Lawmen looking for boa kidnappers

LEXINGTON, S.C. (UPI) — South Carolina authorities are on the lookout for three men suspected of kidnapping a man from a trailer park and then taking a six-foot-long, six-foot-wide boa constrictor.

Right now we're looking for three young white males in a silver, four-door automobile with a black take constrator for Lexington County Sheriff James McIsaac said Thursday.

McIsaac said the assault first took place at a trailer in the rural Hope Valley Mobile Home Park Wednesday night and then moved to kill resident James Parker unless he told them the whereabouts of his brother-in-laws.

Bobcat found under dining room table

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 2-foot-long bobcat found hiding under a Queens dining room table must have its urban abode for a moment in a friendly environment, animal control agents say.

Daisy, a glowing orange-colored bobcat, must have come from Long Island City, a neighborhood because it is considered dangerous to humans, said Jeffrey Hon, an spokesman for the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

ASPCA agents confiscated the 30-pound cat from its owner, Ralph Ferraro, 33, and caged him for keeping a wild animal in the city.

Ferraro, who lives in a three-room walk-up apartment at first insisted that he knew nothing of the cat and showed officials a death certificate for a former pet, an ocicat, Hon said.

Surprise witness appears

Motel manager refutes jail guard's testimony

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Former jail guard Martha Brown (right) looks on as Frank Kruppenbacher (left) and Browns' attorney Stewart Cotnam (center) discuss some paperwork. The guard's fate will be decided Wednesday.

AN UNEXPECTED surprise witness appeared Thursday in the appeal hearing of a trial sentencing Martha Brown, a jail guard who is charged with the murder of a man.

A St. Augustine motel manager who had not been scheduled to appear at the Thursday Civil Service Board hearing testified he saw a cigarette lighter in the guard's room on May 11, 1987.

Throughout the night of Feb. 19, starting at about 6:30 p.m., Brown made a dozen calls to St. Augustine area law enforcement agencies, stating Kovacs had hidden her car, according to testimony. She and Kovacs had checked into the motel shortly after she picked him up in Mayo following his release from state prison.

Early in the morning, Brown told Brown Wilson, motel manager, that Kovacs had a gun in the trunk, but Brown insisted on going for a burn paper. However, she did not file an official report until about 10:30 a.m. the next day. In that report, she stated she last saw Kovacs and her car shortly after midnight the day before.

Brown Wilson's husband, Robert Wilson, the age of the son, told her on St. Augustine, that he saw a man in a dark car, Kovacs, in Brown's motel room when Brown called the room about 10:30 a.m. Feb. 20 to inform her that she had a car in the trunk.

Commissioners consider millage hike

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The city commission appears to be leaning toward a millage increase after three days of discussions concerning the city's 1988-89 budget.

Commissioners met Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon in a series of budget requests made by department heads and recommendations made by city manager Frank A. Larson for the 1988-89 fiscal year, beginning in October.

The proposed budget is $181 million, $1 million higher than the current budget.

However, on Thursday, the commission directed city clerk Henry Fannin to add a one-mill increase to the city budget proposal, which will be on the agenda for Monday night's meeting.

The commission also directed Fannin to prepare a resolution to increase the millage rate to 2.5 mills, which would raise the city's revenue to $182 million.

Hastings impeachment recommended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee today recommended impeachment Thursday of U.S. District Judge Alice Hastings, the first step in efforts to remove Florida's first black federal judge from the bench.

The subcommittee's report, prepared by the Judiciary Committee, contains articles of impeachment against Hastings, who was not present for the vote.

This is the most difficult decision ever called upon to make, said subcommittee Chairman John Conyers, D-Mich., when he took the impeachment charges to the full committee. It ensures the integrity of the federal judiciary.

The Judiciary Committee now must decide whether to send the resolution to the House floor. If the House votes to impeach Hastings, the Senate conducts a trial to remove him from the bench and strip him of his federal salary.

Hastings' lawyer, Clarence Anderson, expressed disappointment at the panel's decision and said his client could not be present because he was presiding over a case in Miami, Fla., and Hastings would not resign at the time.

I was pessimistic about the outcome from the beginning, Anderson said.

The articles of impeachment accused Hastings of betraying the trust of the people and bringing "dispute on the federal courts."

Hastings has spent most of his eight years on the bench bending all charges he conspired with a

Humane Society may take over adoptions

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Administrator Ken Hooper will offer the Humane Society of Seminole County the option of taking over adoptions of stray animals from the county.

The county really shouldn't be in that business, Hooper says. That's what the Humane Society does best. The county is best at controlling wild and stray animals.

The animal control department has been shaken in the last two months by a series of resignations, including the two top assistants to department director Bob McIntosh. Typical summer increases in animals brought by the shelter has strained the reduced staff to near emergency conditions. To assist the department, Hooper has transferred two road department employees to staff.

Hooper said he is offering a letter to Humane Society officials to see whether they would consider the offer. No decision has been made yet, Hooper says. The county is probably going to have an adoption shelter in the near future, he said.

It was opened for the new shelter last week and the contract is expected to be awarded July 12 by county commissioners. The new $1.25 million bid was submitted by Village Design Build Inc. of Winter Park, but the county purchasing staff is recommending the contract be awarded to Billie Construction.

Reward fund established in effort to help find killer

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A reward fund has been established at a local bank in an effort to help find the killer of 11-year-old Cornelia Ammons.

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan donated the first $1,000 and Mayor Betty Smith, Karen Coleman and other members of the Seminole County school board have contributed additional reward money.

The reward money will be given to anyone who can provide information that leads to the arrest and condition of the killer. Anyone with information should telephone the Sanford Police Department at 321-3030.

Maybe this will shake something loose, McClanahan said.

Police have had few clues to work with since Ammons' body was discovered Sunday evening in bushes off Jerry Avenue near Fifth Street.

We've spent all night two nights this week in the neighborhood just talking to people trying to find something, said Police Chief Steven Harrett.

An accident at the intersection of SR 46 and Hickman Drive, west of Sanford between a car and a flatbed truck resulted in considerable damage to the car, but no injuries. Deland FHP trooper M. Tindel said Bessie Hall Barrow of Sanford, standing to the left of her car, pulled out onto 46 and hit a flatbed truck being driven by Jerry Hewett of Powell Trucking in Lumberton City. Ga. Tindel said Barrow was cited with violation of right of way.

Street plans will be revised

By Carol Runney
 UCF Intern

LAKE MARY — Commissioners rejected a resolution Thursday night to improve a portion of Lakeshore Drive and Almyra Drive.

If agreed on, the resolution would have involved the loss of several trees and an assessment of approximately $469 a year for ten years to residents who live on the street, according to City Manager Bob Norris.

The issue is a cloudy one. For nearly a year residents have urged commissioners for improvements. Mayor Dick Fess said every time it rained the dirt roads are like washboards. "That's simply what happens when the level of road drops below the surface of the surrounding area," he said.

Twenty-nine property owners are affected and there is disagreement among them over what to do. Some prefer the aesthetics of a dirt road, others are tired of the hassles incurred everytime it rains and all are concerned about the amount of assessment.

Though previous petitions have shown that a majority of residents are in favor of paving, that was not the consensus of residents attending Thursday's meeting. One man complained that five of his trees would be lost to the project, reducing the value of his land.

A downscaled revision of the plans presented last night will be drawn by City Engineer Tim Weaver, to be ready for review in two weeks.

Fess said the city's contribution to the project is $25,000 of which $13,300 has already been spent to develop the current plan. The mayor is recommending that new plans be drawn before they again attempt to learn what the majority of residents desire.

"It's been going on for a while," he said. There are many variables. According to Fess, a paved road would increase property value. Also, if neglected, the area, an isolated one, would receive a low priority for grading because so few live there and it is a small segment of road.

"We may have to re-address our $25,000 contribution," Fess said. "It's tough because you have to think of the overall impact to the city. We'll just have to wait and see what the new figures will be. If assessment to residents is $4,500 they may say no; if it's $2,800 they may be able to swallow it." Those figures would apply over a ten-year period.

The price tag fixed to the project is $136,098, a figure which Norris said is intentionally inflated to protect against falling short of needed funds. Commissioner George Duryea said he was concerned about the $100,000-plus cost of the project as it stands.

Bart Starr's son found dead in his home

TAMPA (UPI) — The body of Brett Starr, 24, son of National Football League Hall of Fame quarterback Bart Starr, was found Thursday in the dining room of his home, a Hillsborough County Sheriff's spokesman said.

Sheriff's spokesman Jack Espinosa said there was no evidence of foul play, but an investigation was under way. He said positive identification of Starr was made about 4 p.m., but was withheld until his father could be reached.

"We have no idea what the cause of death is, pending an autopsy," he said. "At this time we have no reason to suspect foul play, however, we have our crime technicians at the scene."

Espinosa said Starr had been dead two to three days and said the body was found on the floor of a dining area at the rear of the house in the fashionable Carrollwood area northwest of Tampa.

A neighbor told United Press International she last saw Brett Starr Monday night. She said another man entered the house Tuesday and said Brett Starr's car was not at the house Thursday.

Espinosa said Bart Starr arrived in Tampa about 9:30 a.m. Thursday and went to his son's house, which he found locked. He then contacted a regional station of the sheriff's office and Judge Wallace Hall suspended the three first-time offenders' licenses for six months, fined each $250 and placed them on probation for one year. Each will also be required to do 50 hours of community service. Also, the men will be on probation for one year.

Sentenced were: Anthony Ray Dunkinson, 29, 2422 Marshall Ave; Robert Martin Nemeroff, 49, 115 Dredel Drive.; Richard S. Plourde, 46, 310 Fairmont Drive.

The men had been arrested in mid-June by the Sanford Police Department and charged with driving under the influence.

expressed concern about his son and was accompanied back to the house by deputies.

Two Rottweiler dogs were inside the locked house and animal control officers were called to the scene.

Bart Starr, former star quarterback and later coach of the Green Bay Packers, and his wife Cherry have another son, Bart Starr Jr., 29.

Winds will relax but not the surf

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

Today's weather will be of the sort that folks dream of elsewhere. The winds will diminish and become light breezes yet the temperature will not climb too high. The sky will be clear and all will be right in Seminole County. Oh, sure, there may be a light shower this afternoon but, if so, it will be of the robin-washing variety. You'll love today unless you also love surfing.

The winds are dying down but over the coast they're off shore winds and the surf is breaking on the beach. That's called bad form. All rough and choppy, so don't waste your time going.

We're going to have pretty nice weather through the weekend. Thermometers may hit in the 90s but probably not too often. Nights should see temperatures in the 70s. Chances of late afternoon showers are about 40 percent.

We had a little rain in Sanford yesterday but not in the southern part of the county. As a matter of fact, there was very little rain anywhere in the state except from West Palm south to Miami — they had a lot. State temperatures ranged from the 60s to the 90s, quite a bit different from the experiences of citizens at Gila Bend, Arizona where the reading was 113 degrees. It hit freezing at Lake Yellowstone, Wyoming last night.

Another day of 100-degree heat scorched the eastern half of the country, combining with the drought to force water conservation by millions of people, and Chicago issued a "yellow alert" to warn against its worst smog in a decade.

There was no relief in sight from the weeklong heat wave that has shattered temperature records that stood for more than a century. Record

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Florida high court upholds killer's death sentence

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court has upheld the death sentence given William T. Turner for stabbing to death a woman he believed was having a lesbian relationship with his estranged wife.

Thursday's 5-2 ruling said there was ample evidence the 1987 murder of Joyce Brown stabbed 51 times as she attempted to call for help in a phone booth, was cold, calculated and premeditated, without any pretense of moral or legal justification.

The call for help was tape recorded by authorities. Turner says repeatedly on the tape, "You're the one," while Brown responds, "I didn't do nothing, William." The exchange is followed by a series of accusations and denials punctuated by Brown's screams.

Shirley Turner was also killed, having been stabbed 22 times with a buck knife as her daughter looked on during the assault in the Jacksonville home she shared with Brown. Turner was sentenced to life in prison for her death.

Bodies missing from funeral home

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Duval County investigators have discovered that 10 bodies are missing from the Jacksonville funeral home where 41 rotting corpses were found last month, a newspaper reported Thursday.

"We don't know where they are," Duval County Medical Examiner's Office investigator Lou Eliopoulos said. "It's very probable that we'll never be able to explain what happened to these people."

Court disbars Melvin Horne

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court has disbarred Melvin Horne, nephew of former state Senate President Mallory Horne, for his part in a scheme to conceal a drug smuggler's illicit profits.

The disbarment took effect when the court published its unanimous ruling Thursday.

Melvin Horne, 40, was convicted in 1985 on four federal counts related to the money laundering scheme.

Mallory Horne, 63, the first politician in this century to serve both as House Speaker and Senate President, was also charged but was acquitted on all counts.

Trident 2 missile goes awry on liftoff

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A Trident 2 submarine missile launched from the ground Thursday malfunctioned one minute after liftoff in an unlucky 13th test flight and was blown up on radio command by safety officers, Air Force officials said.

It was the second Trident 2 failure in 13 flights dating back to January 1987.

The three-stage $237 million missile took off from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station at 6:38 p.m. EDT after a secret countdown and quickly streaked away through a cloudy evening sky.

Visible for miles along the Florida space coast, the initial phases of the flight appeared normal from nearby Cape Canaveral, but the missile quickly disappeared from view in clouds.

"It was unsuccessful due to an in-flight anomaly," an Air Force spokesman said. "The range safety officer sent a destruct signal to terminate first stage thrust at approximately one minute after liftoff. The cause of the malfunction will not be available until telemetry data has been studied."

All American rockets and missiles, including the manned space shuttle, are wired with explosives to blow them up in the event of major malfunctions, thus preventing an errant vehicle from reaching populated areas.

A witness in nearby Cocoa Beach said the missile's trajectory did not appear normal.

"It looked like the trajectory had flattened out," he said. "It went through a cloud and nothing came out the other side. It looked like it pitched over. There was an obvious change in trajectory."

It was the 13th Trident 2 developmental test flight since January 1987 and the fourth since a Trident 2 was destroyed Jan. 21.

Court denies Bundy's appeal

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday denied a request by convicted killer Ted Bundy for a new trial in the murder of a 12-year-old girl.

The three-judge panel issued a unanimous 60-page ruling upholding a lower court's finding that Bundy was mentally competent when he was tried and convicted of killing Kimberly Leach of Lake City, Fla.

Bundy, 41, on his third death warrant, had been scheduled to die Nov. 18, 1986, for the Leach murder when the Atlanta court issued an indefinite stay of execution to consider his request for a new trial.

It was not immediately clear whether the stay was dissolved when the ruling was issued.

The appeals court rejected Bundy's contention that although he had a "factual understanding" of the charges against him, he "lacked a rational understanding of those proceedings and a rational understanding necessary to consult with his lawyer."

The court said videotapes of Bundy's action in the trial and his argument with the trial court judge "strongly demonstrate" the convicted killer was competent.

"The videotape of Bundy's argument to Judge (Wallace) Jopling prior to sentencing shows that Bundy delivered a cogent, well-reasoned argument," the opinion said. "Bundy focused on the effect of pretrial publicity on the jury and argued that the jury was overwhelmed more by the quantity, than the quality, of the state's evidence."

"Bundy can be seen flipping pages of a legal pad as he goes through his argument," the opinion said.

The court also rejected Bundy's contentions that he had ineffective attorneys; that the use of "hypnotically enhanced testimony" from a key witness violated his due process right to a fair trial; that pretrial publicity made a fair trial impossible even though the courts granted him a change of venue; and that he was forced to risk receiving the death sentence to get a jury trial.

Prosecutors originally offered Bundy a life sentence in exchange for his guilty plea.

A spokesman in the Atlanta court said Bundy has 20 days in which to file a request for a new hearing. It appeared unlikely a new death warrant would be signed before that deadline passed.

"The state is very pleased that the federal appeals court has found no merit in this defendant's claims. We are hopeful that the process of seeing that justice is served can now continue," said Florida Attorney General Bob Butterworth.

EPA demands town provide water tests

EATONVILLE (UPI) — Federal regulators are demanding the nation's oldest incorporated black town start complying with testing provisions of the Safe Drinking Water Act or face fines and prosecution.

"We are in the business to make sure the standards are enforced. If you don't take the samples we cannot enforce the standards," said David Hutchins of Atlanta, a scientist with the Environmental Protection Agency's drinking water division.

EPA officials said Eatonville has violated the federal drinking water law by not submitting reports on testing for radioactivity, bacteria and such compounds as lead and pesticides.

The violations do not mean, however, the water used by all 3,000 residents of the town north of Orlando is unsafe to drink, the regulators said.

EPA says the town has failed each year since 1984 to provide about three of the required monthly bacteria tests and should have notified residents those tests were not taken.

Radioactivity tests required every four years should have been done in 1986, and compound testing required every three years was due in 1985.

The EPA says neither was performed.

Town officials say maybe the EPA never received them, but all monthly bacteria tests were performed as required. Mayor Nathaniel Vereen said he doesn't know if radioactivity and compound tests were done. Town hall records that would verify the testing can't be found.

The EPA says Eatonville must not miss another monthly bacteria test, as required by state and federal law, and if the town can't find records for the other tests it will have to conduct new tests.

Hutchins said Eatonville could face a fine of up to $5,000 and prosecution by the Justice Department if it fails to cooperate.

The situation came to the EPA's attention when the town failed to respond to state Department of Environmental Regulation requests in 1983 for proof testing was being done.

DER environmental specialist Bob Ansgar in Orlando said town officials at the time said they couldn't pay the $5,000 to have the tests done but agreed to meet the required test schedule in the future.

He said several letters asking for testing proof went unanswered, so the state turned over the case to the federal agency.

Greenhouse idea too hot to ignore

Is the current drought just a dry run for a global heat wave? It's too early to tell. But mounting evidence suggests that Earth is heating up. Humans out in the midwest can't do much about the present dry spell except conserve water and hope for rain. But there's much that can and should be done to avert worldwide climate disruptions caused by human activity.

An extended series of articles in this week's Newsweek helps understand what's happening. Consider some numbers: The four warmest years in the past century have occurred in the 1980s. The first five months of this year have been warmer than any similar period in recorded history. We haven't had a real freeze in Seminole County in three years.

A fluke? Maybe. But some scientists warn that if present trends continue, average temperatures north of the equator could rise by 3 to 9 degrees by the year 2050, much sooner than such a change had been predicted. A warming trend would bring not only more droughts, but also higher sea levels (due to melting glaciers), coastal floods, a drop in Great Lakes water levels, more barge jam-ups in the Mississippi River and other environmental disruptions.

The jury is still out on what's causing the problem. But many researchers blame carbon dioxide and other gases generated by industrial activity such as the burning of fossil fuel. These so-called greenhouse gases trap heat. And the destruction of forests, which absorb carbon dioxide, accelerates the warming trend, according to this theory.

A theory is all it is at this point. But only fools would ignore the warning signs. If they care about their own survival and that of the planet, humans will have the sense to take preventive steps such as these:

- Expanded energy conservation and research into environmentally safer alternatives to coal which is used extensively in Florida to produce electricity.

- Stronger international efforts to protect tropical rain forests.

- A broader commitment by industries to speed up the search for substitutes to chlorofluorocarbons, industrial gases that contribute to the greenhouse effect, and expansion of a 31-nation treaty that will curtail production of CFCs.

Of course, there's always the chance that the greenhouse theory will be disproved; maybe climate trends will stabilize. But it would be folly to base human behavior and global policy on such cockeyed optimism when caution could help prevent a possible catastrophe. The stakes are too high to gamble.

Budget-cutting challenge awaits committee

WASHINGTON—Tucked away in a Washington office building is a Compaq computer, which could turn out to be the most important piece of non-military machinery in Washington. It belongs to the National Economic Commission (NEC), the now-obscure but soon-to-be influential agency designed to shove the next President into taking a serious first-year whack at the inherited budget deficit.

The NEC has a strange lineage. It was proposed by New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo (D), taken up by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kan.) and written into the budget agreement forged by Congress and President Reagan after last October's stock-market crash. Its co-chairmen are Republican Drew Lewis, former secretary of Transportation in the Reagan Cabinet, and Democrat Robert S. Strauss, the former everything in the Carter administration and party politics.

Its members include two former secretaries of Defense, Donald Rumsfeld and Caspar Weinberger, Senate and House heavyweights Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Pete Domenici, William H. Gary III and William Frenzel, the heads of the AFL-CIO and the American Farm Bureau Federation, and such influential private citizens as Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca and financier Felix Rohatyn.

The President-elect gets to appoint two members to join the commission for its final and vital month of arguments before it issues its December recommendations on short-term and long-term steps to improve the health of the American economy and our international competitive position.

The NEC computer is being used to acquaint the commissioners with the choices they face in trying to get the federal budget deficits under control. A member can mix and match proposals from a wide variety of spending cuts to see just how much he can save. Strauss and Lewis, the co-chairmen, have tried the game in the past couple of weeks, and insiders say both were rather stunned at the meanness of the budgetary benefits that would flow from what they regarded as draconian program reductions.

Others on the commission are expected to try their luck as spending Scrooges in the next few weeks, but they may be no happier with the results. It's all part of an education process by which Lewis and Strauss, the ring-wisec, street-smart co-chairmen, hope to nudge this body of disparate viewpoints into consensus — or at least a strong majority — persuasive enough to command the support of the new President and Congress.

Their model is the similar bipartisan commission headed by economist Alan Greenspan, now chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, which five years ago put together the political/fiscal deal for saving the Social Security system from bankruptcy. The suspicion is that this new commission, like the old one, will find it necessary to recommend both spending slowdowns and new revenues to get the job done.

Lewis and Strauss are two of the best deal-makers Washington has seen in the past decade. But it will take all of their skill and guile to pull this commission together to endorse a report that carries weight with the new President and leaders of both parties in Congress.

Remember 'Pappy' Boyington

The old men of World War II are dying now. It's like the early years of this century, when the old men of the Grand Army of the Republic were dropping like leaves in the fall. Family legend recalls an ancestor, a Col. McNevin from the Civil War, who marched every year in the Army Day parade in New York, in full regalia. One year he reported to the start of the march, but never made it to his family waiting in the reviewing stand.

Earlier this year we lost Major Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, easily the most colorful fighter pilot of the Pacific War.

In his recent and wonderful memoirs of his own days as a pilot, "Flights of Passage," Princeton professor Samuel Hynes recalls that Joe Foss, later governor of South Dakota, was the greatest of the "Sances," a careful and calculating fighter pilot, while "Pappy" was the greatest of the "Crazies." "He was one who would fly over a Japanese base on a quiet day and invite opponents up to fight with him, as though he were a knight in some old poem."

Boyington was called "Pappy," short for "Grandpappy," because, a career Marine pilot, he was 30 as a squadron leader while his pilots were 20 or 21. Born in Idaho of Sioux ancestry, he earned a degree in aeronautical engineering at the University of Washington in 1934, his Navy wings at Pensacola in 1937, where he then worked as a flight instructor. He was recruited into one of Franklin Roosevelt's private projects, Gen. Claire Chennault's Flying Tigers — U.S. pilots flying P-40s in support of Chiang Kai Shek against the Japanese. This wild and colorful group painted a huge shark mouth on the nose of their P-40s, and Boyington, when he took time out from whiskey and Asian women, shot down six Japanese planes in combat.

With America in the war after Pearl Harbor, Boyington was back in the Marine Corps as a major, now flying the powerful F4U Corsair in our push through the islands of the South Pacific. On his first combat mission as squadron leader of his "Black Sheep" fighter group, Boyington shot down five Mitsubishi A6M Zero fighters.

He won the Medal of Honor and the Navy Cross. He died recently of cancer in Fresno, Calif. and is buried in Arlington National Cemetery near the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of World War I.

Heckler obsessed with image during tenure

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The five-minute speech Margaret Heckler delivered at the 1984 Republican National Convention cost U.S. taxpayers about $10,000.

The former secretary of Health and Human Services hired five writers to draft five separate speeches. Then she merged the five versions into a 625-word spiel. The $10,000 figure is the estimate of the combined fees paid to the free-lance writers and the staff time spent on the speech. That's $15 a word, or $2,000 a minute for lines such as: "There are none so blind as they who will not see."

Heckler's overkill for the convention typified her obsession with her own packaging during the three years she spent heading HHS, the agency with the third highest government budget in the world. Only the overall budgets of the United States and the Soviet Union are bigger than the HHS annual budget, which was $280 billion under Heckler.

GEORGE MCGOVERN

The bicentennial, still

"Don't scold yourself too severely if you've already forgotten the federal government's four-year celebration of the bicentennial of the ratification of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, which began last year. It appears the high-priced National Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution has, too."

Thus opens a recent article in The Nation by Jamie Kitman and Ruth Yodaiken entitled "Bicentennial Bust: Celebrating (Yawn) the Constitution."

Congress created the Bicentennial Commission in 1983 to direct the nation's observance of the convention held in Philadelphia 200 years ago to draft the U.S. Constitution. The observance was to run until 1991 to mark not only the writing of the Constitution but also the long fight for its ratification and acceptance by the states.

Retiring Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger was named to head the commission, with a budget to date of nearly $50 million and a staff of more than 100 people.

After tracing the activities of the commission, Kitman and Yodaiken conclude that instead of the "history and civics lesson for us all" promised by Burger, the commission has "offered little more than a limited-enrollment refresher course in ancestor worship."

The Reagan administration has loaded the commission with right-wing ideologues who are bent upon using the bicentennial to advance ultra-conservative views with overtones of racism, religious intolerance and super-nationalism. The commission has done little, if anything, to inspire a renewed understanding and appreciation of constitutional democracy.

The problem is rooted in the White House as well as Burger's lack of vision, imagination and leadership. As Kitman and Yodaiken put it, "the White House has served the bicentennial as miserably as it has served the Constitution."

The administration stumbled badly in the beginning by appointing Iowa Sen. Roger Jepsen as full-time executive director of the commission. He was replaced by a rather limited man who had long served as an aide to Burger. The Reagan administration further appointed as commissioners people with no background or feeling for constitutional history. To cite one example, Phyllis Schlafly, a brittle reactionary with a zeal for extreme right-wing causes, is a prominent and active member of the commission.

Other commissioners have used their positions to advance special religious views that seem to fly in the face of the constitutional separation of church and state.

The limited view of the commission leadership is revealed in its belated effort to hire a historian. One historian considered for the job says that the commission staff director devoted the entire interview to determining whether or not the applicant believed that the constitutional framers were really religious men. Another applying historian was asked if he accepted the belief that the Constitution was divinely inspired.

We can only hope that the coming of a new administration in 1989 will add force and vision to an otherwise dispirited and limited bicentennial observance.

Herbal remedy aids eyes

By Rebecca Kolberg
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A medicine derived from an ancient Chinese herb shows promise of reducing eye inflammation without the potentially dangerous side effects of drugs currently used to treat such problems, doctors say.

For centuries, traditional Chinese medical practitioners have used the root of a certain variety of pagoda plant — a distant relative of the mescal bean — to treat high blood pressure and inflammation.

Texas A&M researchers, who are screening a variety of folk remedies for effectiveness against eye problems, isolated a substance called matrine as the active ingredient in pagoda plant roots purchased in Taiwan.

Preliminary tests show oral doses of matrine were effective in reducing eye inflammation in rabbits.

It isn't as potent as the corticosteroids, but it's potent enough to be useful. And it doesn't have the side effect of increasing intraocular pressure, said Dr. George C.Y. Chiou, head of medical pharmacology and toxicology at Texas A&M.

Eye inflammations, which are associated with infections and surgery, are currently treated with corticosteroids, which are hormone-derived drugs. The steroids often increase fluid pressure inside the eye, which could cause sudden blindness in patients who have glaucoma.

Pagoda plant roots are still being used for medicinal purposes in China, Chiou said, but the researcher said he does not know if the herbal substance is available in Chinese stores in the United States or how much it costs.

Chiou's team plans to ask the Food and Drug Administration soon to allow it to test matrine on humans as an investigational new drug. The researcher said "we are not too concerned about its (matrine's) safety," citing its long record of use in China and the absence of side effects in the rabbit trials.

Texas A&M researchers are also involved in studying a wide variety of other folk remedies that may prove helpful in the battle against eye diseases.

"With Chinese herbs, we already have the indications that they work," he said, calling traditional folk remedies "a vast resource waiting for us to use."

At least $6,000 was spent on the two outsiders who contributed to Heckler's convention speech. Nixon estimates that another $4,000 in staff time went into that speech.

"It was an incredible waste of federal money," said Nixon, noting that the staff writers more than satisfied every other HHS official who needed speeches.

According to department records obtained by our associate Jim Lynch, Heckler spent approximately $70,000 on outside speech writers and media consultants.

That didn't include her open-ended contract with political consultant Gerald Lange. Throughout Heckler's term in office, Lange flew from his office in Massachusetts to Washington at least 110 times to advise Heckler.

Her insistence that Lange coach her on public relations cost the taxpayers at least $60,000 in salary and air fares. Heckler "is acutely sensitive to political realities and her own status," Lange explained.

Last year, Heckler testified before a grand jury looking into a conflict of interest charge against her former chief of staff. She explained to the grand jury why she had trouble with the staff speech writers. "I found that (the speeches) were very bureaucratic and prosaic, that the information was correct but the poor audiences would have been falling asleep or bored beyond belief. I could not inflict this on the American public."

Heckler's successor at HHS, Otis Bowen, has not hired any outside speech writers or political consultants.

Heckler's obsession with her public image stretched to her grooming, too. One HHS staffer had the job of delivering Heckler's hair-dresser to her office before public events.

A make-up person was also part of the entourage. Heckler met the woman when she prepped the secretary for an appearance on the "McNeil-Lehrer News Hour." Heckler reportedly insisted that the woman get a media-consulting contract with HHS. HHS records show the makeup ace was paid $2,300 in 1985.

Lakeview Avenue paving is scheduled to proceed

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD— A plan to pave a portion of Lakeview Avenue to coincide with a nearly completed Longwood Elementary School construction project will proceed despite confusion over who will pay for the work.

City Administrator Gene DeMarie told the city commission that city officials agreed a year and a half ago to advance the street on the road paving priority list at the request of the Seminole County School Board. The Public Works department mistakenly thought the whole cost would be absorbed by the city, he said, but the seven abutting property owners, other than the school board, could be assessed a percentage of the cost.

DeMarie said there is $26,000 in assessments in dispute and he does not know the intention of the commission sitting at the time the decision was made. He said the city has spent money on engineering, bid specifications and bid compilation and the bidders have agreed to extend their bids.

At least one property owner was told in writing by the public works department there would be no cost, he said. The city needs a vital drainage easement from the property owner to put a catch basin on the lot in conjunction with the paving project.

City commissioners agreed the assessment should be waived for that owner in exchange for the easement.

"You may want to assess the others," DeMarie said, "but I would like to bring the bids before you and have the project approved and the decision on assessment can be made at a future date. I would hate to see the abandonment of the entire project."

Commissioners agreed that if the private property owners had their way, the street probably wouldn't be paved.

Longwood work session on budget postponed

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD— The first of three work sessions on the proposed $9,755,857 city budget for 1988-89, originally scheduled by City Administrator Gene DeMarie for Thursday night, has been postponed to Monday at the request of Deputy Mayor Lynette Davis. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in city hall.

Other budget workshops are planned for Thursdays, July 14 and July 21.

Last year's net budget of $8,954,312 was reduced at mid-year to $10,000,355 because of an unexpected increase in carry-over. The general fund budget is projected at $5,431,419 compared to $4,628,405 in the 1987-88 budget.

The tax rate of $3.15 per $1,000 assessed property value is expected to produce $1,225,051 in the 1987-88 budget. New construction, additions and annexations in the city during the current tax year totaled $14,763,329 in assessed valuation, bringing the gross taxable valuation to $441,472,283, according to Property Appraiser Bill Suber.

Because of this increase, the rollback tax rate — the amount needed to bring in the same amount as this year — would be $3 per $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Adjustment board ruling appealed under new Longwood ordinance

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD— The first request for an appeal since an ordinance was passed allowing for review of Board of Adjustment decisions by the city commission has been submitted. The appeal is not by a disappointed applicant, but by an adjacent property owner objecting to a variance granted by the board. A date has not yet been set for the review.

Tom Binford submitted a notice seeking review of a variance granted to Ramar Manufacturing Co. of Florida on June 15 by a 3-2 vote of the Board of Adjustment. The variance in setback rules was granted contingent on Florida Power Corporation's approval of the building's location in relation to power lines. Ramar requested a five foot rear setback in the rear of a 62.5 foot deep lot on the east side of South Wilma Street instead of the required 15 foot rear setback. The property is part of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad right of way no longer in use.

Colin Burgess, owner of the property, said he agreed to give Binford a 30-foot wide right of way into his property and stated he thought this was what Binford was looking for.

Airbus downing theories multiply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon experts say an F-14 fighter may have been flying behind the belly of the Iran Air Airbus shot down by a Navy ship, but computer experts said they suspect gaps in the vessel's warning system led to the disaster.

As a team of Pentagon investigators tried to reconstruct Sunday's incident in which 290 civilians were killed, theories emerged Thursday as to the circumstances that prompted Capt. Will Rogers of the Navy cruiser Vincennes to order a homing missile fired at the aircraft as it flew over the Persian Gulf.

Numerous Pentagon officials and congressional aides who have been briefed on the attack predicted investigators probably will find the ship simply confused the airbus for an approaching Iranian F-14 fighter-bomber amid heightened war-zone tensions in the gulf.

The Navy ships in the gulf had been told before the weekend that there were indications the Iranians were planning F-14 attacks in what Pentagon officials grimly called a "Fourth of July surprise."

Kenneth Ewell, a Washington computer expert, said he believes the Pentagon's investigation ultimately will show the accident was caused by "a serious mistake in programming" of the $1 billion ship's advanced Aegis air defense system.

Ewell said the system's radar records all aircraft with identical blips and lacks the "capability ... to show the nature of the target."

He speculated that further confusion may have arisen if the passenger plane was equipped with two signaling devices, or transponders — one for commercial use and another, identical to that in the F-14, for military use.

Tuesday, Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said the Vincennes received two kinds of signals from the airplane — one usually associated with civil and military craft and one Navy ships in the area had seen emitted from F-14s.

Navy intelligence experts are still exploring the possibility that an Iranian military aircraft was in the vicinity of the Vincennes.

"An F-14, armed with iron bombs, hiding behind the (airliner's) belly is the second most likely proposition," said an aide to Rep. Lea Aspin, D-Wis., the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee who was briefed Wednesday by U.S. intelligence officials.

A Navy tactical warfare expert said, "I think the fear was that one aircraft was masking another."

However, another Pentagon official said the two-plane theory was "highly unlikely and virtually impossible."

The two-plane theory has been fueled by Iran's June 25 deployment of modified F-14 fighter-bombers to Bandar Abbas, a major military-civilian base near the Strait of Hormuz in the gulf.

The Iran Air plane departed from Bandar Abbas Sunday on Flight 655 to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates and was shot down seven minutes after take-off.

U.S. intelligence reports concluded the F-14 deployment increased chances of an attack on Navy ships, which since last July have been escorting 11 Kuwait tankers re-registered to fly the American flag. Earlier this year, the Navy ships expanded their protection to all neutral shipping in the waterway.

"There was a lot of discussion within the intelligence community as to what (the F-14s) were doing down there, and a lot of people felt they were there to mount iron-bomb attacks on ships," said a Pentagon radar specialist, who insisted on anonymity. An iron bomb is a misguided conventional weapon.

Iran has "a handful" of F-14s that "possess a significant anti-ship capability," one U.S. intelligence official said.

Study says public pays majority of motocyclists' medical costs

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new study shows the public picks up the tab for the medical costs of the majority of motocyclists seriously injured in accidents, bolstering arguments for laws requiring cyclists to wear helmets.

Motorcycle deaths now account for nearly one of every 10 motor vehicle fatalities in the United States, with 4,423 deaths recorded in 1985 alone. For every motocyclist killed another 90 are hospitalized, and not wearing a helmet greatly increases the risk of serious head injuries and permanent disability.

Injured motocyclists pay only about 1 percent of their medical costs, while public funds are used for 63.4 percent of the bills and private insurers cover the rest, University of Washington in Seattle researchers said Thursday.

Car crashes into Graceland wall

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Security guards were posted outside Elvis Presley's mansion Graceland to ward off souvenir hounds as workers began rebuilding a section of graffiti-covered wall smashed in a car accident involving a woman learning how to drive, officials said.

No one was seriously hurt in the early Thursday morning accident, estate spokesman Todd Morgan said.

Detrich Michelle Hardy, 21, and passenger Roy Casey, 33, both of Memphis, were driving down Elvis Presley Boulevard when their Chevrolet Beretta went out of control and crashed through the wall, landing on the lawn in front of the white mansion, Morgan said.

Arafat's guerrillas surrender last stronghold in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Defeated followers of Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat withdrew from a refugee camp in southern Beirut today after a two-month battle, losing their last foothold in the Lebanese capital to pro-Syrian rivals.

Some 150 Patah guerrillas, chanting "with our blood and souls we redeem you Arafat" and brandishing large portraits of the PLO leader, left the Bourj Barajneh camp aboard two trucks and two buses supplied by Lebanese Internal Security Forces.

The convoy was to be escorted by Syrian troops and Lebanese officials to refugee camps in the port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

Violence erupts at checkpoints

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Three Palestinians were shot and wounded today in Nablus as Israeli forces set up checkpoints around Jerusalem in anticipation of protests called by the underground committee directing the Palestinian uprising, Palestinian sources said.

By midday, Arab East Jerusalem and the walled Old City were reported quiet. But soldiers clashed with Palestinians in minor skirmishes today in at least four towns and U.N.-run refugee camps in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, Palestinian sources said.

A curfew remained in effect today in Beit Sahur, where about 350 residents launched a tax revolt against the Israeli administration in the West Bank. Authorities quickly put down the rebellion Thursday and arrested 15 people, residents said.

Iran calls for troop volunteers

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran, hours after its enemy Iraq attacked Greek and Cypriot tankers steaming through the Persian Gulf, called today on all men capable of carrying a gun to rush to the warfront to bolster its troops.

Iranian gunboats, meanwhile, fired rocket-propelled grenades at a Romanian tanker and wounded two people, shipping sources said today.

Tehran Radio, in a report monitored in Manama, said the Iranian armed forces asked all able-bodied men "who can hold a gun" to hurry to the front in the land-based part of the nearly 8-year-old Persian Gulf war because of a "shortage of volunteers."

Iran has suffered a series of recent setbacks on the ground, beginning with an Iraqi drive in April to recapture the Faw Peninsula from Iran. Since then, Iraqi troops have pushed Iranians out of southern Iraq but Iran still has troops in Iraq's northernmost province of Kurdistan.

Higgins said planning U.S. hostages' rescue

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins was preparing a large-scale operation to rescue American hostages held in Lebanon when he was abducted five months ago, a senior Palestine Liberation Organization official said in an interview published today.

Bassam Abu Sharif, adviser to PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, said he concluded Higgins was plotting to rescue the U.S. hostages after "looking at the outcome of Higgins' interrogation" by his captors.

Abu Sharif spoke with the Christian east Beirut-based Ad Diyar newspaper by telephone from PLO's headquarters in Tunisia.

"Higgins, who arrived in Lebanon under the cover of the United Nations peacekeeping forces, was the officer in charge of the Delta forces," a U.S. commando group used for difficult missions, Abu Sharif said.

"Higgins was accompanied by officers from the Syrian intelligence service during his presence in Lebanon," Abu Sharif said, hinting the Syrians were assisting him in his alleged mission.

"This officer was preparing a large-scale operation to rescue the American hostages," he said.

Higgins, 43, the head of a 75-member U.N. truce observation team, was abducted Feb. 17 while driving on a coastal road from the ancient port city of Tyre 46 miles south of Beirut.

The clandestine Organization of the Oppressed on Earth claimed responsibility for Higgins' kidnapping and accused him of working for the CIA.

The pro-Iranian group said in a statement April 21 that Higgins' interrogation was completed and he would appear before an "Islamic court" on charges of espionage.

U.S. officials have denied on several occasions the charges that Higgins was a spy and worked for the CIA, describing the allegations as "nonsense."

Higgins is among nine Americans kidnapped in Lebanon. A total of 16 foreigners are missing and believed held hostage by pro-Iranian Shiite militants.

Conference panel OKs defense bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $299.6 billion defense spending bill agreed on by House and Senate negotiators would expand the Pentagon role in the war on drugs next year but would not give the military unwanted civilian arrest power.

The compromise reached by a conference committee from both chambers — which lawmakers said could get a Senate vote as early as today and a final House vote next week — also would make significant changes in "Star Wars" and would leave it to the next administration to debate rival mobile missile systems.

The final package was produced late Thursday, with an unusual twist when the House and Senate conferees added a provision declaring "an appropriate ship of the U.S. Navy" be named after comedian Bob Hope in recognition of his efforts through 50 years and three wars to entertain U.S. forces overseas.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the Armed Services Committee chairman who authored the Hope provision, said he told the comedian a week ago to expect it and Hope responded that he would be honored. Nunn suggested an amphibious troop carrier would be the proper vessel to christen.

The $299.6 billion package melds previously passed House and Senate bills, resolving differences on such points as the election-year issue of illegal narcotics. The bill offers $300 million for extra anti-drug operations and gives the Pentagon the job of tracking smugglers trying to crack U.S. borders.

Negotiators sided with the Pentagon in rejecting calls for the military to regain civilian arrest powers, deciding that suspected smugglers will be pointed out to agencies able to make arrests. The military was denied such power after abuses during the Civil War and Reconstruction, and since then it has opposed any restoration of the civilian authority to itself.

"Up to now, anything the military has done on drug interdiction has essentially been a byproduct of normal operations," said House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., when the conference report was wrapped up Thursday. "Now, for the first time, the military will be specifically tasked to hunt for drug smugglers."

On SDI, lawmakers agreed to provide $4.1 billion of the $4.9 billion sought by President Reagan in fiscal 1989, which begins Oct. 1. They restructured it, however, by cutting money for near-term options involving space-based missile interceptors and boosting spending for ground-based interceptors.

The compromise puts off until the next administration the debate over mobile missile systems — the Air Force-backed plan to put the 10-warhead MX missile on railcars and a rival plan for an already mobile single-warhead Midgetman weapon that has strong congressional backing.

Each missile would get an equal $250 million under the spending bill, with another $250 million set aside for the next president to direct to the weapon of his choice.

The bill provides for a 4.1 percent pay raise for members of the uniformed military and contains a classified amount to start buying B-2 Stealth bombers, the top secret plane, almost invisible on radar and due to fly this fall.

Lockheed denies connection with defense probe freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lockheed Corp., one of the companies that had its payments frozen on a possibly tainted defense contract last week, denied Thursday it had any connection with individuals named in defense fraud court documents.

"There have been no allegations toward Lockheed and we have no connection with the people named in the investigation," said Mike Iaden, vice president of the Austin, Texas, division of Lockheed Missiles and Space Co.

The company's statement said it was the contractor on one of the nine contracts worth a total of about $1 billion Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci stopped payments on Friday because of "evidence concerning individuals and companies."

The evidence Carlucci referred to was from an affidavit submitted in a Dallas, Texas, federal court last Thursday in connection with the FBI's nationwide investigation into defense fraud including the rigging of contracts by Pentagon officials and consultants.

Company spokeswoman Sylvia Simpson said the Austin division had been chosen to build a Navy ocean-mapping system called the Tactical Environmental Support System, but had not received its initial contract payment scheduled for July 1.

"Lockheed was selected as the winner of what we considered to be a fair and open competition," the Lockheed statement said.

Pentagon concedes misstatements on Iran Air

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon maintains the captain of the Navy ship that shot down Iran Air Flight 655 could not have known it was a civilian jetliner even though it was not outside the commercial air corridor as first reported.

While publicly acknowledging the incorrect statement four days after it was made by Adm. William Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said Thursday that Iran bears responsibility for flying the plane over a raging sea battle whether it was inside the corridor or not.

"There is no way that the captain of that ship could have assumed because the aircraft was in that airway that it was a civilian commercial aircraft. It doesn't tell you that at all," Howard said.

The Pentagon has explained that the decision to launch missiles was based in large part on the Airbus A-300 appearing to descend toward the USS Vincennes and emitting a military identification signal as well as a commercial signal.

As the plane flew across the volatile Persian Gulf Sunday, the Vincennes was already engaged in a fight with several small Iranian gunboats, two of which the American missile cruiser sank.

"The Iranians are the ones who bear the responsibility ... (to) ensure the safety of their civilian aircraft by not sending them in harm's way," Howard emphasized. "It seems very peculiar to us that the Iranians would send a commercial aircraft ... directly toward a spot where an exchange of fire was taking place."

That remark was the first by an administration official publicly suggesting Iran may have deliberately sent the airliner toward the Vincennes. Until now, the government has carefully avoided such an implication.

Howard asked, "Is it our responsibility to ensure that the Iranian military air traffic controller, who presumably are monitoring the hostilities, and the civilian air traffic controllers are talking to each other?"

Crowe told reporters Sunday Flight 655 was 4 1/2 miles outside the commercial air corridor when the Aegis-class cruiser mistook it for an attacking F-14 jet fighter and shot it down. All 290 passengers and crew were killed.

After two days of reports contradicting Crowe's statement — some based on private Pentagon briefings to Congress — Howard acknowledged publicly Thursday that the plane was not outside the accepted 20-mile-wide corridor claimed by Iran but only 4 1/2 miles from its center line. The jetliner was flying from the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates.

"Based on the preliminary information that we have, the aircraft was approximately 4 1/2 miles west of the center line of the airway," Howard said.

The United States uses air corridors in other places that are 8 miles wide and other nations use 10 miles, Howard added, but in general "commercial aircraft are expected to adhere to the center line of that airway."

The Pentagon spokesman also noted Flight 655 was 27 minutes off the published schedule for such aircraft.

Howard again discounted any probability that the military identification signal the Vincennes reported receiving from the Airbus may have been sent from an F-14 elsewhere in the gulf.

The aircraft's identification transponder responded twice to a questioning electronic signal beamed at it from the Vincennes, he observed, and chances are considered remote that the signal could have strayed elsewhere.

"The aircraft had been interrogated twice and responded twice with exactly the same response," he said, noting that two Iranian F-14s had been spotted and warned away properly by the USS Halsey in the gulf Saturday.

In a related development Thursday, State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said the United States takes seriously a threat reportedly made in a memorandum of protest from Iran in which the radical Islamic government of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini asserted its "right to take countermeasures" for the downing of the airliner, which Iranians claim was intentional murder.

All-Star Preview: Oviedo Majors

Oviedo Majors have fine all-around team

All-Stars open Area play Monday at home

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Editor

OVIDEO — With everything it takes to build a winner, Oviedo's Major League All-Stars look to have one of their best teams ever and hope to be in the running for the District 14 championship.

Oviedo will begin its quest Monday night at 7 at Oviedo against one of its prime competitors, the Altamonte Nationals.

This year's Major All-Stars, managed by Eddie Norton, have a combination of power, speed, defense and pitching that should keep them in every game they play. And should they put everything together at the right time, Oviedo will certainly be a contender in the district that is considered the toughest in the state.

All-Star selections off the league champion Mets team include Mike Rugienius, Timmy Slavik and Jason Alford.

Rugienius, who pitches and plays shortstop and second base, is well known to the Altamonte folks as he pitched an outstanding game against them in Top Team Tournament play.

"Mike (Rugienius) is an excellent all-around ballplayer," Norton said. "He is a power pitcher, a fine fielder and baserunner and hits with power and consistency."

While Rugienius is the power pitcher, Slavik gives opponents the offspeed look. He also plays shortstop and catcher and Norton says he can "hit and run with the best."

Alford will also see action on the mound, but is best known for his performance behind the plate. "He's our workhorse catcher," Norton said of Alford. "He protects the plate well, gets a quick jump out of the box and has a deadly strong arm."

All-Star selections from the Braves include Andy Taylor, Kevin Stephenson and Rich Ditore.

Taylor will see action at second and third base and is a good, line-drive hitter and also the team leader in enthusiasm according to Norton.

Stephenson is another pitcher with a strong arm and also plays outfield and third base while Ditore provides a good bat from the lefthand side of the plate while being steady in the outfield and at first base. Ditore is also listed as a pitcher.

The Cardinals placed four players on the team including Byron Coffie, Jesse Bell, Mark Bellhorn and Brian Hendrix.

Coffie, who plays catcher and outfield, has a strong arm and consistent bat. Bell, an infielder and outfielder, has outstanding speed and is one of the top bunters on the team.

Bellhorn is a top-notch centerfielder with a strong arm and bat and also could be used as a pitcher. Hendrix can be another overpowering pitcher if he has his control and also is smooth at first base.

Also on the squad are Jay Busse and Aaron Church of the Rangers, Brian King of the Phillies and Mike Duncan of the Orioles.

Church is a steady outfielder and also had good control as a pitcher while Busse provides depth at first base, catcher and

Americans triumph, Nationals ousted

By Dean Smith
Special to the Herald

LEESBURG — It was a bittersweet night for the fans of Sanford's Little Major League teams as the Sanford Americans scored a come from behind 6-4 victory over Orlando S.A.Y. to move into Saturday's finals while the Sanford Nationals lost for the second straight night, 2-1, to the Leesburg Nationals, and were eliminated from the Sub-District Tournament.

Pinch hitter Corey Donaldson lined a single to center field to score Josh Watson and Alton Jenkins to break a 4-4 tie in the bottom of the fourth inning and Craig Merkerson tossed a four-hitter and struck out 10 as the Sanford Americans

The Americans will now play the winner of Friday night's game between the Leesburg Nationals and Orlando S.A.Y. at 10 a.m. Saturday. Should the Americans lose, a one game championship would be played at 4 p.m. Saturday afternoon in Leesburg. The winner of the Sub-District will play in the four team District Tournament in Leesburg next week for a chance to go to the State Tournament next month.

S.A.Y. threatened to score the first run of the game in the top of the second when Joe Palmer reached third with no one out. But Merkerson got out of the jam unscathed by striking out Scott Thompson and Kris Pollok, then with the count 2 balls and 1 strike on Chris Fies, Merkerson uncorked a wild pitch, but catcher Travis Byrd made a quick recovery and fed Merkerson to nip Palmer at the plate and keep the score at 0-0.

Sanford finally got on the board in their half of the second when DeAndre Jones reached on a throwing error by the second baseman, Caleb Watson then hit a grounder to the third baseman but the throw was late to second and both runners were safe. Byrd then hit a grounder through the first baseman's legs as Jones scored and Watson took third. After Byrd stole second Jamie King lined a hit to left to score Watson, but Byrd was cut down at the plate on a nice throw by the left fielder to end the inning.

S.A.Y. scored all four of its runs in the top of the third when Chris Fies blooped a single to right. He was advanced to second on a ground out by John Maxwell and scored on a double to center by James Cartwill. The next batter Chris Butts hit a slow roller back to the mound, but Merkerson's throw sailed into right field to score Cartwill and allow Butts to go all the way to third. Foxy is Sprint champion CASSELBERRY — The first major stakes event of the summer at Seminole Greyhound Park went like clockwork as the track's winningest dog, Cushly's Foxy, won the $10,000 Sprint Championship.

With the Sprint Championship firmly tucked away, Cushly's Foxy, of the Midnight Blue Kennel, will now go after the King & Queen Stakes Race which starts July 27.

Foxy has won 13 of 16 races and has posted a time of 30.38, fastest around the 5/16th oval this year and just an eyelash off the 30.32 track record posted by Triflack Caducean last year.

The Sprint Championship did much to douse every other claim of track superiority. AJG Zorro, last season's track champion and the other greyhound most fans gave a shot of upsetting Foxy, could finish just third in the Sprint Championship.

It was RN's Jackie, speedster from the Nanjo-Bash Kennel, who came within 10 yards of pulling off the upset. Breaking on top in the Sprint title race, Jackie led right to the wire before being run down by

The King & Queen Stake semifinals are scheduled for July 27 with the final on July 30.

The first round of the $200,000 Super Seminole Future Champions Stake is set for Aug. 20 with the finals slated for Sept. 10.

Nationals stay alive in Mustang District

FORREST CITY — The Seminole Mustang National All-Star team came up with a spectacular comeback, upending the Seminole American All-Star squad, 9-8, to eliminate them from the tourney Thursday night before 251 fans at the West Seminole Baseball Complex.

The Nationals will return to action tonight against the West Seminole Gold team which dropped a 14-1 to the West Seminole Maroon team. The winner of tonight's game will go on to play the Maroon team on Saturday with the first game scheduled for 10 a.m. start.

West Seminole's Maroon squad is the only team in the double elimination tournament without a loss and will have two chances to win one game on Saturday.

The Seminole Americans came out strong with pitcher Matt Thompson being near perfect for the first three innings. Thompson only allowed one base runner and one unearned run during his time on the mound.

The Americans put two runs on the board in the bottom of the first to take the games initial lead. After an out Andy Maher walked, stole second and third and scored on an errant pick off attempt by National pitcher

The Americans widened its lead with five runs in the bottom of the second inning. Thompson led the inning off and reached on an error. Clay Green then hit into a fielders choice with Thompson being put out at second. After Green stole second Dave Bernosky reached on an infield single to place runners on first and third. Jay MacFarland followed with a run scoring single before stealing second. Shaun St. Dennis then singled in another run before Maher drew a walk to load the bases. Parker then grounded to third to score MacFarland. Joy then walked to load up the bases again before Rich Hanlin reached on an error that scored two runs. Joy attempted to take third on the miscue but was thrown out for the final out of the inning with the American's in control with a 7-0 lead.

The Nationals, though, did not give up and plated its first run in the top of the third inning. After an out Brad Klinger walked, stole second and third and

Clark gets win in 1st appearance

United Press International
Once becoming a big leaguer, Terry Clark wasted little time earning a victory. It was reaching the majors that seemed to take forever.

Clark spent nine years in the minors before getting a shot with the California Angels, who promoted him Tuesday. Two days later, the 27-year-old right-hander hurled five innings in a 7-1 rout of the Cleveland Indians.

"I started wondering if it's ever going to happen, if I'd ever pitch in the bigs," Clark said after Thursday night's victory.

"It took a long time for me to get up here. I kept thinking, 'One pitch, one batter at a time.' It was a little scary, but it's something I've always dreamed about."

Clark was not in line for a shot at the "big time." But with no Angel able to throw because of a lack of rest, he was summoned from Triple-A Edmonton and allowed five hits and no walks while striking out five.

"He threw strikes and kept the ball down," California Manager Cookie Rojas said. "And we gave him some runs to work with."

Greg Minton entered in the sixth and earned his second save.

"After the five innings were over, it was the biggest relief of my life," said Clark, who regrouped after permitting a first-inning run. "I was following Minton's every pitch."

Said Cleveland Manager Doc Edwards: "We hit the ball hard, but right at people. Clark showed us a slow slider and a good changeup. He got taken out after our lineup saw him a bit, and that was good for us." "Cookie."

The Angels, too, had trouble in their first go-round against Indians starter John Farrell, 9-6. But in the third, they jumped on the right-hander for four runs on four hits.

Devon White's RBI single and Johnny Ray's sacrifice fly made it 2-1 before Wally Joyner capped the outburst with his fifth home run of the season —

"I hit it pretty good, but I didn't think the ball was carrying," Joyner said. "Home runs haven't come consistently for me. I have to keep remembering to turn left (when running the bases)."

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit bombed Oakland 8-1, Baltimore blanked Texas 6-0, Boston shaded Minnesota 4-3 and Kansas City downed Milwaukee 7-3.

In the National League, it was Cincinnati 5, Philadelphia 2; and Pittsburgh 2, San Diego.

At Detroit, Curt Young, 6-6, was pelted for five homers, with Luis Salazar, Ray Knight, Chet Lemon, Larry Herndon and Mike Heath connecting. Jeff Robinson, 10-3, retired 17 straight batters after allowing a game-beginning single.

Orioles 6, Rangers 0
At Baltimore, Mickey Tettleton, Ken Gerhart and Cal Ripken Jr. each homered to support Oswaldo Peraza, 2-3. The rookie scattered six hits and struck out seven over seven innings in his sixth start. Paul Kilgus, 7-8, took the loss.

Red Sox 4, Twins 3
At Minneapolis, Mike Greenwell hit his 15th homer and tied Oakland's Jose Canseco for the league lead in RBI with 66. Boston snapped a 20-game losing streak with a win over the sixth, scoring on a wild pitch by Charlie Lea, 5-4, and a squeeze bunt. Gary Gaetti and Randy Bush homered off Dennis "Ol' Can" Boyd, 7-7.

At San Diego, John Smiley fanned a career-best nine over 6 2-3 innings, winning his sixth straight decision to improve to 9-4. Jim Gott notched his 10th save. Andy Van Slyke, with a single, and Mike LaValliere, with a walk, drove in runs in the sixth against Andy Hawkins, 8-7.

Mets' pitchers handle the bat well

By MIKE TULLY
UPI National Baseball Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mets batting coach Bill Robinson kids about taking credit for the way New York's pitchers handle the bat.

"OK, Bill. So why do Mets pitchers hit so well?"

"I haven't worked with them yet," he said, poking fun at his own teaching ability. Third-base coach Sam Perlozzo, joining in the laughter, pointed to a message on the nearby chalkboard. It read "1-800-SLUMP."

The gags develop as the Dog Days approach. If you're in a slump, call Robinson. He's the slump-buster. And so what if these jokes will never make the Johnny Carson Show? They're good enough to break the monotony of a long season.

Anyway, the pitchers don't need Robinson's coaching right now. None of them have become Triple Crown candidates, but no pitcher ever is. All you want from a pitcher at the plate is a little help, and that's what Mets hurlers give. They are hitting .217 with 20 RBI, including two game-winners.

"We don't want to be laughed at," said left-hander Bob Ojeda, explaining the staff's success at the plate.

Wednesday night, Ron Darling capped a three-run rally with a game-winning single. Doc Gooden owns a home run and eight RBI. Sid Fernandez is hitting .276 with four sacrifices. Roger McDowell is batting .500 with three doubles.

"As a staff, we have pretty good athletes," McDowell said. "That sums it up. The pitchers we have are good fielders. They can do a lot more than just pitch."

At first, this strikes you as slightly unfair,

SCOUTING REPORT

Mets pitchers add the insult of game-winning singles to the injury of three-hit shutouts. As McDowell points out, however, pitchers should usker comes from a former Met you may have heard of.

"When I was growing up I read Tom Seaver's book," McDowell said. "He said a pitcher that can field his position and hit a little bit will add wins throughout the year just for that fact. He'll stay in the game a little longer and get the opportunity to pitch more innings because he can do more things than just pitch."

Despite their skill, no Met pitcher will set many records. Cleveland's Wes Ferrell established the big-league mark of homers in a season by a pitcher with nine in 1931. Mel Stottlemyre, currently the Mets pitching coach, shares the modern mark of five hits in a game.

"We try to give them as much batting practice as we can," Stottlemyre said. "One of the things we were able to do this spring, they got a lot of extra hitting because of the new complex we have (in Port St. Lucie, Fla.). We could go to the cages a lot more often and I think it showed up during the season."

Still, the image persists as pitchers being bad hitters. Ever? Mets Manager Dave Johnson joked about almost fainting when Darling singled up the middle. Johnson didn't need any extra shocks Wednesday night, because he was battling a stomach ache. Instead, he survived both his stomach and the surprise of Darling's clutch single.

You've got to be tough to handle the long season.

ORIOLES' TRAINER DIES

TAKOMA PARK, Md. (UPI) — Ralph Salvon, the Baltimore Orioles trainer for the past two decades, died Thursday from complications of quadruple bypass surgery, club officials said. He was 60.

Salvon, the senior trainer in the American League, spent 36 years in professional baseball, 31 of them in the Orioles organization.

"Ralph was one of a kind," said Terry Crowley, a former Orioles player and now the team's hitting instructor. "He was a kind-hearted man, a sincere man dedicated to baseball."

"He really appreciated and respected the ballplayers he worked on," Crowley added. "He thought it was an honor to know the players. We thought it was an honor to know him. He was a big part of the Orioles."

Salvon died early Thursday at Washington Adventist Hospital following heart surgery June 24.

"He loved the ballplayers," said Orioles public relations director Bob Brown. "He not only helped them in the training room, he helped them psychologically when they were down."

After graduation from Gus Mauch's Trainers' School in St. Augustine, Fla., in 1952, Salvon spent a year in the St. Louis Browns farm system and then joined the Orioles organization, where the franchise moved to Baltimore in 1954.

In 1966, Salvon was appointed assistant to head trainer Eddie Weidner. He became the head trainer in 1968 and served in that capacity for 20 years.

The portly Salvon often drew cheers from the Memorial Stadium crowd when he raced on the field to help an injured player.

Standings tight at Gymnastics trials

OLYMPIC TRIALS

HOUSTON (UPI) — Olympic hopefuls Hope Spivey and Phoebe Mills finished tied for first Thursday night in the compulsory of the U.S. women's gymnastics championship, a tightly contested round dominated by proteges of Romanian defector Bela Karolyi.

Earlier Thursday at The Summit, Dan Hayden earned a perfect 10 on parallel bars to win the men's compulsory over Charles Lakes and Kevin Davis. Olympic veteran Tim Daggett, however, stole the show as he officially began his comeback from a near-crippling leg injury suffered last Oct. 22.

The national championships are the first step in the U.S. Olympic team selection process, with the top 20 women scorers and the top 18 men advancing to the final Trials at Salt Lake City Aug. 4-7. Results of the U.S. championships results count 40 percent in the selection process, and the Trials 60 percent.

At the 1984 Olympics, the men were the stronger of the United States' two teams, taking an unprecedented gold medal while the women settled for silver.

But the compulsory events Thursday, which count 50 percent of the final championship score for men and 60 percent for the women, indicated the reverse will be true at the Seoul Olympics.

There were three ties among the top 10 female finishers, and less than one point separated the top scorers from the 10th-place finisher — an indication that the United States will field a very deep, well-balanced women's team.

Five of those top 10, including Mills, 15, are proteges of Karolyi, who coached Romanian Nadia Comaneci, American Mary Lou Retton in the 1976 and 1984 Olympic championships respectively. He defected to the United States in 1981.

The other top scoring "Karolyi Kids" included Altamonte Springs' Brandy Johnson, the 1987 junior champion, who tied for fifth in her senior debut; Rhonda Foehn, who tied for seventh; Chelle Stack, who was ninth, and 2nd place winner champion Kristie Phillips, who is battling back from a lengthy slump.

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) — Ed Hopson's inside strength and lightning quick hands lifted him to a stunning 3-2 upset victory Thursday over heavily favored Kelele Banks in the 125-pound weight class at the U.S. Olympic Boxing Trials.

"He (Banks) came out with the pose like he was going to be aggressive," said Hopson, a native of St. Louis. "I just kept coming at him. I couldn't sleep nights thinking about Kelele. It was just his name, Kelele Banks."

Baseball America rates Sabo, Grace top rookies

BASEBALL

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Baseball America rates Cincinnati third baseman Chris Sabo and Chicago Cubs first basemen Mark Grace the top rookies in the majors this year.

The baseball tabloid, which will examine the major-league rookies in its annual mid-season issue, picks Sabo first and Grace second in ranking the top 100 rookies.

Pitchers Melido Perez of the White Sox and Bryan Harvey of the Angels are third and fourth respectively. Walt Weiss, Oakland's shortstop was rated fifth.

In the 112-pound weight class, Chris Carrillo, of Whittier, Calif., counter-punched his way to a 5-0 decision over Lionell Odom, of the Queens, N.Y.

U.S. Amateur champ Todd Foster, Great Falls, Mont., marched into Sunday's 139-pound final with a 5-0 decision over Skipper Kelp of Colorado Springs, Colo. The two fought relatively even through the first two rounds but Foster unleashed a flurry of punches in the third for the victory.

In the 156-pound division, U.S. Amateur champion Frank Liles, Syracuse, N.Y., came away with a hard-fought 3-2 decision over Tim Littles, Flint, Mich.

Local favorite Romani Parker, Richmond, Calif., scored a unanimous 5-0 decision over Razz Chapin, Petaluma, Calif., to advance to the 178-pound final where he'll square off with Alfred Cole, Fort Hood, Tex. Cole also advanced on the strength of a unanimous decision over Phillip Jackson, Miami.

YACHTING
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Dave Chapin edged Craig Healy and John Kostecky in the final leg of Thursday's Olympic Soling Trials, but the finish was protested by Kostecky.

Chapin, a Newport Beach, Calif. resident who finished fifth in the first two races of the 10-race series, posted his first win Thursday and vaulted into third place in the standings behind Kostecky and Healy, provided the jury rejects Kostecky's protest.

In the Star series, Vince Brun broke fellow San Diegoan Mark Reynolds' two-race winning streak with a 20-second win over Peter Wright and 3:20 margin over Reynolds.

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — John Shadden of Long Beach, Calif., moved into first place Thursday after the second day of the men's 470 class in the U.S. Olympic Yachting Trials on Rhode Island Sound.

Allison Jolley of Valencia, Calif., won Thursday in the 14-beat women's 470 to take over first place from Mary Bridgen of Annapolis, Md.

Paul Forester of Corpus Christi, Texas, despite a third-place finish Thursday, continues to lead the 10-beat Flying Dutchman Class. J.B. Braun of Marblehead, Mass., won Thursday's race to move into second place.

Gary Knapp of Port Washington, N.Y., and Pete Melvin of Long Beach, Calif., are tied for first in the Tornado Class. Melvin won Wednesday and Knapp won Thursday in that 25-beat field.

Sean Hawes of Redington Beach, Fla., won Thursday in the Division II Sailboard to take over first in that 45-beat field.

Baseball America rates Sabo, Grace top rookies

Rounding out the top 10 was Mets shortstop Kevin Elster, second baseman Roberto Alomar of San Diego and Jeff Treadway of Cincinnati, and pitchers Al Leiter of the Yankees and Jack McDowell of the White Sox.

Baseball America listed several rookies to watch for next year, including Cameron Drew, an outfielder with Houston; Steve Searcy, a left-hander with Detroit; and Craig Biggio, a catcher with the Astros who has filled in for the injured Alan Ashby.

All-Star rosters filled

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League batting leader Andres Ballester was among 18 first-time NL All-Stars and Minnesota ace Frank Viola was one of five Twins named to the American League team Thursday when pitchers and reserves were picked for Tuesday's All-Star Game in Cincinnati.

Six players from the Chicago Cubs were named to the NL team, while Minnesota and Oakland each landed five on the AL team.

Galarraga, who is batting .341, was the only Montreal player selected and among 15 first-year players added to the NL team Thursday. The other first-year infield reserves were shortstops Shawon Dunston of Chicago and Barry Larkin of Pittsburgh; second baseman Robby Thompson of San Francisco; third baseman Vance Law of Chicago and Chris Sabo of Cincinnati; and Atlanta first baseman Gerald Perry.

Outfielders Rafael Palmeiro of Chicago and Andy Van Slyke of

BASEBALL

Pittsburgh are also first-year All-Stars.

Rounding out the NL reserves were St. Louis outfielder Willie McGee and Philadelphia catcher Lance Parrish.

Six of the NL pitchers are first-time All-Stars: David Cone of New York, Mark Davis of San Diego, Kevin Gross of Philadelphia, Danny Jackson of Cincinnati, Greg Maddux of Chicago and Todd Worrell of St. Louis. They join repeat All-Stars Dwight Gooden of New York, Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles and Bob Knepper of Houston on the NL staff.

Viola, who along with Maddux are the only 14-game winners in the majors, is joined by Minnesota reliever Jeff Reardon on the AL staff. Other Twins players selected Thursday were third baseman Gary Gaetti, outfielder Kirby Puckett and catcher Tim Lardner.

All-Star Preview: Oviedo Juniors

Juniors seek solid showing

Oviedo opens Saturday at home vs. Casselberry

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Editor

OVIDO — The Oviedo Junior League program has not been in existence very long, and there are only two teams in the league, but they still have what it takes to field a very competitive all-star team.

The Oviedo Junior All-Stars will open play in the District 14 Area 2 Tournament Saturday at 7 p.m. against Casselberry at the Oviedo Little League Complex.

This year's Junior squad boasts several outstanding players from last year's successful Major League program. Members of the all-star squad from the league-champion Astros include Tony Beasley, Russ Cammack, Paul Giambalvo, Drew Jackson, Jamie Jackson, Chris McFarland, Matt Pipkin, Chris Stokes and Chris Wisdom.

All-Star selections from the Cubs are Jimmy Baker, Mark Bellhorn, Robert Brown, Matt Hall and Chad Shaw.

The manager is Tom Ferguson, who has several years of all-star managing experience, while one coach is former Oviedo High standout Eric Shogren and the second assistant is Andy Jackson.

The Juniors have four outstanding pitchers in Bellhorn, Drew Jackson, Giambalvo and Stokes and will look for solid defense to back up the hurlers. Bellhorn and Giambalvo will play shortstop when they aren't pitching while Jackson also plays outfield.

Cammack will be at first base for Oviedo while Jamie Jackson and Shaw play second base. Pipkin is at third, and Wisdom is the catcher. The outfielders include Baker, Brown, Hall, Beasley and McFarland.

Casselberry, like Oviedo, is also in its infant stages as far as the Junior program goes and both teams will look for strong showings in the all-star tournament to help build toward the future.

Raines to miss 1st All-Star game

For the first time in his Major League career, Tim Raines was not selected to the National League All-Star team. NL manager Whitey Herzog decided to overpass Raines, probably because the Montreal Expos' outfielder has been on the disabled list with a hamstring pull since June 24.

Raines, who lives in Heathrow and is a Seminole High graduate, possibly could have been ready to play in the All-Star Game since he is scheduled to come off the disabled list this weekend.

Raines, last year's Most Valuable Player in the All-Star Game, finished fourth among NL outfielders in the fan balloting with 789,514 votes.

Casselberry's Dave Martinez, a Lake Howell High graduate, finished 25th among NL outfielders in the fan balloting with 177,258 votes.

GARDENING

For outdoor decor, crape myrtle adds color, sculpture

The crape myrtle is one of the most rewarding small trees or large shrubs for the landscape. Its ease of propagation, long blooming period and ability to grow under nearly every soil condition make the crape myrtle a widely used and greatly admired ornamental.

The flowering season for crape myrtle begins in June or July, and continues until fall. Each long cluster of flowers (panicles) is composed of hundreds of one- to two-inch, red, pink, white, lavender, or purple flowers. Leaves are often garnet tinged in the spring, glossy dark green in the summer, and dull to intense yellow, orange or red in the autumn. When the leaves fall in the winter, the crape myrtle becomes a living sculpture. The trunk and branches have an attractively gnarled, twisted character with smooth bark varying in color from light straw to rich deep brown. Patches of bark flake off (exfoliate) in early summer to reveal new bark ranging in color from light pink to pale green.

Crape myrtle is very versatile in the residential landscape. Single-trunked or multi-trunked specimens make ideal small shade trees for a sunny deck, terrace, or entrance walkway. Multi-trunked plants can be used as a visual barrier, a specimen plant in the garden, or a dominant landscape feature when planted singly or in groups. Semi-dwarf and dwarf types are suitable for foundation plantings, use in containers, or even as larger groundcovers.

Occasional pruning may be required to maintain desired size and form. Background plantings of evergreen shrubs or trees may be employed to further emphasize the floral spectacle of crape myrtle. Crape myrtle can be used to create an "allee" in large garden areas. Allees are usually long walkways where the plants are spaced so their canopies touch and enclose the pathways. There is even a patented, miniature weeping form good for use as a bonsai plant or in hanging baskets.

Crape myrtles are available in many flower colors and plant heights. Plant height is categorized as dwarf (less than 3 feet), semi-dwarf (3 to 6 feet), medium (6 to 12 feet) and large (greater than 12 feet).

Crape myrtle should be located in an area that receives full sunlight for most of the day. Otherwise, a weak spindly plant with a few flowers can be expected. Plants growing in shaded areas also will be plagued by plant diseases such as powdery mildew.

Crape myrtle tolerates a wide range of soil conditions, but grows best in a heavy loam that is slightly acidic (pH 5.0 to 6.5). Nutrient requirements are minimal; high fertility levels produce excessive vegetative growth and fewer flower panicles. Applications of 6-6-6 or 8-8-8 fertilizer in early spring at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds per 100 square feet of planting bed may be beneficial to established plants, especially those growing on poor soils. Mulches of pine bark or hardwood chips are beneficial in retaining soil moisture and minimizing soil temperature fluctuations during the summer.

Heavy pruning must be done each year, if large specimen-type blooms are desired. However, one of the most fascinating aspects of the crape myrtle is its unusual plant form. When the form is destroyed by severe pruning, then the blooms will be all that remains for one to enjoy. By a selective method of pruning, the unusual sculptured form, flowers and colorful foliage make it a plant with year-round charm.

Frequently crape myrtle is attacked by aphids and white fly. Aphids are small, green, lice-like insects that suck the sap and cause small malformed leaves. The white fly and aphids excrete a honeydew material on which a black fungus (sooty mold) lives. Both aphids and white fly can be controlled by spraying with an appropriate insecticide.

Powdery mildew is a common disease of crape myrtle, especially when it is grown in damp, shaded areas. This fungus disease causes the plants to be unsightly, but also can cause some defoliation and actual death of severely infested stems. Control can be achieved by spraying with an appropriate fungicide or planting resistant cultivars.

DEAR ABBY

Letter matches sailor, dreamgirl

DEAR ABBY: I am currently in the U.S. Navy and have just returned from a six-month deployment in Keflavik, Iceland. I want to tell you that through Operation Dear Abby, I met the woman of my dreams! We corresponded for six months and I finally met her when I came home on leave, and we've been inseparable ever since.

Abigail Van Buren

I want to thank the thousands of Dear Abby readers who sent letters to our troops in Keflavik. What a great morale booster! It helps to know that people appreciate our efforts when we're overseas. Needless to say, it made my holiday season much happier. Now my future looks brighter because of the wonderful woman I met—through you, thank you.

AD2 BRUCE BLOUNT, KEY WEST, FLA.

P.S. Here's a letter from "her": DEAR ABBY: I took part in your Operation Dear Abby to cheer those men in uniform who would be far from home over the holidays. I decided to write to someone in Iceland because that seemed like the most desolate place in the world to be over the holidays.

To my surprise, a Navy man named Bruce answered my letter. During the six months we exchanged letters, we discovered we had a lot in common. And when we finally met, I became a true believer in "love at first sight."

Abby, there is something very special about getting to know a person "between the lines" of letters. Our lives will never be the same. Thank you for bringing us together. LIN CHARVAT SCHAUMBURG, ILL.

DEAR BRUCE AND LIN: Congratulations. Although not all pen-pal relationships lead to romance, many do. For those out there who would like a pen pal in the North Pole and Alaska, here's the address for troops stationed there: Operation Dear Abby, America Remembers U.S. Forces in Alaska, c/o USCG Support Center Kodiak, Attention: PAO, Kodiak, Alaska 99619-5000. DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling "JMB" that there was nothing weird or abnormal about eating only one thing at a time. I've always eaten that way, and I'm 59 years old. I like to savor the flavor of everything I eat. If I wanted to combine all the flavors of baked ham, sweet corn, potato salad and stewed tomatoes, I'd put them all in a blender, liquify the whole mess, and drink it!

Scholarship awarded from banquet proceeds

Sanford Commissioner Robert Thomas was recently honored at a cocktail and toast given in his honor by Tyre Court No. 14 in Sanford. Present were Mayor Betty Smith, City Manager Frank Faison, Chief of Police Steve Harriett, other city officials, friends, co-workers and those who have known Thomas for his loyal and dedicated work in this community and to the youth who have been apart of the life he has given to his community.

Proceeds from the banquet went to help a young deserving student receive a scholarship to attend the school of his/her choice. On July 2, the $300 scholarship was presented to Eric Williams, a 1988 graduate of Seminole High School, by Thomas, Mary L. Smith, most worthy grand matron of Tyre Court No. 14, and Vice Matron Emmaline Brown.

Presently, Williams attends Florida A&M University and Florida State University of Engineering. He is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Edgar Williams of Sanford.

The annual Muller Family Reunion was held June 24 through 26, opening with a seafood feast at the home of Freddie Muller Moble.

Activities continued at the home site of the Mullers in the Snowhill community of Geneva. On the spacious grounds surrounding the beautiful home of Bernice Muller, her daughter, Gracia Muller Miller, and son-in-law, Larry, a tent was pitched. Tables were set up and the place prepared for an impressive religious service, with gospel singing and praise to the Lord for his loving kindness and the opportunity of being gathered as a family again. The

Marva Hawkins

Rev. Elwin Jenkins of Jacksonville conducted the service.

Many expressions were exchanged commemorating events reminiscent of the initial reunion 15 years earlier at the same location.

Sunday morning breakfast was the final phase of the Muller Family Reunion. Larry Miller's family hosted the breakfast, and all family members gave their farewells. After fervent prayer, the merry makers left for California, Georgia, Virginia, New York, and many Florida cities declaring it to be the best reunion ever and vowing to return next year.

The annual building fund banquet of Morning Glory Missionary Baptist Church in Sanford will take place Saturday, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center.

Music, gospel singing and fashions will be offered as the entertainment.

The community is invited. Tickets are still available for $6 from the members of the church and Faye Williams, chairwoman. The Rev. Andrew Evans is pastor.

Morning Glory Missionary Baptist Church will observe its annual Women and Men's Day Services, on Sunday, July 17, with the women's service at 11 a.m. The women of the church will be in charge, with the guest speaker Grace S. Miller delivering the message of the morning along the theme "Christian Women and Men Serving the Lord with Gladness."

Miller is a member of Our Saviour Lutheran Church in Orlando and is president of the Lutheran Missionary Society, Orlando Zone, which presides over 11 churches. She also is an instructor of Spanish and English at Westridge Middle School in Orlando.

Special music for the morning will be performed by the Mass Women's Chorus of Morning Glory, under the direction of Faye Williams.

The Men's Day Service will begin at 3 p.m., with the Rev. Raleigh Murray, pastor of Bethel Missionary Baptist Church in Orlando, delivering the message.

Murray's church and choir will be in charge of the service. The community is invited to attend both of these services.

Market active, prices dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 7.47 Thursday, was down 6.94 to 2115.75 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 542,204 among the 1,153 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,030,000 shares.

The market suffered a modest retreat Thursday after a rebound in the dollar and bond market helped erase most of the sharp losses inflicted early in the session. Trading was moderately active.

The Dow fell more than 20 points in the early going before it stabilized and started to cut the deficit around midday.

"What seems to be happening is that the market is awaiting some good news on short-term interest rates," said Don R. Hays, director of investment strategy at Wheat, First Securities in Richmond, Va.

Dollar opens higher; gold, silver mixed

By United Press International

The dollar was mostly higher in light trading today on major foreign currency markets after falling slightly in Tokyo. Gold was mixed.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar continued its slide against the Japanese yen in light trading, closing at 131.97 yen, off 0.43 from 132.40 yen on Thursday.

Tokyo dealers said the dip was due to market players selling excessive holdings to adjust positions taken in heavy buying late last month.

In Europe, the trend was reversed when foreign currency exchanges opened.

The dollar opened in Frankfurt at 1.8205 West German marks, up from 1.818 on Thursday, and began the day in Paris at 6.126 French francs, up from 6.116.

The dollar opened higher in Amsterdam at 2.049 Dutch guilders, up from 2.0435 overnight.

In Brussels, the dollar moved up to 38.39 Belgian francs from 38.26, and was 15125 Swiss francs in Zurich, up from 1509.

In London the pound slipped to $1.7105, down from $1.719, and in Milan the dollar firmed to 1,349.75 lire, up from 1,348.25.

In early New York trading, the dollar was higher against key foreign currencies in fairly active trading.

Currency traders in New York said the dollar rose against major currency in response to a stronger than expected employment data for June.

The Labor Department reported the nation's unemployment rate fell sharply to 5.3 percent in June, the lowest level in 14 years.

Jobless rate drops sharply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate fell sharply to 5.3 percent in June, the lowest level in 14 years, the Labor Department announced today.

The improved picture was fueled by an upturn in summer-season hiring among adult men and teenagers.

The June jobless rate of 5.3 percent was the lowest figure since May 1974 and dropped three-tenths of a percentage point from the May figure of 5.6 percent, the Labor Department said.

The data showed a healthy increase in off-the-farm employment, with some 346,000 more people working in non-farm jobs.

"Employment rose markedly in June and unemployment declined," said the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Total civilian employment rose by some 800,000 people, the jobless report showed, compared to a drop of some 500,000 jobs in May.

A companion index of unemployment, reflecting members of the armed forces, also declined three-tenths of a percentage point, from 5.5 percent to 5.2 percent.

"Incredible," said Norman Robertson, chief economist for Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh. "One can only be just totally impressed with the strength and resilience of this economy."

...Millage

Falson also said that a mill increase would eliminate having to take $300,000 from reserve funds.

Falson had recommended a millage reduction to $4.47 in his original budget proposal to commissioners, which would require taking $300,000 from reserve funds to balance the budget.

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan told other commissioners he is leaning toward a millage increase, and Mayor Detye Smith was non-committal.

During Tuesday's budget session John Y. Mercer went on record against a millage increase.

"I don't plan on voting for a millage increase," he said.

Mercer also said taking $300,000 out of reserve funds was a "mistake."

Also on Tuesday, commissioner Bob Thomas said he was against a millage reduction, as recommended by Falson. "There is no way we can operate with maximum efficiency with a rollback," he said.

Before a millage increase can be adopted, the final budget proposal and the proposed millage rate must have two public hearings, scheduled for Sept. 12 and 26.

Other items discussed by the commission at the budget sessions:

• Giving the city's 356 employees a 5 percent cost of living increase instead of the proposed 4 percent.

• Giving City Manager Frank Falson a 7 percent raise since he had not received a raise in two years. Falson is paid $59,488 annually and is the highest paid city employee.

• Commissioners decided Wednesday to appropriate $40,000 for a workman's comprehensive liability umbrella policy, which the city does not have. The city would self-insure the $175,000 deductible of the $5 million policy.

• Wednesday, Fire Chief Tom Hickson and Police Chief Steven Harriett made pleas for additional personnel and equipment. The commission discussed adding two firefighters to the one already proposed, plus a clerk-typist. The commission discussed adding two police officers to the two already proposed and to allow the purchase of squad cars from the police trust fund. Final decisions will be made at Monday's budget meeting.

• Thursday, commissioners gave approval for $57,000 to be transferred from the Special Projects budget to Parks & Recreation to cover cuts in supplies and parts.

More money needed for troubled thrifts bailout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Congress were quick to decry the government's new $30.9 billion cost estimate for rescuing the savings and loan industry, calling it "garbage" and questioning whether the crisis can wait for the next administration to handle.

The House Banking Commi-

tee reacted strongly when Chairman M. Danny Wall of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board testified Thursday that the new figure, just completed at 6:30 a.m. EDT, included an $8.2 billion increase in the estimated costs of dealing with more than 100 insolvent institutions in Texas alone.

...Hearing

Earlier Brown's lawyer, Stewart Cohen, said the apparent discrepancies in Brown's true employment status, and false information she gave prison officials concerning her Social Security number, address, and occupation, were "innocent," and were not intended to mislead or defraud.

Polk testified he believes Brown intentionally tried to hide the fact that she worked for the sheriff's department when applying to visit Kovacs in prison.

Wilson accompanied his wife to Sanford Thursday so Mrs. Wilson could testify to her knowledge of the reported theft of Brown's car. The was recovered in St. Johns County a week after Kovacs disappeared.

Wilson approached Polk's lawyer, Frank Kruppenbacher, and said he had never been questioned by any investigator concerning Brown's stay at his motel, and offered to testify to seeing the man in her room the day after he supposedly disappeared.

Kruppenbacher arranged for Wilson to see a photo lineup of eight men, including Kovacs, and Wilson picked out a photo later identified as Kovacs as the man he saw standing near a bathroom door in Brown's room.

The three-member Seminole County Sheriff's Department Civil Service Board, was expected to decide Wednesday whether or not the guard was fired for "reasons other than just cause."

A St. Augustine police officer testified Brown referred to the gun she knew was in her car when she loaned the vehicle to Kovacs in a way that made police believe it was her "service" revolver, used in connection with her job.

The gun was her personal weapon, and she did not have a permit for it, records show.

On the application to visit Kovacs at the prison, Brown gave the wrong Social Security number, an Oviedo post office box address instead of that of her Winter Springs house, and listed her job as "freelance artist entrepreneur for SCC," and had her background check done by Orlando police instead of a local agency. Polk and prison official Aaron Box testified that the "local" police check required by the state on the application should be performed within the county of residence of the applicant.

Brown and Kovacs developed a relationship when he was a Seminole County jail inmate for four months in 1987. They corresponded when he was moved to the Mayo prison and she visited him there, without Mayo officials realizing she was a Seminole County jail guard, according to testimony of Box, of the prison staff.

Brown, who was hired as a jail guard on Aug. 1, 1986, testified she didn't want to draw attention of prison officials to her employment as a jail guard, because she was involved in controversy at the jail over her reported complaints about conditions in the jail. She testified that she thinks she was fired because of her "trouble-making" for jail officials.

The seven-hour appeals hearing concluded about 4 p.m. Thursday. The board, comprised of attorney Bill Colbert, Sheriff's Chief Deputy Duane Harrell, and Sheriff's Investigator Ralph Salerno, delayed until 9 a.m. Wednesday its decision whether or not Polk had just cause to fire Brown. The board could reinstate Brown if it finds her firing was unjust.

Washington lawyer to solicit bribes from defendants seeking lenient treatment.

The Miami judge was acquitted of the charge in 1983, but two of his colleagues on the 11th Circuit became convinced of his guilt and led a drive to remove him from the bench. Those efforts culminated with the Judicial Conference, the policy-making arm of the federal judiciary, recommending Congress consider impeachment of Hastings.

After a lengthy series of hearings, the panel concluded Hastings did in fact accept a $150,000 bribe and repeatedly lied about his actions on the witness stand to avoid conviction. The subcommittee also alleged Hastings leaked information about a wiretap, undermining a federal corruption probe.

William Borders, the lawyer with whom Hastings is accused of conspiring to reduce the sentences of two convicted racketeers, was convicted at a separate trial and served time in prison. He refused to testify at Hastings' impeachment proceedings.

Hastings, 51, still presides over some trials and continues to draw his $89,500 annual salary. Federal judges are appointed for life and can only be removed by the Senate.

In 1986, U.S. District Judge Harry Caliborne became the first federal judge in 50 years to be impeached.

Another Judiciary subcommittee is holding hearings to weigh impeachment of a second federal judge, Walter Nixon Jr. of Mississippi, who was convicted of perjury in 1986.

The House Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights, holding hearings on whether to recommend impeachment of Nixon, heard testimony Thursday from a prominent Mississippi businessman.

Wiley Fairchild of Hattiesburg, Miss., told the panel the prosecutor who pursued criminal charges against Nixon offered him a plea bargain in exchange for any damaging information he could give him about the federal judge.

Fairchild, who was later sentenced to 60 days for offering Nixon an illegal gratuity, said the prosecutor told him he was looking for a "smoking gun" to convict Nixon.

Nixon's prosecutor, Reid Weingarten, has denied making any such overture to Fairchild.

Nixon was convicted of two counts of perjury for lying to a grand jury about his knowledge of the drug charges against Fairchild's son, Drew, and his efforts to influence the case. He was acquitted of a third perjury charge and another allegation that he accepted an illegal gratuity from Fairchild.

The federal judge is currently serving a five-year prison sentence in Mississippi but appeared before the panel last month — escorted by two federal marshals — to make an opening statement.

Nixon, who may testify before the panel next week, contends he misunderstood some of the questions during his grand jury appearance, insisting he never intended to mislead the panel.

tion of Orlando, which submitted a $1.29 million bid.

Purchasing officials determined Pellicano has more experience with larger projects, including construction of the county's main library in Casselberry.

Helen Wolk, Humane Society president, says she hasn't received official notice of the offer to take over the adoptions, but she's interested in talking.

"I could see advantages to this," Wolk says, but adds, "I can see some disadvantages as well."

One advantage Wolk sees is expanding the space the society has for adoptable animals. She says the society has capacity for about 50 dogs and puppies and about 50 cats and kittens. The society adopts an average of 50 animals monthly.

However, Wolk says expanding the society's adoptions would require hiring more staff by the financially strapped organization. Any charges for space in the county's new building — if sought — would be a strain on the society's budget. "The Humane Society is notoriously poor everywhere and we are no exception," Wolk says.

In another Animal Control Department development this week, Eileen Biggs, an analyst with the county Office of Management and Budget, will spend the next several weeks at the animal control department at the county's Five Points complex to review procedures and to assist in revisions with the department's operations manual, the DOM. She began her review at the department Thursday.

Hooper balked at describing Biggs as a department watchdog, saying she will assist McIntosh and assure proper procedures are followed in the department.

Star Speak

Talking with Arsenio Hall

By Frank Sanello

Arsenio Hall is lying on a bed in the office of his best friend Eddie Murphy at Paramount Studios in Hollywood. Hall can afford to relax.

In his new movie, "Coming to America," Hall stars as a royal retainer to an African prince (Murphy), who is searching for an American bride.

Before starting the film, Hall finished up a triumphant turn hosting Fox's "Late Show" after the TV network canned Joan Rivers. Hall was replaced by the "Wilton North Report."

When that weird hybrid died, Fox begged Hall to return. But, by then, he had already signed a lucrative, three-picture deal with Paramount.

Hall calls himself the "happiest guy on the planet." But he wasn't always so. Growing up in Cleveland, Hall was an introverted, overweight teenager who came out of his shell by performing magic tricks.

Here, he talks about following in Murphy's footsteps; hostilities on the "Coming to America" set; and why he'd think twice about working at a Dairy Queen.

Q: You have a three-picture deal at Paramount, similar to the kind Eddie Murphy originally had with the studio. Do you see yourself enjoying his kind of superstardom?

A: That scares the hell out of me. I like being a Mickey Mouse celebrity. I'm not ready to become Eddie Murphy. I just saw this picture of the globe that said "Paramount" on it. Eddie was carrying the globe on his back! Eddie's idol is Elvis. I'd be happy being Roger Ebert.

Q: Describe the other two films you'll be doing.

A: The next one is called "The Butterscotch Kid." I play a traveling entertainer who ends up taking care of a small child. I call it "One Negro and a Baby." It's going to be Eddie's directing debut. I'm writing a script right now that I hope will be my third film for Paramount, but the studio hasn't OK'd it yet.

Q: Rumor has it Murphy and "Coming to America" director John Landis didn't get along. In fact, Murphy has said he'd never work with him again. What happened?

A: John is a wonderful director. I'd work with him again. The problem was when John first directed Eddie in "Trading Places." John was the boss, Eddie was the employee. But on "Coming to America," Eddie's production company made the movie, so 'I like being a Mickey Mouse celebrity.'

— Arsenio Hall

he was the boss. John had a hard time with that, having to run decisions by Eddie.

Q: What was more fun: hosting "The Late Show" or working on "Coming to America"?

A: Wow, man! That's the hardest question anybody could ask me. "The Late Show" was something else. It was the greatest experience of my life, like a woman that made your toes curl up and your eyes roll back in your head and made you scream and not care if the neighbors heard. That question is like, who would you rather make love to, Emma Samms or Vanity?

On TV, you get a laugh every night. Making a movie, you tell a joke on Jan. 4, then hear the laugh on June 6. But making a movie is like making love to 10 different women. You get to shoot guns, wear a dozen Armani suits.

Q: Speaking of ("Colby's" star) Emma Samms, are you two still an item?

A: We're still good friends, but my current girlfriend isn't in the business. I like to be the entertainer in the family. One of my old girlfriends (not Emma Samms) after a couple of years turned into a real Miss Entertainment. I came home one afternoon and she'd invited Jet magazine, and they stayed for four hours.

Q: How and when did you lose your baby fat?

A: In the 11th grade, just when puberty hit. A friend told me if I'd play basketball I'd trim down. Now I'm a basketball fanatic. I have to be, or I'd turn into a jerk chop again. My whole family is fat. Everybody in my family looks like Nell Carter. I have relatives who are so fat they had to stop work. Really.

Q: Are you still the "happiest guy on the planet"?

A: Yes, and it used to scare me. I was told comics were guys with sad childhoods, like Freddie Prince, Richard Pryor. I wondered if maybe I was in the wrong business. My parents divorced when I was 5, but it didn't bother me. They felt so guilty about it, they smothered me with love. I must have been spoiled rotten.

Q: Have you encountered much overt racism in your career?

A: Only once. I was waiting for my car outside a hotel in Atlantic City, and this guy in a cowboy hat said, "I caught your show, and I never thought I'd enjoy a nigger as much as I did." So I handed him a $20 bill. He said, "What's that for?" I said, "Oh, I'm sorry, I thought you were the parking attendant."

Q: Why do you feel a fairy tale like "Coming to America" is autobiographical?

A: Eddie and I felt it was the story of our lives. We meet beautiful girls who know who we are. You wonder what it would be like if you worked at the Dairy Queen. But then again, if we worked there, we probably wouldn't get to meet those girls anyway.

Museums can be fun

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

For those who would spend some of the lazy days of summer probing Seminole County history, two of the three area museums are open through the season, and throughout the year.

The historic Bradley-McIntyre House in Longwood is also available for public tours. However, the Geneva Historical Museum is closed for the summer.

The Seminole County Museum, located at in the Five Points government complex on U.S. Highway 17-92, south of Sanford, chronicles the history of the area with displays from the early transportation, citrus, ranch, turpentine and farming industries.

Also on display at the museum, which is housed in what was originally the "County Home" for the indigent and infirm when built in 1926, are displays of everyday life and household furnishings common in an earlier era.

That museum was developed by volunteers from the Seminole County Historical Commission. The volunteers and Curator Lorraine Whiting, of Geneva, and county employee Julie Scott, staff the museum. It is open weekdays from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. It's closed weekends in the summer, but has weekend hours during other seasons.

Admission is free and group tours can be arranged with advance notice, Scott said.

"To me it's very interesting," Scott said of the county museum. "It shows people how it used to be. How they cooked on wood stoves; how they sharpened knives. We now have a country storeroom with old milk cans and Coca Cola bottles."

There's also no admission charge for entry to the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library-Museum, at 520 E. First Street, Sanford. This city-owned museum chronicles the development of Sanford from 1836 to today. Its primary focus is on the books, papers, art collection and household furnishings of Sanford, who founded the city.

The Sanford museum, which is staffed by Curator Alicia Clarke, Associate Curator Mildred M. Caskey, and a clerk-typist, is open Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday hours are from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Clark said tours are geared to the desire of the visitor, who may choose to wander about and see the exhibits on their own. "We generally start out talking about Sanford — who he was, how he fit into his time," Clarke said. She said the museum is trying to humanize Sanford, and she hopes to make residents come to feel that the museum is there for their entertainment and education.

Research is a focus of the Sanford museum, with assistance offered to students and hobbyists who are researching the history of Sanford, or the time of its development.

Special emphasis currently is on the first 20 years of the city, Clarke said.

Traditionally, the museum changes exhibits throughout the year, however, none are scheduled this summer.

The museum has auxiliary support from a preservation society, which for about five years has worked to raise funds for the museum, Clark said.

The public is welcome to enjoy the permanent exhibits year-round.

Longwood boasts the Bradlee-McIntyre House, a private home built as part of a hotel complex in 1886. The 13-room, 3-story house, was originally located at what is now State Road 436 and Maitland Boulevard, Altamonte Springs. In the early 1970s it was moved to its Longwood location at 130 Warren Ave.

Past president of the Central Florida Society for Historic Preservation, John Bistline, of Longwood, said the Bradlee-McIntyre House is the primary focus of his group.

They also own what is known as "The Inside, Outside House," of the same era, which was moved to Longwood at the same time and which is now the location of a private business.

The Bradlee-McIntyre House was built by Nathaniel Bradlee as a "winter cottage." A unique feature of this Victorian house is the absence of a kitchen, Bistline said. Food for the family was cooked at the hotel in the original complex, he said.

Today, the Bradlee-McIntyre House has been restored and furnished primarily with Victorian finds donated by area residents. Bistline said it offers an intriguing look into the past and is open for tours of a $1 donation from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesdays of every month.

Seminole County's third museum, the private Geneva Historic Museum, on First Street in Geneva, is closed for the summer.

This museum, which is owned and operated by The Geneva Historical and Genealogical Society, offers personal glimpses at the past of the residents of this village, east of Sanford. The exhibits, which can be viewed free of charge from 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays, except in the summer, trace the history of Geneva from the 1870s, when the community of Harney Cove became Geneva.

Curator for the Geneva museum, Lorraine Whiting, who is from a family of Geneva pioneers said, the museum, which was developed in the 1950s, is "the personal story of Geneva. It's about someone who lived here, who worked here, who went to school here."

However, the collection also reflects the broader perspective of the era in which Geneva was developed until today, with exhibits of personal items as well as artifacts of business enterprises.

All these historic facilities welcome visitors. They also accept donations. The Sanford museum is also seeking volunteer tour guides.

Shopping at the movies — who's selling whom?

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Are you aware of the brand of cigarette your favorite actor smokes or the soft drink he downs or the automobile he drives in a movie?

Do you subconsciously note he is smoking a Marlboro instead of a Camel? Does it matter if it is a Coca-Cola or a Pepsi? What about a Mercedes-Benz or a Toyota?

A great deal of time and money is spent behind the scenes of a movie on props that will enhance brand name recognition and perhaps push sales of thousands of consumer products.

A familiar brand used by a movie hero can be construed as institutional advertising, a blatant plug or simply an effort at realism.

Product visibility in movies is often a major concern to both the filmmakers and the manufacturers of all kinds of products.

Sometimes the use of a brand name is so subtle the audience is almost unaware of it. In other films the product is so obvious that it almost becomes a story point in itself.

Probably the best and most recent example of effective product placement was the candy Reese's Pieces used in "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial." When "E.T." was released — and went on to become the most popular movie ever made — the sale of the Hershey Co.'s confection soared to all-time highs.

The irony is that the makers of M & M's candy were approached first, but the company demurred, never dreaming the movie would turn into a blockbuster and audiences the world over would want to taste E.T.'s favorite Farthing stack.

One movie staple, the automobile, can and does affect car sales.

When Burt Reynolds was tearing up the Southern countryside in a white Trans-Am a dozen years ago in his good ol' boy flicks, Pontiac couldn't make them fast enough. When Burt shifted to a black Trans-Am, Pontiac had to double up on black paint.

Most companies are delighted to see their products pop up in a movie, providing it is shown in a flattering light. Many corporations seek to have their wares promoted in films.

Television is less involved in product exploitation for two reasons: the scrutiny of the Federal Communications Commission and, more importantly, the conflict of sponsor identification.

For that reason TV shows often invent brand names, pasting labels on props to insure there is no identification with existing brands.

It drove many viewers of "All in the Family" slightly wacky that beer-guzzling Archie Bunker's favorite brew was contained in a can with a yellow label that clearly wasn't a familiar brand. In a subtle way, the bogus label detracted from the reality of the show and distracted viewer attention.

When TV does use a specific brand in a series the results can be spectacular, as when the producers of "Miami Vice" had Wellcraft Marine build a $130,000 powerboat for action scenes in the show.

The company's entire line of powerboats suddenly zoomed in sales by 21 percent.

That brand names are a significant part of the American culture was brought home in a recent survey by Landor Associates, a design and image-consulting firm, which recently surveyed some 1,000 shoppers at a dozen malls across the country.

The best-known brand name among those surveyed was Coca-Cola, followed by Campbell's, Pepsi Cola, AT&T, McDonald's, American Express, Kellogg's, IBM, Levi-Strauss, Sears and Disney.

Audience identification, however, does not necessarily follow along the same lines when a product is seen in a film.

CinemaScore, which surveys opening night movie audience response to products, noted that both Coke and Pepsi were seen in the recently released "Crocodile Dundee II." Twenty-six percent of those surveyed remembered seeing Coke but only 6 percent remembered seeing Pepsi.

Some companies are more aware of the power of movies to exploit their products than others. One is champagne bottler and producer Piper-Heidsieck.

"Presentation of a product in a movie is a crap shoot. You can't be sure how popular a film will become or how your product will be displayed," said Frank D. Cascardi, chairman and president of Piper-Heidsieck Inc.

"You never know if you will be a hero or a villain. If your champagne is seen during a romantic moment, that's fine. If the bottle is used to hit someone over the head, that's not so fine.

"For many years the James Bond films were tops for beverage alcohol products. It was good for business to hear 007 order a specific champagne or vodka, but there are few heroes like Bond who has no bid side.

"Our company is approached all the time by studios who want to use our product, but we get involved only if the use of our product is historically appropriate.

"Probably our most effective display in a movie was in 'Ragtime' when (director) Miles Forman wanted Piper-Heidsieck because it was the No. 1 champagne in the world at the turn of the century. We cooperated and reproduced the old labels."

Piper-Heidsieck was also seen and referred to in such classic films as "Top Hat" with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, and "Casablanca" with Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman.

Cascardi said his product is seen in four or five pictures a year, the most recent one "Three Men and a Cradle."

"We had nothing to do with the use of Piper-Heidsieck in the film," he said. "And it has grossed more than $150 million, reaching the kind of audience we're interested in. The cast of Tom Selleck, Ted Danson and Steve Guttenberg is our target age — young, energetic, successful."

"It's important to us that our champagne be seen in a good light. We wouldn't want to see Dudley Moore drinking our product in 'Arthur' because the character is an alcoholic."

Jackie was different boy with another name

Dear Dick: I recently bought a small sewing kit with the head of Jackie Coogan on it, as he appeared in the movie, "The Champ." Please tell us the year that picture was made. — Mrs. B.C., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear Dick: This one has family, friends and co-workers stamped. In the "Our Gang" series, what was the name of the character Jackie Coogan played as a small child? He was an adorable child. — B.A.D., Coshocton, Ohio.

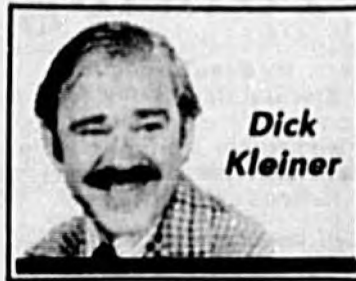

Dear Mrs. B.C. and S.A.D.: You folks have your Jackies mixed up. It was Jackie Cooper, not Coogan, who was in "The Champ" — which was made in 1931, incidentally — and it was Jackie Cooper who was one of the "Our Gang" gang. Coogan never was — he was already a major star by the time "Our Gang" was started, so would not have done such small potatoes. Cooper played Jackie in the "Our Gang" films, supposedly a "good little bad boy."

Dear Dick: How old is Estelle Getty of "The Golden Girls"? I heard she was the youngest one on the show in real life. Is this true? — K.B., Paris, Tenn.

Dear K.S.: No, but she is probably the second youngest. She is the one person on that show who won't tell her age, but the consensus is that she is probably in the 55-60 area. Rue McClanahan, at 52, is the youngest. Bea Arthur is 62 and Betty White is 64.

Dear Dick: Our family watches cartoons every morning. For a half hour, they have the old Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Daffy Duck, etc. I have noticed that they always have Mel Blanc's name down for "voice characterization." Does this mean he does all the voices, or that he is in charge? Is such a talented man still alive? — A.P., Menville, La.

Dear A.P.: Yes, Mel is still alive and still doing his many voices, although he has slowed down somewhat. He does most of the voices on those cartoon shows, although not all of them.

Dear Dick: Who was the actress who starred with Kaye Ballard on the series "The Mothers-in-Law"? How long did that series run, and when? — M.A., Portage, Mich.

Dear M.A.: Eve Arden was the co-star of that show, which ran from 1967-69.

Dear Dick: Can you give us any information on a movie called "Fire Sale"? It starred Carl Reiner, Alan Arkin and Coolidge, the guy who was on "White Shadow." Do you know if it is on videotape? — L.D. and G.G., Valley, Ala.

Dear L.D. and G.G.: It was so bad it hasn't been issued on tape. The thought is nobody wants it. Besides Reiner and Arkin, Byron Stewart (he played Coolidge), the film also starred Anjanette Comer.

Dear Dick: Please tell me if Susan Flannery was ever on "Dallas." — Unsigned, Dallas, Texas.

Dear Unsigned: Yes. In 1981, in one of "Dallas" finest hours, she played Leslie Stewart for several weeks. She was J.R.'s (Larry Hagman) match for villainy.

Dear Dick: Back in the early '30s, when I was a teen-ager, we kids went to the Saturday afternoon movies to see the westerns. My favorite stars were Bob Steele, Hoot Gibson, Buzz Barton and Tom Tyler. Are any of them still living? — K.P., Vineland, N.J.

Dear Dick: When I was a kid, back in the late '20s and early '30s, I used to fight for a front seat at the local theater to see such western stars as Hoot Gibson, Ken Maynard, Buck Jones and the others. The one that was my favorite was Fred Thomson. He is never mentioned when they talk about the old stars. Can you tell me if he died? — V.E.D., Salem, Mo.

Dear V.E.D.: Of that gang, Steele and Barton are the only ones still hootin' and hollerin' — Steele is 81, too. Thomson was a preacher-turned-actor, and he passed away way back in 1928. Tyler died in 1954; Gibson in 1962.

Documentaries... with a point of view

By Joan Hanauer
UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television documentaries these days are as controversial as cream cheese — even man-eating sharks can find an admiring conservationist to plead their cause and balance the presentation.

They are almost obsessively even-handed, journalistic explorations. What they lack is a point of view.

Marc N. Weiss wants to bring some imbalance and passion to documentaries with a series titled "P.O.V.," the filmmaker's abbreviation of the term point of view.

It is a 10-week series of 12 non-fiction films produced in recent years by independent American producers and airing this summer on PBS. The series began July 5 with a double bill, but settles down in its regular time period July 11 at 9 p.m. Eastern time with "Fire On The Mountain" (check local listings).

"Fire On The Mountain" has no journalistic pretensions. It is a sympathetic view of the Sandinista movement in Nicaragua, based on the autobiography of Sandinista official Omar Cabezas. It ought to raise some Washington hackles.

On July 19 "P.O.V." will present another double feature. One is a simultaneously funny and frightening look at the world of survivalists. "Knocking On Armageddon's Door." The other is "Living With AIDS," which logs the final months in the life of a 22-year-old AIDS victim.

Weiss, the brains behind "P.O.V.," serves as executive producer of "The American Documentary," an organization he helped put together in order to bring the work of independent American filmmakers to public television. It is a consortium of four public television stations — KCET-Los Angeles, South Carolina's ETV, WGBH-Boston and WNET-New York.

"We are just the acquisition agent for the series, we don't produce any of the documentaries," Weiss said in an interview. "As you know, independently produced work on public television has been a spotty thing for many years. For a long time there's been a feeling that a series that could bring the work together in one place would be a desirable thing."

Weiss and his colleagues spent three years looking at 545 films before selecting those to appear on "P.O.V."

"When you say documentary, most people think of the network news documentaries," Weiss said. "None of these shows are like the network news programs. They are very different in the way the subjects are approached and the kinds of subjects chosen."

"One thing they all have in common, though, is that there's a real emotional punch to them — an element of humor, drama, people who are recognizable to us, people like you and me who have been called and have risen to the occasion."

To show the range of films, he cites one on the Spanish Civil War, "The Good Fight," another on pet cemeteries, "Gates of Heaven," and the final film in the series, "Best Boy," about a mentally retarded man.

"Take 'The Good Fight,'" Weiss said. "It's primarily about an event that happened 50 years ago, when the Abraham Lincoln Brigade of American volunteers went over to fight in the Spanish Civil War."

"Most people don't even know that war took place, no less than that Americans went there to fight. The story is told by the people who went there and there is fascinating historical film footage."

"But this is more than history. It's about how something that seems idealistic halfway around the world has real meaning at home. In the film it is clear that this fight in Spain was really a prelude to World War II. If the Spanish Civil War had turned out differently, if the Allies had given more support to the side of democracy, there might not have been World War II."

The series winds up with an emotional punch.

"The last film is 'Best Boy,'" Weiss said. "It won an Oscar and it's a classic. It is about a 52-year-old retarded man who has lived with his parents for his whole life. The filmmaker is his cousin and it's about what's going to happen to Philly after his parents die. They are trying to prepare him to be independent and it's a kind of coming of age story as he goes out into the world and takes his first steps at age 52."

Weiss said instead of having a series host, the filmmakers will introduce their own work, explaining their motives for making the film, their aims and what happens to their characters.

"I really hope people find this show," Weiss said. "It's not what they see on other channels."
