U.S. Agrees To Join Study Of Palestine

Truman Accepts Proposal For Anglo-American Commission In Near East

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—President Truman has announced that the United States has agreed to a British suggestion that a joint Anglo-American Commission be named to study the Palestine problem. The British asked for such a committee following Mr. Truman's proposal that an additional 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine.

Announcement of the agreement to form the committee also was made in London by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. However, Bevin expressed doubt that Palestine alone could make more than a contribution to solving the problem of Jewish migration from Europe.

The committee will be charged with examining the political, economic and social conditions in Palestine, and with studying the present situation of the Jews in Europe. Members of the committee are to learn the views of both Jewish and Arab leaders regarding the Palestine problem, and are to make recommendations to their respective governments. These recommendations would call for either remedial action in Europe itself, or provision for additional emigration to countries outside of Europe.

President Truman also asked Congress to back up the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration with a new appropriation of $450,000,000. This figure represents one per cent of the country's national income for the year 1945, and was voted last August by the council of the relief agency in London. It also would make the original authorization approved by Congress in March, 1944. Of the original authorization, $50,000,000 remains to be appropriated with immediate action still pending.

Controversy arose over the appropriation when an amendment was tacked on in the House denying relief funds to countries refusing to give American newsmen free access to news of relief activities.

In asking for the new appropriation, Mr. Truman pointed out that current funds in the hands of UNRRA will be exhausted by the end of this year unless additional sums are made available. The largest job of relief at the moment, the President said, is in China. But the funds also will be used in Korea and Formosa.

A limited program of relief is being carried on in many countries of Europe, planned for the Soviet Republics of White Russia and the Ukraine, which bore the brunt of the eastern front battles.

New Hope Seen For Peace Turn In Indonesia

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 13. (AP)—Hope has risen for negotiations leading to peace between the Dutch and Indonesian nationalists. A new setup in the government of Indonesia today apparently delegates President Sukarno to a minor role. The Dutch had refused to deal with Sukarno.

Socialist Sutan Sjahrir, recognized as a moderate, has taken over as premier. One of his first statements voiced his hope that the Dutch and Indonesian nationalists could get together.

The new premier is expected to fly to Soerabaya to investigate Indonesian leadership there and attempt to stop the fighting between British and Indonesian forces at the naval base.

Four Missing As Navy Plane Crashes

JACKSONVILLE, Nov. 13. (AP)—A Navy plane on a flight from Jacksonville to Washington ran out of gas last night near Indianhead, Md., where its passengers parachuted into the Potomac River. So far, only two of the six persons aboard have been rescued. They are WAVE Lieutenant Carolyn Bohannon and Lieutenant Henry Meary whose addresses are not given. As the first and fifth persons to parachute, they landed in the river about a mile and a half apart. It is not known whether the pilot left the plane.

The Navy Department says as the plane near Washington, it was unable to land because of low ceiling and visibility. The pilot sought to land at Quantico, made two passes at the field, and then ran short of fuel.

Coast Guard and Marine boats are searching the river for survivors while Navy personnel and civilian volunteers are scouring the vicinity around Indianhead for some trace of the pilot, the plane and the other three persons aboard.

U. S. To Guarantee 95 Percent In Low-cost Housing Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—How would you like to plank down 250 dollars and, by holding it in your own hand, be sure of getting a 5,000 dollar cottage? The possibility isn't as remote as you might think. This way idea is embraced in a new housing program proposed in the Senate.

It calls for a down payment of as little as five percent in the purchase of a low-cost home. Three senators are at the bottom of it—Robert Wagner of New York, Allen Ellender of Louisiana, and Robert Taft of Ohio. Their bills besides helping out the small-income buyer, offer special inducements for private builders to construct homes that will satisfy this market.

One of these inducements is that the government would guarantee mortgages up to 95 percent of the value of low-cost homes built under FHA. It would be up to the Federal Housing Administrator to decide what price the houses should be. For instance, suppose the building costs

Celeryfeds Win Over Winter Park By 33-19 Score

Anderson, Brooklin and Cullum score in every period.

Before an enthusiastic crowd of 2,000 cheering fans Friday, the Seminole High School Celeryfeds out-scored Winter Park High School 33 to 19, to chalk up their fourth win in six starts.

The game was played on the field this season.

The Celeryfeds led by Anderson, Brooklin and Cullum, the A B C trio of the Fed basketball scored in every period in the most thrilling game played on the home field this season.

The Celeryfeds drew first blood in the opening stanza with a pass from Bryant to Osteen good for 16 yards and a score. This score came a result of a 43-yard drive after receiving a Sanford kickoff.

The Celeryfeds were not to be outdone. After Cullum received the kickoff and made a nice ruckback from his 10 to the 36, Brooklin went around left end for 14 yards and a first down. Then Anderson threw a pass to Cullum which started 12 yards and another first down. Anderson went through the center tucked up 4 more yards. Cullum kicked up 4 more yards and a first down.

Anderson then threw a pass to Cullum which started 12 yards and another first down. Anderson went through the center tucked up 4 more yards. Cullum kicked up 4 more yards and a first down.

Captain Easton Holt Advocates Cautions Against Atom Control By Wishful Thinking

Station's Commander Is Presented With Croix De Guerre

Cautions against the sort of wishful thinking that preceded the last great war given Monday at the Band Shell by Capt. William T. Easton, commander of the Sanford Naval Air Station, in his Armistice Day address.

"The hundred of millions of war-weary people of the world say they want peace," he said, "but it is not enough to sit around any longer and say, 'We don't want any more war.'"

Presentation to Capt. Easton by the French government of the Croix De Guerre, with gold star was announced by Senator L. F. Lytle in introducing the Captain at the Sanford Station, who served 26 months in Europe as chief of staff to Commander William Hamilton and Admiral Andrew McFall, and participated in actions in the Atlantic, Bay of Biscay and the French invasion.

Peace Foundations Must Be Laid In World Prosperity And Neighborliness

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Britain's Prime Minister Clement Attlee spoke to Congress today. But he had little to say about the purpose of his visit to the United States. His talks with President Truman on the eventual disposition of the secrets of atomic bomb production.

Both houses of Congress met in joint session to hear the leader of the British Labor government. Attlee told the representatives and senators that the foundations of peace—as he put it—must be "world prosperity and good neighborliness." There is no reason, he said, for economic rivalry between the United States and Great Britain.

In his 3,000 word address, the British leader frankly sought to remove what he called "some apprehensions" about his Labor party's program. He said he believed some people over here imagined that the British Labor party was out to destroy freedom—freedom of the individual, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, and freedom of the press. "They are wrong," Attlee asserted. He added that the Labor party was in the tradition of all British freedom-loving movements.

Attlee expressed the hope that he would live to see the world as orderly as a well-run town. He pictured the world's greatest task today as bringing home to all people before it is too late that our civilization—as he put it—must be based on the practice of international relations and in our national life of the Christian principle—we are members of one another.

Obviously with the atomic bomb in mind, Attlee declared that the United States and the mightiest power on earth. And yet, he said, "America is a threat to no one. All know that she will never use her power for soft power. Her territory, her organization in the future any more than she has done in the past."

The congressman who heard the British leader must approve any United States financial aid for Britain. Although Attlee is known to have conferred with Lord Keynes on the progress of negotiations for an American loan, he made no direct reference in his address to British requests for financial assistance.

Attlee stated that there is no reason for economic rivalry between the United States and his country. He said there was many men in England who "came from the war to find his home blitzed and his business ruined. As a country, said Attlee, we are just like that man. We want all out to win the war and now we have to start a new one. But we have not stood up to our enemies for six years to be beaten by economics. We believe that we must plan the economic activities of our country if we are to ensure the common good of a fair deal."

Attlee expressed his belief in the United Nations organization and said he hoped to see the world as orderly as a well-run town, with citizens, diverse in character but cooperating for the common good.

The British Prime Minister declared that the United States emerged from the war the most powerful nation on earth—yet a threat to no one.

TANAPHER FEDUP

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13. (AP)—Sometime over Armistice Day week-end, some vandals poured cold water on Philadelphia tax records. A janitor last night found the office of the receiver of taxes in a state of confusion, to put it mildly.

Vandals had broken in and scattered cards of more than a million wage tax payers all over the floor. The office safe held $15,000 in cash, but the safe was not touched. The intruders had simply uncorked 20 gallons of spring water and thrown it all over the piles of records, checks, and money orders, lying like confetti around the room.

De Gaulle Elected President Of France

PARIS, Nov. 13. (AP)—By an all but unanimous vote, General Charles De Gaulle today was elected interim president of the French government. The votes were cast by members of the constituent assembly.

There were no votes against De Gaulle, but there was one abstention. For a time it had been thought that the Communists would oppose the General, but at the last minute they swung behind him.

One of the first tasks of the new president will be to lay before the constituent assembly his own program of reform. At the moment, the three leading parties are agreed on leftist objectives, but differ on details.

Plans are being made by the newly formed Seminole County Club to begin extensive improvements to the club property in the immediate future.

It looks bad for the British fighting the Indonesian Nations here, who are seeking independence in the Dutch East Indies. But the fact should not be lost sight of that the Indonesians are trying to gain their independence by means of force, something which we have just fought a great war to put an end to.

Jerome Kern is dead, Jerome Kern who wrote more popular songs than anybody of his generation with the possible exception of Irving Berlin and there was something about Kern's melodies that in our opinion even put him ahead of Berlin. To this day we never hear "Who? Make Believe," "Look for the Silver Bells" or "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" without feeling romantically.

A good many people have asked us when Thanksgiving will be celebrated this year. Our most recent information would seem to indicate that to the best of our knowledge and belief, unless future directives alter present plans, it will be observed in this state on Nov. 22 though some states will adhere to the more old fashioned tradition calling for the last Thursday in November.

Perhaps the best way to make a conservative out of a Socialist, is to give him some authority and with it the responsibility. In England the other day the recently elected Labor government decided to cut excess profits taxes on corporations from 100 to 60 per cent. Even the Socialists are beginning to realize that men won't go into business unless they have at least a fighting chance to make some money.

Secretary Anderson has gone to the hustings of the Middle West in an attempt to win back for the Democrats the support of the farmers which has been obviously lost since the New Deal's labor policies have so noticeably gone awry. Already turning against Roosevelt in 1944 and 1944, Middle Western farmers have seen nothing in recent Democratic legislation which held anything for them except debt burdens and excessive prices for the things they have to buy. It will take a lot of convincing to keep them in the Democratic fold in the congressional elections next year.

A Georgia Democrat in the House of Representatives has charged that "A Workers Revolution" is taking place in this country and that it is led by the CPD which he describes as a working organization of the Communist Party. As a worker himself, and a worker of the Communist type, we resent that we see it. It is not the workers who are fomenting a revolution, but the loafers and bums and the folks who don't want to work, but who want the money of us who do. So support those Communist leaders for their radio, automobiles and all the trappings of life.

How Strong America?

Congress has many problems on its hands. One is the desirable military strength of this country for the immediate future. This is really three problems in one: the size of the Army and Navy; universal military training; unified control of Army, Navy and Air forces. All are controversial issues with wide variance of sincere opinion among congressmen, the public and even the military. They offer also rich fields for skillfully organized pressure groups interested in their own isms rather than the country as a whole.

There is strong support for keeping the Navy to a full complement of ships until that time, not immediately foreseeable, when ocean-going vessels will be outmoded. The Army's size depends to a great extent on whether the country backs compulsory military training which is supported by military leaders from the heads of the war and navy departments down. They feel the peace too recently won, the world too disquieting to relinquish soon world policing and American share in it.

Pleas for unification of military services under one head or board are backed by the arresting argument that had American forces been so managed during the war, countless lives would have been saved, and the end of hostilities hastened. The military, particularly the Navy, is not in unanimous accord on this.

It has been suggested that an over-hill study of these three interlocking dilemmas be made by a board of politics of wide contacts, civilians in touch with national affairs and experienced military leaders. Such a study would take weeks, probably months. It's the same old logical way to determine America's peace time strength. Some such detached and non-political study should start at once. END

Unrevealed History

A bit of unknown political history is revealed by a letter recently acquired by the Yale University library. This was from ex-President Grover Cleveland to a Cincinnati correspondent.

In 1899, the date of the letter, all were taking for granted that next year the Republicans would renominate President McKinley. It was almost as likely that the Democrats would again name William J. Bryan. On the currency question and nearly all others the two Democrats, Cleveland and Bryan, were as far apart as if one had been a Republican. In 1896 Cleveland had preferred McKinley, though he had voted for the Gold Democratic candidate, Senator John W. Palmer of Illinois. With no Gold Democratic ticket expected in 1900 and with McKinley more distasteful, what should Cleveland do?

The new letter gives a surprising answer. Cleveland wanted both parties to combine on the hero of Manila Bay, Admiral George Dewey.

A joint presidential nomination by the two parties has never occurred. In 1868 Gen. Grant was, it is true, coveted by both. Eventually the Republicans named him, and the Democrats did not. Considering the troubles that came from Grant's unfamiliarity with politics, it is odd that Cleveland should have courted a repetition by suggesting Dewey.

Nothing came of it. Dewey expressed willingness, but to no avail. The 1896 rivals were chosen again, and McKinley once more defeated Bryan. But the suggestion makes an interesting footnote for future historians.

History And Arithmetic

If history were an exact science like mathematics, perhaps its course could be more predicted. Prof. Horrell Hart of Duke University has been trying to re-phrase history in mathematical terms.

The size of empire, he finds, has been steadily growing. In prehistoric days no area under one government was likely to exceed 7,000 square miles. By 5,500 B. C. Central Europe had reached the political development of the Trojans, who controlled 22,500 square miles. By 750 B. C. Central Europe was on a par with the Incas of Peru, who governed 600,000 square miles. The British empire in 1939 had reached 13,655,000 square miles.

This growing size of empire parallels a growing effectiveness of weapons. The bow and arrow of B. C. 2,500 had a range of only half a mile. Contrast that with the power of heavy artillery or the range of the bombing plane. The coming of the atomic bomb indicates that the time is now ripe for establishing a world-wide government. If weapons can reach all over the world, so can a single government.

HUNTING SEASON WILL OPEN SOON; POINTERS ON SAFE-TY STRESSED

Florida's General hunting season opens in a few days, and it is well worth the while of farmers and others who hunt to take safety and several other matters into consideration at this time.

During every hunting season, some folks are wounded or killed accidentally, even though the danger of guns has been emphasized over and over again. Perhaps it is too much to hope for, but nevertheless, it is hoped that there will be no accidents during the coming season and that everyone will handle his gun carefully in the woods and elsewhere.

Some folks insist for others in hunting even though a deer or a bird might be lost in doing so, and take no chances with an "unloaded" gun.

Another point which the fair and square sportsman will take into consideration is the land on which he hunts. If the land doesn't belong to the hunter, he should obtain permission from the owner before he hunts there.

Whether hunting on his own or someone else's land, it behooves the hunter to be careful with fire. Every year there are many serious woods fires because of the carelessness of hunters.

Leaving live coals in a fire built for warmth, throwing away lighted cigar and cigarette stubs and burning matches are ways in which hunters have started very destructive forest fires. During or covering the areas with sand, mashing out the lighted ends of cigars and cigarettes, and burning matches in two before throwing them down are ways of preventing such fires. It's a great

THE UNWELCOME GUEST

WASHINGTON Report

John L. Lewis Takes Leaf AWVS Plans Schools for Nick Carter Books Employes and Employers

By HELEN ESSARY
 Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—I sat beside John L. Lewis at dinner. "Mr. Lewis," I said, ingratiatingly, "I should very much like to have a pleasant conversation with you. What would you like to talk about?"

"Do you know what most people talk to me about?" asked the president of the United Mine Workers, wrinkling his shaggy, black brows. "I'll tell you what they talk about: They talk about coal. And then they talk about coal some more."

"Let's talk about something else for a change. How about telling me how you have managed to escape the pitfalls that have—shall we say—lined your path?"

"Pitfalls?" laughed Louis in a very deep basso. "Have there been any pitfalls? I haven't noticed any pitfalls. Perhaps this explains how I've missed falling in—I just haven't known the pitfalls were there."

"I'm afraid, Mr. Lewis," I pursued the subject. "I'm afraid you aren't being quite honest. Let's put the question another way. When you found you had got into a pitfall, then what did you do?"

"How did you save yourself?"

Replied the labor leader in an ostentatiously solemn tone.

"Ever read Nick Carter? He was the Hairbreadth Harry-Sherlock Holmes of my generation. When he found himself at the bottom of a bottomless black pit, with lions roaring at him above, darkness all around him and dragons burrowing up from below, Nick quickly whipped a small sharp knife from his secret coat pocket, slipped on his false whiskers and within the twinkling of an eyelash dug himself onward and upward to safety. That's my system. It's been known to work."

IN A RECENT COLUMN I discussed the campaign of the American Women's Voluntary Services, Inc., to do something about the domestic help problem. An important part of this program is the effort to raise the status of the domestic worker. I would like to comment further on the AWVS campaign, if I may.

This plan of the AWVS is, as I said before, not a fly by night whimsey. Every one of its 200,000 members is interested. Quite a number of women! Add to these the membership of the General Federation of Women's clubs, about 2,500,000 more women supporting the AWVS plan, and you have an army. An army of invasion, really, about to set foot in enemy territory. For if there ever was enemy territory, it is the servant problem.

Correctly, the AWVS means to start schools for domestic employees and employers. It intends to initiate the movement, but not to sustain it indefinitely. Once started, the promoters mean to turn the project over to other women's organizations, to labor groups and to educators.

At the moment labor unions do not enter the picture. Glad of that. Nor will there be a color line in the payment of wages or treatment of workers. The organization does not mean to set wages. Those vary greatly in different areas and such a dictum would be unwise.

Terrific hurdles await you, my good ladies of the AWVS. Barbed wire fences, water pumps and heaven knows what other obstacles. But don't you get discouraged. If you even begin to solve the servant (sorry, the domestic employe) problem, you will be doing a superb service to humanity.

I WAS BROODING OUT LOUD to a big important Swiss: "Isn't this country in a horrible state? Unemployment. Discontent. Strikes. Everybody mad."

"Whatever are you complaining about?" said the Swiss gentleman. "Why will Americans never learn to appreciate their own great qualities. Think how much you have spread yourselves out in this war—production and everything else."

"How can you not expect the pendulum to swing? Of course, you are feeling a reaction now. In any other country the reaction would take the form of a real revolution. Be proud, you Americans. Not apologetic."

There's another idea which some farmers might think about. If they encourage and protect game crops for them, they will increase the price of the copra cause the United States is the largest buyer.

The price of West African cocoa is determined in New York, because the United States is the largest buyer.

A paint consists of a mixture of a solid pigment, and a liquid medium usually composed of linseed oil (or other drying oil), a drier, and turpentine or other volatile thinner.

Ordinary paints should dry with a glossy surface but they can be made to dry with a flat finish by decreasing the oil content and increasing the proportion of turpentine or other volatile thinner.

China Head Nurse In United States To Study Nursing

By Adelaide Kerr AP News Service Writer
COL. CHOW MEI-YU, who built China's wartime nursing corps and was its highest ranking member, is in the United States to study American nursing methods and acquire a foundation of information on which to build a standing Chinese army nursing corps.

"In China we have only about 5,000 trained nurses," she said just after she arrived in New York in her khaki uniform with blue and gold insignia. "We have no standing army nursing corps and we want to build one. Besides this we are eager to complete the professional training of those girls who gave the best part of their youth to the educational years to work in the wartime army nursing corps as nurse's aides. Since they missed the educational and professional training, they would have had in normal times we want to give them this training which will equip them for life."

We also need a great many more civilian nurses, training schools and teachers. We have a tremendous national health problem as a result of the war."

The dark-eyed little colonel, who wears her straight black hair cut just like a man's, speak swift fluent English. She grew up in Peking, was graduated from the School of Nursing of Peking University Medical College in 1920, worked in the school hospital for a year and then joined the Mass Education Movement. In this four-way program devoted to bettering the Chinese people's livelihood, health, literacy and citizenship, she headed the nursing division of the health education section.

Then she came to the United States for post graduate study in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on a Rose-Elvehjelm foundation fellowship. After extensive travel in this country and Europe to observe rural health programs, she returned to her own country and worked in the Mass. Education Movement again until war broke out.

She joined the Chinese Red Cross as a nurse and helped found China's Emergency Medical Service Training School which trained China's medical personnel for war service. She spent the war years as Commandant of the Army Nursing school and weathered some of the toughest fighting of any woman in service. "I usually spent two or three months a year at the front to make sure our training was practical," she said. "Nurses traveled on foot at the front, sometimes carrying their own kits, sometimes wading through flooded roads in the dark. The work was so rigorous that mountain climbing was added to the nurses' training program."

To protect the wounded from bombing and shelling, we used to scatter them through forests and caves all day and remain quiet. Then, at night, we all converged on the temple, or whatever place in the vicinity we had converted to hospital use, and did our work and dressings by candle-light, so that the enemy could not find us."

that was downed by Brooklin on the W. P. 1 yard line. Winter Park was held to a score of 12 to 7. The score came as a result of a 3 yard pass from Anderson to Cullum. Extra point failed, score 12 to 7.

In the third quarter both teams scored. Brooklin went off tackle on a beautiful 45 yard run to score for the Feds. Clark's extra point was good, while Bryant lucked the center of the line for 1 yard and pay dirt after he had spotted "Wildcat" 34 yard drive. Winter Park placement for extra point was blocked by Kastner. Score 15 to 13.

In the fourth and final quarter Sims bucked the center of the line for a Winter Park touchdown from the Fed 1 yard line, after a recovery of a Sanford fumble on the 10 yard line.

Theodore Brooklin broke away and ran 35 yards for a touchdown on one of longest runs of the season. Clark's kick for the extra point was perfect. In the final minutes of game Brooklin got away for 42 yards which set up the final Fed touchdown on the 4 yard line. Anderson carried the ball over two plays later from the 1 yard line. Extra point was good; final score Sanford 33, Winter Park 19.

Holt Advocates Atom Control By United Nations

World War. One had gone with a bad crowd when he first entered politics, but that there was no stain on his own personal character.

With reference to the management of the San Francisco conference, Dr. Holt said the State Department fell down completely. There was an almost total lack of efficiency or organization in handling the large crowds attending the meetings, in arranging hotel accommodations, or in approving credentials of the delegates, or passes of other individuals, he said. Someone, he added, had even away three tickets for every seat in the opera house.

Dr. Holt analyzed the four stages of such conferences as that held at San Francisco. The first he said, was for set speeches, which didn't mean very much and in which the speaker said only those things with which everyone would agree. Then came the organization, in which four great commissions were set up, each with about 12 committees, and each of these with several sub-committees, which were really the ones which get something done.

The four commissions, he said, were divided as follows: 1.) Purposes. 2.) General Assembly (The town meeting of the world). 3.) The Security Council, and 4.) International Law and World Court. The agenda of the conference, Dr. Holt said, consisted of the Dumbarton Oaks Proposals which had previously been agreed to by the Big Four Nations, but he pointed out, the 41 other little nations at the conference had no intention of being merely "yes men" to the Big Four, so some material with some 700 amendments which they submitted.

The third stage consisted of the debates—the real meat of the conference. Here Dr. Holt digressed to note out the secrecy which prevailed at the important convention meetings and the lack of candor in dealing with the press. We had been told, he said, that we as members of the press would be admitted to the committee meetings, but we weren't. All we got was official handouts and communiques which all of us knew didn't mean anything. Consequently, there resulted many declarations, leaks, and rumors which did the conference no good.

The fourth stage was the plenary session at which the President of the United States made an address. Everybody got up and extended congratulations to everyone else. There was much hallelujah and the conference was generally termed a big success.

Dr. Holt characterized the leading figures at the conference as follows. There was more rank, he said, than at Versailles, but signed by Gen. Charles De Gaulle. "You have been awarded the Croix De Guerre with gold star. I am happy indeed that the government of my country has in this way recognized the part you have taken in the operation which led to the liberation of France."

While a strong wind lashed the waters of Lake Monroe the assembly at 11:00 o'clock observed 60 seconds of silence in memory of the honored dead. Salutes were given by Marines under command of Sgt. V. Johnson and taps were sounded by Jerry Klein, EGMSTR Co, USNR. During the program the Recessional was sung by Dick Alken with Mrs. George Touhy accompanying. The Rev. W. P. Brooks, Jr. offered invocation and prayer. The Seminole High School band played under direction of Miss Ollie Reese Whittle, Comdr. I. J. Boce of Campbell-Lessing Post 55—The American Legion, resided.

Capt. Easton raised the question of whether or not there would be future wars, and "will the world continue with its mass slaughters and then neatly afterwards let them World War I, World War II, World War III, etc."

"To one, of course, knows the answer," he added.

He then pointed out that "the pitifuls saw we are on the right track and not doing so bad in our attempt at peace," and cited as examples the United Nations charter and the Dumbarton Oaks plan.

"Armistice Day has lost much of its symbolic meaning," he declared, "in that World War I failed to live up to its promise to be the war to end all wars." The pessimists, on the other hand, said, "seize on every little disagreement among the great powers, and every sign of discontent among the smaller ones."

"Most Americans," he added, "realize now that the world took the wrong road after World War I, and realize now that peace does not lie in that direction. He then told of America's finest young men who died in World War II in Europe, Africa, the frozen places of the north and on unknown islands of the Pacific, and added that hardly a place on the globe remained where American

Children With Colds Should Stay Home

JACKSONVILLE Nov. 13. (Special)—An appeal to parents to keep their children at home from school and other public places when they have indications of colds, temperatures or are unusually under par, was made by the State Board of Health this week.

Dr. R. F. Sondag, director of the State's new Bureau of Preventable Diseases declared that it is an imposition on other youngsters and a definite danger to the ailing individuals for parents not to keep them out of circulation when sniffing, running a temperature or have an unaccountable rash. Ailing children should be kept at home under close scrutiny and the family physician consulted early. If children go to school or associate with others when obviously not well, an epidemic may be in the making. One sick child may easily start an epidemic in a future school.

When a few cases of scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough and other communicable diseases occur the question of closing the schools always arises.

Dr. Sondag stressed that it is the policy of most public health authorities not to close schools at such a time. "It is infinitely easier for health authorities to keep track of the increase or decrease of an epidemic if children are in a group which can be checked regularly. You must realize, however, that this policy is without effect and fails its purpose when parents allow their children to go right on to school in face of symptoms which may indicate possible danger."

It was ranker. There were more high officials but they were not the statesmen comparable to Wellington, Clemenceau, Orlando, and Lloyd George. General Jan Smuts of South Africa was the only official delegate attending both conferences.

Foreign Minister Anthony Eden of Great Britain, Dr. Holt termed probably the most influential man present, one most versed in diplomatic maneuver who frequently was called upon to smooth the troubled waters. Carlos Romulo, Philippine delegate, was in Dr. Holt's opinion the "steepest speaker," a "gray great orator."

The Chinese had a number of very able men present including Dr. Wellington Koo who was a suave, able man and very impressive. Molotov, he said, was "the bad boy of the conference," who always seemed to be playing power politics, threatening to walk out if he did not get his way but always coming up smiling when he was called down.

Of the American delegation, Dr. Holt described Bernard Baruch as the "big man" and very impressive. He said that the rest of the American delegation impressed Dr. Holt, he included, with "being little men with great ideas."

President Lee Leaker presided over the meeting and extended a warm welcome to the Lions Club Kiwanis Club members who were present. Dr. E. D. Brownlee, president of the Lions Club, and Harry

Housing Problem Is Still Seen As Curbing Season

JACKSONVILLE, Nov. 13. (AP)—Florida, winter frolic spot of the nation, anticipates the greatest influx of tourists in its history. But there seems to be no answer to the never-ceasing puzzling problem—where to put them?

Indications from tourist sections throughout the state are that the first postwar winter season is going to be one of headaches for both the tourist and the native.

Miami, Riviera of the Americas, already is jam-packed with virtually no prospect of the tight-housing situation easing to accommodate the horde of visitors expected. Miami already has been warning inquirers to have advance reservations before beginning their southward trek.

Meanwhile, on Florida's west coast, St. Petersburg looks forward to its greatest season.

It may seem odd that we continue asking the public to do business with us. So in order to complete as many calls as possible, the operator will allow you to limit your call to 5 minutes when the lines are overcrowded.

Walkie-Talkies Ready For Public By Next Summer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. (AP)—Time was when the only way you could eavesdrop telephone messages was to tap the wire or listen in on the party line. Now you can just tune in on a certain frequency and hear what Joe Doakes has listened in on his frequency first, to see if anyone else is using it. But in spite of any complications that may arise, the advantages of the walkie-talkie will no doubt make it one of those gadgets no household should be without.

And it isn't in the dim future that walkie-talkies will come into civilian use. The Federal Communications Commission receives hundreds of letters every day, asking when you can get a civilian walkie-talkie. FCC Commissioner E. K. Jetz says it will be possible by the middle of next summer. And with Christmas practically here, that makes walkie-talkies just around the corner -- if you don't mind our jumping the gun a little.

By mid-summer, they expect to have about 25,000 light weight two-way radio telephones ready to go on sale at prices ranging from $50 to $100 a set. A year later, they expect to have around 250,000 sets ready for use.

It won't be hard to acquire a walkie-talkie. All you'll have to do is show some familiarity with the communications act and the regulations governing this service. Then you pay your money and you take your choice. Only two rules will be established. One of these is that any one can talk over a walkie-talkie, but no charge may be made for using one or for transmitting messages.

The other is that the walkie-talkie cannot be used for commercial broadcasting. The FCC will approve rules and a licensing procedure within two or three months, Commissioner Jetz states. And he added that non-technical knowledge will be necessary to qualify. It should be easier to get a walkie-talkie license than to renew an auto driver's license.

That sounds to us like being awfully cozy terms with the ultra-modern. Just think -- here you can tune up and talk to your favorite person from one to 15 miles away. Granted, of course, that favorite person also owns a walkie-talkie. Swiftness, farmers, sportsmen, and explorers probably will make most advantageous use of them, and the FCC expects a demand for the walkie-talkies from stores, dairies, and lumbering and other business organizations that make deliveries.

Several styles will probably be produced, some for carrying around with you, some for use on rooftops and the top of your car. We wouldn't be surprised if one of these days walkie-talkie sets come in assorted colors -- to match your costume. And women will be a manning friend husband from the seventeenth hole, reminding him to bring home the bacon when he finishes the game.
