HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, June 25, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 25, 1980
Projects or enterprises that require new techniques, methods or products should prove fortunate for you this coming year. Keep your eyes peeled for the unique and different.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Be very careful today that you don't make promises for the sake of expediency. You will be held to your word, and anyone who disappoints will not readily forgive you. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Everyone finds you generous and charitable traits admirable. However, they shouldn't be carried to extremes today. Temper your desires with prudence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23)
Distinguish between positive thinking and merely being opinionated. You're more apt to be the latter than the former.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Certain types could make you feel inferior today, and you might be tempted to exaggerate your accomplishments. Boasting has a hollow ring.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You may find yourself with those who are not quite as fortunate as you. Don't call attention to the differences.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Accomplishments that normally come very easily to you may be a trifle difficult today. Be prepared to exert adequate efforts to achieve your goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Your ideas are apt to be quite clever today, but they could be hard to implement. Timing is all-important. Wait for the opportune moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Think twice today before involving yourself in a friend's tangled affairs. This is especially important if financial problems are concerned.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Things done on your own terms are likely to turn out successfully. Involvements requiring associates may not be so fortunate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
A failure to take your duties or responsibilities seriously could cause complications down the line. Rationalizing leads to regrets.

Taurus (April 20-May 19)
This is not a good day to gamble or speculate financially where you feel you don't have all the facts. Probe further until you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You are a trifle too easily swayed by others in your own good today. Listen to their advice and counsel, but also think for yourself.

WIN AT BRIDGE

is one of those horrible bids that is likely to prove costly. It seldom pays to take aggressive action with 4-3-3 distribution. Eric threw in a monkey wrench with his weak three-club jump. North got into the giveaway spirit by jumping to four hearts with 4-3-3-3 distribution of his own and the defender proceeded to pick his bones down to the bare skeleton. The spade lead was won in dummy and a heart led. Moore hopped right up with his ace and led the king of clubs. Eric failed to overtake so Arthur led a spade which he ruffed. That made three tricks for the defense. Now Robinson took his ace and queen of clubs while Moore discarded the seven and deuce of diamonds. So Eric gave him a diamond ruff for the sixth defensive trick. They weren't through. Arthur led a spade South had to win in his own hand and couldn't get to dummy to finesse against the queen of hearts. Pass 400 on a hand where they could make one of something against good defense. His Weight Loss Lessens Problems

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 51 years old and a few years ago I started having a discomforting feeling in my chest after physical exertion. A heart catheterization showed 100 percent blockage in the circumflex (one branch of the artery to the heart) and 80 percent blockage in the anterior descending (the other branch of the left artery to the heart).

The doctor prescribed 40 mg of Inderal, four Isordil and 15 grains of Bufferin per day plus a half hour of walking to help the arteries in my heart and to lose 50 pounds of weight. I have lost 30. He also put me on a salt-free diet.

I followed his instructions except I take 200 mg of vitamin C and 800 units of vitamin E and two tablets of lecithin granules instead of the Isordil and Bufferin. I thought this would clean out my arteries better and be less addicting. Do you agree?

I have no discomfort in my chest anymore and my only problems are that my arms and legs and hands go to sleep easily. My last cholesterol test showed improvement and my blood pressure is normal.

DEAR READER—No, I don't entirely agree with you. However, your story demonstrates what can be done to improve a person's heart status by good living patterns and proper medicines.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 15-4, Diet to Prevent Heart Attacks and Strokes. Anyone who has a coronary artery disease or high cholesterol would be wise to be on such a diet as part of their program to help alleviate or prevent heart disease. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Residents Fume Over Flooding

Ramblewood Developer Promises Action

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

In one of the heaviest recorded rains in Sanford history during a two-hour period Monday night, about 15 new homes in the Ramblewood section of Sanford had some flooding problems. Damage could reach several thousand dollars.

Ramblewood is located behind Hidden Lake Estates off Lake Mary Boulevard. Homes ranging in value from $50,000 to $70,000 are being built there by developer David Meadows. City Manager Warren Knowles said today that a combination of incomplete construction on drainage in the development was compounded by heavy rain, recorded at 2.13 to 4.8 inches in various parts of the city, to create the flooding.

Knowles said city codes had not been violated by the developer nor is the Ramblewood section located on flood-prone property. He said he and City Engineer Mack LaZerby are scheduled to meet with Meadows Thursday morning. Meadows will be "strongly urged" to complete construction on the drainage immediately, Knowles said.

Meanwhile, the developer said today he is prepared to correct all of the problems and indeed has had his men working on many of them since soon after the rain stopped.

The city manager also pointed to the berm (a raised mound of sodded earth) required by the state Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) as a major reason for backyard flooding. "This is a regulation of the state to force water to percolate into the ground. If I were the lot owner or developer, I would provide a solution quickly by creating a controlled opening through the berm (use of a pipe in the low point) to assure some drainage and not the complete stoppage required by DER," Knowles said.

Knowles said he and city staff found contributors to the problem as follows:

- The drainage swale (grassed depression in the earth for drainage flow at 113 Whispering Pines which was not completed and sodded, the sand from the swale completely filled the catch basin and plugged the storm sewer pipe, causing the water to flow across Wildwood Drive to the south and towards the lake.
- The developer had filled the swale at 121 Wildwood Drive to provide access to build on this lot. The fill in the swale blocked flow from the upland slope to the west and created an overflow situation.
- Three homes — 115, 123 and 127 Wildwood Drive — had problems within their lots, homes, garages and backyards

Gallagher says he paid an extra $4,000 for the "premium lot." He is standing on the lot to show flooding behind his home.

because of this overflow. No swales were apparent within these lots to divert ground flow away from and around these homes. These are particular cases since they are lower than the street on the downward side of a slope. Construction is allowed under such slopes but VA and FHA approvals require the diversion swales within the lots. The developer is reported to be installing one at 127 Wildwood Drive now.

—115 Wildwood Drive has a compounded problem on being on a downward slope without diversion swales but also with a sunken room — a section below average slab level.

One of the Ramblewood residents whose home was affected, Bart Gallagher, 127 Wildwood Drive, said he is so disgusted he is now referring to his yard as "Lake Meadows."

"Currently there's two feet of water standing on his lot covering an area 100 feet across and 50 feet wide.

"The standing water was caused, he said, by installation of berm without his permission after he purchased the property. The berm trapped the water, he said.

"Ironically, Gallagher said he paid $4,000 extra for what was represented as a "premium lot" in the Ramblewood area. His home cost $46,500.

"I believe the property was misrepresented to me," Gallagher said. "I would never have bought here if I had known what was going to happen."

Gallagher said the situation is bad now, "and the rains haven't even started yet." He said the standing water is a potential mosquito breeding ground.

Although angry, Gallagher, 51, said he would not say what action he plans to take.

"You can probably guess," he said.

Meadows, the developer of Ramblewood subdivision said today it is his policy to correct any problems reported to him within 48 hours, "obviously, depending upon the nature of the problem and how quickly it has to be handled."

Meadows said soon after the rain stopped Monday he had his men going through the subdivision correcting minor problems. He said he had nine problems with swales and seven have already been corrected. To his knowledge there are only two residences working on them, he said.

He cited as one example a residence where the entire living room was flooded and the carpeting severely damaged. He said his men have already removed the carpeting and it will be replaced and his men have corrected what caused the problem

No One To Get My Goats, Pledges Brantley Woman

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

There are a lot of demands for "rights" these days, but a new one may have surfaced Tuesday night.

"Every animal should have the right to become a pet," charged Ingeborg Morris, after her appeal to keep a flock of small goats on residential property on Oak Drive in the West Lake Brantley area was denied unanimously by the Seminole County Commission.

Morris is responding to criticism that her goats are farm animals and belong on agricultural property not in a residential neighborhood.

The lively public hearing on the matter began when county Land Development Manager Herb Harden mistakenly called Mrs. Morris' appeal one "to keep pets."

"Did you say to keep pets?" Commission Chairman Bill Kirchhoff asked.

"I said to keep goats," Harden replied.

"You said pets," about 14 members of the audience chimed in.

"They're pet goats," Mrs. Morris exclaimed, but that didn't settle the matter.

Neighbors of Mrs. Morris think goats are livestock, expressly forbidden in areas zoned residential, according to Harden.

Residents of the area expressed concern for their property values, which they said would decline with goats roaming in the neighborhood.

John Jones, president of the West Lake Brantley Civic Association, presented a statement from a real estate agent and broker which read:

"With even one goat in sight or smell, I would have to lower my valuation of property in the neighborhood."

Residents also expressed concern over the possible health hazard from the goats, and the precedent that would be set by setting aside the zoning regulations.

"A collection of goats is not consistent with the regular pattern of things you expect in a residential neighborhood," one neighbor said.

Neighbor Ray Lewis said one or two goats would have been overlooked, but not a whole flock of them, the total number which varies.

Lewis is an outspoken senior citizen who sports a white goat. He said Mrs. Morris has called him an "old goat."

"I did not call Mr. Lewis an 'old goat,'" Mrs. Morris said. "I just said she hates cue competition."

So it went. Two neighbors spoke in favor of the goats.

"I live right on top of them and they don't bother me," said one.

Another said that anyone who can't enjoy animals won't make it into the kingdom of heaven.

Commission Chairman Bill Kirchhoff asked for comments from those in favor of the goats, then from those against the goats, then from those in favor.

Commissioner Richard Williams, in whose district the goats reside, recommended denying the appeal to maintain the character of the neighborhood. The commissioners all agreed and the next agenda item was brought up.

But then Mrs. Morris asked why she hadn't had an opportunity to speak.

Kirchhoff explained that he had painstakingly asked for comment from both sides, but she said she didn't understand, due to her difficulty with the English language, when she was to speak.

In a rare break with procedure, the commission agreed to hear Mrs. Morris after their decision.

She announced that property values had not declined because of her goats, and that they do not stink.

"I have something brand new that nobody's got — an odorless goat," she said, mentioning she also keeps cats and dogs.

The goats and cats and dogs are all clean, she said, inviting the commissioners to come and investigate for themselves.

She announced that property values had not declined because of her goats, and that they do not stink.

"I have something brand new that nobody's got — an odorless goat," she said, mentioning she also keeps cats and dogs.

The animals all have their own air-conditioned rooms, she said.

"I don't keep them clean the rules should be against me, not my pets."

"I will not get rid of my goats," she further insisted. "I still will appeal. I will go to court. I will go to any court in this country."

"You can't say what's a pet and what's not a pet. Any animal has the right to become a pet. It will take more than this to make me get rid of my pets."

Mrs. Morris then elevated her goats beyond pethood.

"I love them like my kids," she said. "Maybe they're goats to you, but they are kids to me."

Ingeborg Morris plays with her "pet" goats on their trampoline and slide this morning. The slide is also used as a ramp for the goats to mount the trampoline.

Sanford Commission Reviewing Budget

The Sanford City Commission will begin its second day of reviewing the proposed $4.02 million general operation budget for fiscal 1980 to 1981 with a 4 p.m. workshop at city hall today.

Tuesday night the commissioners reviewed budget proposals for various divisions including: city commission, $24,141, down from the current year's $25,197; city manager's office, $29,235, up from $26,524; general, $27,159, down from $28,532; finance, $181,450, up from $179,142; civil service, $12,898, down from $13,448; assistant city manager-personnel, $50,000, up from $40,871; equal employment officer, $18,841, up from $17,921; public employees relations commission, $2,725, up from $0,000; engineering, $24,175, up from $22,635; building codes and zoning, $108,510, up from $99,443; public health, $6,719, down from $6,282; police administration, $259,094, down from $209,680; police, uniform division, $441,534, up from $788,070; and police investigation, $470,602, up from $156,020.

Increases in the various departments were attributed to anticipated raises in the costs of gasoline to the city, up to $1.75 per gallon for gasoline; increases in postage from 15 cents to 20 cents per letter; inflation in cost of building materials and anticipated increase in fuel adjustment charges for electricity.

No pay increases were included. City Manager Warren Knowles has recommended the commission consider an across the board increase to all employees of 9.5 percent for cost of living. He has also recommended the commissioners consider bringing employees salaries into line with those of other municipalities.

The city commission will begin its review today with the proposed fire department budget. — DONNA ESTES

Graham Calls New Session

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham called a new conference today to announce he is vetoing the banking bill and convening a one-day special session for Monday.

Graham delayed the official announcement until 11:45 a.m., but aides said he will reject the new banking code because it prohibits out-of-state banks from opening loan offices in Florida, and call lawmakers back to town in an effort to avoid de-regulation of the banking industry.

The special session call is expected to also include correction of a problem that will keep the amendment raising the homestead exemption on city and county property taxes off the Sept. 9 primary ballot.

The proposal, boosting the $5,000 exemption to $25,000 over the next three years, was not submitted to the secretary of state's office by lawmakers 90 days before the election as required by law.

Legislative leaders are considering passage of a bill putting the proposal on the October runoff ballot.

Graham has argued the ban on so-called "clean production offices" by out-of-state banks is anti-competitive and will give Florida a bad reputation nationally detrimental to its economic development efforts.

The current banking statutes expire July 1 under the 1975 Sunset Act. If there is no new code, the 366 state-chartered banks would be largely deregulated.

Comptroller Gerald Lewis says he probably would retain minimal jurisdiction over the facilities, but admits that would be subject to challenge in the courts.

House Gives Carter Draft Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, by a 234-156 vote, today gave final approval to legislation that will allow the administration to begin draft registration of men this summer.

The bill, which provides money for the registration process, now goes to the White House, where President Carter is certain to sign it into law.

The Senate approved the legislation by a vote of 85-14 on June 12 after reducing funds for the registration system by $10,000. The House vote today concurred in that reduction.

Registration: A Sensible Notion

Most Americans accept the sensible notion that preparation for war is the best deterrent.

What the Senate vote means is that, barring some unforeseen snag, millions of young men will begin registering next month for potential military service.

The presidential commission that recommended an end to the draft a decade or so ago did so on the condition that registration be continued.

The presidential commission that recommended an end to the draft a decade or so ago did so on the condition that registration be continued.

But the world, and congressional perceptions, have changed dramatically since then. In Africa, the Middle East, Southwest Asia, Indochina and the Caribbean, the Soviet Union and its proxies are on the march.

Americans simply cannot afford to ignore the possibility that their vital, indispensable interests may, ultimately, have to be defended by force of arms.

Conversely, timely mobilization — or merely the perceived ability to mobilize quickly in a crisis — could conceivably avert actual hostilities.

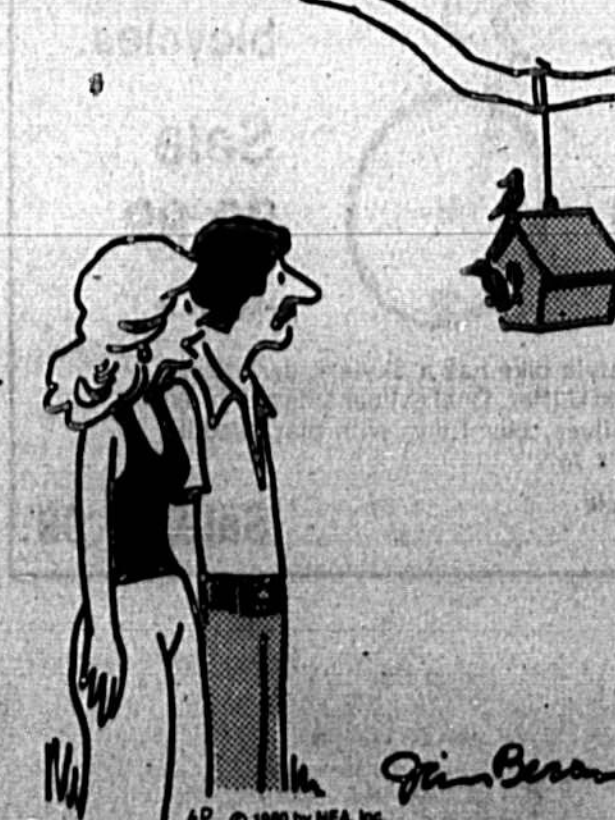

What we know for certain is that weakness and appeasement, rather than preparedness, pose the greatest threat to peace.

But however persuasive the case for registration, Congress and the nation must also understand that it will not begin to solve the critical personnel problems that plague U.S. forces.

Nothing in the legislation approved by the Senate will stem the hemorrhage of skilled enlisted men and women and young officers driven from the service of their country by grossly inadequate pay and benefits.

Unless these problems are resolved — and the Carter administration shows little inclination to do so — even the most rapid mobilization could be too late to sustain military forces crippled by a lack of leadership and crucial skills.

A Lake Survives Despite Help

ZEPHYR COVE, Nev. — (NEA) — President Carter, the governors of California and Nevada, local officials in five counties and the Lahontan Water Quality Board share a common cause: They all want to "Save Lake Tahoe."

Unfortunately, those well-intentioned yet ineffective rescue efforts too often have contributed to the problem rather than the solution.

Indeed, the modern miracle of Lake Tahoe is that it has survived not only the development schemes of casino operators and real-estate entrepreneurs but also the meddling of scores of federal, state and local politicians.

Virtually everyone agrees, in theory, on the importance of preserving the spectacular beauty of North America's largest alpine lake, a sparkling body of water more than 20 miles long and 10 miles wide.

But much of that beauty already has been sullied, especially on the lake's south shore where quickie-marriage wedding chapels, taco stands, hamburger parlors, service stations and run-down motels and motels water beds and Jacuzzi line the perimeter road for mile after mile.

Complicating that difficult task is the fact that the California-Nevada state line runs right through the lake. In addition, no fewer than five counties share jurisdiction over the Lake Tahoe Basin — Placer and El Dorado in California and Washoe, Carson and Douglas in Nevada.

There's also the Tahoe Basin Council of Governments, the Lahontan Water Quality Board, the South Tahoe Public Utility District and a host of other bureaucratic structures.

Back in 1968, California and Nevada officials sought to surmount those difficulties by establishing a joint Tahoe Regional Planning Agency with representatives from state and local governments.

But instead of restricting potentially destructive growth, TRPA members bowed to local political pressures and approved dozens of development schemes that the agency's own technical staff had vigorously opposed.

Disturbed by that trend, California Gov. Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown, Jr. moved soon after taking office to establish a California TRPA that brought development on the California side of the lake to a screeching halt. An official of the bi-state TRPA promptly denounced the staff of the California TRPA as "Satan's helpers."

In 1971, Brown and Mike O'Callaghan, then Nevada's governor, agreed on a proposal to strengthen and revive the bi-state agency — but before that plan could be implemented, O'Callaghan was succeeded by Robert List, Nevada's current governor, who failed to press for the necessary legislative approval.

Diplomats' Feuding In Israel A Disgrace

WASHINGTON — One reason the Carter administration keeps contradicting itself on the explosive Palestine question may be the bitter feud that has divided our diplomats in Israel.

Confidential State Department cables that at a shocking disparity in views between officials in the U.S. Embassy at Tel Aviv and those attached to the consulate at Jerusalem. The cables detail a series of embarrassing incidents that befell a visiting congressional delegation in Jerusalem.

At an evening dinner, the seemingly drunken wife of a consular official accused a California congressman and his wife and told the legislator in lurid tones that she had "heard all about you," adding: "You're a B. S. artist." The congressman was merely amused at the insulting remark; others at the party were aghast.

But that wasn't the worst of the party. Previously, the visiting congressman was invited to the home of Consul General

When Did Apes Walk?

LONDON (UPI) — When did human characteristics first emerge among man's predecessors?

Anthropologist Mary Leakey believes the earliest hominid learned to walk erect between 3 and 4 million years ago. She discovered a trail of footprints in Tanzania which is believed to date from that time.

Leakey described her find at a meeting here, sponsored by the Royal Society and the British Academy, to discuss the timing of the changes that led to humans and to speculate on the pressures that forced their development.

Russel Tuttle of the University of Chicago said the earliest known hominid remains, from afar in Ethiopia, show that 3 to 3 1/2 million years ago there already was evidence among the ape-like characteristics that the hands could have made tools — a shift in the human direction.

The origin of verbal communications was another subject of discussion. Glyn Isaac of the University of California at Berkeley, who reported on the meeting for the scientific magazine, Nature, differed from the expressed view that speech had become part of the cultural evolution some 2 million years ago.

Isaac said that in his opinion the early

Some First And Second Class Issues

I do not myself regard Senator Howard Baker as the indispensable man for the vice presidency, but there was something disturbing about the opposition that arose in his possible nomination.

Baker, it was said, had sold out on the Panama Canal and had voted wrong on abortion, i. e., had voted in favor of federal funding.

It seems to me that we ought to have the intellectual discipline to distinguish between First and Second Class issues.

First Class issues are those involving the survival of the American republic, and they are military and economic — in the broad sense of the word, strategic.

Second class issues possess varying degrees of importance, but they are not make-or-buy issues as far as the survival of the country is concerned.

Among Second Class issues I would include abortion, gun control, ERA, housing, affirmative action. I myself have firm positions on most of those, but where a presidential candidate stands on national defense and on the economy seems to me much more important.

In today's global environment, a failure on defense or a major economic failure could be absolutely decisive — and, of course, the economy and national defense are related matters.

On national defense, I would like to hear not just that a candidate would spend more, but, at least in outline, how he would spend it. What strategic needs strike him as vital, and why? Among the candidates, only Reagan has been specific on this point: a new manned bomber, the cruise missile, the neutron bomb, naval power.

On the economy, the imperatives include tax cuts — were and how can be debated — a location, and a presumption in favor of the free market.

Those seem to me the First Class issues. On the others: As long as the streets of our big cities are not safe, you just aren't going to get effective gun control. The widow alone in her apartment isn't going to give up her "Saturday night special." Her life could depend on it.

I favor an abortion amendment returning the issue to the jurisdiction of the states. No consensus exists on a total prohibition and there will be no such total-prohibition amendment.

I oppose housing and racial quotas. On ERA, I've largely lost interest. It would have little practical effect. It seems to be of great symbolic importance to large numbers of women, many of them intelligent. I would not make a major issue out of opposing it.

But what we really should be focusing on in 1980 are those First Class issues. If we flunk on those, there will be no discussion about all the rest.

Man Who Let 6 Refugees Drown Gets 180 Years

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Jeffrey Hastings, who threw a Haitian refugee and her five children out of his boat and watched them drown when he thought police were closing in on them, has been sentenced to 180 years in prison.

Circuit Judge Robert Hewitt sentenced Hastings, 30, of Hypoluxo, Fla., to 30 years on each of six counts of manslaughter in the deaths of Eliane Lorflis and her five children last August.

Hewitt ruled Tuesday that Hastings, previously convicted of manslaughter in the death of his wife, was a habitual offender and thus doubled the normal 90-year maximum sentence on the six convictions.

Hewitt delayed sentencing Hastings' deekhand and co-defendant, 18-year-old Bahamian James Knowles. Knowles was also convicted of six counts of manslaughter.

Last Week For Crime Panel

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Crimes Compensation Commission, plagued by hickering among its members initially and financial problems later, will be abolished in a week.

Gov. Bob Graham signed into law Tuesday a bill SB 89 abolishing the three-year-old commission and transferring its duties and staff to the Department of Labor's Division of Worker's Compensation.

The three commissioners — chairman C. Bette Wimlish and Bill Bevis and Morris Bushin — will be out of work July 1.

Bevis and Bushin said Tuesday they would like to get other jobs in the Graham administration and have been promised that efforts will be made to find something for them.

Graham lobbyist Ronnie Book said he knows of no specific promise by the governor to find jobs for the commissioners, but added, "whenever you abolish any bureau or commission, there is an effort to find the individuals who are losing their jobs other employment with state government."

Childers Shakes Up Staff

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — W.D. Childers, who becomes Senate president this fall, has already begun a high-level staff shake-up.

Although several key Senate employees are being shifted to other jobs, Senate chief of staff Howard Walton said Tuesday no politics are involved. He said the new assignments are either promotions or were consented to by the concerned individuals.

John Andrew Smith, special assistant to Walton for the last year, will be the new ways and means staff director. Hubert Helton, staff director of the powerful ways and means committee, will become special advisor on financial affairs to Childers.

Shields' Trial Delayed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The federal court conspiracy-extortion trial of former Natural Resources Director Harmon Shields and Tallahassee real estate agent Jack Quick has been postponed until July 28.

Judge William Stafford granted the four week delay because of scheduling conflicts with other trials. He set July 22 as the date to dispose of pre-trial motions to suppress vital evidence and to dismiss the charges entirely.

Gen. Custer Still Remains A Mystery

VERMILLION, S.D. (UPI) — It was 104 years ago today that Gen. George Custer led more than 200 soldiers to their death at the Battle of the Little Big Horn, but one historian says the reason he did it still is a mystery.

"Probably no one will ever really know what happened at the Little Big Horn," said Joseph Cash, who heads the University of South Dakota's College of Arts and Sciences.

Military analysts have said Custer did not make a proper reconnaissance, ignored his scouts' warnings and divided his troops even though the soldiers were outnumbered 10 to 1 by Chief Gall's forces, Cash said.

The battle was criticized by President Ulysses Grant, and "an angered Congress filibustered a U.S. Army pay bill long enough so that the entire Army was not paid for a year," Cash said.

The battle triggered debate that spanned a century, with arguments over whether Custer acted like a hero or a fool and publicity hunt.

Judge Orders Deportation Of 18 Cuban Criminals

MIAMI (UPI) — A federal immigration judge has ordered the deportation of 18 Cubans who came to the United States on the refugee sealift, the Miami Herald reports in today's edition.

The United States has informed Cuba that it should take back the 18 — who admitted such crimes as rape and murder — but Cuba has not responded, the paper reports.

The 18 are among about 1,000 of the sealift refugees suspected of committing serious crimes in Cuba. About 300 of those are being held at the Federal Corrections Institute in Talladega, Ala., the rest in other prisons.

Miami Feeding 821 Refugees

MIAMI (UPI) — The city government says it has found it is more practical to dish out black beans and rice to 821 Cuban refugees staying in the Orange Bowl than to give them food stamps.

Assistant City Manager Cesar Odio said if those in the Orange Bowl numbered only 200 or 400, it would be more prudent. But he said it would be cheaper to bring the food to the stadium than transport the refugees to restaurants in the city's Little Havana section.

He said they would be fed largely Cuban fare — mostly black beans, rice and chicken. "I didn't want to do it, and I tried to keep from doing it, but we're going to start feeding them," Odio said. "This was a crisis, and we had to do it, purely a matter of logistics."

He also said officials believed it was too easy for the refugees to leave after receiving their food stamps, which would result in their sleeping in the streets as they did before the Orange Bowl was put back into use.

He said those who desire food stamps will be taken to a location in downtown Miami to pick them up.

The refugees at the Orange Bowl had either been abandoned by their sponsors or never had any. Without any place to go, the Cubans, sometimes whole families, piled the streets of Miami looking for places to sleep and scrounging for food.

When the problem became apparent to officials, they reopened the Orange Bowl, which had been closed as a processing center earlier in the month.

They are only a small fraction, however, of the 114,666 refugees who have arrived in the Cuba-to-Miami sealift which began April 21.

dashing young man with long golden locks reporters portrayed.

"At almost 40, he was balding and wore his hair shortly cropped," Cash said. "He had been court-martialed once for another offense and had barely talked his way into the command of the 7th Regiment."

Custer's rapport with reporters began the legend and kept it alive, he said.

"Custer played to the press," Cash said. "He took a newspaper reporter with him wherever he went. He was flashy, and the press loved it."

The conflict, which culminated in the battle in southeast Montana, began in the South Dakota's Black Hills when the federal government was unable to stop gold prospectors from trespassing on Indian hunting lands, he said.

A three-column campaign was to converge at Little Big Horn, but Custer moved ahead of schedule, Cash said.

Carter Aides Drop More Tax-Cut Hints

Speculation is increasing almost daily that the administration is announcing a tax cut, and little by little the government is dropping hints about when it will occur and how big the reduction will be.

Meanwhile, the government Tuesday announced consumer prices rose a moderate 0.9 percent in May for a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 10.9 percent.

Marxist Professor Gives Up With Victory In Sight

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Dr. Grant Cooper, the embattled Marxist history professor at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock who drew national attention in his seven-year fight to win his job back, stopped short with victory apparently in sight.

even for no reasons whatsoever.

Cooper, ruled Federal Judge Gerald W. Heaney, had been dismissed in violation of his constitutional rights of freedom of speech and freedom of association and ordered UALR to reinstate him as an assistant professor with back salary.

He indicated his love affair with communism had cooled, too, if that could be of interest to anyone.

Cooper, meanwhile, was out of a job, the university maintaining it had dismissed him for academic shortcomings, and to challenge this Cooper had brought the federal court suit, raising the question of his constitutional rights.

And in Houston much of what had happened seemed like a long time ago to Cooper. "You put it out of your mind," he said.

Cooper, 37, would be paid $55,000 in a cash settlement and he in turn agreed to drop his attempt to return to the UALR faculty.

Kiwanis Kayos Miller For 12-2 Win

William Wynn Wilts K of C With 2-Hitter

It was the game that some people began wondering, if it would ever be played.

Rain had been a constant pain in the neck to the Sanford Junior League. It had been postponed several times due to early evening downpours.

Tuesday however, the rain came early and Kiwanis pitcher William Wynn turned out to be the pain in the neck for the Knights of Columbus.

The stylish left-hander handcuffed K of C on two hits while striking out seven in four innings as Kiwanis claimed the Sanford Junior League championship with a 12-2. The contest was a single game playoff for the second half championship.

Kiwanis, who won the first half title with an unbeaten record, finished the season 19-1. The Knights of Columbus finished at 15-6.

Not only was Wynn's pitching painful to the K of C bats, but Wynn's second inning line drive off Knights' pitcher Freddie Miller felled the young hurler and opened the gates for a seven-run inning.

Miller had to be carried from the mound and was the losing pitcher.

Allan Coleman stroked a pair of doubles to pace the winners on offense. Alfred Bookhard, Bruce Franklin, Wynn, Bobby Hartman and Charles Smith all had singles for Kiwanis.

Both Knights of Columbus hits came in the top of the fourth inning. Wardell Frederick opened the inning with a single and scored the second run for the losers on a two-out single by William Carr.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS: W. Frederick 1-0, K. Coleman 2-2, C. Smith 1-1, B. Hartman 1-1, A. Coleman 1-1, Wynn 1-0, Miller 1-0. KIWANIS: Wynn 2-2, Miller 1-1, Bookhard 1-1, Franklin 1-1, Coleman 1-1, Carr 1-1, Miller 1-0, Wynn 1-0, Miller 1-0.

Kiwanis left-hander William Wynn stifled Knights of Columbus on two hits to give the Kiwanis a 12-2 victory. Wynn struck out seven in the four inning game.

Boston's Tony Perez: Every Manager's Dream

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first time Sparky Anderson ran into Tony Perez this year, he greeted him the same way he always does.

"Hi, ya, Ugly," he said, laughing. Then he squeezed his former first baseman in a warm, affectionate bear hug.

Sparky Anderson, who manages the Detroit Tigers now and had Perez for seven years when he was with Cincinnati, is like the late Casey Stengel in one respect. Of all the players who ever worked for him, he's the reluctant to pick out any one in particular who was his prime favorite.

From the way he talks about him, though, the suspicion exists that player was Tony Perez, the man now carrying the Boston Red Sox.

"Tony is a manager's dream," says Anderson. "He'll do anything he can to help the ball club, on the field, in the clubhouse, on the plane or wherever else you could possibly think of. I don't mind admitting it all — I love the guy."

Check with fellows like Pete Rose and Johnny Bench sometime, or with someone like Don Zimmer, Perez' present manager. Listen to what they have to say about him. In a word, liberally populated by so many other who jump on the slightest reason to grumble, growl or gripe, the Red Sox' 33-year-old Cuban first baseman emerges as Senor Sunshine Up. He doesn't have trouble with anyone.

"I've never had a problem with a writer or with any of my teammates since I've been playing ball," he says. "I just like to have fun and get along with everyone."

"I'm happy here with the Red Sox and I don't have any complaints about the way I was treated by the Sox. Perez says, "I don't see that much difference. A ballplayer is a ballplayer no matter where he plays. I'm happy as long as I can play. When I came to the Red Sox, Zimmer told me I would play first base and be the designated hitter sometimes. He promised me more than 550 times at bat. That's what I liked. Last year, I had only four hundred and something (489) with Montreal and that was the first time I had less than 500 times at bat in 13 years. One of the reasons I switched leagues was because with the designated hitter in this one, I'll get to play more."

"Sometimes I get tired," he admits. "Who doesn't, no matter what age he is? I don't know how many years I can play. I signed for three years with the Red Sox and I know for sure I can play three years, maybe more. By then, I'll be 40. Then who knows? I have to wait and see."

A seven-time All-Star with more than 2,200 hits and 1,370 runs batted in to his credit, Perez constitutes no threat to Willie Wilson's stolen base title.

Perez, who goes around 210 now, isn't paid to steal bases by the Red Sox. What they're looking for essentially is from him in his bat and he thinks he can supply it for them.

Wet Wimbledon Gurgles Onward

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — It's rained so much for the first two days of the 94th Wimbledon tennis championships the tournament is only halfway through the first round and the electronic service fault detector is threatening to gurgel instead of sleep.

Only 18 of Tuesday's 72 scheduled matches were completed and the organizers face a massive backlog.

In between showers, Martina Navratilova cleared the first hurdle in her chase for three successive titles by crushing South African Ilana Kles, 6-0, 6-3, and second-seeded Tracy Austin outgamed fellow Californian teenager Alycia Molton, 6-1, 6-2.

On the men's front, 13th-seeded Poland's Wojtek Fibak, who had saved three match points before rain halted play Monday, finally made it into the second round, completing a narrow 5-7, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 10-8 victory over Australian Mark Edmondson 30 hours after the match started.

The forecast for pure rain today holds true, 160-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina and India's Vijay Amritraj may be reluctant to pick out any one in particular who was his prime favorite.

There were no other problems for the two other men's seeds who beat the rain Tuesday. Fifth-seeded Roger Tanner, runner-up to four-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg in last year's final, overpowered Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 6-0, 6-4, and No. 7 Peter Fleming came to a 7-5, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Zimbabwe's Colin Dowdeswell.

Weather permitting today, Wimbledon will feature its youngest seed ever when 15-year-old Andrea Jaeger, ranked 14th, meets Britain's Anthea Cooper.

The trauma of playing Wimbledon at such a young age, is something Austin recalled Tuesday, looking back as a veteran at 17.

'Florida Four' Basketball Set

LARGO, Fla. (UPI) — The stage has been set for an annual basketball tournament involving Florida's top four colleges — Florida, Florida State, Jacksonville and the University of South Florida.

The coaches at the four universities endorsed the Florida Four Tournament during a meeting Tuesday.

Dick Bowers of USF was the only athletic director at the meeting, but he endorsed the proposal and volunteered to host an early meeting of the other assistant directors.

Bonds' Stock Rises, Homer Nips Pirates

By United Press International

Bobby Bonds has been having one of those years filled with injuries which have robbed the talented outfielder of his skills and made him a target of the St. Louis fans' wrath.

Bul, there is some hope that the second half of the season might not be as dismal. Bonds snapped an 0-for-28 slump Tuesday night with a home run and a double to lead the Cardinals to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bonds, hitting just .191 entering the game, led off the first inning off Rick Rhoden, 0-1, with a double and scored on a single by Gary Templeton to trigger a two-run inning. Bonds, whose last hit came on June 7, then crashed his third homer leading off the third to snap a 2-2 tie and give Bob Sykes his second victory in eight decisions.

Bonds also threw out a runner trying to advance to third on a fly to right in the fourth inning in sending the Pirates to their eighth loss in their last nine games.

"I've never experienced a year like this in my 16 years in the majors and I hope I don't again," said Bonds. "I wouldn't wish a year like this on my worst enemy."

Warren Cromartie singled to score Ron LeFlore from second base with two out in the 10th inning and give the Expos their victory.

Dave Concepcion hit a sixinning homer to snap a 2-2 tie and Charlie Leibrandt tossed a three-hitter in pacing the Reds.

Paulino Rodriguez hit a two-run homer with two out in the eighth inning, enabling the Padres to beat the Giants.

Cesar Cedeno, who went 3-for-3, doubled in the 12th inning and scored the game-winning run on a throwing error by relief pitcher Joe Beckwith.

In American League play, the Cleveland Indians found out their worst enemy turned out to be an apathetic left-handed slugger.

He has a tendency toward indifference, but when Richie Hebner decides to play baseball, there are few hitters who can do the damage he can.

The Cleveland Indians found that out the hard way Tuesday night. Hebner drove in six runs and triggered a five-run seventh with a three-run double and rookie reliever Roger Weaver won his first major-league game to spark the Detroit Tigers to their sixth straight victory, a 9-4 decision over the Indians.

Hebner, who boosted his season RBI total to 47 with only 49 hits, drove in the first Detroit run in the first inning when he lounded into a forecourt. He knocked in three more with his double and knocked in another pair with a bases-loaded single in the eighth.

"This is the second time I've had six RBI in one game," said Hebner, who also turned the trick against the Yankees just over a month ago. "I'm in a good position, hitting fourth, to drive in runs, especially when you have Alan Trammell and Steve Kemp, both hitting over .300, batting behind you."

Ortles I. Blue Jays 0

Al Bumbry and Rich Dauer cracked back-to-back doubles in the first inning and Scott McGregor tossed a four-hitter to lead Baltimore.

Rangers 5, Mariners 4

Al Oliver singled off reliever Shane Rawley to score Mickey Rivers from second with two out in the ninth inning, giving Texas the victory.

Yankees 10, Red Sox 5

Rick Cerone and Reggie Jackson belted three-run homers and Bob Watson and Garri Nettles added solo shots to power the Yankees.

Twins 2-4, Royals 1-4

Amos Otis cracked a double and two singles and drove in a pair of runs to lift Kansas City in the nightcap. In first game, Roy Smalley singled in Hosken Powell from third with two out in the bottom of the ninth for the Twins' win.

Brewers 3, A's 3

Mark Brodzkiard drove in two runs with a homer and a double and Sixto Lezcano homered to pace Milwaukee.

White Sox 2, Angels 1

Rookie Britt Burns and Ed Farmer combined on a five-hitter and Thad Bosley singled home the deciding run in the fourth inning, to snap Chicago's six-game losing streak.

Miss Donna Setzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dale Setzer of Orlando, became the bride of Mr. Russell "Rusty" Reiker of Casselberry Saturday, June 14, 1980 at 7 p.m., at the Community United Methodist Church of Casselberry, with the Rev. Arthur Padgett officiating.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Blynn H. Reiker of Casselberry.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a traditional gown of white chiffon trimmed with lace and accented with pearls and with a long train of lace. Her full-length veil was trimmed with matching lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses.

Her attendants were floor length capped gowns of yellow silk and crepe de chine and carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies. The flower girls were matching yellow gowns and carried baskets of flower petals.

Flower girls were nieces of the bridegroom, Christina and Alison Planck and the ring bearer was his nephew, Michael Dowell.

The best man was Donald Bledsoe and ushers included David Cooper, Kent Planck, Mark Stockwell and David Setzer, brother of the bride.

Fake Wake Is Sick Trick To Play On Dear Old Dad

DEAR ABBY: By the time you receive this the party will be over, but I would like your opinion.

My father-in-law will turn 50 on Sunday, and he's been slightly upset about attaining this milestone. In order to help him through this traumatic birthday, his daughter decided to give him a surprise birthday party. The theme of this party is a "wake" for her father's youth. She is going to have a regular-size coffin on display and have the place decorated like a funeral parlor.

My sister-in-law keeps assuring me and my husband that several of their friends have had similar parties with this theme and they were all great parties—my husband and I find the whole idea very morbid. Are we being stupid and narrow-minded?

I'd be interested in your opinion.

REPULSED IN COLORADO SPRINGS

DEAR HASSLE: I think it will be unfair to YOU if your husband insists on taking them. Furthermore, he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minutes, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are at odds over a family problem. A friend asked if he could spend the weekend at our home, as he was coming to town on business. I told him I was sorry but we would not be in town. Then he asked if he could stay at our home anyway. I said, "No, I would be uneasy having anyone in our home during our absence, but perhaps you can make it another weekend when we can all be together."

My husband agreed with my response, as this man wasn't a very close friend. Where we disagreed was with regard to relatives and close friends.

My mother-in-law is coming to town, and she has asked for access to our home in our absence. My husband says, "That's fine," but Abby, I am very uncomfortable with the idea. I we both don't get along with her as it is, and I think it was presumptuous for her to ask.

I am a very private person, and I don't want anyone in my home when I am not there. If she (or anyone else) is too cheap to spend the night at a motel, I will pay for it.

DEAR ABBY: I feel this way about my own family and close friends as well. What is your opinion?
NO ABSENTEE HOSTESS
DEAR NO: Some people cheerfully allow friends and relatives to use their homes in their absence, but since you aren't one of them, it's your right to feel as you do. So stick to your guns and don't apologize or feel guilty.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FR. IN LONGVIEW, TEXAS: Secondhand smoke irritates me, and so does the smoker, but I find that the more I like the smoker, the less the smoke irritates me.

Superstar Authors

Literary Elite Find Success In Hollywood

By VERNON SCOTT
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There are a handful of novelists in the country who, like movie stars, are instant box office. Their books are guaranteed best-sellers before they are published.

Whether it is simply a freak geographical happenstance or a weird symbiosis of the creative arts, most such authors live within a paperback throw of Hollywood.

These superstar authors include Sidney Sheldon, Irving Wallace, Harold Robbins, Judith Krantz and Joseph Wambaugh, Southern Californians all.

Maybe it's the sunshine, swimming pools and proximity to all movie-TV glamor that inspires this colony of novelists, all of whom know one another and who socialize at various Hollywood parties. They also belong to an exclusive literary club — multimillionaire writers.

Were this collection of literary lights residents of, say, Darien, Conn., they would doubtless be acclaimed a congress of genius by eastern publishers and critics and lionized by New York social arbiters.

As it is, the west coast contingent is largely dismissed as commercial hacks, given short shrift by the high brow establishment.

This is not to say that all superstar authors live in Southern California. Perhaps less prolific but still superstar are Arthur Hailey, Robert Ludlum and James Michener who are east coasters.

Sheldon, whose newest book, "Rage of Angels," is already off and running as a best-seller with a record-setting 350,000-copy first hard-cover printing, is amused by the denigrating attitude of New York's literary critics.

"When I wrote my first novel, 'The Naked Face,' it was almost universally hailed by the critics," he said, grinning. "The New York Times said it was the best first mystery novel of the year."

"But it didn't sell very well. After I wrote 'The Other Side of Midnight' — my first bestseller, the Times never again mentioned me favorably.

"I think novelists who earn incredible amounts of money, no matter the literary quality of their work, create instant antipathy in the hearts of a large segment of the establishment. It's ridiculous."

Sheldon, a tall, imposing man with silver hair and an outgoing disposition, began writing novels after his 50th birthday. He had established himself as a Broadway playwright, movie screen writer and television producer.

Because he was already financially independent, Sheldon's decision to become a novelist was not an economic decision. At that time there were few if any instant millionaires among fiction writers.

"It was just before the Hollywood-type star system came to books," Sheldon said.

"Now super authors can earn $5-million per book, which was unheard of ten years ago. Even so, the average published novelist in 1979 earned only $3,500.

"The same thing is true for books that applied to the New York theater when an aspiring young playwright asked George S. Kaufman if he could make a living in the theater.

"Kaufman said, 'You can't make a living in the theater. You're either a millionaire or you starve to death.'"

"There are 40,000 books — fiction and non-fiction — published in this country every year. The odds are even greater than with motion pictures.

"A book is either an instant smash or a dog. If a book doesn't sell right away, the unsold copies in book stores are remembered — either sold for 20 cents or returned to the publisher.

"The average shelf life of a book these days is three weeks. If it isn't selling, it's dead."

GIVING

Jefferson Winners Help Others First

United Press International
 The five winners of the prestigious 1980 Jefferson Awards for the greatest public service benefiting American communities don't believe in "looking out for No. 1."

The three women and two men who were honored at a ceremony at the U.S. Supreme Court building in Washington, D.C., subscribe to the philosophy that giving of oneself is more important than taking for themselves.

"The best advice I'd be able to give anybody is to first give of themselves," said award winner Tilda Kemplen of Duff, Tenn., founder and director of Mountain Communities Child Care Development Centers.

"Think of others first. Figure out what you want to do and do it. Where it looks like there is no way, there is a way if you put forth some effort."

The Jefferson awards are given annually by the American Institute for Public Service, which has Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and former Ohio Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr. as its chairmen. Other 1980 winners are Elaine Griebnow of Edin, Minn., Lee Klein of North Miami Beach, Fla., Dr. Louis P. Matusci of Philadelphia, and John Carpenter of Lake View Terrace, Calif.

The awarders were chosen by a national board of selectors from local community winners chosen from thousands of nominees submitted by the public to some 75 newspapers and television sponsors across the nation. Mrs. Griebnow was cited for her volunteer work as a nurse for Cambodian refugees. Mrs. Klein for her dedication to the needs of children with cancer. Dr. Matusci for volunteer drug abuse work with teenagers, and Carpenter for developing recreational activity for the handicapped.

In interviews with UPI, the five discussed their work and their personal rewards.

Mrs. Kemplen said her 20-year struggle to establish day care centers for poor families in Campbell County, Tenn., so that parents could have employment opportunities, reflected her upbringing. To be honored for her efforts made her "very proud."

"I guess all my life, I've been doing things to try and help people," she said. "I was raised that way. My parents were that way and I am, too."

She said the main difficulty she encountered in serving 2,000 children and their parents and finding employment for 600 people was that there were no public buildings in the area and it's hard to get public monies into rural, mountainous areas.

"All we have to offer is ourselves. It's really hard to get federal funds here because most of the money is geared for model cities or the growth center, which are the towns."

Mrs. Griebnow, 59, mother of two adopted Oriental children, said she is one of 800 people who volunteered their services to the American Refugee Committee to work with Cambodian refugees. She took a three-month leave from the University of Minnesota's Children's Hospital Rehabilitation Unit to serve in a 100-bed medical ward in the Koh-Dang refugee camp in Thailand.

"We gave them moral support," she said. "Talking to them meant a lot. You realized they needed something more than medical help. We encouraged them to get all the education they could while they were in camp. We helped them learn English. I admired their courage and their ability to cope with the whole situation."

Why did she volunteer? "I wanted to because of the television series, 'The Holocaust.' I thought my small contribution would help somewhat in the whole picture."

Carpenter, 66, who has created an authentic Wild West town and ranch visited by 360,000 handicapped children, said he became handicapped himself after a car ran over him 46 years ago. He gave up farming and began making westerns as Hollywood's first independent producer. "I started the ranch in 1944 while I was recuperating from my devastating accident," he recalled. "I was sitting in my wheel chair when five blind kids came to ask if they could ride my horses. I said 'you can't ride,' but they did. That's how we started. I used my motion picture money to keep this ranch going but 22 years ago I divested myself of all material things. Anyone can do this. And I've never solicited any money."

Carpenter said he considered the award was "the first thing that ever happened to me that really hit home and I'm proud of it." "I feel God has given me this award," he said.

Matusci was a bureaucrat with Philadelphia's model cities program in 1971 when Catholic nuns offered him an old house in the city's Fox Chase area. It became the home of The Bridge, a one-year drug rehabilitation center of which Matusci was co-founder. It has served 1,800 teenagers with a 90 percent success rate due to its comprehensive medical, educational and vocational program.

"I became deeply involved," said Matusci. "It was in my neighborhood and I had children of my own that age. The best part has been watching our kids grow up. I have watched 73 who came to us as 14 and 15-year-olds become parents. Some of them are very successful."

Matusci said people who want to get involved in drug programs should start in the educational field, "teaching other people about drugs and alcohol and their effects."

"A lot of our problems are family and parent related, simply because parents know so little about drugs. If there was more work at a very early stage, it would ease the load. It is very costly to rehabilitate a youngster."

Book To Probe Andrew

LONDON (UPI) — You might think a man of 20 wouldn't have lived enough to merit a biography. But not every man of 20 is second in line to the British throne.

Prince Andrew Albert Christian Edward, sometimes known as "Randy Andy," is just that, and perhaps even more.

Biographer Donald Edgar, in his necessarily slim "Prince Andrew," just published by Arthur Barker Ltd., lists a number of "regrettable events" which "could make Andrew heir to the throne and, perhaps, king."

If Prince Charles should die, for instance. Or marry a Roman Catholic. Or marry and have no children. Or not marry at all. Or choose to renounce the throne, as his great-uncle did when he married an American divorcee.

In any of these unlikely circumstances the British could be reigned over by this "forceful and engaging young man" who has fluttered feminine hearts in a dozen lands.

Cook Of The Week

Good Old Days And Great Food

Sam and Betty Day first came to Seminole County in 1956 when the Navy was still active at the Sanford Air Station. Day was working for Douglas Aircraft with the A-3 bomber program.

With their four children they bought a home at 172 Williams Road in Lake Mary and stayed here for eight years. Mrs. Day enjoyed entertaining their many Navy friends and on more than one occasion their home was crowded with more than 200 guests.

From Lake Mary they were transferred to Virginia but they did not sell their home in Lake Mary. After 10 years in Virginia Beach, Mr. Day retired and five years ago they moved back to Lake Mary.

Their children are grown now and raising families of their own. "They're all scattered around," said Mrs. Day, "but they all manage to get home at least once a year or whenever they can."

One daughter and several grandchildren are presently visiting with the Days and young people are once again running around the house. Mrs. Day said she plans to have a houseful of company for the summer.

Mrs. Day keeps busy tending the numerous plants and flowers around their home and until recently worked in a Virginia dress shop. She is a member of the Lake Mary Women's Club and has done some catering for cocktail parties and weddings in the area.

She said she enjoys entertaining and cooking and picked up the basics by being the ninth of 10 children. "It wasn't a question of liking to cook," she laughed, "but of having to cook."

Many of Mrs. Day's favorite recipes were picked up from other Navy wives. The recipe for Lumpia, a Filipino dish similar to an egg roll, was one they brought with them from the Navy base in Norfolk.

The very thin pastry wrappers required for the dish may be purchased from Oriental grocery and import stores and are well worth the effort.

LUMPIA
 2 pounds pork, ground and sautéed
 1 pound shrimp, ground and sautéed
 1 package frozen peas
 1 bunch green onions, chopped
 1 pound fresh mushrooms, chopped
 1 can water chestnuts, chopped
 1/2 cup oyster sauce (optional, but available at Oriental shops)
 2 tablespoons soy sauce
 1 clove garlic, chopped
 4 well beaten eggs
 After browning and draining pork, add remaining ingredients, except eggs, and cook until onions and peas are done. Cool and add eggs to mixture. Mix well and add more soy sauce to taste, if desired.

Place two tablespoons of the mixture in the Lumpia wrappers, roll and seal like an egg roll. Wrappers may be cut in half. Alternate layers of cabbage, tomato mixture and cheese in a casserole topping with corn flakes. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

WATERMELON RIND PICKLES
 10 pounds watermelon rind
 10 pounds sugar
 1 quart white vinegar
 distilled water
 40 drops oil of cloves
 40 drops oil of cinnamon
 Cut rind into cubes, making sure that none of the rind remains and that there is no peel on the rind. Cover with distilled water — pickles may be cloudy if tap water is used — and let stand 24 hours. Wash and drain well then cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Cook for 10 minutes then wash and drain well again.

Mix sugar, vinegar and spices. Do not heat. Place mixture and rind in a large crock and let stand four or five days. Stir it when you think about it. Can pickles cold. Mrs. Day colors some of her pickles with red and green food coloring. Makes nice Christmas gifts, she said.

CORN RELISH
 18 ears of corn
 2 large green peppers
 1 medium cabbage
 4 medium onions
 1 cup chopped celery
 1 quart vinegar
 2 cups brown sugar
 2 tablespoons salt
 3 tablespoons dry mustard
 Cut corn from cob. Chop all other vegetables and mix with the corn. Add remaining ingredients and cook 20 to 30 minutes, stirring frequently to avoid sticking. Pack in clean pint jars. Makes 5 pints.

This Backyard Dinner Goes Native

Americans have always loved to eat outdoors, so any sunny day is an occasion to set the dinner table on the porch or patio.

Even if all the cooking is done in the kitchen, somehow good food tastes even better when it's eaten outside.

Select seasonal native foods for an outdoor meal with that satisfying touch of Americana. Simple, traditional foods often bring the most pleasure and are easy to prepare, too.

We seem never to tire of the good, wholesome flavor of corn during the summer months; and Corn and Pepper Relish Salad Mold uses this most American of vegetables in a novel way. A sparkling sweet-and-sour gelatin mixture is given extra zip by fragrant pepper sauce. The attractive mold encases a mixture of diced celery, onion, red and green bell peppers, and convenient canned corn. Satisfying ten to twelve appetites, this ahead salad makes it ideal for summer entertaining.

As a main course, econon -cal Deviled Short Ribs are long on hearty, honest flavor — that good, meaty kind that most of us savor. The ribs are first tenderized and seasoned by a spicy marinade of tomato juice, onion, garlic and honey, and then grilled. As an alternative, the meat may be cooked in a 350 degree F. oven for about 1 1/2 hours. Youngsters in particular will enjoy this easy-to-eat, backyard finger food. For those whose palates are attuned to the extra-hot place a bottle of Tabasco pepper sauce on the table, and let each "devil" the ribs to taste.

DEVILED SHORT RIBS

- $\frac{1}{4}$ cups tomato juice
- One-third cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 bay leaf
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon pepper sauce
- $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds short ribs

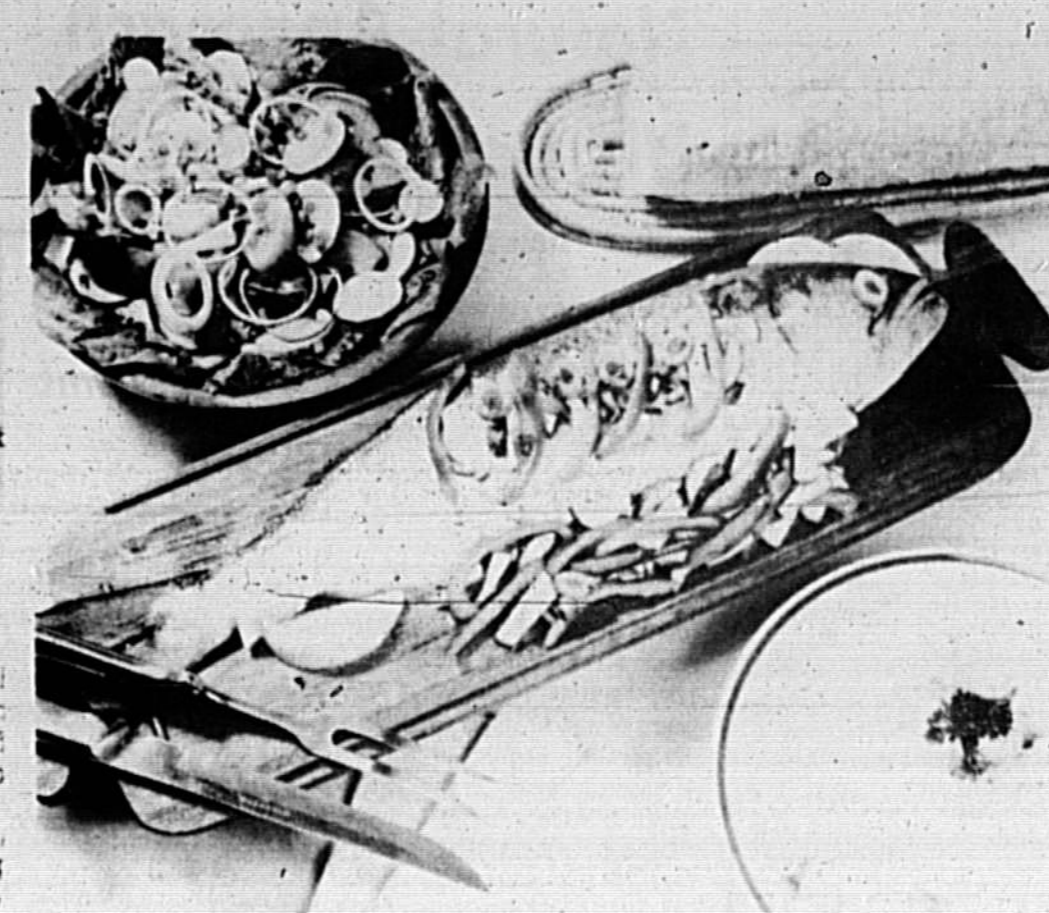

In large bowl combine all ingredients except ribs; mix well. Add short ribs. Cover. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Remove ribs and place on grill. Cook 20 minutes; turning several times. Meanwhile pour marinade into small saucepan; cook over low heat 5 minutes. Brush marinade on meat; cook 35 to 40 minutes longer until meat is cooked to desired doneness. Turn meat and brush often with marinade during cooking. Serve remaining marinade with meat. Serve with additional Tabasco sauce, if desired. Yield: 4 servings.

CORN AND PEPPER RELISH SALAD MOLD

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water
- 1 can (1 pound) kernel corn, drained, liquid reserved
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cider vinegar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon pepper sauce
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped red pepper
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped onion
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped celery

In medium saucepan combine sugar, gelatin, mustard and salt; stir in water, allow to stand 1 minute. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Drain liquid from corn into a measuring cup; add enough water to measure 1 cup. Add to saucepan. Stir in vinegar and Tabasco sauce. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Fold in corn, green pepper, red pepper, onion and celery. Turn into a 6-cup mold; chill until firm. Unmold to serve. Serve with additional Tabasco sauce, if desired. Yield: 10 to 12 servings.

Baked Fish A Real Catch For Food Dollar Stretchers

It's always exciting to catch a fish, whether it is 3 inches or 30 feet in length. And with tighter food budgets, more and more people living near bodies of water are taking up what was once considered a lazy pastime.

A whole baked fish can really stretch the food dollar — even if you buy that fish rather than catch it. Don't forget that leftover fish makes an excellent addition to salad or soup.

BAKED WHOLE FISH

- 1 whole fresh, firm-fleshed fish (about 4 pounds), cleaned and scaled
- 1 medium zucchini, cubed
- 1 cup mushrooms, diced
- 2 onions, peeled and sliced
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 1 tablespoon parsley, minced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon pepper
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon Angostura aromatic bitters

4 oysters, aliased.
Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Wash fish and place in well-oiled, foil-lined baking dish.
Stuff fish with cut vegetables and parsley. Secure with toothpicks.
Sprinkle fish with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with fork or toothpick.

Tasty Oysters Nutritious, Too

Plump, juicy oysters, lightly breaded, fried golden brown and served with a quick and tasty tartar sauce makes for a treat to be enjoyed by all.

With the onset of summer weather the time is right for inviting friends and family over for an old-fashioned oyster fry. The necessary ingredients are few and simple, and the cooking time is minimal. When possible, cook outside to keep the kitchen cool.

The Florida Department of Natural Resources notes that oysters are one of nature's richest sources of iron. Six oysters supplies more than a day's minimum requirement of iron. Oysters also supply protein, essential vitamins, and other minerals as well.

Shucked oysters are marketed in two sizes — select or standards — selects being the larger size. Fresh shucked oysters are plump and have a natural green color and clear liquid. If properly handled and packed in ice in the refrigerator, freshly shucked oysters will maintain quality for about one week.

Add a creative twist to your next summertime get-together with an oyster fry.

CHUPSY FRIED OYSTERS

- 2 cans (12 ounces each) oysters, fresh or frozen
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cups flour
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- Fat for frying
- Lemon Wedges
- Quick Tartar Sauce

Thaw if frozen. Drain. Combine crumbs and flour. Combine milk, eggs, salt, and pepper. Roll oysters in crumb mixture. Dip oysters in egg mixture and roll in crumb mixture again.

To deep fat fry: Place oysters in a single layer in a fry basket. Fry in deep fat, 350 degrees F., for 2 to 3 minutes or until oysters are brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

To pan fry: Place oysters in a single layer in hot fat in a 12-inch fry pan. Fry at a moderate heat for 2 to 3 minutes or until brown. Turn carefully. Fry 2 to 3 minutes longer or until oysters are brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with lemon wedges and Quick Tartar Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

QUICK TARTAR SAUCE

- 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup drained sweet chili
- Combine ingredients. Chill. Makes approximately $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sauce.

Natural Approach His Best Option

DEAR DR. LAMB - Recently I read an authoritative treatise on prostate trouble by a well-known medical doctor. He said that prostatitis is caused either by too long an absence from sexual activity or by too frequent ejaculations. In such cases moderation is recommended.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like to know if you would be willing to provide me with any useful data available to support any of your opinions. That's probably the reason some doctors think that when you have prostatitis that you shouldn't engage in sexual activity and others feel that it's helpful.

DEAR READER - Potassium salt is the most important and most abundant salt inside your cells. If you have too much of it, it can cause irregularities of the heart, some of which can be serious or even fatal.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm sure you're eating a normal, well-balanced diet and just eat at least some fruit every day, you should be getting an adequate amount of potassium.

Potato Salad Can Be Greek

Potato salads are especially popular in summer. They stretch well for cooks who want to entertain without great expense. Any leftovers can be enjoyed the next day.

Remember to keep salads of this type chilled. One avid picnicer recalls that her mother insisted upon returning such salads to the ice chest as soon as everyone filled their plates. Pity the "slow spoon" in that group!

This Athenian potato salad is a pseudo-Greek inspiration of Helen Schwartz, a home economist with Friendship Foods. The dish features cottage cheese for additional protein.

- ATHENIAN POTATO SALAD
- 2 pounds new potatoes
 - 2 tablespoons minced parsley
 - 1 bunch celery, minced
 - 1/2 cup diced black or green olives (preferably Greek)
 - 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1/4 teaspoon dill
 - Pinch lead rosemary, crumbled
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
 - Juice of 1 lemon
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 1/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
 - 8 ounces cottage cheese
 - One-third to 1/2 cup milk
- Boil potatoes until fork tender. Peel and slice fairly thin. Mix together cottage cheese, mayonnaise, one-third cup milk, lemon juice and olive oil. Add Parmesan cheese, dill, rosemary, salt, pepper and 1/2 tablespoon parsley.
- Add potatoes, olives and celery to dressing. Toss gently until well coated. Add additional milk if necessary.
- Chill at least 2 hours to let flavor develop. Before serving, toss salad again and sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup milk and 1/4 teaspoon dill.
- This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

Omelets topped with fruit follow time honored tradition.

You Can Top This Omelet Just Like The Romans

Omelet history can be traced back to the Romans who ate a sweet egg dish cooked with honey. Follow a time-honored tradition.

Dress up your eggs with a fruit Conserve Sauce of strawberry or red raspberry preserves and chopped nuts. This simple mixture, served warm, adds just the right balance of sweetness to create a tasty morning meal worth opening your eyes for. Wake up to a Super Breakfast Omelet. This recipe calls for an easy-to-make ham omelet topped with a colorful and delicious fruit conserve. Begin the omelet by melting margarine in a skillet.

When the margarine is hot, but not browned or smoking, pour in a batter of eggs, milk and chopped ham and cook. Lift the egg mixture slightly with a spatula to allow the uncooked portion to flow underneath.

When the top of the eggs is set, fold the omelet in half. The result — a tender, golden omelet with a firm but delicate outside and a smooth and moist inside.

This recipe is appropriate for brunch entrees accompanied with spiced apples, broccoli and fresh fruits to complete the menu.

SUPER BREAKFAST OMELET

- 6 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup chopped ham
- one-third cup milk
- Salt and pepper

Melt margarine in 10-inch skillet over low heat. Combine eggs, meat, milk and seasonings; pour into skillet. Cook slowly. As egg mixture sets, lift slightly with a spatula to allow uncooked portion to flow underneath. When set, fold in half. Serve with:

FRUIT CONSERVE SAUCE

- 1/2 cup strawberry or red raspberry preserves
- 2 tablespoons chopped nuts

Combine ingredients; heat. 3 to 4 servings.

Fill (With Sausage) And Grill

Pita Pockets Ideal For Picnics

A pocket full of nourishment is always welcome on a picnic. So why not combine America's newest food, pita bread, with grilling favorites such as knockwurst, bratwurst and hot dogs.

The National Hot Dog & Sausage Council suggests using these pita loaves (hollowed rounds sometimes also called peshah, Syrian or Near Eastern bread) to add zest to easy summer entertaining.

Let guests make up their own special Sausage "Dagwood" Grill from a smorgasbord of sliced processed meats and vegetable fixings of sauerkraut, bean sprouts, chopped onions or tomatoes.

Perfectly portable, pita bread also is ideal for making Cheesy Hot Dog Totes. Totes can be made ahead, wrapped in foil and placed on the grill.

SAUSAGE "DAGWOOD" GRILL

- Pita bread, each loaf cut in half
- 1 roll heavy-duty aluminum foil
- Sliced hot dogs, knockwurst and bratwurst (Figure 1/4 to one-third pound of sausage per person)
- Smorgasbord selection:

- Tomatoes, chopped with celery salt added
- Chopped onions — Offer three styles (Bermuda, Spanish, green)
- Bean sprouts, drained
- Alfalfa sprouts
- Cheddar or American cheese, shredded
- Pickle relish
- Dill pickles, sliced paper-thin
- Yogurt
- Variety of mustards and ketchup

Before guests arrive, chop, slice and refrigerate sausages and smorgasbord condiments. Cut pita loaves in half. When grill is properly heated have guests fill pita pockets with their choice of sausages and condiments. Wrap sandwiches in foil and place on grill for about 10 minutes. Uncover and continue grilling until bread is crispy and pocket heated through, about 10 to 15 minutes more, depending on desired crispness.

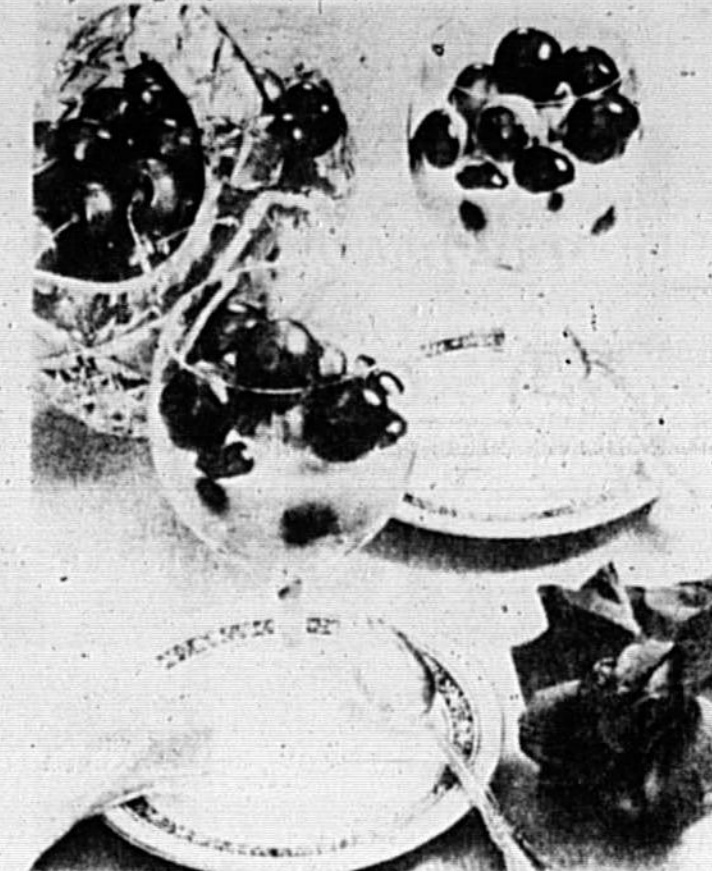

CHEESY HOT DOG TOTE

- 1/2 pound hot dogs, cubed
- 1/2 pound sharp cheddar cheese, shredded

- 2 oz. jar stuffed green olives, chopped
- 1/2 cup frozen diced onions
- 1/2 cup chili sauce
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- 2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 4 individual loaves of pita bread
- Heavy-duty aluminum foil

Cut hot dogs into fourths lengthwise, then slice into 1/4-inch cubes. Combine with olives, hard cooked eggs, mustard, mayonnaise, chili sauce and cheese, mixing well. Cut pita rounds in half. Open pocket and fill with approximately one-third cup filling — be generous. Wrap individually in foil and refrigerate or freeze.

TO GRILL: If frozen, allow to defrost at room temperature for about 10 minutes. When fire is ready, place foil-wrapped sandwiches on grill and heat 10 minutes. Uncover and continue heating until pita bread is crisp and filling is hot — 10 to 15 minutes more, depending on desired crispness. Serve with marinated vegetables or cole slaw for a complete meal.

English Cream and Northwest sweet cherries are a rich treat.

Top Cherries With Cream

Fresh-fruit desserts are a special treat during summer months when many fruits are at their peak.

Fresh sweet cherries from the Pacific Northwest now are in most markets. Their season is quite short — only until August. They make a refreshing dessert simply eaten out-of-hand or served with ice cream. More elegant are cherries jubilee or individual cherry souffles.

Another way to prepare these delightful cherries is with an English cream that Colonial cooks called "boiled custard" and that French cooks call "creme anglaise."

The cream is basically a classic egg-thickened custard with whipped cream and sugar folded in. Serve the cherries whole or pitted and topped with the English cream.

CHERRIES WITH ENGLISH CREAM

- 2 egg yolks
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 2 teaspoons flour
 - 1/2 cup hot milk
 - 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
 - 1/2 cup heavy cream
 - 1 tablespoon powdered sugar
 - 1-2 tablespoons sherry (optional)
 - 4 cups Northwest fresh sweet cherries
- Whip Northwest fresh sweet cherries for garnish, optional. Combine egg yolks, sugar and flour in top of double boiler. Place over simmering water. Gradually add hot milk and vanilla. Cook and stir until thickened and smooth, about 5 minutes.
- Cool thoroughly. Stir occasionally.
- Whip cream with powdered sugar until stiff. Fold whipped cream and sherry into cooled sauce.
- Wash and stem cherries. Pit, if desired.
- Divide cherries among 4 dessert dishes. Pour sauce over cherries just before serving. Garnish with whole cherry if desired.
- This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

Zia Pueblo Indians still bake their breads in outdoor adobe "beehive" ovens.

It's Tradition

Cornbread Has Southwest Flavor

At a time when most people her age are breeding with traditions and the past, Jennifer Herrera used hers and came up a winner.

Jennifer is a Zia Pueblo Indian and New Mexico's 1979 Junior Miss. When she set out to plan her entry in the Kraft Hostess Awards competition as part of the America's Junior Miss Pageant, it was not surprising for her to prepare the things she knows best.

Her Harvest Feast party plan incorporated many pueblo traditions and generously embraced her guests in the fabric of her culture.

You might enjoy serving your guests this cornbread which also embodies the flavor of Jennifer's Southwest region.

Fresh Peaches Inspire Loaf

If more people make banana bread than any other fruit bread, it's because they haven't sliced into a loaf of peach bread and tasted its fragrant goodness.

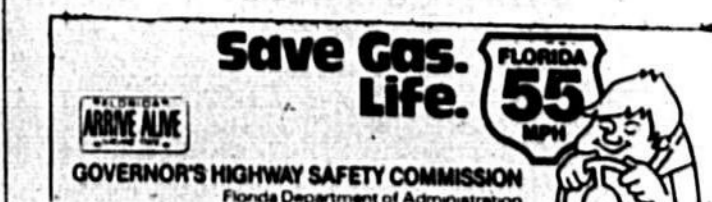

Make Peach Bread throughout the all-too-short season. Also make enough so that some can be frozen for the months ahead when fresh peaches are only a sweet memory.

PEACH PECAN BREAD

- 2 cups unsifted flour (see note)
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 1/2 cup margarine
 - 1/2 cup light corn syrup
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 cup peeled, pitted, mashed peaches
 - 1 cup chopped pecans
- Grease 8x5x3-inch loaf pan. In small bowl stir together flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg. In large bowl with mixer at medium speed beat margarine until softened. Add corn syrup and sugar; beat until smooth. Add eggs; beat 1 to 2 minutes or until light. Stir in flour mixture alternately with peaches. Stir in pecans. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in 375 degree F oven 60 to 65 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes in pan. Remove from pan. Cool completely on wire rack. Wrap in foil or plastic wrap. Bread slices best when stored overnight. Makes 1 loaf.
- Note: To prepare with self-rising flour, omit baking powder and salt.

Peach bread challenges banana for top honors in taste.

Thief Steals Scripts Identifying Who Shot J.R. Ewing

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The shooting of J.R. Ewing in the "Dallas" television series has led to a real-life crime — a sneak-thief has filched several scripts containing the identity of the Texas millionaire's assailant.

The "Dallas" series has been the subject of summer madness in this country and abroad since Ewing, played by actor Larry Hagman, was mysteriously shot in the final episode of last season.

A spokesman for Lorimar Productions, which produces "Dallas," confirmed Wednesday the scripts had been stolen from story editor Arthur Lewis' office.

"It's true," the spokesman said, "several scripts were stolen from Mr. Lewis' office. We anticipated a tremendous amount of interest in the discovery of the assailant of J.R. Ewing. But we didn't anticipate anything like this."

"We didn't think anyone would go to these lengths to solve the mystery of who shot J.R.," he said.

The wily producers of the popular prime time soap opera were not caught entirely unawares. Several different scripts were prepared with different culprits written in as J.R.'s would-be murderer.

Lt. Steve Weiss said the theft occurred sometime between June 2nd and June 17th.

"Three rough draft copies of the script 'Whodunnit' from the 'Dallas' series were reported missing this morning," Weiss said. "That's about it, really."

Asked if he had ever heard of scripts being stolen before, the lieutenant said, "No."

"It's very rare to have something like this happen," Weiss said. "I've been here 15 years and nothing like this has ever happened before."

Lorimar, inadvertently disclosed this week that Ewing, the man "Dallas" viewers love to hate, was going to recover from the bullet wound. The tantalizing mystery was partly solved with the announcement of Hagman's return to the show.

It was the shooting of J.R., his fate and whodunit that caused speculation among television viewers throughout the United States and England.

Lake Mary Official To Ask Tax Hike

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary's property tax rate could go up to $3.50 per $1,000 assessed valuation of real property in the new fiscal year, a 66-cent increase over the current tax rate.

City Manager Phil Kulbes will recommend to the Lake Mary City Council at a 7:30 p.m. workshop today that it approve a tax rate for fiscal 1980-81 of $3.50, up from the $2.84 now levied.

Kulbes said the increased tax rate would keep all departments at current strength plus provide for the hiring of a full-time grader operator in public works and a part-time person for park maintenance.

The manager said this would also provide a 7 percent across-the-board cost-of-living pay raise for city employees, retain city council expenses allowances and stipends paid to advisory board members. Also included in the budget Kulbes is recommending to the council is a $17,000 downpayment on a class A pump for the fire department and a new car for the police department.

He noted the two vehicles currently being operated by the police department have 200,000 miles each recorded.

A major reason for the 66 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation increase, he pointed out, is anticipated raises in gasoline costs to $1.75 per gallon.

Under current state law, the council can increase property taxes by a four-fifths vote of the board.

Other items on the agenda for the workshop include:

- Setting a proposed sewer rate of $12.45 per month to customers in The Forest mobile home park. The city is taking over operation of the sewer plant in the development. Kulbes said with 177 customers on the sewer system, the $12.45 per-month fee is necessary to fund the operation of the sewer system. As new customers are added, the sewer rate can come down, he said.
- Consideration of a request that water service be provided from the Hidden Lake subdivision in Sanford to the Fowler level.
- An affirmative action plan for the city to become eligible to participate in various federal funding programs.
- Proposed revisions to the lakefront zoning ordinance. Kulbes has recommended that a 200-foot set-back requirement from lakes be established for apartment development. The open space could be planted in green areas.

Exact Amounts Undetermined Sanford To Cut Taxes, Give Workers Salary Hike

Sanford city employees will be receiving pay raises and city taxpayers will be receiving a property tax cut in the new fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. But it will be 30 to 60 days before the amount of the pay raise and tax cut will be known.

City commissioners Wednesday night agreed unanimously to grant employees across-the-board cost-of-living pay increases plus wage adjustments to bring salaries into line with other municipalities.

The exact amount of the cost-of-living raises will be determined after Congress acts on a bill to extend federal revenue sharing payments to local governments and after a salary survey and pay plan is completed by the state Department of Community Affairs.

City Manager Warren Knowles said it is expected the city will be allocated from federal revenue sharing about $380,000, the same amount as received this year. It is from this fund the pay raises are going to be taken.

On the amount of property tax which the city will be levying during the new fiscal year, Knowles said, "Mathematically, there must be a decrease in the rate."

He said estimates of revenue used in his budget preparation are from the current year's figures. New estimates from County Property Appraiser Terry Goemmel's office will not be available until August, Knowles said.

"With new construction during the past year, it is almost a certainty that the city will be able to reduce the tax rate," Knowles said.

In the meantime, to be on the safe side, Knowles said the city to comply with state law will be advertising a tax rate of $7.08 per $1,000 assessed valuation of properties, the same tax rate as currently charged.

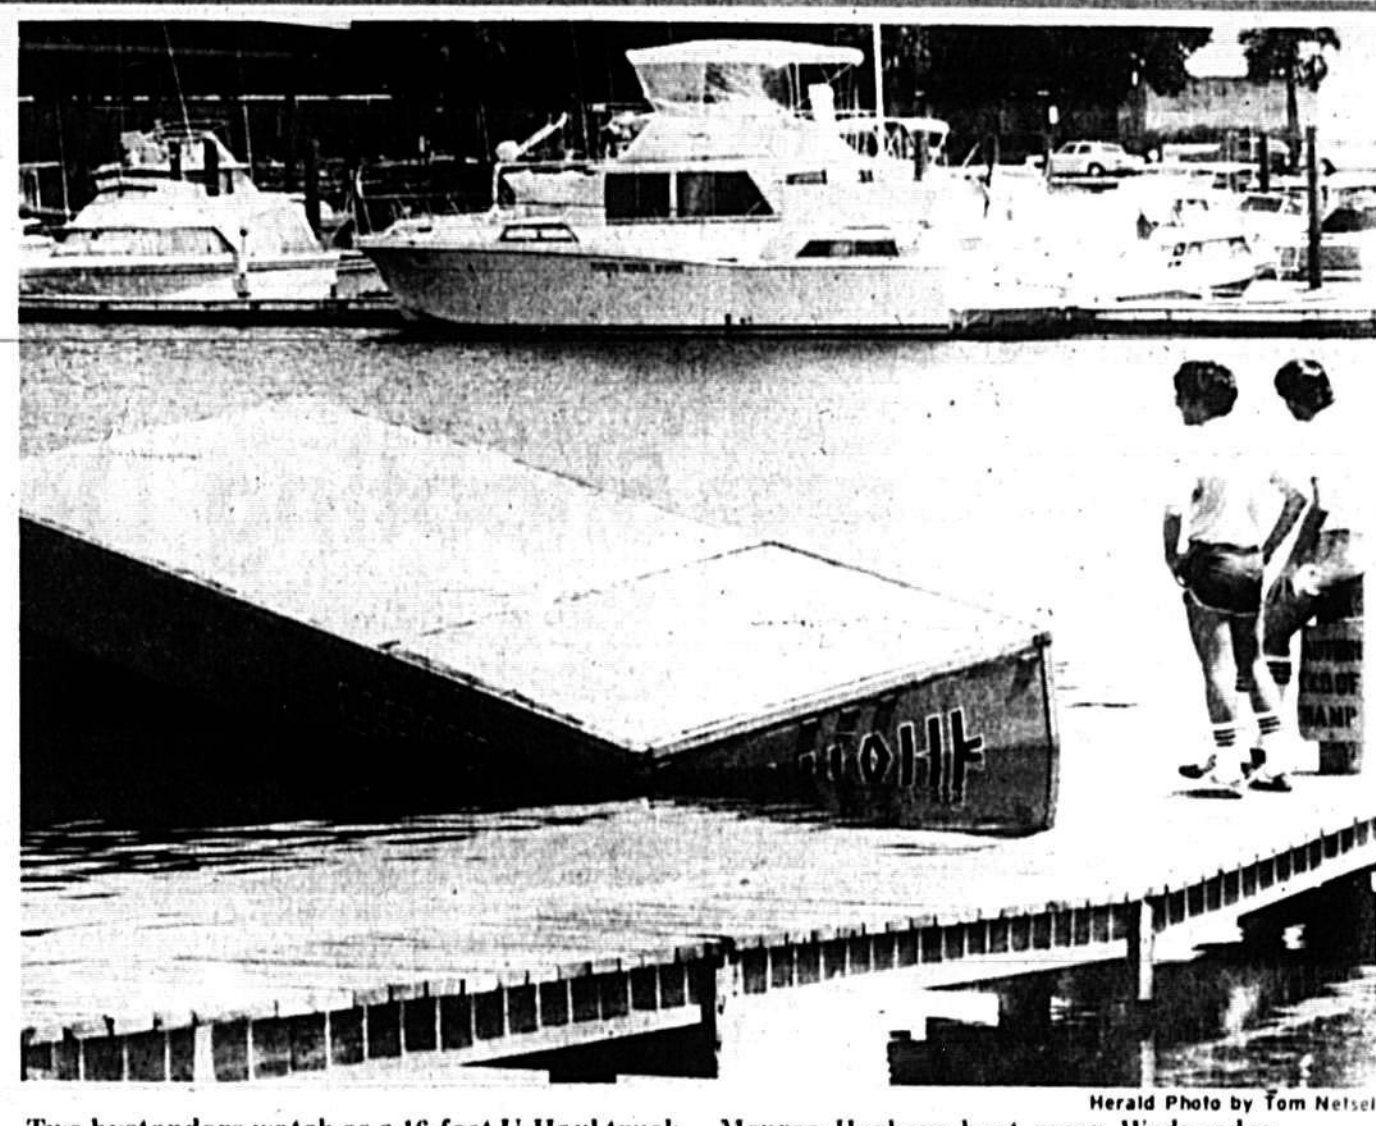

After estimates of revenue are received, the actual rate to be charged will be set.

The city commission in afternoon meetings Tuesday and Wednesday reviewed the five budgets for city operation during the new fiscal year, tentatively totaling more than $11 million.

The budgets are for general government, refuse, capital improvement, federal revenue sharing and water and sewer utilities. Refuse and utility rates are being retained at the same level as this year.

The budgets as submitted were tentatively approved with only two corrections. The first correction concerned the allocation to the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Its annual allocation was incorrectly listed as $7,500 instead of $15,000.

The second correction was to include funds for annual maintenance of the city's cemeteries. — DONNA ESTES

Two bystanders watch as a 16-foot U-Haul truck slowly settles in the mud at the end of the Monroe Harbour boat ramp Wednesday.

Truck Rolls Into Lake Monroe

By DAVID M. HAZLER
 Herald Staff Writer

A 16-year-old youth sleeping in the cab of his uncle's rented 16-foot truck awoke Wednesday afternoon to find the cab filling with water.

"I had to go out the window," said Barry Church after walking back to Monroe Harbour following a brief examination at Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Church joined his uncle, Andrew Rice, 1066 Gaucho Ave., DeLtona, and spent the next four and a half hours watching a fleet of wreckers tip the truck on its side, pull it back up the boat ramp it had rolled down, stand it up and carry it off for repairs.

"I've said he was heading down to the Sanford flea market on U.S. Highway 17-42 when he decided to make a stop at the marina to look at a sailboat he was planning to buy."

He parked the truck, loaded with thousands of items ranging from jewelry to antique glass miniatures, in the middle of the Monroe Harbour parking lot, leaving his nephew asleep in the cab.

Sharon Howley, proprietor of Strictly Sail, interrupted his discussions of boat prices. "Don't get alarmed, but your truck is in the water," she said.

The U-Haul truck was in the water, almost completely submerged. It had apparently rolled down the inclined parking lot, picking up enough speed on the boat ramp to roll off the concrete into the mud.

As Church broke the surface and crawled back up the ramp, marina employees grabbed him and drove him to the hospital, where he was treated and released for bruises and inhaling water.

Meanwhile, as airbubbles and a small oil slick rose from the truck, police and wrecker crews arrived.

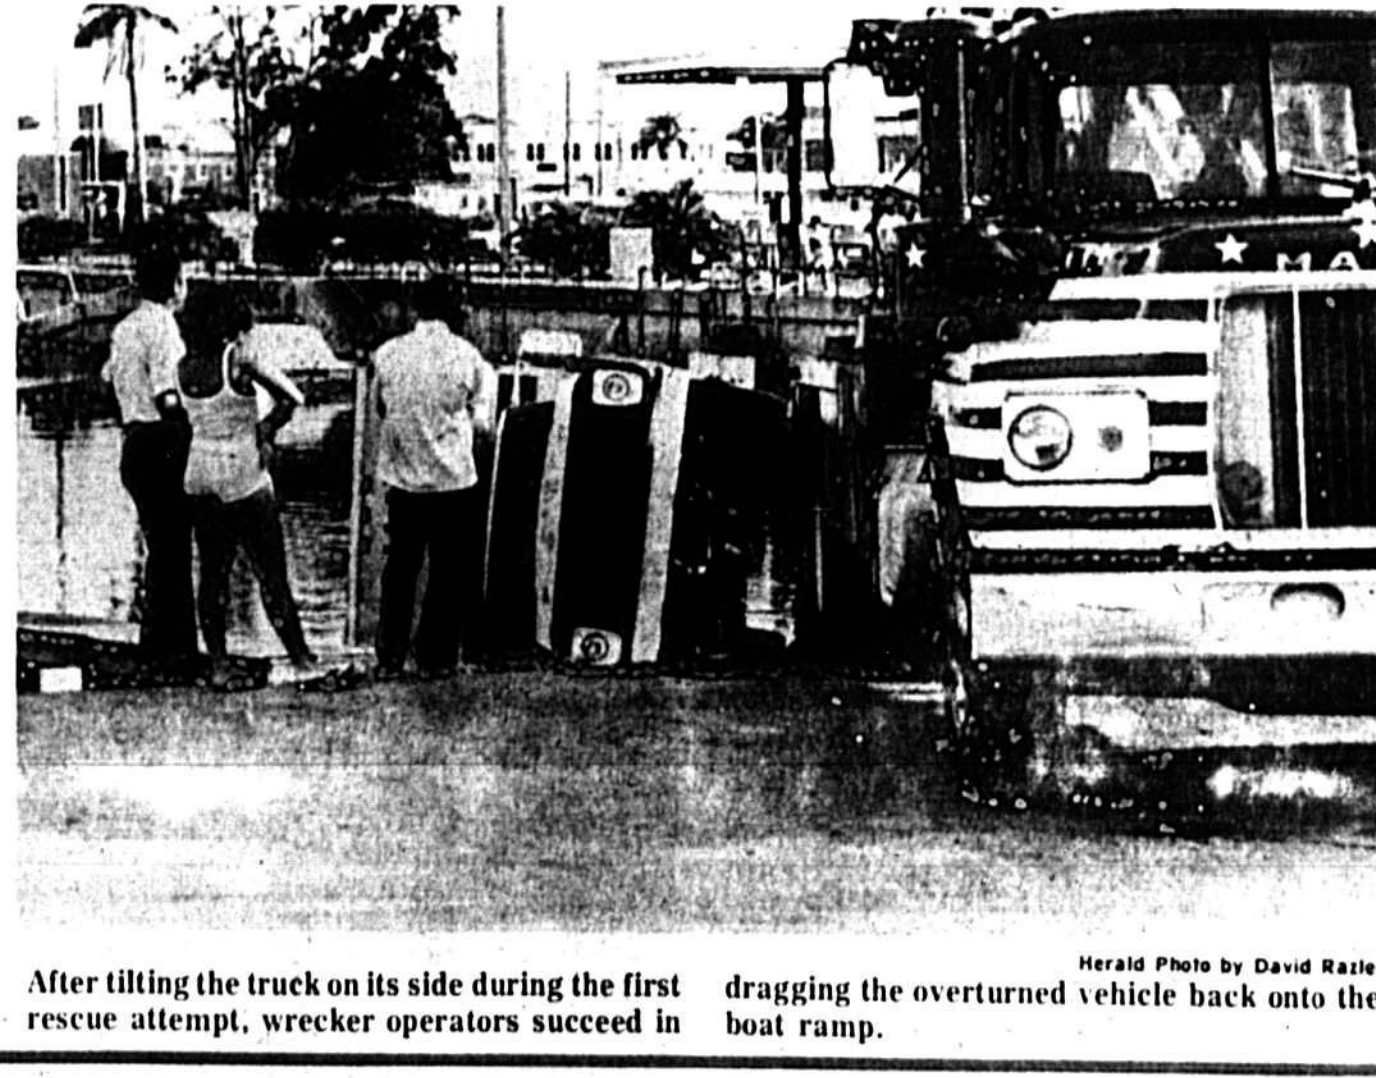

The power of the first huge wrecker was not enough to budge the truck. But four cables from a pair of the large tow trucks were powerful enough to set the submerged vehicle in motion — tipping it over on its side.

For the next four hours a team of four trucks and wrecker crews, joined by a local scuba diver called in to attach chains and hooks in the murky water, dragged the truck around the ramp, trying for the right combination of cables and leverage to right the waterlogged vehicle.

Finally, at 7:30 p.m., the crews made the decision to drain the battered truck up onto the ramp, then stand it up.

The rear compartment was opened a bit to allow water to drain off, and the truck, battered and leaning to the right, was hauled off.

"I'm going to cry, but first I'm going home to a chicken dinner," said Rice, joined on the dock by his wife and Church, who lives with him. He said he had no idea how badly either the truck or its contents were damaged.

After tilting the truck on its side during the first rescue attempt, wrecker operators succeed in dragging the overturned vehicle back onto the boat ramp.

Bomb Threat Halts Work On Space Shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A woman with a foreign accent demanding the release of Americans held hostage in Iran telephoned she had planted two bombs at the Kennedy Space Center today, halting work on the space shuttle Columbia for more than two hours.

"We assumed it was a hoax," said space center spokesman Hugh Harris. But over 200 workers workers in the Shuttle Order Processing Facility — the Columbia's hangar — and the Vehicle Assembly Building were evacuated.

Air Force and space center bomb crews searched both buildings but found no bomb, security chief Charles Buckley said.

The woman phoned the space center's switchboard shortly after midnight saying bombs were planted in each building, Buckley said. He said she demanded the release of the hostages.

A work shift due to leave at 12:30 a.m. EDT was sent home and the start of the next shift was delayed until 2:43 a.m. as the bomb crews swept the two massive buildings, Buckley said.

The procedure affected 210 workers, Buckley said.

Some 210 workers were putting heat-resistant tiles on the space shuttle and readying it for its "integrated" test next month.

Carter Toasts Portugal For Stands On Iran, Soviets

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — President Carter ended his eight-day European tour today with an enthusiastic reception in Portugal and praised Europe's youngest democracy for being "among the first" to respond to the crises in Afghanistan and Iran.

"Your actions and your words demonstrated that people who value freedom cannot stand idly by while others rights are ruthlessly suppressed and while a system of international order is so callously attacked," Carter said in his toast at a lunch in the hilltop Ajuda Palace ending his seven-hour visit.

"It is no wonder that Portugal was among the first of the world's nations to recognize and respond to the threat posed by democratic societies everywhere by aggression in Afghanistan and official terrorism in Iran," said Carter before ending his four-nation trip that took him to Italy, Yugoslavia, Spain and Portugal.

Carter said "it is at times such as these that friends and allies must stand together."

In his toast, President Antonio Ramalho Eanes pledged Portugal "would not fail to fulfill all its commitments with its allies in the defense of common values and principles that unite and justify us."

Portugal was the first NATO ally to slap sanctions on Iran and was quick to take punitive measures against Moscow after the invasion of Afghanistan.

Carter was welcomed to Portugal with a 21-gun salute and by several dozen exotically dressed refugee demonstrators from the former Portuguese territory of Timor.

The crowds that greeted him were the most enthusiastic he encountered in his tour in southern Europe and he seemed to enjoy it.

"Car-ter, Car-ter," chanted some 100 Portuguese students — seen the president emerged from the Gothic 16th century Jeronimos Monastery.

He had just placed floral wreaths at the marble tombs of epic poet Luis Camoes and navigator Vasco da Gama, who charted the sea route to India in 1498.
