Pliot responsible for Tampa spill

TAMPA — Arbitrators say a freighter under control of Tampa Bay harbor pilot Thomas Baggett was 65 percent responsible for a flery 1993 collision and oil spill in Tampa Bay.

Three court-appointed arbitrators divided blame among the Balan 37, piloted by Baggett, and the tug-barge combination Seafarer-Ocean 255 which was 35 percent responsible, according to Roger Vaughan, attorney for four seamen injured. in the accident.

Baggett was suspended for nine months for his role in the accident.

Another tug-barge combination, the Capt. Fred Bouchard-Barge B155, was not at fault, arbitrators decided.

The three vessels collided near a turn in the channel west of the Sunshine Skyway Bridge early on Aug. 10, 1993.

An explosion shot flames into the sky and spewed thick heating oil into the bay. The slick spread into the Gulf of Mexico and onto miles of Pinellas County beaches.

Four seamen injured in the accident are seeking between $115,000 and $200,000 each.

The degree of fault for the vessels may have board im-plications in liability for an estimated $100 million in economic, property and environmental damage.

UCH settles with widow

TAMPA - University Community Hospital gave a widow $1 million and an apology in the death of her husband from an allergic reaction to a painkiller.

In an agreement signed Wednesday, UCH agreed to new emergency room procedures that experts say surpass standards in most of the country's emergency rooms.

Patients will wear wristbands listing medication allergies, only doctors will prescribe medicine in the emergency room and the group that provides emergency care will try in the future to hire doctors who are board certified in emergency medicine.

"I think this will be a big step in seeing this doesn't happen to anyone else," said Norma Jean Cecil, whose husband, Jack. 64. was admitted to UCH Aug. 10 completining of breathing problems.

A physician's assistant, who was licensed to prescribe drugs, directed a nurse to give him Toradol, an anti-inflammatory analgesic similar to aspirin. They didn't notice on his chart that he was allergic to aspirin. Cecil had a heart attack, lapsed into a coma and died two months later.

The hospital board on Wednesday released a written apology: "We deeply regret that Toradol was mistakenly given to Jack Cecil which resulted in his death and in the tremendous suffering, by him and his wife, Norma Jean, as well as in grief to her when he passed away after being in a coma for two months."

Boating fees one step closer

CLEARWATER - Proposals costing Florida bosters millions of dollars in additional fees are one step closer to legislative action.

The Florida Boating Advisory Council has asked the state Department of Environmental Protection to push bills that would add new registration requirements for all boats, including many small craft not currently licensed.

The request was approved Wednesday at a Clearwater

The request was approved weathersay at a creat was meeting of the advisory panel. One proposal would add a stored Great of the abws of all more, depending on the boat's length, and would all of 13 94 million from Florida's 760,000 millitered boats. A second proposal would extend the registration to all vessels - not just those powered by engines - a move estimated to add as many as 300,000 bosts, including kayaks. inflatables and other small craft. That would produce about $3 million a year in revenue.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Telecommunications task force to recommend leaving Internet alone

By Stanson DATE Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The taxman won't be coming to collect on your e-mail anytime soon.

A governor's task force has decided to exempt internet access providers from a comprehensive communications tax. according to the draft of a report to be released next month.

Such a tax would be levied on all communications companies except Internet providers including telephone, cellular and cable television providers, who all would pay an identical, to-be-determined rate.

The task force was created after the state Department of Revenue more than a year ago announced it would begin to collect taxes on Internet access unless the Legislature and governor instructed it not to.

After seven months of meetings, the 19-member group decided the Internet was too new a business tool to discourage by taxing it, said Larry Fuchs, executive director of the Revenue Department and a task force member.

"The task force believed that taxing anything to do with the Internet is premature," Fuchs said.

Fuchs and others argued that as people begin to use electronic mail and other internet-based communications to replace the traditional telephone, the state would start losing tax money it needs to operate - especially from its school construction by communications companies fund, which comes from taxes on utilities.

Fuchs said Thursday that the City of Gainesville, home of the University of Florida campus, has already seen a decrease in telephone usage, but that statewide or national studies haven't been done. "We have not been able to discern a trend. yet." he said. Task force members decided Florida would be perceived as "anti-business" if it became only the sixth state to tax access to computer networks. The group's "preferred solu-tions" would replace the 6percent state sales tax, the 2.5-percent gross receipts tax. tax and local franchise fees paid with a single tax to be collected by the state and redistributed to state funds and local governments.

The exact amount of the unified tax would depend on exactly which industries are subject to it - a topic that itself will be the subject of much debate before the Legislature decides on an acceptable bill. House Speaker Daniel Webster, R-Orlando, has said he would oppose any efforts to expand to the cable television industry the gross receipts tax, which pays for public school construction.

"There's not any point in setting a rate" until the question the 1-percent local option sales of which companies are covered is determined, said the Revenue Department's Dan Beeman.

The extra money would be used to add more waterborne police officers, said Mickey Watson, commander of the Florida Marine Patrol and chairman of the council.

Charlie Eldridge of Tampa, representing the Florida Council of Yacht Clubs, said the second decal plan is a hidden tax and his members are against it.

Duval tax collector robbed

JACKSONVILLE — A 500-pound safe containing about $150,000 in cash and checks was taken by burglars who came in through the ceiling at a Duval County Tax Collector's Office. Police said it was a professional job. The burglars cut a hole in the roof, disabled an alarm system, lowered themselves into the office and somehow hoisted away the safe.

The crime was discovered Wednesday morning as employees came to work. Workers were still counting the losses Thursday and officials were unable to give an exact total, but police said between $100,000 and $150,000 in cash and checks were taken.

"Everybody's lost." Carolyn Snurkowski, who oversees criminal appeals for Attorney General Bob Butterworth, said Thursday from her Fort Lauderdale office. "There hasn't been a system yet that the federal courts have found acceptable."

The Florida decision stemmed from a challenge filed by a man condemned for murdering a police officer during a Penancola bank robbery 15 years ago. The after a new federal law only be imposed if states meet certain standards regarding lawyers for death row inmates and Florida doesn't, according to U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul in Gainesville.

A lawyer who handles capital Tennessee, Maryland and cases for Gov. Lawton Chiles Virginia, where other courts said he doubted any state could qualify to use the stx-month deadline if Florida couldn't.

"If Florida can't take advantage of this. I don't think anybody can." Thomas Crapps said. The deadline was part of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act signed into law last April by President Clinton.

Besides the six-month deadline, the law included a one-year deadline for states that fail to meet the standards for six months.

Before the law, there was no on death row for the 1982 fatal shooting of Stephen Allen Taylor.

Paul made the order permanent and extended it to everyone on death row in a decision Hill's state lawyers received Tuesday.

Paul ruled the six-month deadline can't be imposed in Florida because a backlog of cases has resulted in several inmates waiting for lawyers and the state hasn't spelled out standards for attorneys who represent condemned prisoners.

The Gainesville judge refused to rule on whether Florida needed to cap the number of cases handled by lawyers or whether the state agency set up to defend death row inmates is underfunded.

Freeze doubles price of some Fla. fruit, veggies

MIAMI - Consumers will be greeted with higher prices in the produce section after Florida farmers were caught off guard and a freeze wiped out up to 85 percent of their winter vegetable crop.

The price of green beans, squash, cucumbers, sweet corn and other fresh produce will soar in the next few days in the Northeast and parts of the Midwest.

Price increases started Monday in Florida - the day after an arctic blast swept through the state - with wholesale prices on many vegetables hitting the roof.

"Prices for fresh vegetables are going to skyrocket." Kathleen Glynn, a spokeswoman for the Dade County Farm Bureau, said Thursday. "Green beans that were going for 89 cents a pound are already up to $1.99 at some super-markets here." Ms. Glynn said. "You shouldn't be surprised if tomatoes hit $3 a pound." They had been going for about 80 cents a pound.

Consumers will ultimately pay the price for a missed forecast or go without.

"I'm just cutting down, not buying them until the prices go down," said Keith Storch, a shopper at a Publix supermarket in Miami.

After budget cuts, the National Weather Service discontinued its farm forecasts, and many farmers didn't contract with private weather firms choosing instead to risk it.

Gov. Lawton Chiles on Thursday asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to declare 20 central and south Florida counties disaster areas.

The USDA placed losses for Dade's winter vegetable crops at 903 million, which would push statewide damages to almost $300 million, according to Florida Agriculture Commis-sioner Bob Crawford.

She said prices of frozen veg-etables probably won't be affected.

The low in Dade County was 24 degrees last Sunday, de-stroying an estimated 65 percent of its vegetable crops, Ms. Glynn said. The cold snap wiped out 85 percent of the green beans, yellow equash, zucchini, hot peppers and sweet peppers, and 75 percent of the sweet corn, she said

Only 40 percent of the tomatoes were lost, she said.

And complicating matters, Glynn said. Mexico, which usually can pick up some of the slack, cannot be counted on because an earlier freeze hit northern Mexico. Mexican buyers from Nogales were in Florida this week trying to buy vegetables for the Mexico market, she said.

Dade County, at the southern tip of Florida, is the largest U.S. supplier of winter vegetables to the Northeast and parts of the Midwest.

Let's put 2 and 2 together

The Seminole County School Board has discussed the old Teague Middle School. The board staff recommended it be leased to the City of Altamonte Springs for 20 years, at $1 per year, as a possible recreational facility.

A new proposal is to be drawn up regarding the matter, so it remains to be seen what will happen.

The point here however, is to call attention to other buildings and pieces of property related to this concept. Our cities, especially Sanford, are getting more and more new residents and the number of children is increasing day-by-day.

As the population figures grow, so does the need for recreational facilities. The city has already heard that there is a lack of such facilities, not just the outdoor parks, but indoor areas where year-round programs can be held regardless of the weather or temperature.

Sanford had some big plans for the land across French Avenue from Sanford Middle School a year or so ago. It would be an ideal place for a recreation site. Later it became the suggested site for a new public safety complex.

But it, nonetheless, remains unoccupied and unused except by a few people who practice their golf swings from time to time.

This would have been an excellent area for outdoor activities in the meantime, but nothing happened.

There are other city, county and school board owned and vacant buildings and properties in existence which are not being used for any purpose. They are all off our tax rolls, which isn't helping anyone. But at least some of them could be utilized for recreational or other government-use purposes. If we aren't going to get tax money out of them. at least lets put them to a beneficial use.

There are complaints about not enough tax money. There are complaints about not

Learning valuable lessons from Israel

The violence in Israel - birthplace of the world's three great religions - presents a sad spectacle to mankind. But it is saddest of all for those who have visited this hauntingly beautiful country in the Middle East and remember it as it was in more tranquil times.

Throughout Israel's history, violence has been waiting in the wings even when it was not occupying center stage. But during my first trip to Israel 25 years ago, one could walk safely and without fear in the streets day and night. There was little crime (only 31 murders were committed in the entire country in 1971) and almostno violence for violence's sake.

Jerusalem was, as Mayor Teddy Kolleck told us, "a city without tensions, probably because we are too busy trying to improve our surroundings."

indeed, the spirit of Israel's people was in many ways reminiscent of the doughty spirit that prevailed in Britain in 1940.

I saw an example of this during my stay at a kibbutz -- a communal or collectivist village -- on the Israel-Lebanon-Syria border in extreme northern Galilee

As I was visiting the apartment of one of the kibbutz families about 10 o'clock in the evening. I heard what I thought was thunder.

"I'd better hurry along before it rains." I said to my hostess. The guest house where I was staying was a three-minute walk away.

"Then what was that noise?" I asked. 'Oh. that's the bombingin Lebanon.'' she shrugged. Earlier that day, two israelis had been killed by Arab terrorists as they were driving along a road that could be clearly seen from the kibbutz. The hombing I was hearing was Israel's retaliation. Such border incidents were a regular occurrence. The kibbutz residents took them in stride, even though only weeks before Arabs from Lebanon had lobbed a amali bomb over our kibbutz. It left a hole behind the apartment

Did I refer earlier in this story to "tranquil times"? Well, tranquility is relative. Compared to the horror stories coming out of Israel today. life was peaceful and accure then. Still, few living in israel feit there would ever be a settlement of Arab-laraeli differences.

The largelis contended that in Israel and the laraeli-administered territories, the Arabs had never had it so good. But one Palestinian leader likened the Arab situation to a bird in a cage.

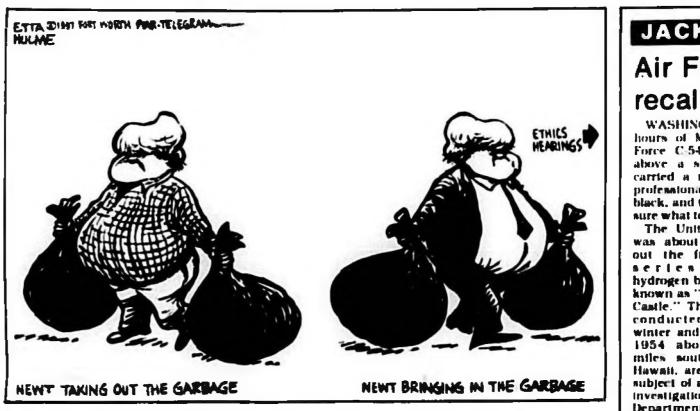

'Even though you give the bird food it doesn't have in the forest, it would rather be free," he said.

While it was nice to be safe from muggings on isrseli streets, the pedestrian did not enjoy the same protection from the Israeli motorist.

Horn-honking is usually the mark of a bad driver, and largel is a country of horn-honkers. I made some inquiries. I was told the country had the world's highest auto accident rate. The Jerusalem Post carried two letters to the editor about the driving problem while I was there

One correspondent, obviously hoping to catch the eye of the youthful road offenders, wrote, Young boys might like to make a note that aggressive driving is known to be a sex substitute, and I'm sure most of them wouldn't like to advertise their shortcomings in this direction!"

Could publicizing this finding cut down on the teen mayhem on the highways in this country?

MORTON KONDRACKE Policy may hurt health care

Washington's new bipartisan consensus bodes well for more incremental reform of health care this year, but new evidence is emerging that something more ambitious is required.

Rising public dissatisfaction with HMOdominated health care, a new jump in health care costs, and the inexorable rise in the numbers of the uninsured indicate that some new thinking needs to be done about a comprehensive health care plan.

Both parties concluded after the disastrous health care wars of 1994 that gradual reform of health insurance was the only way to go, resulting in the Kennedy-Kassebaum portability bill last year and possible extension of insurance to needy children and the unemployed this year.

But new information indicates that the political premises underlying the go-slow approach -- public satisfaction with the current quality of medical care, flat costs brought on by managed care, plus a blind eye toward the uninsured - may be unraveling.

A survey to be unveiled by the influential National Coalition on Health Care indicates that nearly 80 percent of U.S. adulta believe that "there is something seriously wrong with our health care system," although 73 percent still express satisfaction with their own care.

According to the survey, 74 percent of respondents say that "quality care is often compromised by insurance companies to save money," while 57 percent say their own medical plan provides the best care they could want.

Meantime, a study by the consulting firm Foster Higgins shows that health care inflation is accelerating again, although not yet to the double-digits that prevailed in the late 1960s.

Employers reported that their health care premiums rose only 2.5 percent in 1995, 4 percent in 1998, and might jump to between 5 percent and 10 percent by 1998.

Because governments, federal and state, are holding down Medicare and Medicaid costs and insurance companies are squeezing down on costs for corporations, the price pressure may result either in booming premiums for small businesses - forcing some to abandon insurance for their employees - or reduced quality of coverage.

In 1994, the number of uninsured Americans was 39.7 million, 15.2 percent of the population. This year, that's up to 41.3 million, 15.4 percent. At present rates, the nation will cross the bridge into the 21st century with 43 million people uninsured, 15.6 percent of the population.

President Clinton obviously is bent on chipping away at the problem. His budget will contain funds to help buy health insurance for 10 to 12 million near-poor children whose parents don't qualify for Medicaid but can't attord insurance.

It's not clear which method Clinton will choose to provide the aid -- the refundable tax credit proposed by Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daachle (S.D.), costing around $20 billion over five years, or the voucher system pro-posed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., costing up to $30 billion.

aboard the jets

along with innocent civilians who were on nearby islands and boats -- may have been exposed to potentially dangerous levels of radiation during these nuclear tests. Moreover, as we recently reported, a preliminary government analysis reveals that the required medical waivers were apparently granted only after the blasts had occurred. The first blast, known as "Bravo," far exceeded the expectations of all who were involved in the highly classified CASTLE series

On the fateful morning of the Bravo "shot," the C-54 jets flew above a tiny island, ready to observe and photograph the detonation of an experimental thermonuclear device. The Bravo test was given about a 50/50 chance of working, and many aboard the planes thought it was quite possible they would see nothing at all.

Little did they know that Bravo would produce the most powerful blast of any American-made weapon ever exploded in the atmosphere. It was officially recorded to have a yield of 15 megatons - some 750 times greater than the atomic bomb that devastated Hiroshima in World War II. A large quantity of radioactive debris was released. spreading much farther than forecast and contaminating Marshall Islanders, Japanese fishermen and American personnel on distant atolls and aboard various vesecls.

But that only begins to explain the awesome power of the Bravo blast. An Air Force captain who was aboard one of the C-54 planes shared his recollection of the experience with our associate Aaron Karp:

"It was the biggest thing that I'd ever seen," the now-retired captain recalled. "It was a terrific ... flash. It was brighter than the brightest day you've ever seen."

Fearing media attention, the captain agreed to talk to us on the condition of anonymity. As far as we know, he is the first veteran of Bravo -- which was kept secret until 1994 -- to share his story in a public forum.

"Let me put it to you this way." the captain continued, describing the nuclear blast. "If you can imagine complete darkness. When I say dark. I'm talking you can't even see your hand in front of you. You put (your hand) right up to your face, you can't even ace it one minute. And the next minute, it's brighter than the brightest (light) you've ever seen in your life - you could actually read a newspaper. It stays that way for almost a minute. That's how bright it is."

The captain estimates that his plane was at least 25 miles from the blast. Nevertheless, in "just a matter of minutes," the mushroom cloud began descending on the C-54. "We were actually under the cloud," he remembered.

Mammograms under fire

BETHESDA, Md.- Women confused about whether to start having mammograms at age 40 are being advised by cancer experts to ask their doctors to help determine their risk of breast cancer.

In a move that outraged the American Cancer Society, advisers to the National Cancer Institute concluded Thursday that "each woman should decide for herself" whether to start having memmograms during her 40s. "We are disappointed," said the society's Robert Smith. "We shouldn't underestimate the influence this report may have."

The experts agreed that memmograms starting at age 50 are vital, cutting breast cancer deaths by about 30 percent.

The O.J. civil trial

SANTA MONICA, Calif. - Placing his hand on O.J. Simpson's shoulder, defense lawyer Dan Leonard pleaded with jurors to think long and hard about photos that show Simpson wearing the same type of shoes as the killer. "Does evidence like this satisfy you?" asked Leonard, who suggested the photos could have been faked. "Are you going to be able to come back, based on this evidence, and tell my client that he killed the mother of his children?"

"Are you going to do that?" he continued. "Is it worth it? Did it cost too much? Did it come too late?"

Leonard's emotional appeal Thuraday came on an otherwise dry day of detailed closing arguments by another defense lawyer, Robert Blasier, who went through the physical evidence, from DNA tests to leather gloves.

Ebonics debate

WASHINGTON - When high-school student Michael Lamphins talked to senators about helping black schoolmates get better marks, he misspoke, by one way of thinking. By another, he was merely lapsing into a native tongue.

"We do have teachers who have went into the classrooms not having the capability to understand," the nervous 17year-old testified.

Whether that was a grammatical mistake or an expression of ebonics goes to the heart of a national debate started by the Oakland, Calif., school board, where Lampkins is student director.

The debate pits traditional grammarians against some black nationalist scholars who believe appech is neither good nor bad - just standard or nonstandard. The subject was explored Thursday by a Senate committee.

GATOR'S REVENCE

By Mary Anne Connor The clouds shifted and swayed, covering up the moon. The night creatures chirped so loud that it seemed that you could scream and not be heard.

On a highway bordering a large amusement park just utaide of Orlando, a large opened and began

"Listen, Joe, this sinkhole will be easy to fill and then we can continue building the rest of the new dinosaur exhibit in the park." Gloria Mannelly looked at Joe. Gloria was the head of building the new amusement park ride, the ride next to the Park Juraasic exhibit. Construction workers with buildosers began their job of plowing down all the trees.

"Gloria, you're in charge of this operation but I'm in charge of yout I don't want anything to go wrong." Joe's baiding head gleamed in the hot summer sun as he strode away, and his nice gray business sult was now dusty from the dirt flying around.

Gioria pretended she didn't hear Joe as she started to pull her long blond hair into a ponytall. Her light blue eyes sparkled. "I hate that man!" she fumed. "He knew I never wanted this job. I think it's stupid to plow down a beautifully natural. swampy jungle just to put up a ride with fake animals and fake vegetation." Now ahe had the added task of filling a strikhole, too. She threw up her hands and stormed off.

No one paid any attention to the huge creature slipping the behind unused machinery. No one saw the to the park headquarters. Maybe Sharon had run there. People pushed and shoved. "Sharoni" Gloria acreamed adain. Down at the other end of the park. Sharon ran through the acreaming people. Suddenly, behind her she heard a grow. She turned around. The creature was no more than 10 feet away and R was staring right at her. Drips of gleaming venom down the descended creature's glistening white teeth. The monster took a step toward Sharon.

By now, all the acreaming people had rushed over to the other division of the park. Sharon glanced quickly behind her. There was a huge tree. She turned back around to find the monster closer now. Suddenly. Sharon Whack! Another crashing boom sounded as the beast's tail again whipped the tree.

Ananhi screamed Sharon. Tears were streaming down her face.

"Firel" cried an officer, and a blast of gunahots went off. The creature whirled around, slared at the officers, and then charged them. "Blast the beast!" someone cried.

Another explosion of gunfire went off and the beast reared back, howing a shattering scream. Then it fell to the ground in a heap. Everyone drew closer to examine the strange monster. Sharon was taken down from the tree; she never wanted to set dinosaurs again.

The next morning. Joe and Gioria walked over to the place where the creature had been tied up in ropes. As they rounded the corner, Gloria gasped. The ropes had been elashed clean through and the beast was gone!

Regroup, move on Seminole girls learning to win without injured

By KELLIE WER Heraid Staff Writer

SANFORD - What does a coach do when he loses the leader of his team to injury? He regroups and finds himself a different leader or two. And uses whatever means necessary, even aitting valuable players out, to get them up to the task. Last night. At Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium, the Seminole girls' basketball team found some leadership in their 50-39 win over Lyman.

All was not pretty, though, as the first quarter ended with the Lady Noles trailing 11-6. La'Deatrice Hampton and Shemeika Stokes combined for all of Seminolo's points while Kim Collins scored nine of Lyman's single-handedly.

Five unanswered points by Lyman opened the second quarter. The game appeared completely one-sided when four free throws were missed by the Tribe and then. finally, Hampton hit one from the baseline to end the 10-point run by the Greyhounds.

This was enough to spark the trailing Seminole team and the comeback began.

If the second quarter had been just a minute or two longer, the rejuvinated Seminoles might have taken the lead.

FRIDAY

Lyman was committing every foul in the book and allowed the Tribe to sneak back into the game. Seminole's full court defense and improved free throw percentage were enough to bring them within three and at the half the score was only 19-18, Lyman.

Halftime stole a little of Seminole's thunder as they were quickly down by nine thanks to six more points by Collins, bringing her point total to 18.

Collina would only acore one more point for her team the rest of the evening. If delense was the name of the game for Seminole in the second half, then it's nickname was Hancefa Miller

'Miller wasn't showing me what I Wynn said, "So I sat her out for the supposed to."

It did. Miller accred aix points in the third quarter and railied her Bee Tribe, Page 23 needed from her the last couple of games." Seminole coach Sylvester first half so she could watch the game. I needed leadership from her and I wasn't getting It. I figured that a little time on the bench might make her ready to play like she is Shemelka Stokes (No. 32) is one of the girls who has really stepped up her game for Coach Sylvester Wynn's Fighting Seminoles in the absence of leading scorer Dana Merrick.

No. 1 ranked team, free admission at SCC

SANFORD - Seminole County basketball fans have a rare opportunity coming up tomorrow night.

They have the chance to see the number one ranked team in the nation play locally.

The women's basketball team from Central Florida Community College in Ocala will make an appearance at the Seminole Community College Health and Physical Education Center.

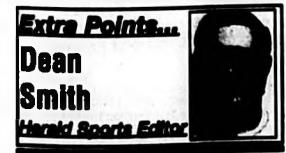

The Patriots are 21-0 and are averaging over 100-points per game and are beating their opponents by an average margin of over 50 points per game.

The game will start at 6 p.m. and will be part of a women's/men's doubleheader. The men's teams from the same school's will start at 8 p.m.

What makes this doubleheader even more appealing is the fact that admission is FREE, that's right, free.

Most people are happy when you get a chance for buy one-get one free. Tomorrow night at SCC you get two for the price of none.

In addition to accing what is arguably the best women's basketball team in the country play. local fans will also get a chance to get familiar with the best kept sports secret in the county.

the Seminole Community College women's not lost a game by more than five points. The team is conched by Lake Mary resident Ken Patrick, a long time proposent of women's basketball who has brought Division I tealistball sames to Seminole County in the past and helped establish a strong AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) program throughout the United States that has helped the girls' game grow by leaps and bounds.

I also think that most fans will be amazed at the improvement of the ability of the women players. We all know that women can play after watching the female version of the "Dream Team" roll to the Gold Medal in the Olympics this summer.

But even on the high school level, the game has improved considerably. The girls can dribble with the best, pass the tail like the Harlem Globetrotters and anout the three-point shot almost as well as any man.

To me the stris'/women's game looks a lot like the men's game when I was playing high school basketball. There is a lot of movement and teammwork, good setting of screens, a lot of passing, and an emphasis on jump shooting and

Not like the men's game of today that has turned into four guys standing around while one man plays one-on-one and tries to get a dunk or dumping the hall into a big guy who buils his way to the basket.

So why not do yourself a favor and show your community spirit by going out to SCC tomorrow and supporting the local junior college teams. You sure can't beat the price.

Three weeks later, talk has changed to an Atlantic Division title and first round homecourt advantage when playoffs roll around. Three weeks ago, a win, any win, would have been fine for the Magic. Now the team has ripped off six wine in their last seven after last night's 95-92 gut-wrencher against the visiting Milwaukee Bucks.

Hardaway each acored 23 to pace the Magic while Vin Baker had a game-high 30 for Milwaukce.

The real story behind the Orlando resurgence came through again last night. Derek Strong played a scason-high 38 minutes and had 14 points to go with 11 rebounds filling in for the injured Horace Grant. Strong has found a place in the Orlando lineup as the injury plague has threatened the team all season.

Getting him out of the lineup may be imposable.

"I feel good right now, especially coming down the stretch." Strong said. "I've been struggl-ing from the line but hitting the shots down the line helped wipe out some of the shots I missed carlier."

Strong had eight points in the fourth quarter, including fourfor-four from the line as the Bucks held off a furious Milwaukee comeback, as he kept a body on Baker, the real Big Dog of the Bucks.

Vin Baker is an all-star and he's one of the best post men inthe league, right next to Hakeem Olajuwan and Shaquille O'Neill," Magie coach Brian Hill anid. "Derek did a great job on him tonight. In addition to his defense, he had an excellent offensive night on a night when we really needed it.

For a few trightening moments, it looked like it might not be enough. Milwaukee trailed 75-65 after a pair of Gerald Wilkins free throws early in the fourth quarter, but Baker and Elliot Perry - Penny Hardaway's boyhood hero in Memphis mounted a comeback as Glenn Robinson went into hiding for Milwaukee.

Two straight steals by Baker and Perry were converted and the Bucks trailed just 83-82 with just over four minutes remaining

A minute later, Dennis Scott swallowed a jumper, courtesy of an Armon Gilliam swat, and Johnnie Newman who only her down and that was the spark about 40 years, layed it in to give Milwaukee its last lead of the sight.

Seikaly hit a short jumper to put the Magic back up and clutch free throw shooting down the line leed the victory.

It didn't have to be so tough.

"That's the way it is in this league." Scott said. "This is the NBA.

It is the NBA but the Magic might not feel like they're seeing the real thing as they visit Boston tonight. The Celtics lost to Philadelphia Wednesday as the Sixers won for the first time teammates to follow suit. When the defense wasn't forcing turnovers or shutting down Collins, the offense, led by Miller, was taking advantage of every shot opportunity and not allowing a Greyhound anywhere near a rare miss. Seminole would score 14 points in the third quarter and lead by a score of 30-27:

Seminole continued to dominate their visiting opponent and seemed more like the potential powerhouse of the days before. Dana Merrick was injured. They outscored Lyman 20-12 and the score told only half of the story.

The defense shut down Lyman's star player, holding Collins to only one point in the entire quarter. The Greyhound offense was rarely able to carry the ball past half court before it. was snatched by an awaiting Seminole. To add insult to injury, Lyman would committwice as many fouls.

Miller scored another three points in the fourth, and was aided by Stokes and Tamara Gilchrist in leading the team to the 50-39 win.

"We knew that we had to do something about Collins." Hampton said after the game. "The defense was able to shut seems he's been in the league for in 1997. After that, the Bullets and Suns await the Magic beforea trip to Philadelphia.

That makes three very winnable games. Time to start printing playoff tickets?

Not yet. Orlando is still in 10th place in the Eastern Conference playoff race but are playing their best ball of the season at the right time. Grant is expected back any day and Hardaway is finally showing some of the signs that he is at 100 percent.

Orlando has survived injuries. slumps and the loss of their franchise player to free agency.

Somehow they've survived. Only the Strong survive.

we needed." Wynn agreed.

"I told the girls at halftime to stay out of foul trouble, continue to press, and to not turn the ball over," Wynn said. "They came out and they played hard, es-pecially on defense. The defense lit the fire under the team."

Miller had a match hemelf.

"Coach sat me out for a half and it worked." Miller said. "I knew we needed the win. We can't have any more longes. We needed better defense and we stepped up to the task. We were a little slow in the first half and then we made them play at our pace."

Whatever the pace, Seminole has proven that they can withstand the loss of not only one. but two good players. Lindsay Keeler might return to the court next week. Merrick is not as fortunate. She is going through physical therapy now and is doubtful anytime before district play begins.

If Seminole wins their last district game tonight against Gateway, they will finish their season undefeated in the district. That would give them a bye in the first round of district competition.

If halftime can produce the kind of results that it did tonight, imagine what a bye week can do for this talented team

Eating dinner together Update on family dinner tradition

Almost three-fourths percent) think onling dinner together to very or extremely important.

But Americans den't est together as much as they'd like to ...

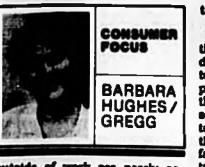

Less than half (42 percent) of Americans est dinner together every night and 59 percent eat dinner together five or more times a week.

Timing is top trouble...

Suty-four percent said that conflicting schedules were a majer obstacle to eating dinner together. Other reasons for not eating dinner together were "no time to prepare meals" (13 percent) and "no interest from family memebers" (7 percent).

Conflicting schedules are a problem for both married and single parents--75 percent of married parents said conflicting schedules were an obstacle to eating dinner together, while 70 percent of single parents cited the same reason.

All work and all play ... Schedules for outside of work are nearly as much a culprit of conflict as work schedules. Thirty-three percent surveyed said activity schedules make it difficult to eat dinner together, compared to 42 percent who cited work schedules.

Toddlors to team.

Families with children under age 6 are most likely to eat dinner together. Seventy-eight percent said it is a major obstacle to eating dinner together. Households with teens have the biggest problem with conflicting schedules. Seventyactivities obstacle to eating dinner together. The more the barrier... As the number of people in the house rises, so does the difficulty in gathering everyone to eat at one time. While 59 percent of families with two to three members any conflicting schedules are a major obstacle to eating together, nearly three-fourthe (73 percent) of families with four or more have trouble making mealtimes match.

Talking over the TV ...

Ninety percent of those surveyed said they talk about the day's event during dinners together and 75 percent discuss major issues. Sixty-six percent watch television or videos during dinner and 53 percent listen to music.

One last family tip... Research bears out the fact that it is important not to give up on your teenagers!

A new study says that parents and peers are the most important influences on teenagers' performance in school. A survey of 20.000 students in grades 9-12 and their families, led by Dr. Laurence Steinberg of Temple University, found that a negative influence on success is the tendency of parents to cut themselves off from their children's learning after the kids get to high schoool-apparently because they feel it's the school's job now and there's nothing more they can do.

Peer groups also C80 discourage kids from doing their best. While it's true that high achieving friends encourage each other, 20 percent of the students in the study reported that they did not try as hard as they could in school because they were worried about what their friends would think.

Don't let fear rule and ruin your life

I have a problem that even though I know I must get over. everytime I try, I acare mynelf back into my old ways.

I am alraid to live alone. I guess I am afraid someone will burt me, or I will get sick and will not be able to receive help. Maybe I am alraid of the financial responsibilities, or maybe it is a little of all of the above and more. Whatever the case is, this is ruining my life. I was married right out of high school and stayed with the jerk for eight years despite his repeated physical abuse. I could not face the thought of being alone. When he finally left me for another woman. I was out of my mind with fear

Any ideas on how to do that?

Dear Scared.

Courage has nothing to do with not feeling fear. In fact. one thought suggests that the only way we can show courage to to first feel the fear. face it. and then do what has to be done in spite of it.

You do not have to beat yourself up emotionally because of this irrational fear. which we all have. What you need to do in man latting it cule and rule your life.

It is time for you to grow up and accept financial and emotional responsibility for yourself. If you cannot make newspaper.

Treasured jewelry may be rarely worn

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to your answer to "Sad in the Midwest." She had purchased a piece of jewelry for her closest friend after receiving some money from an inheritance. The friend wore the jewelry only occasionally, an "Sed in the Midwest" wanted to buy the jewsky back. I don't think she should request the jewelry back. When I receive a piece of jewelry, I treasure it so much that I wear it only on special occasions because I am afraid of losing it.

My mother-in-law has hurt my feelings in the past because I'm reluctant to wear my better jewelry often, but I feel I have a valid point. Maybe "Sad in the Midwest's" friend feels the same way. TEXAS LIL

DEAR TEXAS LIL: These you for the input. Many other readers also diagreed with my answer. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I can hardly believe the advice you gave "Bad in the Midwest" to offer to buy back the jewelry she originally gave her friend as a gift. Although "Ead" may have seen her friend wear the jewelry only three times, it does not mean her friend has not worn the piece of jewelry in her absence. Nor does it suggest her friend does not appreciate or cherish the gift.

When you give people a gift, it is theirs to do with as they wish; surely she does not expect her to wear it. every day. For her to offer to buy the jewelry from her friend is decises. If "Sed" liked the piece of jewelry as much as she indicates, she should have bought it for herself. I would suggest that instead of offering to buy it, abs ask her friend if she can borrow the piece and have it copied by a jeweler. MICHELLE M. HURLEY, COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR MICHELLE: Mea culps! How do you say, "Your solution was better than mine" in Latin?

DEAR ABBY: Please add this to your collection of "acts of kindness." Back in 1990, I saw the movie "Crazy People," starring Dudley Moore. It was about people with mental illness bonding together to become productive citizens. This movie sent a clear message to the public that mental illness is just that - an illness.

Since I suffer from slinical depression and have for most of my life, I wrote a letter to Dadley Moore telling him how much this picture helped me. To my surprise, a few months later, my phone rang and heard, "May I please speak to Carol? This is Dudley Moore calling."

Abby, he was so interested in my illness, so supportive and caring. He was modest and sincere. I can't tell you what a big help it was knowing that someone of his fame still cares for those who fight a daily battle with mental illness. It made my day. CAROL ANN IN BETHESDA, MD.

DEAR CAROL ANN: Thank you. Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: I was having a conversation with an elderly Hispanic gentleman recently when a man approached us from 100 feet away and admonished us to speak English because "we're in America now, you know."

I replied: "Why? Because you're too stupid to learn a foreign lan-guage? We weren't talking to you or about you. Besides, there wouldn't be much point because this gentleman doesn't speak English." In a recent column you stated that it is extremely rude to speak a foreign language in front of some-one who doesn't speak that language. However, what is even more rude is listening to someone else's conversation when they aren't speaking to you. DAVE WILLIS, DALLAS

... DEAR ABBY: The 83-year-old great-grandmother from Indio, Calif., who wrote to praise the joys of life after setting a hearing aid in middle age, has done a great service for the hearing-impaired community in general. Utilizing hearing devices at any age offers an opportunity for fulfill-ing the human need for communication and life participation. The majority of children diagnosed for hearing loss within the first three years of life and fitted with appropriate aids have a wonderful opportunity to develop speech and language skills with the ability to function in the normal hearing world. This is known as the suditory-verbal approach to helping deaf and hard-of-hearing children, and "look-ing old" is the last thing these children would imagine.

The mother who would not wear bearing aids because she thought they would make her look old might have an easier time if she could imagine the delight young people have when they realize they can actually hear. There is much research still being done to help all levels of hearing loss, and there are now hearing sids available that are hardly visible. Please let your read-ers know that there are also community services available to help put them in touch with sudiologists ing a private conversation in a public place. who are certified to dispense hear-ing aids and make appropriate medical referrals.

Community presentation

LONGWOOD - The Parish and Community of Nativity Catholic Church will unite on the evenings of Feb. 2.3.4.and 5 to present to parishioners and friends a stimulating and uniquely different experience for personal growth. "Catching God's Dream in the Everyday" is the theme for the community presentation. The program is geared to refocusing on what is really important in our lives today. Father Angelo Anthony, C.PP.S. of the Missionaries of the Precious Blood, will be the guest speaker for event. Through the images of Covenant, Cross and Chalice he will reflect on God's dream for us and the promise of a future full of hope. "Does God Care about Me ?" Responding to this question

Sunday evening the group will look at the gift of memories, ways to recognize God's presence in the everyday and how we belong to God in a covenant of love.

On Monday the theme will address "Take Up Your Cross." From the very life of Jesus it's known that someone can be very good and still be nailed to a cross. It seemed like the dream lost. Reflections will lead the group to read the book of the cross and enter the identity of the cross. This will reveal the power of receiving and sharing the gift of forgiveness, living beyond fear and recognizing the cross as a sign of life and hope.

Tuesday will look at "The Chalice as a Symbol of Service." Before we can offer ourselves in service we must accept the will of God in our own lives. Embracing the cup of joy, suffering and blessing we can pour out our lives in service to others.

Wednesday will focus on "Eucharist as Secrament of Hope." The eucharist stands at the center of our lives joined together the past, present and future.

All services will be held at the Church of the Nattivity, 3255 North County Road 427, in Longwood at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

Ten Commandments, the rule of law

By DR. BOB PARKER First Beptist-Markham Woods

Who can possibly conceive of a world and society without law? Without the, moral law. this world would be a field of blood. One man would be a "Congress shall make no law devil to another. Every man respecting the establishment would be a Cain (murderer) to his brother, an Amnon (incest) to his sister, an Absalom (traitor) to his father, a Saul (suicide) to himself, a Judas (betrayer) to his master. For what one man does, all men would do, were it not for the restraint of God's moral law upon their spirits.

There is not a person or institution that functions without structure. One of the first things established when a new organization is formed a set of rules or by-laws. It is law that marks and determines our functions. It is low that identifies a nation. The purpose of law is to restrain evil. protect and preserve life, provide justice and reveal sin.

There is an autonomy today that is hostile to law. There are those who purport that law is relative and impersonal. From this, the deduction is to that the world lies in a realm of chance and accidentnebulous phenomena.

A sense of false autonomy also is the key to understanding the theological autonomy and rejection of law. Those who deny dependence upon a law structure lower themselves to the prostitute's philosophy. Law presumes responsibility and liability.

For example: Posting the Ten Commandments in public in public achools or elsewhere, is not an issue of separation of church and state, not a matter of the government "es-tablishing religion." Indeed, it is a matter of "free exercise," and it is recognition of an established American heritage. Much confusion exists in failing to distinguish between separation of church and state and separation of God and state. The idea of neutrality, a non-rel ious state which restricts God from government, is nothing short of fiction. Government is nonexistent without low, and low denotes value judgements which depend on religious presuppositions.

The state to not a god over society but only an agency of God. The apostis Paul said: "Let every soul be subject unto higher powers (authorities). For there is no power (authority) but of God: the powers that be are ordained of

Since. however, his mind is imperfect, he cannot afford to set forth an autonomous legal structure, because law would be bern from an imperfect and biased source and thus in default. The dosages of aspirin vary. Some reports have endorsed 1/4 aspirin (a pediatric dose), while others have suggested a full aspirin tablet. There appears to be no consensus, regarding dosage.

Here's what I advise my own patients to do. If you have had a stroke or a heart attack, take one adult aspirin (5 grains) a day, every day. If the aspirin upsets your stomach or causes heartburn, reduce to 1/2 tablet or use a baby aspirin.

I believe that this compromise satisões most patients' needs.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I work in a pureing home and have noticed a great number of Alzheimer's patients with hypothyroidism. Is there a relation between these two diseases?

DEAR READER: The diagnosis of dementia (loss of cognitive thinking) can often be difficult, because not all patients with progressive mental impairment have Alzheimer's disease, an incurable neurological affliction of unknown cause. Hypothyroidism (underactive thyroid), Parkinson's disease, vitamin B-12 deficiency, and folic acid (a vitamin) deficiency can also cause dementia. Obviously, in these instances, doctors can prescribe corrective therapy and prevent dementia if the diagnosis is made early enough - before irreparable brain damage has occurred.

There is no relation between Alzheimer's disease and hypothyroidism. Rather, your thyroid deficient patients are exhibiting mental changes caused by a thyroid deficiency not Alsheimer's Unfortunately, because the diagnosis was delayed. the therapy is less than ideal.

This is the reason why doctors ordinarily order blood tests and special Xray studies when they first examine patients with dementia. As a general rule, if a thyroid disorder or vitamin deficiency is present, treatment with supplements may reverse or arrest the dementia

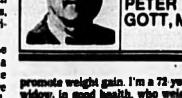

To give you are information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Alzheimer's Disease," Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, dressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156 Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: So much has been written about dieting for overweight persons, but there is precious

DEAR DR. GOTT: How much aspirin is needed to prevent strokes? I've road that 1/4 to one tablet daily is recommended. This seems like a wide

DEAR READER: Several medical studies have been published showing the advantage of low-dose aspirin in preventing strokes and heart attacks, especially in people who have experi-enced these events in the past.

promote weight gain. I'm a 72-year-old widow, in good health, who weight 80 pounds. I would like to know how I can gain about 20 pounds DEAR READER: Eat more.

Seriously, if you increase your caloric consumption, you should be able to gain weight. You can accomplish this goal by eating larger meals especially those high in complex carbohydrates, such as pasts, pota-tees and rice. Also, you could supple-ment your diet with protein drinks, such as Ensure.

As you know, some people with hidden diseases, such as hyperthyroidism, cannot gain weight no matter new much they out. So, if my simple recommendation is ineffective, you should visit your doctor for an exam and blood tests. But, first, try increas-ing your consumption of calories.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like a copy should send $3 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped savelspe to P.O. Box 3017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.
