Seminole Legislators To Prevent Flood Of New Bars

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

The title of new liquor licenses, estimated to be as high as 37, expected to flood Seminole County after results of the 1980 census are announced in mid-1981, could be stemmed.

Seminole County's Legislative delegation Wednesday agreed to submit legislation in the April session of the Florida Legislature restricting the issuance of new licenses locally.

The members of the delegation—State Reps. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, and Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, and State Sens. John Vogt, D-Cocoa, and Clark Maxwell, R-Melbourne—voted unanimously to submit the legislation recommended by the Seminole County League of Civic Associations.

Larry Cole, president of the league, urged the delegation to introduce special law changing the formula in Seminole County for new licenses from one per 2,500 persons to one per 4,000 persons in the county. The census is expected to show Seminole has more than doubled its population in the past decade.

He noted the legislation would not affect motels, hotels, restaurants and private clubs. Cole suggested, however, the flood of new licenses might encourage more establishments providing "adult entertainment." Seminole currently has 29 liquor licenses in addition to ones at motels, restaurants and clubs.

Cole said Sheriff John Polk supports the legislation. Vogt said he would especially like to have the public contact him with their opinions on the proposal.

In another action, the delegation took no action on a local bill submitted by Sanford City Manager Warren Knowles defining the word "enclave" and permitting cities to annex pockets of land within their boundaries.

The proposed legislation defines enclaves as "an incorporated area entirely contained within the outer boundaries of the annexing municipality."

The second section of the proposed bill would permit cities to annex an enclave of 40 acres or less which is completely surrounded by city territory.

Vogt warned Knowles that it would be difficult to get the legislation through, noting he and a member of the Florida House attempted in the past to get similar legislation through only to have it "cut to ribbons" on the floor of both state bodies.

The delegation also took no action on a request from the Seminole County Commission to "clarify" sections of the state election law, noting amendments to the law have been pending.

Brantley, a member of the House's ethics and elections committee, said the county legislation requiring approval by the county commission of certain actions by the supervisor of elections is contrary to the trend. The trend he said is for the supervisor of elections to have full responsibility for elections. The delegation also refused to accept legislation from Cindy Crain, dean of students at Lake Brantley High School, which would have provided state funding to place deputy sheriffs in middle and high schools of the county.

The plan was to have the officer not only provide a deterrent to crime by his presence but also to have him act as a counselor and to give lectures on law and crime. Mrs. Crain estimated annual cost for the 12 deputies at $182,400.

She said after three years of state funding, the costs would be picked up in part by local government—75 percent from the state and 25 percent from local government—and ultimately all costs would be borne by local government.

Maxwell said the trend in the Legislature is not to force programs onto local government and the school board.

Officials Like Hospital Site

By DIANE PETRYK
 Herald Staff Writer

"It's a good site for accessibility," said Seminole Memorial Hospital Chief of Staff Dr. Kenneth Wing, commenting on the location selected for Sanford's new hospital.

Hospital Corporation of America officials confirmed Wednesday they intend to build Central Florida Regional Hospital, an $18 million replacement for Seminole Memorial, on 17 acres fronting Lake Monroe and U.S. 17-92 at Mangrove Avenue.

The site includes 650 feet on Seminole Boulevard (17-92) and extends some 1,000 feet back along the west side of Mangrove, ending about one block north of West First Street.

Sophia Shoemaker, chairwoman of the Seminole Memorial Hospital board of trustees, said access to the site will be just as good as the present hospital, but the land is lower.

"If they can dig out the muck and fill it in with good dirt, it's a beautiful location," she said.

"But I thought they were going to generate new life for the hospital by going south to the Lake Mary interchange area," she added. "The hospital needs to attract more people from the south end of the county."

Mrs. Shoemaker said HCA probably weighed the low-ground problem at the selected site against the lack of city services, such as sewer and water and fire protection in the Lake Mary area.

With access to Sanford city facilities, she said, HCA probably will find it easier to get building permits.

"I just hope the land isn't too low," she said. "I've seen the water come all the way up to First Street. There are times you can't come around the lake front at all. But that's an engineering problem."

Two county commissioners said Wednesday they approved of the site. The commissioners, except for Chairman Bill Kirchhoff, were kept in the dark about the location despite their contract negotiations with HCA. The contract was signed Tuesday.

The only stipulation in the contract concerning the site was that it be in the city of Sanford or immediately annexable to the city.

"That was all I was concerned about," Commissioner Bob French said.

"The (HCA) are the ones investing the money," he said. "I assume they know how to pick out a hospital site."

"It's a beautiful location and seems like a logical area for access," he added.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn said she could see no problem with the site as far as she could see by looking at the map.

Students Pledge Hostage Turnover

By United Press International

Islamic militants holding 50 American hostages said today they will surrender their captives to Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council in the first major break in the crisis since the hostages were seized 124 days ago.

The development came after members of the U.N. Commission investigating Foreign Minister Ayatollah Jolani threatened to leave Tehran without seeing the captives, but they were persuaded to stay for at least two more days by Foreign Minister Jolani.

A spokesman for the militants at the U.S. Embassy, in a telephone interview with UPI from London, confirmed a Tehran Radio report that the militants had asked the ruling Revolutionary Council to take charges of the "American spies."

But the militant spokesman would not take when the turnover would take place, saying only, "It will be clear in the future."

A second spokesman for the militants said in a telephone interview with UPI in Bonn that the Revolutionary Council now had responsibility for the captives and could come and take them from the building. This spokesman also did not say how soon that could be.

"Everything they want, they can do with them," he said, adding that the militants had not set a time for the surrender of the hostages to the Council.

"They can take the hostages from the Embassy," he said, adding that the militants themselves would remain at the occupied embassy compound, which they occupied Nov. 4.

The militants said the decision to turn over the hostages to the authorities was made this morning and that Iran's revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, "does not know anything about these statements."

He said the militants decided to give up the hostages because they let the U.N. group visit them at the embassy. "Until we are here we cannot accept that this commission meet with the spies."

Sanjour said a State Department spokesman said any change of custody for the hostages would be a good sign "if it leads to the release of the hostages."

The statement from the militants said in part:

"So that we are not accused as a state within a state by refusing to comply with the policy of the government, we asked to hand over the hostages to the Revolutionary Council and leave the responsibility of handling the meeting between the U.N. commission and the captives) with them... We regard our responsibility for the hostages at an end.

Carter Meets With Advisers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter quickly met with top advisers today following an apparent major development in the Iran hostage crisis.

"We've noted the reports from Tehran and we are watching the situation very carefully," said White House press secretary Jody Powell of statements by militants that they are ready to turn 50 U.S. hostages over to the ruling Revolutionary Council.

Carter received word of the development late Wednesday night at a state dinner honoring West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

He later retreated to the family quarters for about 15 minutes with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and national security affairs adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

An aide indicated the president's impromptu session with his foreign policy advisers was related to the news from Iran.

But the president himself told reporters the matter taking him away from the dinner was "kind of a routine occurrence."

He declined to comment on the Iranian offer to turn over the hostages that is, American officials — from us and deal with them in any way it deems appropriate," the statement said.

Samir Sanbar, the spokesman for the U.N. commission, said in a telephone interview with UPI in London that the commission members originally planned to leave today without seeing the captives.

He derided the mission of the U.N. investigating commission as twofold: "One, investigating and hearing Iran's grievances; and the other, allowing for easing of tensions between the U.S. and Iran. That would involve seeing hostages."

Sanjour said that when the group were going to leave Tehran because they were not allowed to visit the captives, "the minister asked them to stay for at least two days to implement the Revolutionary Council's decision to visit the hostages. And commission agreed to stay..."

For their part, the militants, who call themselves "Followers of the line of the Imam (Khomeini)," made it clear they were giving up the hostages rather than allow the U.N. commission access to take over the hostages that is, American officials — from us and deal with them in any way it deems appropriate," the statement said.

Nation's Gas Stocks At 2nd Highest Level

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ample gasoline stocks should prevent lines from forming at gasoline pumps during the summer driving season, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan says.

The American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday the nation's gasoline stocks rose to their second highest level in history last week.

In Washington, Duncan said U.S. gasoline demand had fallen by 8.6 percent two weeks ago and predicted the ample petroleum stocks would suffice during the year's peak driving period. Gasoline supplies increased last week to 275.2 million barrels—second only to the all-time high of 275.7 million barrels in the week ended Feb. 3, 1978—from 272.6 million barrels the previous week, the API said.

School Board Again Refuses To Let Youth Play Ball

Seminole County's School Board Wednesday thwarted efforts on behalf of a transfer student to allow him to play baseball.

A motion to put the matter on the meeting agenda failed despite the board's acknowledgement that another student was allowed to play baseball after transferring schools under similar circumstances.

Florida High School Athletic Activities Association (FHSAA) Executive Secretary Floyd Lay, who was asked in a letter to investigate the matter, said today he has made no effort on the case.

"It's not a high priority with me," Lay said. "I'll look into it when I have the time, but it won't be this week or next."

The FHSAA, the governing body of high school athletics in the state, stipulates that transfer students may not participate in athletics unless they obtain a waiver from their former principal, the school board chairman or the superintendent of schools.

The waivers should be signed only if the officials are sure the transfer is for academic purposes and athletic recruitment was not involved, according to Lay.

The parents of Gene Green, who transferred from Lake Howell High School to Lyman High School, said they should be allowed to play baseball because his transfer was for academic purposes.

At least one school board member agrees.

"I don't think there was any recruitment involved in the Green case," board member Robert G. Feather said. "And there's a boy now playing at Lyman who also transferred after the deadline and the waiver was signed."

"So the school board can't withhold the right of the Green boy to play baseball. I think we're remiss."

Feather tried to get the board to declare the issue an emergency last night so he could then move for the board to direct the principal to sign a waiver for Green.

"The baseball season is part gone already," he said.

The Greens have been trying to get the waiver since they first appeared before the board Jan. 23. On Feb. 8 the school board agreed 3-2 to ask Lay and the FHSAA to investigate a possible recruitment in the Green case and two others. If no recruitment was discovered, Feather indicated he would then move to direct the waiver be granted.

But, although Lay acknowledged receipt of the school board's request, he has not yet said whether or not he will conduct the investigation.

Feather's motion to put the matter on the agenda as an emergency failed for lack of a second. It was then put on the earliest possible agenda, for March 19.

School Superintendent William B. Lauer explained that, by law, the agenda must be published and at least seven days advance time is necessary. By Wednesday, the next Wednesday's agenda is already finalized.

Lauer has consistently refused to sign a waiver in the Green case, he said. He objected to the board's action allowing Green to transfer in the first place, since his transfer request came after the July transfer deadline.

Board Member William Kroll said the board did not allow two other students, who were granted permission to transfer at the same time as Green, to play baseball.

"Maybe we should have," Kroll said. "But I think the board should remain consistent."

Feather said the two students had played basketball at their previous school, but Green did not play baseball at his.

"Green was not recruited," Feather said.

"Well, you should," Lauer said.

Board member Pat Tolson suggested the board send a follow-up letter to Lay or direct the chairman to call him to inquire if he intends to conduct the investigation starts, the baseball season will be almost over before a decision is made.—DIANE PETRYK

WORLD IN BRIEF

Begin Accepts Apology From Carter On Mix-Up

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Prime Minister Menachem Begin today accepted President Carter's apology for a U.S. vote against Israel in the U.N. Security Council, but he said the mix-up over references to Jerusalem in the text did not explain U.S. support for other parts of the resolution hostile to Israel.

Begin addressed the Knesset parliament at the opening of a debate on the Security Council Resolution approved Saturday that condemned Israel's settlement policy in the occupied Arab territories and called on the Jewish state to dismantle existing settlements, including those in annexed East Jerusalem.

"We accept President Carter's remarks as written with all due respect. But I must ask with an open heart, was this mistake— that referred to one section of the resolution which is hostile toward Israel and which contradicts the Camp David accord—the only expression of a relationship of decided hostility to the state of Israel and its vital interests?" Begin asked.

Brown Says U.S. Prepared

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States could move the entire 82nd Airborne Division of about 16,000 men to the Persian Gulf in two weeks to meet a Soviet threat, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today.

In an address prepared for the Council on Foreign Relations in New York City, Brown stressed the United States would not expect to fight alone if Moscow attempted to restrict Western access to Persian Gulf.

An advanced text of Brown's remarks was released by the Pentagon.

"We cannot hope, nor do we plan to defend peoples in the region who will not help defend themselves," Brown said.

"By that same token, where we are involved, we do not expect to stand alone. Because aggression against one could spread to threaten all, others in the region may well—and surely ought to—join in the collective defense."

Brown noted France and Japan receive about 75 percent of their oil from the Persian Gulf, while Germany gets 45 percent.

Austrian Diplomat Freed

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—The guerrillas holding most of Bogota's diplomatic corps inside the Dominican Embassy today released Austrian Ambassador Edgar Scheer, but continued to hold 14 other diplomats, including the U.S. Ambassador.

Diplomatic sources said Scheer was released in "a humanitarian gesture" because his wife is seriously ill in Vienna, Austria.

Scheer was taken from the embassy, put in a Red Cross vehicle and driven to the military section of the Bogota airport to catch the first available commercial flight to Vienna.

County Panel Forecasts Gas Crunch

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
The gasoline fuel crunch in Seminole County in particular and the state of Florida in general can only get worse. That was the consensus of the county's emergency energy panel which met Wednesday at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford.

There seems to be little problem with motorists getting gasoline once they cross the state line into Georgia, according to Edward Suttman of the Texas Co., a member of the panel. Suttman said 225 million gallons of gasoline a month is allocated to the entire state. Of this amount, five percent is placed under state control for a "set aside," theoretically to be used for emergencies throughout Florida. Actually, he said, additional gasoline is allocated to the counties which make the most requests to the state.

Seminole County Commissioner Bob French interpreted Suttman's comments to mean that the "squeeze wheel getting the grease" concept is being followed.

Suttman explained that the gasoline fuel allocation for Florida is based on the gasoline used in the state in the one-year period from 1977-1978, "which were not the best 12 months we have had in Florida," he said. He continued that while that period is the basis of the allocation, Florida is given only 75 percent of that base.

French said compounding the problem of the 75 percent allocation of a bad period is the rapid growth rate in the state and particularly Seminole County.
"We are being penalized for additional residents," he said. Suttman said the Federal Department of Energy regulations were formulated during the energy crisis of 1973. That crisis has long since passed and a new and different crisis taken place, he noted. Still, the old regulations are being used. State Sen. John Vogt pointed to another flag in federal regulations which keeps long established gasoline stations at their old allocations while granting new and higher allocations to new service stations.

Probe Leads To Different Checks

A phase of the Lake Mary Police Department's investigation into the January burglary of Stromberg-Carlson plant in Lake Mary met with both failure and success Wednesday evening.

The failure was that after two weeks of working on a lead on the East Coast concerning two men who wanted to sell blank Bank America travelers' checks, it was found the two weren't involved in the Stromberg-Carlson case.

The success was that they allegedly were involved in some fashion in a December 1977 burglary in Rockville, Md. Lake Mary Police Det. David Higginbotham said today the two men—Thomas Joseph Wade, 46, and Thomas Rankin Milne, 42, of 1155 N. Country Club Parkway, Merritt Island, were arrested and are being held in the Brevard County Jail. The arrest was made as a result of an investigation by a combined law enforcement unit consisting of Higginbotham of Lake Mary, Brevard County Sheriff's deputies and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Higginbotham said the Lake Mary department got word two weeks ago that two men were attempting to sell a block of blank Bank America travelers' checks. The men were kept under surveillance for two weeks, Higginbotham said, before the arrests were made Wednesday evening. Recovered were $42,850 in the blank travelers' checks. The two men are being held in the Brevard County jail while investigation is continuing on what involvement they had in the initial burglary and theft.

Higginbotham said it was believed the Lake Mary burglary was involved because the Bank of America had told Lake Mary police the Stromberg checks were the only blanks missing.

Man Accused Of Attempted Burglary

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole deputies arrested a Sanford man Tuesday night one block from a home they say he was trying to burglarize. Ricky Charles Hampton, 26, of 600 Sixth St., Sanford, was held in lieu of $8,400 bond Tuesday, on charges of attempted burglary.

Deputies say they received a call from Dwight Flowers, saying someone was trying to break into his home at 2658 Poinsett Ave., outside of Sanford at 11:22 p.m. Tuesday.

Shortly after they arrived on the scene, deputies searching the area arrested Hampton and charged him with attempting to pry open a window at Flower's home.

Hampton is awaiting trial on charges of armed burglary, stemming from the Jan. 10 theft of $12,95 and a bottle of wine from Carlo's Restaurant on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

HOUSE BURGLARY IN ALTAMONTE
Burglars made off with over $1,000 worth of goods from an Altamonte home Sunday, after breaking through a kitchen door, deputies say.

The thieves, striking between 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Sunday at the home of David Danielson, 1414 Lake Brantley Heights Road, took a .357 magnum pistol, color television, microwave oven and personal papers from the house, Danielson told deputies.

ARRAIGNMENTS
An 18-year-old dancer at a Fern Park topless club will stand trial on charges of aggravated assault and battery on a law officer, stemming from a Feb. 21 incident which led to the arrest of five persons.

Allyson Frances Ponce of 407 Thistlewood Drive, Orlando, was formally arraigned on those charges Tuesday before Seminole County Judge Harold Johnson. Her trial date is March 13. She pleaded not guilty to charges she attempted to run down a Casselberry police officer as she left the scene of a fight at the Fancy Dancer club on U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park. Four other persons were arrested on misdemeanor charges of fighting.

Johnson also arraigned the following persons on felony charges, with trial dates to be set at the March 31 docket sounding. All pleaded not guilty.

—Horace Lee Earl will be tried on charges of burglary and criminal mischief. He was arrested by Seminole deputies on Feb. 13, charged with breaking into the home of an orange grove manager.

—Jack Willard Daniels was charged with grand theft, forgery, and use of stolen credit cards. Daniels has stated in court on several occasions that the owner of the cards does not wish him prosecuted, and he is making reparations.

—Jeffery Dean Long, arrested Feb. 25 by Casselberry police, was charged with burglary, arrested Feb. 20 by Seminole deputies on a warrant, was charged with five counts of writing worthless checks plus five counts of grand theft.

—John Butler was charged with obtaining property with a worthless check. He was arrested in Broward County on a Seminole warrant, Feb. 21.

NATION IN BRIEF

Lance Relatives Exempt From Loan Restrictions?

ATLANTA (UPI)—Bert Lance's successor as president of the Calhoun First National Bank says Lance's relatives were exempt from restrictions of officials concerned about the bank's fiscal condition.

Y.A. Henderson Jr., who continues his testimony in Lance's bank fraud trial today, said M.B. Adams, the regional director of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, had notified the bank in 1971 that it was "overloaned"—88 percent of its cash deposits were tied up in loans and overdrafts.

Earthquake Hits Philly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The curious rumbling sounded vaguely like an explosion, but it wasn't. It was just an earthquake, rare for this region.

"I knew something happened, a plane going by or thunder," said Evelyn Tait of a mild quake that rattled windows Wednesday in northeast Philadelphia and suburban Montgomery County. "I didn't know it was an earthquake."

Dr. Richard Bischoff, geology professor at Temple University, said he was told by the Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory in Palisades, N.Y., the quake registered 3.0 on the Richter scale.

Bladder Cancer Cause Nixed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two new studies provide good news for diabetics and other users of saccharin, showing there is little or no link between the artificial sweetener and bladder cancer.

Similar conclusions were reported in a National Cancer Institute study released three months ago. The NCI and the American Cancer Society funded the two latest studies, which support the American Diabetes Association's policy on saccharin. The ADA last year revised its position on the artificial sweetener, recommending continued availability until Congress can study all food safety laws.

'Tarzan' To Replace Parks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Miss America Pageant director Albert Marks Jr. decided in November he wanted to replace the 65-year-old Bert Parks with a younger host. From the start, he said Wednesday, "Ron Ely was one of my favorites." Ely, the former television "Tarzan," was chosen for the role Wednesday.

"I sat at home every night watching (Ely's) show, 'Face the Music' and I was very impressed how he was able to control movement on the show," Marks said.

Parks said he felt "complimented" in being replaced by a former TV Tarzan, but he couldn't resist snapping off a one-liner to a caller at his home in Florida.

"They had to get him out of the trees," Parks said.

Southern Bell To Ask Refund

MIAMI (UPI)—Southern Bell Telephone customers are getting a $12.3 million refund now and they might get a lot more later.

Southern Bell said Wednesday it will ask the Public Service Commission for authority to refund $12.2 million, the savings it gets from the reduction in the federal corporate income tax from 48 to 46 percent.

The refund, which would average $1.50 per residential customer and $8.40 per business customer, would come in the form of a credit on the next bill.

The five commissioners are expected to approve the refund, but continue their proceedings that may result in additional refunds and rate cuts later this year.

The PSC accused Southern Bell's Florida operations of earning around $70 million a year in excess profits last fall and launched a two-pronged attack on behalf of the consumers.

MacKay Resigns To Run

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—State Sen. Buddy MacKay has submitted his resignation from the Legislature to run fulltime for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination and thinks Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter ought to quit his state post too.

MacKay, whose resignation is effective at the end of the 1980 session, told a news conference Wednesday Gunter has mounted an unofficial campaign and should "take into account the appropriateness" of regulating the insurance industry at the same time he lines up campaign contributions.

Prince Gets 'IRA Brick'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Port Everglades authorities investigating a bomb threat aboard the British carrier H.M.S. Hermes, on which Prince Andrew serves, found a birthday cake and an "IRA bomb"—a brick wrapped in string.

Port Everglades Fire and Security Chief Huey Mangas said a man identifying himself as "Oscar" called the port's switchboard at 3:20 p.m. Wednesday and made the threat.

Baker Ends Quest For Republican Nomination

HOWARD BAKER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Within an hour and a half, Howard Baker's expression turned upside down—from glum resignation to boyish grin.

What happened in between Wednesday was a final decision by the Tennessee Republican and his top advisers to quit the presidential race, and the holding of a brief news conference to explain the decision.

His campaign started late, was not organized properly and never did as well as the polls as might have been expected from the widely popular star of the 1973 Watergate hearings and effective leader of Senate Republicans.

"It is disappointing to me, but on the other hand it is pretty clear that the campaign isn't going anywhere," he told reporters assembled hastily in his Capitol office.

Two days after announcing his candidacy last Nov. 1, Baker took the national press to Maine where he was expected to trounce the other candidates in a GOP straw poll. Instead, Baker was narrowly beaten by George Bush. From then on, the best he could muster was a second place finish in Puerto Rico.

The final blow was his fourthplace finish in the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries Tuesday. Baker's problem at first was thought to be he was too "liberal"—he voted for the Panama Canal treaty—to win the GOP nomination. But in the end, it was liberal Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., previously considered a bantamweight in the ring of contenders, who stole Baker's support in New England.

Every week it appears there are a bunch of insiders and one winner. It should teach us all to be a little more guarded in our predictions. We're all somehow missing the mark."

Connally will be back in Florida Saturday, the day of the South Carolina Republican primary. Connally has campaigned hard in the Palmetto State and has said that where his campaign will begin to gather steam. If it doesn't, chances are it won't.

George Bush started three days of Florida campaigning Wednesday.

Candidates Begin Shaking Florida Palms

Petersburg Tiger Bay Club that recent events in Iran and Afghanistan had angered the American public.

The expression of this anger is support for the president, the former Texas governor said.

"These two things changed the political fortunes of America," Connally said. "Those two men (Khomeini and Brezhnev) have had more to do with the president's popularity and perhaps in naming the next president of the United States than 220 million Americans."

Connally said his poor showing in the New England primaries showed the "volatility of the American political scene. Every week it appears there are a bunch of insiders and one winner. It should teach us all to be a little more guarded in our predictions. We're all somehow missing the mark."

Committee Approves Graham's Energy Fund Plan

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—The tough lobbying efforts of the Graham administration have paid off with members of the House Energy Committee voting in favor of the governor's $65 million energy trust fund program.

But Graham was still walking Wednesday to learn from the U.S. Department of Energy if his request for a 5 percent boost in the state's gasoline allocation would be granted.

Deputy Energy Secretary John Sawhill told members of the House Energy Committee major oil companies will lend Florida gasoline during the tourist season and said he hoped the government could meet the increase request.

But he cautioned that such a move means supplies will have to be cut elsewhere and "Obviously that's always a difficult thing to do. We're going to look at (Graham's) request and hopefully do something."

The plan originally called for a $78 million fund, but lawmakers stripped away a surcharge on uranium production.

New Hospital Site A Good Selection

The selection of a site along the lakefront in Sanford to build a new, $18-million hospital may be just the shot in the arm the city needs to accelerate its growth.

Hospital Corporation of America has taken an option on some 17 acres fronting Lake Monroe along U.S. 17-92 (Seminole Boulevard) and Mangoustine Avenue.

The site extends south from the lakefront some 1,000 feet to about a block north of West First Street. What that could mean is a more rapid development, both residentially and commercially, of the west section of Sanford all along West First Street, as well as along several other streets.

The lakefront site selection was disclosed only a few weeks after another lakefront site was selected for a major project. Altamonte Springs developer Thomas Rucker took an option on about eight acres just west of French Avenue and south of the lakefront where U.S. 17-92 turns northwesterly along the lakefront.

Rucker said he plans to build a multi-story condominium complex with some complementing commercial activity to include small specialty shops.

A more important factor regarding HCA's site selection for the new hospital is its accessibility from Sanford and other key areas such as Lake Mary, Longwood and the Deltona area.

HCA's new-hospital site selection was a sound choice, and HCA personnel are to be commended for taking time to look over various site possibilities and for honoring the commitment to build a new hospital within the city limits or on an annexable land.

Also to be commended is Sanford realtor Bill Stempier, a long-time Sanfordite, who said he personally worked vigorously to put together a package for HCA which would see that commitment fulfilled.

Hard To Explain

There is something to be said for not imposing a jail sentence on a 76-year-old man in falling health who pleads guilty to a misdemeanor charge of conspiracy.

But when the offender is former U. S. Rep. Daniel Flood and the conspiracy count involves soliciting and accepting bribes in exchange for official favors, we think something less convenient for the congressman than a year on probation is in order.

The specifics of Daniel Flood's crimes — those to which he pled guilty and others the Justice Department chose to forget — bespeak a pattern of systematic evasion pursued for whatever price the market would bear.

In his first trial, which ended in a hung jury last year, prosecutors charged Flood with peddling his influence as the powerful chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee for $50,000 in bribes from businessmen and others seeking to enrich themselves at the taxpayer's expense.

After 31 years in Congress, Daniel Flood certainly should be held to at least as high a standard as those in private life whose greed overcame their civic and moral responsibility.

U. S. District Judge Oliver Gasch could have sentenced Flood to a year in jail and fined him $25,000. As it is, Flood escaped with nothing more onerous than the requirement that he check in from time to time with his parole officer.

It is the sort of miscarriage of justice that is hard to explain to a 19-year-old kid serving time for rifling the cash drawer at the corner service station. Worse yet, it is indicative of the judicial and prosecutorial leniency accorded all to many fallen legislators in recent years.

BERRY'S WORLD

DEFEND A DICTATORSHIP IN THE NAME OF FREEDOM

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's glib response to the problem of how to gain the release of the American hostages held by fanatic Iranian militants is understandable. He wants to bring our diplomats back alive.

Inexcusable, however, is the decision at the top levels of his administration to refuse release to Iranian Jews who are seeking escape from persecution by Ayatollah Khomeini's rabidly religious followers.

An estimated 100 Iranian Jews, fearful of their lives at the hands of the new Islamic rulers, recently fled Tehran and arrived in Europe. By order of President Carter's special Iranian crisis team, they have been consigned to limbo in Paris and London, waiting desperately for permission to come to the United States as political exiles.

In contrast, Carter opened the doors to the sleek despite explicit warnings that his admission would trigger violence against Americans in Iran. One secret cable, dated Aug. 2, 1979, concluded that the U.S. Embassy would be attacked and American hostages would be seized.

State Department officials, meanwhile, admit that the Jewish refugees are being denied the freedom of movement to be granted. "The Jews have been put on a back burner," one insider explained. "Human rights interest — to let them in — is not part of our national interest."

Around The Clock

"Tell me about your trip." "Give us a word about your trip to the Holy Land. Are you going to write all about your experiences?"

Many people have asked me these questions since our return. But how do you condense into a word or brief report the experience of a lifetime? Somehow words like "wonderful," "marvelous" or "fantastic" are not adequate to describe eight days of viewing some of the world's most breathtaking panoramic views or the spiritual high of actually being at the places where Jesus Christ was born, lived, performed miracles, was crucified and resurrected.

"Spectacular" — the word for the view from Mt. Carmel of the Hula harbor, where the U.S. Navy's carrier the Forrestal was at anchor (families of some of the crew attend the church which our son Dan pastors in Neptune Beach).

"Magnificent" — the word for the scenery around the Dead Sea, where the mountains of Moab rise out of the bright blue water like pale pink and blue mirages.

The Dead Sea is the lowest spot on earth — 1,300 feet below sea level. It is 45 miles long and 11 miles across. With a 65 percent mineral content, nothing lives in the water.

Half way down the western shore we stopped for lunch at Kibbutz Ein Gedi. The caves that can be seen in the steep bluffs have hidden David from the wrath of Saul and the Dead Sea Scrolls from treasure hunters. At Qumran we saw the ruins of the Essene community and the cave where their scrolls were first found.

"Fascinating" — Masada, a natural fortress rising 1,500 feet above the Dead Sea where Herod built a palace complete with steam baths and swimming pool. It is best known as the fortress where 960 Jewish Zealots made their last stand against the Romans in 73 A.D. As the Romans forced Jewish slaves to build a massive ramp up the cliffs the besieged defenders — men, women and children — chose mass suicide rather than capture.

"Distracting" — having a camel stick his nose up to your bus window and yawn in your face while you are listening to a meditation on top of the mount of Olives.

"Unmoving" — having a young Arab corner you and ask loaded questions like "Do you like the Messiah? Do you think he's a terrorist?" Then to be told "He's a nice fellow, just like my leader Arafat." Followed by "do you like Arabs?" Answer: "Yes" brings pleased expression. "Do you think there will ever be peace between the Arabs and the Jews?" Cautious shrug brings response — "It's hard to tell, right? What about the problems between the blacks and whites in your country?"

"Thought provoking" — being on the Plains of Jericho, prophesied to be the site of the Battle Armageddon, final battle between the forces of good and evil.

"Exciting" — getting your first look at Jerusalem spread out before you.

William Steif

Want To Be Parent? It is time — perhaps past time — to have a child. But you can't.

The reason makes no difference. Now you know what you want, and you're ready to fast-forward, white infant, probably born out of wedlock. That, says Elaine Schwartz, an adoption specialist in the Health, Education and Welfare Department, was "the classic form."

Children who weren't "gorgeous and healthy babies" were regarded to foster homes, sometimes five or six as they grew up. Since the halcyon days of Eisenhower normalcy, the country has learned a few things. Miss Schwartz says. Among them: — White families aren't the nation's only potential adoptive parents, and adoption doesn't have to be confined to couples. Single parents are good parents, too.

Adoption of older children, including teenagers in high school, works.

Many American families can and do adopt handicapped and retarded children, who benefit from living in these families — and who offer their adoptive parents a gift of incalculable value: love.

Today, she says there are at least 200,000 children, ages 2-17, who have what she calls "handicapping conditions in our society."

These children are waiting for adoption. They are physically handicapped, retarded, emotionally disturbed, from big families, from minority parents or "just plain older."

Adoption is still regulated by state law, which varies somewhat from state to state.

It started with enactment of the Adoption Opportunity Act in 1978. The idea was for the federal government to be a catalyst in finding families able to adopt "special needs" children. Now the federal government has established 10 regional adoption resource centers that furnish a place for the potential adoptive parent to start.

Even before calling a federal resource center, or your local or state agency, you may want to get in touch with the North American Council on Adoptable Children, Suite 229, 1346 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D.C. 20036.

The council is comprised of more than 422 adoptive-parent groups and its executive director, Laurie Flynn (herself an adoptive mother), can offer advice. The phone number is 202-462-9772.

The federal resource centers' addresses, phone numbers and the states they cover are: University of North Carolina School of Social Work, 143 W. Franklin St., Suite 314, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514. 919-946-8444 (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky); University of Michigan School of Social Work, 1015 E. Huron St., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106. 313-763-6800 (Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan).

In contrast, Carter opened the doors to the sleek despite explicit warnings that his admission would trigger violence against Americans in Iran. One secret cable, dated Aug. 2, 1979, concluded that the U.S. Embassy would be attacked and American hostages would be seized.

State Department officials, meanwhile, admit that the Jewish refugees are being denied the freedom of movement to be granted. "The Jews have been put on a back burner," one insider explained. "Human rights interest — to let them in — is not part of our national interest."

Competent sources have concluded that the decision to lower an Iron Curtain on the refugee Iranian Jews was contained in a directive from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, after consultation with Carter.

A congressional group met recently with State Department and White House aides to discuss the Iranian Jews. Some who have occupied have recounted horror stories of being kept under surveillance, of having their phones tapped and their letters intercepted by the new breed of Iranian secret police.

Some of the refugees left behind their families and all their worldly possessions. They are terrified of applying for permanent admission to the United States because Islamic avengers may strike back at their kinsmen.

Indeed, the now-petitioned Iranian Jews are not the only Jewish immigrants being denied admission to the United States. Some U.S. officials privately admit they apply for permanent refugee-immigrant status.

Footnote: A State Department spokesman refused to acknowledge there is a problem. He said the State Department does not have a policy "for the immigration law."

CASINO-FOR-CARTER: President Carter is a born-again Christian who doesn't gamble, but he is making it the chips while it comes to contribute to the development of the big-time casinos on the neon-lit Las Vegas gambling strip.

Helping his re-election effort are individual contributors from such big wheel outfits as Caesars Palace, the Desert Inn, MGM Grand Hotel, the Jockey Club, Circus-Circus Hotel, the Lady Luck Casino and the Dunes Hotel.

The president's most enthusiastic backer is Caesars Palace. Over the years, the casino's secretary, has stated the maximum $1,000 contribution on Carter's chances for a second term. Except for the Dunes, none of the Caesars-Corner have yet figured in an ongoing FBI investigation of gambling operations in the Nevada desert.

WATCH ON WASTE: Congress began its annual spending binge this year with a traditional bonfire. The lawmakers mailed out 1.1 million calendars to the taxpayers, who wind up paying the freight. Each congressman gets 2,500 of the special calendars annually, and gets some free publicity with the voters by having his name stamped on them. The cost of preparing the calendars was about $600,000, but that doesn't include the money spent for envelopes and postage fees. Last year, the venture cost the Treasury $3 million.

The National Endowment for the Arts has committed $200,000 from the public treasury to a Mickey Mouse operation. The money was handed out to subsidize a New York school for the development of a course on the art of animated cartoons.

No Bum Steer: Seminole County Youths Win Big At Fair

For three Seminole County youths their months of hard work and devotion in raising steers to take to the Central Florida Fair paid off last week.

Heather MacLeod, 14, of Oviedo, the only Seminole County youth to enter a steer last year, was joined this year by her 11-year-old sister Christy and a 17-year-old cousin, Brent Ramsey, also of Oviedo. Their three calves were born and raised on the family ranch.

Heather, Christy and Brent each won third place in their class for their steers in the 4-H judging at the fair and a $5 prize.

Christy won a first place trophy and $15 prize for her 4-H record book and Brent won second prize of $10 for his record book.

Of the 50 entries in the competition, only 38 4-H members actually were accepted to show their steers. Since Seminole County does not have a beef club, the three youths registered through an Orange County club in order to compete.

Each of the Oviedo youngsters had invested close to $1,000 in the feeding and care of their steer and at the last minute enough sponsors came forward to bid on their steers and assure them of a healthy profit.

Wheeler Fertilizer and Meat World, both of Oviedo purchased Heather's 1,000-pound steer, Nicodemus, for $1,400 for a total of $1,375 after the three percent off for shrinkage required by the fair. Crittenden's Fruit Co. out bid Clitzen's Bank of Oviedo to purchase Brent's 1,000-pound steer, Nero, for $1,350 after a total of $1,299 after shrinkage. Purple Porpoise Restaurant of Maitland bought Christy's 1,115-pound steer, Napoleon, for $1,350 after $1,299 after shrinkage.

"This was a good experience for Brent and Christy," said Mrs. Patsy MacLeod, mother of the girls. "But Heather is really serious. She's going to commit every cent of her earnings into finding the best calf she can raise for next year's fair. In the past the calves we entered were born and raised on our ranch, but this year she's decided to step around."

Heather says she was the first kid from Seminole County to enter and the first kid from Lyman High School, where she is in the new Future Farmers of America Chapter, and she wants to be the first girl to have a grand champion steer at the fair," Mrs. MacLeod explained. "This was the first year a girl had ever had a reserve grand champion."

"Heather did a beautiful job in showing her steer and he posed perfectly for her, but we kidded Christy that next year we were going to enter her in the rodeo. Christy, the youngest, had the biggest of the three steers and the most ornery. When she was showing him in the ring he kicked her and took off running and backing, but came to a screeching halt when Christy sat down on the ground and pulled hard on the rope," said Mrs. MacLeod.

But the real test for Heather as a serious cattle grower came Monday when she decided to go to a meat-packing house to see how her steer dressed out. She went with a beef judging team, which was practicing on some beef carcasses dressed and hanging.

"She just about chickened out," said Mrs. MacLeod. "She said, 'I don't think I can look at him.' I looked around and I found her's and after watching the others judged by then she was curious to see how her steer measured up. She was really proud of him."

Christy is a student at Jackson Heights Middle School and Brent is a student at Oviedo High School.

The Seminole County 4-H Council exhibit at the Central Florida Fair received the second place ribbon, according to Fred Roberts, county 4-H program assistant. The theme of the exhibit was "Designing 4-H with People." Built around a slide presentation of 4-H activities for the past year, the display included a cypress clock, rockets, a sewing machine, 3,000 pine tree seedlings and items related to horsemanship.

The council received a $40 prize, $8 for travel expenses and $200 for building the exhibit. Money over and above expenses will go toward camp scholarships and summer activities, Roberts said.

Women In Turmoil

Gloria Steinem Is Intense In Her Fight For Feminism

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gloria Steinem doesn't flinch. She can sit quietly through a fusillade of sharply pointed questions (as well as some well-intentioned but essentially chauvinistic ones) and respond with unerring calmness.

Gloria is 45 now and has experienced nearly every inquiry in her 20 years as a leader of the feminist movement. But she hasn't "mellowed out" or become less intense. That's not the way feminist evolves.

"The women's movement works the other way around from other political, social movements — you get more radical as you get older," Steinem said recently in an interview in New York.

Steinem was making the rounds publicizing Ms. Magazine's new book, "The Decade of Women: A Ms. History of the Seventies in Words and Pictures," published by Putnam and Paragon. The book is an encyclopedic chronology of the women's movement and contains a long introduction written by Steinem, who is the editor and founder of Ms. Magazine.

Steinem has written for many magazines in the United States and Europe since her first article appeared in Esquire in 1962. She has written for television and for several political campaigns, those of Robert Kennedy, George McGovern, Cesar Chavez and Shirley Chisholm. She was one of the founders of New York Magazine and was its political columnist.

Steinem looks like a young fine arts teacher at a Sister Seven school; she is theatrically thin and wears brown tarty boots, black cordary slacks, a black turtleneck sweater and has large, even white teeth and long, blonde hair.

Have her obvious good looks helped her become the most recognized feminist of the decade? "No, my physical appearance hasn't helped me in the movement. A lot of people think that if you're a feminist you're going to have Army boots and terminal acne. When in reality, many of the women in the movement are beautiful," Steinem said.

"The problem all women have is we are judged by our skins — the way we look. I look forward to being old, then I'll be taken seriously. I know that's crazy — to wish away your life," she said.

She spoke about Carter's plan to register men and women for the armed services. "There are two worst alternatives: one would be to draft only men — that would be preparing for war and perpetuating discrimination; second would be to ask a draft for both men and women. But would he believe violence is a suitable method to solve a conflict. She said that most that would believe, would support a draft for true self-defense but she doubts whether the crisis in Afghanistan "demands land troops."

"The idea we would have a draft without ERA (Equal Rights Amendment) is really offensive. It assures that the policy of no women in decision-making positions in the military will continue," she said.

She also said that "fear of women knowing how to use guns is a masculine fear, as well as a masculine fear," she said.

"It's comforting to have a critic that's wrong about everything. The English gave us Ms. The unadvised Oxford English Dictionary lists Ms. as far back as the 17th century, I thought the Times of London people would know that," she said with a slight smile.

She stopped talking for a moment. It was the kind of pause one might experience while waiting at a traffic light and one to get away from where you already are.

"Progress lies in the direction we haven't been," she said.

The sentence seemed to hang in the air, and for the first time during the hour, Gloria Steinem moved.

Phyllis Schlafly Readies For Fight Against Draft

ALTON, Ill. (UPI) — Phyllis Schlafly walked from her cluttered, book-lined office into her stately family room but she just as easily could have been walking onto a stage.

The gracious, articulate woman who has become the most important voice in the United States against what she consistently calls "the radical feminists."

This time Mrs. Schlafly is readying an attack on what she insists is the most important issue affecting women to surface in some time: the registering of women for the military draft.

"It proves everything we've been saying for eight years," she said about her fight against the Equal Rights Amendment. "The purpose of the ERA is to change the social contract; it's to defend the United States."

"There's no evidence in all history that you win battles with female troops. I think it shows he (President Carter) doesn't have the backbone to stand up to the radical feminists in this election year."

"Nobody wants to draft women except the radical women's libbers. It's more unpopular than raising taxes, and you don't hear anybody moving to raise taxes this election year."

Mrs. Schlafly delivers speeches with the enthusiasm of an evangelist. In her eight years as the self-appointed leader of Stop ERA, she has averaged two appearances a week against the amendment and has polished her act to perfection.

"I have not grown tired of the subject because the subject touches every aspect of social life," she said. "The more I work with it the more I realize it is a more disastrous touch for our country if it is ratified."

Mrs. Schlafly, a lawyer and the wife of a lawyer, thought she had the battle against the ERA won last year. The constitutional deadline to ratify the proposed amendment passed with 35 states — three short of the required two-thirds majority — approving the amendment.

But Congress extended the deadline until 1982. The extension plus the question of whether a state can rescind its ratification — as five states have done — are the subject of a U.S. District Court fight in Idaho.

"I will think we've won but we're not going to let it slip away now," Mrs. Schlafly said. "It was figured in the three states that brought it up this year — Georgia, Missouri and Virginia — and I think the draft issue was responsible for killing ERA in two of those states."

"I'd like to move on to other issues, but we have to fight the draft issue anyway. If the ERA were law there would be no draft issue."

Enjoy Fruits Of Labor: Grow Oranges

As most of you probably well know, commercial citrus production is one of Florida's major industries. However, you don't have to raise citrus commercially to enjoy the many varieties of fresh fruit. The idea of growing and including citrus in the landscape is constantly on the increase. Dooryard citrus not only provides you with fresh fruit but also with a very appealing ornamental plant as well. There are many varieties available that grow well in our area and the variety you select is largely based on personal preference.

Many varieties of citrus can readily be grown by the dooryard grower in central and south Florida. Some varieties, such as the satsuma mandarin and kumquat may be grown in warm locations of north and west Florida.

PRODUCTION: The number of fruit which set and mature is only a small fraction of the total number of flowers produced. A heavy drop of small fruit usually occurs for several weeks after bloom and again usually during the month of June. There is usually no cause for concern over fruit drop although water stress or nutritional deficiencies may accentuate droppage. Budded trees will sometimes produce a few fruit the year after planting. However, large yields should not be expected until the tree is four-to-seven years old. Yields will vary somewhat from variety to variety.

Seeding trees are very slow to bear and may not produce fruit for 10 to 15 years. Therefore, for the dooryard, budded trees are recommended.

SOILS: Citrus soils are generally of three types: The deep, well-drained sands; the poorly-drained flatwoods; and the alkaline marl or limestone soils. Citrus trees can be grown in all three soils if proper preparation and aftercare is provided. The well-drained sands need little or no preparation other than removal of weeds and grass from the planting site prior to planting. The poorly-drained flatwoods soils will need to have drainage provided or the trees should be planted on large mounds approximately 12 feet in diameter and at least 18-24 inches high.

The calcareous or limestone soils may also need special preparation. In the limestone soils, a hole should be dug as large as is conveniently possible and filled with soil prior to planting. This will allow a maximum area for root development.

SPACING AND PLANTING YOUNG CITRUS: Spacing will vary with variety and desired density. If several trees are to be planted, they should be set at least 20-25 feet apart unless a vigorous pruning program is maintained to keep the trees from crowding each other.

Be sure to consider proximity to buildings or other plants as citrus is rather vigorous and will grow quite rapidly when well cared for. Full-sun areas are most desirable but septic tanks and drain fields should be avoided due to possible clogging of drains by the roots as well as damage to the tree from detergents and other chemicals.

Most dooryard citrus trees are purchased in containers and can be planted anytime of the year, although the preferred time is late winter or early spring. All grass and weeds should be removed from an area four to six feet in diameter where the tree is to be planted. The immediate area where the tree is to be planted should be thoroughly spaded to a depth of two to three feet. Remove the tree from the container and if pot-bound, make several vertical cuts in the ball of the roots to stimulate formation of new roots. Set the plant in the ground slightly higher than it grew in the container. Refill the hole around the plant about 1/3rd to 1/2 full and water and stamp the soil thoroughly to remove air pockets. Allow the water to settle, fill the hole 2/3rd full of soil and rewater. Finish filling the hole and pack the soil firmly around the tree. Form a water basin around the tree at least three to four inches high and 30 inches in diameter. Water three times until new growth appears — then apply only 1/2-pound of mixed fertilizer. Chelated iron should be supplied to citrus in alkaline soils at yearly intervals. Be sure to obtain chelated iron which is formulated specifically for alkaline soils and follow label directions.

CARE OF THE BEARING TREE: Fertilization is an important part of caring for the bearing citrus tree. For average soil conditions in Florida, the following fertilizer analysis will be generally satisfactory for dooryard citrus trees: N:8; P:6; K:6; Mg:4; Mn:0.75; Cu:0.25.

This mixture can be used for all applications throughout the year. Make three applications per year, generally in January or February, May of June, and October or November. Apply fertilizer to the entire rooting area, which usually extends well beyond the drip of the trees.

The amount of the application is an important factor. Over-fertilization tends to make the tree excessively vegetative, with a resulting reduction in quality and quantity of fruit. On the other hand, yellowing or lightness of color (other than that of immature growth) is a sign of hunger. To maintain foliage of a good dark-green color, a fairly safe rate in each application is one pound of the six percent nitrogen mixture per-year of age of the tree. A total of 90 pounds per year will suffice for trees 30 years old or older.

The pH (acidity or alkalinity) of the soil should be maintained between 6.0 and 7.0. An application of limestone or dolomite should be used to bring up the pH if it is too low (acid).

Again, weed control is not essential but is generally best to remove all weeds and sod grass from the area under the canopy of the tree. Above all, be sure to remove all weeds immediately adjacent to the trunk as these could harbor fungus organisms such as foot rot which could damage or kill the tree. If foot rot attacks the tree, soil should be removed from the affected area and the diseased portion of the plant cut away with a suitable tool. This area should then be treated with a good disinfectant tree paint to prevent future damage.

Fruit splitting may be a problem for some growers. This is a physiological problem of unknown origin. The problem is often accentuated just after a period of moisture stress followed by a heavy rain. Splitting will usually not be a serious problem if the trees are well cared for and furnished with adequate nutrition and irrigation.

INSECT AND DISEASE CONTROL: Citrus fruit can be successfully grown in most Florida dooryards without any insect or disease control sprays. Fruit produced in this manner, however, will rarely be of top external quality. There are several insects, mites and fungus diseases which may attack the fruit and render it somewhat unsightly. This lowering of eye appeal will usually have little effect on internal fruit quality. The appearance of the tree itself may suffer somewhat also if no sprays are applied but rarely will trees be seriously damaged by most citrus pests. Natural biological control will assist in keeping most pests to a low level.

However, if chemicals are required to control certain pests of citrus, malathion or ethion plus oil will control most insect problems and sprays of neutral copper will aid in controlling disease problems.

'Map' Garden For Success

By TOM DAVIS
Urban Horticulturist

You wouldn't take a vacation trip without taking along a map. It's important to "map" your garden, too, before you do anything else. Then you'll know where you are going. To plan a garden, you should ask yourself these questions:

- which varieties are best?
- how much seed will I need?
- how far apart should the rows and plants be spaced?
- when is the best time to plant?
- have I had my soil

tested for the correct pH?

LOCATION: A garden spot handy to the house and kitchen is best. A good water supply, such as a spigot, should be nearby. Choose a spot where the soil is rich as possible and one which is not shaded, especially in the morning hours.

ARRANGEMENT: How you arrange the vegetables in the garden is important. Keep tall vegetables, such as corn, to one side and low-growing plants, as radishes, to the other side. Otherwise, the tall plants will shade the little ones.

Run the rows north and south so more sunlight can strike the plants.

SPADING: Two or three weeks before planting your seed, you must plow or spade your garden soil. This is done so the soil can be loosened and trash, such as weeds and grass, can be turned under. Be sure to turn the soil completely over when spading.

RAKING: Use rake to break clods and level the ground. Rake up and remove all woody weeds and trash from the plot. When you have finished preparing the soil, it should be smooth with no clods or trash showing. You now have the soil ready to fertilize and plant seed.

GARDEN LAYOUT: Use stakes, string, and a yardstick to lay off straight rows. Follow your previously prepared plan. Place a garden label at the head of each row. Information on the label should include the crop, variety, and planting date.

FERTILIZING: All plants must have food for growth. Plants can starve if they have no food. There is some plant food in most all soils. But most garden soils do not have enough. We must add plant food in the form of commercial fertilizer or manures. The fertilizer recommended for most garden soils is called a mixed fertilizer. It must be placed in the soil where plant roots can reach it. Commercial fertilizer should be added to the soil right before or at planting time.

Do not put fertilizer under the seed. It might burn the young roots. Instead, place the fertilizer on each side of the seed row. To do this, you must make two furrows about six inches apart and only two or three inches deep. Spread the fertilizer down the furrows, then, fill the furrows level with soil.

Hauser chooses varieties that grow best in local soil.

Raised Gardens Allow Soil Choice

Often a gardener will find that his garden soil won't support the plants or vegetables he wants to grow. With a raised bed he can select any type of soil mix he wishes.

But that's not the only advantage of raised bed gardening. Wood structures can beautify your garden, deck or patio. They also make gardening chores easier.

By building a seat along the sides, planting, weeding and harvesting can be done with a great deal less effort than is ordinarily the case. Building a raised bed is

Energy Checklist Saves You Money

Now that the energy crunch is a way of life, the National Institute of Building Sciences has teamed up with the Department of Energy to produce a "Checklist" of the ten best energy-saving tips.

The first six ideas on the "Big Ten Checklist" are either costfree, or very inexpensive. Pennies can save dollars.

1. Check weatherstripping and caulking. Up to 30 percent of a heating or cooling load is lost through cracks around closed windows or doors.
2. Check thermostat. Set at 65 degrees in winter and 78 degrees in summer.
3. Check water heaters. Lower heat setting and wrap with insulation.
4. Check heating and cooling systems. Clean filters; close vents in unused rooms. Seal cracks around air conditioners.
5. Check sunlight. Let it in during winter; keep it out in summer with drapes, awnings.
6. Check appliances, lighting, fully load washers, turn off lights and other appliances.

7. Check attic insulation. Use recommended levels; seal doors.
8. Check floors and foundations. Check crawl space and foundation walls for insulation.

9. Check windows and doors. Consider storm windows, doors or double-pane glass.
10. Check exterior walls. Consider adding insulation, especially if remodeling or re-siding.

The government is offering help. Income tax credits are available on energy-saving expenses. Deduct 15 percent of material costs from your income tax, up to $300. Don't deduct labor.

Probably no item on the "Big Ten Checklist" will produce faster savings than the number one item—weatherstripping.

Ag Center In County

With the population of Seminole County on a constant increase, there are probably many newer residents who may not be familiar or aware of the services offered at the Agricultural Center, located at 4320 S. Orlando Drive (U.S. Highway 17-92) in Sanford.

The urban program is designed to help the residents of Seminole County with any agricultural related problems that may arise. These could pertain to lawns, vegetable gardens, fruit trees, ornamentals, as well as house plants or insect pests. All services are free to county residents.

Services offered include soil testing; seminars which are held once a month at the Agricultural Center; and advice on agricultural-related problems between the hours of 8:30 a.m. thru 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, either by phone or personnel visits to our office.

A monthly publication entitled "Seminole Green-thumb," which deals with current, local information on various gardening topics, and a wealth of information in the form of publications are free upon request. Call the office at 323-3233 for further information.

Community Gardens

They're Economical To 2 Million In U.S.

Nearly 2 million Americans are involved in community gardening, according to a recent poll. One reason is that community gardens have compelling economic advantages. The average home or community vegetable plot nationwide in 1977 was 750 square feet, cost about $25 to get started and yielded $375 in savings on food bills. These figures come from the California Council for Community Gardens.

In addition, community gardens are educational, have a revitalizing effect on tired neighborhoods and provide nutritional, as well as psychological, benefits. Community gardens take many forms. At one project, the gardener rents a plot of land about 15 by 25 feet on the grounds of a local elementary school. The charge is $15 a year and the program is coordinated by the city parks and recreation department.

In another project, funded by the federal government, teenagers and senior citizens are brought together. The heavy work is done by the teenagers and the harvest is used by the senior citizens. If you are interested in starting a community garden you can write to: Gardens For All, Box 371, Shelburne, Vt. 05482. This is an information clearing house on community gardens.

Locally, contact your Cooperative Extension Service. Look in your phone book under county listings. Consider installing permanent raised beds. One garden used 12-inch-high raised beds filled with good soil mix. Pathways between the beds were mulched with tree chips.

The plants grew beautifully, and the weed problem, which can often be demoralizing, was greatly reduced.

Have a plan for growing your vegetables. Make certain that there is an adequate water supply available. Good vegetables need plenty of water.

Finally, good organization is important. New gardens need at least one person willing to be responsible for coordinating work days and making sure help is available when necessary.

cooperative extension agents can be particularly helpful in this regard. Another aspect of walkways that people don't give enough attention to is the width. Most of them turn out to be too narrow.

Single-file walkways can be 30 inches wide, but 36 inches is more desirable. Entry walks for two persons side-by-side should be 48 to 60 inches.

When a walk is adjacent to a wall or a fence, some extra width would be appreciated to avoid scraped shoulders.

Also consider a walkway that varies in width to provide more visual interest. A straight strip is monotonous. Gentle curves, subtle changes in direction function as well as a direct route and make for a better looking landscape. The heavy log cuts that curve through this garden make a practical walkway that is also pleasing to the eye.

Walkways Set Mood

Leads For Putting-Down A Better Garden Path

Unfortunately, many people give little thought to the walkways, paths, ramps and steps that provide access to and from the home and surrounding garden areas.

A simple thing such as the walkway from the curb to the front door can provide an inviting entrance and set the mood for your home. Or it can be an uninteresting, narrow stretch of concrete that can only be described as dull.

The back of the house can be given added drama by incorporating such things as brick ramps, granite steps and wrought-iron or wood railings.

These traffic patterns which tie together the various parts of the garden are important for practical as well as aesthetic reasons.

When you plan walks and paths for your home, or plan to remodel those you already have, there are practical points to consider.

For example, ask yourself how guests will get from the curb to the front door. Will it be convenient to carry groceries from the car to the kitchen?

Is there a paved surface for trash barrels, bikes, the lawnmower? Are there play areas? Is there a dog run?

In other words, sit and think for a moment about the various types of traffic that go on around the house function as well as a direct route and make for a better looking landscape. You also must take into consideration selection of materials, how suitable they will be for the area and their upkeep as well as original cost.

For example, the front walk might get a more expensive paving. Brick, flagstone and concrete with a special non-skid surface treatment would be good choices.

The reason for a more expensive front walk is that the square footage involved is relatively small. Therefore, it would not be that costly to provide a handsome entry to your home.

Container Gardening Can Be Rewarding

Gardening in containers is becoming increasingly popular in America. But this form of gardening is not new. Plants have been cultivated in containers for centuries.

However, it's only in the last few years that the idea has really caught on. Today there are plant shops, florists and nurseries in every section of the city.

The popularity of this form of gardening results in good part from the fact that people need living plants around them.

Plants help purify the atmosphere, they give us oxygen and they also absorb noise pollution. People also like the feeling being closer to nature. You can get many satisfactions from container gardening. Putting a plant in a box, tub or pot immediately gives it new character. The plant changes from a mere bush to a shrub of distinction.

For example, a low growing juniper is just a ground cover in the garden. But it becomes a piece of art when it's elevated in a box, pinched and pruned for a windswept look.

Plants in containers also can be trained and led into new growth patterns. A clematis can climb to a height of 15 feet or more, be trained as a 3-foot-wide umbrella above a 12-inch pot. Or ivy can be made to follow a curved wire and present a formal column.

But while container gardening can be easy and rewarding, it does require following certain procedures.

First, you must give your plant the right environment to grow in. That means getting a good commercial soil mix and selecting a spot in the house where it will receive good light.

In addition, you must feed and water the plant regularly.

And also protect it from invaders. Plants in containers are not immune from insect damage. Get a good spray to protect your plants might want to use wood plank, concrete or railroad ties. Whatever the material you select, it should complement your landscape and should be attractive and utilitarian.

The garden path should invite people to stroll through your private landscape. The path may meander behind shrubs or a slope. It can direct the walker to a particular area, such as a special planting.

It can be lined by groups of narrow trees which can be planted in even a small yard. Brick, wood and soft pavings like decomposed granite and bark are great for this use.

If your garden isn't flat, you will want to install steps or ramps to provide access from one level to another.

A rise of 5 to 8 percent is a gentle slope. This comes out to a rise in grade of 6 to 10 inches for each 10 feet of horizontal distance. A rise of 12 inches for 10 feet — or 12 percent — should be the maximum steepness for a ramp.

The primary consideration the designing steps and ramps is safety. The paving must be non-skid.

Risers — or step-ups — less than 4 inches high should be avoided. For steps, you must be non-skid. Therefore, it would not be that costly to provide a handsome entry to your home.

Thelma Smith, 1807 Palmetto Ave., Sanford, works at maintaining her yard, which accentuates the beauty of her house, trees, and shrubs and provides many other advantages.

A Well-Maintained Lawn Offers These Advantages

A healthy and well maintained lawn provides the ideal setting for any home. It is the living carpet which provides the background for your landscape and it accentuates the beauty of structures, trees, shrubs and flowers. A good lawn serves as a utility or recreational area, prevents erosion, reduces glare, lowers temperatures in the summer, maintains higher temperatures in the winter, reduces dust and increases property value.

The purely aesthetic value of a green well-manicured lawn is difficult to put in terms of dollars and cents; however, most people "want and appreciate a beautiful lawn."

Everyone would like a trouble-free or "perfect" lawngrass — one which always looks good but requires little or no maintenance. Unfortunately, no such lawngrass exists. In fact, few of the thousands of grasses in the world have qualities desirable for a lawngrass. A grass well-suited for lawn use will have several of the following assets: adaptability to the climate and soils of an area; good green color; fine texture; thickness; ability to withstand use and close mowing; resistance or at least some tolerance to insects, diseases and other pests; and finally, reasonable cost of planting and maintenance.

Six types of grasses have enough of these qualities to make them useful as lawngrasses in Florida. These grasses, listed in order of their state-wide popularity, are: St. Augustinegrass, Bahiagrass, Centipedegrass, Bermudagrass, Zoysiagrass and Carpetgrass.

These are the perennial, warm-season grasses used for permanent lawns in Florida. The best lawngrass is a matter of personal opinion.

At this time of year, most people become enthusiastic (or at least mildly concerned) about the condition of their yard. When do I fertilize? How to control all these weeds? How often should I water? Which grass should I use to plant my lawn? Weeds are probably the most popular subject of lawn care. One should be aware that weeds are only an indication of an underlying problem. That problem is improper maintenance of a healthy turf. A healthy lawn resists weed encroachment. With proper lawn establishment and maintenance, most problems take care of themselves. Many people inherit turf problems when they purchase a new home that has an established lawn.

In that case, proper application of certain herbicides provide effective weed control and little turf injury. Accurate weed identification and knowledge of your turf's response to a given weed killer are essential in selecting the proper herbicide for the job.

Producing a healthy lawn requires a combination of practices such as maintenance of proper soil pH and nutrient level in the soil, control of plant diseases and insects, and proper watering and mowing practices. Some of these practices differ with the type of grass you have in your lawn. It is important to be familiar with the specific characteristics of your lawn grass.

Applications of beneficial dacthal granules in the spring are useful in preventing many grassy weeds (crabgrass, goosegrass, sandburs) and certain broadleaf weeds. Once weeds are already present, spray applications of 2,4-D dicamba or MCPP, coupled with a spreader sticker, should be applied depending on which turf species is present.

Other turf pests such as disease and insects can be controlled if proper identification of the offending organism is made.

To summarize, the "best" lawngrass is that variety which is well adapted to your particular site, has the color, texture and density you desire, and can be kept in a healthy and attractive condition with the time, effort and money you are willing to spend.

Soil Test Wise Before Planting

If you plan to put in a lawn or any type of garden — or if you are having trouble with an established lawn or garden — it's wise to take a soil test.

It's easy to take a test and have it analyzed. The results will enable you to improve the soil for specific plants.

State universities offer test soil free of charge. If not, they charge only a nominal fee.

In the few states where this service is not available, contact a private soil test laboratory by looking in the yellow pages under "Laboratories — Testing."

If there is no listing call your county agricultural extension agent and ask for a recommendation.

Soils should not be sampled when they are wet, since it's difficult to mix the samples properly. According to the new book "All About Fertilizers, Soils and Water," a good rule to follow is this: If the soil is too wet to plow or cultivate, it's too wet for sampling.

Soil labs are set up in assembly line fashion, so they usually provide the customer with a written form, a pint carton for the sample and a shipping carton. Contact the laboratory before submitting the samples for instruction on how they want them sent.

The only tools you'll need are: a garden trowel, or a shovel and trowel, or a soil sampling tube.

You will also need a bucket and a pencil and notebook to record each sample. That way you can identify the samples when you get the lab report back.

To take samples with a soil tube, you push the probe into the soil six to eight inches in depth if you are testing garden soil. Push it two to six inches in soil. Pull it out and tap the sample into the bucket.

When using a shovel and trowel, you push the shovel into the soil and then push the handle forward to open a wedge-shaped hole. Scrape the sample from the side of the hole with the spoon — one stroke bottom to top.

If you are using a trowel, dig a small hole and then scrape soil from the side of the hole using one stroke, bottom to top. Scrape six to eight inches deep in garden soil, two to six inches deep in sod.

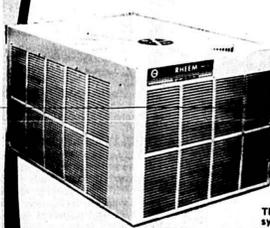

For lawn samples, take soil from 10 or more holes. For a new lawn, take soil from the top five to six inches. For an established lawn take samples from the top two to six inches of soil.

With trees or shrubs, take the soil from holes around the drip line that are six to eight inches deep. If only one or two plants are involved, get soil from three different holes near each of the plants. If a number of plants are involved, get soil from one hole near each.

Sampling flower beds requires that you take soil from at least three or four holes in each 100 square foot area. The holes should be six to eight inches deep. For vegetable gardens, take soil from 10 or more holes that are each six to eight inches deep.

Although the rose is a hardy plant, it still requires protection. A hedge of protective shrubs provides a good shield against strong winds. If rose plants are suffering from black spots, powdery mildew or rust, they should be sprayed. A new liquid fungicide has been developed which will control these diseases.

Adaptable Rose Most Popular Flower

It's not hard to understand why the rose is our most popular flower. No other plant produces so many flowers over as long a period of time. No other plant family grows under so many different climatic and soil conditions.

Roses Tough

The rose is such a beautiful flower that many people mistakenly think it is also very delicate. The fact is it's tough and adaptable. If roses' tap roots sink deep enough, they will last for many years. Roses have been found growing on old abandoned farms that have been left neglected for as long as 50 years.

It's easy to revive old and uncared for roses. The first step, is to remove all broken, dead and diseased parts. Next, prune away weak, twiggy and inward-growing wood. Now, open up the center of the bush by pruning back to the vigorous outward-facing buds. Cut back the young wood to two to three buds. And then fertilize. Don't do any more than that or you might send the plant into shock.

Then when new growth begins in the spring, spray with a fungicide to control diseases such as black spot, rust and powdery mildew.

Best of all, they're easy to grow and you don't have to wait years for results, because most roses bloom the first year they're planted.

Shakespeare probably spoke for many gardeners when he wrote, "Of all the flowers, me thinks a rose is best."

While the rose is basically a hardy plant, it still requires protection. It will not demand a great deal of your time to give rose plants the care that will enable them to survive the elements and help them cope with disease.

The book "All About Roses" offers some basic tips on how to protect roses. Keep in mind that any strong wind is bad for roses. A hedge of protective shrubs provides an excellent shield. If the wind is hot and dry, shrubs are particularly good. They not only slow the wind down, they contribute moisture as it passes which is a big help.

Allow at least 10 feet between your shrubs and the rose bushes. Also, select deep-rooted shrubs that will do well in your climate.

Hot weather fatigues a rose plant. At temperatures above 90 degrees F., the plant uses food faster than its leaves can manufacture it. So if you live in a hot climate, don't prune roses as much as you would in a cooler environment.

Don't forget that not enough water can cause wilt, too much water can cause rot, alkaline soil can cause yellow leaves. Make sure the problem is not a cultural one before you decide to spray.

For Lawns

How To Stop Insect Damage

Hundreds of types of insects live in the typical lawn. Many are hardly visible and do very little harm.

But there are some pests which can invade your lawn and do serious damage. For example, the sod webworm, grubs of various beetles and chinch bugs can destroy a lawn within a short time if conditions are right for their development.

The two important questions for the homeowner are: How can you tell if the lawn problem is being caused by insects? And if it is caused by insects, how can the damage be stopped?

To diagnose the problem, the first thing to do is look. Look very closely. If you get down on your hands and knees, chances are you will be able to spot the invader in action.

Some of these pests appear at night, others in sunny corners and still others in a shady spot. A book such as "All About Lawns," describes the habits and characteristics of the most common lawn pests and tells how to control them.

For example, sod webworms start working on a lawn in late spring. They chew grass blades off just above the thatch line. As a result there will be small dead patches about 1 to 2 inches in diameter.

If nothing is done to stop these pests, the damage will spread until the lawn is covered with large, irregular dead patches.

Sod webworms feed at night. Look for them by carefully breaking apart the damaged areas with your fingers. They can be forced to the surface of the grass by drenching a one square foot area with a gallon of soapy water.

To control these insects use an insecticide such as diazinon soil and turf insect spreader.

Another pest is the armyworm. Enough of them, and your grass can be eaten right down to the soil level.

Like the sod webworm, their calling cards are round, bare areas in the lawn.

They are yellowish white and can further be identified by an upsidown "V" on their heads. Control them with a product that contains Dursban.

Lawn damaging insects can be grouped according to where they are most active, above or below the ground, and the type of damage they do. Control methods are different for each group.

Chinch bugs, leafhoppers, spider mites and similar pests live above the soil surface and damage the lawn by sucking plant juices.

To control them, first mow the lawn and remove clippings. Then water heavily. Wait until the grass blades are dry and then apply the insecticide according to label directions. After the application, don't water for two days.

Sod webworms, cutworms, armyworms and fiery skipper larvae live at the soil surface and feed on the leaves.

To control, mow the lawn, remove clippings and water heavily. When the grass blades are dry, apply the insecticide according to label directions. It's best applied in late afternoon when the insects are active.

Grubs, wireworms and sod webworms live below the surface and feed on roots.

To control, mow the lawn and remove clippings. Apply insecticide according to label directions and water heavily after spraying. However, not so heavily that you wash away the insecticide. Fertilize to aid the recovery of the lawn if the season is appropriate.

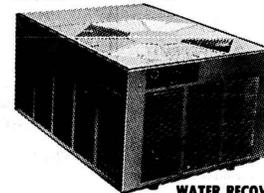

A final thing to remember: A healthy, well-maintained lawn is one of the best protections against insects since it will be less subject to serious damage.

Inflation It Keeps Galloping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Producer prices surged 1.5 percent in February as energy costs raced ahead at the fastest pace in six years, the government reported today.

With the exception of food, the cost of items at the wholesale level climbed sharply across the board, the Labor Department said in its new inflation survey.

February's large rise — which figures to a 19.1 percent compounded annual rate — followed a 1.6 percent price jump in January. Thus, the first two months of 1980 amounted to the highest back-to-back increases in inflation at the wholesale level since October-November, 1974.

"There isn't any evidence of anything getting better," said Labor Department economist John Early.

Interest Prime Rate Jumps

NEW YORK (UPI) — Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, today raised the prime rate half point to a record 17 1/2 percent.

It was the sixth time the rate has been boosted this year and some analysts believe the key rate could climb to 20 percent. Citibank was the first major bank to reach the all-time high of 17 1/2 percent.

Chairman Walter Wriston said Citibank's current cost of funds indicated a need for a higher rate but it was restricting the increase to a half-point since it continues to base its rates on an average over time.

Because the prime, the rate charged the most creditworthy corporate customers, is a minimum rate, other borrowers can expect to pay much more

Jobs Rate Unchanged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite widespread predictions unemployment will rise this year and next, the nation's unemployment rate was virtually unchanged in February, the Labor Department reported today.

The jobless rate fell from 6.2 percent in January to 6 percent last month, but analysts said that, with the rounding off of the numbers, the change was not significant.

The number of unemployed persons was 6.3 million in February, 100,000 fewer than the month before.

Economists, including the administration's economic advisers, have widely predicted a slowing of the economy — which some deem to be a recession — will push the jobless rate up by as much as 2 million persons during the next two years.

The Congressional Budget Office predicts a jobless rate of 6.3 percent to 7.3 percent later this year, rising to between 7 and 8 percent in 1981.

The latest figures do not contradict those predictions, since a rise in unemployment usually lags behind an economic slowdown. But they are one more clue the economy right now is performing better than many economists gloomily had predicted.

Jobless rates were virtually unchanged for most categories of workers. The February unemployment rate for adult men was 4.6 percent, adult women 5.7 percent, all teenagers 16.5 percent, whites of all ages 5.3 percent, blacks 11.5 percent.

FINE FEATHERED FOG
You know the fog is thick when the birds are walking instead of flying but this morning along the Sanford waterfront, the seagulls were not even doing that. Perching on top of some old pilings was their favorite activity until the sun came out and burned off the fog. Although the National Weather Service posted travelers' warnings from 4 to 10 a.m., the Florida Highway Patrol reported no major accidents due to the fog.

Harassed Lake Mary Couple Gets Help

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A couple, complaining that neighborhood harassment could wind up with someone being seriously hurt, received a promise of action from Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson Thursday night.

Jack and Lorella Eltonhead, of 263 First St., told city councilmen that harassment, which began nearly a year ago, has intensified in recent weeks.

Eltonhead and his wife said persons who do not live on his street have adopted a number of dangerous practices including driving their cars straight at the couple as they are traveling down the street, veering just moments before impact. He said at least two drivers have also narrowly missed striking them as they walk across the street as well.

Mrs. Eltonhead said the harassment began last summer after stop signs were placed in the neighborhood as petitioned by her neighbors and her.

"It is getting to the point where I'm ready to pull one of them out of his car," Eltonhead said. Saying he is originally from Philadelphia and he saw tactics of this sort used in that large northern city, Eltonhead nevertheless refused to publicly identify the persons involved.

"It's getting bad and I don't want it to get worse," he said today, still refusing to identify the motorists involved.

Mrs. Eltonhead told the city council Thursday night the harassment began last summer after stop signs were placed in the neighborhood as petitioned by her neighbors and her.

Eltonhead said he likes Lake Mary and has tried to be a good citizen by participating in the volunteer fire department. Mrs. Eltonhead said she has talked to the parents of the drivers involved without success.

Councilman Francis Mark urged Sorenson to discuss the problem with Police Chief Harry Benson, seeking action. Sorenson said stop signs stolen from the street several times over the past months will be replaced.

"We may be able to get a stop sign that will remain," Sorenson told the couple, "but we can't make them love you."

Eltonhead suggested the city ask the sheriff's department to assist in patrolling the neighborhood.

In other business, the council gave Terry Bennett and his wife the 55 days time remaining in their building permit to correct deficiencies in the house they are building on Pine Circle Drive.

City Manager Phil Kulbes is to provide the couple with a new check list of construction deficiencies on Monday. Kulbes has been ill and away from his city hall office. Building Inspector Vince Butler told the councilman most of the 17 deficiencies noted earlier have been corrected.

Ex-Marine Is Used To Being A Hero

NEW YORK (UPI) — As flames licked the building, Russell Cunningham shouted five times for a frightened 10-year-old boy to jump from a second-floor window. The bodybuilding champ and ex-Marine braced himself and the boy plunged from the ledge.

"He was just a little kid about 100 pounds and I caught him," Cunningham said Thursday. The boy, who fell 25 feet, was unharmed.

Cunningham, 32, who has always wanted to be a firefighter, said he "just knew" he would save the boy.

"I didn't think about it," he said. "I was just helping out anybody."

It wasn't the first time for the 6-foot, 200-pound Cunningham, who once pulled a couple from a burning car and was shot on two occasions trying to rescue women from attackers.

About 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Cunningham was driving with two friends in Brooklyn when he saw the fire.

"We arrived in the nick of time. There were people there, no firemen, just people standing around doing nothing. We broke a first-floor window to let the smoke out and helped this little girl get out."

The girl told Cunningham that her brother, Andrew Gimali, was on the second floor. "I looked up and there was the kid," he said. "I yelled 'jump' five times before he jumped."

That was after Cunningham tried to run into the two-family house, but couldn't because of the flames.

Cunningham's uncle is a police officer in the South Bronx and his father is a firefighter in Brooklyn.

"I was very proud to hear of what my son has done, but I'm not very surprised," said Russell Sr., an 18-year veteran of the department.

The younger Cunningham was a corporal in the Marines and "when I got out two years ago, I got on the list to be a fireman. I missed the cop test."

Two years ago, he said, he and his friends pulled two people from a burning car wreck in Miami.

"That was two Easters ago," he recalled. "We saw this car turned upside down. We didn't think we just ran and pulled out the two people inside."

Eight months ago, while working as a bouncer in a Brooklyn disco, he rescued a girl who was being accosted by two men. One of the men pulled out a gun and "I smacked it out of his hand. But the other guy shot me in the chest." Cunningham wasn't seriously injured.

A few months before that, Cunningham was shot in the arm trying to defend a friend's girlfriend from four men who tried to attack her in a Brooklyn bar.

Cunningham's bravery is due, in part, to his physique. In 1976, he won the Mr. Staten Island, Mr. New York and Mr. Teenage America muscle-building contests.

"Before I was shot I had a 46-inch chest," he said. "I was in the hospital for awhile but now I'm ready to go back to the contests."

Iran Thinks About Moving The Hostages

By United Press International

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today the 50 American hostages may be moved from the U.S. Embassy on Saturday to an undisclosed location where they could be interviewed by the U.N. commission investigating the regime of the deposed shah.

But a spokesman for the militants said they were certain Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini "would not permit the hostages to go to the United States until the shah comes back to Iran."

Thousands of Iranians demonstrated outside occupied U.S. Embassy compound today, shouting their support of the militants and imploring them not to turn the hostages over to the Revolutionary Council.

Asked about the public support, a militant spokesman said though the militants "favored this demonstration" and that "the support of the people can change many things," the militants still intended to turn the Americans over to the government.

The BBC reported from Tehran that a prayer meeting today passed a resolution that demanded the extradition of the shah "and the recovery of the riches he plundered. In carrying out this command of the Imam, we will not retreat a single step."

As for when the Americans might be released, the spokesman said, "We have not received any message from them (the Revolutionary Council), we have not received any formal decision so I can't say anything yet about it."

Asked if the militants were just awaiting word from the Revolutionary Council to turn over the hostages, the spokesman said, "Yes, yes, exactly. We are awaiting the Revolutionary Council to give us word."

Ghotbzadeh's statement that the hostages may be moved on Saturday was reported from Tehran by the British Broadcasting Corp. He did not say where they would be moved other than that it would be a location where the U.N. commission would talk to them.

U.N. Commission member Louis-Edmond Bechet of France, stopping in Rome, told NBC News that the commission would not be able to visit the Americans before Sunday "but perhaps later. Until Thursday, we were pessimistic and did not expect to see them at all. And then we got the good news."

The major breakthrough toward ending the 124-day-old crisis came Thursday when the militants suddenly decided to hand over custody of the hostages they have held since the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Jurists on the U.N. panel trying to arrange the hostages' release were packing their bags to leave when the Iranian ambassador announced a possible dramatic change of heart was announced.

"We ask the Revolutionary Council to take over the hostages — that is, the American spies — from us and deal with them in any way it deems appropriate," the militants said. "We regard our responsibility for the hostages as an end."

Tehran Radio reported crowds of people gathered in front of the U.S. Embassy afterwards and urged the students to continue to hold the Americans.

Officials in Washington and at U.N. headquarters in New York reacted with guarded optimism to news of the turnover, fearful that substantive comments could hurt delicate moves toward resolving the matter.

Informed diplomatic sources at the United Nations in New York said "if all goes well" an even more significant breakthrough could come long before the end of Iran's parliamentary elections in April, which has been mentioned by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini as a possible date for the release of the hostages.

Without explaining, the sources said they were hopeful the hostages could be released perhaps as early as next week.

There was no definite word on when the turnover would take place or what would happen to the hostages afterward. But in West Germany, U.S. military sources said the Wiesbaden Air Force hospital, where female and black hostages released in December were taken, was being readied.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said President Carter met with top aides and "we've noted the reports from Tehran and we are watching the situation very carefully."

The dramatic development in Tehran came hours after the U.N. Commission investigating charges against the shah threatened to leave because its efforts to visit the hostages had been stymied. The commission was persuaded by Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh to give the Revolutionary Council another "two or three days" to arrange the visit.

The U.N. Commission's spokesman, Samir Sanbar, in a telephone interview from London, said "it was a logical assumption" the five-member panel would see the hostages within the three days set by Ghotbzadeh, but added cautiously, "I'd rather not say anything definite at the moment."

In Panama City, the deposed shah's private secretary, Robert Armas, said demands by a Panamanian lawyer for the former monarch's extradition to Iran have no basis in Panamanian law.

Longwood Rink Robbed

A lone thief knocked down the manager of a Longwood skating rink and made off with $800 late this morning, deputies report.

An employee of Skate City, on Dog Track Road in Longwood, was attacked by a Panamanian lawyer for the former monarch's extradition to Iran have no basis in Panamanian law.
