The Story: Tanker Derailment Routs 300

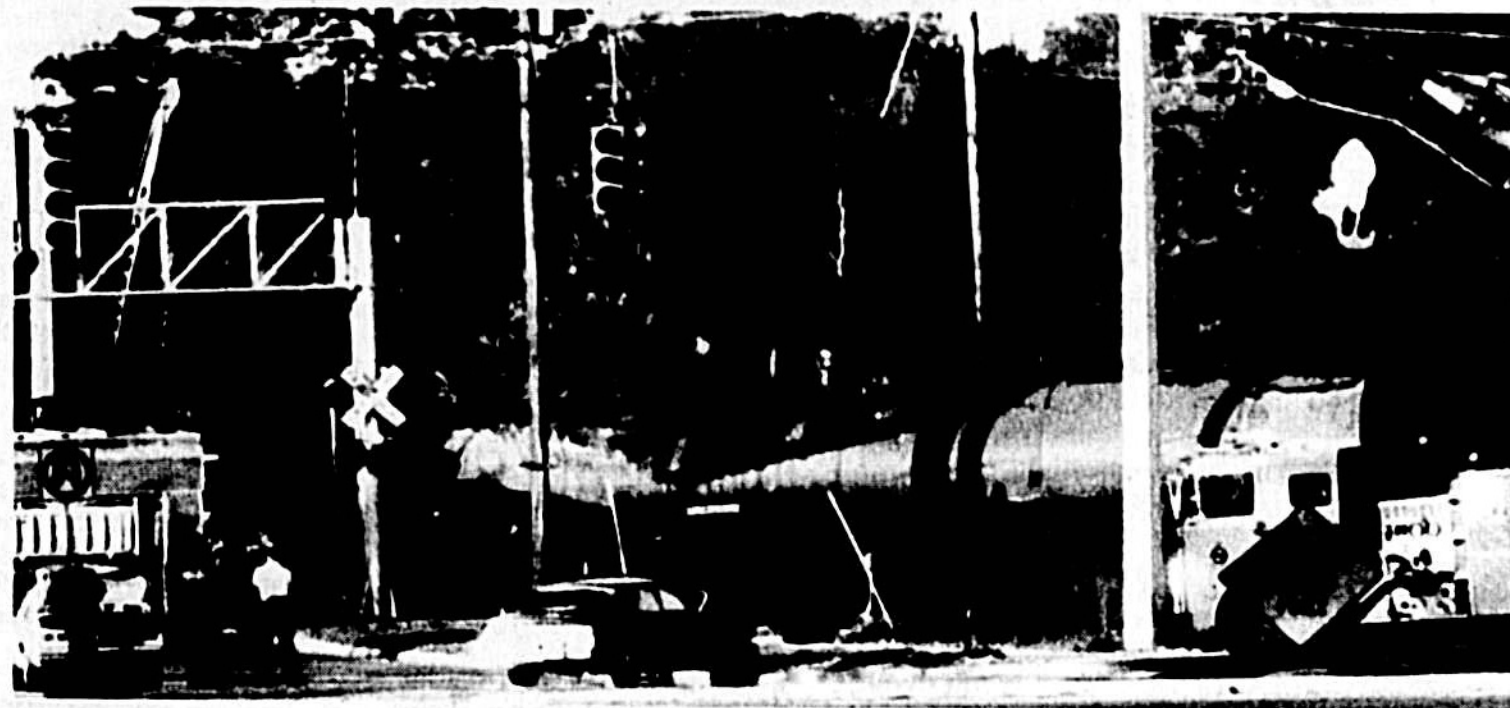

"If that tanker blows we're all in a heap of trouble," Sheriff's Department Spokesman John Spolski said.

A train carrying a tanker filled with 530 gallons of highly explosive liquid petroleum gas derailed shortly before 11 p.m. Friday on State Road 434 and Douglas Road at Altamonte Springs.

About 300 persons were evacuated from nearby homes and a hotel as a "precautionary" measure, Spolski said.

There were no injuries and the train was expected to be removed sometime Saturday evening.

The train was bound from Groveland, Fla., to Sanford.

The Evacuees Spend Long Night In Church

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

"It was a long night," Pastor Burke Johnson said.

His church, The Rolling Hills Moravian Church in Longwood, was shelter for 115 persons evacuated after a train carrying 530 gallons of highly explosive liquid petroleum gas derailed Friday evening.

The derailment of about eight Seaboard Coastline Railroad cars occurred shortly before 11 p.m. on State Road 434 and Douglas Road at Altamonte Springs.

About 300 persons were evacuated during the night from a 2,000-foot radius of the site. About 150

around, we didn't know where to go'

persons were from the nearby Quality Inn hotel and another 150 persons from homes in The Springs subdivision.

The evacuees spent the night at the Moravian church and the Longwood Elementary School drinking coffee and eating donuts provided by the Red Cross. Saturday morning, breakfast from McDonalds was served at the shelters.

Among the evacuees, mostly from the hotel, were 22 members of the University of South Carolina swim team returning from a meet at the University of Miami and 14 members of Daytona's Seabreeze High School wrestling team here for a tournament at Lyman High School.

"It was fantastic the way the people reacted and got us all out," Iva Kennedy of Grand Rapids, Mich. said. "Being involved in something like this has been quite an experience."

Mrs. Kennedy was staying at the Quality Inn when she was awakened early Saturday morning. She said only some of the children went to sleep at the shelter on blankets provided by the Red Cross. Some of the adults slept in their cars, while others played cards through the night.

Authorities termed the evacuation "a precautionary" measure and they said no one was hurt in the incident.

Harry McConnell of Niagra Falls was highly complimentary of emergency personnel. "If we have to go through this again, we're going to come down here," he said.

McConnell's wife, Jane, said once everyone reached the shelters they were very relaxed. "I think people were frightened when they began banging on doors," she said.

Evacuees reported local all-night eateries were crowded with small children running around in their pajamas. Not everyone at the shelter was pleased with the way the evacuation was handled. Some reported spending hours at nearby parking lots, where they had been directed to go, before they received word that the shelters were open.

Ruth Tullock of Oak Street said she spent about an hour at the K-Mart parking lot before a friend, who is a member of the Moravian Church, spotted her car.

"Nobody came there to tell us where to go," she complained.

"We were wandering around, we didn't know where to go," Loretta Eilers of Oak Street said. "We found this place by accident." Her husband, Albert, agreed there was some confusion: "The firemen didn't know what to say, they really didn't," he said.

"They should have designated spots," Eilers said. "But, I'm glad they woke us up. Whatever discomfort we had they did for our own good," Mrs.

'If we have to go through this again, we're going to come down here'

Eilers said.

Traffic leading to the derailment site was blocked almost immediately after the incident and roadblocks were expected to remain in force until at least 6 p.m. Saturday.

Roadblocks were established for traffic heading: west of E. E. Williamson Road at Markham Woods Road; east on State Road 434 at Interstate-4; south

Consumer Fraud: It's Here In Seminole

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Consumer beware!

Just because the person who is trying to get a job from you doing home improvement or painting work on your home is a stranger, "he is not necessarily a crook," says Carl Norris, chief investigator and in charge of consumer fraud complaints with the 18th Judicial Circuit state attorney's office at the Seminole County court house.

But, homeowners should take reasonable precautions to prevent being ripped off.

Norris said some homeowners believe the fact a person advertises in a newspaper he is a building contractor and a specialist in the building field guarantees the truth of his claim.

He warned homeowners to follow a few simple rules to protect themselves as much as possible from rip-off artists. A few of the rules, Norris said, are:

—Get more than one estimate of cost for a job.

—Make sure the person who purports to be a contractor has an occupational license by checking with the county or the city building departments. Information can also be gained about how long the person has been in business locally from that department.

—Make sure the contractor obtains a building permit.

—Check chambers of commerce better business bureaus to make sure the contractor has a good reputation and has resolved complaints.

—Check out references.

—Don't pay for the work in advance.

Norris said a homeowner should realize despite the slick talk from a person who may want the job, the homeowner is responsible if a permit is not obtained from the building office in whose jurisdiction the work is being done.

Norris said often the purported workman talks the homeowner out of getting a permit by convincing the homeowner he can save the price of the permit and by telling him once the permit is on record, property taxes will be raised in relation to improvements done.

Licenses and permits don't guarantee quality workmanship, but they do guarantee the work is being done in accordance with the building code. Permits also call for county or city building inspectors, persons knowledgeable in the building trades, to inspect the workmanship.

"It's the homeowner's responsibility to see that a permit is acquired for the work," Norris said. "There are times when the homeowner comes in to complain to us and

Anti-Midge Task Force Gearing For More Action

The special blind mosquito (midge) task force of the Greater Chamber of Commerce will renew its efforts, within 10 days, to encourage the state legislature to fund — this time for two more years — the research program into control of the insect.

The program, funded by the state last year after intensive lobbying among members of the Florida Legislature by State Rep. Bobby Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, and other members of the Seminole legislative delegation, has been ongoing since last September under the direction of Dr. Arshad Ali.

On Jan. 23, the task force members and Dr. Ali, Dr. John Darby, director of the University of Florida (U of F) Agricultural Research and Education Center, Sanford, where the research work is taking place, Dr. Al Woods and Dr. Vernon Terry, both of U of F and Hattaway will meet at lunch at the Holiday Inn in Sanford, to discuss the proposed program.

At that time, Dr. Ali and Dr. Darby will present a report of the work accomplished, plans for continued research during the next two years, and costs of continuing the program.

Dr. Ali earlier told the group it is not possible, practical or desirable to eradicate the midge, which is an important component of the food chain and also helps keep the lakes clean by consuming and recycling organic sediment.

In recent years, midges have become a major pest in at least 10 counties of Florida, causing a variety of nuisance problems and substantial economic loss. The downtown area of Sanford, facing Lake Monroe, has become the main site of midge attack during the past four-to-five years.

The legislature granted $80,000 in state money for the research program this year and the Seminole County Commission approved the hiring of three research technicians under the federally funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA).

Dr. Ali and Dr. Darby and other U of F officials are now preparing a budget of essential needs for the program during the next two years and will release those cost estimates at the Jan. 23 luncheon meeting.

In his program, Dr. Ali has found midge larvae in the 9,000-acre Lake Monroe; the 1,100-acre Florida Power and Light water cooling reservoir located one mile northwest of the lake; and in the two sewage oxidation ponds, each covering 2½ acres of the Sanford sewage treatment plant facing Lake Monroe.

He believes these four sites are the main habitats supporting heavy populations of midges in Sanford.

Dr. Ali noted the lakes of Central Florida are too large and have too great a volume of water for chemical control of larvae to be economically feasible.

He said, as an example, one treatment of Lake Monroe with an effective insecticide would cost about $80,000 — $10 per acre — for only four-to-six weeks of midge control and several treatments in a year would be required to keep the midge populations suppressed.

"The development of resistance by the pest species, the adverse effects of the insecticides used on the nontarget life and environmental contamination in general, discourage the use of

Cool Mountain Trip Could Be Hot Air

DEAR ABBY: My husband just told me he has a chance to drive two middle-aged widows to the mountains next June. He is to be their guide and chauffeur. I am not allowed to go along. He says they know he is married and it doesn't matter to them.

Dear Abby

If he drives these widows to the mountains, he will be gone for two weeks. He met these ladies in a beer joint. I asked him how much they were paying him for his services and he was very evasive and acted as though the money wasn't very important. (It is. We can barely make ends meet.) I get madder and madder as time goes on. Does this sound like a legitimate business deal or not?

STEAMED IN NEW JERSEY DEAR STEAMED: Is your husband a professional guide and chauffeur, or did he agree to be one to accommodate these ladies? It's not a legitimate business deal unless he has some kind of contract or agreement with them. If he hasn't, it sounds to me like a lot of hot air that came out of a lot of cold beers.

Seniors Slate Alaska Program

On Jan. 16, the Sanford Senior Citizens Club will meet at noon in the Civic Center for a regular meeting and program according to President Laurel Rasey.

About 75 seniors met at the Civic Center for a bag lunch and bingo at the meeting in spite of torrential rain.

Plans were announced for the special program of slides on Alaska and the recent earthquake. Three Group singing was led by Rasey and Rev. Harry Boyer.

Membership chairman Eugene Terwilliger reported 190 members on the list for 1979 and urged members to pay dues for the new listing to be completed next month.

Tour chairman Doris Rogers announced plans for mini buses to go to the dinner theatre in January. Reservations are also being taken for Greyhound buses to go to Lakeland on Feb. 3 to attend the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus.

A five-day tour to Key West and Fort Lauderdale for the Jungle Queen Boat Ride and dinner is scheduled for Feb. 28 to March 2.

Mrs. Rogers also reported on the valuable services of the Project Oasis and the Federation which are available to seniors five days a week for trips to the shopping malls, doctors doesn't do it—you tell him. DEAR ABBY: My mother is a widow in her 70s who has been "dying" for the past 20 years. She keeps praying to die, and says she "knows" she will not live much longer. The doctors tell her there is nothing wrong with her.

It is very depressing to be around her. I want to be a loyal daughter, but I am so tired of hearing her say that she is praying to die, when there are so many people who are praying to stay alive. The biggest problem is that she demands so much of my time. I am married and have my own family. Abby, and I just can't run over there and spend every day with her. I feel a responsibility to my mother, but she makes me feel guilty if I don't see her every single day. I have two sisters and one brother who give her very little time, and she doesn't seem to bother them. Please advise.

STUCK IN CHAMPAIGN, ILL. DEAR STUCK: If you've heard her "praying to die" story for 20 years, you should be used to it by now. You should also realize that she probably doesn't mean it, and she could be a little sick. Handle her as you would a demanding child. Be compassionate and patient, but firm. Give her what time you can, and don't feel guilty about the rest. Your problem is not your mother. It's your inability to accept a situation which you can't change.

Feats Of Magic Highlight Party

The "happy birthday" song echoed through the air as the young voices congratulated their hostess, Christi Elliott, on her sixth birthday. Although her actual birthday is Jan. 3, the party was held this week.

Prior to a hot dog and baked bean lunch, the guests were entertained by Christi's nine-year-old brother, Scott, who performed feats of magic. "He really did quite a good job," commented mother, Tawnee, adding that the children seemed to enjoy the tricks.

After playing "pin the tail on the donkey" and the "clothespin drop", which, by the way, Christi won, she opened her gifts. "It was really funny, because Scott whispered to me, 'how can Christi win at her own party', to which I replied, 'then you should have told her not to play,'" said Tawnee, laughing. It really had no effect on the children as the boys received marbles and the girls, jumpers, which they "field tested" on the driveway before the party's end. Guests included Steven Loper, Bethany Wait, Christopher Cooper, Mark Shorthouse, Linda and Michele Labnaki (get well soon, Michele), Shelly Burt, Alex Dervish and Kristin Stanley.

'79-'80 Financial Predictions Schools: Spend, Take In More

By LEONARD KRANDORF
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's school district is barely halfway through the fiscal year and already its finance director is preparing his financial projections for the 1979-1980 fiscal year.

And if Roger Harris' projections are on target, the school district will need $4 million more just to meet the anticipated increased costs to operate because of inflation and built-in cost increases.

But, by the same token, Harris' estimates for increased revenues from all sources indicate the school district will have no problem dealing with the situation.

This fiscal year's operating budget for Seminole County's school district hit $4.8 million, not counting another approximately $10 million for capital improvements and bonded indebtedness.

Harris, assistant superintendent of budget and finance for the school district said the operating budget should go to about $5.2 million just to meet increased costs to provide the same services as this fiscal year.

So, the total anticipated increase in revenues from all sources for the school district should be about $5.75 million, according to Harris' projections.

Why will it cost more to operate next year? There are certain built-in monies which are committed even before the entire budget is formulated, Harris noted.

"One area you have to consider is an increase in students," he said, "and a very conservative figure is that will be about 1,249 more students in the county schools next year."

It is anticipated 46 new teachers would have to be hired for the new students at a cost of $721,000, Harris said.

Additionally, $780,000 is needed to pay for the annual increment for all school district employees. The annual increment is the annual salary increases employees receive as they move from one year of experience to another.

Another fixed charge is the budget money which has to be set aside for paying utility costs such as electricity. This year the utility budget was set at $1.3 million and Harris said in the past it has been advisable to increase the amount by about nine to 10 percent to cover expected price increases.

Another expected increase will be in the amount of money to be budgeted for fuel for the system's buses and cars.

"This year we have $280,000 in the budget but if the price of gas rises just five cents that will cost us about $303,000 next year," he said, "and this is not taking into account any purchase of new vehicles."

One area which could be affected in the new budget is the salary increase for the school district's approximately 2,778 employees.

This year the employees received a salary increase of about 4.6 percent. In about four months all four employee associations will begin contract negotiations with the school board on several areas including salary.

'One area you have to consider is an increase in students'

He said if the school district wants to provide additional services or expanded programs, it could mean an additional $1 million to $2 million tacked onto that.

However, Harris pointed out the school district got $12.8 million in property tax revenues this year based on the $8 per $1,000 assessed valuation tax rates and the remainder of needed revenue from state and federal sources. The property tax revenues were based on the county's $1.7 billion tax base. That tax base is expected to increase to $1.8 billion and generate an additional $1.7 million for the school district based on the same $8 tax rate. Harris noted the tax rate cannot be increased without a referendum.

Oviedo Girl, 16, Guilty In Leaving Tot

In issuing his findings today, Judge Leffler noted it boiled down to whether Miss Wimberly knew or thought the child to be dead when she abandoned it.

He said he gave her the benefit of the doubt and presumed she thought the child was dead.

However, he added, she was still guilty of delinquency by attempted manslaughter in that she neglected her responsibility of determining for certain if the child was dead or alive.

Miss Wimberly was released to the custody of her mother until Feb. 7 hearing.

The charges were filed against Miss Wimberly who was released from custody to take care of her two other children at home.

Altamonte Official Plea To City: Don't Fence Me Out

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Acquiring a building permit before an improvement is completed for a homeowner may protect the homeowner from rip-off artists to an extent. But it doesn't guarantee the work is done in compliance with law. At least not in the city of Altamonte Springs.

A person who is being taught that lesson forcefully is new City Commissioner Peggy Childress.

Mrs. Childress and her husband, Darrell, of 623 Hatwara Drive and their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Colorado of 822 Arven Drive, have been notified by Sam F. Smith, Altamonte's zoning and building administrator, that their common chain-link fence on the lot line at the rear of their homes was constructed in February, 1977, nearly two years ago, in violation of city law and must be moved even though a building permit was purchased for the improvement.

In letters sent to the two families, Smith gave the two families until Feb. 3 to correct the violation by having the fence placed in the proper location. But Colorado said no one has been able to tell him the proper location.

The letters also said Smith was unable to find where a permit for the fence had been issued or where a variance had been granted for the fence.

However, both Mrs. Childress and Colorado had copies of their building permits, gained from city files.

Since receiving the notice from Smith, Mrs. Childress, less than two months in office, has been researching the city code. "The law is very confusing and ambiguous," Mrs. Childress said.

Mrs. Childress said the two families signed a contract with a major department store in February 1977 to have the fence installed.

They said at that time they assumed the contractor had taken care of whatever permits were needed. However, she said, a city building inspector came to the homes when construction of the fence was under way, advised that building permits were necessary and the contractor acquired the permits, and paid a double fee because the permits were not acquired prior to construction.

The building permits note the a double fee was paid, give dimensions of the fence — four feet by 190 feet — the legal description of the lots involved, including plat book and page number, etc.

Mrs. Childress said now Smith has said the fence can be no taller than two feet high because their homes on corner lots are considered to have two front yards and no rear yard.

A maximum fence height in a front yard is two feet, according to city code, Smith has said.

"Getting a building permit does not assure the job is being done legally," Smith said today. He said the Colorado and Childress permit applications did not note the properties involved were corner lots with double frontages.

Asked if the building department checks the lot number, etc. on building permit applications with recorded plats in city hall, Smith said,

"No," adding he is checking to assure legality of construction.

Casselberry Building Official Frank Broyles said today that information on building permits is not checked with city plat records.

"Generally, we take the information the applicant gives us," he said adding sometimes people get permits and fail to request inspections of the construction.

A later check of city files may find that no inspection took place, Broyles said.

Of Life... ..And Death

NEW YORK (UPI)— Three children were found apparently scalded to death Sunday by steam from a radiator in their Bronx apartment where authorities said their parents had locked them while they went to a party.

The parents, Raymond Crus, 27 and his pregnant wife Lus Elina, 24, were arrested and charged with criminally negligent homicide, manslaughter, and four counts of endangering the welfare of a minor, police said.

Homicide Detective Sgt. Vernon Geberth said the children had been locked in a rear bedroom in their apartment since about 6 p.m. Saturday.

BOSTON (UPI)— A 2-year-old boy apparently was scalded to death while his 8-year-old babysitting cousin slept in another room, police said.

A spokesman said officers were called to a Geneva Avenue building in the city's Dorchester section Sunday by a tenant who complained that water was leaking through her ceiling.

When they arrived, police found steaming hot water pouring onto the floor from a bathroom sink in the third-floor apartment. The baby, 23-month-old Muhammad Islam, was lying on his back on the floor.

A GOOD GUESS, BUT... The search for the mystery house in Sanford continues. This structure at Fifth Street and Palmetto Avenue seems to be the speculative favorite among the many persons who have called The Herald claiming they can identify the house. But.... (Story, photo, other photos, Page 3A).
