THIRD ELECTION
He broke many precedents durine his first two, terms but nons sitized up-such a violent controversy at his decision to run for a third term. He said it was the "starm" raging over Europe that caused him to ignore the historic two-term tradition established by George Washington.

Influential Democratle party leaders split with him on his decision but he was nominated on the first ballot at the Chicago convention, with Henry A. Wallidee.

If you fellows pray, please in his first official act, he authorized Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius Jr., to announce that the San Francisco world security conference will be held April 25, as scheduled. Mr. Roosevelt would have wanted it that way.

In his first official pronouncement, the new President pledged prosecution of the war to a successful conclusion.

"The world may be sure that we will prosecute the war on both fronts, east and west, with all the vizor we possess, to a successful conclusion," he said.

The new President and Commander-in-Chief who will be 61 on May 8, took the oath from Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone-in a brief, solema ceremony in the Cabinet room of the White House.

a brief, solema ceremony in the Cabinet room of the White House.

Eyen before taking the oath he had asked all members of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet to stay in office and help him complete the Job of winning the war and writing the peace:

He pledged that he will carry on the policies of his predecessor. Daniels said that would mean "a most vigorous prosecution of the war."

The swearing in ceremony was witnessed by cabinet members and other hish ranking Government officials. Behilad the President stood Mrs. Truman, her eyes tearstained.

The new. President used a Bible brought from Mr. Roosevelt's office, He held it in his left hand and placed his right hand on top while Stone pronounced the oath from memory. Mr. Truman repeted it after him. Stone pressed his hand.

After the ceremony, he left the White House and said he was "going heme—to bed." Home—at least until tomorrow—is a modest, five-room spartment on Connecticut Avenue.

The entire nation and all freedom-leving people throughout the world today mourn the loss of our great President who at the very pinnacle of his power and prestige, at the zenith of his career as commander-in-chief of the greatest armies and navies the world has even known, has been struck down, a casualty of this war as surely as any front line soldier who ever suffered the shafts of bat-

President Roosevelt

There may have been some premonition in President Roosevelt's words when he said last summer: "All that is within me cries out to go back to my home on the Hudson River, to avoid public responsibilities, and to avoid also the publicity which in our democracy follows every step of the mation's chief executive. Such would be my choice. But we of this generation chance to live in a day and hour when our nation has been attacked, and when its future existence and the future existence of our chosen method of government are at stake".

Whatever may have been his personal predilections in the matter, he accepted the call of the Democratic party. and later of the people of the United States, to the heavy burdens and responsibilities of a fourth term in office with the nation still at war and with the even more trying task of perfecting a just and lasting peace still before him. "Therefore, reluctantly, but as a good soldier", he said, "I will accept and serve in this office, if I am so ordered by the commander-in-chief of us all, the sovereign people of the United States".

The untimely passing of President Roosevelt at this critical hour, only three months after the beginning of his fourth term, bears tragic consequences for us all. If he could have been spared for but one more very until the peace conferences had been held and the framework of the organization to prevent future wars had been more clearly defined, if he could have but lived until the agonies of Deliver me, O Lord, from the post-war reconversion had been allayed, hope for the future peace and happiness of the world would be improved.

His magnetic reconversion had been allayed, hope for the future peace and happiness of the world would be improved. future peace and happiness of the world would be improved. | see

THE name of Gilbert Stuart is re membered chiefly because he was fortunate enough to do por traits of his President, George Wash ington But that was only one of the reasons why I felt nervous and selfconscious when I was given the great appartunity of my lifetime - to do a portrait of my President

It had been arranged for me to be admitted to his office a quarter hour before his regular press conference. The President has a very great gift of putting you at your ease, and it was this that enabled me to take a firm grasp upon my pencil and do the sketches you see at right and left.

It is not permitted to quote the President directly, without his per mission, and he does not give exclu sive interviews now. However, I can reveal that a White House spokesman told me, 'Make me pretty.'

Pfc. William L. Coursey re ferred to in the above letter re Oswalt, Jr. of Altoona, Pa. for leaving his job as an MP to take mine after three long years, but it hurt that we only had three hours together and on the battleknew. But Moin don't worry; this won't last always, we'll meet you again soon in the good old U.S.A. I have the best General in all the war. He is a pal to his soldiers - believe me he is.
