

He cautioned that vitamin B-6 is not a cure for asthma. The normal intake is 1.5 milligrams to 2 milligrams a day. and indiscriminate use of higher doses could lead to serious nerve damage.

He said 100-milligram doses used in the study should be taken only under a physician's care.

Asthma attacks can range from mild wheezing to life-threatening shortness of breath. About 9 million Americans suffer from the ailment and spend more than $1 billion a year for drugs to relieve it.

U.S.-New Zealand End Defense Pact

MANILA. Philippines (UPI) -Secretary of State George Shultz and New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange failed Friday to resolve a dispute over Lange's anti-nuclear policies that ruptured a defense pact between the two nations and Australia.

We part company as friends. but we part company as far as the alliance is concerned." Shultz said following a 40minute meeting that set the stage for the end of America's security commitment to its longtime Pacific ally under the three-way alliance.

The meeting was the first top-level contact since the dispute over New Zealand's ban on visits by U.S. nuclear warships broke out in February 1985. rupturing the 35-year-old ANZUS defense pact. It came as Shultz and Lange were in Manila for a meeting between foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and their leading trading partners.

Lange expressed determination to press forward with legislation to make his government's policy banning nuclear-armed and nuclear-powered warships a matter of law.

"We will not have nuclear weapons in New Zealand." he told a news conference.

Shultz said that since New tion policy, has "withdrawn from this essential element" of the alliance, what has been understood as a U.S. security guarantee does not apply "as it unfolds."

A sentor U.S. official said Shultz had not made a "formal notification" of the end of the security guarantee and that it is a matter of timing. But with the New Zealand legislation August, the official said. "We're coming down to the wire."

Lange seemed to accept termination of the defense guarantee as a fait accompli. New Zealanders, he said, "are not afraid" to go it alone without the alliance, formed in 1951 out of concern over a Japanese resurgence in the Pacific. He noted Zealand, with its ships visitata- continued defense ties with Australia.

Shultz ruled out trade sametions against the South Pacific nation of 3.3 million and said the three-way alltance still exists 'minus one member."

Handicapped Rules Don't Cover Airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI) -Airlines are exempt from federal laws that protect the handicapped from discrimination because they do not directly receive any government money. the Supreme Court ruled 6-3 Friday.

The justices reversed an appeals court decision that said the airlines must comply with the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 since they use federally supported airports and the air traffic control system.

Writing for the majority, Justice Lewis Powell said Congress specifically limited the anti-discrimination law to direct recipients of federal money and "not a single penny of (federal) money is given to the airlines."

The result of the decision is that airports will continue to be accessible to the handicapped with such devices as ramps and special restroom equipment, but airplanes do not have to be specially designed and airline be tailored to the needs of the disabled.

Three dissenters, led by Justice Thurgood Marshall, said the decision seemed to be at odds with the goals of antidiscrimination laws.

'When commercial airlines allow the handicapped to travel on airlines, but ... force them to do so under conditions not substantially equal to those enjoyed by persons who are not handleapped. I believe that there too the airlines discriminatorily deny the handicapped the henefits of federally funded programs or activities supporting the airport." Marshall wrote.

Also dissenting were Justices William Brennan and Harry Blackmun.

"The friendly skies are not as friendly now." said James DeOre, executive director of the Foundation for the Handicapped in Elmhurst, III.

"The impact of this is signifiequipment and services need not can't because the handicapped ration rule prohibits discriminahave less mobility than others." he said. "Many can't drive so they use the airlines extensively as part of their employment and recreation.

Gordon Mansfield, an official of Paralyzed Veterans of American. which brought the legal challenge, said his group probably will appeal to Congress to change the law "to state that people with disabilities do have civil rights and they do include the right to travel."

Lawyer Douglas Parker, who represent the handleapped rights groups in the case, said the ruling ignores the realities of air travel. "It says the protection against handicapped discrimination, at least under this statute. stops at the door of the aircraft."

But David Berg, of the Air Transport Association of America, said the ruling does not give airlines license to keep the handleapped off planes. He stamp rule enacted to reduce noted a Department of Transpor- Iraud.

tion in air transportation and that rule remains in effect.

"Essentially airlines provide fairly good services to the handicapped community," said Berg. whose organization represents U.S. and Canadian air carriers. "So the wirlines aren't going to change what they do. They're not going to start kicking people out or discriminating against handleapped passengers."

of interest rates. "I feel that when it goes to court, if it goes to court. I will be found innocent and I'll get on with my life," Keogh said

"What I'm looking at is if I am found innocent, then all this is behind me. It's over with. I don't have to look over my shoulder any more."

Keogh's arrest came 13 months after the association filed a civil suit against him demanding that the money be returned. The suit, filed May 17, 1985, alleged Keogh "converted" the money on April 23, 1985. Some members of the association allege Keogh used the money to pay a personal mortgage. Keogh has denied this as well.

Keogh resigned as a city commissioner of Lake Mary later the same year, just four weeks before his term was up. He cited employment reasons and at the time of his resignation had missed several city meetings.

"I don't know where this came from all of a sudden, a year later." said Keogh referring to the theft charge. Keogh said he has a lawyer looking into the charge.

According to a sheriff's department spokesman. Keogh was interviewed by investigators in connection with the charge and would not produce the purported bank statements.

"He was interviewed, not too cooperatively," a spokesman said.

'We wanted that information. He wasn't willing to produce it. So, with that we turned it over to the State Attorney's Office and they proceeded from that state on.'

At the time of the civil suit filing. Keogh said he thought the incident might be related to his support of Walter Sorenson, former mayor of Lake Mary who was ousted from office, then reprimanded and fined by the governor for personal use of city vehicles and phones. Keoghsaid this week he does not know if the charge is related to that support.

"I hope there's not something like that behind it. It would be a shame if that type of thing could happen." Keogh said.

Keogh rallied supporters behind Sorenson while he was being investigated and raised about $900 in donations to pay for Sorenson's legal defense.

While Keogh said the money was used for Sorenson's defense and "other things." the ex-mayor's attorney at the time said he cannot remember any legal fees being paid. His former law firm did not receive any fees in connection with the mayor's case either.

Keogh said both he and Sorenson had signatory rights to the defense fund. He said he did not keep track of how much money was in there and did not know if Sorenson, who was last known to be working in south Orlando, used it for personal expenses.

Keogh said that he remembers some of the money went for research by a paralegal before the lawyer was brought in on the case but he could not remember for whom the paralegal worked.

Keogh said he has the defense fund's bank statements because they, as with the cemetery statements, were mailed to his home in Lake Mary.

Keogh is due in criminal court at a hearing in

Extravaganza To Mark 100th Birthday

It will be the biggest coming-out party in history.

This Independence Day weekend, while most Americans celebrate the nation's 210th birthday at home with pienics and parades, up to 3 million people will converge on New York City to celebrate the coming out of Miss Liberty.

The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, a not-forprofit organization dedicated to restoring the 100-year-old statue, is staging a four-day birthday celebration to mark the statue's 100th birthday and completed renovation.

Since 1886, when it was presented by France as a gift to the United States, the statue has symbolized liberty to countless Americans, especially millions of immigrants for whom the statue was the first glimpse of their new country. Now. Liberty Weekend will symbolize the lavish style of celebration that has charac-- from the 1976 Bicentennial to the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles. Liberty Weekend will begin carly Thursday, July 3, when 100 sailing ships travel down the East River and anchor south of the statue. Later that morning 35 ships from around the world including aircraft carriers. battleships and submarines anchor in the New York-New Jersey Harbor. That evening, President Reagan will open the weekend officially in a ceremony on Governor's Island, directly east of the statue. Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand will unveil the restored Miss Liberty, illuminating her one terized contemporary America part at a time - first her crown. then her face, her body and finally her right arm, which bears the famous torch. A 100piece orchestra and a 300-voice choir will perform "America the Beautiful." After a new musical interpretation of "The New Colossus," Emma Lazarus's poem on the statue's pedestal, Reagan will relight the torch. The opening ceremonies will also include the presentation of the Medal of Liberty to 12 distinguished naturalized Amerentertainer Bob Hope. German-born statesman Henry Kissinger and Romanian-born writer Elie Wiesel. Chief Justice Warren Burger will confer citizenship upon 2.000 immigrants at Ellis Island and 38,000 more in four other American cities. An entertainment gala will feature Frank Sinatra, Neil Diamond, Elizabeth Taylor, Mikhail Baryshnikov and a 500-piece Statue of Liberty Band, among others.

The July 4 festivities will begin when President Reagan and Secretary of the Navy John Lehman review 35 naval vessels from the U.S.S. Iowa. As the ship passes, each vessel will fire a 21-gun salute.

Then, 100 sailing ships will cruise past the statue to the mouth of the Hudson River. As the ships sail up the river, more than 2 million people are expected to view them from the shores of Manhattan and New Jersey.

That evening. New Jersey's Liberty State Park will host the free Americana Music Concert. featuring John Denver. Johnny Cash. Barry Mantlow. Whitney Houston and others, as well as John Williams and the Boston Pops.

And because it is Independence Day. Friday will end with fireworks. Some 40,000 individual shells will be fired from 42 barges anchored around the statue. It is expected to be the biggest fireworks display ever.

Saturday's main event is the International Classical Concert, on the Great Lawn in Manhattan's Central Park. The concert will feature the New York Philharmonic, the U.S. Marine icans, including English-born Hand and special performers including Placido Domingo. Marilyn Horne, violinist Pinchas Zukerman and cellist Yo-Yo Ma.

Also that day, politicians, historians and journalists will participate in the Liberty Conference, a series of panel discussions about liberty to be held at New York University. On Liberty Island, children from the 50 states and France will read essays describing what liberty means to them. And the Statue of Liberty, along with a new American Museum of Immigration, will reopen to the public.

The closing day's events will be held away from the statue, at New Jersey's Meadowlands sports complex. First, the Brendan Byrne Arena will host a sports salute to the statue, including figure skating exhibitions by U.S. Olympic medalists Dorothy Hamili and Peggy Fleming: a gymnastic exhibition by America's Olympic gymnasts; a basketball game between the Harlem Globetrotters and a team of NBA stars; and a ing of war between two squads of NFL football players.

Later that evening, the closing extravaganza will feature Kenny Rogers, Willie Nelson, Shirley MacLaine and Gene Kelly. among others. These performers may be overshadowed, however, by the huge performing ensembles: 1,000 tap-dancers. 1.000 flddlers, 1.000 guitars, a 1.000 · voice choir, a 1.500-member drill team, a 200-member Liberty Dance Corps and the Statue of Liberty Band,

After more fireworks, the lavish anniversary party will be over - at least until the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution in March 1989.

Miss Liberty Imitators

Weekend is fast approaching over a red leotard and ballet and everyone, it seems, is getting into the act.

On Thursday, little girls sang and danced their hearts out hoping to be named "Little Miss Liberty: contestants in a Miss Liberty beauty pageant to be held in the fall donned skimpy white swimsuits, and 50 women of all ages competed in a Miss Liberty look-alike contest.

In the "Little Miss Liberty" contest sponsored by the New York Statue of Liberty Centennial Commission, 11 girls aged 5 to 8 - some shyly and others like blossoming starlets showed off their talents on a stage in Bryant Park, near the New York Public Library.

The "Little Miss Liberty" title went to Donna Vivino, 8, of Fairlawn, N.J., a child actress and singer who won over the judges and audience with a rousing performance of "New York, New York,

Besides the American media. some 170 French journalists and photographers will record for history that affair that has known more ups than downs.

French general Marquis de la Favette led a small army of French soldiers to light for the American independence and is remembered in American school history books. When American soldiers helped liberate France from the German occupation in 1945, friendship between the two nations seemed immortal.

But France's refusal to let U.S. war jets overfly its territory last May on their way to bomb Libya clouded that friendship. Mitterrand hopes to remove the Amerlcan resentment on what officials describe as the "malaise"

French Prime Minister Jacques Chirae said last week that the "malaise" will be dissipated by July 4. Chirac and U.S. ambassador to Paris, Joe Rodgers, last week unveiled a renovated model of the Statue of Liberty on an island in the Seine in the heart of Paris. The 52 foot copy of the Statue of Liberty was given to France by Americans living in Paris in 1885 out of gratitude for the real one.

The fact that Mitterrand will be at Reagan's side during Liberly Weekend prompted the French conservative newspaper Le Monde to say that the two presidents will "put on the stage the true differences and the false harmony between America and France, their tenacious connivance and their protound misunderstandings."

De Kemoularia cited Edouard de Laboulaye, the creator of the statue, who wrote in 1875 that America will celebrate another centennial independence and would have forgotten his name. "but the statue will bear witness to the everlasting friendship" between France and the United

Lady Liberty Has Checkered Past

By Denise Gerga

New York's lady in the harbor has served as a sign of liberty and hope for generations of immigrants and their descendants. But the Statue of Liberty's history has more starts and stops than a sightseer's trip up her 335 steps.

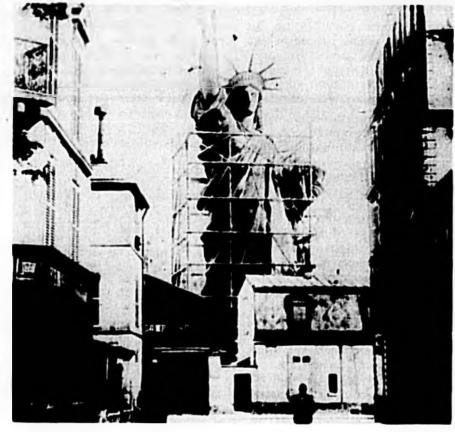

The idea that the people of France would give America a statue dedicated to liberty was hatched at an 1865 dinner party given by French historian Edouard de Laboulaye. Dinner guest Frederic-Auguste Bartholdi, a young sculptor born in Colmar, Alsace, and raised in Paris, was deeply inspired. Having originally conceived such a statue as a monument for the Suez Canal. Barthold! now saw it as a symbol of Franco-American friendship.

Bartholdi began drawing up his plans for the Statue of Liberty in 1870, but later that year the Franco-Prussian War devastated France. Bartholdi's Alsace was lost to Germany, giving the sculptor's passion for his statue an added meaning.

In 1871, Bartholdi arrived in New York to find out whether Americans wanted the statue and if they'd help pay for it. As his steam ship sailed into New York Harbor, it passed Bedloc's Island, named after the 17thcentury Dutch merchant who once owned it. Bartholdi knew this was the perfect home for Liberty Enlightening the World."

After traveling throughout the United States, Bartholdi concluded that Americans would be willing to pay for Liberty's pedestal. Despite this, the statue was placed on hold for three years because of political problems in France.

Bartholdt completed his final draft of the Statue of Liberty in 1875. He followed the convention of depicting liberty as a woman, her left foot thrust forward over broken chains to show the progress from her former bondage. Liberty's seven-spiked crown represents the seven continents and seas, the tablets in her left hand bear the date July 4, 1776, Bartholdi borrowed the classical style of Then German immigrant Joseph who had so much trouble getting Alexandre Gustave Eiffel, creator of the famed tower, designed Liberty's framework. In Paris, varying numbers of workers (depending upon how much money was available at any given time) pounded thin (1/100th of an inch) sheets of copper and riveted them together over a wooden frame to form Liberty's features.

The construction of the 151foot Amazon took nine years from 1875 to 1884 - and cost $400,000. Some people had naively hoped that she would be done in time for America's centennial, but only her arm and torch were ready for display in Philadelphia in 1876. In June 1885, Bartholdi dismantled the statue, packaged her in 214 crates and shipped her to New

Athletes' Medallions Are Stolen

NEW YORK (UPI) - Silver medallions to be presented to Muhammad Ali and other top U.S. athletes at Statue of Liberty celebrations were stolen and officials say there is not enough time left to re-mint them before the ceremonies begin.

The 40 medallions were taken Thursday from a delivery van outside the Jacob Javits Convention Center in Manhattan. police said.

The 1 1/2-inch round medallions encased in lucite were to have been "gifts from America" to Ali. Hank Aaron, Billie Jean King. Peggy Fleming and other of the nation's top athletes at a Sports Salute to the Statue at Brendan Byrne Arena in New Jersey on July 6.

Bill Potter, a vice president of National Standard Group, producer of the awards, said the medallions were minted exclusively for the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation. He said there is no time to re-mint them before the event. part of the Fourth of July weekend's final celebration.

The firm appealed to the thieves to return the medallions, which police said were stolen at about 3:30 p.m. from the company's delivery van. parked for 10 minutes outside the Jacob Javits Convention Center to de-

Ortega Leads March, Says Contra Aid Declaration Of War

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) - President Daniel Ortega condemned the "criminal" U.S. government for supporting Contra rebels and led more than 10,000 supporters on an 18-mile march to denounce approval by the House of Representatives of new aid for the insurgents.

Responding to the World Court's Friday morning ruling that U.S. support for the Contras is illegal. Ortega told national radio. "Justice is on Nicaragua's side."

"From this moment on, the United States government becomes a criminal, acting outside of the law," he said. adding the ruling gives Nicaragua "more strength to resist. combat and defeat the aggressive, terrorist policy of U.S. leaders."

The president said 4.313 soldiers and 12,103 rebels have been killed in the Contra's 4 1/2-year-old war against the leftist Sandinista regime.

In another speech late Friday. Ortega defended his decision to crack down on domestic political opponents who he called "tools" of the Reagan administration.

He warned that American military advisers "are going to die if they cross (Nicaraguan troops)." The $100 million Contra aid package approved Wednesday by the House of Representatives allows military advisers but mandates they stay 20 miles away from Nicaragua's borders.

Craxi, who led a five-party coalition government, presented Cossiga with his resignation Friday.

Cossiga, who has asked Craxi to remain as a caretaker premier, can accept or reject the resignation and Monday plans to launch consultations with party leaders to find a solution to the crisis, political sources said.

Craxi's resignation Friday was prompted by a serious defeat in the lower house of parliament Thursday.

On a secret ballot vote, some 70 members of coalition parties turned against a coalition-promoted finance decree they had supported during open roll call voting a few minutes before.

The betraval led to the bill's defeat and was the latest in a series of signs of government weakness in parliament.

Divorce Still Banned In Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) - Voters have soundly defeated a proposal to lift a constitutional ban on divorce, leaving predominantly Catholic Ireland the only major European nation where divorce is still outlawed.

The proposal to legalize divorce, backed by Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald, was rejected by a ratio of nearly 240-1 - 63.5 percent opposed to the measure and 36.5 percent in favor of it - in Thursday's nationwide referendum. The final ballot count was released Friday.

The election results contrasted sharply with opinion polls at the start of the campaign for the referendum two months ago, when an overwhelming majority of voters surveyed favored allowing divorce.

The referendum also marked a setback for FitzGerald's Anglo-Irish policy of seeking to liberalize the constitution to bring it more in line with British-ruled Northern Ireland and further the cause of Irish unity. FitzGerald's Fine Gael party, senior partner in the ruling coalition, admitted defeat before the final tabulations were in.

The prime minister put his government's prestige on the line by leading the fight to end the constitutional ban. But he brushed aside any thoughts that he might resign and call a general election.

Cardinal, Adcock Roofing Join Forces For Potent American League All-Stars

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

For the entire 1986 season, Cardinal Industries and Adeock Roofing shigged it out for the Sanford Little American League championship. They tied at the end of the regular season before Cardinal won a onegame playoff and went on to sweep Sunnfland in the Sanford City Championship series.

Starting Monday, many of the players who made Cardinal and Adeock a success this season will combine to try and lead the Sanford American League all-stars to their best finish ever.

The Sanford Americans open play in the Florida Little Major League Sub-District 2 Tournament Monday night at 8 against host Tavares at the Tavares Little Major League complex. In Monday's first game, starting at 6, Orlando Recreation Department battles Orlando Bruton.

The Sanford Nationals and Leesburg drew first-round byes. The Nationals face the winner of the Orlando Orlando game Tuesday night at 8 while Leesburg takes on the Sanford American-Tavares winner Tuesday night at 6.

The double elimination tournament will run all this coming week, with July 4 off, and is scheduled to end Monday, July 7. The winner of the Sub-District 2 Tournament advances to the District 4 Tournament begin-"ning July 14 at Leesburg.

The Sanford Americans are managed by Cardinal Industries' skipper Otis Raines and his assistants are Mike Maples Sr., Albert Anderson and long-time American League coach and all-star assistant Ronnie

"The kids have finally got their heads on straight so things are going all right now," Raines said during Thursday's practice session at Bay Avenue Field, "We'll know by Saturday if we're ready or not but I believe we'll hold our own."

Of the 15 players on the Sanford American roster, nine played for either Cardinal or Adcock. They include Anthony "Redman" Roberts (Cardinal) and Mike Maples (Adcock)

the two catalysts of the team and probably the best 1-2 pitching punch the Sanford Americans have ever had. Both Roberts and Maples threw a pair of no-hitters during the season. Both are also excellent hitters with power and play infield when they're not pitching.

Roberts is the only returning allstar for the Sanford Americans as he played for the Sanford Nationals a year ago when Cardinal Industries was in the National League. Roberts was the leading hitter for the Nationals in last year's tournament. There are not returning players from the Sanford American League team which won the Sub-District 2 title a Britt Henderson and Willie Williams, both off Cardinal Industries, will also pitch some for the Americans, Henderson, who pitched a three-hitter in one of the City Championship games, is also an outlielder and Williams an outstanding defensive catcher.

Also making the squad from Cardinal Industries are infielders Leroy Kitt and Matt Wilk. Wilk was the leading hitter in the City Series as he was 4 for 6 (.833) with two doubles, a triple, four RBIs and four runs scored. Adock Roofing selections, along with Maples, included center fielder Tony Holley, first baseman Al Holt and third baseman Corey Williams. Atlantic Bank, which finished third in the league, had three selections including infielder Narvel Fuller and outfielders Dante Jones and Tyrone Williams. Other selections include outfielder Ric Perez of Seminole Petroleum and catcher Bill Kerns of Seminole Ford. The team consists of 10, 12-yearolds and five. 11-year-olds. The 12-year-olds include Holley, Holt, Maples, Corey Williams, Perez, Kitt, Roberts, Wilk, Kerns and Fuller, The 11-year-olds are Fuller, Jones, Tyrone Williams and Willie Williams.

With the pitching strength and versatility on defense, hitting will be the key for the Americans in tournament play.

"We've got good pitching and our defense is excellent." Raines said. "We've been hitting the ball well and practice and hopefully that will carry over to the game Monday night."

Williamsport: Altamonte Must Field 2

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

The Altamonte Springs Little League. which trimmed its Major League to 10 teams in one division this year, will still have to field two all-star teams. District 14 Administrator Don Crawford said Friday.

in previous years. Altamonte, due to its population base expanded by adjoining cities, always fielded two teams - one each from the American and National divisions. This year the Major League went to one division, thinking it could field one all-star team, according to Crawford.

The one-division format was enacted because Casselberry started its own league and Longwood attempted to begin its own league. When Longwood could not come up with enough players to start its league. those players were incoporated into Aliamonte's league.

"That's where the problem started," Crawford said about the failure of the Longwood league. "If Longwood could have gotten going. Altamonte might have been allowed to field one all-star team."

Crawford said all-star teams are based on population. He said the Altamonte league thad approximately a 20,000 population base." When Longwood was incorporated, however. Crawford said the population almost doubled and two teams had to be formed.

Frank Harmer, all-star manager of the Altamonte Majors, said he and the league were not informed of the decision until Wednesday - after the team had been formed and the players announced.

Crawford said that was correct. "The timing was very poor," he said. "But I didn't receive word from Arnold White (Southern Region Director) until Monday or Tuesday."

This was not the first inkling Crawford had on the matter, however. He said he received a letter from Little League Baseball headquarters in Williamsport, Pa. "approximately six weeks ago wanting to know why Altamonte had formed just one league.'

Crawford said he then got in contact with Altamonte President Judy Christian and had her write a letter to Williamsport explaining the circumstances (Longwood's latture to form a league) and asking for a waiver for the 1986 season. The waiver would allow Altamonte to field one all-star

"Judy wrote a very good letter and I endorsed it and strongly recommended that they (Williamsport) leave them (Altamonte) alone for this year." Crawford. "I was very

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Moose's second-half cold streak turned into a hard freeze Friday night as last-place Smitty's Mower upset the once seemingly invincible Moose, 7-6. in Sanford Junior League action at Chase Park.

The win by Smitty's enabled Knights of Columbus to claim the second half championship. Knights finished at 8-2 in the second half and Moose at 7-3, The biggest upset of the season was a good way for Smitty's to end a disappointing season.

Because the Knights won the second half and Moose the first half, there will be a best of three Junior League Championship Series Game one is scheduled for Monday night at 6 at Chase Park with game two Tuesday night at 6 and game three, if necessary. Thursday night at 6.

Moose, which finished at 17-3 for the season, jumped out to an early 3-0 lead with three runs in the top of the first with singles by Harvey Clinger and Tony

"Oz" Chavers leading the way. Chavers, the starting pitcher tor Moose, had control problems in the bottom of the first though and Smitty's took advantage with six runs on three hits for a 6-3 lead. Ray Williams had an RBI single and Carl Easterday an RBI groundout to go along with tour walks and five Moose errors.

Chavers settled down and pitched hitless ball the rest of the way and Moose battled back to tie it at 6.6 with one run in the third and two in the fifth. In the third. Jeff Derr walked, stole second and third and scored when Al Perkins reached on an error. In the fourth, Tony Pritchard cracked an RBI double added run-scoring singles.

Kiwanis ended the season on a winning note as it claimed a 12-4 victory over Rotary in Friday night's first game at Chase Park.

Kiwanis finished at 11-8 overall and 5-4 in the second half with Rotary 9-11 overall and 3-7 in the second hall.

Julius Bennett, who earlier one-hit Moose, tossed a fivehitter, struck out five and walked only one. Andres Stokes had two of the hits for Rotary with Derrick Taylor, Robert Whitaker and Tommy Hampton getting one each.

Kiwanis got all the runs they needed in the top of the first with five on four hits. The big hit in the inning was a two-run triple by Oscar Edwards. Bennett also drove in a run with a double and deff Ingram and Ruben Blake had RBI singles.

Lendl, Becker Breeze

WIMBLEDON. England (UPI) - Boris Becker gained confidence while Ivan Lendl lost another seeded challenger as Wimbledon's fifth day guaranteed the presence of a surprise men's semi-finalist.

Becker, the 18-year-old defending champion, held a 6-4, 6-3, 2-2 lead over Tom Gullikson when play was called Thursday due to darkness. When the second-round match resumed Friday, the West German needed only 15 minutes to conclude the set at 6-2.

Becker fired 18 aces in the match, three after play resumed. and said Gullickson had no answer to his serve.

"He was trying many things. but he couldn't break me." Becker said. "I had too good a rhythm. I just overpowered him.

"With each win I get more confident and I scare opponents more when I go further and turther."

GREEN: CUBS HAVE TALENT

CHICAGO (UPI) - Chicago Cubs president Dailas Green, admitting his team has given him an upset stomach. says the team is talented enough to have a decent 1986 season.

Green said he has been disappointed with the poor showing of his team because "I think the talent is there and the production is not." He said the club may have been better off if the Cubs had not signed three free-agent pitchers after their 1984 National League East-winning season.

"I'm telling you, these guys this team) have had my stomach turning in knots trying to figure out what the problem is," Green said. "I just can't believe we're that bad. But we're proving it every day. I mean, they're working at providing it and that's very disappointing."

Green signed free-agent pitchers Rick Sutcliffe, Steve Trout and Dennis Eckersley after the 1984 season.

Roger Clemens pitched a bit too fine for his own liking Friday night.

Clemens struck out 11 and scattered seven hits over eight innings to lead the Red Sox to a 5-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

In raising his record to 14-0. Clemens crept within one triumph of tying the American League record for most victories at the start of the season. Baltimore's Dave McNally, in 1969, and Cleveland's Johnny Allen, in 1937, each started off

The victory, though, was not vintage Clemens in the right-hander's eyes. He even thought he was too close to the plate on some of his pitches.

"I was disappointed that I let them back in the game in the seventh." Clemens said about the Orioles' two-run inning, "Sometimes, I felt I was around the plate too much. I made some good pitches and finally got some guy: out."

Eddie Murray paced the Orioles' attack with two homers, one in the second inning and one in the seventh, giving him 11 for the season. The power surge came before 52.159 fans, the second-largest crowd in Orioles history.

"I really didn't have my good stuff until about the third inning," said Clemens, who needs five more consecutive victories to tie Rube Marquard of the New York Glants, who began the 1912 season with 19 straight triumphs.

"But I knew that if I could keep Baltimore's lead to one run, the guys would get me some

Clemens gave up a walk to Murray and a single to Cal Ripken to open the ninth. Joe Samblto relieved and retired one batter, before Bob Stanley entered to get the last two outs for his

Boston scored three runs in the sixth inning to take a 3-1 lead off Ken Dixon, 6-6, on RBI singles by Bill Buckner, Jim Rice and Don Baylor.

Caray Gives Credit To 'Gabby'

Veteran Street Steered Cubs' Announcer On Road To Success

By Randy Minkoff UPI Sports Writer CHICAGO (UPI) — It makes sense that someone by the name of "Gabby" would have had the most profound impact on Harry Caray's broadcast career.

Caray broke into broadcasting more than 40 years ago with the St. Louis Cardinals. stayed there for more than a quarter of a century, becoming a local hero on the Redbirds' huge network throughout the Midwest and South.

Caray's name became associated with Cardinals' baseball and Budweiser beer until he was dismissed in 1969. After a brief stopover in Oakland, Caray brought his theatries to Chicago, first with the White Sox and now with the Cubs

His listening audience is probably at its zenith thanks to WGN-TV's signal that is seen in all 50 states.

His rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" in the middle of the seventh inning is a favorite not just in his current perch. Wrigley Field, but over the entire National League. But back to the beginning.

Gabby Street, a former St. Louis manager who guided the Cardinals to the World Series, was put in the broadcast booth with an untested, unheard of and inexperienced Caray. The relationship the two enjoyed is fondly remembered by Caray.

TV/Radio

"Yes, we had a father and son relationship," Caray said. "I was just a young kid and Gabby was a grizzled veteran. He was born 30 years too soon. He would be making $5 million a year. With that type of humor, he would have been great."

Most people consider Caray among the most colorful announcers in the game today. But Caray will insist that he is pale by comparison to the colorful Street.

"He is such a remarkable story." Caray said. "Here's a guy who was a ballplayer who then hit the skids, picked himself up by the boot straps and became a solid citizen, a great family man. His son was in the Marines. He was such a remarkably warm Caray was impressed with Street's flatr for the game and for what was then a sports broadcasting business that was in its infancy.

"I learned everything I ever knew about baseball from Gabby," Caray explained. "1 learned through his eyes and what better eyes could you learn it from?

"He was a catcher who had caught Walter Johnson and who managed Dizzy Dean and Frankie Frisch. I always felt, well, blessed the Lord had me alongside Gabby."

While Street had a major impact on the young Caray, it was a brash man born Harry Carabina who went and got his own tob. Caray told a radio executive he needed to get more spirit into his broadcasts. So, in 1944 - he did not have to enter military service because of poor eyesight - Caray began his career in St. Louis.

"Gabby had nothing to do with that." Caray said. "I was the first one they hired. It was going to be the young kid who started doing winter sports and then they teamed me up with Gabby to serve as the color commentator. They wanted a big name to serve as the play-by-play guy but I convinced them otherwise.

As hard as it is to believe, Caray couldn't talk his way on the air to begin with but after some intense lobbying, he convinced the sponsors that he was the man for the

"I went over the head of the agency to the head of the brewery and convinced him I should be it. The way I convinced him was that you couldn't have anyone read the newspaper while I was broadcasting." Caray said. "Gabby and I started in spring training with the Cards in Cairo (III.). They didn't go to Florida because of the war. We started the relationship that I cherish and consider one of the most treasured in my life."

Prix Drivers To Test 100 MPH

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) - Drivers say Saturday's final qualifying session for the 8700.000 Chase Grand Prix could produce a 100 mph qualifying time - the first in the race's three years at the Meadowlands.

Roberto Guerrero's time of 99.412 mph in his Emerson March-Cosworth topped the 26-car field Friday, in which five drivers exceeded the old qualilying record of 98.452 mph. set last year by Mario Andretti.

"I think even if it's hot Itemperatures were in the 90s Friday), we'll still go a little bit laster," said Guerrero, seeking his first pole position in three ing," he said, "You're constantly cooler, faster still. The car is running very good. The track is getting faster and if it doesn't rain, some cars might go 100 mph (today). The pole is the place to be because there are very few places you can pass

Michael Andretti had the second fastest time, 99.332 mph. followed by his father. Mario. who has commanded the pole he last two years. Roberto Moreno and Al Unser Jr.

"I think if the track stays the same and no one dumps oil all over it, we'll have a good shot to reak 100," Michael Andretti aid. "We're very close."

There is a one hour, 15-minute nalifying session scheduled day.

Guerrero, a native of Colombia ho now lives in San Juan opistrano, Calif., is in his third ar on the Indy car circuit. He in 12th place in the 1986 ampionship standings, with best showing a third place ish two weeks ago at Portland. 'In the last few races, we've en getting more and more competitive," Guerrero said. "I thought I had just as good a chance as anyone (to win the pole) and the car felt good. "As far as we're concerned, it's been a matter of getting the team better all the time," he said. "It's just a matter of getting the whole package together."

Michael Andretti said driving the 11 turn, 1.68-mile course was draining.

"We think we have made all the major adjustments now. Mears said. "But now it's the traffic. I'm so sick of coming up on guys just idling down the track, losing time getting around them and then idling down the track myself to get away from somebody else to get a clean (traffic-free) lap."

SULLIVAN SWITCHES CARS

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Danny Sullivan is looking for an "unfair" advantage on the Championship Auto Racing Teams circuit.

To develop that edge. Sullivan has switched to a new car for Sunday's Chase Grand Prix at the Meadowlands. Sullivan, like most of the drivers on the CART circuit, was driving a March-Cosworth. But before the season started. Sullivan agreed to help break in team owner Roger Penske's new Chevrolet powered PC-15 and an accident at the Budweiser-G.L. Joe's 200 in Portland that wrecked the March-Cosworth, paved the way to mangurate the new car in a race this weekend. "I think the PC-15 is going to be very good." Sullivan said

Softball Utopia Comes To Altamonte

Merrill Park Facility Opens Monday Night

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

Softball utopia has come to Altamonte Springs.

Merrill Park, hailed as one of the finest softball facilities for players and spectactors alike, will be unveiled Monday night by the Altamonte Springs Recreation Department. First pitch is 6:30 p.m.

'We're very pleased with the way it turned out." Altamonte Springs Recreation Director Bill James said. "We think the players will be pleased, and that's the most important thing."

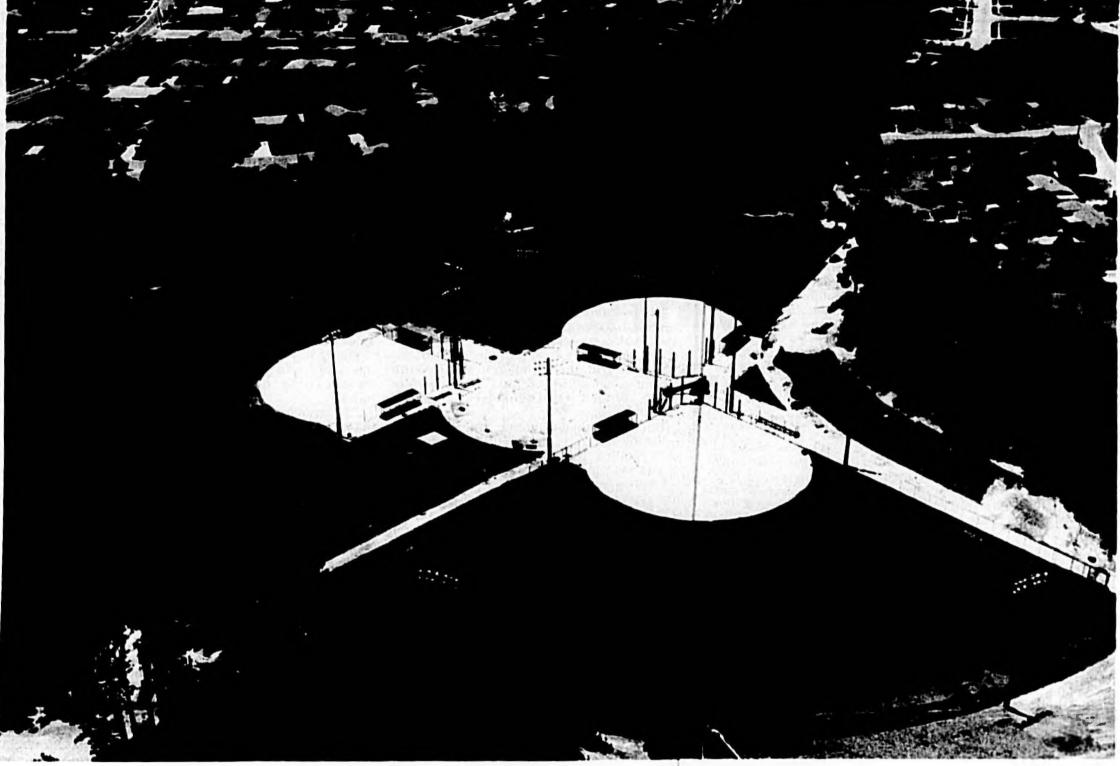

The land for Merrill Park was donated to the city by Merrill Swartz in 1971, it is a 28-acre tract located south of Lochmann's Plaza and cast of State Road 434 on Jamestown Boulevard. It is bordered on the south by the Little Wekiva River.

Of the 28 acres, 16 have been developed and 12 left in its natural state. The ground breaking began Oct. 18 of last year. Construction started Dec. 23 of last year. The $1.3 million park was funded through city funds except for a $144,000 Recreation Development Assistant grant from the state Department of Natural Resources.

James said originally the city wanted four softball fleids, but settled for three when engineers said it would be more feasible. Mare Hultin, an Altamonte recreation department worker who has overseen the park's development, said the expansion of Altamonte's Little League program was one of the reasons for the new park.

"Our Eastmonte complex was more adaptable to baseball and we wanted to consolidate all of the baseball at one place." Hultin said. "It made more sense to keep the baseball at Eastmonte and move the softball.

The park has two fields with the fence at 290 feet and one field with the fence at 275 feet. The turf is bermuda tiffbay 419, which Hultin said will be finely manieured to form a perfect

McGuigan Alibis His Loss To Cruz

By Dave Raffo UPI sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - Barry McGuigan showed the courage of a champion in his fight against Steve Cruz June 23. then slipped into the losers' habit of offering alibis the next

"I have no excuses." McGuigan told a group of reporters, then ripped off a list of them.

McGuigan blamed the 110degree heat, said he wasn't sharp and claimed the referee shouldn't have taken a point from him for a low blow in the 12th round. Without the deduction, the fight would have ended a draw and McGuigan would have kept his World Boxing Association featherweight title.

McGuigan's manager Barney Eastwood also blamed referee Richard Steele of Las Vegas, Nev. Before the fight. Eastwood objected to the presence of an American referee

"It all comes back to the American referee." Eastwood said later, "By all standards he should have warned Barry and said 'One more low blow and I'll take the point away."

McGuigan was warned in the seventh round, and Cruz in the ninth for low blows.

If McGuigan wants to blame Steele, it should be for allowing the light to continue in the 15th round while Cruz was punching McGuigan around the ring. McGuigan was helped from the ring and spent the night at Valley Hospital.

McGuigan is thinking of retirement, but you can expect him to fight again. Defeated champions find it hard to walk away, especially when they are 25 years old Besides, the Irishman was asked before the fight what he would do if he weren't a boxer.

"Probably shovel slop in the cuckoo house," McGulgan an-

Brit of the month Club: Now that he's knocked off McGuigan, Cruz has received a challenge from England's Europeai. featherweight champion Jim McDonnell. Promoter Mike Barrett said he will put up over $300,000 for Cruz to fight McDonnell in London in September.

Boxing

"I'm convinced I can beat Cruz," McDonnell said.

"Jim is skillful enough to outsmart Cruz." McDonnell's manager Terry Lawless said. McDonnell defends his European crown against Italian Salvatore Bottiglieri on the Frank Bruno-Tim Witherspoon WBA world heavyweight title fight card at Wembley Stadium

If Cruz can get $300,000 to light McDonnell in London, just imagine how much he can get against McGuigan over there.

Clear Skies Ahead?: The clouds are lifting from the Donald Curry situation. Curry has decided to stick with Dave Gorman, who has managed him since he turned pro Curry also added Akbar Muhammad to the management team to put together sponsorships and endorsements.

"I'll probably fight in September, but I don't know who," said Curry, the undisputed welterweight champion. "Everything's fine now. I never left Gorman's not so sure.

"We didn't talk for about a month and I thought there was a strong possibility Donald would leave," Gorman said, referring to a period when Curry was taking advice from Mike Trainer. "It made me feel very uncomfortable."

Muhammad, who left a job with promoter Bob Arum to work with Curry, agrees with Gorman that Curry made a mistake not fighting WBA junior middleweight champ Mike Mc-Callum June 23 as planned. He also agrees that Curry has been confused.

"He's young, and this is a tough business." Muhammad said. "There's a lot of sharks in the water, and you have to be a deep sea fisherman to survive."

Gorman's contract runs out about the first of next year. Under the new arrangement. Curry will probably end up with much more than the 62 percent he clears now after his manager's and trainer's cuts are deducted from his purses.

Bean: Short Game Set Up Easy Putts

OAKVILLE. Ontario (UPI) -The rain had stopped by the time Andy Bean was ready to tee off, so it was natural that he exhibit some dry humor.

"I was in the clubhouse eating lunch while the morning group was out there getting wet." Bean said. "Maybe I shouldn't say that. It might be me under the weather next time.

"I'm lucky to be hitting the ball well. The key to my success is that my short game is setting up my putting. I feel I could've shot a 65 today, but a 69 is nothing to complain about,"

Bean's second straight 3-under-par 69 Friday was good for a one-shot lead over Paul Azinger after two rounds of the $850,000 Canadian Open.

Bean, third on the current PGA Tour money list with $404.474 and a two-time winner this year, has a 36-hole total of 6-under 138 on the 7.102-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

"I have had varied success on this layout," said Bean, who shares the Glen Abbey course record of 10-under 62 with Leonard Thompson but missed the cut here last year. "But If I keep setting up the putts. I'll really have a good round before it's over,'

Azinger, a non-winner in four years on the Tour, had a 69 for a total of 5-under 139. Davis Love III, the rookle who is atop the driving distance standings, shot a 69 Friday to share third place at 4-under 140 with Ernie Gonzalez.

At 141 are first-round coleader Hale Irwin (68-73). Bob Murphy (71-70), Bob Tway (70-71). Mac O'Grady (73-68) and Dave Barr (70-71) of Richmond, British Columbia.

Four players are grouped at 2-under 142 while a logjam at 1-under 143 includes three-time winner Lee Trevino (74-69), course designer Jack Nicklaus (74-69) and defending champion Curtis Strange (73-70).

Florida's Insurance Reform Bill Now Law

TALLAHASSEE. (UPI) - Ignoring threats of widespread pullouts of insurance companies from Florida, Gov. Bob Graham signed into law a sweeping measure to reduce the costs of commercial liability insurance and cap civil injury awards.

"It secures for Florida greater predictability in insurance availability and cost and results in the courtroom." Graham said Thursday as he signed the reform package. "We can have confidence in this insurance bill based on our shared common experience of prudence and fairness and our expectations of an even more just and prosperous Florida."

Graham said he signed the bill despite the "apprehension and misgivings of many thoughtful Floridians" over the civil justice reforms it contains.

"I have concluded that the circumstances of restricted availability and escalating commercial insurance costs warrant the reforms in insurance regulation and the civil justice system." Graham said.

He noted those reforms will

Ex-Congressman Assumes Control Of World Bank

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A new hand takes the helm of the World Bank this week but it is not clear whether former New York congressman Barber Conable will seek to change the bank's lending policies to case the Third World out of nearly £1 irillion in debt - or whether he will succeed if he tries.

A Republican politician known for his skill at negotiations and quick head for numbers. Conable is not a development economist. But he will have economists to advise him, some of whom will no doubt seek to influence his decisions and soften the blow of any changes he might propose.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, among those who suggested Conable to succeed A.W. Clausen when he resigned this Spring, has made no secret he thinks the bank should play a larger role in negotiations between debtor and lender nations and do more to involve commerctal banks in what some regard as a morass of inescapable debt. "The bank needs a strong guiding hand to restructure its relations with the International Monetary Fund, private capital markets and the Reagan Administration in ways that recognize both the constraints on Bank actions and the Bank's capacity for global leadership," Overseas Development Council Vice President Richard Feinberg wrote in a letter to Conable released Saturday.

The letter serves as introduction to a new ODC study timed to coincide with Conable's succession. In it, Feinberg urges Conable to overcome the malaise some say has characterized Clausen's tenure and "lead the World Bank into an unprecedented and very powerful global

The bank can be a coordinator of global capital flows, a mediator of political and economic differences between North and South, a stabilizer in the global economy and the leading intellectual center for thinking about development," Femberg wrote.

This beautific vision of a born again World Bank is obscured by a large and ugly creature known as the "debt crisis.

The combined debt of the developing world, not including China or the East Bloc, is approaching $1 trillion and there is heated debate over some rather fundamental issues — like the relative costs of paying it back and running for the hills. and whether it is wise for unissued. countries to borrow more to pay back loans they couldn't afford in the first place.

Baker last fall outlined a plan to increase official "policybased" lending - designed to promote sustained growth and make debtors a more attractive risk for commercial banks - in return for a wide range of reforms tailored to meet the needs of the debtor countries.

Treasury and World Bank officials insist the "Baker plan" is on track, but privately admit the political cost of reforms which provide no immediate relief to the poor might be too great for many regimes to support.

The ODC study proposes several changes in bank methods to ensure that the plan succeeds. "The bank has moved away from poverty alleviation as a central underlying idea," commented Shelden Annis, a contributor to the report, in criticizing the view that fiscal secondary concern.

"See, this makes traveling easy, because let's say you're in a hurry and you have to drop your pet off before your trip, all you have to do is leave them the passport and it tells them everything.'

Or as Schachter inscribed on her brochure: "It's a pet saver whether your pet is a jet setter or a yard sitter."

Tourist Attraction?

Yesterday's Fun Seekers Didn't Exactly Beat A Path To Sanford's Woodland Park

By Susan Loden Herald Staff Writer

When Walt Disney was 9 years old, in 1910, Victor Schmelz and his son Lester beat him to the punch. They opened a tourist attraction in Sanford.

But fun seekers didn't exactly beat a path to Woodland Park, which was located on Lake Monroe three miles northwest of downtown Sanford near the Central Florida Zoo site.

Lester Schmelz, who will be 95 on July 28, said boaters were about the only patrons who could reach Woodland Park which boasted the only public swimming pool in the area made in an abandoned shell pit, a dance hall, a selfplaying Orchestron, picnic facilites, toilets, swings, see-saws, and bathing suits for rent.

'Oh, it was nice, but in rainy weather it was a wet place. It was too hard to get to. That was the touble," Schmelz said. "The best way to get there was by boat and if you didn't have a boat, if you didn't hire a boat it was hard. You'd have to know just how to get there. You could drive in. We drove in. but anybody who didn't know the way, it was a hard thing to get there. A lot of people didn't know where Woodland Park was." U.S. Highway 17-92, which fronts the sight today didn't exist in those days, he said.

Ten years after it opened. Schmelz said Woodland Park, where it was "just wild woods with the shellmound and big trees growed up, big oaks that you couldn't reach around — we took some out and made a little place there for the park," closed.

"It didn't pay. The thing ran down and we let it go.

Lester Schmelz, 95, and his wife Lena. Schmelz was a confirmed bachelor until he married her when he was 83.

he sald. Today Schmelz doesn't own the park site, but two concrete walls and an artesian well, along with shells, mark the site of the park which in its heyday boasted a concrete lined swimming pool. Admission to the park was 5 cents and those who used the pool. which had jump boards and a 15-foot diving platform into 6-foot deep water, paid an udditional 10 cents.

You had to be a good diver to take the plunge and not crack your head on the bottom. But Schmelz said the only tragedy that occurred at the park was a man dying of a heart attack after a swim.

The Schmelzes touted Woodland Park in its fifth year in a brochure, which read: "Growing steadily without boosting. The place with a good reputa. tion...Woodland Park is in a class by itself and must not be confound with the socalled amusement parks. No rowdyiam will be allowed; a fact well understood. Everything is being done to insure the safety and pleasure of visitors.

Schmelz's sister Mabel, who was three years his senior, was responsible for making and maintaining the swimsuits. "Women wore suits all over and stockings and all that." Schmelz said. "Today they don't fool with all that you couldn't give one of those suits away. My sister made up a lot of them, but they didn't pay.

'We owned and operated the park ourselves. I didn't enjoy it. It was too much work. If we had lived near there it was easier. Driving down there everyday from here was too far out of the way.'

Schmelz drove to the park on Sundays and Thursdays in a mule-drawn wagon from his birthsite, where he still lives, off the western end of Wayside Drive.

The park was the dream of his father who originally bought the land for the shell he took from the pit and sold as paving material. "This oyster shells and snail shells is mixed with kind of a black clay and when you put it down and tap it it gets almost like rock. And there's some of in around Sanford in some of the old sidewalks. I guess." Schmelz said.

Reaching For The Stars

Blind Boy Tuned Into World Around Him

Joey is a blind boy who is filled with a zest for life, and an ambition to fly in the space shuttle. How far is up? Does Joey really know? His mother, Debbie, is not certain, but he has a model of the shuttle and finds great happiness in taking it apart and discussing the possibility of flying in

Being a Florida boy, he is aware of the activities at the Cape, and of the tragedy that happened in 1986. Not only is this Joey Weston a bright third grader who likes rockets, but he is an avid reader. Recently, his school. Lake Mary Elementary, held a reading contest sponsored by Friendly Ice Cream. Joey read 12 books in Braille and was treated to an exciting lunch with Bob McGrath. Big Bird's friend on television.

Joey has no strangers in his life. He is tuned into the world in a dynamic and exciting way. He reaches out to those around him, asking questions as he goes. Big Joe, his dad, takes Joey to the races. This is their special time together. The more noise the better!

The County Fair is also a favorite activity for Joey. Just give him an extra fast ride and he's happy. Maybe it's the feel of the breeze in his face that excites him, or maybe its that same sense of adventure that makes him want to reach for the stars.

This year Joey had a visit from a teacher in his school. She saw in Joey and his family a special quality that people should know still exists in families today. His parents did not coddle, but lovingly guided Joey in his learning and daily life. Even though Debbie works at Joey's school, she brings him to school and expects him to ride the school bus home in the afternoon. Dad meets him when he arrives at their country place, which was purchased in order that Joey could experience areas of life first hand.

This includes raising pigs that he tenderly caresses, calling them by name: Petunia, Rosey, Sweet Pea, and J.R. All except, J.R., of course, have had or will have little pigs. Joey thinks they don't know when to quit.

Besides the pigs, there is the tractor, chickens, and other special "farm things" that interest

His mother sometimes will watch Joey as he explores his world of spaces...wide open spaces...that he found when he was younger had a barb wire limitation. He sometimes restrains his desire for wonder-lust, but whenever mom or dad call to him his directions, he takes off with wild abandonment. More of that thirst for adventure is Victor Schmelz and his wife Augusta began a family in 1888. Lester Schmelz was born in 1891, and until the park was opened 1910, the senior Schmelz sold shells. Young Schmelz worked alongside his father.

After the park failed, Schmelz, who had helped his father even before he dropped out of school in the fourth or fifth grade, continued to work with his father gathering palm leaves and Spanish moss to ship north as decorative materials.

"I helped him in the woods. That was a snakey job too. I've been up close to many a big rattlesnakes. I've seen 'em just in time. I didn't get on them," Schmelz said. "But if I had gone a little further and got on them I would have been bit."

Schmelz could also have been an artist. Treasured away in a shoebox he has a wooden whistle, two tiny calenders about one-inch square each with hand carved wood frames dated 1912 and 1914, a palm-size wooden needle case and a wood and string trick which he whittled by all the hard times she had. Both had kept house for Schmelz and about four months after his sister left Schmelz met his wife Lena in an Orlando bus station.

"I never married until I was and all of that. I just got scared of that and I just kept on being single. I just lived right here at home and I kept working a lot of things from day to day. I got to be 83 before I married.

Mother Regrets Decision To Let Child Raise Child

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a teen-aged unwed mother. "Lucy" is 16. Her baby's father left town when he found out Lucy was pregnant. Lucy begged her father and me to let her keep her son. I felt he should have been placed for adoption. but I allowed my love for Lucy to overrule my good sense, so I let her keep the baby, stood by her say. and paid for everything.

As soon as the baby was born, Lucy reverted to being an irresponsible teen-ager, and guess who is raising her child? We are!

Abby, we love our grandson. but we are 50 years old, and if we had wanted another child we would have had one 15 years ago. I know there is nothing you can do about our situation, but I need to say this: I was right in the first place. The child should have been placed for adoption, but it's too late now.

TRAPPED GRANDMA

DEAR TRAPPED: It is not too late to sit down with your daughter and let her known firmly that if she does not accept the responsibility for her child. he could still be put up for adoption or placed in a foster home. If you and your husband feel that you are too old to raise a child, then you are. Better the boy should be in a home that considers him a blessing and not a burden.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend I see very often. She's a nice person, but she has a very irritating habit that drives me crazy. No matter what I start talking about, she always turns the conversation back to herself or someone in her family. If I start to tell her about my daughter, she doesn't even let me finish; she starts in about her daughter.

Most of the time she goes on and on just talking about herself and her family and her experiences and her this and her that. and she doesn't seem one bit the animals and so to share the talking.

Roof Thatching

Miss Berthu's eighty-years did not show as she lay in the hospital bed facing surgery. We talked about the weather, the latest news, and about life

Then, our conversation centered on faith. She told me the surgery was serious but she had no fear, "My roof is thatched," she said, and smiled as she noticed wrinkles of question marks forming on her young pastor's face.

"Your roof is what?" I stammered, searching for a handle of interpretation.

She took my hand in both of hers, "My faith in God was hirthed when I was a little girl, and it has been growing ever since. Every day I have built my faith, and now that I face this unknown surgical journey, I have no fear. Nothing can barm me; nothing can scare me. My house of faith is firm, solid. I have covered the roof of my life with the teachings of God's word," and she took a deep breath, then called my attention to the beauty of the day reflecting itself outside her

"My roof is thatched."

Rev. Leo King And Laymen Conduct Methodist Services

For the next three Sundays at First United Methodist Church, 410 Park Ave., Sanford, a former pastor and three lay persons will participate in the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services while the pastor, the Rev. George A. Bule, will be on vacation with his family.

This Sunday services will be led by Kip Younger, president of the Methodist Men's Fellowship. The sermon will be given by the Rev. Leo King, who served as pastor of the church 1973 to

On July 6, Ed Bedell, church lay leader, will lead the worship with Younger giving the sermon. Younger was recently recommended by the church's administrative board as a candidate for the ordained ministry. This will be his first opportunity to preach a sermon.

On July 13, the services will again be led by Bedell, with Ashby Jones delivering the message. Jones is a member of the church's Adult Choir and serves on several church committees.

Girls To Sing Evensong

A Festival Service of Evensong will be sung by 55 girls from all over the United States in Knowles Memorial Chapel at Rollins College, Winter Park, on Sunday, July 6, at 4 p.m. This service is the climax of a week of an intensive study of church music at the Royal School of Church Music Summer Course at Rollins. The girls range in age from 11-17. The service is open to the public.

The seventh annual summer course will begin Tuesday. The girls will spend many hours rehearsing and polishing their musical skills under the direction of John Bertalot, director of music at Trinity Church, Princeton, N.J. For many years he was the organist and master of the choirs at Blackburn Cathedral in England.

Navy Band To Play

The Navy Band Orlando from the Orlando Naval Training Center will be featured in a patriotic People for People Concert at 7 p.m. on Sunday, June 29 at First United Methodist Church, 125 N. Interlachen Ave., Winter Park, The group under the direction of Lt. Cmdr. H.R. Hessler, will perform film scores and Broadway favorites as well as "classie" patriotic marches and songs.

The concert is free to the public. Those attending are encouraged to wear red, white and blue and tie balloons to their cars as they come to the concert celebrating 210 years of freedom and the renewal of the Statue of Liberty.

Freedom Celebration

The combined choirs and 15-piece orchestra of Community United Methodist Church, Highway 17-92, Casselberry, will present "Freedom Celebration," a patriotic musical with special visual effects this Sunday at the 8:30 and 11 a.m.

Bob Noble will be the narrator. Church Music Director Charles Brant will conduct the 50-voice choir, which will be composed of members of the Chancel, Sanctuary, and Master

Lutherans Prepare For Merger

SEATTLE (UPI) - The Lu- in America will emerge in early ry when a Catholic monk named Martin Lather signaled his break from Rome by nailing his 95 Theses to a church door in the German city of Wittenberg Luther's dissent from Rome's authority and doctrine presaged 500 years of internal disagreements among Lutherans over dogma and organization.

Now, three American Lutheran denominations are close to overcoming the divisions and forging a union that would make it the nation's fifthlargest Christian church after the Roman Catholic Church. the Southern Baptist Convention, the United Methodists and the Progressive Baptist Convention.

Monday, the 70-member Commission for a New Lutheran Church begins three days of negotiations in Seattle to resolve disagreements in the 10th - and what is billed as the final - commission meet- and executive council of the

in Old Jerusalem

Pilgrims Can Rent-A-Cross

BETHLEHEM. Israel (UPI) - Christian pilgrims trekking to the sites of Jesus' birth or death face a noisy commercial gauntlet likely to drive any thoughts of a religious experience from their heads.

For a start, there is the rent-a-cross stand in Jerusalem's Old City near the Via Dolorosa, where Jesus began his final journey toward the crucifixion. The enormous, crowded parking lot outside Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity is a cacaphony of honking horns. Even inside the church, silence is the exception.

The Christian mayor of Bethlehem admits Nativity Square is tacky.

When tourists come they're not disappointed J' sighed Mayor Elias Freij. "They're very disappointed."

'All this junk should be taken out." he said, his hand sweeping in an are over the cars, taxis, limousines and tourist buses fighting for a parking spot in the square below.

This should all become a plaza and green, a spot for pilgrims to meditate and feel the sanctity and holiness of the place. There's no place for them to sit and rest and think or pray.

There are, however, plenty of souvenir stands where pilgrims can buy the latest in tasteless trinkets.

Even inside the sixth-century Church of the Nativity, a sense of the cicred is somehow missing.

Tourists - only a handful of them, thanks to worries about international terrorism ignore the posted sign warning that "Absolute silence is urged." Most hardly bother to lower their voices as they view the 14-point silver star marking the spot where tradition says Jesus was born.

Even the various Christian religions that share rights to hold services in the church sometimes battle loudly among themselves. During the 1984 Christmas season.

monks from the Greek Orthodox and Armenian clergy beat each other with sticks and chairs as they fought over their rights to parts of the church.

In Jerusalem. 6 miles to the north, Christian holy sites are equally profane. A local guidebook describes the Via Dolorosa (The Way of Sorrow, which commemorates 14 events during Jesus's last hours) as "a noisy route through the tumultuous Arab market."

Pilgrims who walk the route stopping to pray and sing hymns at each of the 14 Stations of the Cross have to drown out the hubbub.

Pilgrims can rent a wooden cross on wheels to drag up the route Christ walked. At the top of the path, an Arab boy collects the crosses and runs them back down the hill to the rental stand.

Even inside the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the secular predominates.

A freelance Armenian guide, his breath redolent with raw garlic, identifies himself to two American tourists as being from the tourist board. He quickly points out a few highlights and demands 10 shekels ($6.60). Disappointed when he gets only two, he pockets the money and scurries off in search offresh batt.

Even inside the tiny tomb the site tradition says Jesus' body was lain, the opportunity for meditation is slight. A Roman Catholic nun knelt down and placed her hand on the marble marking the spot where the body lay.

She bent her head and prayed silently until a voice from outside yelled. "C'mon. c'mon, time's up.

Pope To Visit Devout Colombia

Pope John Paul II next month will visit a devoutly Roman Catholic nation whose faith is constantly tested by political violence, natural disasters, and a corrupting, clandestine drug trade.

The pope's seven-day visit to Colombia, from July 1 to 7, will be his first to that country and his seventh to Latin America.

Latin America.

The influence of the church is so strong political observers expect Colombia's left-wing guerrilla organizations to honor an informal truce declared in honor of the visit.

Two guerrilla groups, the M-19 and an Indian rebel group known as Quintin Lame, would like to meet with the pontiff, but BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) - Colombia church officials have Colombia in 1968, he inaugudeclined the requests.

Ninety-seven percent of Colombia's inhabitants are Catholics. Despite its history of political violence and social tension. Colombia is one of Latin America's most consistent democracies.

The most emotional moment of the pope's 11-city visit will be A bastion of Roman Catholi- the trip to Chinchina and cism. Colombia was host in 1968 Armero, towns devastated by the to a visit by Pope Paul VI, the Nov. 13, 1985 volcanic eruption first pontiff to ever travel to and resulting mudslide that buried to death 23,000 people.

In a tribute to Colombia's historical status as the most devoutly Catholic nation in South America, the pope will concentrate almost his entire tour on it.

The pope will stop in the Caribbean island of St. Lucia July 7 for a few hours on his return trip to the Vatican. When Pope Paul VI visited rated a controversial Latin American bishops assembly in Medellin that issued a call for greater social activism by the Pope John Paul II. a strong anti-Marxist, has made it clear he feels the activism of priests and nuns in politics and social causes in recent years has become excessive.

Recently, the pope has softened his criticism of Liberation Theology, which draws parallels between the teachings of Christ and modern-day social revolu-

in Colombia, the pope is expected to elaborate on his views that the church sides with the poor in demanding social justice, but he will repeat warnings that the Vatican expects the clergy to concentrate than politics.

Pope John Paul II

He is also certain to denounce the moral threat poised by Colombia's drug mafias.

The need for social peace is expected to be a constant theme on spiritual teachings rather of the visit, and it will have special meaning for Colombia.

Something's Wrong With Standards

There's something's wrong

A mother poses nude for a girlie magazine and the media ask her young daughter how she feels about it. The embarrassed girl stammers a bit and finally says, "After mom explained it to me. I guess it's all right."

Does anyone really feel that daughter is happy with what her mother did?

Evangelicals Reassess Stand On Catholics

By David E. Anderson UPI Religion Writer

Prompted by the "great ferment" within the contemporary Roman Catholic Church. conservative evangelicals are beginning to reassess their historic and sometimes hostile stance toward Catholicism.

Providing the focus for the reassessment is a 38-page document. "A Contemporary Persepective on Roman Catholicism." put together by a 16-member task force of the World Evangelical Fellowship.

The document was discussed and approved at the Fellowship's Eighth General Assembly held in Singapore. "During the past centuries and especially in recent decades, significant changes are evident along many fronts," the doucment declares. "There is great ferment in Roman Catholic circles and the picture is far from But it said that despite many hopeful signs of change in Catholicism. "clearly the central issues of the 16th century struggles are still very much alive among the heirs of both Rome and the Reformation." In looking at contemporary Catholicism. the statement said a number of factors contributed to the need for restating the evangelical position, including the growth and spread of secularism, the "wide and intelligent" use of mass media by the Catholic Church, "as well as the particular gifts the present pope has for public exposure.

The document deals with Roman Catholic belief and practice in such areas as its relation to other churches, religious liberty. the doctrine of Mary, authority in the church, the papacy and infallibility, modernism and theological liberalism, justification by faith, the doctrine of the sacraments and the mission of the church.

On the place of Mary, mother of Jesus, in the churches, for example, the document says that, "to be sure, Mary ... has a definite place in the hearts and minds of evangelicals."

"However, the (Catholic) dogmatic affirmations of her immaculate conception. her perpetual virginity, and her assumption into heaven in bodily form lack biblical foundation. Nor is there biblical basis for titles such as 'queen of heaven,' 'mother of the church,' and 'queen of all saints.'" the intercession of Jesus Christ, lack all Catholic bodies.

support from Scripture and detract from the worship which Christ alone deserves."

The evangelical statement also reiterated Protestantism's longstanding opposition to the Catholic position on authority in the church and the role of the papacy, calling the Catholic system a major impediment to improved relations between the two faith groups.

"Scripture leaves no room for mere corrections on the Roman Catholic doctrine of the papacy," the document declares. "It (Scripture) compels us instead to reject the very idea of Petrine primacy as the basis for papal infallibility.

'The papacy, with its claim to infallibility stands in the way of renewal within Roman Catholicism," the statement adds. "It also poses an immense obstacle to Christian

Lake Mary To Developers: 'We're Ready'

City Gets Prepared For Fast- Approaching Tidal Wave Of Growth

By Paul Schoefer Herald Staff Writer

The catch-phrase attached to Lake Mary is "City of Lakes." But these days, the phrase "City of Growth" eems much more appropriate. And, then, city officials would prefer the phrase "City of Managed Growth" after their many struggles with developers and amongst themselves. in coming up with growth management legislation in recent years.

Growth in Lake Mary, like growth ecross central Florida, is an ongoing. and ever changing story.

There are five Developments of Regional' Impact (DRIs) - major projects that will impact county roads and neighboring communities - in or near Lake Mary, based around the Interstate 4-Lake Mary Boulevard interchange, not including the fifth project the Heathrow community, a portion of which is already complete.

The four other DRI projects occupy over 1.000 acres, mostly undeveloped brush covered land, and former orange groves. Over a halfbillion dollars will be spent on construction of the four projects, and almost 20,000 new jobs will be created when the projects are com-

More numbers: Between Timacuan Golf and Country Club and Heathrow more than 5.000 new homes are planned. Heathrow has built 100 out of 4.325 homes so far. and 1,097 are planned for Timacuan; millions of square feet in office, retail and commercial space are planned; $9 million in impact fees have been paid to Seminole County for the widening of Lake Mary Boulevard from the west at Markham Woods Rd. to the east at Country Club Rd. Combined construction costs approach $600 mil-

And those five DRIs have attracted other smaller developers, who want to build banks, convenience stores, churches, and 100-home subdivisions. An Orlando television station is constructing a new broadcast center at a cost approaching $5 million, a $7-million public school will open in August, and there has been mention of a new radio station setting up shop in the city. Population projections say by 1990, the city's population of 5.000 today, will multiply to over 20,000.

Is the 13-year-old city ready for growth? The town's governing city commissioners say yes. A poll taken of residents' attitudes say they are ready for it, too. "This city commission has been incredibly dedicated and diligent in protecting the city." city manager Kathy Rice said. "If this city is to grow, it will be done in an orderly fashion," she continued, pointing to city growth management related legislation, which includes the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, Land Development Code, Master Sewer Plan. Transportation Plan, and the Master Wastewater Plan.

"We've had the opportunity to do this legislation before growth." she said. "It's a luxury others haven't been able to take advantage of. Citizens should take a great deal of pride in their commission for the hard decisions they have had to make," she said.

Mayor Dick Fess says of the growth explosion: "We've been preparing for it, and I think we're

"I don't think we're going to have an onslaught. Economically everybody (the developers) is being pretty cautious." But he admits. Most of the desirable land in Lake Mary is already committed (to devel-

Specific Criteria

"We realize we can't stop growth. But we've only been able to give lip-service to development plans until we got four growth management) legislation into place. Now we have specific criteria to follow. A developer can come in, and we can say. 'Here is the written law. If you want to comply, you can build."

'We're trying to be fair. We're not trying to extract things from developers. We just want to be fair and reasonable," Fess said.

City commissioners agree that their growth management plans have been a high priority, and appear satisfied their actions will result in a well-planned and developed city.

"I think that the city government is aware that growth is inevitable." commissioner Charlie Webster said. "but we'll try to keep the rural and friendly atmosphere that prevails

"New growth must pay for itself," Webster continued. "We have prepared ourselves for the onslaught of developers. With the Land Development Code and Comprehensive Land Use Plan, we're prepared to handle growth the best it can be."

"I think we've benefited by looking at other communities, and what has nappened to them (as a result of rapid growth)." Webster said.

Commissioner Ken King: "The city has the responsibility to handle growth. We've tried to allow growth that is only consistent with the land's capability of handling it." he continued, saying new projects effect water drainage, waste disposal, and transportation.

"It behooves us to be cautious and consistent with long-range plan-ning." King added. "New development should pay its own way. Existing residents should not have to subsidize new development."

He said impact fees to make growth pay for itself in the city are 'necessary, realistic, and should be cstablished.'

Commissioner Buzz Petsos: "One of my major concerns is encroachment of commercial business in residential areas. I'm taking a hard look at conditional uses. When you start allowing commercial uses in residential areas, you turn them into commercial neighborhoods instead of residential neighborhoods. Petsos is one of the commission's leading advocates of imposing impact fees on new developments in the city. "We need assistance from developers for impacts due to development." Petsos said.

The city is presently trying to adopt an impact fee ordinance. authored by Petsos. The Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida has protested Lake Mary's proposed fee ordinances, but Petsos has presented documentation on studies which form the basis for the fee schedule to the association. The association's main argument has been that fees must be shown to be paying for the actual cost of growth. The city has also hired a consultant to document the actual cost and impact of growth on city services.

'Growth is an unending story." commissioner Russ Megonegal said.

Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary

"If the Comprehensive Land Use Plan and the Land Development Code are held to. Lake Mary will develop into a fine community. We will have growth, but we will control it with these key documents." Impact Fees

Megonegal also said he favors the collection of impact fees from developers.

"As the city develops we'll be able to finance the cost to the city of new growth." with the fees, he said.

Commissioner Paul Tremel feels the city's governing body has been doing what the city residents want.

"People want the commission to stand up for the rights of the residents above the rights of community developers. That doesn't mean we're anti free enterprise. It just means that in this city, the people's rights count as much as anyone elses." Tremel said. He added that in developing the city's landscape ordinance, one of the main points he pushed for was the provision that new projects must have at least 35 percent green space. That, he feels, makes a project more pleasing to the eye, and helps keep rain water from running off, keeping more ground water for the city's use. Harry Terry, a former commissioner, was a member of the first city commission, when the city was established in 1973. He's seen the city come from infancy stage. to teen-age status.

"I think growth has not been too fast." Terry said. "I think the city has prepared well for growth."

"I believe that you have to have a certain amount of growth, otherwise the city dies." Terry continued.

The Lakes

"The only problem I see is in holding growth away from the lakes." Terry continued. "That's the beauty of Lake Mary, and run-off should be kept out of the lakes. I don't want to see multiple housing on the lakes, because of congestion. run-off, increase of the use of lakes, and the noise factor." Terry remains active in city life. and is a member of the capital facilities committee and director of the Community Improvement Association.

to be pleased with what we (the P&Z board) have been sending on to them. I'm pleased the commission seems to accept our recommendations and uses the input we're giving

One of the first new growth projects completed in the city was the Shoppes at Lake Mary, located at the intersection of Country Club Road and Lake Mary Blvd., in the heart of downtown Lake Mary.

The $2.5 million shopping center was opened in October of 1985, and was recently sold to an investor group in Connecticut for $3.2 million. The man managing the Shoppes complex for the new owners is the man representing the company who sold it. Kent Kelly of Azon Commercial Properties.

He said the new owners were not deterred by the fact that since the center opened, only 45 percent of the esable space is occupied. Thirteen shops are now open and about an equal amount have yet to be leased. In addition, a gift shop and a yogurt shop have left the center.

"I had thought it (store rental) would have gone a little faster but we're on the fringe of the growth area. You can expect these things initially." Kelly said.

'We're right on 'Main Street and Main Street'," he said of the Shoppes location. "I believe when the area develops, this thing will be wonderful and fully leased with a waiting list to get in, probably within a year. Once that starts to happen, you'll find all of a sudden everybody wants

He said inquiries come in almost daily from potential tenants, and new ones are expected to open for

He doesn't regret selling the corner lot to the Southland Corporation for a 7-Eleven store, even though some have speculated that the convenience store's location may detract from the visibility of the Shoppes.

"The Shoppes are a neighborhood center, not regional. If the local people know we're there, the 7-11 won't detract from us. He predicts the Shoppes will be a 'roaring success," and adds that future Shoppes tenants, including more restaurants and spas will be attracted once the project is serviced by city sewers, and those types of businesses have the capacity for waste disposal. Septic tanks now service the businesses.

He said the new owners, Roberts Real Estate Growth Trust I of Avon. Conn.. "really wanted to buy it." and says their investment will pay

'Future' Amazes Franklin

The celebration of our nation's birthday this 4th of July will be marked by much comment on the exploits of our forefathers. It is, therefore, only fitting that we permit them an opportunity to comment on us. Herewith a report to his countrymen, by our first economist. Benjamin Franklin, after a brief visit to America, circa 1986:

Readers of my earlier missives relating my adventures on these brief visits to what is to become of our little country will recall that I have been most struck by the fiscal profligacy of these

I am no less amazed on this visit. These people are attempting to improse on themselves a limitation on their government borrowing that will restrict it in the coming year to $144 thousand million, or $144 billion as it has come to be known - we never needed a name for such sums. It is an amount that, divided amongst us. would boost the average income of each of our families by a thousand fold.

Remarkably, this "limit" represents an improvement on past performance, and the politicians these people have chosen refer to it. apparently not in jest, as requiring "great sacrifice." It is not possible to exaggerate the excesses of these people. .

But I have been most struck on this current visit by the litigious nature of these people. Nearly all of them are lawyers. Those who are not lawyers have lawyers, and all seem engaged in suits against each other. The wanton abandon with which these people are prone to drag one another into the courts has led to a kind of liability phobia.

I read in one periodicial a short piece about organizing a neighborhood party to celebrate our signing of the Declaration of Independence. The author noted that residents could close off their block for the party only if they had a city permit and would be required to have $400,000 in insurance to get one, lest one of their number fall and sue the city. The cost of this protection was said to be $2,000 for a day.

For those insufficiently prosperous to afford the price of such insurance, the author suggested having a party in one person's backyard. The host of such a gathering was admonished. however, to have guests bring their own spirits. lest one become overly indulgent and sue the host for providing intoxicating drink.

I fear my readers may not grasp this notion. These people hold their hosts responsible for their own excesses. Should a neighbor be kind enough to have a party and provide refreshment, a guest who gets drunk and injures himself can sue him host! This curious notion extends to public taverns as well: my fellow-revelers at the Green Dragon should take note. There appears to be no limit to the degree to which these people transfer responsibility for their own foolishness to others. One case that struck me particularly involved a contrivance these people call a "lawn mower."

One thing that seems greatly prized among these people is a large expanse of pasture in front of their homes. They seem, however, unable to afford cattle or sheep, and so rely on mechanical devices - lawn mowers - to keep the grasses in these pastures under control.

These lawn mowers are noisy, smokey machines that cause sharp metal blades to whirl at a fearsome rate, whacking off grass and anything else in their path as they are pushed about the pasture. The pushing, interestingly enough, is performed by the owners of these homes, who seem as slaves to their pastures.

in any event, one simple soul attempted to hold his machine up in the air to prune his hedges, a foolish effort that, not surprisingly, resulted in grievous injury. He sued the manufacturer of the machine for not warning him that holding flying blades up in the air might subject him to harm. I suppose the manufacturer should be relieved that the fellow did not attempt a haircut with the device; surely these people would have held the firm liable for its failure to warn against such an

I must close, as I fear my report may only engender disbelief. In any event, I have an appointment with my solicitor. I slipped in a puddle whilst flying a kite in a thunderstorm, and am told I may be able to collect a handsome settlement from the Kites Away company.

Enough Is Enough

Federal District Judge Harry Claiborne of Las Vegas, jailed to face congressional impeachment hearings, still draws a federal salary of $78,300 annually. Sound like a monstrous farce? Unfortunately, it isn't.

Nominated to the bench in 1978 by then-President Jimmy Carter. Judge Claiborne was tried twice before being convicted of income-tax evasion in 1984. In the first trial, the jury deadlocked on accusations that Mr. Claiborne received $85,000 in bribes from the owner of a Reno

In the second trial, he was convicted of failure to report $106,000 in income and sentenced to two years in a stockade at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala. When he took up residence there last May, he became the first federal judge in history to be convicted of a felony and actually go to jail.

Yet, Mr. Claiborne is unfazed. Even though he lost an appeal and hasn't been active on the bench since December 1983, he has refused to resign and thus forfeit his federal pay. Worse, he is insistent that the House of Representatives undertake impeachment proceedings so that he has an opportunity to clear his name.

Now, we have no illusions about the social and political texture of Nevada. But Mr. Claiborne's ridiculous obstinancy not only reflects poorly on his state, it serves to erode public confidence in the judiciary. Commenting on Mr. Claiborne's annual prison wages of $78,200, federal Judge Charles Wiggins observes, "The absurdity of such a spectacle is evident to all."

Leading Nevada politicians are anxious about the negative publicity the state will likely receive from the congressional impeachment proceedings. But not even U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt has been unsuccessful in persuading Mr. Claiborne to resign.

To be sure, every person deserves his or her day in court. But Mr. Claiborne had his and is now unnecessarily torturing the federal judiciary and Nevada. The lifetime appointment for federal judges doesn't extend to convicted felons. Mr. Claiborne has done enough damage and should go.

Smoke-Free By 2000

The American Medical Association proposes to make America a smoke-free society by the year 2000.

This sounds, at first puff, like an impossible dream. And, for those who smoke, it's a nightmare of Big Brother intruding on personal freedom.

But as the nation hacks its way toward the end of the century, sending millions of smokers to premature graves, the goal of an America free of fumes from the noxious weed becomes more vital than utopian.

America was born with the Indians handing the colonists a peace pipe, the tobacco lobby will tell you. Does that mean America must

Becoming a smoke-free society will mean more than paying for ads for Brooke Shields to stick eigarettes in her ears. It will mean a concerted effort to eliminate smoking from public places, to educate youth, to help smokers quit and, finally, to give the tobacco farmers and companies a new way to make the second state of the second of the second

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Just about everyone from Dr. Spock on has taken a swing at explaining kids to parents, so I was glad to see the process finally has been reversed.

Thanks to Ruth Pennebaker of Dallas. toddlers who can read can obtain a copy of a guidebook called "Parents." Although the author at times betrays signs of having once been a kid herself, her book is generally freighted on the side of explaining the "Talls Ones," as she refers to adults, to youngsters.

Pennebaker gratefully refrained from titling her book "Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Parents - But Were Afraid To Ask."

She does, however, embrace a large variety of infirmities, including the observation that Tall Ones are old, hard of hearing, unimaginative, unfair and run the world.

All these troubles are, in my judgment, legitimate defense mechanisms. Take ear trouble, for example:

"The Tall Ones are going deaf." Pennebaker writes. "You find yourself making a reasonable you get no response. They look like they haven't even heard you. "Repeat your request over and over, with rapidly rising volume. Punctuate it with shricks if necessary.

'You will find this technique is especially effective in restaurants and other public places. As I was saying, feigning hearing difficulties can be a legitimate defense mechansm on the parents' part. Although Miss Pringle, one of my grade school English teachers, wouldn't allow shricks as punctuation marks, a parent scon learns that certain situations that arise in a resturant or ice cream parlor are better left to the waitress to handle.

The waitress may not be a parent herself but we shall hope she will know how to cope with rapidly rising volumes in children.

As for parents being unfair, Pennebaker tells toddlers: "If you want to get a big laugh, someday, just check out what the Tall Ones are reading about you."

Bookshelves also can be a defense mechanism. Any "Short Ones," as toddlers presumably are called, who try to amuse themselves by checking out what I am reading about them will soon be awash in such titles as "Should a Shricking Two-Year-Old See a Psychiatrist?" "The Tall Ones spend most of their time running your life, anyway." Pennebaker writes. "The last thing they need is more tips on bossing you around." She points out that "in the United States. where everyone is supposedly equal," toddlers can't drink, vote, or see X-rated movies.

"They don't have credit cards or even credit ratings," she notes. "And then they (parents) wonder why 2-year-olds whine so much.

It isn't being turned away from a polling place or being denied plastic credit that causes toddlers to whine. It's the failure of parental defense mechanisms, such as faulty memories.

As evidence that the Tall Ones are "losing touch with reality" in their dotage. Pennebaker cites "all the times you've played hide-and-seek with them and they've forgotten to look for you."

WILLIAM RUSHER

The Real Campaign '84 Story

Theodore White, who died last month, pioneered the "big books" on American presidential elections. Beginning with "The Making of the President 1960," which told the story of John F. Kennedy's triumph over Richard Nixon in that year. White's books dominated the field until he retired from it voluntarily after the 1972 election.

White's technique was encyclopedic: He tried to cover every- CHUCK STONE thing that happened - in both parties, in both the primaries and the general election — or at least everything, public and private, that was significant. That was of course impossible, but White was a tireless reporter who really did cover great swatches of the action, and he was such a good writer that he gave his readers the feeling they were getting the entire "inside story.

Richard Brookhiser, my young colleague at National Review, was the magazine's chief reporter of the 1984 campaign, and now he has brought out his own book about it all. Shrewdly, he has made no attempt to imitate White. On the contrary, he made a conscious decision to concentrate, not on the behind-the-scenes aspects of the campaign, but on its public events. and he has stressed the point by boldly titling his book "The Outside Story." It is easily the best account of the 1984 election in print.

In one important respect, Brookhiser does remind one of White: He too is a superb writer. His description of Jesse Jackson's visit with Castro (on which he accompanied the candidate) is worth the price of the book all by itself. Savor this account of a reception Fidel threw for the press:

"I had been to one buffet, at the Rockefeller home in Pocantico Hills, where the food was almost as good. Almost - the Rockefellers didn't give unlimited seconds. There was fish, caviar, shrimp, crab claws, lobster (poached tails or mousse in the half shell). There was chicken curry, corn pudding, whole roast pig. There was chocolate roulade, cake topped with bonbons, bread baked in the shape of alligators.... There were a dozen bartenders pouring hard liquor with a liberal hand, most liberally of all into the mojitos, a concoction of sugar, mint and rum that tasted like dew and acted like Sominex. The room was as long as a line drive over second

But Brookhiser's theme is politics. and he never takes his eye off it for long. He begins with a close look at the original large field of Democratic hopefuls, on parade at a "cattle show" in Iowa not long before that state's notoriously early caucuses.

After fleeing Manila and living in protective security at U.S. bases, the wife of ousted Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos promptly went shopping for - you guessed it more shoes.

We know this because the U.S. Air Force revealed what it cost to temporarily house the deposed first family. A personal expense tab of $200,000 included $2,552 for shoes.

Far be it from me to defend the Marcos regime or excuse Imelda Marcos' extravagance. But I must confess that I too have a terrible weakness for buying shoes. So do many other women I know. My husband says I've never seen a shoe sale I didn't like. I rationalize that it's because I wear a hard-to-find narrow size. For self-preservation. I've adopted the motto: If the shoe fits, buy it, because if I don't need it this day/week/month or year, I will need it next day/week/month or year.

My friend, Leslie, totally understands. She gets nostalgic remembering a certain shoe store in another town, noted for its annual: sale of all its high-priced shoes at one low price of $10. She would go to the sale with a sister-in-law, and it became a sort of competitive marathon between them. "We would buy like crazy," says Leslie. 'and my sister-in-law would say to me, 'Makes you wish you had more feet, doesn't it?' We would each walk out with 10 or 12 boxes of shoes."

Leslie says she has paid full price only once - $62 for electric-blue pumps with stiletto heels that make her feel she's filming a "Miami Vice" episode with Don Johnson. "The toes are so pointy, I could kill a cockroach in a corner," she says with a wicked laugh.

It's more fun buying shoes than sults and dresses. You don't have to undress and face yourself under those terrible dressing-room lights. Trying on shoes doesn't remind you that your waistline is expanding. Feet, bless them, stay the same size and don't get wrinkles.

The luxury of shoe shopping is perfectly described by Mimi Pond in her book "Shoes Never Lie."

"You are catered to. You get to sit down. A salesperson brings them to you. (All the better if it's a man.) He slips them on your feet You can register disapproval with a wrinkling of the nose The offending shoes disappear with a wave of the hand."

United States Refuses Refugees

By Jack Anderson Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Rebuffed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, an angry Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, turned to the Canadian ambassador for help in getting an elderly Cambodian couple out of a refugee camp in Thailand. The Canadians have declined to intervene in the controversy.

The senator's unusual appeal took the form of a letter to Ambassador Allan Gotlieb on behalf of the Tang Song Chia family, whose plight was brought to Glenn's attention by his daughter. Lyn. She had visited the elderly, infirm couple at a refugee camp on the Thai-Cambodian border where they have spent the last six years.

Glenn wrote Gotlieb that he had "personally appealed to INS Commissioner (Alan) Nelson and Attorney General (Edwin) Meese ... without success." The senator

"While my request was rejected because there was, in the words of the INS, 'an effort on the part of the applicants to conceal an association with the Khmer Rouge,' the INS has conceded that there is no proof that the members of the Tang Song Chia family in Thailand were members of the communist Khmer Rouge. They are implying a guilt by association."

Glenn then proceeded to give the gration agency's rejection: "I believe that the high level of congressional and media interest shown ... has made an objective review of this case by the immigration and Naturalization Service difficult, if not impossible. I feel that the INS has been wholly unreasonable and intransigent in this case."

Glenn expressed the hope that Canada would admit the Chias, and said he had been told that sponsors had been lined up to make sure the family wouldn't wind up on welfare. He pointed out that the family members living in Columbus "have proven themselves to be exemplary members of their community, receiving numerous commendations for their hard work, ability and

Bevilacqua Case Highlights Bad Year On Bench

By Michael J. Spataro

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - When Joseph Bevilacqua took his oath as chief justice of the Rhode Island Supreme Court in 1976, he pledged a career of "diligence, integrity and

A decade later, Bevilacqua, 67, is leaving office a bare step ahead of an impeachment inquiry concerning his ties to reputed mobsters and allegations of adulterous affairs.

Bevilacqua's 21 years of legislative service, the final seven as powerful House speaker, and a decade as the state's top judge were thoroughly tarnished by the six-month probe. Facing almost certain impeachment by the General Assembly that elected him in 1976, the feisty chief justice, 67, submitted his resignation May 28, effective Monday, June 30.

On the quirkier end of events, the head of the state's Planned Parenthood office was excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church for supporting abortion and the state's most prestigious college. Brown University, had some of its students arrested in a sex-for-money ring.

Bevilacqua has declined all interviews since Dec. 2, 1984, when the state's largest newspaper, the Providence Journal-Bulletin, first revealed the chief justice's links to well-known mobsters, including at least a casual friendship with New England crime boss Raymond "Junior" Patriarca.

Surveillance by the state police and the newspaper showed Bevilacqua visiting convicted felon Robert Barbato 17 times in 1984. State police added other sightings of Bevilacqua - or his car - at mob-linked businesses.

Four months later, with a judicial ethics investigation already underway, the newspaper opened a seamier scandal, printing photo-graphs from the married Bevilacqua's 1983 visits to the Alpine Motel in Smithfield, where he allegedly met twice with his secretary and once with a Massachusetts woman. Bevilacqua told the President's Commission on Organized Crime he paid $20 to use the rooms for one-hour visits. The motel was owned at the time by men linked to drug smuggling and a large gambling syndicate.

with some court employees, using A scandal at the state housing court employees to do work at his homes on state time, and of having work performed for free at his homes by companies contracted to do business with the court.

As a former defense attorney, Bevilacqua acknowledged that he became friendly with some of the state's most notorious criminals. When he gave up his law practice and the powerful speakership of the Rhode Island House to become the state's top judge. Bevilacqua promised to set aside "old friendships and causes.

His failure to do so brought about a negotiated public censure and four-month leave of absence in 1985, mandated by the state Commission on Judicial Tenure and Discipline. It also triggered the impeachment investigation.

Bevilaequa, married and the father of three grown children, is the son of an Italian immigrant grocer. In 1950, he started a rapid rise in Democratic Party politics and by 1969 had risen to House speaker. In 1976, after the death of Supreme Court Chief Justice Thomas Roberts. Bevilacqua made it clear he wanted the post and was elected unanimously by the Legislature.

He took over a fragmented court system in need of modernization and tighter administration, and won plaudits for decreasing case backlogs, improving record-keeping and overall efficiency.

But his past dogged him almost from the day he took the bench.

As early as 1976, the state juidicial commission refused to censure Bevilacqua for performing a marriage ceremony for Joseph Badway. a chauffeur for now-deceased orga-Patriarca. The panel called the wedding an isolated incident.

In 1977. Attorney General Julius Michaelson investigated charges first made in 1964 that Bevilacqua took stolen money for harboring a fugitive in his basement. Michaelson declined to prosecute, saying testimony on the charges was inconsistent.

That same year, the FBI claimed it had transcripts of taped conversations in the 1960s between Patriarca and Bevilacqua that were made during an illegal bugging of Patriarca's office.

In 1973, while speaker of the House, Bevilacqua wrote a letter to the State Parole Board on behalf of Patriarca, who was serving time for a murder conspiracy.

When spotted in 1984 hanging around mobsters again. It proved the beginning of the end of his colorful career.

"His performance on the bench was never questioned." said John Bevilacqua, a state senator from Providence and one of the chief justice's sons. "After extensive probing, no one ever found any improprities of his judicial duties and obligations."

The chief justice's resignation spared his son from the painful task of having to vote on the impeachment resolution.

The circumstances that led to his resignation were unfortunate," said acting Chief Justice Thomas Kelleher, who is considered the frontrunner of six candidates to replace Bevilacqua. "To err his human. He really leaves a great legacy of accomplishments."

In addition, the resignation is not without its rewards. Bevilacqua leaves office with the choice of retiring with a judicial pension of $65,000 or a state pension of $61,500 - neither which would have been affected by impeachment.

'That's Where Ms. Ferguson Buys Clothes'

By Gregory Jensen UPI Senior Editor

LONDON (UPI) - "This is Knightsbridge." said the tour guide. "This is where Sarah Ferguson buys lots of her clothes."

Fifty heads, 48 of them female, eagerly swiveled for a once-removed brush with royalty-to-be. Then the bus fought through traffic near where Sarah worked.

This was what organizer Verite Baker, anticipating Ferguson's July 23 marriage to Prince Andrew, calls the "Royal Wedding Tours." Guide Carolyn Rayward is more forthright.

"This is the Fergie Tour." she told a double-decker busload of awed northern English ladies the other day. "We'll be seeing the places associated with her." Andrew was scarcely mentioned all afternoon. The trouble is, there aren't many "Fergie" places. The 26-year-old redhead one newspaper calls "Her Pending Royal Ferginess" put down few London roots, and sometimes the associations are a bit remote. "Over there - I'm afraid you can't see it from here - is Claridge's Hotel." guide Rayward said. "That's where Sarah had lunch with her Dad before the engagement announcement."

Attention was drawn to the office where Ferguson's wedding dress designer used to work. Kensington Barracks was especially noted since it houses the regiment in which Sarah's father once served.

The tour's high spot is the tiny cafe which until a few weeks ago was called The Queen's. It's now proudly renamed The Royal.

"We're a tourist sight now," said proprietor Remo Costa, whose Italian accent is so stagey he must rehearse it. "All-a them wanna see where Sarah Ferguson came."

Costa and his wife Norma handed sandwiches and pressed change into the Ferguson palm for months. A large color picture of her now looks out of their re-named window. Costa insisted business hasn't improved since his cafe became famous.

"We were famous before, because we make-a good sandwiches and good coffee," he said. He's undismayed at fitting busioads of tour groups into a cafe with seven tables and 20

"Bring-a them all in." Costa waved. "We handle everytheeng.

Just then 30 ladies of certain years put him to the test, squeezing through the door in hopes of sipping from a cup that had touched.

Take-a da seat, take-a da seat." Costa shouted. "Tea. Tea for-a everybody." On the Ferguson-touched street outside. these ladies collided with another busioed from the same tour - Baker filled three doubledeckers this time with groups from Leeds and the Castleford men's club and wifes. There was much excited exchange of impressions.

"Best tour in London, this," said one grandmother. "Good outing, isn't it?" said

Fergie Tour people "are mostly elderly and mostly female," guide Rayward said. "Royalty lovers." Many of the group clutched official

"Royal Wedding" souvenir booklets. They caught distant glimpses of Kensington Palace, where lots of Sarah's future in-laws live, rolled past the jeweler which "engineered" her ruby engagement ring. detoured through the street "where Sarah gets her hair done and touches up her suntan." Everyone got out to troop to Costa's cafe and past Ferguson's office. "That, the building with the white columns and the little balcony, is where she works,' Rayward told the hushed dozens. "You can see at the bottom of the nameplate there, it says BCK'," her design firm employer. A tailor's shop is on the ground floor. The Fergie Tour trundled past the designers of Princess Diana's wedding dress - Sarah's own designer is too far from central London and a restaurant described as Fergie's favorite.

In Westminster Abbey, where the wedding will take place, most ladies sat down briefly. perhaps pondering which aristocrat will occupy that seat on The Day. So much interest has focused on Sarah Ferguson, so caught up are people in the royal romance, that Fergie tours "are enormously popular," said Baker, whose Ambassadors of Britain firm organizes them. "One travel agency in America alone has booked 25 tours.

We did a similar tour when Charles and Di got married." Baker said. "It was a tremendous success. During the week before the wedding we were doing 10 busloads a day.'

Daniel Manion Should Be Rejected

Imagine: Your opinions have been stifled by a city official because they are merely controversial, and you want your rights defended. Would you want your judge to be someone who believes the Bill of Rights doesn't apply in your state, and who received the equivalent of a Dminus for his qualifications from his professional peers? That's what could be at stake with the nomination of Daniel Manto to a federal appeals court one step below the Supreme Court. The Senate will shortly decide whether he is good enough for you and me.

Manton has never been a judge. never published an article on the law, and never argued a federal case. Further, his career reflects contempt for free speech and the law: he said anti-war protestors should be "penned up," and as a state legislator he sponsored a bill he knew was an unconstitutional breach of the separation of church

Manion is not the first poorly qualified judicial committee recruited by Attorney General Edwin Meese's Justice Department. Indeed, one-half of Meese's appeals court judges earned the lowest passing grade from the American Bar Association. Lately, Meese unsuccessfully picked for a district court someone who said the Ku Klux Klan was "okay." the Na-tional Council of Churches and the NAACP were "un-American," and agreed a white civil rights lawyer was a "disgrace to his race."

Americans deserve excellence in their judiciary, well-qualified judges whose first allegiance is to American standards of justice, not extremist beliefs. All Americans and their Senators should stand up for excellence in the judiciary and reject Daniel Manion and all other unqualified judicial candidates.

Doctor Suggests Method To Care For Children Damaged By Vaccine

Your editorial entitled "Save the Children" (June 18, 1986) was both timely and accurate and expresses quite well the concern of those of us who are involved in the care of children. In my own situation, during the 30 years I have been in practice in Sanford, the price of DPT vaccine has risen from approximately $3 per vial of 15 doses to the present level of $171 for the same vaccine in the same size vial. This computes that our cost for the vaccine is approximate. ly $11.50 per dose which maken it an expensive item for those young families just starting out. At the time of my beginning practice here we were still treating cases of damaged, also occasional cases of the vaccine and discontinued their as it can be made, it seems a bit diphtheria were present. Poliomyelitis was just becoming a rarity although there are still many people around Sanford who have withered limbs that bear testimony to the devastating effect of that disease. Those of us who can remember the awful effects of these dreaded diseases are quite willing to accept the very low incidence of side effects (there haven't been any seriously damaged children from vaccine during my professional experience here although we have had some that have caused us a great deal of concern). Those who think their children are safe without the vaccine should inquire about recent experiences in both England and Japan wyere at dlfwhooping cough, some of whom ferent times they reacted and are convinced that at the were left permanently brain- hysterically to a few reactions to present time the vaccine is as safe use altogether, only to be faced with death tolls in children from pertussis (or whooping cough) that were of far greater magnitude per year than had occurred with the reaction to the vaccine over a period of 10 years. Needless to sy. both countries have reinstituted the use of the vaccine and, as in the case of our country and our neighbor Canada, they are intensifying efforts to produce an improved vaccine, which we think can probably be done.

In the meantime, the use of the vaccine is of benefit to the entire populace and is also mandated by our governmental agencies. Since they are both continually checking the quality of the vaccine produced unrealistic that the manufacturer should bear the brunt of paying for those children that are damaged in the process. It would seem to be a more reasonable approach, as has been instituted in other civilized countries, that as soon as it is evident that a child has been damaged by the vaccine then a specially formed governmental agency should immediately supply that child with appropriate help for as long as needed without any necessity for recourse to courts for remuneration. Such a procedure would clear the way for the manufacturers to lower their cost to a more reasonable level again and therefore ensure that every child will be protected. Sincerely.

Video 'Down, Out' LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Walt Disney Pictures

has filed a copyright infringement suit in federal court over a sex video that Disney claims bears a risque resemblance to its film, "Down and Out in Beverly Hills."

The suit asks for an order barring further distribution of the video, "In and Out in Beverly Hills," plus confiscation of existing tapes, surrender of profits and $250,000 in punitive damages against the maker of the video. Ventura Videos in Reseda.

The suit, filed Thursday, says the video amounts to unfair competition because it 'parallels a substantial portion of the plot" of Down and Out in Beverly Hills.'

The Disney-produced film was released in late 1985 and starred Nick Nolte, Richard Dreyfuss and Bette Midler in a story about a wealthy Beverly Hills family taking in a homeless man after he attempts suicide in the family pool.

The suit included copies of advertisements for the two films. While the Disney ad showed the three stars posing with a Rolls Royce, the ad for the video showed a naked woman reclining on the hood of a Rolls Royce.

Walking Up A Rainbow, by Theodore Taylor (Delacorte, 275 pps., $14.95. Grades 7 to 9.)

Write me a tall tale about an adventuresome girl." said novelist Theodore Taylor's wife, and so he did. In "Walking Up a Rainbow." Taylor creates 13-yearold orphan Susan Carlisle, who, in the mid-19th century, embarks on a daring journey west hoping to save her home.

Susan's pressing problem is that her father left a $15,000 debt that threatens her with the loss of her entire inheritance to a disreputable businessman. All she owns outright is a flock of about 2,000 sheep. When she hears sheep are selling for $12 a head in the California gold fields, she decides to move her animals there, reap the profit and return home in time to meet the deadline on her debt.

Her guardian is shocked at Susan's intentions, especially when she learns Susan has conned a sheep driver into thinking the flock is much larger than it is. Susan's will and spirit prevail, however, and her trek begins.

Taylor uses Susan's journey to describe the rigors of the trail, as well as interesting bits of history. The story is fast-paced and the dangers are many. beginning with Susan's creditor trying to sabotage her flock and including an attempted rape when she wanders away from her party at a rest stop.

As if the dangers of the trail weren't enough. Susan's plans go sour when she reaches California. Sheep prices are down, and she is forced to depend upon her drover's luck in a high-stakes gambling venture. And when she departs San Francisco on a steamer for a return trip via Panama, readers are treated to engrossing descriptions of how that famous route challenged travelers with heat, insects and primitive accommoda-

In fact, Taylor's novel is like an exciting armchair travelogue of getting to and from the Old West, leavened with the hearty portrayal of social customs and attitudes of the times. Historical fiction isn't everyone's cup of tea, but Taylor has crafted a tale that is such a "page-turner" that it's hard to imagine any junior high schooler who won't come along for this ride.

The Illyrian Adventure, by Lloyd Alexander, (Dutton, 160 pages, $12.95.

Grades 7 to 9.)

"Miss Vesper Holly has the digestive talents of a goat and the mind of a chess master. She is familiar with half a dozen languages and can swear fluently in all of them. She can use a slide rule, but prefers doing calculations in her head. She does not hesitate to risk life and himb."

Vesper Holly is Lloyd Alexander's latest heroine, an intrepid orphan who in "The Illyrian Adventure" finds herself caught in adventure and intrigue when she travels to the vaguely Middle Eastern kingdom of Illyria. Her purpose is to prove her late father's archaeological theories.

Her father believed the characters and deeds of an epic poem known as the "Illyriad" were real rather than fictional. The epic relates the heroic actions of an Illyrian king named Vartan, who opposed his country's Zentan invaders in the 12th century. An army of magical warriors is said to have routed Vartan, who retreated to a cave where he still sleeps. To this day the Illyrian people resent their Zentan overseers and wait for Vartan to return.

Vesper appeals directly to the tiny country's king to grant her permission to investigate, and soon after her arrival someone tries to kill her. It is apparent that the king's grand vizier holds no love for her and Brinnie, her guardian, and Still Vesper and Brinnle press on, rebellion seething around them, although the nearer they come to their destination, the clearer it is that someone wants to stop them. When they unearth the solution to the mystery, they hold the key to an end to the tiny country's turmoil and to the traitorous vizier.

There's lots of fun in this fantasy, but food for thought too as readers are challenged to apply some of the story's lessons to today's world.

Plugging Court Leaks

By Alan Dershowitz On Sunday, June 15, 1986, ABC News reported exclusively about a U.S. Supreme Court decision that had not yet been issued. The network told the American public that the court would rule that a key provision of the Gramm-Rudman deficitreduction law was unconstitutional

The report, by Tim O'Brien. who covers the court for ABC. was quite specific: Chief Justice Warren Burger would write the majority opinion: Justice Sandra Day O'Connor would write a concurring opinion: the vote would be 7 to 2; and the decision would probably be rendered the next day.

By early Monday morning, the Washington political world had accepted the accuracy of the report and was beginning to react to it. But the justices, possibly in reaction to the unusual leak, decided to withhold the ruling — at least for a few days. Monday came and went with no decision. ABC stuck by its story, expressing confidence in O'Brien's report and declining to reveal the source of the leak.

By Tuesday the story was all but forgotten in the flurry of activity surrounding President Reagan's announcement of the resignation of Chief Justice Warren Burger and the appointments of William Rehnquist and Judge Antonin Scalia. But the ongoing problem reflected by the premature release of confidential information must still be addressed. Court watchers expressed consternation at the apparent breach of security in our nation's highest court. Although leaks - factual basis" without even acboth deliberate and inadvertent - are commonplace in the legislative and executive branches, they are almost unheard of in the judiclary. Information is power in every arena. But in the judicial arena it is power improperly gained, since there is a longstanding tradition of secrecy. This is not to criticize either Tim O'Brien or

ABC news. They did their job. and they did it well. The "fourth estate" is supposed to ferret out the facts in order to inform the public. It is the job of the courts to plug their own leaks in order to prevent premature dis-

In the Gramm-Rudman Supreme Court leak, the information was disclosed only a short time in advance of the scheduled decision, and it was disclosed by the press to all concerned at the same time These considerations minimize the potential dangers of selective disclosure. But this is not always the situation with judicial leaks In the case of Rhode Island vs. Claus von Bulow - where I served as von Bulow's chief counsel on the appeal from the original conviction - there was a far more serious and dangerous leak. In that case, I learned within days of arguing the appeal that we were going to win. Shortly thereafter, we learned which judge had been assigned to write the opinion, which grounds it would be decided on and what the vote would be. Over the next several months, we received inside information on a continuing basis about the progress of the decision and about the timing of its release.

After the case was over, I wrote a book about it ("Reversal of Fortune: Inside the Von Bulow Case"), in which I disclosed this breach of confidentiality within the Rhode Island Judiciary. The response of the Rhode Island Supreme Court was to declare my allegation "devoid of any cording me an opportunity provide them the considerable factual bases I do have. They thus declared themselves innocent before any trial (in the great tradition of "Alice in Wonderland") and me guilty of unfair criticism.

I am confident that the U.S. Supreme Court will take its own leak more seriously.

AUCTION

33 HOUSES & CONDOMINIUMS

(Located in Alternonte Springs, Cape Canaveral, Casselberry, Cocoa, Lakeland, Auburndale, Orlando, Oviedo, Sanford, Winter Park, & Winter Springs) SELLING BY ORDER OF THE FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION MON., JUNE 30, 7:00 P.M. ORLANDO, FL

Sheraton Twin Towers, I-4 at Fia. 435

Fannie Mae, the World's Largest Mortgage Lender has chosen the modern auction method to liquidate current real estate owned in the Orlando - Lakeland area.

Hudson and Marshall, Inc. is pleased to have been selected to sell these properties for the highest dollar bid at this important real estate liquidation. All properties sell individually with no minimum starting bid required. Although the properties sell sub-ject to the confirmation of Fannie Mae, it is their intention to sell each property for the highest dollar bid, regardless of price. Since July 1965 Hudson & Marshell has sold more than 2,000 residences for Fannie Mae. This is an unprecedented opportunity to purchase the home of your choice... with payments probably below monthly rental rates.
