Murder suspect turns self in

The suspect in the murder of 23-year-old Heather Lee Reitzel of Sarasota has turned himself into authorities in Hillsborough County.

Thirty-one-year-old Gregory Mayes of Sarasota walked into the Hillsborough County Jail in Tampa shortly after midnight last night. He was wanted for killing Reitzel whose body was found about 2 p.m. Monday near Lake Montrose in Seminole County.

Mayes will first face sexual battery and grand theft auto charges in Sarasota County before being brought to Seminole County to be arraigned on murder charges.

Mayes is being held on $100,000 bond on the sexual battery charges. A hold has been placed on him for Seminole County pending his arrest on the first degree murder warrant.

Ending desegregation order Court decision won't affect Seminole County schools

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — While the U.S. Supreme Court handed down a ruling earlier this week calling for the end of court-ordered desegregation in Kansas City, Mo., schools in Seminole County remain under the orders which have bound them since 1970.

Local officials say that what happened there has nothing to do with Seminole's situation.

"We are not under the court order for the same reasons," explained Supt. Paul Hagerty.

How sweet it is

As the school year drew to a close recently, teens at Lakeview Middle savored the sweet tastes of ice cream to celebrate the end of another year. Principal Jim Shupe ordered the party to honor the students for having raised their writing and reading scores by a substantial margin over last year's scores. Amber Muth, Krisie Johnson and Sonya Geisler were among those who enjoyed the honor.

County adds bang to Altamonte fireworks

SANFORD — Three occasions to celebrate calls for a big party so two days of frolic, food, fun and festivities are scheduled in just a few weeks for the observance of Florida's Sesquicentennial, Altamonte Springs 75th birthday and Independence Day. The Seminole County Commissioners agreed Tuesday to add a $20,000 bang to the celebration by funding the July 3 fireworks to observe the state's 150th birthday. Yes, July 3.

After quickly approving the sesquicentennial fireworks, the county commissioners agreed to discuss donating up to $5,000 to individuals attempting to organize a July 4 fireworks display on the Sanford waterfront.

The offer comes just days after Rod Laver, who was spearheading the fireworks campaign, called off

Returning serenity to cemetery

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A fence and clearing of overgrown vegetation are the first steps Seminole County commissioners agreed to take Tuesday to help return peace and serenity to the Pace-Jackson Cemetery.

In recent years, vandals have repeatedly invaded the cemetery through the woods, damaging headstones and above ground crypts. Located south of West 25th Street, a portion of the cemetery, about four acres, is in the City of Sanford and the unincorporated remainder is owned by private property owners and the State of Florida. County commissioner Daryl McLain requested the county clean up the underbrush in the unkempt portion of the graveyard and fence three sides of the property to deter vandals.

McLain said using jail inmate labor to hand clear the heavy underbrush could cut the cost of the work. County staffers estimated 10,400 man hours will be required for hand clearing the site. Contract cost for survey and fencing services is estimated at $25,000 to $35,000. The estimated $10 per square foot cost of the fencing would be almost in half, McLain noted, using inmates labor.

After the brush is cleared, it is hoped police will have better access to patrol the area to deter vandalism.

Efforts will also be made to contact families of See Cemetery, Page 5A

Walls come tumbling down

It may not be Jericho, but with the help of some heavy equipment, City County Investigative Bureau agents brought the walls of three suspected crack houses tumbling down last week. The houses at 20th Street and

1995 Roberta Gatchel Award Tireless volunteer takes top honor

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Kiwanis Club of Sanford named the winner in their annual Roberta Gatchel Woman of the Year Award at their weekly luncheon at the Sanford Civic Center today.

Wynelle Lanier was presented with the award which was established in 1969 in the memory of the Sanford Kiwanis Club benefactress Roberta Gatchel who catered the Kiwanis luncheons for over two decades.

The award is presented to a member of one of Sanford's women's organizations who is nominated by her peers.

The final selection is made by a special committee of Kiwanis members chaired, this year, by Bill Fraasa.

As the award winner, Lanier received a plaque and a traveling floor banner to display at her club meetings.

Lanier was nominated for the Gatchel Award by the Sanford Interdenominational Circle and Prayer Group at the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford.

According to Laura Parker, chairman of that group, Lanier, who is retired from the Seminole County Public Schools, is a tireless servant to the community.

"Now that she has 'retired,' a day does not pass that she does not very quietly take food, send a cheery card or take flowers to someone who isn't well," Parker wrote in the letter of nomination on behalf of the group. "She babysits for young mothers who are undergoing medical treatment or need her help for emergencies."

Lanier was named "Woman of the Year" at the First Presbyterian Church several years ago for her work within that congregation.

Indicted drug figure arrested

MIAMI — A key figure indicted last week in the investigation of the Cali cartel's drug smuggling activities has been arrested trying to enter the United States, U.S. Customs said.

Gerardo San Pedro, 73, of Guatemala City was picked up by agents Monday night as he tried to clear customs at Miami International Airport.

San Pedro was one of 59 people indicted last week for their alleged involvement in drug smuggling.

According to a Customs release, San Pedro is accused of playing a significant role in the smuggling and distribution of cocaine from Colombia that arrived in South Florida concealed in shipments of frozen broccoli.

San Pedro is being held in pretrial detention pending a hearing Friday before a U.S. magistrate.

Lawyer sexually assaulted

FORT LAUDERDALE — A lawyer who was sexually assaulted in a stairwell at the Broward County Courthouse may have been attacked by a man involved in a case the victim previously handled, police said.

The attack happened Friday afternoon in the crowded courthouse and prompted county officials to consider tightening security there.

The woman told police a man grabbed her in the stairwell and held a sharp object to her back. He then assaulted her and made a comment about her job as an attorney.

"There is some indication that it might have been related, but it's too soon to tell," said detective David Robshaw of the Broward County Sheriff's office.

A courthouse employee found the woman lying in a fetal position in the stairwell after the attack.

80 Cubans stop at airport

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Eighty Cubans stopped at this capital's international airport on their way to the United States from refugee camps at the U.S. military base at Guantanamo, Cuba.

"The operation went smoothly and the Cubans who were transported appeared to be comfortable and calm," said Sandra Acuna, of the Organisation of International Migration.

The Cubans stopped in Costa Rica for four hours Tuesday, the third such group since the transfer began last week, Acuna said. Two other groups of 80 Cubans passed through the airport last week on their way to the United States.

Under a new U.S. law designed to discourage Cubans from leaving the island, refugees are not permitted to enter the United States directly from Cuba.

2 serial rapists sought by Dade police

MIAMI — Police are searching for two serial rapists targeting women in Dade County.

One of the rapists is believed to have struck for the fourth time June 2 when an 18-year-old woman was raped at an abandoned building in the sprawling warehouse district near Miami International Airport.

Police said that, like two other victims, the woman was sitting on a bus bench and accepted an invitation to get into a car with a man offering her an office job. She was taken to a vacant building instead, where she was assaulted.

Police believe the man knows the area because in all four attacks the man took the women to warehouses in the area.

A second serial rapist in working North Dade County, police said. This attacker has raped four elderly women ranging in age from 62 to 86 years old, police said.

The attacks on the elderly women began in February and the most recent was last week.

Pilot error caused crash

WEST PALM BEACH — Pilot error probably led to the crash of a small plane in Central Florida last year that killed all 10 people aboard, including a Japanese wedding party, federal officials have concluded.

The Beechcraft 890 King Air slammed onto the shoulder of U.S. 441 near Fort Drum, about 24 miles north of Okeechobee, on Jan. 5, 1994.

Its pilot, Toyoshi Kimura, 43, of Opa-locka, tried an emergency landing on the road after having trouble with one of the plane's two engines. The plane struck a tree, flipped and exploded on impact.

His passengers were a couple wed three days before and their visiting families. Kimura was flying them back to Dade County after a trip to Walt Disney World.

"He had a simple mechanical failure — that's no reason to crash an airplane," investigator Jeff Kennedy of the National Transportation Safety Board in Miami said in a Wednesday story in The Palm Beach Post.

During the flight, the right engine began surging because a bearing in the fuel line had jammed, investigators found.

30 years of dance celebrated

Showcase dancers: We're having a party

Special to the Herald

This year's "Showcase '90," the end of the season production presented by the School of Dance Arts, will be an even bigger occasion than usual. The presentation this year marks 30 years since sisters Miriam and Valerie Weld opened their studio in Sanford in 1960. To celebrate their 30th anniversary, the students of S.O.D.A. are having a party.

Many School Dance Arts alumni, now performing in Broadway shows, on cruise ships, in ballet companies and in Las Vegas productions will be sending their regards to "Miss Miriam and Valerie" Valera on this occasion of their studio's 30th birthday. These former students have made their dancing dreams come true and are now busy entertaining audiences all over the world. You can even applaud a School of Dance Arts dancer performing with Andy Williams in Branson, Mo.

Are Miriam and Valerie proud? You bet they are! Ask them about their dancing doctors, lawyers, schoolteachers, bankers and professors, each one a source of pride. After 30 seasons of training young people and introducing adults and children to the disciplines and joys of dance, the sisters are sure that the next 30 years will be even more exciting than the first three decades.

They have traveled to Russia with students to study with the Bolshoi Ballet, they have also accompanied their students to New York City to dance with the master teachers there. Current and past students are the proud winners of numerous dance scholarships and titles, and first place standings in dance competitions and contests across the country. School of Dance Arts can be seen on national television, dancing at Disney World and even in a few movies. How can they "top" all this? The sisters insist they're just beginning this year's 30th anniversary dance extravaganza — "We're having a party" will be the best yet!

Some 300 dancers, all ages and sizes, will be combining their talents for a series of performances June 16, 17 and 18 at Lake Mary High School cafeteria. The theme "We're having a party," provides high steps, tiny toes, ballerinas and Broadway babes, a perfect opportunity to display their dancing silhouettes. "Daddies and Daughters" as well as "Moms and Kids" will be a prominent part of each of the four productions. Every show is different, beginning with the Friday evening, 7 p.m. premiere. There will be two additional performances on Saturday at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. and one more on Sunday at 2 p.m. All seats are reserved and tickets at $5.75 can be purchased by calling 333-1900. Tickets will also be on sale at the box office before each performance. Find out when your favorite dancer will "shine" and be a part of the celebration.

Kimberly Huffman and Lindsey Von Wellen are among the talented dancers to appear in Showcase '90 performances to be presented June 16, 17 and 18 by Miriam and Valerie's School of Dance Arts.

State picks top employers for women-friendly programs

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — A bank, state agency, university, hospital and two newspapers earned Tuesday they all have something in common — helping women reach their work potential by meeting family needs.

Ten Florida companies were singled out by the state Commission on the Status of Women for a diversity of jobs for women, including upper management positions, and for "women friendly" programs in the workplace.

These include management training, mentoring, child care, elder care resources, health care, job sharing, part-time options, flexible hours, compressed work week, emergency relief funds and even nanny services.

"What these companies have in common is they understand when they help women achieve they help their own companies," said Navita James, commission chairwoman.

Also included in the top 10 were a truck rental company and AvMed-SantaFe of Gainesville, Florida's largest not-for-profit health care provider. It runs health plans, hospitals and programs that include hospice and home care.

The top honor went to Barnett Bank, Inc., which has about 20,800 employees. Women make up 83 percent of the work force.

"We stress life after banking," said James Ivey, president of Barnett Tampa. "There has to be balance."

On the bank's site in Jacksonville are an elementary school, a YMCA and a child care center for about 300 children.

The top 10 employers in the state picked as "women friendly" are:

- Barnett Bank, Inc. of Jacksonville
- Ryder System, a transportation company in Miami
- Baptist Hospital of Miami
- The Miami Herald
- Bayfront Medical Center of St. Petersburg
- St. Petersburg Times
- AvMed-SantaFe of Gainesville, a health care provider
- University of Central Florida in Orlando
- Tachachales Florida State Development Services Institution of Gainesville
- Florida Department of Environmental Protection, Tallahassee

Gay rights ruling passes

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — After an emotional five-hour hearing in packed chambers, Broward County commissioners approved a measure that bans discrimination against homosexuals.

The commission voted 6-1 Tuesday for the ordinance which extends protection in employment, housing and public facilities. Commissioner John Robinson was opposed; he said voters, not commissioners, should decide the gay rights issue.

"The issue, without exaggeration, has been the toughest one for me," said Commissioner John Hart. "In the final analysis, if we cannot create laws to protect, we should not be creating law."

Opponents vowed to begin collecting signatures immediately in an effort to place a measure on next year's ballot that would rescind the new ordinance.

"We intend to use every avenue possible to revisit this issue," said Paul Stearns, South Florida director of the American Conservative Union, a conservative group that opposes gay rights.

About 800 people attended Tuesday's hearing, with the overflow from the commission hearing room seated in two conference rooms with loudspeakers transmitting the proceedings. Security was tight as those entering the chambers were checked for weapons by a sheriff's deputy with a hand-held metal detector.

Gay rights backers wore pink signs attached to their shirts and business reading, "Vote Yes! Others wore T-shirts supporting their cause, such as one that read: "His is Not a Family Value."

More than 300 people from both sides signed up to speak, but fewer actually did. Speakers were limited to two minutes each.

Many of those opposed to the referendum pointed out that Broward voters rejected a gay rights ordinance in 1990 by an almost 3-to-2 margin.

EDITORIAL

Do you know what day it is?

In most cases, at the time this edition of the Sanford Herald is distributed, it is still daylight. As such, we ask you to consider, "did you fly or display the American flag today? It is, after all, Flag Day.

This year's observance may be slightly more prominent than others in the past. There's a fight going on. Organizations are fighting for what they believe is proper. Some people say there should be restrictions against destroying the American flag, that it is unpatriotic, and a slap in the face of our service veterans and government to do so.

Others however, say that prohibiting the destruction of the American flag, if a person wishes to do so, is a violation of the freedom of expression.

One side may suggest, "If you want to express dissatisfaction over the United States, don't just ruin our flag, but move to someplace you think is better. (If you can find such a place)."

The other side responds, "As American citizens, we have the right to say whatever we want, whether for or against something. That is one of the freedoms for which our nation has fought."

Apparently, we have reached a point in what we consider modern society, during which we have nothing else over which to argue. What does it boil down to? It's a matter of interpretation.

Just like gun control or church and state matters, depending on who interprets the wording of our constitution, points can be made both for or against almost anything.

But let's get back to the matter of the flag of the United States of America. It is a symbol of our nation. It represents all of the people, not just a faction or a belief. It does not represent a political party, president, foreign policy or financial level.

Therefore, ripping it up, burying it in the dirt or burning it, doesn't prove anything. People who say doing so is a freedom of expression apparently can't clearly identify it as an expression of what.

People should take pride in our American flag. It should be respected, and it should be flown.

As a side-bar, we will refrain from commenting on minutes of the May 3 Council of Local Government (CALNO) meeting at the Winter Springs City Hall. The minutes state, "There was not a flag in the room, so the Pledge of Allegiance was omitted." (This should speak for itself).

A nation's flag, regardless of the country it represents, stands for everyone and everything. Unity of the people is the only way a nation can succeed. History has seen what happens without everyone working together.

Why then are we fighting about damaging our flag?

LETTER

Book club says thanks

The Golden Eagle Book Club at Goldboro Elementary School would like to say "thank you" publicly to two fine leaders in Sanford. For the past two years former Commissioner Mac McClanahan and Mayor Betty Smith have joined forces to pay for the use of the Sanford Civic Center for the Annual Goldboro Golden Eagle Book Club banquet. This event awards students who have been diligent readers all year and meet the necessary criteria needed to have an invitation to the banquet at the end of the year. Over 24,000 books were read this year at Goldboro Elementary.

The students and their families are invited to this event. Due to the large area needed to have the catered celebration, the Sanford Civic Center was chosen as an ideal location. Funds are limited for this event, so these two fine individuals came to our rescue to make the celebration special for our top readers.

Thank you seems so inappropriate to let Mr. McClanahan and Mayor Smith know how much we appreciate their generosity. Their kindness is greatly appreciated to have made our Sixth Annual Golden Eagle Book Club banquet a great success and one that our students can always remember. We say a huge "thank you very much" for all your help and concern over the years in educational functions at Goldboro.

Welfare reform: Just do the math

When Republicans in the House of Representatives first proposed their welfare-reform bill, it was suggested that the children of families kicked off welfare could be sent to orphanages. The idea was quickly scrapped. Not only was it a public-relations nightmare -- it's hard to say you're pro-family when you plan to wrench children from their parents and put them in institutions -- it turned out to be far more expensive than its proponents ever realized. It costs about $18,000 a year to provide a family of three with Aid to Families With Dependent Children cash payments, food stamps, housing subsidies and Medicaid. The cost to put just one child in an institution is at least $30,000 a year.

This might have told the Republicans something. It might have told them that, contrary to their rhetoric, subsidizing on welfare is not easy living. Trying to provide shelter, food and clothing for a family on $480 a month in cash and food stamps -- roughly the national average for families on welfare -- is hard work. It's difficult. So difficult, in fact, that the state can't do it.

A similar conclusion occurred after the work requirement was proposed. Unlike the orphanage suggestion, this was a very popular notion -- one that seemed to truly be in the public interest. Putting welfare recipients to work, it would seem, benefits everyone -- the recipient benefits from job training and a boost in confidence and self-esteem. The rest of us get another productive member of society. The trouble is, like the orphanage proposal, work-for-welfare costs more, not less, than the current system.

Again, this conclusion might have suggested to our fearless leaders that finding gainful employment isn't always a simple matter of reading the want ads. Sometimes there just aren't jobs.

Or sometimes there are jobs but they don't pay enough to cover costs like transportation and day care, which is where work-for-welfare becomes a money-loser.

Workfare, as it is called, is still a good idea, one that could possibly save money in the long run. But it can only work if its immediate goal is to improve lives rather than trim budgets.

Sending welfare babies to state institutions, however, is an entirely bad idea. And though Republicans may have stopped talking about orphanages, their plans for welfare reform may put more children in them.

A recent study by the Center for Reproductive Law and Policy makes the sobering point. If we are to reduce the amount of federal money spent on welfare -- as the Republican plan will surely do -- then some families will lose their benefits. Since being kicked off welfare is not the equivalent of getting a job, it follows that some welfare mothers will no longer be able to support their children and will have no choice but to give them over to the state. And that means orphanages. OK, maybe not orphanages. I'll be a good sport and call them group homes, or foster families. Whatever you want to call them, they're more expensive than welfare.

Group or foster care may be the only alternative for abused and neglected children, but there is simply no way to justify having the state rear the children of parents whose only flaw is being poor.

It's difficult. So difficult, in fact, that the state can't do it.

Trying to do the right thing

WASHINGTON -- The woman, whom I'd just met, was telling me a story. It didn't come easily.

"When it comes to race," said the fidgeting, middle-aged white woman, "I've always tried to do the right thing."

She had for years contributed to civil rights groups, rallied against those who made racist jokes and raised her children to despise racism. Even in her work, she helped disadvantaged African Americans.

So her reaction upon visiting the offices of a successful black business puzzled her. The receptionists were polite; the offices immaculate. The place had a buzz -- the prosperous purr that emanates from money being made.

But somehow, she felt uncomfortable. "Then I realized I didn't think it was supposed to be this way. Black people weren't supposed to be doing this well."

"And I realized that I was racist."

Oniged -- she'd actually said the "R" word. Owned up to it, even. Suddenly I was fidgeting.

Not because of her story -- who doesn't harbor hidden stereotypes? But because in years of discussing racism, I've met few folks willing to admit feeling it.

The racist is always the other guy. The man in the photo with the sheet over his head, the woman waving the swastika. Racists are the ones who join hate groups or spit ugly epithets. It's them -- down South, across town, in Congress or even next door.

It certainly isn't us.

But life has taught me two basic truths:

However mature we are, most people remain children inside -- craving love and gratitude for our strengths, terrified that our flaws will be revealed.

And virtually everybody's a racist.

Racism, like so much else in America, is different for whites than for blacks -- but we all are infected. Even as a child, I saw proof everywhere.

In the newspaper in my largely black Midwestern hometown, in which "Negroes" -- my family, teachers, doctors and clergy -- were invisible unless they played sports or committed crimes. On TV, where seeing any black person was so rare as to cause my neighbors to gawp and gawk. In my own neighborhood, where we routinely dismissed fellow African Americans as too dark, nappy-haired or wide-nosed to be smart or beautiful.

Over the years, I got eloped with the proof so often that I learned to see it coming.

But not always: As in 1990, when I learned that our white 4-year-old neighbor -- the kid who was my younger son's best friend, who hero-worshipped my older son and who adored me -- announced to a teacher, "I don't like black people." Reminded about us, he explained, "But they aren't black."

How could we be? We were his trusted friends. Black people were scary, dangerous -- and different.

If a loving child whom I knew to be raised by parents dedicated to equality could absorb that and deny what his own eyes told him, then racism must be everywhere -- in our water, air, the soil on which we step. Enough to become part of us.

So although a few rare souls are untrained by racism, most Americans share this common and contagious malady. We know it, even though many of us refuse to admit it.

Denial, as they say, ain't just a river in Egypt.

But perhaps our common problems could become a common strength. Knowing that we were raised on racism as surely as on Gerber's and the Pledge of Allegiance, we can remove some of its stigma.

Acknowledging our shared illness, we can treat it, as we would any disease.

Admitting that we are a nation in recovery, we can give each other a break.

"A break" does not mean accepting racism for a second. It means giving some room to those who chumily reveal what most Americans harbor.

For whites, that requires acknowledging the "secret" everyone knows -- you have some racist feelings. It means challenging those feelings, then changing the behavior that flows from them. Owning up to the commonness -- and wrongness -- of white racism would give both groups a shot at abolition.

For blacks, it means facing our own hidden prejudices. Prejudices against whites, surely. But also against other blacks, since we have internalized the contempt many whites have for us, as the black-on-black murder rates sadly suggest. It means giving up our hypocritical "Ah-hahi!" each time a white person stumbles. It means untying the knots that keep many of us from loving our black selves. And that, even as we fight racism's cruelty, we should acknowledge that most whites caught the contagion as kids. Just like us.

Getting over it is everyone's grown-up responsibility. So is giving one another a break. Neither will be easy.

Racism, like so much else in America, is different for whites than for blacks -- but we all are infected.

Cheats take easy advantage

WASHINGTON -- Two words appear to have been left out of the Department of Energy's "small disadvantaged business" program: Common sense. A review of the program provides an embarrassing reminder of why the Clinton administration's review of affirmative action is long overdue.

While this program was launched with the best intentions, it has evolved into a system where cheating not only goes unpunished -- it can often bring multimillion-dollar windfalls from the federal government.

The "small disadvantaged business" program was designed to give minority-owned firms a leg up in winning contracts from the government. As a result, large private firms like Westinghouse, Boeing and Martin Marietta, which operate entire DOE facilities, are required to set aside a certain part of their subcontracting work for minority-owned firms. Unfortunately, neither the DOE nor the contracting firms were required to check if the subcontractors really were as disadvantaged as they claimed.

Take for example the case of 12 small companies that applied for the program a few years ago claiming to be owned by Native Americans, and therefore socially disadvantaged. Without verifying if these firms were minority owned, the primary contracting companies awarded them a combined $14.8 million in subcontracts.

When DOE auditors began snooping around after the fact, the subcontractors were unable to provide any "documented proof" of their ancestry. Instead, the owners said they relied "mainly on what they had been told by relatives or information recorded in a family bible."

Sadly, this was not an isolated incident. By failing to police its own policies, the DOE has created a system where subcontractors who apply are essentially on the honor system when it comes to reporting their minority status. Awards are given out based on "vendor self-certification," where business owners fill out forms claiming to be socially or economically disadvantaged.

According to the audit, the DOE's "management and operating contractors awarded $28.3 million -- or 90 percent of the money reviewed in a random audit -- to 53 subcontractors whose eligibility was questionable because they were not owned and managed by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals." The majority of these false self-certifications were made by "subcontractors who claimed to be socially disadvantaged" but were not.

One business owner who pleaded hardship was found to have a net worth in excess of $750,000. Four subcontractors who claimed to be "small disadvantaged businesses" actually had annual sales ranging from $40 million to $70 million, even though the program is designed for companies with annual sales of less than $4.5 million.

In this program, however, it may not pay to be honest. Before the report came out, DOE not only failed to check up on its subcontractors, it also failed to penalize those who broke the rules. DOE officials now say that violators will be punished, yet there are no plans to aggressively beef up compliance enforcement.

Meanwhile, the DOE says it's working on the problem. "We're coming up with a process that would randomly check the subcontractors periodically," Corlis Moody, director of minority economic impact at DOE, told our reporter Aaron Karp. "Now that we know there is a problem, we're trying to be more careful."

Neither the DOE nor the controlling firms were required to check if the subcontractors really were as disadvantaged as they claimed.

This year's effort because of numerous roadblocks including liability insurance, inadequate donations and it is too late to contract for July 4. Money donated to this year's effort will be refunded or held in escrow in hopes a fireworks display can be organized next year. This is the second year in a row there will be no professional fireworks in Sanford.

Safety along with a built in rain date are the reasons cited for scheduling the fireworks.

Experienced pyrotechnicians are booked solid on July 4th and by conducting the display the night before Independence Day, they are readily available.

An estimated 100,000 people are expected at the celebration at Crane's Root. Andrea Dennison of the sesquicentennial committee said. Factoring in the anticipated crowd, she added the $20,000 donation would equal 20-cents per person for fireworks.

individuals buried at Pace-Jackson to help in the volunteer effort to restore the site. After the cemetery is cleaned and secured the commissioners will deal with the questions of grave restoration and future maintenance.

The county staff estimated there are 500 grave sites. The potential cost ranges from $150 to $850 per grave for restoration. Commissioners Dick Van Der Weide and Pat Warren expressed concern about using county money on private land and the number of requests they might receive from other cemeteries in the county. However, in the end, both agreed the county should clean the site as provided by state statutes.

Chairman Randy Morris said peace and dignity should be provided at the cemetery and the seemingly abandoned graves kept up. Commissioner Win Adams agreed.

Mapping route to meeting

A week of number crunching begins Thursday as the Seminole County Board of Commissioners begins reviewing budget requests for 1989-90. Due to remodeling work at the County Services Building, the commission will meet at Sylvan Lake Park sports complex off Lake Markham Road. Outgoing county manager Ron Rabun will present a budget overview beginning at 9 a.m. followed by presentations by various department heads. The review sessions are scheduled June 15, 21 and 23. June 28 is the proposed date for the BOC to set tentative millage rates.

explained, white residents had fled to the suburbs, leaving the poorer, mostly minority students in crumbling facilities with out-of-date learning materials. The educational levels for minorities there, he said, slipped to abysmal levels for minorities while white suburban students flourished.

In Seminole County, he continued, the minority population was centered in Sanford and the district was ordered to ensure that the minority population at Seminole High School not be "significantly more than 35 percent."

Educational levels, he said, were never at issue. Still, some parents in the county are wearing green ribbons to symbolize their fight for parity in the schools. Seminole High, they say, struggles far below the other district schools. The school district has failed to support that school equally, they say, because of the large minority population.

Seminole is a smaller school with a larger minority population than other district schools, Hagerty said. Test scores are lower than in other district schools, but they are on the rise.

That is not, he said, because of the racial make up of the school.

The recent reasoning battles for Seminole County high schools are completed.

"The court ruling has nothing to do with us," Hagerty emphasized.

There has been some talk among school board members and school district administrators of petitioning the courts to seek unitary status (to have the court order lifted) for Seminole County. Such a status would not be based on test scores, as Kansas City sought to do.

"I think we can show that we have been doing a good job of complying with desegregation," school board chair Sandy Robinson has said.

In the Kansas City case, as in other desegregation cases, a federal judge ordered a government unit, the state, to spend millions each year on desegregation. He also ordered city officials to raise property taxes.

Monday's 5-4 ruling by the Supreme Court won't immediately end the 18-year-long, $1.3 billion program.

But the justices ruled that the federal judge had gone too far by ordering the district to develop magnet schools to attract white students from surrounding suburbs. Just six years ago, a more liberal court had declined to consider that very question.

Information from the Associated Press was included in this report.

Court ruling may make judges less willing to order desegregation plans

By GALLY STEFF BUNDS
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON — Judges may be less willing to order sweeping school desegregation plans after a Supreme Court ruling against an ambitious Kansas City, Mo., effort, educators predict.

The ruling doesn't mean such efforts, begun with the landmark 1954 Brown vs. Board of Education case, are dead, attorneys said.

But for urban districts that still have mostly minority students, crumbling buildings or little taxpayer support, it may be time to look for other solutions, some community leaders said Tuesday.

"It's inevitable — we have to begin preparing for life without desegregation money," said the Rev. Nelson Thompson, a Kansas City civil rights leader.

"What we have to do now is focus on local solutions, get the civic and business leaders to come together with parents both white and black, and figure out 'How do we save our district?'" he said.

For 40 years, since the Brown ruling, court desegregation orders have been common in big-city schools.

For years, conservatives have argued that sweeping, mandatory desegregation plans — some involving busing — actually hurt inner-city districts more than help.

In the Kansas City case, as in other desegregation cases, a federal judge ordered a government unit — the state of Missouri — to spend millions each year on desegregation. He also ordered city officials to raise property taxes. Busing was not part of Kansas City's plan.

Monday's 5-4 ruling by the Supreme Court doesn't end the 18-year, $1.3 billion program.

But the justices ruled that the federal judge had gone too far by mandating the creation of magnet schools designed to attract white students from surrounding suburbs. Just six years ago, a more liberal high court had declined to consider the same question.

Perhaps more significantly for the dozen or so districts still under court order, the justices ruled that a desegregation plan doesn't have to continue just because black students' achievement scores remain below the national average.

In a case with similar overtones, lawyers for children in Wilmington, Del., recently argued that lags in achievement indicated the need for a continued desegregation plan. That ruling, still pending, could be influenced by the Supreme Court decision.

And plaintiffs in Hartford, Conn., recently argued that state officials had failed to correct socioeconomic patterns that led to schools' racial imbalance. A state judge threw out that case, but it is being appealed.

David Armor of the Social Philosophy and Policy Center is among researchers arguing that socioeconomic factors, such as poverty, that contribute to achievement gaps can't be blamed "entirely on the schools" and thus shouldn't be part of desegregation orders.

The intent of the 1954 Brown ruling was never to guarantee a good education to black students, odd as that seems, Armor insisted. All it said was that black children deserved equal access.

"We all want minority children to have good educations," Armor said. "The point is, it might be time to look at different solutions."

But many big-city school officials feel differently. The Brown decision was intended to rid schools of discrimination, and poor test scores might be one remnant of such discrimination, Michael Caserly, director of the Council of Great City Schools, said.

Thompson, who heads Kansas City's Martin Luther King Urban Center, remembers how Kansas City voters refused to approve a school tax increase for 20 years, letting schools run down and straining education.

He blames "white folks who move to the suburbs to escape the problems of the city, and take their resources with them." Now is the time to persuade whites they have a stake in black children's education, too, he said.

"You think you can get away from crime, drug abuse, kids without education, just because you yourself flee to the suburbs?" he asked. "That's not going to happen."

Lanier

According to Parker, Lanier has given tirelessly of her time and of her talents. She does whatever is necessary to make sure that everyone has what they need (and then some).

"Our group sponsors a needy family, especially at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter, and we depend on Wynelle to do the shopping for us," she wrote.

"One Christmas, she took $800 and filled up three or four car trunkfuls. She spent hours checking prices in all the stores and thrift shops and managed to feed and clothe a mother and two children and even found a sparkling new red wagon with sides so the little boy who was too ill to walk could be pulled around in fine style."

Lanier came to Sanford in 1941. She graduated from Seminole High School.

As a young woman, she was left widowed with a small son, David. She raised him alone, but still found the time to stay active in church activities.

She has helped with the Meals-On-Wheels program and works at the Hospice Thrift Shop.

"She belongs to few organizations but very quietly goes about the business of visiting the sick, transporting people to and from the hospital and lending a helping hand wherever there is need," Parker stated in her letter of nomination.

Lanier is the proud grandmother of Jennifer and Lindsay.

Boomers move into old age, not all forecasts are bleak

By CALVIN WOODWARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — It may be as inexorable as the march of time itself — the upheaval ahead when the baby boomers retire, stop giving and start taking.

Concern about the affordability of social programs turns to alarm when baby boom retirement enters the equation. Medicare, especially, being among the hardest to control, seems set up for a fall.

It's as if that brawny generation — some 76 million strong — is going to kick back, head for the beachfront condo and Buck Dry What's Left Of The Nation's impossible burden? I just think that's overdoing it."

But some experts say that the forecasts of disaster are premature and that Americans need not be slaves to numbers pointing to a surge of old people starting about 15 years from now.

"Can America Afford to Grow Old?" economist Gary Burtless asked in the title of a book he helped write several years ago. "Yes, I think so," he answers now in his Brookings Institution office.

However, not without disruption, challenge and sacrifice, he says. In the form of higher taxes, fewer benefits, delayed retirement or a mix. "But is it an

American Lung Golf

ORLANDO — Tee off against lung disease at the 1st Annual "Breath of Life" Golf Classic to benefit the American Lung Association of Central Florida on Wednesday, June 21 at Timacuan Golf and Country Club in Lake Mary.

Sponsored by Fisons Pharmaceuticals and WLOQ-FM, the proceeds from the tournament will be used to better serve children in Central Florida that suffer from asthma.

There will be separate divisions for men and women. The $100 registration fee, $350 for a foursome, includes continental breakfast, lunch, green fees, cart and awards. Hole-in-One Car provided by Saturn of Orlando. There will be a Grand Prize drawing for two round trip domestic tickets on Continental Airlines compliments of Travel Concepts of Winter Park.

For more information or to sign up, call the Lung Association at 889-3401 or 1-800-LUNG-USA.

Marlins sign amateurs

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins announced Tuesday that they have signed four more draft choices, including No. 3 pick Randy Winn, an outfielder from Santa Clara University.

Also signed were left-hander Michael Tejera from Miami Southwest High School, a sixth-round pick; right-hander Jonathan Wierak from Acad. of the Holy Angels in Richfield, Mn., a 12th-round choice; and infielder Steve Goodell of Arizona State, taken in the 17th round.

Florida also signed Dan Chastain, an undrafted catcher from the University of Portland.

Lookouts bury Suns

JACKSONVILLE — Ruben Santana led Chattanooga with four RBIs to a 15-0 victory over Jacksonville in Southern League baseball.

Jamie Dismuke had three runs for the Lookouts, and Watkins drove in two, with a double and a three singles.

FHSAA levies record fine

WEST PALM BEACH — Cardinal Newman High School was fined a state-record $7,835 by the Florida High School Activities Association for a recruiting violation involving a female track star.

Ramona Saridakis won Class 3A titles in the 1,600- and 3,200-meter races last month as a junior at Newman. She won't be allowed to run for the private school next year but may transfer and compete at another school.

In a letter to principal Colleen Courtney, FHSAA Commissioner Ron Davis said he found that assistant track coach Dave Compton "used undue influence and/or special inducement to encourage (Saridakis) to attend Cardinal Newman" before her transfer last semester from John I. Leonard, a public school.

Davis fined Newman the maximum $2,500 for violation of the FHSAA's policy on recruiting. Newman must also pay $5,135 in expenses to cover the cost of the investigation and a court recorder and legal counsel for a hearing last month in Gainesville.

Mets best Marlins

NEW YORK — Jeff Kent, coming off a 10-game road trip in which he batted .188, had a homer, triple and single and drove in two runs as New York snapped a three-game losing streak with a 7-3 victory over Florida.

Rico Brogna also knocked in a pair of runs with a homer and single to support the pitching of Bret Saberhagen for the Mets.

Saberhagen (2-2) scattered six hits while striking out 10 and walking two before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. John Burkett (4-6) yielded seven runs on 12 hits and two walks in 5 1-3 innings.

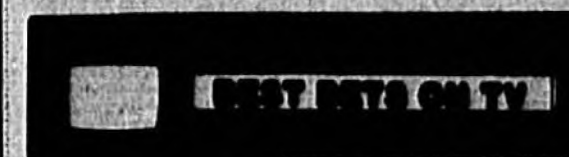

Kent's homer, his seventh of the season, keyed a three-run rally in the fourth that put New York on top 4-2. Brett Butler and Jose Vizcaino each had RBI singles in the inning.

Devils oust Flyers

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The New Jersey Devils exorcised the ghosts of a Game 6 failure one year ago and advanced to their first Stanley Cup final Tuesday night with a 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers.

The organization that Wayne Gretzky once compared to Mickey Mouse won the Eastern Conference final in six games and it will now meet the Detroit Red Wings on Saturday in a best-of-7 series for the NHL title.

Three times previously the New Jersey was a win away from a berth in the finals. New Jersey lost Game 7 of the 1986 Wales Conference final to Boston, and last year it led the New York Rangers 3-2 in games.

Cheers' upset secures championship for Sunniland

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Cheers made it easy for the Sunniland Corporation.

Cheers used a six-run fifth inning and a five-run seventh to pull off a 15-7 upset of the second place She Devils and hand Sunniland Corporation the championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Women's Spring Slowpitch Softball League Tuesday evening at Pinehurst Park.

With the title in hand, Sunniland Corporation kept its perfect record unblemished with a 17-5 triumph over Fairwinds Credit Union.

The She Devils could have forced a tie for the league championship if they had won its last two games and Sunniland Corporation had lost its final two contests.

Sunniland Corporation is now 8-0 on the season and is followed by the She Devils (5-3), Cheers (3-5) and Fairwinds Credit Union (0-8).

The regular season will conclude next week at Pinehurst Park with Sunniland Corporation taking on the She Devils at 7 p.m. and Fairwinds

Credit Union facing Cheers at 8 p.m.

Contributing to a 26-hit Cheers offense were Robin Heisel (four singles, two runs scored, one RBI), Carol Dick (four singles, two RBI), Patty Polley (one triple, two runs scored, one RBI), Ann Garnett (three singles, one run scored, two RBI) and Lynn Webb (three singles, one RBI).

Also contributing were Debbie Berning (two singles, two runs scored, two RBI), Denise Stallings (two singles, two runs scored, one RBI), Lisa Hoen (two singles, one run scored, two RBI), Jenny Blowers (one single, three runs scored, one RBI), Linda Bearing (one single, two runs scored) and Michelle Berning (one single, one RBI).

Co-leaders keep pace

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Susanne's Oyster Reef/Lake Mary Pub coasted and Wheelch & Howard came from behind to win as the co-leaders of the Sanford Recreation Department Tuesday Night Men's Spring Slowpitch Softball League remained tied at Chase Park.

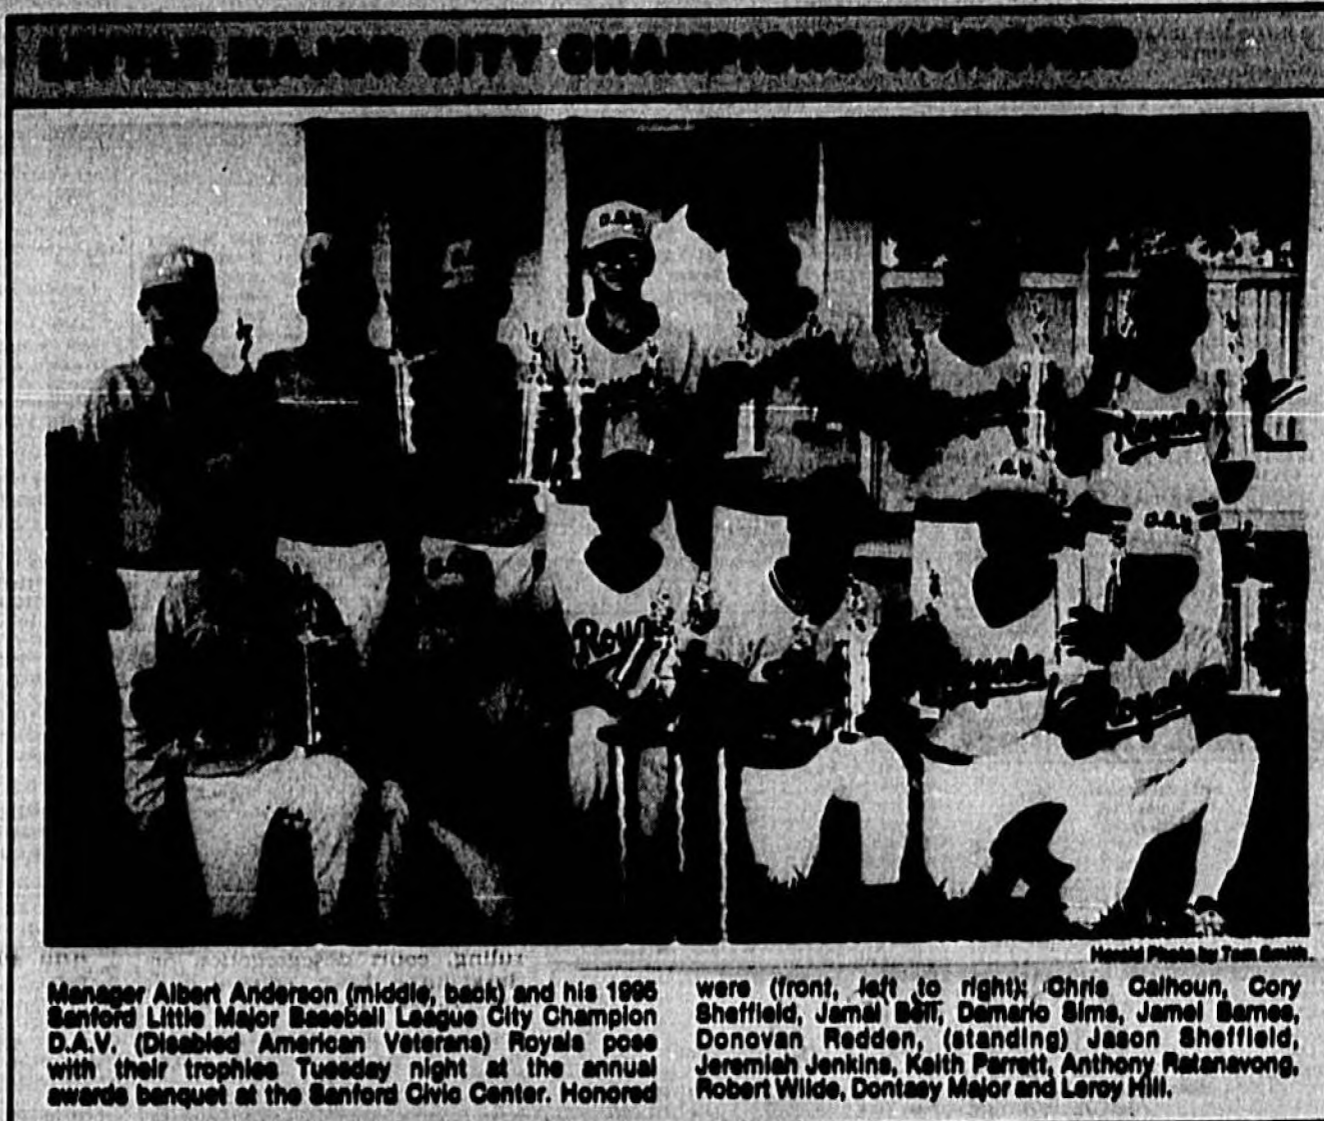

Jason Music tossed a four-hitter and Manny Silvia drove in four runs as Susanne's Oyster Reef/Lake Mary Pub whitewashed the Devils 11-0 in the first game of the evening.

In the nightcap, MJS Concrete led 3-0 after three innings and 4-3 in the top of the fifth inning, but Joey Glaas singled in tie-breaking and insurance run in the bottom of the fifth inning and James Thompson and Freddie Marino drove in two more runs in the sixth as Wheelch & Howard pulled out an 8-5 triumph.

Susanne's Oyster Reef/Lake Mary Pub and Wheelch & Howard are both 5-1, while MJS Concrete are 2-4 and the Devils are 0-6.

Roach rallies for Late Model victory

By PAUL BARRELLA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Ronnie Roach charged from the rear of the field to win the 25-lap Late Model feature event last Friday night, June 9, at Orlando Speedway.

After jumping to the early lead, Roach tangled with Mario Comella on lap four, a wreck that put Comella in the pits and sent Roach to the tail end of the lead lap for the restart.

On the restart, Bruce Everett took the lead with Jason Burkett in hot pursuit. Two laps later, Burkett took over the No. 1 spot.

Once on the point, Burkett welcomed all challenges and appeared to be on the way to his first-over feature win. But with three laps to the checkered flag, mechanical problems reared up and hit Burkett, who drove on the front suspension and pulled into the pits, finished for the evening.

"I thought for sure that this would be my first win," said Burkett, who has been driving Late Models for less than a year. "The left rear brake caliper broke and that put me out."

"I was a little bit disappointed with how the race ended for me, but overall, I was satisfied with my performance. I proved tonight that I can run up front."

Roach, who had worked his way back into second place, assumed the lead on the restart with Ron DiCenzo taking over the No. 1 spot. Roach held off the competition to post his second win of the year. DiCenzo was second ahead of Bruce Everett, Kevin Lawrence, and Clint Carter.

Doni Mott used his advantage of starting on the pole to win the first lap of the 25-lap feature event for Mudcats.

Having qualified eight, Mott started the race from the back.

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Despite being outhit 7-3, the Lyman Bullets pulled out a 3-2 win over the host Lake Mary Mudcats in National Amateur Baseball Federation A team play Tuesday night at Lake Mary High School.

NABF A teams consist largely of the varsity players of the sponsoring high school.

After surrendering a run in the top of the first and two more in the second, Lake Mary's Nick Alexander tossed five shutout innings. Of the three runs, only one was earned, as Alexander tossed a three-hitter, striking out seven and walking three.

While it wasn't much offensive support, a trio of Lyman pitchers made it stand up.

Starter Daniel Nauth worked three scoreless innings despite allowing three singles and walking a batter. Odom came on and, even though he was touched for two runs on three hits while striking out one, was the winning pitcher.

Danny Bogeja finished for the Bullets, striking out two and giving up a single, to earn the save.

Offensively, Freddie Young led the Bullets with a pair of singles and a run scored. Jason Gronert added a

On verge of being swept, Magic search for answers

By BOB SAUM

HOUSTON — One loss away from being swept from the NBA Finals, the Orlando Magic are haunted by what might have been.

If not for that blown 30-point lead and Nick Anderson's four missed free throws in Game 1, if not for Robert Horry's clutch 3-pointer in Game 3, if Dennis Scott could make a few shots ...

"Nick makes those free throws in Game 1 and it's 1-0," Scott said. "If I shoot just 40 percent the other night, we win the ball game."

If, if, if ...

"But for some missed free throws, a couple of missed assignments and some great clutch shooting by them, we could just as easily be up 2-1," Orlando coach Brian Hill said. "But the situation is the same regardless of whether the games were close or blowouts. We're still down 0-3 and have to win four in a row to win the world championship."

The odds against them are off the chart. No team has come from down 3-0 to win an NBA playoff series.

The options in Game 4 tonight are simple. Either the Magic lose and chalk it up as a learning experience on the way to what many believe is a certain championship down the road, or they win and move on to Game 5 Friday night.

With a victory, maybe the momentum change, maybe Houston's confidence is shaken.

maybe the Magic can win another one and send the series back to Orlando.

"It would be a confidence builder," Anderson said. "It would give us something to ride on."

Hill said he might make some changes tonight. He's considering changing defenders against Clyde Drexler and he might bring Brian Shaw, Anthony Bowie or Donald Royal in to rev up the running game if Anderson and Scott continue to toss up errant 3-pointers.

But he said he will do nothing drastic. The problem, he said, has been with execution, not strategy.

Ordinarily, Anderson and Scott are the 3-point shooters whose deadly accuracy burns those Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1988 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1988 games) in the third column.

Raines went 0-for-3 with a walk and a sacrifice bunt as Chicago broke a four-game losing streak with a 7-4, 10-inning victory over the Oakland Athletics Tuesday afternoon. The White Sox will play at the California Angels at 10:30 p.m. tonight on WGN and possibly ESPN.

Lilly's free kick goal ignites U.S. blowout

By STEPHAN BASTIEN
 AP Sports Writer

GAULE, Sweden — Kristine Lilly's dream goal will make any highlight film on women's soccer.

She's perked in central mid-field, 35 yards from the Japanese goal, and ready to take a free kick after eight minutes. She never hesitates despite the long distance.

Bingo! Lilly bends the ball powerfully with her left foot over a wall of players and it flies high into the net past goalie Junko Osawa, who appears to be screened.

It's a goal Lilly probably will never forget. It was The Kick in this women's World Cup.

The Japanese were stunned. "That free kick goal hurt us," said Japan's coach Tamotsu Suzuki after the defending world champions' 4-0 victory that set up a semifinal against Norway on Thursday.

Lilly, one of nine returning members of the 1991 championship squad, has scored 35 goals in a record 84 international appearances for the United States. But this was by far her most spectacular goal.

"For sure," she said. "I've been practicing and watching (Oviedo resident) Michelle Akers doing them over and over. To hit one finally, it feels really good."

U.S. coach Tony DiCiccio said Lilly, who scored her second goal with a shot from inside the penalty box to put the Americans ahead 2-0 in the 42nd minute, is having an outstanding championship.

"She's played well in many different positions," DiCiccio said. "She's playing with a lot of heart and soul. It was great that she beat that first one in. That got us a big lift."

Tiffany Milbrett and Tisha Venturini scored the other goals for the United States, which is unbeaten in the tournament after winning two and tying one in the round-robin phase last week.

Milbrett is a World Cup rookie from Portland, Ore. She replaced Akers when the star striker sustained a mild concussion and a banged up knee after just six minutes in the round-robin opener (3-3) against China. She and Lilly both have scored three goals.

 spending too much time worrying about Shaquille O'Neal or Anfernee Hardaway. Now Anderson and Scott are misfiring far more often than they're connecting. It's a situation they never anticipated.

"In the first three rounds, that was either myself or Nick making those 3s or making those big plays down the stretch," Scott said.

Anderson admits he hasn't been the same since he missed four free throws in the final 10.5 seconds of regulation in the 120-118 overtime loss in Game 1.

"I don't feel like I've been in the flow of things, not at all," he said.

He's encouraged, though, by the two 3-pointers he made, one of them from about 25 feet with a defender all over him, near the end of Sunday night's 108-103 loss in Game 3.

"I kind of feel my shot coming back, the confidence, all those things," he said. "I'm down, but I'm not out. I'm not going to hang my head and walk around here like it's over."

The statistics tell Orlando's sorry shooting story. Anderson is shooting 36 percent from the field, 9-for-27 from 3-point range. Scott has made 26 percent of his shots and is 5-for-23 on 3-pointers. Both had made better than 40 percent of their 3-pointers in the regular season and in the first three rounds of the playoffs. Their numbers against Houston are in stark contrast to those of their two high-profile teammates.

O'Neal has made 60 percent of his shots and is averaging 29 points per game. Hardaway is averaging 26 and, while his 3-point shooting percentage of .375 isn't great, it's the best on the team.

But don't expect the Magic to start blaming each other for their predicament.

"I'm not the type to point fingers," O'Neal said. "We as a team haven't shot the ball well. We haven't played good defense. That's why we're down 0-3."

The Orlando players and their coach insist it has little to do with anything Houston is doing on defense.

"They're rotating out and challenging our shooters, but in Game 3 I thought we got great looks," Hill said. "In looking at the game film, I thought there was only one we took that could be called a turnover or under pressure."

And still they made only 8 of 31 3-pointers.

"It's not like I'm out there forcing things or taking bad shots," Scott said. "Then I'd be making myself look worse than I'm already doing. I guess that's the biggest positive. As we watch the tape as a group, we see that we're taking good shots, we're just not making them."

What's cooking?

Serve a breakfast pizza 'fore' Dad

Serve Dad a fabulous breakfast or brunch when you make him this deliciously easy breakfast pizza. A tender yeast dough crust is topped with fluffy scrambled eggs, hash browns, turkey sausage, Jack and Cheddar cheese. Made with frozen bread dough, this breakfast can be made quickly and effortlessly. It is sure to be a hit, especially when each slice has only 320 calories.

BREAKFAST PIZZA

- 1 (1 lb.) loaf frozen bread dough, white or honey wheat, thawed
- 10 eggs
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 clove fresh garlic, minced
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 3 cups refrigerated or frozen hash browns
- 4-6 links low-fat turkey Italian sausage, cooked and sliced into 1/4-inch slices
- 1 cup Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
- 1 cup Cheddar cheese, shredded

Preheat oven to 425°F. Spray a 12-inch round pizza pan with non-stick cooking spray. On a lightly floured surface, roll out thawed dough to a 12-inch round circle. Place in pizza pan, pressing dough to corners. Prick dough several times with a fork. Bake in oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven, set aside. Spray a large fry pan with non-stick cooking spray. In a large bowl, whip eggs together with a whisk, season with salt and pepper (and hot sauce if desired). Scramble eggs until cooked through, yet slightly wet; set aside. Re-spray pan with non-stick cooking spray. Brown the onions, peppers, and garlic over medium-low heat. Add the hash browns, sausages, Jack and Cheddar cheese. Return to oven to cook for an additional 7-10 minutes or until cheese has melted. Slice into 12 equal pieces and serve.

The next time you barbecue, try chicken breasts in a special sauce.

HONEY-MUSTARD TERIYAKI CHICKEN

- 1 1/2 Tbsp. prepared Dijon mustard
- 1 1/2 Tbsp. honey
- 1 large clove garlic, pressed
- 1/2 cup Kikkoman Teriyaki Marinade and Sauce
- 6 boneless chicken breast halves

Combine mustard, honey and garlic; gradually stir in teriyaki sauce. Brush chicken thoroughly with sauce mixture. Cook chicken on grill 4 to 5 inches from hot coals 12 to 14 minutes, or until no longer pink in center; turn over and brush occasionally with remaining sauce. (Or, broil chicken 4 to 5 inches from heat 7 minutes. Turn over; brush again with sauce. Broil 7 to 8 minutes, or until no longer pink in center; brush occasionally with remaining sauce.)

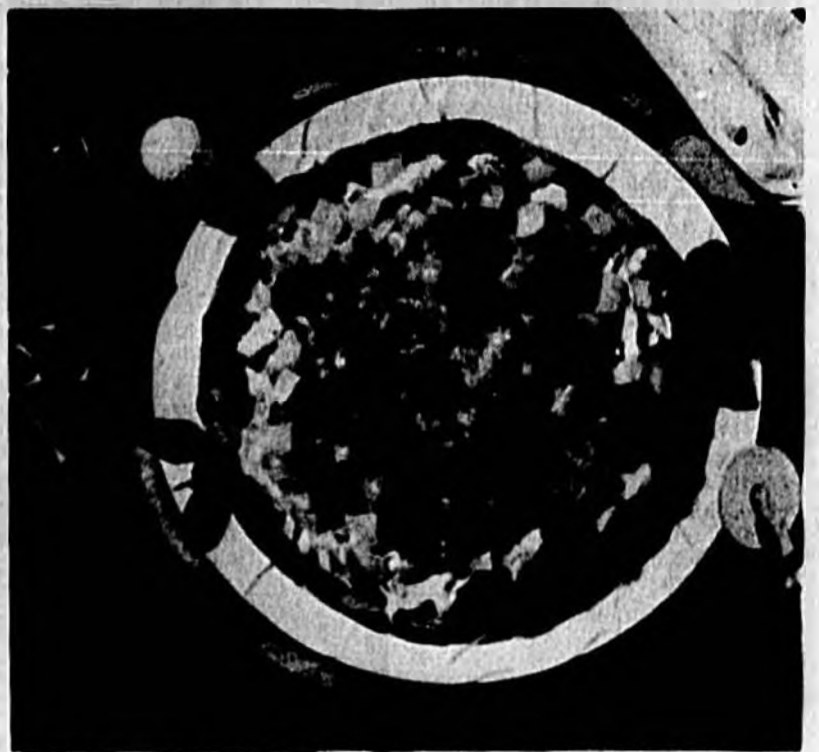

HEALTHY FOUR-BEAN BAKE

- 1/4 cup dried lentils
- 1/4 cup dried baby lima beans
- 1/4 cup dried pinto beans
- 1/4 cup dried chick peas
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. prepared mustard
- 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup molasses
- 1 cup catsup
- 1 small onion, thinly sliced
- 7 oz. thinly sliced lowfat smoked sausage

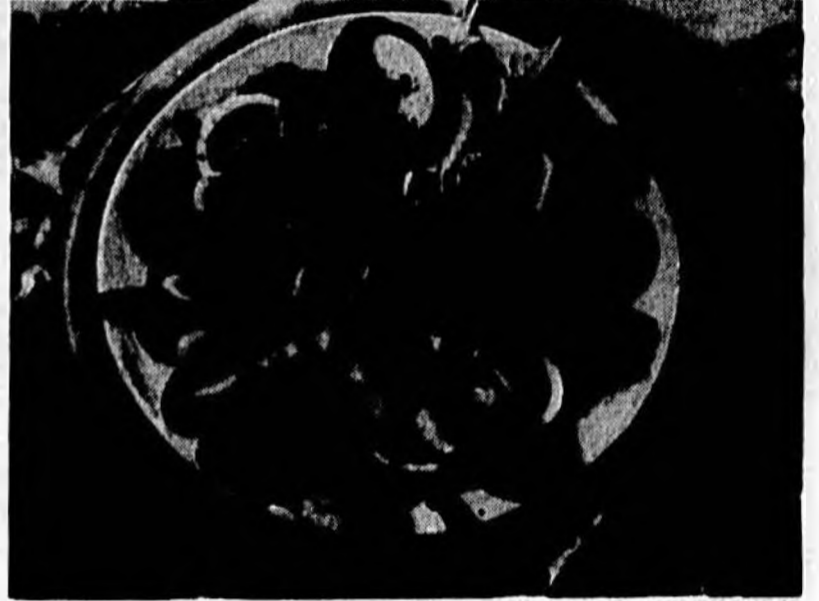

Rinse beans thoroughly. Pour water over beans to cover (about 3 cups) in large glass casserole or mixing bowl. Microwave at High (100 percent) until boiling, about 10 minutes. Cover and let stand 1 hour. Drain and rinse. Add enough fresh water to cover beans in same glass casserole (about 4 cups.). Microwave at High until boiling, about 12 minutes. Then microwave at Medium (50 percent) for 1 hour. Drain well. Combine beans with remaining ingredients in casserole, stirring well. Microwave at High for 5 minutes, stirring once. Cover loosely with waxed paper to prevent splattering. Microwave at Medium for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Let stand several minutes before serving. Makes 10 servings.

GRILLED VIDALIA ONION CHICKEN SALAD

- 3 Tbsp. orange liqueur
- 1 cup sweetened whipped cream/or topping
- Combine rhubarb, sugar, cornstarch, and orange juice in 4-cup glass measure; mix well. Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 5-8 minutes or until rhubarb is tender, stirring once. Stir in strawberries. Set aside.
- Cut pound cake into 1-inch cubes. Arrange cubes in individual serving dishes or a 1-quart serving bowl. Sprinkle cake with liqueur. Spoon sauce over cake. Refrigerate several hours. Top with whipped cream just before serving.
- About 6 servings.

Breakfast pizza made with frozen bread dough.

Grilled Vidalia Onion Chicken Salad.

breast halves (about 1 1/4 lbs.)

- 1 each yellow and red bell pepper, cut in half, seeded
- 1 large Vidalia onion, thickly sliced
- 2 peaches, sliced
- 8 cups mixed salad greens
- Pour 1/4 cup dressing over chicken; cover. Refrigerate 1 to 2 hours to marinate. Drain; discard dressing.
- Heat grill. Grill chicken, peppers and onion over medium coals 4 to 5 minutes on each side or until chicken is cooked through, and vegetables are tender, brushing occasionally with additional dressing.

Slice chicken and peppers into strips. Arrange greens on individual serving plates. Top with chicken, peppers, onion and peaches. Serve with additional dressing. Makes 4 servings.

Fresh berries sweeten up meal

It's the berries! Right now we are selling all kinds of harvest fresh berries on the produce counter. Take advantage of the abundance and the price break. There are also opportunities for picking blueberries near this area, if you are so inclined. Berries can be combined with other seasonal fruits such as melons or peaches for a simple but nutritious dessert or snack or served at breakfast. Use fresh fruit when in season and prepare with frozen fruit to enjoy at other times of year.

BERRY-APPLE CRISP

- 4 cups sliced fresh peaches
- 1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries
- 1 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 1/4 tsp. almond extract
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup quick cooking rolled oats
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 tsp. cinnamon

Combine peaches, blueberries, lemon juice, and extract in 8-inch round baking dish; mix lightly. Spread evenly in dish; set aside.

Microwave (100 percent) in batter bowl, uncovered, 20-30 seconds or until softened. Add rolled oats, brown sugar, flour and cinnamon; mix with fork until crumbly. Spoon over fruit.

Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 10-12 minutes or until fruit is tender. Serve warm or cold with cream or ice cream. About 8 servings.

Strawberries seem to be available to use year round but rhubarb is a spring thing. My sister recently air-expressed some to me from upstate New York but it can be found here now on the produce counter. I'll prepare this simple trifle and a rhubarb-orange pie.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB TRIFLE

- 2 cups sliced rhubarb
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 Tbsp. cornstarch
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 2 cups sliced strawberries
- 1 package (10 oz.) ready-to-eat pound cake

1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats

- 1/4 tsp. soda
- 1/4 tsp. cinnamon
- Combine berries, apple, cornstarch and sugar in a 2-cup glass measure. Mix lightly.
- Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 3-4 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens slightly, stirring once. Set aside.
- Microwave 100 percent margarine in uncovered 2-quart glass batter bowl 30-45 seconds or until softened. Blend in brown sugar. Add flour, oats, soda and cinnamon; mix just until combined and crumbly. Press 1/2 of mixture evenly into bottom of 8-inch square baking dish.
- Microwave (100 percent), uncovered 3-4 minutes or until puffed throughout, rotating dish once. Spoon fruit filling over base; spread evenly. Top with remaining crumb mixture.
- Microwave (100 percent), uncovered, 3-4 minutes or until bubbly throughout. Cool completely before cutting into bars. About 18 bars.

Make a quick sauce from any fresh berry. Serve with ice cream, over cake or with other fresh fruit.

FRESH BERRY SAUCE

- 2 cups fresh berries
- 1/4-1/2 cup sugar
- 4 tsp. cornstarch
- Place berries, sugar, and cornstarch in food processor and process until smooth. Transfer mixture to 1-quart measure and microwave on 100 percent power 4-6 minutes or until slightly thickened. Cool to room temperature before serving.

Use fruits of the season to make these refreshing filled bars. They make great snacks to be enjoyed with a glass of iced tea.

BERRY-APPLE BARS

- 1 cup fresh blueberries or raspberries
- 1 cup chopped apples
- 1 Tbsp. cornstarch
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup margarine or butter
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour

Cool off in summertime with a refreshing dip

In the summer, ripe delicious fruits and and frozen desserts become the most popular selections on the picnic or patio menu. The following delicious chocolate desserts not only look impressive, but they're easy to make as well - each is prepared in less than 15 minutes.

CHOCOLATE PLUNGE

1/4 cup light corn syrup
1/4 cup heavy cream
1 package (6 sq.) semi-sweet baking chocolate squares
Microwave corn syrup and cream in large microwavable bowl on High 1 1/2 minutes or until mixture comes to boil. Add chocolate; stir until completely melted.

Serve warm as a dip with assorted fresh fruit, cookies or pretzels.

Makes 1 1/2 cups.
Note: 2 packages (4 oz. each) sweet chocolate can be substituted for the semi-sweet chocolate.

CHOCOLATE DIPPED DELIGHTS

Assorted fruit, cookies, nuts or pretzels

1 package (6 squares) semi-sweet baking chocolate, melted
Insert toothpicks into food to be dipped.

Dip fruit, cookies, nuts or pretzels into chocolate, covering at least half; let excess chocolate drip off.

Let stand or refrigerate on wax paper-lined cookie sheet 30 minutes or until chocolate is firm. Store fresh fruit in refrigerator up to 2 days. Store dried fruit, cookies, nuts and pretzels in airtight container.

Makes about 3 dozen.
Note: 1 package (4 oz.) sweet chocolate or 1 package (6 squares) premium white chocolate can be substituted for the semi-sweet chocolate. Makes about 2 dozen.

WHITE CHOCOLATE SAUCE

1 cup heavy cream
4 squares premium white baking chocolate squares
1/4 tsp. vanilla

Microwave cream in medium microwavable bowl on High 1 1/2 minutes or until it comes to boil. Add chocolate; stir until completely melted. Stir in vanilla.

Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serve as a sauce over fruit or ice cream.

Makes 1 cup.
Top of stove preparation: Stirring occasionally, bring cream to boil in heavy 1-quart saucepan. Remove from heat. Continue as above.

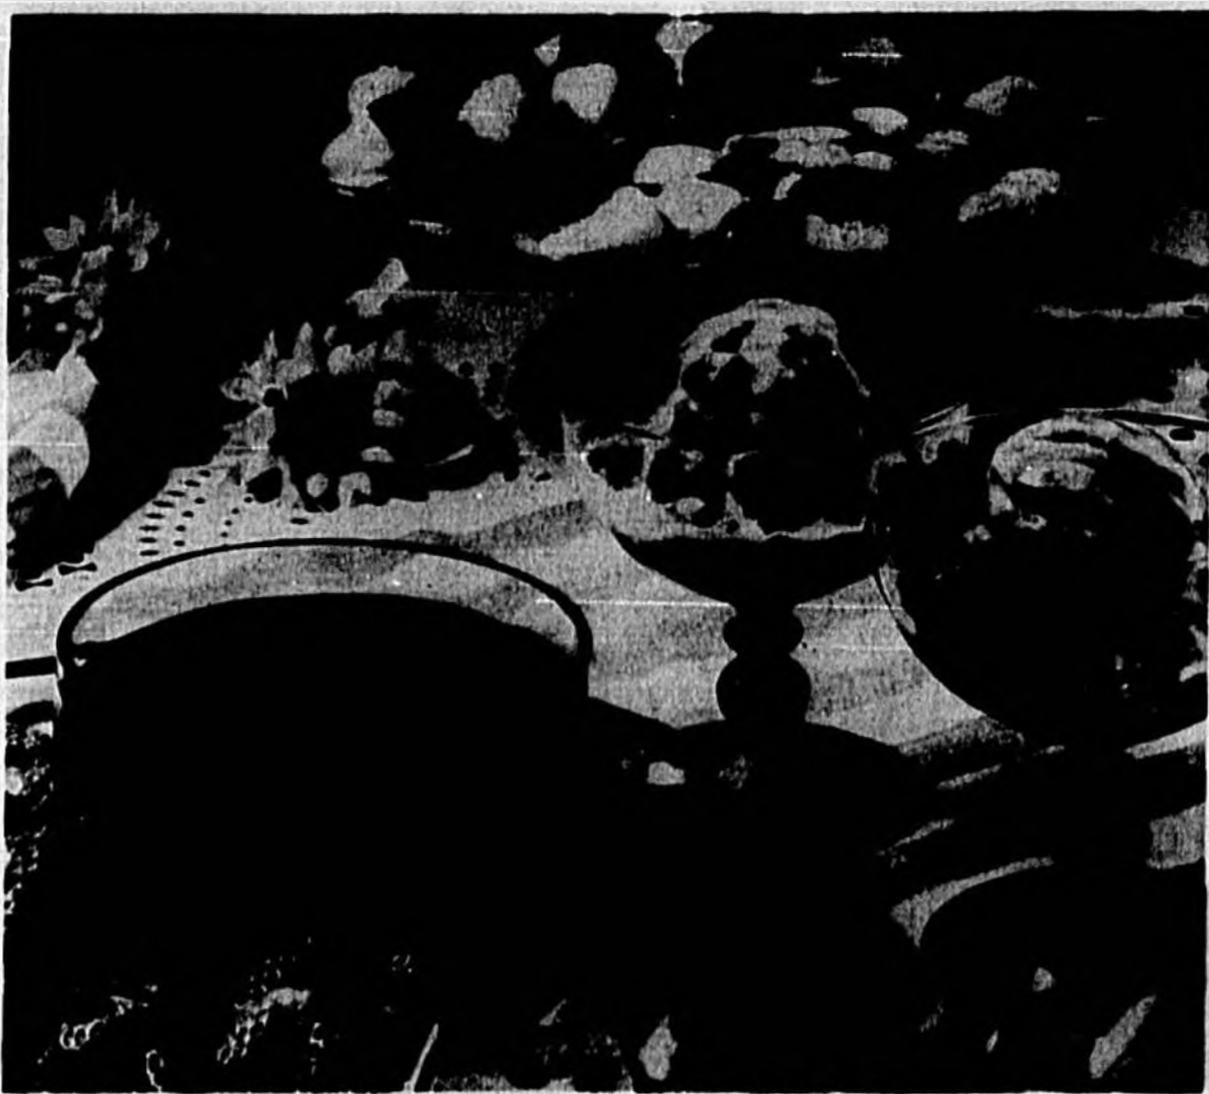

FUDGE NUT SAUCE

6 squares semi-sweet baking chocolate squares
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine or butter

1/2 cup toasted chopped nuts
Microwave chocolate and margarine in large microwavable bowl on High 3 minutes or until margarine is melted. Stir until chocolate is completely melted.

Stir in nuts. Serve warm over ice cream or cake. If sauce begins to harden, microwave 30 to 60 seconds.

Makes 1/2 cup.
Top of stove preparation: Heat chocolate and margarine in heavy saucepan on very low heat; stir constantly until just melted. Remove from heat. Continue as above.

Fresh fruits accented with yummy chocolate are summer's best desserts.

Birthday greeting cards make her day

DEAR ABBY: I just turned 80 and had the most wonderful birthday in my life!

At 80, folks don't need presents - they need attention, and this year, my daughter saw to it that I got plenty. She wrote letters to many of my friends telling them my 80th was coming up, and I did not want gifts, but it would be wonderful if they sent me a card with a personal note or a snapshot, and to pass along the word to others.

Abby, the response was overwhelming! I heard from friends, relatives, people I had worked with many years ago - even a few friends from grade school! I can't describe the lift it gave me to know that these people are still alive and remembered me. They offered congratulations, compliments, a special memory and expressions of love. Each and every message was a precious gift.

I highly recommend this way of saying "Happy Birthday - I Love You" to anyone near and dear. My sincere thanks to my daughter for having thought of it - and a bigger thank-you to everyone who responded.

STILL SMILING

DEAR STILL SMILING: I have seen many such requests. Some were works of art, and most included a stamped envelope addressed to the honoree. I can't imagine a more rewarding gift!

DEAR ABBY: You sometimes warn people about dangerous practices, and this is certainly the time of year to issue this warning.

I am appalled when I see young children mowing the lawn with power rotary lawn mowers. And worse yet, even younger children running alongside the mower!

Parents, wake up! Power mowers are extremely dangerous. They can pick up rocks, small toys and other debris and propel them out with the speed of a bullet!

No one should ever be on the discharge side of a mower; I don't even want to think about what could happen if a child should slip and fall in the path of the sharp whirling blade!

Abby, it happens every year - even to adults who are trying to be careful.

CAL S. HOLM, THIRSVILLE, WIS.
DEAR CAL: Thanks for the wake-up call. Readers, listen to Cal. The accident you may prevent could be your own.

DEAR ABBY: I've gotten myself into a situation I don't like. I seldom lie because liars are usually found out in the end, but I foolishly told a lie, and I can't seem to get it out of my head.

I recently started to date a wonderful guy I met through the personal ads in the newspaper. I was afraid my family and friends would ridicule me for being so desperate, so I told them we met on a blind date set up by a co-worker. (I also told some other people I met him at church.)

How can I come clean without sounding like a total jerk for lying in the first place? And in the future, how can I answer the common query, "How did you two meet?"

SORRY IN NEW JERSEY
DEAR SORRY: Congratulations for wanting to "come clean." Confess to those to whom you lied that you met this wonderful guy through the personal ads in the newspaper. And don't apologize for it. Many decent (and lonely) people have met others through personal ads.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HESITATING IN HELENA, MONT.

Discuss Impotency therapy with MD

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What do you advise regarding long-term use of papaverine? Is there any harm done to the penis other than the needle and scar tissue? Some of my erections last six to eight hours.

DEAR READER: Papaverine is a compound that, when injected into the penis, causes an erection. Many men can be taught to inject this material themselves, in preparation for sexual activity. For such men, papaverine is a safe and reliable therapy for impotence. Ordinarily, erections achieved in this manner last up to an hour.

The primary complications of this treatment are constant erections (priapism) and formation of scar tissue (Peyronie's disease) that cause painful and/or crooked erections. Inasmuch as your erections last up to eight hours, you may be injecting too much. Ask your urologist about this.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Impotence." Other readers who would like a copy should send $5 plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 3488, New York, NY 10108. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your newspaper column is superb and I never miss reading it. My daughter has been diagnosed with mild lupus. Would you please discuss this condition?

DEAR READER: Thank you for the compliment. Lupus -- an inflammatory disease of the lungs, skin, kidneys, and other organs -- usually causes fever, joint pain, rash, pleurisy, lymph gland enlargement, headaches, renal disease, and a tendency for the blood to clot too quickly. The cause is unknown.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests and, sometimes, by biopsy. The course is unpredictable.

Mild disease requires no particular therapy, except for aspirin and other drugs to relieve achiness and pain. I hope your daughter has this form of the disease, because she will not need extensive treatment for several years. Nonetheless, mild forms can (and often do) progress to more severe lupus, which can be fatal and must be treated with large doses of corticosteroids for long periods.

In general, the type of therapy depends on the extent of the lupus and whether or not it progresses rapidly. Patients with lupus should be under the care of specialists in internal medicine.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Lupus: The Great Imitator."

By Phillip Alder

The third book recently republished by Devin Press is the most advanced. "The Tricky Game" by Hugh Kealey (814.95; 800-274-3331) highlights deceptive plays by both declarer and the defenders which may generate tricks out of thin air.

Today's deal is a good example of what to expect from this book. Defending against four hearts, West cashed his two top diamonds before switching to the club jack.

Declarer, having to avoid two trump losers, won with dummy's ace and called for the diamond queen. He hoped that East would ruff. But South had picked on the wrong customer. Sitting East was Martin Hoffman, an Englishman who spends a lot of time in the United States. If South wanted him to ruff the diamond queen, Hoffman realized he would do better to discard.

Now South, who knew West had the heart king from his one-diamond opening bid, continued with the ace and another heart. If Hoffman had played the nine on the second round, South would have had no choice but to play low. Down the king would have tumbled and home the contract would have romped. However, Hoffman didn't play the nine. Instead, he put up his jack!

This gave the declarer just enough rope to hang himself. Thinking West must have started with K-9-2 of hearts, South covered with the queen. But now West, after winning with the king, led a diamond, which promoted East's heart nine as a trump trick, and the fourth in total for the defense. Any time the regular play won't work, try something irregular.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
June 18, 1988

An ambitious objective you've been anxious to achieve has an excellent chance of being realized in the year ahead. Reinforce your expectations instead of weakening them.

ARIES (Mar. 21-June 20) Make it a point today not to take yourself or your involvements too seriously. Your pride and ego will leave you a bit vulnerable and you might be easily wounded. Know where to look for romance, and you'll find it.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10165.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) The frustrations you'll have to contend with today may be of your own making. Try to think a few steps ahead, so you don't paint yourself in a corner.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) An influential contact who usually tries to be helpful might resent being imposed upon today. Try not to burden others with your demands at this time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you're closely involved with might hesitate to make any concessions today because this person feels as if it's always up to him/her to do so.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your possibilities for success today will only nominal if you let self-defeating thoughts overcome positive ones.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) If you must gamble on anyone today, do it on yourself. Better yet, avoid taking any chances at all.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Do not involve outsiders or in-laws in your domestic disputes today. Their input could help make a bad situation even worse.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have a service performed for you today and you can't oversee the job personally, leave clear, detailed, written instructions of what you want done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Avoid window shopping today at stores that carry merchandise you can't afford. Your need for instant gratification might make you do something rash.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Matters upon which you and your mate disagree should not be debated in the presence of others today. Your exchange could become very heated very quickly.

Aries (March 21-April 19) A positive attitude will be imperative today. If your outlook is negative, you will probably take a course of action that will produce undesirable results.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) This is one of those days when friends might make unreasonable demands on your budget. Avoid anything impulsive, extravagant or wasteful.
