ILLEGAL STRIKE TIES UP BIG STOCK YARDS CHICAGO IS HARD HIT

Union Railroad Men Employed to break Strike

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

MEN BACK OF NEW ORGANIZATION ARE INVESTIGATORS OF TROUBLE.

Chicago, April 5.—Fifty thousand stock yard employees will be thrown out of work tonight as a result of the strike of switchmen in the Chicago railroad yards, the packers announced this morning. Five thousand were laid off when they reported for work today and the others will follow when receipts of cattle on hand are taken care of. Only 5,000 cattle, 3,500 hogs and 500 sheep reached the stockyards today as compared with receipts of 40,000 hogs alone a year ago. An embargo on all express companies was placed this morning by the American Railway Express Co. Officials said the blizzard yesterday in connection with the switchmen's strike made it impossible to move cars in the local yards.

A. F. Whitney, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, which has branded the strike as "illegal" and in violation of the men's agreement with the roads, has taken personal charge of efforts to break the walkout. Brotherhood men from other cities began arriving this morning in response to Whitney's appeal for union "strike breakers" and union officials hope to have enough men at work by night to keep essential business moving.

One hundred city policemen remained on duty in the railroad yards this morning, while all patrolmen in the city were held in reserve. There has been no trouble so far. In event of serious rioting, Chief of Police Garrity said, there are not enough policemen available to maintain order and it may be necessary to call on state troops to guard the railroad yards.

Approximately 2,000 switchmen were out at midnight, according to strike leaders, and the General Managers' association, representing the railroads. The strikers said 9,000 men would be affected today and predicted a complete tieup of freight traffic and serious impairment of interurban service.

After a long conference with representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen with which the switchmen are affiliated, and the Switchmen's Union of North America, the General Managers' association issued a declaration that there would be "no compromise" with the strikers.

"Sixty per cent. of the switch engines in Chicago are out of service," said the manager's statement. "This has been caused by an outlay organization which has presented demands for rates of pay that already had been presented to the railroad organization by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

"These matters are being handled by the wage committee at Washington and must, under the transportation act, be concluded before the labor board yet to be named by the president."

The trouble broke out five years ago, the switchmen in the Chicago district yards of the C. M. & St. P. going on strike. The Illinois Central and the Northwestern next were affected the strike spreading to other railroads yesterday and last night.

The Chicago shopping district covers a radius of 30 miles and in it 25,000 cars are handled daily. The yardmen make up and "break" all trains in that area, also "spotting" cars at loading and unloading platforms.

The demand of the "outlaw" organization, the recently formed Chicago Yardmen association are: "Foremen of all yard and transfer engines, $1 per hour; yard helpers, 95 cents an hour; switch tenders, $5 a day for attending not more than three switches; helpers, rate of pay to apply at 95c and hour; time and half for overtime, Sundays and all legal holidays and where they are required work more than eight hours on Sundays or legal holidays double time for all time exceeding eight hours.

HISTORY OF THE GREAT SANFORD SECTION

INTERESTING, ENTERTAINING AND HISTORICAL FACTS CONCERNING THE GREAT VEGETABLE GARDEN

RUBE ALLYN, in the Florida Grower

A week spent with the vegetable growers of the Sanford district, enjoying their unbounded hospitality sharing with them the hopes and fears that assail all-growers as they work out the problems involved in the highly technical and intricate occupation in the maturing, shipping and final disposition of their crops, and learning first-hand the history and development of this truly wonderful district, known throughout the country as one of the great celery districts of the nation, and probably the most interesting in the nation, is an experience one could easily translate into an epic which the reader, not aware of the local coloring, would regard as fiction. However, as the Grower desires to convey to its readers, information that may be of easily understandable value, I will endeavor to sketch a picture of this district with the idea of not allowing enthusiasm to overbalance practical facts.

It will aid us to understand present achievements with better appreciation to dwell briefly on the history of the trucking industry from its inception here, and some mention of characters whose names invariably are associated with any discussion of the subject. Joe Cameron's name is, therefore, most frequently associated with any references that may be made to land values here. He was a North Carolinian who, viewing the fine stretch of level land bordering the St. Johns river and Lake Monroe rich and succulent grasses and an artesian flow of water in abundance by puncturing the soil to a depth of 155 to 160 feet, saw a great possibility in the cattle industry and purchased for one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre the land now selling readily for one thousand dollars and acre.

This was after the catastrophe of '95 known as "The Big Freeze" One of the extensive orange growers who stared destitution in the face at that time was J. N. Whitner, and he viewed his desolated groves, and with that indomitable spirit American pioneers have ever evinced, concluded that in the growing of winter vegetables for the northern market lay the future possibilities of this soil. He was the pioneer planter, and his name is revered by those who have followed in his footsteps and are today among the most favored of Florida's population occupied in a native industry.

The beautiful city of Sanford, with its wide, brick-paved streets, its modern homes, its restful parks, its marble bank buildings, its daily newspaper, its great fields of growing crops, its brick-paved highways from which floats the constant hum of the automobiles as town and country merge, and its thousands of happy people, from field hand to bank president, all are a living part of the vision that took possession of J. N. Whitner away back yonder as he stood beneath the dead limbs of his orange trees.

Truck farming progressed with the usual vicissitudes of small farmers a prey to the disadvantages of improper irrigation, drainage and no marketing facilities save those provided by the roaming bands of commission men from northern cities who, regarded the Florida farmer as legitimate prey, until one day another man of destiny waded through the deep sand of the village street, observed with sympathy the distress of the toiling mule as he dragged his load of truck through the sand, and with a big brain, prompted by a loving heart, dreamed of a plan to lift a part of the burden from this faithful beast whose drooping ears and brayless throat advertised his breaking heart. This man was no farmer, and the future of the trucking industry in this district was not, as far as he knew a mission of his. He was a Methodist preacher, and it is safe to assume that his thoughts were more concerned with the spiritual welfare of the community. No doubt he reflected that by removing the cause, an immense amount of profanity could be sidetracked, observing no doubt, that the song of the darkey and the upstanding, alert position of a mule's ears were inseparable harmonies, just in the ratio that a lop-eared, worn-out mule and profanity were allied. So he remembered how as the tide-water rose on the ocean beach and receded the wet sand was a splendid hard path for man or beast, and forthwith evolved the idea of keeping the sand wet on the streets of Sanford by turning the water from the flowing well at Park avenue and first streets onto the sand, and thus have nature pave the streets.

To accomplish this he had a ditch dug down the center of the street and placed in it a wooden trough made by nailing a four and six inch board together and inverting the trough in the ditch, turned in the water. To his great joy and that of the community, it worked, and soon the song of the mule was mingled with that of the red bird at dawn, and "Alabama Bound" swelled into a song of triumph as the colored boys proudly guided the mule with upstanding ears waving a rhythmic understanding of the blessing that had come to them from the man of God whose kindly deed was to transform the waste places into an earthly Paradise. This good man was Dr. T. W. Moore, and his memory is (Continued on page 2)

Road to Bridge End Discussion This Morning

COMMITTEE PRESENT

FROM SANFORD BOARD OF TRADE TO TAKE UP THIS BRIDGE END ROAD QUESTION.

The county commissioners are holding their regular meeting today at the court house with all members present. Among the matters coming before them this morning was the road from Geneva to Bridge End or Ocoola as the new town of the Ocoola Cypress Co., is named. A special committee from the Sanford Board of Trade consisting of A. P. Connelly, G. F. Smith, J. G. Ball, D. F. Whitner, F. W. Mahoney and R. J. Holly appeared before the commissioners relative to this road and A. P. Connelly the chairman asked the board just what was being done on the road that is one of the most important links in the road system of the county. Chairman Brumley of the board called on E. H. Kilbee the commissioner of that district to state what was being done on the road and Mr. Kilbee assured the committee that he was working on the road now and doing all he could with his force of men being split trying to take care of all the important work in his district. It was finally decided that the work would be finished before the rainy season and that the road would be sufficiently improved to give the people of Bridge End a passable road for the time being. There are some thousand people there at present with the population increasing and the present condition of the road precluded their coming to Sanford and the Board of Trade and the business men of this city were willing to take measure to put the road in shape and assist the county commissioners in every way in order that this road could be put in shape.

The county commissioners are being called upon for much road building at present and being short of funds are trying to make haste slowly in these matters but show a disposition to be fair in giving the people of all parts of the county as good a road as they can with the amount of money which they have at their disposal.

BIG THING FOR SMYRNA

Reported Main Shops Of F. E. C. Will Be Moved To New Smyrna
New Smyrna April 1.—For many years it has been periodically rumored in this city that the main shops of the Florida East Coast railroad were about to be moved to New Smyrna and each time the rumors have been proved unfounded.

Again the rumor is revived, and it is said that from authoritative sources information is given out that New Smyrna is to be made the mechanical headquarters of the Flagler system, that an immense roundhouse and that shops are to be erected here and that work on the new structures is to be started some time this summer.

It is said that recently Master Mechanic Miller spent some time here thoroughly inspecting equipment and proposed changes in sites and buildings and that he was accompanied by the chief civil engineer for the company, who made surveys to the directors of the road at their annual meeting held recently in St. Augustine.

It is stated that already plans for the new buildings have been prepared and their erection in this city will represent the expenditure of nearly a half million dollars. The roundhouse and shops will be equipped to handle anything and everything from the lightest to the heaviest work required in connection with repairing and rebuilding locomotives and cars. The only shops on the line now equipped to handle the heaviest of this kind of work are those in St. Augustine, and this equipment is to be moved to the new shops here, and necessary new equipment added.

The moving of the main shops of the system of New Smyrna will mean the bringing of many additional machinists and skilled workmen with their families, to this city to make their homes and a substantial increase in the payroll of the company distributed at this division point.

RABBIT COMMITS SUICIDE

Ran Against the Leg of G. B. Pope and Broke Its Neck

One of the really good animal stories comes to light in the following incident that happened last night on Sanford Heights. As G. B. Pope formerly of this city but now living in Jacksonville was leaving the home of Leslie Went on Sanford Heights about eight o'clock he felt something soft strike his leg about the knee and fall to the ground. His first thought was snakes no doubt and he looked around to see a full grown wild rabbit just breathing its last and about that time a big house cat came running down the walk in pursuit of the rabbit. Mr. Pope picked up the rabbit and discovered that it had broke its neck the impact against his leg being so hard, and in its flight from the cat the rabbit evidently did not see Mr. Pope and ran blindly into him. Mr. Pope says Sanford is the greatest place in the world for not only can the people raise everything here in the food line but the wild rabbits are so plentiful that they run against the pedestrians and offer themselves up for food as it were.

Chicken Pillau and Politics

O. C. Bryant the mayor of Wagner invited his friends and neighbors to a chicken pillau at Wagner last Thursday night and they came by the hundreds for O. C. has the reputation of being a host par excellent. There were many from Sanford, Oviedo, Chuluota, Longwood, Osteen and as far as Orlando. There was a big chicken pillau and all the trimmings and when it is understood that about fifteen fat hens and a big sack of rice went into the pot it means that everyone had plenty to eat. After the big eats William Shelly acting as chairman introduced the candidates present and among those who told the people about their candidacy were E. A. Douglass, E. E. Brady, Judge. Housholder, C. M. Hand and Archie Cameron and other and the evening was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Bryant says he will give another before the campaign is over for he wants the people to know that Wagner is on the map.

ADDED TO ROLL OF HONOR

Soldiers Reported "Missing in Action" Have Been Classed as "Presumed Dead."

According to The Home Sector there are still between 250 and 300 members of the American front line army still unaccounted for.

In speaking of this war mystery of missing men the ex-soldier's magazine says: "Soldiers who go into battle are like men who go down to the sea in ships. There are those who return and those who do not, those who live and those who die. And then there are those who dwell for years in a twilight zone of uncertainty, neither life nor death, from which no word ever comes back to the shores called home."

"A few weeks ago the newspapers of the country announced that there were no more members of the A. E. F. 'missing in action.' The only reason they are not missing in action is that they have been 'presumed dead.'"

"There are still between 250 and 300 members of the American front line army unaccounted for, who, carried on the rolls for months and months as missing in action, seem to have disappeared from the battle field as if by the wave of a magician's wand, leaving neither the ripple of a rumor behind them, the testimony of an eye, nor a footprint in all the paths of the world.

"They are the irreducible minimum of the 50,000 lost, strayed or stolen men that the A. E. F. carried on the morning of Nov. 12, 1918, as missing in action. To guard against injustice to their relatives or friends, the war department has ordered that from henceforth they be carried as 'presumed dead' instead of 'missing in action,' in order that their war risk insurance benefits may be paid. That in brief explains why the American army as it stands demobilized today technically has no 'missing in action.'"

SLEPT AMONG THE DEPARTED

Travelers in Auto Unknowingly Selected Peculiar Place in Which to Pass the Night.

They lived in Milwaukee and "diverged" through to Indianapolis with their two children. They left home early in the morning, arriving at Gary just before dark. Anxious to reach their destination as soon as possible, they left Gary after getting a supply of gasoline.

A few miles out of Gary a heavy rainstorm checked their progress and shrouded the countryside in pitch darkness. Losing their way they decided to turn in at the first gate and spend the rest of the night in the automobile, rather than take chances of traveling by night in the darkness on unknown roads.

A few miles further on the outline of a tree just beyond an open gate was seen, and the auto was guided beneath. The couple and children slept in cramped quarters in the auto and awakened at daybreak next morning. Imagine their horror when they discovered they had slept all night in their auto in a cemetery.—Indianapolis News.

KICKING ON THE CENSUS

We will not be surprised when many Florida towns expressed disappointment at the figures published by the Census Bureau as representing their population. In fact, it has already started. The first real howl to go up was from Lakeland following the announcement that the population of that thriving south Florida city is 7,062, persons. We were under the impression that Lakeland had in the neighborhood of 10,000 souls.

The Lakeland Star is disposed to regard the census figures as a joke. It cites that a church census several months ago showed that there are 6,000 white residents in the city.

There is little doubt that the enumerators did not enumerate all of the citizens in any city, for one reason or another, and the percentage of misses will probably vary in accord with the thoroughness of the enumerator, but as a whole we believe that the census figures will be a great deal nearer correct than those of the State census. No doubt we will be disappointed

SPIRIT OF THE OLD SOUTH

Did you get this picture the other day in the despatches that told of the destruction by fire of the Confederate home at Pewee Valley, Kentucky? The Metropolis would like to believe that every son and daughter of the old South and every person who honors its fine traditions has this account of the tragedy to store away among their treasures. It comes in a dispatch from Louisville, which said: "A rebel battle yell, sounded throughout the Confederate home at Pewee Valley, Ky., eighteen miles from Louisville at six o'clock last night, was the first alarm of a fire that three hours later destroyed the institution.

"Commanded by Sergeant Gus Head, who during the war was the keeper of John Morgan's mount, the one hundred veterans of the home able to walk filed from the building with precision similar to that which made the army of the Confederacy famous. Calmly the hundred grays marched at double quick, to the hospital building made litters of the cots and carried fifty invalid comrades to safety in the little stone church nearby. Many of the latter, however, became excited and are not expected to survive the shock.

"After Sergeant Gus Head, in terse manner, had called the roll, the men a majority of whom were members of Morgan's cavalry regiments during the war, sat cross-legged upon the grass, and, with typical Southern staidism, waited until the smouldering ruin resembled a bivouac of days gone by, then trudged slowly to the little church, spread their blankets and slept."—Miami Metropolis.

HISTORY OF THE SANFORD SECT'N

The farmers were not slow in evolving the idea that this would be a good plan to adopt for irrigation purposes, and very soon after many farmers had installed this crude form of irrigation with such beneficial results, that out of it grew the finest system of sub-irrigation in the world, which combines with its drainage and maintenance of the water table at any level desirable. From that time on celery growing became the great industry of this district as it enabled a man to tell almost to a day when he set out his plants, when he would be in the market with his produce. This system consists of terra cotta or cement sewer pipes, 12 by 30, placed twenty to twenty-four feet apart upright, the bottom ends being plugged with cement. These are known as the supply pockets. They are connected by four-inch terra cotta water pipes cemented tight at all joints, constituting the water main. From each supply pocket is laid at right angles to the water main a lateral line of tile. These lines are made of ordinary three-inch tiles, placed end to end and not cemented. Each joint is covered with a handful of sawdust or palmetto fibre to prevent sand passing through the joints and clogging the tile. At the end of each lateral, opposite the main, a stop pocket is placed. The tile is connected with it in the same manner as to supply the pocket. An other hole is cut directly opposite in the stop pocket and three tile are laid to connect it with an opening drainage ditch. A three inch iron nipple, six inches long, is used to connect the outlet tiles with the stop pockets. The stop pockets provides a means for holding the water in the tiles when it is necessary. For two and a half acres is required twenty eight pieces of 12x30, 158 pieces 4x24, 4,260 pieces of 3x 12 drainage tile, thirty wooden plugs and nine sacks of cement. By adding the cost of labor to that of the above material the cost of installing this system may be obtained. To give satisfaction the land should be level, have a sub-soil or floor of clay, marl or hard pan at a depth of from three to five feet below the surface, and an outlet for drainage.

Among the great advantages are immunity from damage by excessive rainfall, permitting heavy machinery on the land after a big rainfall. The maintenance of the water table which permits keeping water just the right distance below the roots for capillary attraction to bring it in proper proportion to plants, and at the same time permit of cultivation of top soil so as to provide aeration and discourage weeds.

This system is the basis of the great wealth of the Sanford vegetable area, combined with a soil of great natural richness. The artesian flow is one of the great mysteries for some future genius to unravel. A flow of water can only be obtained for a short distance from the St. Johns river and Lake Monroe, and sometimes a comparatively small distance from a well with abundance of water a flow cannot be secured at all, and yet as the level of the water in the lake and river is below the land, the source must be from some other place, and this can only be explained by the fact that the water is drawn up from the banks of which along it exists, and which the level of the artesian flow is below the surface. But it is there, and as a consequence a busy population of Sanford people are on the highway of health, wealth, and happiness.

Every known vegetable can be produced, and in the course of the season cauliflower, beets, cabbage, chicory and lettuce are shipped in carload lots. Romaine or Cos and Escarole lettuce are grown quite extensively in addition to the common varieties. Four crops a year are grown on the same land, the final crop, in addition to the above, being usually corn as a fodder crop for the stock.

On the average, about three thousand cars of vegetables a year are shipped from this point. This is grown on a cultivated area of about eight hundred acres in celery, a hundred acres of lettuce, the shipment of which is now about completed, and two hundred acres of cabbage. Pepper chicory and other vegetables combine to make up a very notable production. No wonder the boosters of Sanford lay claim to the greatest production on any similar acreage in the state of Florida. Indeed, some of them go a good deal further than that. There is no distance a Sanfordite will hesitate to go when proclaiming the superiority of this favored spot.

As one gentleman said: "We have the world skinned a mile, but for goodness sake don't say it in the Grower, or we will have half the people of the United States flocking here under the impression that money is made here by a simple twist of the wrist by which the hand deceives the eye." Far be it from me to give that impression. Marketing conditions always inject an element of chance in the vegetable situation, and there are examples in the past of men who came here with plenty of money and a brand new scheme of cultivation and marketing which was supposed to open the eyes of the natives, who were game to the bitter end, but who finally were replaced by men who laid claims to no special ability, and whose bank accounts were limited, yet achieved wealth on the very same land by playing the game in harmony with local traditions.

Two and a half millions of dollars came into the Sanford district last year for vegetables. A stupendous sum it was a banner year due no doubt to the unusual buying capacity of the nation, and would not be fair estimate of the average earning capacity of Sanford land, but it has left the people in a position to improve and develop with the assurance of immunity from failure in the years to come, and the outlook this year is very rosy indeed. A new factor has entered into the favorable outlook for the Sanford farmer, and that is cooperative selling, and this will undoubtedly be a great utility in the future as it is at present in stabilizing the truck growing business and keeping it where it belongs upward toward the head of the procession of Florida enterprise. There are two cooperative societies here, The Sanford Farmers Exchange, a branch of the Florida Citrus Exchange, and the Sanford Truck Growers, Incorporated. These societies marketed one-half the total crop last year, I am informed, and the results justify the assertion, without going into the merits of the various plans of marketing, that cooperative selling will always in the future be a big factor in the achievements of vegetable growers of this section and the entire state of Florida.

Rex Packard is president of the Sanford Truck Growers, Inc.; J. C. Chamberlain, vice-president, and D. C. Marlowe secretary and treasurer. Of these, Mr. Marlowe was interviewed. He is most enthusiastic and confident of the service of his association, and is a gentleman it is always a pleasure to meet. He is an old newspaper man who has never lost interest in the newspaper fraternity, and as a commercial secretary and all-round promoter of the welfare of Sanford, he has been a valuable asset to the community.

FLORIDA VEGETABLES

Dania Cabbage Movement Lighter, Celery Prices Advancing

Jacksonville, Fla., Apr. 2. On the East Coast cabbage movement is somewhat lighter at Dania but will continue heavy for some weeks at Homestead and Florida City. From Delray south possibly 400 cars still remain, mostly Wakefield but with a considerable percentage of flat cabbage at Homestead and Florida City. Prices during first half of week were around $3.75 at $4 crates. At Plant City and vicinity movement varies 3 at $5 cars daily, with prices $4 at $4.15 crate. In the Fort Myers district only about fourcars left to be shipped. In the Miami district supply is light, quality fair, demand active. Number one stock $6 at 7 crate. Weather warmer and seasonable.

Notwithstanding the heavy haulings which continued throughout the week at Sanford, celery prices continued upward in response to the consistently good demand, closing $3.50 at 3.75 for 10-inch crates of 4-6 dozen bunches. This range shows a gain of 50c and is $1 higher than two weeks ago. Consuming markets were slightly higher at $4 at 4.75. Shipments of Florida celery totaled 302 cars for last week compared with 256 for the previous week. At Sanford celery is estimated to be at least 60 per cent moved. Quality varies in the golden celery some fields showing considerable blight.

A few packages of early cucumber have been moved from Center Hill, Webster and Wauchula. In the Winter Garden Section there are close to 500 cars of cucumbers. Trough cucumbers will be moving in about a week. Open ground cucumbers are growing well and show a good stand, but are later than usual. Movement will begin about May 1 but will be heavier after the 10th. The area planted to cucumbers this season in Florida is estimated to be 5,040 acres as compared with 4,371 for last season. Details by counties for 1920 and 1919, respectively, follow: Alachua, 375, 630; De Soto, 950, 810; Hillsboro, 225, 150; Lake, 200, 225; Lee, 3, 33; Levy, 930, 1,000; Manatee, 100, 60; Marion, 95, 140 Orange, 355, 325; Osceola, 25, 15; Polk, 55, 80; Seminole, 35, 60; Sumter, 1,160, 1,045; total, 5,040, 4,571.

At Sanford planting of peppers continues with crop in good condition. In the East Coast, shipments are increasing somewhat and will reach an average of 1,000 packages weekly by the Miami,aviest at Deerfield and Homestead. In the Port Mayaca section, the crop is well advanced.

Some dairies are rationed," said the engineer, "and the health of the community depends to a large extent on the cleanliness of our milk supply." Mr. Osborne says it is not the purpose of the state board of health to be unreasonably hard on the fruit and milk dealers, and for that reason he is giving them ample time to get their places in shape. "I have given them until April 15 to comply with the health laws, which is ample notice, and do not propose to give further grace. The fruit stands and dairies are the greatest menace to the health of the community when not properly regulated and for this reason I will go after the big fish first."

Following the sanitation drive among fruit and milk dealers Mr. Osborne says he will then take up the matter of outhouses, closets outside the city limits. Tampa Times.
