Seminole Legislators To Introduce Bill

'ANNEXATION PLAN APPROVED

TALLAHASSEE—A bill providing for a referendum on annexation of Sanford fringe area will be introduced in the state legislature by the Seminole County legislative delegation.

Sen. Douglas Stenstrom and Reps. Mack Cleveland Jr. and Volie Williams Jr. announced at a public hearing at the State Capitol that they would introduce the bill. The hearing began last night and lasted until early today.

The bill would permit qualified voters in the city and in the areas subject to annexation to vote in the referendum. It will include a clause exempting those annexed from the present city indebtedness.

The meeting, held in one of the Senate committee rooms, was well attended by delegates for and against the annexation program. Frequent interruptions by arguments from both sides marked the session.

Representing the city and for annexation were Mayor Denver Cordell, City Commissioners F. D. Scott and Jack Rattigan, City Manager Warren Knowles, John Ivey, Clifford McKibbin and Bradley Odham.

On the opposing side were Mr. and Mrs. Edmonds, Capt. Thomas Burgess, G. R. Muffley, J. E. Woods, Bob Bennett and Mrs. Edna L. Heeler.

Following a suggestion by Senator Stenstrom, the delegations appointed spokesmen to present each side of the matter. Jack Rattigan presented the city's side and Mrs. Heeler spoke for the opposition.

Rattigan said both delegations were well informed of the issues involved but brought out that the need for some 500 or 600 new homes are needed to house Naval personnel in the near future.

"This makes it imperative," he said "that action be taken immediately."

Knowles answered questions from the legislators concerning the availability of water, sewers, and fire and police protection. He also answered inquiries regarding what it would actually cost in taxes to the residents involved.

Mrs. Heeler, speaking for the citizens' delegation, said she had previously been informed by the city that the cost of the city would exceed $100. Taking her case as a test, R. W. Burgess determined that actual costs of being in the city would be $21.

Captain Burgess said he could not see that the city had any thing to offer him in the way of services. Knowles replied that at the present time 10 to 20 percent of the people in the proposed annexation area are receiving some city services.

CIO Workers Flatly Reject Ford Offer

DETROIT (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers, flatly rejecting a Ford Motor Co. offer to give its 140,000 employees the right to buy Ford stock at half price, called on Ford local unions throughout the nation to get ready at once for "possible strike action."

The stock-buying plan was included in a half-billion-dollar, five-year "package" offered the union as a counterproposal to the UAW demand for a guaranteed annual wage.

Ford's offer ignored the guaranteed annual wage.

1955 Fund Drive Is Far Below Quota

Only 12 per cent of the year's quota has been raised in the Salvation Army financial campaign up to the present time.

"If the Army is to expand and be able to keep pace with the growth of Sanford," said Ralph A. Smith, chairman of the local advisory board, "more support is needed from the citizens of Sanford and Seminole County."

"No doubt there are many generous persons who support the organization and its ideals who have not sent in their donations," stated M. Marion Herman Sr., chairman of this year's drive.

L. Donald Taylor, commanding officer of the Sanford corps, brought out that "An estimated total of $7,500 is needed from the drive if the Salvation is to properly carry out its program in this city."

Donations may be sent to the Salvation Army, P. O. Box 1233 Sanford, or call 280 to have a uniformed Salvationist pick it up.

Eden's Win Is Almost Pushover

LONDON (AP)—Good times, lucky breaks and a record of achievement sent Sir Anthony Eden and his Conservatives surging to victory in the British national election.

The circumstances made it almost a pushover for Eden's free enterprise party.

British shops are full of goods again. The dinner pail also is full. With a big assist from the Korean War, the Conservatives since 1951 have freed the country of controls and set out to create incentives for hard work.

Many Britons, including some with Socialist sympathies, think of austerity and rationing when they remember the Labor governments before 1951.

Eden timed the election—only seven weeks after he succeeded Sir Winston Churchill as prime minister—with consummate skill. He could have held on for the year and a half remaining in Parliament's term of office.

Instead he sought a bigger mandate to govern. The dice were loaded in his favor.

Slow Down, Live Are Wise Words Issued By Patrol

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Floridians embarking upon the long Memorial Day holiday weekend were urged by the Florida Highway Patrol and Coast Guard today to take it easy.

Tonight marks the start of the second annual statewide "slow down and live" campaign during the three-month period between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

Last year 22 persons were killed on the highways during this three months period.

State Patrol Comdr. H. N. Kirkman said today "that number can be reduced by 20 per cent this year, if people will only use a little horse-sense on the highways and really make some effort to slow down and live."

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The Florida Merit System said today the 1955 Legislature had created new job opportunities for college graduates who wanted to go into public welfare and public health sanitation work.

The jobs are under the merit system.

Indonesian Inquiry Group Says Airliner Destroyed By Time Bomb

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—An Indonesian inquiry committee charged today that an Indian airliner which crashed in the South China Sea April 11 was destroyed by a time bomb. Sixteen of the 19 persons aboard, including eight Red Chinese officials, were killed.

In Hong Kong, the British colonial government said, "seems probable that the explosive device was placed in the aircraft in Hong Kong." The British said an investigation was continuing.

The Indonesian report, issued a government communique, said that an inspecting of the wreck had determined that "the cause of this accident was the explosion of a timed infernal machine placed in the starboard wheel well of the aircraft."

The explosion of the bomb, "resulted in the puncturing of the No. 3 fuel tank and uncontrollable fire."

"Recovery of parts of a twisted, burnt and corroded electric mechanism—which has no relation to any equipment or structure of the aircraft—trapped the same area where the explosion took place provided irrefutable evidence of an infernal machine having been placed in the area."

O'Brien was ejected in the fourth inning by umpire Art Carmen during an argument over whether a base runner had left third base too early to score after an outfield fly.

Krider, who was in the stands, said O'Brien grabbed Carmen by the arm and spun him around during the argument and generally "roughed the umpire up."

Krider said he would not stand for any "ball player laying his hands on an umpire."

Krider also announced that umpire Joe Stier had been sold to the Class D Carolina League. Stier, who was out of baseball last season, umpired in the FSL in 1952 and '53, and the first part of this season.

Mrs. Lamarr had agreed yesterday to be questioned about the disappearance of $50,000 in jewels from her home Tuesday.

Detective B. M. Squires said she was too upset for the polygraph to function properly. Three attempts were made to give her the test, but each was inconclusive.

Earlier, Miss Lamarr's husband, William W. Howard Lee, was given a test by Squires. The detective said the test showed Lee was telling the truth when he denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of the jewels.

Rotary Baseball Teams Make Ready For Theater Party

Additional Bodies Found In Rubble

UDALL, Kan. (AP)—Rubble piles in this smashed town yielded additional bodies as the toll from death-dealing tornadoes which lashed six states mounted to at least 115 today.

More than 700 were injured. Property damage was in the millions.

As bulldozers and a crane turned over the ruins in this devastated town of 500 where only three business places were left standing, 12 more bodies were recovered.

They brought the total killed here by Wednesday night's storm to 74. Five others were killed at Oxford, Kan. More than 200 were injured in Udall.

$300 Difference Subject Of Debate

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—What's the difference between a clavichord and a piano? In customs duty, $300. So the Diehls and customs men are engaged in a battle of music.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster R. Diehl, of suburban Yorkville, bought a $1,500 clavichord from Germany for their 17-year-old son Foster, an accomplished piano and organ student.

The Diehls maintain the instrument belongs to the piano family and is subject to 20 per cent duty—or $300.

The customs office says the double-keyboard clavichord with 32 pedals is a distinct instrument. If Uncle Sam wins, the Diehls will pay 40 per cent duty—$600.

Tell Her It's MURDER

Copyright, 1954, by Helen Reilly. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
 THOUT was telling out his chair. Andrus was motionless—it was the doctor who intervened. He took three quick steps, gave Trout a shove that sent him back in his chair, and picked up the whiskey bottle. "You've had enough of this, too much, Trout. Mind your manners." Turning, he exchanged a quick glance with Andrus.

Andrus nodded understandingly. He said, "I'll see you tomorrow, Regina." "Yes, am." Her voice was a throaty, Amy Hedgate said, "Good night, Mr. Andrus." No one else said anything.

Andrus went. He was at the top of the steps when the front door opened and Susan Dwight came out. She closed the door behind her and crossed the porch. "Jim—that man, that horrible man."

Andrus shrugged. "Quite a mess isn't he, Susan—but then he's drunk, and there might have been a fire-in-all if he stayed. Poor Regina! What happened? What's he doing here? Where did he come from?"

Susan told him, and he said, "Lock up well tonight. I've got to get hold of Todhunter, but you'd better know, too."

Among other things Trout was a liar. He said he had arrived on Wolf Hill that afternoon, but he had been there before. Henry Trout was the man who had been looking about the grounds and looking through the windows last Sunday night.

Todhunter arrived, fresh from a series of telephone talks with New York. McKee had been pleased when he heard about Trout. He said declaimingly, "This is it, Todhunter. This is the lead-in we've been looking for. I don't know how or why—but it will come." According to the ma register, Trout had been staying at the Camford in New York, a hotel in the West 40's. I'll take it from this end," McKee said. "You get everything you can up there—the smallest scrap on Mr. Henry Trout you can lay hands on."

Todhunter had accordingly gone over Trout's room at the inn while he was out. Mr. Trout traveled light. He had brought nothing with him but a bulging briefcase with an easily manipulable lock. The briefcase contained socks, a pair of shorts, an extra tie, and, in a zippered pocket, a passport that was informative. Henry Trout had not only been in Wolf Hill last Sunday night, he had been in the United States on the May night a year and a half ago when Roger Peiman was killed, and not abroad as he had implied. On the second of April of that year he had entered by way of the port of New York, and hadn't left the country again until May 10.

Todhunter told this to Susan. She was trustworthy and it would help to have someone in the home who would keep an eye open. She said, "That's it. That's the first logical explanation. Henry Trout hates Jim Andrus. He heard that Regina was going to be married again and called up to the Hill the day before the wedding. He had no car of his own and he took Jim Andrus' car that night and drove over here to see Regina, maybe to plead with her—"

"Well now, I don't think we can go that far yet," Todhunter said. "One absent bridegroom—Todhunter looked at the lovely, excited girl at snow falling. She knew nothing of what McKee suspected that to keep Andrus from turning up at his own wedding he had been drugged, either during the bachelor dinner at the inn or before the dinner, in the house. Trout could have done the drugging at the inn without showing himself. A service pantry, with a couple of doors in it, opened out of the room where the dinner was held. The waiters gone, man helping themselves, Andrus had said that he was drinking Irish whiskey, and that while he couldn't be sure, it had begun to snow. Susan watched them move down the driveway in a whirl of flakes.

A wild noise leaped suddenly into Susan's mind. Mrs. Caserly's commission, her agency, her relief when Jim Andrus was supposed to be guilty, her gloom when he was released. Was she in league with Henry Trout, and had Trout gone too far? Was that why the nurse had been ordered when she came packing into the house last night?

"It wouldn't work, there was no proof of it. Susan's head began to ache, testing this theory and that one and getting nowhere.

After Todhunter left, Susan put on a coat and went out on the porch and began to walk up and down. It was dark. Regina had been gone a long time. Then she came up the steps not with Henry Trout but with Dave Hedgate.

Susan was on the far side of the cover of lay window. About to go to her, she stood still, agitated, galvanized into stillness by those first words.

"It was Dave Hedgate who spoke, from the obscurity near the front door. "Does Trout know, Regina?"

"I'm not sure. I think so." Her voice was dull, weary.

"Has he asked you for money?"

Regina said bitterly, "Money! If it were only money—"

Silence for a moment, then the doctor spoke again, in a different tone this time. "Regina, why don't you let it come out? What real difference will it make? You're being foolish about it, stubborn; there's a block in your mind." When she didn't answer he continued more forcefully, "That New York detective, Todhunter, is very busy. He may get on the track. . . . Wouldn't it be better to go to the police yourself, tell them, in confidence? They'd probably keep it quiet. . . . If you don't want to do it, I'll do it for you."

"No. Low as Regina's interruption was, it had the force of a bullet. "Never, Dave, never. You've got to promise me you'll never tell a living soul."

"Regina, calm down."

But she didn't. "I want your word. I want you to swear that you'll never open your lips of your own accord. You've got to promise."

Susan heard a faint sound somewhere close by. She left the shelter of the lay window, went to the steps, couldn't see anything and started down. On the landing 10 feet below she came face to face with Jim Andrus.

Susan was the first to speak. "You heard him, Jim?"

"Yes, Susan, I heard some. I saw Regina and Hedgate coming in and started to follow. This was as far as I got."

He, too, had been stopped cold by those terrible words. Snow-covered cement under Susan's feet began to heave. Andrus put an arm around her. "Susan, don't. . . ." She leaned against him and tried to stop shaking. This was a new Susan, an utterly different Susan. She was hooked into a cocked hat, she looked up at him, her eyes tragic. He bent and kissed her, gently. Still holding her, he said, "Don't let it worry you too much, Susan. It's private business of Regina's, but I'm going to see that she gets going on her feet. . . ."

He released her carefully, gave her a pat on the back.

What Henry Trout was after, what he had come to Wolf Hill for, was money. He was quite open about it. He had a chance to get in on a nice little business out in Vancouver. All he needed was some capital. He didn't say how much. He came at 9 the next morning and when Mrs. Caserly sent him away, saying Regina wasn't up, he came back at 11 and stayed for lunch. He also dropped in on other people. The whole Hill was agog. People talked about it on the street and in the shops.

Regina said to Susan, "Henry won't be here long, you'll see. He's a wanderer, he'll get tired in a couple of days and just vanish—unless he gets his luck up. It's best to humor him. . . ."

That was evidently why, when Trout appeared again at around 4 in the afternoon, she went for a walk with him, obviously determined to keep him from setting down in the house for the evening. It had begun to snow. Susan watched them move down the driveway in a whirl of flakes.

A wild noise leaped suddenly into Susan's mind. Mrs. Caserly's commission, her agency, her relief when Jim Andrus was supposed to be guilty, her gloom when he was released. Was she in league with Henry Trout, and had Trout gone too far? Was that why the nurse had been ordered when she came packing into the house last night?

"It wouldn't work, there was no proof of it. Susan's head began to ache, testing this theory and that one and getting nowhere.

After Todhunter left, Susan put on a coat and went out on the porch and began to walk up and down. It was dark. Regina had been gone a long time. Then she came up the steps not with Henry Trout but with Dave Hedgate.

Susan was on the far side of the cover of lay window. About to go to her, she stood still, agitated, galvanized into stillness by those first words.

"It was Dave Hedgate who spoke, from the obscurity near the front door. "Does Trout know, Regina?"

"I'm not sure. I think so." Her voice was dull, weary.

"Has he asked you for money?"

Regina said bitterly, "Money! If it were only money—"

Silence for a moment, then the doctor spoke again, in a different tone this time. "Regina, why don't you let it come out? What real difference will it make? You're being foolish about it, stubborn; there's a block in your mind." When she didn't answer he continued more forcefully, "That New York detective, Todhunter, is very busy. He may get on the track. . . . Wouldn't it be better to go to the police yourself, tell them, in confidence? They'd probably keep it quiet. . . . If you don't want to do it, I'll do it for you."

"No. Low as Regina's interruption was, it had the force of a bullet. "Never, Dave, never. You've got to promise me you'll never tell a living soul."

"Regina, calm down."

But she didn't. "I want your word. I want you to swear that you'll never open your lips of your own accord. You've got to promise."

Susan heard a faint sound somewhere close by. She left the shelter of the lay window, went to the steps, couldn't see anything and started down. On the landing 10 feet below she came face to face with Jim Andrus.

Susan was the first to speak. "You heard him, Jim?"

"Yes, Susan, I heard some. I saw Regina and Hedgate coming in and started to follow. This was as far as I got."

He, too, had been stopped cold by those terrible words. Snow-covered cement under Susan's feet began to heave. Andrus put an arm around her. "Susan, don't. . . ." She leaned against him and tried to stop shaking. This was a new Susan, an utterly different Susan. She was hooked into a cocked hat, she looked up at him, her eyes tragic. He bent and kissed her, gently. Still holding her, he said, "Don't let it worry you too much, Susan. It's private business of Regina's, but I'm going to see that she gets going on her feet. . . ."

He released her carefully, gave her a pat on the back.

Randolph Scott Sends Desperadoes To Meet Justice

HOLLYWOOD — Randolph Scott cleaned out another town this week. He brought the outlaws to justice and convinced the local citizens they had to take a stand against lawlessness.

This time he's "Marshal of Medicine Bend."

In the past he has been the "Bounty Hunter," "Fighting Man of the Plains," "Man in the Saddle," "Man Behind the Gun," "Nevadan," and "Frontier Marshal."

He has cleaned out "Abilene Town," "Badman's Territory," "Train Street," "Albuquerque," "Coroner's Creek," "Walking Hills," "Santa Fe," "Fort Worth" and "Carson City."

With his "Colt .45" or while "Riding Shotgun," Scott has combatted the "Return of the Bad Men," "Doolins of Oklahoma" and "The Desperadoes."

What's more, he shows no signs of quitting.

Randolph Scott is the perfect Western hero. He is tall and lean, with a leather-faced handsomeness and an ability to command respect with his tight-mouthed orders.

He is, in fact, just about the only Western hero who can make a living—and a mighty handsome one—from making movies for theaters.

Cowpokes like Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and Bill Boyd have loped off to hunt the television gold. Only Scott remains on the movie range.

Legends have related that he is sparse of words, but actually the Virginia-born actor can wax loquacious on matters that interest him. One such is the movie business.

"There's no doubt that television has cut into our business," he said. "We used to count on a 2½ or 3 million gross domestically and 4 million or more worldwide. But you can't expect that nowadays."

"The little monster (TV) has brought a lot of changes in the picture business. A friend of mine, a big theater chain operator, told me that the chains aren't interested in run-of-the-mill pictures any more. They want attractions that will bring people away from their TV sets."

Scott has managed to continue a money-maker because his films are several cuts above what used to be called the program Western. He does them with ample budgets, good casts and color. He shares in the proceeds with producer Harry Joe Brown.

"Why hasn't Randy gone on TV?" "Because I'm tied up with film commitments for the next five years," he answered. "By that time, I'll be too broken down for TV or anything else."

She started working as a receptionist for the Ontario Department of Travel while she was still in college, being stationed at a different resort center each summer. On graduation, she became a full-time assistant in the Toronto headquarters, and lately has been racing around the United States, visiting travel shows and making television appearances, telling Americans about the glories of Canada in general and Ontario in particular.

"Some of them find it too. And that's all right with the government, because tourists have the same right to file claims as do residents."

If you plan a prospecting vacation, however, says Barbara, it's smarter to rent your Geiger counter after you get to Canada. Costs less, because of customs duties.

Barbara figures she has one of the world's most glamorous jobs.

Fair Play For Youth

While the seriousness of juvenile delinquency today can hardly be minimized, fair play demands that the accomplishments of the younger generation should not be obscured by overemphasis on the small percentage which causes the trouble.

This point of view is expressed by Judge Noehmet S. Winnet, Chairman of the Crime Prevention Association of Philadelphia. He recalls that a similar hopelessness about juvenile delinquency was felt in the 1930s. Yet, he asserts, the youths of the 1930s gave this nation its victory in World War II, are better educated than previous generations, are compiling an impressive list of accomplishments and are building better citizenship.

Judge Winnet lists four basic reasons for the current increase in juvenile delinquency. First, he says, improved enforcement machinery results in increased arrests. Secondly, the population increase dating from World War II means that there are more teenagers today, all of them facing the common yet serious problems of adolescence. As the third reason he cites the failure to solve the unemployment problem of youngsters who leave school. Finally, he blames the "restless and dynamic period" in which we live, when "cities are becoming bigger, homes are becoming smaller, schools are becoming overcrowded."

As a realist, the judge is aware that the problem of delinquency is serious and that "as a community we must find ways of preventing and controlling it." But as a man with faith in the future, he insists that "it is time to stop creating the impression that people in the field of juvenile delinquency are dealing with the many instead of the few.

It's comforting, though easily overlooked, to realize that juvenile delinquents do form a small minority, and that we do have reason to be proud of most youths.

No Monopoly Need

In Simla, India, thirteen of the Free Asian countries were represented at a conference to decide what to do with President Eisenhower's proposed fund of $2,000,000. This is a fund Mr. Stassen has urged President Eisenhower to ask Congress to appropriate for special regional projects in Asia.

The result of the conference was lack of interest in such a fund. Each of the nations was afraid of losing something of its new nationality in any plans for a co-operative spending of money.

This attitude of nationalism is growing in Asia. It is something both to be applauded and feared by the West. It is to be applauded in terms of countries seeking and finding individualism and self-determination. It is to be feared when such individualism prevents the development of resources which will aid large industrial enterprises and bring improvement in living status to people regardless of boundary lines.

It is perhaps too early to urge regional planning on the East. But it is not too early to plant seeds of this thinking. The problems of drought and starvation, disease and poverty are widespread enough to form many bases of regional need. The limits of such deprivation do not end at border lines.

Tracks In The Spring

In the old days most people voted a party ticket in local elections just as they did in the national elections. Many still do. An increasing number, however, argue that a mayor should be elected because he is honest and capable, not because of his party affiliations.

This development makes it hard to interpret the spring elections. Whatever significance they may have has encouraged the Democrats. In Baltimore, Thomas D'Alessandro Jr. was elected mayor by 25,000 Democratic votes. Baltimore, though normally Democratic, has often gone Republican and in a close election can swing Maryland, which has been voting Republican lately.

Earlier this spring the Democrats polled an unusually large majority in St. Louis.

Republican nominees. The one statewide campaign in once reukribbed Republican Michigan was a standoff between the two parties.

A veteran forecaster once remarked, "All the coon tracks point in one direction." Yet another Eisenhower campaign might alter the trend.

Youngsters Get First Big Start From Missourian

STURGEON, Mo. (U)—Johnny Sydow started out in the sheep business at the age of 8 with $33 in his pocket and good intentions.

Now, at 12, he has five ewes and a purebred sow as capital livestock, is earning profits from their offspring, and doesn't owe anyone a cent.

community a head start in the central Missouri farming community of 570 persons.

Harper says he has loaned about $6,000 in the past 10 years to youngsters from 6 to 16.

Risky you say? "I've never turned down a youngster's application for a loan, never foreclosed on one, and never lost a cent on any loan," Harper declared proudly.

A mortgage on a boy's initial purchase of cattle, hogs or sheep is standard procedure. Interest is 6 per cent and everything is strictly business. Loans average between $100 and $200.

One boy, Harper recalls, sold a steer, repaid his loan, then deposited a $50 profit in the bank.

He came back two months later and stood around bashfully until his father said, "He won't tell you, but he wants to see his $50—he's afraid it isn't keeping all right."

Harper solemnly produced the $50, the boy counted it, and handed it back, satisfied.

Explanation May Clear Confusion

WASHINGTON (U)—Dr. Leonard Scheele, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, would just once explain publicly the difficulties with the antipolio vaccine, some of the confusion might be removed.

Scheele and the health service from time to time have issued statements, as confusion piled upon confusion, but no layman could understand what, if anything, was wrong with the vaccine or why the program has ground to a virtual stop.

In the 44 days since the government first okayed use of the vaccine, this has happened:

1. The government stopped use of the vaccine, then cleared some of it but not enough to keep the inoculation program going very long.

2. At least 82 vaccinated children have come down with polio, 60 of them after receiving vaccine made by the Cutter Laboratories, of Berkeley, Calif.

3. Scheele has met repeatedly with groups of advisers—his own specialists, outside polio experts, representatives of the six licensed vaccine manufacturers—and so far as the public can see the program is still up in the air.

4. Although the government in April withdrew all Cutter vaccine it has not yet said what if any connection there is between the Cutter vaccine and the polio which developed in 60 children who received it.

5. A split occurred last night between one manufacturer—and perhaps all six of them—and the health service after it laid down new testing standards.

Some dates tell the story:

April 12—The government licensed the distribution of the vaccine.

April 27—After several children vaccinated with the Cutter product came down with polio, the government withdrew all Cutter vaccine.

May 7—After more vaccinated children developed polio, Scheele called a halt to all vaccinations so his experts could check the laboratories of the manufacturers.

May 13—Scheele approved release of some batches—after his men had checked the plant—of vaccine made by Parke, Davis & Co., Detroit.

May 15—Scheele gave similar approval to some batches made by Eli Lilly & Co., Indianapolis.

May 18—The health service delayed the release of vaccine by all other manufacturers for "some days." None of it has been released since.

May 24—The health service said all vaccine "already used or released" for use had been found safe with the possible exception of two out of the nine batches made by Cutter.

Scheele said there was "strong presumptive" evidence of a connection between the Cutter vaccine and the polio which developed in some children who received it.

He stopped short of saying positively there was a direct connection. When would the government release more vaccine? Scheele was asked that question May 24. He said he couldn't answer when he'd have information on that.

May 25—The health service laid down new testing standards for manufacturers. At least one of them—an official of the Parke, Davis Co.—said he could not accept the standards as presently written.

Big Businesses Get Along Better

NEW YORK (U)—Forty-four of the nation's biggest companies made about one third of all the profits reported by U. S. corporations in 1954.

The giants, by and large, had a more comfortable time than many a smaller company that found last year trying period. During the business slowdown, the larger company could call on resources the small one often didn't have.

Financial reports for 1954—a period of highly mixed business experience with 324,000 business casualties—emphasize the trend in recent years toward bigness. But the big getting bigger didn't discourage newcomers. The Department of Commerce says 341,000 new companies started up in 1954, making the total in the United States about 4,300,000.

One stock brokerage firm, W.E. Hutton & Co., lists today 44 companies making in excess of $0 million dollars each last year in net income after taxes. It omits a 45th, Ford, from the list because its 1954 earnings aren't available. Ford's 1953 profits are estimated at 105 million dollars, however, and 1954 seems sure to have been at least as high.

The top 44 earners listed by the brokerage firm raked in a total of 5 1/2 billion dollars. This was 32 per cent of the total amount earned by all U. S. corporations reporting for the year.

Since World War I this trend toward ever increasing bigness has been notable. In the last 20 years most of the growth has been within—that is, from self-generated capital, or earnings plowed back into expansion—rather than without, through raising funds by selling stocks or bonds.

The tendency of the big to grow bigger has worried many persons, has spawned legal regulations and antitrust suits, has brought pressure for governmental aid for small business.

Big business has many defenders too. They point to its greater efficiency, its ability to develop and merchandise new products and thus raise the national standard of living, and its power to mass produce and thus be in a position, at least, to lower the price of goods.

As We Were Saying

The Salmagundi came out Wednesday of this week and the school has been in a dither ever since. It's hard for the teachers to get much work out of the students because of the signing, (which can be expected.) They are green and white, the senior class colors, and packed full of memories of S. H. S. A yearbook is the only thing that you can keep to remember the guys and gals you went to school with. Joe Hunt was editor and with the rest of the staff did a wonderful job.

One of the highest honors you may receive is to be on the Honor Roll. Those honored this year were Larry Bates, Shirley Dandridge, Betty Bryan, Mickey Durak, Carol Buckner, Colleen Engelbreton, Doris Cohen, Lucille Hall, Clarice Craft, Elizabeth Hardy, Gladys Hasty, Al Phillips, Joe Hunt, Ora Ray, Donna McTeer, Lennie Rotundo, Robert Miller, Barbara Stevens, Terrell J. May they continue to attain these high standards and strive for higher goals!"

I guess. . . I'll stay home with my friends who won't go away. Maybe its because of the wonderful hometown of Sanford and its wonderful school, Seminole High. . . See ya' next week.

Strolling In Sanford

Orlando Jayces today heard Dudley Odham, Sanford, former state Jayce president, speak on the Jayce movement in the U. S. and abroad. His talk featured the weekly luncheon meeting of the group.

Pete Baker stopped at a Lake Wales filling station to make a phone call Saturday when two men drove up and were asking directions to Tallahassee. After looking over the road map, the driver asked Baker if he could borrow his pencil. He obliged and stood there pondering "I know I've seen him somewhere before." Finally he asked, "Pardon me, but aren't you Dick Powell?" The last stranger, who is in Miami making a movie, confirmed Baker's thoughts when he replied, "Yes, I am."

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Spencer are in Tallahassee where they will see their son, George M. Spencer, receive his doctor's degree in psychology tonight at graduation exercises at Florida State University. He will intern this summer at FSU and was recently initiated into Phi Kappa Phi. Spencer graduated from Seminole High and received his bachelor's degree at Rollins and his master's also at FSU.

Sen. George Says Prolonged Session Is Not Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today he sees no reason for Congress to remain in session either to await recommendations or get reports on the forthcoming Big Four conference.

Sen. Ives (R-N.Y.), agreeing, said in a separate interview: "What would we do about any reports we get—sound off in speeches? I don't believe it's a good idea for Congress to stay here."

Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said last week Congress ought to be on hand when the projected conference ends to get a report on progress and set upon any proposals that might come out of the meeting.

But Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he thinks the lawmakers could get through with their work by July 15 "unless something turns up that we don't know about now" and ought to do it.

Bargaining Session Set By CIO, Ford

DETROIT (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. scheduled a Memorial Day bargaining session today with the union indicating a willingness to modify terms of its demand for a year-round wage.

The union yesterday offered to cut by more than 10 per cent the amount the company would be required to pay a laid-off employee each week under its guaranteed annual wage proposal.

But at the same time UAW President Walter Reuther accused the company of refusing to bargain in the "traditional give-and-take manner." Reuther declared the union was ready to make concessions all along to avert a strike if Ford would bargain on the guaranteed annual wage.

House To Consider Controversial Bill

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—The House Rules Committee today voted to put the milk bill before the House for consideration tomorrow night.

The committee acted by voice vote after an effort by Rep. Beasley of Walton County to strike the measure abolishing retail price controls on milk was defeated by a 17-0 rollcall vote.

Rep. Ostell of DeSoto County pushed for action at the Tuesday night session, contending the House had shirked in all past years its duty to pass the measure and that in fairness it should have an opportunity to bring it to final vote.

BULLDOZERS CUTS CABLE
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A bulldozer cut a buried cable yesterday and knocked out 600 telephone and television circuits.

M. H. Cunningham, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. local board chairman, said about 30 per cent of the lines between Houston and Dallas and San Antonio were out of service.

Cleveland Tells Opinion On Bill

Vukovich Killed In Big Pile-Up At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Bill Vukovich, 1953 and 1954 winner of the 500-mile auto race, burned to death today in a five-car pile-up of race cars, worst accident of the Memorial Day race since 1930.

The Walsh, AAA track official confirmed the Fresno, Calif., champion's death after his car plowed into a pile-up on the backstretch of the 2 1/2-mile track at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Vukovich's car, third to hit the pile-up, caught fire.

The pile-up started when Ed Elisian ran into the retaining wall on the backstretch. Then Redger Ward's car spun and hit the side of an overhead footbridge, overturning along with the car of rookie Johnny Boyd.

Filed onto the wreckage were the cars of Vukovich and rookie Al Keller.

Jack McGrath, who had been battling Vukovich for the lead, had been knocked of the race at 131 miles.

Britain Is Facing Industrial Crisis; Worst Since 1926

LONDON (AP)—Britain faced her gravest industrial crisis since 1926 today as 67,000 striking railwaymen called Prime Minister Eden's back-to-work appeal.

Eden's call in an emergency Sunday broadcast met a flat turn-down from Albert Hallworth, assistant general secretary of the striking union—the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen. Hallworth defiantly declared:

"We can and will hold out for at least three months. We are determined to see this thing through."

A member of the union's Executive Council declared: "The country will break before we break."

Eden in his broadcast asserted that his Conservative government, re-elected to another five-year term last week, will "do all we can to protect the nation from the worst effects of this strike."

"The government," he said, "will not hesitate to obtain any further power that may be necessary for this purpose."

Unusual Program Holds Attention Of Rotary Club

An unusual program that held the attention of his hearers was staged by A. Edwin Strohbecher at the weekly meeting of the Sanford Rotary Club at noon today at the Yacht Club.

Introduced by Charlie Morrison, program chairman for the day, in a manner that conveyed to the group that a serious talk would be forthcoming. Strohbecher then put on a quiz program based on the names or part of names of every member of the club past and present.

A panel consisting of Walter Haynes, William Bush, Jack Rutledge and George Tusk were put on the spot to answer the clues offered by Strohbecher and Morrison acting as timekeeper and Jack L. Greene serving as scorekeeper.

The decision of the Rev. H. L. Zimmerman, from which there was no appeal, was that Bill Bush won the prize offered by H. L. Perkins and Sen.

Memorial Services Conducted Sunday

Sanford Police Benevolent Assn. Has Rites At Evergreen Cemetery

The big role the police officer plays in guarding the peace and security of the nation was emphasized yesterday at a memorial service held by the Sanford Police Benevolent Association at Evergreen Cemetery.

"We are keenly aware of a never-ending war which knows no armistice, no quarter given nor asked," Chaplain Lloyd L. King of the Florida Peace Officers Association told a crowd of approximately 200. "It is brought about by the sins of many, the careless and predatory."

But King emphasized the conflict is "necessary to preserve the lives, properties, rights and peace of our citizens."

To accomplish this, he said, "we must maintain an army composed of dedicated men, each sworn to protect the people, apprehend and bring to trial those who have no respect for others. By custom, we call these men 'peace officers' and in justice we honor their memory."

Chief of Police Roy Williams, who placed memorial pennants on the graves of former policemen, said he planned to make the service an annual event.

Participating in the service, in addition to King, was the Rev. Milton H. Wray of the First Methodist Church.

Among the former officers honored were: George W. Harriott, Sam G. Gardner, Arthur R. Marshall, Green W. Smith, W. A. Tillis, Sam Smart, Charles M. Hand, James F. McClelland Sr., W. Conner Williamson, Robert C. Wilcox;

David Speer, George H. Tomlinson, Robert L. Kennedy, Wesley Prescott, F. D. Dyson, R. Whitton, J. A. Kiehrer, Joe Cameron, William Benton and Cleveland Jacobs.

Benton and Jacobs were killed in line of duty.

Red Chinese Said Willing To Talk On Formosa Issue

NEW DELHI, INDIA (AP)—V. K. Krishna Menon said today Red China would be willing to negotiate the Formosa issue with the Nationalists but only on an "internal basis."

Prime Minister Nehru's top foreign policy advisor, just returned from a trip to Peking, made the statement at the news conference at which he announced the Chinese would release four American airmen captured during the Korean War.

He did not explain what he meant by an "internal basis" for negotiation.

He declined to specify whether the Reds would meet the Nationalists in the presence of the United States. He said the Americans and Red Chinese were the main parties in the dispute and it was up to them to "say who were the others involved."

Annexation Meeting Set

Quick Jury Action Is Planned Today In Ocala Shooting

OCALA, Fla. (AP)—Quick grand jury action was planned today against an elderly retired school teacher and his wife accused of shooting three police officers to death in a pitched battle at their home.

State attorney A. F. Bule said it "looks like premeditated murder." The couple were Edward S. Lindley, 73, and his wife Bertha, 70.

Killed in the gun battle were Deputies Curtis Youngblood and Bob Wooten and Asst. Chief M. D. Tuck of Ocala police.

Another deputy, W. G. Eggle Jr., also was hit but the state attorney said he "is coming along all right and will be available to testify within two weeks."

Sheriff Don McLeod said he was holding the couple for murder although he had not lodged formal charges. This will be done before they are arraigned, probably tomorrow.

The gun battle, in which hundreds of shots were fired, took place after officers answered the complaint of Douglas Wingfield that Lindley, his neighbor, shot at him while he was watering his flowers.

Multiple Charges Are Being Prepared Against Two Men

TAMPA (AP)—Multiple charges were prepared today against two men who led a Florida highway patrolman on a 110-mile-an-hour chase from Venice to Punta Gorda.

Det. Norman Brown said a hold order had been placed against the pair, now in Sarasota Memorial Hospital with injuries received when their automobile smashed into a filling station and burst into flames.

Brown said the men, identified as Allen M. Moore, 34, of Piquette, Ohio, and Kenneth R. Tuttle, 22, of St. Maries, Idaho, staged a holdup here Friday night and later stole an automobile.

Brown said a 15-year-old girl from Columbus, Mont., claimed the two men brought her here from Montana and that Tuttle promised to marry the girl when he got a divorce in Miami.

Former Resident Dies In Anclote

George Frederick Smith, 31, died recently at his home in Anclote after an illness of three years. Born near Greenville, N. C., he came to Florida in 1905 and became interested in celery growing and settled in Sanford.

In 1910 he married Miss Nellie Washburn of Louisville, Ky. who was a teacher in Sanford at that time.

Funeral services were held at Tarpon Springs in All Saints Episcopal Church. Burial followed in Sunny Acres cemetery.

Two Boys Booked After Break-In At Kastner Office

Two 14-year-old negro boys were retained Sunday afternoon after reportedly breaking into three of Harold Kastner's offices in the State Farmers' Market.

The youths, according to R. E. Carroll, deputy sheriff, who works with Kastner, took about 25 to 40 dollars, an electric razor and drank "I don't know how many soft drinks."

The break-in occurred between 1 and 2 p. m. and the boys were caught about 3:30 p. m.

Carroll stated he had a pair of bright colored socks in a paper bag on his desk when the boys allegedly broke the lock off the door and took them. After catching them he found one of them was wearing the socks. "That's how I spotted him," he said.

The hearing will be tomorrow. Kastner found the office open when he came down for a last minute check.

Subject Highly Debated Commissioners Gather Tonight

At odds over whether to agree to a bond tax exemption for residents of areas subject to annexation, the City Commission will attempt to reach a decision in the matter tonight.

Seminole County legislators demanded Sanford exempt annexed areas from paying taxes toward old bonded indebtedness in return for the introduction of an annexation bill in the legislature.

Hard and long arguments over the provision marked a special session of the Commission Saturday night. Unable to agree, the commissioners adjourned until 7:30 tonight.

Commissioner John Kilder, who did not attend the Tallahassee session held by the legislators, said at Saturday night's meeting that he "definitely" opposed the bill agreed to by the legislators.

Commissioner Jack Rutledge held out for sending the city's version back to the lawmakers without a bond tax exemption.

"If that fails, let's use the 1953 act allowing a referendum by freeholders in the proposed annexation area," he said.

City Manager Warren Knowles estimated the city would lose $2,495 yearly in providing garbage and trash service alone to the annexed areas. His estimated bond tax loss would be $5,381 annually or the present 231 houses in the areas.

Peiping radio said tonight a military tribunal of the Supreme Court had tried four American airmen and sentenced them to "immediate deportation."

The trial was held May 24. A Chinese language broadcast gave no details.

Peiping charged that the four "committed such criminal actions as flying their military aircraft into China's territorial air to conduct harassment and provocation."

"Their crimes endangered the security of China and the peaceful life of the Chinese people," the broadcast continued.

The charges have long since been denied by the U. S. State Department.

The broadcast heard here identified them as Capt. Harold P. Fischer Jr., Lt. Lyle W. Cameron, Lt. Col. Edwin L. Heller and Lt. Roland W. Parks.

Americans Honor Country's War Dead

By The Associated Press
With parades and solemn graveside ceremonies, or in thoughtful private moments during holiday outings, Americans today honor the soldiers who fought and died for their country.

The nation counts 1,128,393 killed in five major wars since the shots that started her War of Independence. Coupled with tribute to them are prayers that those who survived will never again lose the peace.

Services at Arlington National Cemetery highlight the nation's observance. There Vice President Richard Nixon, acting for President Eisenhower, lays a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and delivers an address.

Cities and towns and small villages throughout the nation follow suit with services, parades and speeches of their own.

George Lowell Everett was convicted of first degree murder by a jury which deliberated only an hour after getting the case Saturday afternoon.

Since there was no recommendation for mercy, Circuit Judge E. Clay Lewis Jr., passed the mandatory death sentence.
