Lawmakers: 'Ban plutonium'

WASHINGTON — Six members of Congress called for a verifiable U.S. Soviet ban on the production of plutonium for nuclear weapons Thursday and asked Congress not to restart weapons reactors until the administration seeks such a ban.

The bipartisan group, noting the United States' weapons reactors are out of service for safety reasons and that Moscow has indicated it will scale back production, said a plutonium treaty could release money for cleaning up contamination from the past production of nuclear warheads.

The six legislators were House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Dante Fascell, D-Fla.; Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.; Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa; Senate Armed Services Committee members Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; Sen. Tim Wirth, D-Colo.; and Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

USSR space program criticized

MOSCOW — A leading Soviet space official is calling for a NASA-type space agency in his country and revealed that half the instruments on the currently unmanned Mir orbital station are inoperable.

Vladimir Shatalov, a former cosmonaut and now chief of cosmonaut training, also told Izvestia newspaper Wednesday that crews have had to do yeoman work to cover for Mir's deficiencies.

"For the past three years, the crews have been filling in the gaps in equipment," Shatalov said. "Many of the instruments sent up have never been fully tested. Half of the instrumentation does not work. The crews lose a lot of time on repair and technical work."

NASA monkey back on the job

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — Escaped rhesus monkey H-534 finally came down to earth from a tall oak tree, enabling researchers from NASA's Ames Research Center to recapture the wily simian after more than three days on the run.

Two NASA Ames monkeys had unscrewed a bolt on a door and sneaked from their cage Sunday afternoon, said Jack Murphy, spokesman for the center. The first escapee was rounded up without incident that same day on the parade ground of the nearby Moffett Field Naval Air Station.

But wily H-534 remained at large — whereabouts unknown — until he showed up Wednesday in bottlebrush trees and tall oak growing within a block of his research compound.

Historians examine shipwreck

GULF BREEZE — Historians hope to learn more about the short-lived British occupation of Pensacola by taking a closer look at an 18th century ship found off the coast of suburban Gulf Breeze, researchers said Wednesday.

Dr. Roger Smith, the state's underwater archaeologist, said the wreck could represent the remains of any half-dozen British ships, including the HMS Florida and HMS Stork. Both sloops were lost between 1763 and 1781, when the British occupied the town.

Officers with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department and Sanford Police Department arrive at the cemetery and wait for a police photographer to arrive before removing the skull (inset, bottom right). Three local youths may face felony charges as a result of the incident.

SANFORD — Police say three local youths may face felony charges in connection with grave tampering at Shiloh Cemetery just west of Sanford off 25th Street.

Although there have been many such instances at the site, police say this is the first time charges will have been brought and suspects identified. The three face felony charges of disfiguring a tomb.

A Seminole High School student and two Lakeview Middle School students have been identified by investigators as culprits in a bizarre case that apparently started when the three skipped school, and ended with a human skull, removed from one of the above-ground crypts, left lying in a dirt road at the cemetery.

According to reports, the three males skipped school Tuesday and allegedly went to the graveyard. One of the middle school students returned to school Wednesday, but the other two allegedly returned to the graveyard, where they had

Sanford wins grant from tourism tax

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The Tourism Development Council of Seminole County today recommended that the largest grants from the tourism development tax go to the Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the city of Altamonte Springs and the Seminole Soccer Club in Longwood.

Altogether, $177,500 in grants were handed out for developing the tourism industry in the county.

This is the first money apportioned from the 2 percent tax on motel, hotel and temporary housing accommodations that went into effect

Jan. 1. The tourism council will make a presentation to the county commission, which will make the final decision, at 1 p.m. June 21.

The council tentatively granted Altamonte Springs' full request of $50,000 to develop Lake Side Plaza and amphitheater off North Lake Boulevard.

Another $50,000 was awarded to Seminole Soccer Club to expand fields. The council granted the award with hopes that the club, which requested $210,000, will become a training center for international teams.

A $50,000 award went to the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce with the stipulation that the city match the grant. The chamber requested $150,000 to restore beachfront at the marina. The council voted to fully fund a $12,500 chamber request for the Golden Age Games. The request included funds for part-time personnel, advertising and supplies.

The Chamber's $21,475 request to fund promotion of the St. Lucia festival in December won no consensus of the council.

Pat Fernandez of Altamonte Springs voted for a $20,000 award, Bill MacLaughlin of Sanford voted for an $11,000 award and Robert Whitaker voted for a $15,000 award.

Suits, foreclosures may have forced Cardinal decision

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A recent series of foreclosures and lawsuits, totaling more than $4 million in Seminole County alone, may have led Cardinal Industries Inc. President and founder Austin Guttinger to file for protection from creditors under Chapter 11.

In a statement released Monday, Cardinal officials said although efforts had been made with some creditors to pay back debts, "recent action by some have caused Cardinal to file for protection under Chapter 11." Cardinal officials and spokesmen either could not be reached or had no comment Wednesday.

Monday, Cardinal Industries Inc., of Columbus, Ohio, and its wholly-owned subsidiary Cardinal Industries of Florida, Inc., headquartered in Sanford, filed for protection under Chapter 11. A Cardinal Industries Inc. spokesman in Columbus said the corporation listed assets of $85.6 million and debts of $94.5 million.

Cardinal Industries of Florida Inc. had assets of $25.2 million and debts of $31.6 million, the spokesman said.

The action left the future of the Sanford plant uncertain following several months of layoffs that have left the once thriving plant with little more than a skeleton crew. Specific employment and sales figures could not be obtained.

At least two prospective buyers for the Sanford manufacturing plant have already toured the plant, according to Dave Egan, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

According to Seminole County circuit and county court files, seven separate foreclosure actions have been filed against

Drug charges against teacher dropped

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — Charges of possession of marijuana filed against a Seminole High School teacher were dropped by the state attorney's office Wednesday and similar charges filed against the dean of students at the high school will also be dismissed.

Glenn Manoliti, 37, a science teacher, and George Zeiss Jr., 43, both of Orlando, were arrested by Altamonte Spring police last March in a hotel parking lot.

Both had pleaded not guilty to charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. The charges against Manoliti were dropped Wednesday and state prosecutors said in court documents that they will drop charges against Zeiss after he completes a seminar on obeying the law.

Both teachers were suspended without pay by the

Lake Monroe gets $60,000 plant facelift

By KLODIE JORDAN
Herald News Editor

SANFORD — Lake Monroe is getting a new lease on life thanks to a re-vegetation project by the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission and the Department of Environmental Regulations.

Hundreds of thousands of aquatic plants are being replaced in the lake, which, according to the company doing the work, will help clean the water and provide a better habitat for fish.

The work, already underway, is being done daily.

The cost of the project is $60,000, according to Jim Thomas, senior ecologist for Gurr & Associates in Orlando, the company under contract with the Fish and Game Commission to replace the vegetation.

It all started several years ago with a diesel spill by CSX Railroad into one of the tributaries feeding into Lake Monroe. The spill killed or damaged a considerable number of plants in Lake Monroe. The railroad settled the spill case out of court with DER for $50,000, according to Vince Williams, a fishery biologist with the Game and Fish Commission. One of the stipulations of the settlement was that the money be used on Lake Monroe. He said the remaining $10,000 was provided by DER from general funds out of the Pollution Recovery Trust Fund.

POLICE BRIEFS

Suspected intruder arrested

WINTER SPRINGS — A resident at 140 Lori Ann Lane, Winter Springs, locked her front door against a man who allegedly tried to enter her house at about 8:40 p.m. Monday. The man said he lived there.

The woman called Winter Springs police to the scene and while she was talking to police the man entered her house through a rear door. In the kitchen, the man reportedly told police he lives at that address and intended to cook himself a steak. The resident said the man does not live at that location.

Daniel Edward Hoffman, 23, of 180 Lori Ann Lane, Winter Springs, was charged with burglary and battery at the victim's house at 9:44 p.m. Bond is $500. The battery charge stems from Hoffman allegedly trying to push past the victim when she first met him at her front door, police said.

Two robbery suspects arrested

SANFORD — Sanford police reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that they had picked up a man who matched the description of one of two robbers of a Fern Park business.

The capture of that man and his reported identification as a suspect in the robbery of Sherman's Bakery, State Road 436, led to him reportedly identifying the other suspect in the case, deputies reported.

Both Angel A. Carrion, 18, of Apopka, and William Asa Cartwright, 18, of no address, were charged with armed robbery after Carrion reportedly named his accomplice. In the robbery, a gun was reportedly brandished against a bakery worker. There was no money at the bakery, so the robbers stole the worker's car instead, deputies said. Bond for each suspect is $2,000. The arrests were made in Sanford at about 2 p.m. Monday.

Man arrested in burglary

SANFORD — A man, accused along with two co-defendants of burglarizing a house at 205 Brynwood Road, Paola, April 20, and selling some of the stolen items to pawn shops in Orange City and Sanford, has been charged with burglary and theft.

David Shawn Cheek, 38, of 4931 Woodruff Springs Drive, Paola, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies following questioning at the sheriff's office at 10:30 a.m. Monday. Bond is $2,000. There was no report on the arrests of the reputed accomplices. Finger prints found at the scene of the burglary were reportedly one of the links to Cheek in the case, deputies said.

Two arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

- Sandra P. Nichols, 52, of 115 N. Sunland Drive, Sanford, was arrested at 8:58 p.m. Tuesday after her car was clocked traveling 21 mph in a 40 mph zone on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary. She is also charged with having an open container of alcohol and careless driving.
- Leonard Leon Lamb, 39, of 500 W. Airport Blvd. 1306, Sanford, at 6:42 p.m. on State Road 46, Sanford, after his car was seen weaving.

County schools ban beepers

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board met Wednesday to discuss the student conduct and discipline code for the 1989-91 school year and revisions to school board policy 4.003 which deals with school attendance zones.

Dr. Hortense Evans, administrative assistant to the superintendent, presided over the discussion. As she had predicted, there were few changes made to the student conduct and discipline code.

The code dealing with the disruption of class or school was modified to include the following: "...bringing unauthorized items to school including but not limited to beepers, pagers, skateboards, radios, head phones, etc."

Beepers and pagers have become standard equipment for drug dealers in recent years. When someone wishes to make a drug purchase, he pages his supplier.

The board hopes eliminating beepers in the schools will reduce the drug problem in the schools.

"We had some problem with beepers this year," Evans said, "but it wasn't too bad." She added that since several principals had brought the problem to her attention, there was a need to address it.

Other changes to the code were little more than clarification of language. The rules will remain the same, only wording will change to make concepts easier to understand and the consequences easier to enforce. "We're just redacting 's' and reinserting 's,'" Evans said.

The board unanimously approved all the code changes as recommended by Evans and Superintendent Robert Hughes.

Similarly, the language in board policy 4.003 was revised and clarified.

"The one thing we have had problems with in the school attendance zone policy is students attending out-of-zone schools," Evans said.

In an attempt to rectify the problem, the board approved a new policy which would require parents to present their child's school with proof of residency.

Homeowners could submit a certified copy of their recorded deed. Renters would need a certified copy of their lease agreement. In the absence of such an agreement, a letter from the landlord verifying residence would suffice.

House: Stiff penalties for weapons in school

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The House unanimously voted Wednesday to enact stiff penalties for anyone possessing a weapon on Florida school grounds, including three-year minimum sentences for anyone knowingly carrying a gun.

The law would apply to all public and private schools, including universities, colleges and vocational schools.

Lawmakers debated the bill (HB 56) for more than an hour and a half, with most attention focusing on the provision providing the mandatory sentences for carrying a gun on campus.

The bill includes a section allowing a person charged with possessing a gun on campus to prove he had not done so intentionally.

Engineers: Airport barrels not hazardous

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers said yesterday materials found last week at Sanford Regional Airport are not hazardous.

Two Corps representatives came to that conclusion after an hour-long visit to the airport yesterday to determine if materials contained in 55-gallon drums and a 20,000-gallon fuel tank are hazardous, assistant airport director Steve Cook reported yesterday.

Using a gas-monitoring device, the two environmental specialists determined that those materials are not explosive or toxic, Cook said.

Cook said the Corps recommended placing test monitoring wells on several airport sites, particularly where the Navy had a landfill until the military base closed in 1968.

Cook said the Corps also recommended testing of the materials by a certified engineer, then DER-regulated disposal of the debris.

Backhoe operators at a heavy equipment school found at least 10 drums at the airport May 12.

Church safe found demolished

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett (left) and detective Charles Tate check the contents of a demolished antique safe stolen May 7 from Holy Cross Episcopal Church. The safe, containing church documents, was found in woods east of Bedford Road and Wynn Street after John Joseph Bogucki, 28, of Sanford, led police to it.

Bogucki, a janitor at the church, is one of three suspects in the case and was charged at about noon Wednesday with burglary and grand theft. Although Bogucki surrendered to police, Harriett said police had already identified him as a suspect. They have the names of two others suspected in the case.

Castle burned by accident

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The fire that gutted Glenn Turner's castle in southeast Seminole County was accidentally set by four U.S. Navy men, stationed in Orlando, according to Seminole County sheriff's investigators and state fire marshals.

Sheriff's Capt. Roy Hughey on Wednesday filed a sheriff's report in the case with the state attorney's office, requesting misdemeanor charges of criminal trespass and obstruction against the suspects, two of whom are 20 years old. The others are 18 and 19.

Hughey said his men and state fire marshals concluded the fire was started accidentally in the rubbish-filled basement of the abandoned castle. Since the fire was not intentionally set, Hughey said, the suspects cannot be charged with arson.

Hughey said the suspects were using paper torches to light their way while roaming in the basement of the castle in the early morning on April 15. As the paper torches apparently burned out the suspects allegedly threw them on the floor and lit others. The abandoned torches apparently set off the blaze, which was discovered when the 16-room castle was fully engulfed in flames at about 4 a.m.

The obstruction charge stems from the four allegedly lying to investigators when they said they were not alone at the castle, but had attended a party there with about 30 others on the night of the fire.

Deputies reported that a car towed from the scene that night led investigators to the four suspects.

Hughey said the county fire inspector disagrees with the findings of sheriff's investigators and the state fire marshal. The county inspector reported the fire started on the second floor of the castle, and was intentionally set with the aid of a flammable liquid. Hughey said his investigators found no evidence to support that theory, but found other solid evidence to confirm the fire was accidentally started in the basement with the paper torches. Lie detector tests were also given to the suspects.

In other developments in the case, the owner of the property, J. Huxley Walters, sent a letter to the county commission April 26 complaining that the county fire marshal, Bob Christian, told him on April 17 that part of the castle would have to be torn down, at Walters' expense, to ensure the safety of investigators during a probe at the site. Walters said he agreed. However, he wrote, "virtually all of the castle was demolished," and he was not notified of the expansion of the demolition at a great increase in cost. Walters complained that he has now been billed $70,000 for the demolition, which is unexpectedly high. The castle was not insured.

The castle was a landmark built in the 1970s by financier Glenn Turner, who is now serving time in an Arizona prison on fraud charges. The castle was never completed and was vandalized frequently. It was slated to be torn down to make room for a housing development.

1,938 affected by outage

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A private contractor working around Olive and 6th streets caused a power line short that disrupted electricity service around noon yesterday to much of downtown.

The power outage affected 1,938 customers, according to FPL, but about 800 of them had power restored in a short time. Some customers were without power for about an hour.

A contractor was working in an area between the street and railroad tracks, clearing brush out, when one of the machines hit a guide line to a power pole about 11:45 a.m., according to Shirley Eubanks of FPL.

The pole was jared enough that the power lines started swinging, and one line looped over another, causing the short. The short tripped a breaker on the main feeder line serving the downtown area, Eubanks said.

Traffic signals in the downtown area suddenly went off and Sanford police were dispatched to direct traffic.

Central Florida Regional Hospital was one of the buildings affected by the power outage, but emergency generators kicked in automatically as soon as the power went out.

Reclaimed water service meeting set

SANFORD — The public is invited to an informational meeting about the city's reclaimed water service tonight in the Sanford Civic Center at 7 p.m.

In a circular mailed to city utility customers last month, the city offered free hookup and a year of free reclaimed water service. Connection charges for the service begin at $161, and monthly charges will be $3.25 with a five-cent per 1,000 gallon consumption.

The service is offered by the city as a response to a Department of Environmental Regulation order to end effluent dumping in Lake Monroe. The city hopes to reduce dumping by two million gallons per day when city properties go on line for the service. Reclaimed water lines on city properties will be in place by October.

Bill Simmons, city director of engineering and planning, will conduct the meeting.

Cavazos' vague recommendations

America's schools got a bad report card from Education Secretary Lauro F. Cavazos. Despite increases in funding, he said, education is stagnant. College board test scores are rising only marginally, while the dropout rate also is rising slightly.

Money can't solve the problems, he says. Parental participation, school discipline and requirements are vital to do the job.

Cavazos' critique is accurate — but also convenient for an administration that wants to freeze education spending. If money isn't the answer, what is? Instead of presenting a blueprint for action, Cavazos' vague recommendations were as mediocre as the schools he criticizes.

Bill Honig, California superintendent of public instruction, disputes Cavazos' critique, he cites improved performances in tests that the secretary didn't mention.

While educators are arguing statistics, 3,600 children drop out of school each day. Sixty percent of the children in public schools live in single-parent homes.

We are tinkering with the margins, while the core remains largely unaffected. Teachers teach to tests. Politicians cite statistics that support preconceived notions.

Education too often resembles a production line. Quality is measured quantitatively. The student is viewed as a product.

Perhaps the education secretary should ask some questions that don't have simple answers:

We have returned to the basics of the three R's, but have we stifled creativity and inventiveness in young minds?

We have tightened standards for graduation, but have we considered the unmet needs of people who drop out?

We have spent money raising teachers' salaries, but have we provided teachers the independence to practice the "art" of teaching — or only shackled them with new requirements?

Education cannot be separated from the values of the society. The breakdown of the family, the couch-potato syndrome, the mania of materialism, and drug and alcohol abuse all have had their impact on the development of American children. The report card on education is a reflection of not only children but of their parents.

We cannot ultimately improve education without also reforming our anti-intellectual society. But where can we begin to nurture young intellects if not in the classroom?

Cavazos is supposedly speaking on behalf of the man who says he wants to be the education president. So far, the most concrete manifestations of that desire have been a handful of useful but marginal initiatives to reward successful schools and teachers, a little preaching at schools and a reduction of real federal spending for education. By whatever measure, that's not enough.

George Bush: What do you think?

You are George Bush. It's crisis time in your presidency. You don't know it.

Everyone knows that those horrifying assault weapons are vicious. But that damned Bill Bennett pushed me into some minor restrictions. God, I know that every police chief in the country wants them outlawed. But the National Rifle Association did help me carry Texas. Soem of these things shoot 300 shots a minute, treat you in half. Some of them go right through a brick wall. A policeman's bulletproof vest might just as well be made of Kleenex. My bulletproof raincoat?

You are George Bush. You know what I think? I think I will call for a federal death penalty for the possession of such weapons. Over to Bennett. The only people who have them are underclass crack dealers. They aren't deer-hunting weapons. Let's get rid of these goons. Should I have a bulletproof car in Washington?

This will be socko politically. It will decimate the crack dealers with the Uzis. Wow, the mandated death penalty! I'm told there are 10-year-olds in the ghetto who can distinguish between the sounds of an AK-47 and an Uzi. I say, go on TV and demand a federally mandated death penalty for anyone caught with one of these weapons. Does the National Rifle Association think that the Second Amendment means that citizens should have bazookas and atomic bombs? Read my lips.

But why do I seem so paralyzed? In fact, I seem stuck in the mud.

You are George Bush. I think I should have done something much sooner about that damned Alaska oil spill. I did run as the "environmental" candidate. Why didn't I do anything? I suppose I could have ordered the Army and the Navy up there, it would have been great on TV, and maybe they could have done something. Why did I feel paralyzed? Why didn't I take advantage of this political opportunity? I don't know. Frankly, I don't give a damn about those otters, but I'm supposed to be a professional politician. That's what I am, I think. There are a lot of people who do give a damn about the otters and the birds and all that crap. Even whales. Yeah, I know, and I'm a professional. Didn't I invite Jesse Jackson to the White House? Wow. That was statesman-like.

You are George Bush. There's that damned Gorbachev running all over the world. There's not doubt that he's a public relations genius. That guy Ron Reagan showed that the Russians can't win the arms race. Gorbachev accepts that reality. Gorbachev is grabbing headlines everywhere. Pullbacks of conventional forces in Europe. Cutting back on bomb production.

You are George Bush. Yes, I am a cautious man. A moderate man. A statesman even. I know what I am in the midst of avast change in human history. I am not sure that I am capable of understanding it.

You are George Bush. Experts are telling you that the 40,000 Russian tanks are useless — in view of shoulder-held rockets. Do you believe it? Does Gorbachev? Do the Russian tank generals?

You are George Bush. You wonder if 40,000 Soviet tanks are considered useless by them. You wonder whether Gorbachev knows he're useless. Yes he does, maybe. He also knows about our nuclear-tipped howitzer shells, purely defensive weapons.

Our morality is in the courtroom

BOSTON — When I see yet another account of oil-slicked sea birds washed up on slippery beach rocks in Alaska, I wonder about L.G. Rawls. The chairman of Exxon must see these photos too. When he looks up from the bottom line, out from the circle of lawyers who have surrounded him, what does he think?

I am not the only one who has wondered about him and his inner circle of executives. More than one economist or ecologist making a cross-cultural note, has said that in Japan the CEO of such a disaster would have resigned in shame and sorrow. Japan is no paragon of virtue — recent government scandals have proved that — but the country is ruled by moral consensus. Ours seems to be ruled by the ethic of lawsuits.

In litigious America, guilt is no longer defined as something you feel but, rather, something that must be proved. We rarely hear a high corporate executive admit moral blame. Here, having a lawyer means never really saying you're sorry.

Chairman Rawls did apologize. Sort of. More than a week after the disaster, he published the most impersonal of personal apologies. I can imagine the wrangling between the public-relations and legal staffs behind the words of the hollow statements: "...I want to tell you how sorry I am that this accident took place."

"This accident" that "took place" sounded as distant from his moral domain as his desk was from Prince William Sound. But it's more than Captain Hazelwood of the Valdez said, lawyered into silence. To apologize might be to terminate.

I am not demanding the resignation of Rawls and his inner circle. But it does seem to me that when a disaster occurs, the people in charge have some duty to do more than call their lawyers. They have a duty to pay their respects with time and energy, to spend weeks, months, scrubbing the rocks and sea life with their own hands, and paying last respects to the lost life.

I think this is true for Chairman Rawls as well as for the crew of the Valdez. I thought it was also true for the Union Carbide people who devastated Bhopal and never laid a personal compassionate hand on its victims. And I think it is true for all the people who have ever confused a moral wrong with a criminal wrong, whose self-defense against unethical behavior is: "I did nothing illegal."

The American system of laws and suits allows us to get retribution, even justice, for some crimes. But it seems to work against that process of confession and forgiveness that heals wounds as it rights wrongs. It even makes it harder for adversaries to explain themselves and to understand each other.

You don't have to go to Prince William Sound or Bhopal to see this. Consider the kind of defensive medicine practiced routinely by hospitals. In any hospital over time, there are operations botched, accidents that "took place." Patients and families are left suffering.

But many a doctor is advised not to apologize, even speak to the family, but because that human expression of regret could be used in court as an admission of guilt. In turn, people filing malpractice suits often express their greatest anger against the very doctors who "didn't even say they were sorry."

In addition to defensive business and defensive medicine, we also practice defensive politics. Politicians who get in trouble usually answer questions about right and wrong with answers about legal guilt or innocence. This is surely the theme of Jim Wright's woes.

America is a pluralistic society. Unlike Japan, we can rarely apply the pressure of a moral consensus. We have different interests, different points of view. As the trial of Oliver North showed, it is easier for us to make decisions about specific legal trespasses than general ethical concerns.

So the motto of American disagreement is: Go ahead and sue me. And there are some 700,000 lawyers in America available to take sides, to keep us on sides. One lawyer for every 350 Americans. The more we sue each other, the more we retreat, trying to protect ourselves. The closer to the top, the greater the protective barrier of lawyers.

Ultimately, under the rule of lawsuits, it has become far too easy to confuse moral and legal responsibility. We mix up the long words like culpability and liability. And in that linguistic and ethical confusion, it becomes harder and harder to express something as simple as regrets, dismay and sorrow.

We rarely hear a high corporate executive admit moral blame.

Shamir, Arafat still poles apart

JERUSALEM — On a tour of the turbulent Middle East, we have listened to the Arab view of the intifada — the Palestinian uprising against Israeli rule in the occupied territories. Now we have come to Israel to hear the other side of the story. Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat, in an interview at his headquarters in Tunis, portrayed the struggle as a David-vs-Goliath conflict with Israel as Goliath.

Israel's Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir invoked a different biblical image. He made it clear that Israel cannot yet risk turning into a lamb and lying passively alongside the Arab lion.

He charged that Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization is fanning the flames of the intifada, that PLO agitators are hiding behind Arab children who are incited to attack Israeli troops and that the PLO intimidates Palestinians who would like to cooperate with Israel.

Arafat is keeping the conflict going, Shamir told us, to wring concessions out of Israel. But Israel could never agree to concessions that would relinquish strategic military defenses in Judea, Samaria and the Golan Heights, he said.

Shamir also argued that U.S. strategic interests in the Middle East are better protected by a strong Israel, than a weakened, dismembered Israel.

He accused the U.S. media of applying a double standard against Israel. He cited front-page headlines reporting that four Palestinians had been killed in clashes with Israeli troops. On the same day, dozens of Lebanese Christians had died in a hailstorm of Syrian artillery shells in Beirut. Yet the four dead Palestinians received greater coverage by the U.S. press, he said.

Further, Shamir complained that the media had underplayed an Iraqi offensive against its Kurdish minority. This had been a murderous assault, with the Iraqis using poison gas to flush the Kurds out of their mountain hiding places. The survivors gave graphic accounts of the gas attacks.

Shamir asked rhetorically how the U.S. media would have reacted to an Israeli shelling of Palestinian strongholds or the use of poison gas against them. This would have produced an almighty uproar in the United States, he said.

The Israeli prime minister is a small, unimposing man, with a touch of gray in his mustache and the look of a grandfather. But this is just the moose on a r' racter of granite.

He views Arafat as an unrepentant terrorist who will never change his leopard spots. We reminded Shamir that the British had once called him a terrorist too. "Either the British were mistaken in their characterization of you, or you have changed," we suggested. "Isn't it possible that Arafat could make the same argument?"

Shamir was adamant. "No!" he said. He cited recent terrorist acts, which he claimed were conducted by the PLO. He said that the PLO was talking peace but waging war, that Israel would judge the PLO by what it does, not what it says.

He views Arafat as an unrepentant terrorist who will never change his leopard spots.

Deal feared for convicted hijacker

FRANKFURT, West Germany — The father of a U.S. sailor killed during the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner said he fears a deal may be made to reduce the maximum life sentence given to Mohammed Ali Hammadi, the Lebanese Shiite Moslem militant convicted in the case.

Richard and Patricia Stethem of Port Tobacco, Md. — the parents of slain Navy diver Robert Dean Stethem — sat silently facing Hammadi as Judge Helner Mueckenberger delivered the guilty verdict and sentence Wednesday after a rare trial of an international hijacker.

"Despite the tedious and difficult efforts of the German legal system, there remains persistent echoes of a possible political commutation of his sentence in the future," Richard Stethem said, reading from a statement shortly after Hammadi's sentencing.

"Our family maintains Mohammed Ali Hammadi deserves punishment more severe than allowable under German law," he said, adding that any commutation of Hammadi's sentence would be a "pure mockery of justice."

Saudi Arabia predicts Khomeini's ouster

MANAMA, Bahrain — Saudi Arabia, escalating the war of words with Moslem rival Iran, predicted Thursday that Iranians would eventually overthrow the government of spiritual leader Ayatollahi Ruhollah Khomeini.

"Iran's leaders are creating tensions in the world and strife among Moslems," said a commentary on state-run Riyadh Radio.

"The people of Iran can no longer remain silent in the face of such acts of torture and destruction by the regime in Tehran and will take appropriate action (to remove the regime from power)," the radio said.

The commentary apparently was in response to Iran's statement a day earlier, which said Saudi Arabia was unfit to guard sacred Islamic shrines.

Israel parliament passes election plan

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Parliament approved Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's plan for Palestinian elections and rejected two no-confidence motions as Palestinians clashed with Jewish settlers and troops in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The 120-member Parliament voted 43-15 in favor of the plan with 11 abstentions. Several senior members of Shamir's right-wing Likud Party who oppose the plan, including Trade Minister Ariel Sharon, did not stay for the vote. Most left-wing members abstained.

The vote came Wednesday after Shamir's presentation of the plan and hours of debate. While outlining his proposals, the prime minister dismissed initial Arab objections to the plan.

The Palestine Liberation Organization and prominent Palestinians in the occupied territories have rejected the proposal because it does not give the PLO a role and will not lead to a Palestinian state. Monday, the PLO publicly rejected the plan.

The prime minister said the plan rules out a Palestinian state and negotiations with the PLO. He also said it would not change the status of the occupied territories during a five-year, transitional period of autonomy.

Catholic church legalized in Poland

WARSAW, Poland — Poland has legalized the Roman Catholic Church for the first time since the 1944 communist takeover of the overwhelmingly Catholic country.

A senior Polish official said the law officially recognizing the church, which was overwhelmingly approved Wednesday by the 400-seat Sejm, or parliament, may set a precedent in the Soviet bloc where the influence of church leaders has been limited.

Eritrean Rebels announce cease-fire

NAIROBI, Kenya — Eritrean separatist rebels announced a unilateral two-week cease-fire Thursday and offered "all necessary support" to renegade troops who have taken up arms against President Mengistu Haile Mariam in the Eritrean capital of Asmara.

The Asmara-based Northern Command, comprising about half Ethiopia's armed forces, were the only troops holding out against Mengistu following the collapse of a coup attempt in Addis Ababa that took the lives of the defense minister and two generals.

Official Addis radio announced Mengistu's return before midnight from East Germany, where he cut short a four-day visit to rush home and personally supervise the restoration of order in the capital.

The Eritrean People's Liberation Front (EPLF), which has been fighting for 28 years for independence in the coastal Red Sea province, moved quickly to exploit the revolt by more than 100,000 disgruntled government troops on the northern war front.

Troubled Sino-Soviet summit ends

United Press International

SHANGHAI, China — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, his historic but trouble-plagued summit in Beijing over, arrived in the port city of Shanghai Thursday where more pro-democracy student and worker protests awaited him.

The Soviet leader, accompanied by his wife, Raisa, and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, were scheduled to spend five hours in Shanghai before returning to Moscow.

One major reason for the stopover was to visit a special economic zone in Shanghai, where the government has experimented with free enterprise and trade as part of its successful reforms.

Gorbachev has announced plans to introduce similar areas in the Soviet Far East in an attempt to revive that region's stagnant economy, attract foreign capital and integrate the area, at least partially, with more successful capitalist-style economies in Asia.

Shanghai is China's largest city and the spread of large-scale protests from Beijing to there represents a major escalation of the crisis for the communist government.

Tens of thousands of people lined the streets of the motorcade route from the airport into town waving as the Gorbachev passed by. Most appeared to be curious onlookers rather than pro-democracy protesters. Gorbachev rolled down his car window and waved back.

In town, however, tens of thousands of students demonstrated in support of the Beijing hunger strikers and 500 local university students started a fast of their own demanding direct dialogue with local leaders.

In Beijing, students, workers and farmers from around China streamed into the city Thursday, swelling already huge crowds of pro-democracy protesters who ignored the government's latest peace overture.

The unrest, the broadest anti-government protest to sweep China since the communist revolution in 1949, also has spread to every province and region except Tibet and western Xinjiang, from which there were no reports, said foreigners monitoring the country from Beijing.

The mass protests, fueled by discontent over economic problems and rampant official corruption, ignited this week following a month of student demonstrations that culminated Saturday in a hunger strike at the center of Tiananmen by about 3,000 college students.

Concern over the plight of the fasters, more than 1,000 of whom have been treated at hospitals, has spread the unrest to virtually every sector of Chinese society. More than 1 million people, from workers and teachers to children, marched Wednesday through Beijing and thousands again marched Thursday.

Gorbachev ended the substantive part of his summit trip Wednesday with an offer to demilitarize the Sino-Soviet border and a reminder to the Chinese leadership to stand strong in the face of the student and worker unrest.

The summit with Chinese senior leader Deng Xiaoping Tuesday was the first between the leaders of the two Communist countries in 30 years and both sides declared afterward that relations have been fully normalized.

While his meetings in Beijing with Deng, Premier Li Peng and Party General-Secretary Zhao Ziyang were overshadowed by the protests, Chinese officials managed to prevent further embarrassment to the Soviet leader by agreeing to postpone by 24 hours a scheduled port call by three U.S. Navy warships.

The port call, which will now take place Friday, is only the second by the U.S. Navy to China in 40 years.

The timing of the call was meant to show Moscow that despite the easing of tension between the two Communist powers, Beijing intends to treat equally the Soviet Union and the United States.

Threats cited in fizzled Panama strike

United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The opposition blamed government threats for limiting the success of a general strike called to protest Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's autocratic rule in Panama, where related rallies also fizzled.

Across Panama City, most shops and factories were open Wednesday, but Guillermo Endara, the opposition presidential candidate widely recognized as having won the fraud-tainted May 7 election, declared the strike a success.

"The businesses that are open are only open because of threats by the government," Endara said. Many shop owners acknowledged this, but also said they doubted a strike could help oust Noriega, Panama's military chief and de facto ruler.

The strike coincided with an emergency meeting of the Organization of American States in Washington to discuss the crisis, which came to a head when Noriega was accused by foreign observers of trying to steal the election. The poll was annulled less than a week later by election officials citing widespread foreign interference.

The OAS adopted a resolution late Wednesday placing responsibility for the "grave events and abuses" in Panama directly on Noriega. Latin American diplomats said the statement, as worded, was backed by 20 countries and opposed by two, Panama and Nicaragua, with seven others abstaining.

Ricardo Arias Calderon, one of Endara's two vice-presidential running mates, said the strike was 85 percent successful in such areas as medicine, bank and retail trade.

Indeed, shops that did open were virtually devoid of customers. Along Via Espana, the main middle-class shopping avenue, about 80 percent of shops were open, although most shuttered display windows against possible violence, and similar scenes were evident across the city. Public transportation was operating at near normal levels.

Guillermo Ford, Endara's other running mate, said he was dissatisfied with the turnout. "I thought people would express themselves more forcefully," he said.

Arias Calderon said at least eight people were arrested Wednesday, adding to about 200 people still being held for involvement in last week's anti-government protests.

A Western diplomat who requested anonymity said the meager support for the strike indicated a lack of organization by the opposition, which he said was badly shaken by an attack May 10 in which Endara and his two running mates were beaten by members of Noriega's paramilitary Dignity Battalions.

"They seem unable to keep up the momentum they had last week," the diplomat said.

Opposition leaders commenting on the weak support for the strike cited fear by the populace, noting the Dignity Battalions attacked the candidates at an opposition rally without interference by riot police.

Proposed revisions to Longwood charter recommended by board

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — With its task nearly completed, the Longwood Charter Advisory Board has made recommendations to city officials about proposed revisions to the charter.

The five-member advisory board Tuesday night invited Acting City Administrator Don Terry, City Attorney Richard S. Taylor Jr. and Finance Director Ric Holt to its workshop to "get some input" about the recommended changes, according to Marvin Meltzer, Charter Advisory Board Chairman.

Terry said yesterday the three city officials were invited "just to review some of the changes to see if we saw any flaws." He said the charter advisory board wanted input from "people who would be more knowledgeable (in administrative experiences)."

The board has been reviewing the charter since last October. The charter was last updated Nov. 3, 1987, and is updated every two years, according to officials.

The advisory board plans to invite the commission to its June 20 workshop to discuss proposed changes. The city commission will review suggestions and recommendations before the changes will be placed on November's ballot.

The proposed revisions include some to sections of the charter concerning "interference of administration" and "forfeiture of office" which was an issue in the city this year when former commissioner Carol Odum was removed from office by a 3 to 1 vote for allegedly violating the charter by interfering in city business. She was not given a public hearing before being removed, but was offered one by the city after the removal. Odum refused the hearing and instead filed a civil law suit against the city, city attorney and three commissioners for their action.

A proposed addition to section 3.07 of the charter provides for notification "in writing" to any commissioner who has been charged by fellow members with "conduct constituting grounds for forfeiture." Because of the charges against her, Odum was forced to forfeit her office for allegedly violating the charter on Feb. 27.

"She (Odum) should have been notified. Then she should have been out. I'm not saying what they (commissioners) did was wrong. I think the process could have been fine-tuned a little more," Meltzer said.

Terry said this morning he felt that the revision was suggested because "there some some concern she (Odum) should have received notice" and that a public hearing should have been scheduled before removing her.

Another suggestion included adding onto section 3.02 under City Attorney, providing for an ad hoc committee made up of five members from either/or the Florida City and County Managers Association or International City Managers Association.

Caged cougar discovered behind home

SANFORD — The Seminole County Animal Control Department is holding a 70-lb female cougar found behind a home in Geneva Tuesday.

Ron Lefebvre, animal control official, said Florida Fish and Game officials discovered the animal in a makeshift pen behind a recently vacated home. Lefebvre said the animal was in good condition and had apparently been given excellent care.

Lefebvre said he did not know if the cougar was native of Florida or a western cougar.

State charges are expected to be filed against the former resident of the home for illegally keeping the animal, Lefebvre said. A judge will determine the fate of the animal, Lefebvre said.

Abbott throws first shutout

Jim Abbott rebounded from a shaky performance Wednesday night and proved something to himself as well as to the Boston Red Sox.

The rookie hurled a four-hit shutout, his first, as the surging California Angels blasted Roger Clemens for five first-inning runs and went on to snuff the Red Sox 5-0.

California staked Abbott to a 5-0 lead, a cushion he had not experienced so far this season.

Abbott, born without a right hand, struck out four and walked two in improving to 3-3. The outing was the first complete game in seven starts for the 21-year-old Abbott, who has no minor league experience.

Elsewhere in the AL, Cleveland topped Toronto 6-3, Chicago outlasted Detroit 10-7, Minnesota edged Kansas City 4-3 in 10 innings, Baltimore blasted Texas 8-2, Oakland blasted New York 8-3 and Milwaukee downed Seattle 9-6.

LOS ANGELES — Offensive tackle Tony Mandarich, one day after his first workout in a boxing ring, Wednesday set his price for challenging heavyweight champion Mike Tyson at $10 million.

Mandarich, who was the second pick of the NFL draft by the Green Bay Packers out of Michigan State, worked out at a Los Angeles gym Tuesday for boxing promoters Shelly Finkel and Dan Duva and trainer Lou Duva. All four say they were encouraged by the results and Mandarich told the promoters to try and sign a fight against Tyson.

"I will fight Tyson if the price is right," Mandarich said Wednesday by telephone from a weightlifting gym in Los Angeles.

When asked if his price was $10 million, Mandarich said, "Not a penny less." He also said there was no guarantee he would box for that amount.

TAMPA — Tampa Bay running back James Wilder, who was arrested in Missouri Saturday after police allegedly discovered marijuana in his car, has tested negative for drug use, Buccaneers officials announced Wednesday.

Wilder was driving another vehicle and two other individuals were operating his automobile when police pulled both cars over for a traffic violation early Saturday morning. Wilder said he has no knowledge of the substance found in his car.

"We fully expected James to pass the test and he did," Tampa Bay Coach Ray Perkins said. "He feels the incident has hurt his reputation and put a scar on his integrity. Generally, the results of such tests are confidential but in this case, we hope that publicizing the results of this test will help restore James' deservedly high reputation."

Reuschel combined on a one-hitter with Jeff Brantley to lift the San Francisco Giants over the Philadelphia Phillies 6-0.

The no-hit bid ended in the seventh inning when Tom Herr singled past first base with two out.

"I'm not a young man any more," Reuschel admitted. "I was ready to come out."

Von Hayes worked Reuschel for a walk with two out in the eighth. Those were the only Philadelphia base runners.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago shut out Atlanta 4-0, Montreal edged San Diego 6-5, Cincinnati topped Pittsburgh 5-4, Los Angeles bested New York 4-3 and Houston topped St. Louis 3-2.

Bennett says pro sports need to be drug free

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Federal anti-drug director William Bennett put the sports world on notice that he will "be a pain in everyone's back" until team owners and players get serious about crushing the nation's drug problem.

Bennett passed the word Wednesday that he expects professional athletes to be an drug-free example during a private meeting with professional sports executives and players union officials.

Shortly after wrapping up the "randid discussions," Bennett said he was "very pleased" with the results.

"The question at the table ... was what should the standard of behavior and expectations be," said Bennett. Noting that "we talk about being tough on high school students and others," he said the anti-drug policies in schools "should be matched at the professional sports level."

Baseball Commissioner Bart Gamattl said, "What we found out today was that (Bennett) and we had very similar views, without having identical views, either philosophical or practical on everything."

"But there was enough of a commonality and community of interest so that a genuine conversation not only got started but we agreed on all sides could go forward," he added.

Giamattl said, however, he disagreed with extremely tough penalties Bennett said should be imposed on professional athletes.

Also pledging to cooperate with Bennett were NBA Commissioner David Stern, Executive Director Gene Upshaw of the NFL, Players Association, Steven Ryan of the NHL and Executive Director Donald Fehr of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Bennett, director of the new Office of National Drug Policy, said the meeting was a forerunner to a more substantive session to be held "in a month or two" when "specific suggestions for the national strategy" will be made.

Taking on the decathlon

Locals ready for challenge of 10 events

 By MARK BLYTHNE
 Herald sports writer

Seminole County have several teams to Lake Worth this weekend competing for different reasons in the high school state decathlon competition to be conducted at John L. Leonard High School.

Lyman is going to try to finish in the top five and attempt to win the meet while Seminole is going to have fun and gain experience. Both teams have talented athletes that could fair very well in the event.

"I think we have a chance to finish in the top 10," Lyman coach Fred Finke said. "We have experienced athletes involved and we're hoping to finish in the top five, but realistically we want to finish in the top 10 with all the schools that will be competing."

The event will have two separate groups competing with the split being alphabetical. The first group will start on Friday competing in the pole vault, the long jump and the shot put while the second group will high jump, long jump and throw the shot.

The teams will then run the 120 high hurdles and the 440 starting at 6:30 that evening to complete the opening day. The second day will feature the first group competing in the high jump and disc with the second group in the pole vault and disc. The final events will be the 100 meters, the 220 yard dash and the mile run.

"None of the athlete's we're taking have ever competed in the decathlon before," Seminole coach Ken Brauman said. "They're all good athletes and we're taking this group down and taking it from there."

"If they do well, we'll bring them back next year. If they don't like it, we'll bring someone else."

Brauman has four underclassmen that will compete for Seminole and all four were strong during the track season. Robert Moore, Lewis Butler, Joseph Murphy and Eric Walker will all take part in the event for the Tribe.

"Robert (Moore) is probably the most versatile athlete we have," Brauman said. "He's done most of the field events and has run the hurdles so he should do well."

"The other athlete's are a conglomeration with some having talent in certain areas and inexperienced in the others. Murphy is a springer and hasn't competed in the field events. Butler is a jumper and Walker is a middle distance sprinter."

Brauman is just looking for his athletes to compete strongly and come home happy with their performance. Seminole, with no competitors.

Rummel rallies past First Union

 By DEAN SMYTH
 Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Ken Rummel Chevrolet posted an 8-4 victory over First Union Bank in the opening game of an American Division doubleheader of the Sanford Little Major Baseball League at Roy Holler Field Wednesday.

Tied 3-3 after four innings, Rummel scored two runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth for the win.

In the other game, Alton Jenkins had a home run, a triple and three runs scored while allowing just one hit as the Disabled American Veterans won their eighth straight game by blasting Sun Bank 18-1 in a game called in the bottom of the second by the mercy rule.

SANFORD — Reggie Braxton scored four runs and Leroy Keith added three more as the Moose built up an early lead and held off Rotary 14-9 in the nightcap of a Sanford Junior Major Baseball League doubleheader at Chase Park Wednesday.

The opening game was called by the Hardest's coach in the top of the third after Kiwanis had scored seven runs with only one out to take a 13-4 lead.

Moose scored two runs in the first and three more in the second to take a 5-1 lead and then scored five in the fourth to take a 10-3 lead. But after they scored four runs in the top of the fifth, Rotary scored six in the bottom of the inning to make it interesting.

Keith was one of three Moose players to get two singles. The others were Lawrence McIntyre, who also scored two runs, and J.J. Bell. Victor Graham had a double and scored two runs. Don Hunt had a single and scored two runs. Braxton had a single and Tyrone Montgomery scored one run.

Chellos helps Canadiens square Stanley Cup finals

United Press International

CALGARY, Alberta — Montreal defenseman Chris Chellos showed Wednesday night he doesn't need fists or elbows to win a crucial game for the Canadiens.

He scored the tie-breaking goal with a 40-foot slapshot with 11:59 remaining, enabling Montreal to square the Stanley Cup final at one game apiece with a 4-2 victory over the Calgary Flames.

Just 84 seconds after snapping the 2-2 tie, Chellos assisted on Russ Courtnall's insurance goal as the Canadiens beat the league's best home team for the third time in four tries at the Olympic Saddledome this season.

Montreal — which also lost the opener and won Game 2 when it defeated Calgary in the 1986 final — returns home for the next two games of the best-of-seven series Friday and Sunday nights at the Forum.

In the previous round of these playoffs, Chellos knocked out Philadelphia's Brian Propp with an elbow to the head many called vicious and unsportsmanlike. But the defenseman also possesses great skill, as attested by the go-ahead goal.

Taking a pass from Brian Skrudland at the red line, Chellos skated toward the right boards before firing a shot the other way. The puck skimmed along the ice and beat Calgary goaltender Mike Vernon to the stick side.

"I had a lot of speed and I used the defenseman as a screen," Chellos said. "I didn't even see where it went."

Said Vernon: "He came across the blue line and beat me to the far side. I thought I was in good position."

Chellos, who also drew three penalties in the game, said he feels no need to respond to those who call him a "goon."

DAR ends year with internal honors

By BRIAN HEDBERG
Herald People editor

SANFORD — Members of the Sallie Harrison Chapter, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, decided to end their club year with a big way, by honoring some of their most devoted members.

At the end-of-the-year meeting held Friday at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, special recognition was given to Carolyn Carter, Ethel Deane, and Catharine Lowe, who have been in the chapter for 25 years. The chapter was founded in 1918.

Also at the meeting, past regents were formally recognized for their loyal service: Elizabeth Boyd, Arlyn True, Frances Leahy, Genevieve Brumley and Catherine Wiley. They received certificates and rosettes.

Grace Parks, regent, reviewed some worthwhile patriotic, historical and educational activities completed during the year:

• A list was compiled of grave sites of Revolutionary ancestors of the chapter's members.

• The chapter donated items to veterans hospitals and contributed money and clothing for support of DAR schools. The club also donated to the Ellis Island Restoration Project as well as the State Regent's Project, which is refurbishing the House of Representatives Chamber in the historic old capital building in Tallahassee.

• Chapter members actively support the Seminole County Historical Museum with volunteer hours. They presented the museum with a patriots index, kept at the museum for the public to use for research. A club member made possible the donation of an 1890s dress on a dress model to the museum.

Chapter member Mrs. Mitch Lawster was present for the organizational meeting at the state conference of the Florida DAR Women in Military Service Club. She was elected historian and will be a charter member.

Refreshments were served at the social hour before the Friday meeting.

Parks led the opening patriotic ritual, which was followed by the business meeting.

Grace Marie Stinecoper was officially welcomed as the 40th member to join the chapter.

Virginia Powell, historian, reported that the chapter won a blue ribbon at the state convention for the chapter's history notebook.

Virginia Kelly's report on the Continental Congress was read by Jesse Haise.

Arlyn True won the drawing for an almanac.

With a prayer and a song, the chapter adjourned for the summer.

Even if she quit with 13, consider the possibilities (and you will need a calculator) if each of her children multiplies at the same rate.
