Cop chief reports progress in fixing problems

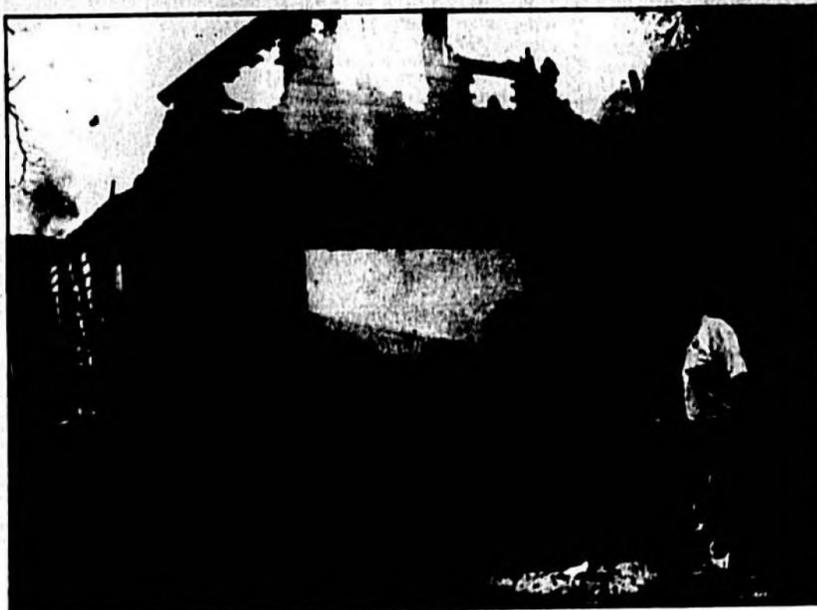

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

The re-organization of the Sanford Police Department is on track and proceeding on schedule, according to a report submitted to city commissioners Monday.

In a written report, SPD Chief Joe Dillard offered updates of the three internal committees and a special Law Enforcement Options committee formed last month in response to an outside consultant's recommendation that the police department needed a major overhaul.

Calling the SPD flawed and below average, Public Administration Consultant George Hubler had offered three options: fix the department, fix the department with the use of limited resources from the county sheriff's office, or close Dillard, Page 4A

Fire consumes garage, home damaged

Lake Mary Fire Chief Duane Mehl surveys damage to a garage and home on Washington Avenue late Monday afternoon. Sanford and Seminole County firefighters assisted, when lines had to be laid down the unpaved street almost a half mile to reach the fire. The garage was lost, and the home sustained serious damage.

County: Nude dancing OK

(But no funny business)

By ROSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

For 2 1/2 hours at a work session on Monday dealing with adult entertainment, the Board of Seminole County Commissioners covered just about everything but the nude dancers at the county's five licensed cabaret-type establishments.

The commissioners narrowed down the potential sites for such clubs and sexually-orientated businesses from 22 to 2, and fine-tuned the county's new adult law with a "glitch ordinance."

More significant, however, was the decision by three of the five commissioners who said a public nudity proposal was no longer necessary because of the clout in the adult business law - considered the toughest in the state.

What cabaret dancers wear - or don't wear - isn't as much a problem to Sheriff Don Eslinger as he and his deputies attempt to regulate prostitution and drug use in the county. Getting rid of the county's body scrub shops, he said, is a major victory. "They were nothing but a front for prostitution."

Although protected by a First Amendment right of free expression, nude dancers are subject to stringent rules and regulations that do not apply to bikini-clad dancers. Customers routinely stuff tips into the bikinis worn at some clubs but are not allowed to approach nude dancers.

Eslinger said Monday that the county's adult law is sufficient to maintain propriety at the nude dancing clubs. Break it, and his deputies would make arrests.

Commissioner Daryl McLain, outraged that far too many of the possibilities for a future adult entertainment "war zone" were in the Sanford area, came out of Monday's work session with a sense of victory.

Granted, one of the two pro-

Future of transportation is now, and it's coming to Sanford

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

The future of transportation is now and it's coming to Sanford.

Imagine a single transport station where people will have their choice of bus, high speed rail, light rail, commuter rail, shuttle bus, limousine park and ride or inner city bus.

Downtown Sanford near the CSX Railroad has been designated as a possible future location for an intermodal station - a place where two or more kinds of transportation modes connect to serve travelers.

As the northern most destination point joining Altamonte Springs, downtown Orlando, Orlando International Airport, International Drive, and Celebration in Osceola County, Sanford is currently participating in a study being conducted by LYNX.

According to the proposed plan, during the first phase of development, the Sanford station would offer LYNX, inner city bus and a park and ride facility, eventually adding rail services and shuttle buses.

The Central Florida High Speed Rail Task Force in 1995 developed the intermodal station plan, which is currently in the design stage.

The concept has been several years in the making, said Jay Marder, director of Planning and zoning for Sanford.

Marder said during the last few years his department had conducted transportation studies, the results of which have been shared with the task force.

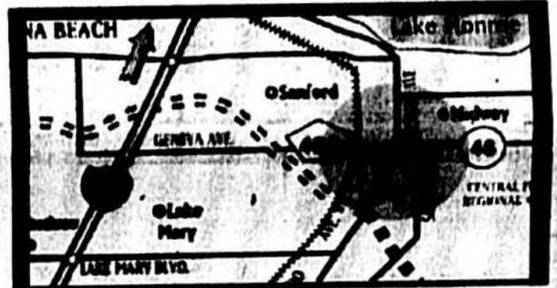

"We have great facilities here with the CSX, expressway, interstate, the airport and the Auto Train," Marder said.

Marder said a park and ride facility is already in the works. He said Sanford could see an intermodal station as soon as two to three years from now.

"This would bring much needed alternatives to single auto occupancy travel," he said. "That's what LYNX is doing. This (the intermodal station) is very relevant to Sanford citizens."

LYNX is soliciting input from anyone who wishes to participate. Several public workshops will be held through the end of the year. The final implementation plan will be presented in May 1998 to the LYNX board and Metropolitan Orlando. For more information, call Lynn Hogan at 316-8400.

Encephalitis virus update

By DAVID FRAZIER
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Health Department has issued a statement regarding seroconversions in the county sentinel chicken flocks with the St. Louis encephalitis virus. As of the last testing, there have been two additional seroconversions for a total of four (two in Apopka and two in Longwood).

The health department said this latest conversion still indicates a low level of infectivity. And, statewide, there have only been four humans - that includes the one death - who have contracted St. Louis encephalitis. No human

Privatizing waste pickup: Workers worry

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

The City of Sanford will be seeking bids for waste collection services and city employees are concerned for their jobs.

Mayor Larry Dale instructed City Manager Bill Simmons to prepare a request for proposal contracting services for collections of solid waste and recyclables. Among the bidders will be the city and several private haulers.

With the highest collection rates in the county, commissioners are seeking alternatives which will save residents money and generate revenue for the city. During a special work session last month,

Ike and Dale - bold, brash & bald

Who knows how it happened but today is Be Bald and Be Free Day and also the Birth Anniversary of Dwight David Eisenhower, unquestionably America's favorite bald president.

For those who are bald and who either wear or do not wear a wig or toupee, this is the day to go "alitty" and be proud.

Be sure to say hello to Sanford's illustrious mayor, Larry Dale, on this Oct. 14 observance of Be Bald and Be Free Day.

Dwight David Eisenhower, an American hero who served as the supreme commander of the Allied Forces in World War II and was president from 1953 to 1961, was close to going bald while a cadet at West Point.

"We Like Ike" Americans said when Eisenhower was elected the 34th president.

Eisenhower was born on Oct. 14, 1889 in Denison, Tex. He died Mar. 28, 1969 in Washington D.C.

Saintly Bond

Roger Moore, who played "The Saint" and James Bond is 89 today. Have a great birthday and leave off the hair-piece. Former U.S. Surgeon General Charles Everett Koop is 81 today. Designer Ralph Lauren is 58 and former White House counsel John Dean is 59.

JFK's Idea

At 2 a.m. on Oct. 14, 1960, then presidential candidate John F. Kennedy chatted with several thousand students on the steps of the University of Michigan Student Union building.

Dwight David Eisenhower

who are going to be doctors are willing to spend your days in Ghana. How many of you who are going to be technicians or engineers are willing to work in the Foreign Service?

The response was quick and favorable and 19 days later San Francisco, Kennedy proposed the Peace Corps.

There were more than 100,000 volunteers in the next three decades and today many will celebrate their service on the 37th Birth Anniversary of the peace Corps.

Penn Day

Folks in Pennsylvania have reason to celebrate. Today is the Birth Anniversary of William Penn, who founded the state. He was born on Oct. 14, 1644 in London, England. He died on July 30, 1718. Good enough at what he did to have an Ivy League school named after him and an annual track event - the Penn Relays. Sean Penn is no relation.

Tomorrow

Even grouches deserve a day of recognition. Tomorrow is National Grouch Day. Heaven knows how many qualify for such a celebration. It is also National Train Your Brain Day and there's a full moon. Well, we warned you.

Immunizations are important for adults

Immunizations aren't just for kids. In fact, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that over 31,500 adult deaths could be prevented annually if adult immunization recommendations were followed.

In recognition of National Adult Immunization Awareness Week (Oct. 12-18), United HealthCare of Florida, Inc. urges all adults to obtain vaccinations that will help protect them from preventable, serious routine infections.

Immunizations are available for influenza (flu), pneumococcal (pneumonia), hepatitis B, and hepatitis A. Some adults even need what are often thought of as childhood vaccinations, such as those for measles, mumps, rubella (German measles), tetanus, diphtheria, and chickenpox.

"Even healthy adults can be at risk of contracting serious illnesses," said W. Dennis Young, M.D., medical director for United HealthCare of Florida's Central and Northeast region. "It makes sense to take advantage of the precautions that help protect you from many common illnesses."

Coach scores big with kids

Orlando Magic's former coach Richie Aduabato scored big at the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club recently.

Several months ago, Aduabato organized a summer youth basketball league for Seminole County Boys and Girls Club members.

Gary W. Cain, president of the Boys and Girls Clubs of Central Florida, Inc., said youngsters aged 6-16 participated in the league from four Seminole area clubs—Midway Club, Midway Teen Center, West Sanford and East Altamonte.

Recently Aduabato was both the feature attraction and guest of honor at the Richie Aduabato Shooting for the Stars Banquet held in Sanford to honor both players and their inspiration.

Don Miller, Seminole Area Director for Boys and Girls Clubs of Central Florida, said the awards dinner was an all volunteer affair prepared by Boys and Girls Club members and staff.

Over eight weeks, shooting stars participants played highly competitive tournament contests grouped by age and ability. "Richie Aduabato has devoted many, many hours to helping us get organized and get the community involved in summer basketball here," Miller said.

"The Richie Aduabato Shooting for the Stars Banquet was organized to thank him and to recognize the outstanding players and teams that participated."

At the Banquet, Aduabato got the chance to do what he does best: motivate young players to exceed their limits. "Richie Aduabato had a beautiful message for us," Miller said. "He spoke about how to develop and maintain the sort of personal discipline we need to succeed in the real world or to succeed on the basketball court. When he finished he had the attention of everyone in the room. It was a moment some of these kids will never forget."

Waste

Waste Management, made special presentations to the city commission. Jerry Herman, director of public works for the city offered a financial summary, and rate analysis of current waste collection services.

Simmons said the main concern resulting from the meeting was for the job of the city's 37 employees. Although employees have been told by city officials that they will not lose their jobs if Sanford privatizes, employees are scared.

At issue is retirement benefits and job security.

Commissioner Whitey Eckstein said he had talked to employees and "they are scared to death." Eckstein also said that should the city choose to privatize, he is frightened by the concept of liability. Eckstein said he wants the commission to meet with employees to help dispel misconceptions, which might exist.

"I will vote against this, if I can't meet with employees first," Eckstein said. "We need to sit down with employees to clear up some of these rumors."

Eckstein also chastised Herman for not being prepared during the presentations of the private haulers last month.

"You were not prepared and you did not defend your department," Eckstein said.

Herman said he was asked to present facts and he did. "I wasn't prepared for a marketing presentation," Herman said.

Dale said if the city were to privatize, the jobs would remain in Sanford.

"Half of them (waste collection employees) don't even live within the Sanford city limits," Dale said. "No one is guaranteed a job for life."

Dale also noted that the city's fleet of trucks and equipment is antiquated and a large capital outlay is forthcoming.

Commissioner Kerry Lyons said most cities in the nation privatize waste collection services.

"We're a full service city," Lyons said.

Commissioner Brady Lesard said although he loved the idea of privatization, "I have a gut feeling we have opened a lot of cans of worms."

Commissioner Velma Williams said she had serious reservations about privatizing.

"We shouldn't only think of saving money. I feel we should show some loyalty to employees who have been here many years," Williams said.

"Those employees are frightened."

Speaking to Herman, Williams said, "I feel it only fair that you come up with a competitive package."

"Maybe they (the city) can do more with less. At least we should try and not throw our hands up," Williams said.

Dale said he did not want city employees to take things personally.

"I think they will get hired and they'll be better off in the private sector."

Pointing to a new contract

How can it be that conservative ideas are ascendant everywhere, but conservative political parties keep losing national elections? (United States, England, Canada, France — with Germany quite possibly ready to go flop! Can anything be done about it? Such were some of the key questions that genetically gloomy conservatives were asking themselves last weekend at the first meeting of the International Conservative Congress, held in Washington.

that Rep. Charles Canady's long-stalled civil-rights bill will come to a House vote by spring. Canady, R-Fla., proposes a federal version of California's Proposition 309 which outlawed state-sponsored preferences in education and hiring. Surveys show that 70 percent to 80 percent of Americans approve of such a reversal of reverse-discrimination. But liberals, with a large black voting base, have great difficulty with it. If nothing else, it differentiates. Gingrich and the Republicans have dabbled on this, fearing that they will be regarded as nasty to minorities. Gingrich now says this can be demonstrated as false by his next proposal.

Newt Gingrich is a conservative, but he is anything but a gloom-ball. Gingrich has a strategy. (Too many of them, some say.) Like most of us, he tends to re-live, revive and refine past triumphs. Accordingly, on the third anniversary of the Contract With America, he laid out for a receptive ICC audience a design for what seems to be a 1998 Contract, with international applications.

Which is: "Progress without preference," specifically in the realm of education. Every student should be able to go to a school that is safe and disciplined, says Newt. That student should learn English, the language of opportunity. The fulcrum of all this is school choice, probably in the form of public vouchers allowing underprivileged children to go to private or religious schools. It's a solid idea, designed to make failing public schools better by putting them under competitive pressure to improve. It differentiates; the most vocal opposition comes from teachers' unions, typically working through the Democratic Party. Also, many conservatives have recently tarnished their credentials on school improvement by opposing even Clinton's amended proposal for voluntary national testing in English and math. Gingrich's fourth proposal concerns national security. He thinks Clinton is following out the military.

Point No. 5 deals with pensions. Gingrich wants Republicans to champion the idea that retirees will get bigger pensions if some of their Social Security funds are invested in the great green growth machine of American business. Again, liberals are nervous about even partial privatization of Social Security. But it's an idea that is ripe. When every American is a shareholder, it could go a long way toward ending the "we" vs. "they" mentality that poisons the ongoing economic dialogue.

Next, Gingrich wants to explain to Americans that the campaign finance scandals now unfolding are not, as too often portrayed, trivial. They constitute a massive break with the concept of the rule of law. Gingrich says that if the Democratic perpetrators aren't punished, then politicians, unafraid of the consequences, will behave even more cravenly. Gingrich has had his own problems with campaign finance and so has former Republican National Committee Chairman Haley Barbour. But Newt is right; the 1996 violations were not trivial.

Finally, Gingrich proposes his own brand of campaign finance reform. He believes that freedom of speech trumps all else, and that we should spend more money on elections, not less. Americans, including very rich ones, ought to be able to give as much money as they want to a candidate, provided only that the contribution is reported immediately on the Internet. In the current climate, this is a guaranteed self-destructive loser. No one's perfect.

Still, altogether, Gingrich's seven-point conservative program has zip, zest and content. It draws lines between liberals and conservatives. It includes many issues that Americans should be talking about. It could help boost Gingrich's bottom-dwelling poll ratings. And on the eighth day, he rested.

©1997 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Gingrich said that a new conservative stance must be simple, understandable, and cheerful — and must vividly stress its difference from liberal ideas. Moreover, and of critical importance, it must be early. Otherwise, during the political off-season, the liberal media fills the dialogue to the left. Gingrich's first Contract was promulgated about one month before the election. This one, as and if it develops, would surface about one year before the election. Newt offered seven points.

The first is: "Abolish the Internal Revenue Service." Now, that's not likely to happen, but it's red-meat code for major tax reform. No politician goes wrong by beating up on the IRS (which tries to enforce the laws the very same politicians pass). It's a particularly good least-government conservative theme, even though whatever GOP plan surfaces will be denounced by Democrats as anti-needy and pro-greedy.

Second point: "No discrimination against any American." Gingrich said tract the sheriff's office for full law enforcement services. Dillard said his department is proceeding with the first option.

Consisting of nine members, the Staff committee has developed a new organization chart where the Traffic Unit and the Special Operations Unit would be eliminated. Personnel from those units would be reassigned within the department, Dillard said. The K-9 units would also be assigned to the night shifts.

The Staff committee is also discussing a call priority system and community policing concepts where training would be made available to police supervisors. Also under consideration is a citizen survey and a citizen volunteer proposed sites fronted the southern access to Orlando-Sanford Airport but the other was west of County Road 419 and east of the Econlockhatchee River at the Seminole-Orange county line.

Public hearings on these two sites will take place on Dec. 2 and Dec. 16.

Whether the adult entertainment industry will ever be located in these areas won't be determined for two or more years. Under court requirements, the county needed to identify certain sites — and has done so.

At the same time the commissioners have given the existing licensed adult businesses (the five cabarets and three video/novelty stores) until Nov. 12 to meet certain appearance guidelines if they wish to stay where they are. Otherwise, they're going to have to move by Sept. 30, 1999.

"We've been at the same location for 32 years, and we want to stay right there," said

Michael Pinter, the owner of the Club Juana at 8150 Highway 17-92 in Casselberry. "The new sites they have proposed are of no interest to us."

County officials are working on development agreements with attorneys representing the adult entertainment industry and with Casselberry officials to obtain extra-jurisdictional land use and regulatory control over the adult entertainment industry. Three of the five cabaret-type establishments — Club Juana, Rachel's, and Cabaret Internationale — are in the Casselberry jurisdiction.

What these clubs want is to be "grandfathered in" — allowed to stay where they are rather than relocate. They're willing to undergo major changes in regard to architecture, landscape, signage, site layout and lighting to comply.

"At least county officials are willing to talk and listen," said David Wasserman, an attorney representing the adult entertainment industry. "We're doing what we can and the county seems to be showing good faith."

"All of this is very comprehensive with many interwoven elements, and it must all come together," said Commission Chairman Randy Morris. "We're trying to do something no one else in the state has done."

Commissioners Dick Van Der Weide and Grant Maloy are opposed to making agreements with the existing businesses but Morris, McLain and Win Adams are not eager to subject the county to the enormous legal battles these businesses may initiate if forced to relocate.

An estimated 250,000 patronize Seminole County's cabaret-type establishments each year. How many are Seminole County residents is not known. Van Der Weide and Maloy were of the opinion that if nude dancing were outlawed, that the five clubs would lose much of their clientele.

The fear is that a proliferation of bikini clubs would replace the five existing clubs.

Disturbed at the issue in general, Morris wondered aloud, "What perverts go to these places anyhow?"

Update — Dillard

Seminole County has contracted the virus. Although several counties are experiencing increased numbers of seroconversions in the chicken flocks, the proportion so far this year statewide is about half of what it was during the 1990 epidemic.

The department strongly recommends that individuals take mosquito precautions. Due to the very wide distribution of this mosquito population and the difficulty in controlling it even with mosquito control programs, the department says that the most important prevention is personal mosquito precautions which includes removing opportunities for mosquito breeding in the front and backyards of homes.

General orders from four accredited area agencies are being reviewed by five members of the committee. About 90 percent of the orders are complete, and will be submitted to Dillard for review in the form of a single document.

The Employee committee met last week and appointed officers. Chaired by Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning, the Options committee consists of 18 residents appointed by the city commission. Committee members Linda Kuhn and Phil Jackson, who recently resigned, were replaced by Cynthia Kendrick Oliver and Kevin Hypes.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Did we shut down Tuskegee, or did we just export it?

BOSTON—Imagine if it were happening here. Imagine if our government were sponsoring research in the poorest pockets of our own country where masses of pregnant women are infected with HIV.

The researchers know that AZT could save many of their babies from being born infected. Without AZT one in four babies is infected by her mother, with it only one in 10.

But AZT is expensive, $1,000 a mother as it is prescribed now, and the need for a cheaper regimen is critical. So with the best of motives, they set up a study to see if lower, less costly doses are as good as higher ones.

Some mothers are given the current AZT protocol, some are given smaller doses. But half—this is the crucial fact—are given placebos, those doses of nothing pills. After all, they reason, how else can they find out if something is better than nothing?

Imagine now what happens when the placebo children are born, when it is discovered that in the name of science the researchers withheld a known treatment. When it becomes known how the government justified this research saying that these few babies were sacrificed today for the good of more babies tomorrow. And that their mothers would never have had any medical care anyway.

It is, of course, unimaginable. Yet it is happening in Uganda, Malawi, Zimbabwe, Ethiopia and other countries where AIDS has spread like, well, AIDS. And happening with the best of American intentions and funding.

In some African countries up to 40 percent of pregnant women are infected. On average the annual health care budget in Africa hovers around $11 a person a year. The likelihood that these women will get AZT as it is given in our country is virtually nil.

So the urgency of the problem and the poverty of the people are used to explain research that would simply never pass ethical muster here. In the heated controversy that has arisen over their use of placebo, the question has come up: Does a double medical standard justify a double ethical standard?

Imagine if our government were sponsoring research in the poorest pockets of our own country.

Here, giving a placebo when a known effective treatment exists violates all the canons for research on human subjects. But in the seven AZT studies funded by our government abroad, the women being given dummy pills will give birth to more than a thousand infected babies.

Sidney Wolfe and Peter Lurie of the Public Citizen's Health Research Group, who helped raise the furor, insist the studies not only violate our guidelines for conducting research in developing countries, they violate guidelines that say "ethical standards should be no less exacting in poor countries than in our own. Marcia Angell, executive editor of the New England Journal of Medicine, compared these studies on African mothers to the infamous Tuskegee studies on African-American men. In Alabama, researchers silently charted the course of syphilis in their subjects long after a cure for the disease was discovered.

But many respected AIDS researchers heatedly disagree, arguing that in the real world of African AIDS, where women have little prenatal care and nothing is the norm, these placebo studies offer the best, fastest hope. They argue that African leaders know best the ethical balance for their own countries. As two supporters of the research added in a New York Times op-ed piece, "Americans should not impose their standards of care on developing countries."

Are we then imposing our standards of ethics? Or extending them? Can one size fit all?

The argument about universal human rights in a diverse world underlies a host of issues from child labor to women's equality to free speech. It is often said that poor countries cannot afford universal human rights. But if AZT is too expensive for Africa, do we deal with a low economic standard by lowering an ethical standard? If so, developing countries could become convenient offshore research factories, for ethically cheap science.

After the infamous Nazi medical experiments the world adopted a single code for research on humans. It says that we can't subordinate the interest of the subjects to the study. When women come into the AIDS study, researchers become responsible for their well-being—and for their babies. As Marcia Angell says, "People can't be used as a means to a noble end."

Just a few months ago, our government publicly apologized for Tuskegee. Now I wonder, did we shut down Tuskegee? Or did we export it?

'Storm Inform' keeps you safe from lightning

Special to the Herald

ST. PETERSBURG-- The leading cause of weather-related personal injuries, lightning claims the lives of 100 people each year and injures another 300.

As part of its "Storm Inform" series on storm-related tips and safety information, Florida Power Corp. offers the following information and general tips for you and your family to keep in mind during the many electrical storms occurring in Florida each year.

Lightning is electricity in the air. It can jump from cloud to cloud, or from a cloud to the ground. A lightning bolt is fast, traveling at 300 miles per second. It can have up to 50 million volts of electricity, which would be enough for 13,000 homes.

When lightning occurs, get inside a building of fully enclosed vehicle. Keep away from windows and open doors. If you are caught outdoors, go to low ground and crouch down. If you are in a group, stay several yards apart from each other.

Avoid standing near water, tall objects (such as trees or poles) and metal objects. Electrical current can easily travel through them to you.

Stay out of water. Never go swimming or boating during a storm. Electricity flows easily through water and to you if you are in the water.

Don't use electrical appliances or the telephone. Lightning can strike outside and follow the wires into your home. In fact, unplug computer and other sensitive electrical equipment to avoid damage caused by lightning surges.

Avoid the shower, sink and bathtub also. Lightning can strike inside your home by traveling through your plumbing.

Keep away from fallen power lines. If you are in an automobile that is hit by fallen wires, do not leave your vehicle. If you must leave because of a life threatening situation, use extreme caution. Jump out and off with both feet at the same time so you are completely clear of the vehicle before you touch the ground.

Sign up as soon as possible for a first aid/CPR class. Check with your local hospital's community education department or the Red Cross for availability. Your knowledge could save a life.

Former Miss Florida joins the Department of Juvenile Justice

At the age of 13 she was accepted into Julliard School's Pre-College Division, at 15 she entered Seton University (and later graduated with a 3.61 GPA); then traveled to Austria four times to study opera; named Miss Florida at age 19; founded "SHINE" to encourage student participation in the arts; and now plans to graduate with a master's degree in Communications with an emphasis in Broadcast Journalism at the University of Central Florida this December.

As a spokeswoman, her duties will include attending community events, schools, churches and other organizations to send the message to

Florida's citizens of the many ways to get involved and make an impact on the lives of Florida's youth. "I am excited about promoting volunteerism and encouraging community involvement," stated Ludecke. "If every volunteer in the state of Florida could touch the life of one child and guide them in the right direction, just think of what the future of our youth would hold."

"We are fortunate to have former Miss Florida join our department in recruiting volunteers from across Florida to make a difference in our youth," stated Ross. Volunteers recruited will serve as role models in many areas such as mentoring, tutoring, counseling, teaching, recreation, office support, family support and job skills preparation.

If you are interested in learning more about becoming a citizen volunteer, please contact the Department of Juvenile Justice Volunteer and Partnership Program at (904) 487-9983.

Volunteer of the Week

Volunteer serves others by day & night

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

The Grace 'N Grits program has been truly blessed to have a faithful and devoted volunteer such as Sandy Swain. Her dedication to this work has assisted in feeding hundreds of Seminole County people both young and old.

Swain began her work with the effort some three years ago. "Our church does it three times a year," she said. "We do it three months out of the year."

She gave a brief rundown of a typical day when the group is involved. "We serve from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Wednesday nights," she said. "We start cooking at about 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon. We have to get the food and do the shopping before-hand. We open the doors at 5:30 p.m. We all gather and say a prayer. The people that come in to get a meal sit at the tables. We bring the food to them just like at a restaurant. By the time we clean up and the people finish eating it's about 7:30 or 8 p.m."

According to Swain other churches are also involved and sign up for other times so that the kitchen is manned every Wednesday evening throughout the year. Many congregations also have numerous volunteers within their membership to cook, shop and serve the hungry.

Discussing her initial interest in the work, Swain said, "I wanted to help the people that were hungry. I'm most interested in helping the hungry children."

To encourage others, she added, "People need to see what's done at Grace 'N Grits and how the other half lives. They need to see what it's like to be hungry. I would tell people that we always need volunteers and extra help."

Swain is also a member of First United Methodist Church in Sanford. She has worshipped there most of her life. She has lived in Sanford for 40 years (all her life) and is a hairdresser and massage therapist at Headliners in Sanford.

Is grass greener on the other side?

In many part of Florida, it is not possible to have an attractive, green lawn throughout the winter months due to low temperature exposure. Permanent lawngrasses in central Florida such as bahiagrass, bermudagrass, and St. Augustinegrass go dormant in the late fall and winter. These grasses grow very slowly, lose color in the fall, then turn completely brown with the first frost. Brown lawns throughout the winter are unattractive and weeds are easily seen, so a practice called "overseeding" is often used to provide a green winter lawn. Overseeding is the practice of using a temporary grass which is seeded into the permanent lawn to provide winter color.

Recommended grass: Several cool season grasses can be used for overseeding, including ryegrass, bluegrass, bentgrass and tall fescue, but by far the most common temporary grass is ryegrass. Annual, intermediate and improved (perennial) ryegrasses are popular because of rapid seed germination, fast growth, adaptability and reasonably low cost. Ryegrass is widely adapted, does well in either sun or shade and tolerates close, frequent mowing. If seeded heavily and mowed closely, ryegrass can provide a very dense and beautiful lawn throughout the winter. By the time the ryegrass dies, the permanent lawngrass should be actively growing again, and will provide color and cover the rest of the growing season. The ryegrass will have to be reseeded each year to provide a green wintertime lawn.

Seeding time: Seeding time in central Florida is from mid-November to early December. It is best to wait until the daytime temperatures are consistently in the low to mid 70 degree F range. If the seeds are planted during warmer periods, water stress and diseases will reduce the chance of seedling survival.

Seedbed preparation: To prepare the lawn for overseeding, the grass should first be raked thoroughly to remove all debris. Next, mow the lawn closely, catching all clippings, or rake the grass afterwards. The lawn may need to be cut more than once to reduce it to the desired height. If the lawn has excessive thatch, dethatching with a power vertical mower or power rake is advisable. A heavily thatched lawn tends to result in irregular overseeding patches. Vertical mower blade spacing should be 3 inches for St. Augustine and bahiagrass, 1 to 2 inches for bermudagrass, and 1 inch for zoysiagrass. A final raking will remove additional material and loosen the soil somewhat so that the seed can come in contact with the soil.

Seeding rate: Average seeding rate for ryegrass is about 10 lbs/1000 sq. ft., read the label on the container for the best results. If available, buy fungicide-treated seed. For best coverage, use a mechanical seeder and sow half the seed as you walk in one direction, and the other half by walking at right angles to the first. A very uniform stand can be established this way. After seeding, rake the ground with a stiff broom to ensure the seed gets through the grass and is in contact with the soil.

Watering: Watering is the last, but most important step in establishing the winter lawn. Water should be applied lightly and carefully to the seeded lawn once or twice a day until the seeds have germinated. Watering should continue until seedlings are well established. Do not overwater as this will wash seed away and encourage disease development. Once the plants are well established, water on an as-needed basis to prevent wilting.

Maintenance: Once the winter lawn is established, it will require the same maintenance as the permanent lawn. This includes mowing, watering, fertilizing, and controlling pests. Begin mowing when the grass is about 2 inches. Properly fertilized ryegrass grows very fast, so weekly mowing will probably be required. Water only as needed to keep the grass from wilting. Apply 0.5 pound nitrogen per 1000 square feet using a complete fertilizer such as 16-4-8, or 6-6-6.

Re-establishment of grass: Ryegrass will normally die out in late spring, but if the weather is cool, and the lawn is watered frequently, it can be very persistent. Discontinue fertilization in March. Continue to mow the ryegrass as close as possible each week. Once the permanent lawngrass has resumed growth, begin your regular lawn maintenance program.

Geezers outdo whippersnappers

DEAR ABBY: I laughed out loud when I saw your column featuring famous sayings with original endings provided by a fourth-grade class in Ventura County, Calif.

At our computer Web site, the Geezer Brigade for "seniors with an attitude," a competition was held to see if Geezers could outdo the little whippersnappers. Here are the results:

APHORISMS FOR THE '90s FROM THE GEEZER BRIGADE
— All that glitters is not ... necessarily something you want your only daughter sticking through a hole in her nose.

— The early bird catches ... hell from the union.

— A penny saved is ... something you could've invested in the blizzard bull market in history, if only you hadn't listened to your idiot brother-in-law.

— The road to hell is ... paved.

— If you can't stand the heat ... hire an assistant.

— The squeaky wheel ... got to be lead singer in my son's rock group.

— It's always darkest just before ... you try to find your seat in a movie theater.

— To err is ... not permitted by the IRS, and to forgive is unheard of.

JOHN KIRKNELL,
CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR JOE: If some people are curious about what seniors are doing with computers these days, your letter should put their curiosity to rest.

DEAR ABBY: You asked your readers how they would define "elderly." My 6-year-old daughter came to me one day with a question

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"No, Mom, I mean really old." Knowing that Fern is 87, I answered "Yes."
"Ooah!" Katy said, her eyes shining. "Is she 30?"
"No, Abby, I thought you'd like to know that in my daughter's eyes, 'elderly' is synonymous with 30."

about our neighbor, Fern. "Mom," Katy asked, "is Fern old?"
"Yes," I replied, "Fern is old."

DEAR KIM: Katy is not alone. I remember the '60s, when teenagers and college students used to say, "Don't trust anyone over 30."

Dean Smith

Herald Sports Editor

What a long strange week last week was SANFORD — It's been an odd week for me. Probably for a lot of other sports fans too. As I was catching up on last weekend's (October 5th) national sports happenings I saw where former Sarasota High School baseball star Doug Million had died from an asthma attack.

While maybe the name is not familiar to most local readers, fans of the Lake Brantley team that went to the state tournament four years ago will remember Million pitching the Sailors to the Class 6A state championship.

Million was a hard-throwing righthander that reminded me of Steve Carlton. Tall and with a slider that broke like a curve ball.

Tony DeSormier (the former Sports Editor here at the Herald), who I consider very knowledgeable of baseball talent, and I watched him warm up in the bullpen during the state tournament and we both figured this kid was a can't miss.

And evidently the Colorado Rockies thought so too as they took him with the first pick in the free agent draft that year. Being an expansion year I didn't think it would be long before Million would be pitching in the majors.

But he struggled with his control in the minors and was just starting to make some headway when he had the asthma attack and died.

It just shows you that there are no guarantees in life.

Then, after watching Tim Lincecum finish one of his best seasons in year's, despite the injuries, with a pretty good playoff series against the Indians, the Yankees decide they are not going to pick up Tim's option for next year.

While it came as a surprise, we have to remember that Tim makes a lot of money and the Yankees have a big payroll. And also that George Steinbrenner likes to make a lot of moves.

This is one of those situations when it becomes clear that baseball is definitely a business. Besides, if rumors are true, Tim won't see Dean, Page 2B

Majesty now 4-0; Flames rekindled

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Majesty from Trinity Assembly of God Church from Deltona remained undefeated the easy way, while the Flames from First United Methodist Church of Sanford awoke from their season long slump to highlight play in the Sanford Christian Church could not field the required number of players to start the game.

The Flames, a many-time champion in past leagues, finally collected their first win of the season as they used a five-run fourth inning to rally from a 4-2 deficit and hand Sanford Buen Samaritano

Orlando Magic honor Julius "Dr. J" Erving and George "Iceman" Gervin as part of ABA 30th Anniversary

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — As part of a tribute to the American Basketball Association's (ABA) 30th Anniversary, the Orlando Magic will honor Julius "Dr. J" Erving and George "Iceman" Gervin at its first pre-season home game tonight (Tuesday, October 14).

The game will be played at the Orlando Arena and will begin at 7:30 p.m. The game can also be seen on the Sunshine Network.

Prior to tipoff, the Magic and its opponent, the San Antonio Spurs, will present a red, white and blue (ABA) basketball autographed by both teams to Erving and Gervin. To continue the ABA salute, the Magic and Spurs will play the first half of the game with the red, white and blue ball.

Fans can also witness a live television interview with Erving and Gervin at halftime — without leaving their seats. Paul Kennedy of the Sunshine Network will interview the basketball Hall of Famers, asking them to reflect back on their years in the ABA.

In addition to the tribute to Erving and Gervin, fans will get to see the 1997-98 version of the Magic under new head coach Chuck Daly in person for the first time this season and also get to see David "The Admiral" Robinson, who appears to be healthy for the first time in almost two seasons, and the NBA's No. 1 1997 draft pick, Wake Forest's Tim Duncan, who has been very impressive in his first two exhibition games.

"Perry" Herdaway (No. 1), Horace Grant (No. 54) and Rory Selkay will lead the Magic against the Spurs in their first home exhibition game tonight.

be the only ex-Yankee, and potential Hall-of-Famer, leaving the Bronx Bombers as Cecil Fielder, Wade Boggs and Charlie Hayes are also said to be out.

As to where Tim will play next year, and he will play somewhere next year, I don't know.

For years my family and I have hoped Tim would come to the Braves, or recently to the Marlins so we could go watch him play more often. And now with the Devil Rays starting in St. Pete next year we got excited again about the opportunity to see him play.

But it is doubtful any of those teams are in his plans, because the Braves and Marlins are both loaded with outfielders and the Devil Rays probably either won't want to spend that kind of money or will be looking to go with younger players.

Then to cap off the week, Dean Smith (no not me) decides to retire as the basketball coach at the University of North Carolina.

Being an ex-college basketball coach myself, I used to get a lot of second-glances and silence on the phone lines when I told people my name was Dean Smith.

I actually got to meet Coach Smith at a clinic one year and that was big thrill for me. It will seem strange not seeing him on the sidelines.

But you have to remember that Coach Smith is 68 years old and time catches up with all of us.

I heard ESPN college football analyst and former Penn State and NFL quarterback Todd Blackledge talking about Penn State head football coach Joe Paterno in reference to the Smith retirement. He said you always think Paterno is going to be on the sideline, but then you remember that he is 70 years old and he is not going to be there much longer.

It makes you start to feel old.

But onto happier things.

I was happy to see that someone, Ken Erickson and Jim Schaefer to be exact, deciding to get some of our future Seminole, Lake Mary and Winter Springs high school baseball stars together and taking them to tournaments around the state and the nation so they can learn the game of baseball and get to play against the best players in the world.

The only way to get better is to play, a lot, against the best. You don't get better by playing against yourself all the time.

The 16-and-Under AAU team, playing as the Sanford All-Stars, opened their fall season in St. Augustine this past weekend in a tournament that had 54 teams from all over the United States competing. Good luck guys.

I have personally returned to the diamond, playing in the 40-and-Over Orlando Senior Baseball League.

We play all of our games on Sunday's at Edgewater High School in Orlando and at the Lake Mary Sports Complex.

Several area players, Nick Brady, Robert Smith, Bill Gracey, Chris Gagliano, Terry Frazier, Mike Ferrell and Carlos Martinez, just to name a few, are also playing in this league.

Wouldn't it be nice to see these men playing at Historic Sanford Memorial Stadium? Stay tuned, we're working on it.

CALLING ALL CHURCHES. We're looking for church softball teams.

Several years ago over 20 teams were playing in three different divisions in the league on Saturday's. Now we have four, plus two more playing in the Thursday night league. Where are you.

This league is economically very reasonable and is one of the best forms of fellowship there is.

We hear all the time about softball players having run-ins with the umpires and getting ejected. But you don't see that in the Church League. Yes, it is very competitive. But the teams get along in a sportsmanlike manner and everyone has fun.

That is the way sports are supposed to be played. Not trash talking and cursing and complaining about every call.

The next league will start in early January (Polar Bear League) and the Sanford Recreation Department is willing to hold a fun or Co-Ed league in addition to the Competitive League. So why not start getting a team together and join us on Saturday's?

Last second shot: Can you believe the baseball playoffs? They are amazingly closely matched. Some people can't believe that the Marlins and Indians are still in the race for the World Series. But remember, these are very talented teams and should not be scoffed at.

And there is local interest in the games as DeLand's Chipper Jones plays for Atlanta, Seminole County Sports Hall-of-Fame member, and Goldenrod resident, Davey Johnson manages the Orioles, former Seminole Community College All-America and Boone High School coach John Hart (formerly Dancy) is the General Manager of the Indians, and the Marlins are our Florida team.

Church its first loss of the season, 8-4.

Trinity Assembly of God Church-Majesty is 4-0 and is trailed by Buen Samaritano Church (3-1), First United Methodist Church-Flames (1-3) and Sanford Christian Church (0-4).

This Saturday at Chase Park, the Flames take on Sanford Christian at 9 a.m. and Buen Samaritano challenges Majesty at 10 a.m.

The Flames took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the third inning as Jack Diemer walked and Jerry Camus singled and advanced a base on an error before Bruce Danilla singled in both runners.

The Buen Samaritano offense, which had been held to only two hits to that point by Flames hurler Robert Jones, finally got going in the top of the fourth inning as Alex Rivera and Carlos Morales singled before Bert Solomon tied the game with a triple to the fence in right-center field.

Jesus Mulino then gave his squad a lead with a solid single to left and singles by Raul Segarra and Dandy Carradao plated Mulino with an insurance run.

The lead was short-lived, however, as the Flames answered right back in the top of the fifth inning.

With one out, Jones and Mark Blythe reached on errors and Donnie Hinson singled to load the bases before back-to-back walks to Leonard Richardson and Andrew Diemer tied the game.

Jack Diemer then lifted a sacrifice fly to left to score Hinson with the go-ahead run and Camus drove in a pair of insurance runs with a single.

The Flames added their final run in the fourth inning as W.L. Gracey tripled and Dean L. Smith grounded out to second base.

Providing the offense were: First United Methodist-Flames: two hits - W.L. Gracey (one triple, one run scored), Jerry Camus (one run scored, two RBI), Leonard Richardson (one run scored, one RBI); one hit - Jack Diemer, Andrew Diemer (one run scored and one RBI each), Bruce Danilla (two RBI), Dean L. Smith (one RBI), Donnie Hinson (one run scored); one run scored - Robert Jones, Mark Blythe.

Buen Samaritano: three hits - Dandy Carradao (one RBI); two hits - Bert Solomon (one triple, one run scored, two RBI), Alex Rivera (one run scored); one hit - Jesus Mulino (one run scored, one RBI), Carlos Morales (one run scored), Raul Segarra, Carlos Matos.

Bone density test is important

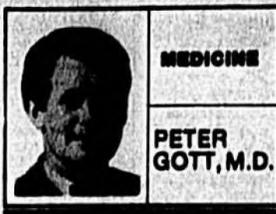

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am shrinking. I've lost at least 5 inches in height in the past 20 years. Now that I am 70, I don't want to turn into someone who is "vertically challenged." Should I have a bone density test?

DEAR READER: I hereby take note of your political correctness in using two words where one ("short") would do. But that's a subject for another column.

Yes, you should have a bone density test. This simple, safe and relatively inexpensive X-ray exam will show whether you have osteoporosis — and if so, how much. I recommend this test for all women (and most men) over the age of 65 or 70, because osteoporosis can lead to serious handicaps: As calcium leaches from bones, painful fractures can occur, even during minor trauma. Most important, osteoporosis is treatable.

Having said this, I doubt that your loss of height is due to deficient bone-calcium. As time passes, we all lose physical stature because, among other changes, the discs between the spinal bones become dehydrated and shrink. Unfortunately, this is simply a consequence of the aging process. (What we need to do is to increase our emotional and psychological stature to compensate for the physical alterations!)

Nonetheless, you should have a bone density exam, because if significant osteoporosis is present, you need treatment with either hormone replacement and/or drugs such as Fosamax to increase calcification. Ask your doctor about this.

ed and dirty. Not so. Here we go again.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 53-year-old female in good health; however, my right breast began leaking about a month ago. It fills with fluid and drips. What might I do to solve this problem?

DEAR READER: The breasts of post-menopausal women should normally not be hormonally stimulated. It's important for you to find out why your breast is producing fluid. Such a situation could be due to a hormone imbalance, a low-grade infection or a growth in the breast. You need an examination by your gynecologist, including blood tests and a mammogram. Don't delay seeking help.

The U.S. II team in the Bermuda Bowl will be most people's favorite to win. Nick Nickell, Dick Freeman, Bob Hamman, Bobby Wolff, Jeff Meckstroth and Eric Rodwell have been by far the most successful team in national competitions over the last five years. Also, they are the defending Bermuda Bowl champions.

This deal, from the final of the U.S. trials, shows Rodwell at his card-reading best. In the other room, after winning trick one with the heart king, Nickell (East) returned a diamond. To get home now, Chip Martel (declarer) had to win with the ace and guess the trump: either continuing with the ace and another, or ducking the first round and cashing the ace next. Understandably, though, Martel played his diamond three. Unerringly, Freeman (West) won with the king and switched to a club. And when in with the spade king, Freeman gave his partner a club ruff: one down.

In the given auction, North's response of two no-trump asked for a five-card major — though you probably knew that already!

Here, Michael Rosenberg (East) switched to his singleton club at trick two. After winning in the dummy, Rodwell called for the spade 10: jack, queen, king. Zia Mahmood (West) knew he could give his partner a club ruff. But he realized that that wouldn't be enough to defeat the contract. So, instead, Zia led a second heart. However, Rodwell ruffed with dummy's spade eight before playing a spade to his six! Now declarer had an overtrick for a pickup of 13 international matchpoints.

In the year ahead, your expectations will be founded upon realistic premises, not wishful thinking. Objectives you believe in will be achievable when handled in a pragmatic manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you sense you have the upper hand over another in a transaction today, you're probably right, but this does not give you a license to take advantage. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep accurate records of your procedures today, especially if performing a service for another. A misunderstanding may surface down the line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Occasionally, you're not prudent with your resources and this could be one of those days. Be careful when you have the checkbook in your hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Here is a helpful motto to hang inside your office today: "What you see here, say here, hear here, stays here when you leave here."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Do not knuckle under today if you have to deal with a big mouth. A mouse might learn to roar like a lion, but he or she is still a mouse.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Be very cautious today if you're involved in an arrangement that requires your financial backing. Make sure you know what you're doing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It is commendable to want to function as your own person, but it's not very admirable to gratify self-interests at the expense of another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Future plans should be predicated upon actual projections, not wishful thinking. If you miscalculate today, you might have grief tomorrow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might be operating on a different plane than your associates today. Serious misunderstandings could result if differences become too great.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not butt your head against overwhelming opposition today. It could be foolish to rush in if it's a no-win, no-value situation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may be difficult for you to distinguish between apprehension and invitation today. Do not confuse negative thoughts with genuine hunches.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're thinking about buying something rather expensive about which you know little, it might be wise to have your judgment vindicated by an expert.
