City to present award tonight

SANFORD — Sanford will honor one of its community leaders tonight. The coveted Warren E. "Pete" Knowles Service Award recipient will be announced during the city commission meeting.

This will be the eighth annual presentation of the award, given for exemplary service to the entire community.

Knowles, for whom the award is named, served as Sanford city engineer from 1953 until 1960, then as city manager from 1960 until 1978. He presently lives in Englewood. He has been active in the "Range Riders," a group of former city managers and city administrators, who perform volunteer work helping resolve managerial problems in various cities throughout the area.

Knowles received the first award named in his honor in 1955. Since that time, the award has been given to J.G. "Slim" Galloway in 1966, Mildred Caskey in 1967, Sheila Roberts in 1968, Thelma Mikes in 1969, Martha Nancy in 1980, and Winifred A. "Bill" Giesow in 1991.

The winner of this year's Knowles award will be announced during tonight's meeting of the Sanford City Commission, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers of the Sanford City Hall.

Adventurers seek glory

MINNEAPOLIS — Imagine traveling 3,059 miles in the Arctic on a dogged expedition only to have no one waiting at the finish line because you're early.

That's what happened Saturday to two sunburned adventurers and 15 dogs when they pulled into Churchill, Manitoba, on Hudson Bay. "Believe it or not, we got in a day earlier than expected, so we arrived in town and walked around looking for anybody we recognized," expedition leader Lonnie Dupre said in a telephone interview Sunday.

Dupre, of Buffalo, Minn., and Malcolm Vance of Shishmaref, Alaska, finally found Dupre's wife and other well-wishers and celebrated.

Prosecutor frustrated

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. — A prosecutor is frustrated that double killer Harold William Hooper succumbed to cancer before dying in the electric chair, but he says he's relieved that Hooper was never released from prison.

Hooper, who died last Thursday at the age of 53, was the first man Assistant State Attorney Granville "Doc" Burgess sent to Death Row. Hooper was convicted of killing his sister-in-law and niece in 1982.

He died while pursuing his third appeal. His death left Burgess frustrated over the lengthy appeal process.

Rumor angers mayor Goodings' move to Lake Mary unconfirmed

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The new major industrial complex being considered for Lake Mary remains unconfirmed. Officials refuse to acknowledge a rumor of Goodings Supermarket moving its headquarters to Lake Mary.

This morning, Lake Mary Mayor Randy Morris was angered at the Goodings rumor. "I've seen times when either rumors like this or some leaked-out information have brought potentially great projects to a rapid halt," he said, "and it would be a shame if something like that happens in this case."

The matter surfaced when a rezoning application was filed by Paul W. Waters, who represents the Charles Barney Coven Family Trust, owners of the 40 acres of land. The intended use of the land, as identified on the application is for "wholesale distribution and light manufacturing."

"I can neither confirm nor deny the rumor," Waters said today. "As the representative of the estate, I have pledged not to reveal the name of the prospective buyer of the land, until they are ready to make the announcement."

Morris commented, "Everyone is curious as to who might be considering moving to Lake Mary, but at this time, I am not at liberty to discuss it."

Last week Morris said, "The people who own the land have requested that the name not be revealed." He added, "But it will be a major operation for Lake Mary if everything goes as planned."

The site is located between Interstate 4 and Rinehart Road, near the Siemens Stromberg-Carlson property and the Regional Postal Service building. While it contains 1,500 feet of frontage on the interstate, it is approximately 1,000 feet west of Rinehart.

The Goodings corporate office is presently located at 483 Montgomery Place, Altamonte Springs. Officials were not immediately available. See Rumor, Page 5A

SHS student wins honor from Furlong

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Jennifer Ann Blair, a senior at Seminole High School, has been honored by Commissioner Larry Furlong for her commitment to her school work with a scholarship.

Furlong said he stopped at Blair's house last Tuesday afternoon after work to present the surprised student with a certificate and a check for $800.

"I have to do a lot of difficult things as a politician," he said. "That makes things like this that much more enjoyable."

Blair, daughter of Steven and Kayla Blair of Sanford, said she was "shocked" when Furlong showed up at her door.

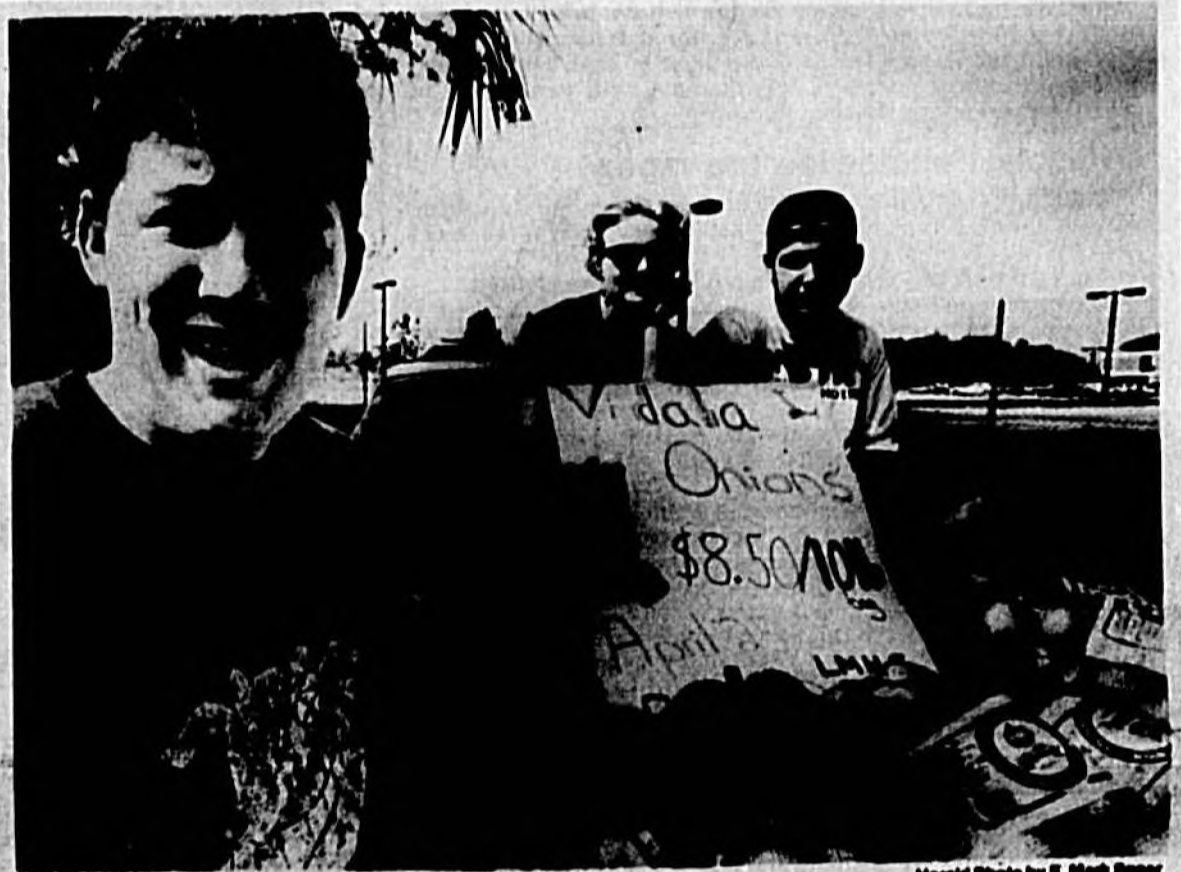

"It was so funny to see a county commissioner standing on my door step," she giggled. "I had applied for the scholarship on the recommendation of my guidance counselor and really hadn't given much thought to winning."

During his 1990 campaign for office Furlong promised to donate 25 percent of his take home pay as a commissioner for some community benefit.

He decided that he would help one senior at each of the high schools and at Crooks School of Choice continue with their education. The students need not be the best scholars in their class, Furlong said, but they do need to be diligent students who are committed to working

Sweet smell of success

Freshman Josh Nance and juniors Lee Balmat and Ryan Fleming did their part to help the Lake Mary High School debate team Saturday by selling Vidalia onions at the school. The fundraiser was a successful one on its first day, according to organizers. It continued Sunday with the onions being sold for $8.50 for a 10 pound bag.

Controversial Plantation development up for grabs

By J. MARK BARNFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — For Sale: 573-acres approved for 400 homes near beautiful Wekiva River and exclusive Markham Woods Road area; undeveloped; slightly controversial.

Call Resolution Trust Corp. for more information. Plantation, the most controversial Seminole County housing development in recent years is for sale, although the price has yet to be established. The owners of the project, AMCOR Investments Corp., once a subsidiary of Lincoln Savings and Loan, is now a subsidiary of RTC as receiver for Lincoln Saving and Loan Association, F./., as a result of the RTC takeover of the failed California thrift at a cost of $2.6 billion.

In other words, Plantation is owned by the people by the people of the United States of America.

David Keating Jr., chairman of Lincoln's parent company American Continental Corp., was sentenced to 10 years in prison April 10 for defrauding investors out of $285 million in worthless bonds.

Kevin Shields, spokesman for the RTC western regional office in Denver, Colo., said Plantation was not one of the Lincoln assets acquired by Great Western in March 1991. So it now is in the hands of the RTC who will try to sell it and attempt to recoup a portion of that $2.6 billion, said Shields. An appraisal has not been done on the development, said Shields.

Shields said RTC might even develop Plantation. Although unusual, the thrift disposal agency does occasionally complete developments to make them more salable, he said.

Friends of the Ritz Dozens gather to revive opening of old theater

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Several dozen people attended a Friends of the Ritz meeting yesterday. The gathering may be the start of a plan to eventually put the theater back in use.

Rod Loyer, of the organization to be called "Triangle At the Ritz, Inc.," addressed the group about plans for the use of the facility. The gathering was held at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce meeting room.

He projected, "About two weeks of each month we would have live theater, with the other time used for nationally known entertainment and Central Florida area presentations such as dance recitals."

Triangle at the Ritz, a non-profit organization, is one of several companies operated by Loyer. He also operates Triangle Productions.

Multiple charges after traffic stop

Sanford Police stopped a vehicle reported to be driving rapidly in a school zone Thursday. The car was stopped near the intersection of Celery Avenue and Cyprus Avenue. Richard Lorenzo Williams, 28, of 1122 Orange Ave., Sanford, was charged with having an improper license tag, excessive speed in a school zone, (31 in a 20 mile zone), two previous driver license suspensions, and because he was not wearing required glasses he was charged with violation of a restriction. A computer check revealed he was also wanted on an outstanding warrant for a misdemeanor.

Longwood police arrest woman

Longwood police conducted a radar check for speeding Thursday and stopped Wanda Lee Kase, 22, 901 Wildmere Ave., Longwood, near her home. During the investigation, the officer reported finding a "silver colored metal smoking pipe in her wallet." The officer also reported the pipe bowl contained suspected cannabis residue. Kase was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and driving with a suspended license. A computer check revealed she had her license suspended on five previous charges.

Fight brings arrest

Sanford police arrested Mose Wesley Perkins, 65, 1004 Maple Ave., Thursday. He has been charged with aggravated assault. Officers report Perkins was in a fight with Andrew Sheppheard, near Perkins' home, and struck him with a metal rod, causing a two inch cut. Sheppheard was treated at the scene by paramedics.

Warrant Arrests

The following persons have been arrested on outstanding warrants:

●Gary Lee Shipley, 35, 112 Sunset Drive, Sanford, turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Thursday. He was wanted for failing to appear on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol, and driving with a suspended license.

●Willie Church, #83 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, was arrested Thursday for failing to appear for a court ordered drug evaluation, connected to charges of sale of a controlled substance.

●Jay Thomas Hurley, 34, 2004 Hartwell Ave., was arrested Friday morning by Sanford police. He was wanted on a warrant charging him with burglary.

●Lanas Donnel Jess, 25, 2415 1/2 E. 21st St., Midway, was arrested at 2501 Crawford Thursday. He was wanted on a warrant charging him with failure to appear on a trespassing charge placed against him on March 6.

●Jack Lee Stanton, 37, 739 Seminole Ave., Longwood, was arrested by Sanford police Thursday at 408 S. Oak Ave. He was wanted on a warrant charging him with violation of parole on a conviction of grand theft.

●Willeasie Annette Brown, 33, 814 Elm Ave., Sanford, was arrested by Seminole County Sheriff's deputies Thursday at the State Probation Office. She was wanted on a warrant charging her with violation of parole on a conviction of resisting an officer with violence.

●Latrina Taylor, 22, 1405 W. 16th St., Sanford, was located by sheriff's deputies at her home Thursday. She was wanted for violation of parole on convictions of grand theft and sale and possession of cocaine.

●Vernita Frison, 22, #47, Lake Monroe Terrace, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Thursday. She was wanted on three warrants charging her with violation of parole. The parole came about as a result of convictions on charges of battery to a law enforcement officer, sale of cocaine, and sale of a controlled substance. She was located at 1811 W. 15th Street in Sanford.

●Gregory Alan Richards, 18, 322 Borado Road, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Thursday. Richards turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. He was wanted on a warrant charging him with violation of parole on a conviction of grand theft of a motor vehicle.

●Darrell L. Smith, 44, 2829 Sanford Ave., was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Thursday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of battery to a law enforcement officer.

Seminole County incidents reported

The following incidents have been reported to the Seminole County Sheriff's office:

●A 1992 Black Jeep was reported stolen from Reiche Custom Builders, Inc., sometime Thursday. The vehicle's owner, Robert Reichs told deputies it was in a parking area on Highway 434, east of Harbour Bend Commercial Building. The vehicle's license number was listed as YTS-84P.

●A 1987 Honda dirt bike was reportedly taken from a storage shed near the home of Roger Frank Sgrohm, 4443 Francis Street., near Sanford. The incident was reported Thursday.

●A 1992 Toyota, reported as having been stolen from Jimmy Bryan Toyota in Winter Park, was located Thursday. It was found in the parking lot of Springwood Village Condominiums, 160 Springwood Circle, Longwood.

Florida lawyers dig into Holocaust

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — In plush offices facing sparkling Biscayne Bay, white-collar lawyers plunged into a dark, horrific past.

Piles of documents coldly provided facts and figures from events before they were born. In towns with names such as Slutsk, Minsk, and Khatyn. The case involves what is, in effect, Britain's first war crimes trial and meant digging deeply into little-known events in a part of the world that drew little notice in 1941.

"It's a very small window we opened up ... into the heinous atrocities committed by the Nazis and their hired henchmen. This was the beginning of the Holocaust," said Alan Roinick, an attorney for the firm of Greenberg, Traurig.

They are helping the Scottish lawyers for Scottish Television against a libel lawsuit filed by a man linked to war crimes.

Plaintiff Antony Gecas, a retired mining engineer born in Lithuania as Antanas Gecevičius, is seeking $1.04 million (600,000 English pounds) because of a 1987 documentary titled "Crimes of War" that tied him to massacres of Jews and other civilians.

Longwood to pick city administrator

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Another attempt will be made to select a Longwood city administrator. The City Commission will hold a special called meeting on the subject tonight.

According to the advance agenda, the Commission will consider a contract recommended by James A. McFellin, of Nassau Bay, Texas. He was one of the four candidates given first consideration, following a trimming down of approximately 200 applicants.

Earlier this month, the Commission had initially selected Henry Booker, of Roswell, Ga. When the offer was made however, Longwood Finance Director Jim Coleman reported Booker had changed his mind.

McFellin has submitted a letter to the City Commission regarding the job opening. In it he has made a number of revisions regarding the "Agreement for Professional Services" offer submitted to him by the city.

He has requested consideration of a higher salary. The city had indicated the starting salary would be $47,362. McFellin said his increase was "fair in light of the present salary of the Police Chief, ($48,131) and the Fire Chief ($47,632)." Both salaries are higher due to longevity.

McFellin is also seeking an extended termination period and severance compensation, as well as including specific agreements for vacation period and sick leave allowance.

According to City Clerk Jeri Zambri, "If the Commission determines it can't go along with Mr. McFellin's contract requirements, the next item on the agenda is the consideration of persons in the second group of candidates." They include Bill Daahner of Atoka, Okla., William Herman of Daphne, Ala., and Louisa Houseworth of Wichita Falls, Texas.

City Administrator Don Terry, terminated at the first of the year by the Commission, has remained in the position until a replacement can be found. Terry however, submitted his resignation last week, effective on April 30.

Zambri said, "Another item on the agenda for the meeting tonight, is the appointment of a temporary city administrator if the need is felt."

The special called meeting is open to the public. It will be held this evening, beginning at 6 p.m., in the annex of the Longwood City Hall, 174 W. Church Street.

Winners, losers

Alfred Sikes has shown himself to be a free-market conservative during his three-year tenure as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. But he has a blind spot: high-definition television (HDTV).

At Sikes' direction, the FCC is preparing to give away 1,700 new licenses to current owners of television stations. The free licenses, which would be used to broadcast HDTV or its equivalent, amount to a gift of more than $1 billion from taxpayers.

This is how Sikes explains his rationale for the free licenses:

"Some years ago, when the U.S. was hopelessly behind in research and development on advanced television, the recommendation was made by many respected leaders of the electronics industry that, if a channel was made available for this advanced generation of television that was not tied to the current standard, a much more innovative approach could be designed."

What Sikes is saying is that the government has decided to subsidize the development of HDTV. This sounds suspiciously like industrial policy, which is contrary to the approach the FCC has adopted under Sikes' stewardship.

In fact Sikes recently stated: "One of the things you learn in this business is a level of humility that essentially says, 'I shouldn't be picking the winners and losers in communications.'"

But that is precisely what the FCC is doing by giving free licenses to broadcasters to develop HDTV. If HDTV does not pan out, if it one day is consigned to the dustbin of consumer electronics — like laser discs and eight-track tapes — the FCC will have made a horrendous mistake.

As it is, optimistic forecasts of HDTV's growth have not been realized. In 1987, Japanese-owned NHK, far and away the world leader in HDTV, predicted global sales of 500,000 HDTV-compatible television sets by 1991. In fact, only 3,000 HDTV sets were sold last year, and all of those were in Japan.

When and if HDTV ever gets off the ground in this country, the first sets will cost at least $6,000. Perhaps that price tag will be driven considerably lower as manufacturers achieve economies of scale. But that depends on consumers junking millions of TV sets in favor of HDTV. That hardly is a certainty.

Sikes expects HDTV to catch on like video cassette recorders, compact discs and other products that have found wide acceptance in American homes. That is why he is willing to make a $1 billion gift to broadcasters.

Says Sikes: "The most authoritative report I have seen that has compared the likely progress of HDTV with the consumer acceptance and deployment of VCRs, color TV, compact discs and such found that it would be seven years before 1 percent of the public would get the new receivers. Once 1 percent of the public gets new receivers, it begins to accelerate very rapidly."

So, during the next seven years, U.S. broadcasters and manufacturers will try to build a 1 percent domestic market for HDTV. At the end of this period, during which at least 2.5 million Americans are expected to purchase HDTV sets, broadcasters will return the channels given to them by the FCC.

It all sounds so simple. Just as simple as it must have sounded to the Japanese when they sank hundreds of billions of dollars in beta-format video cassette recorders expecting that consumers would find them preferable to VHS-format recorders.

Look at other side of pro-life ads

There's a commercial running on several cable TV networks, and it always puts a catch in my throat when I see it. It's a moving portrayal of a young couple going to a hospital to pick up the infant they're adopting. As the nurse puts the baby into the mother's arms, the look the actress gives the actor playing her husband is exultant, a joy almost beyond belief.

The ad's narrator congratulates all the mothers who, "decided, instead of abortion, to tough it out and bring their babies into the world." He adds: "To all these mothers, families who adopted these children want to say thanks." As the narrator utters his last line, the text also appears in a graphic on the screen: "Life. What a beautiful choice."

A companion ad features little children in Halloween costumes and school uniforms, and describes them as "unplanned pregnancies that could have ended in abortion." Both are sponsored by the Arthur S. De Moss Foundation, which was founded in 1955 by an evangelical Christian insurance executive. The De Moss Foundation refuses to give interviews, but Adweek magazine estimates the cost of the campaign at $20 million, according to The New York Times.

After initially running the ads, cable companies CNBC and Lifetime decided to stop running them. CNBC, a news and information network, said it later decided it would only run the ads if they carried visual and audio disclaimers stating the spots were sponsored information. Lifetime, a network featuring programs aimed at women, told the Times only that the decision to stop airing the commercials was "a business issue."

The ad is very effective, a great example of the advertiser's craft. If an organization wanted to portray an unplanned-pregnancy scenario that didn't end as perfectly as the De Moss ads, I'm sure some Madison Avenue wunderkind could create an equally compelling ad:

The ad's narrator congratulates all the mothers.

A teen-age girl from an abusive family becomes pregnant by a boy who doesn't want her or the child. She is terrified and confused and abortion isn't an option. As the pregnancy progresses, counselors urge her to choose adoption, but not only does she begin to feel she can't part with her baby, she starts to see the child as something that makes her important, finally, if only for a short while.

We cut to scenes of the mother and her 2-year-old, who then becomes a 7-year-old, and then a young teen. The cycle of poverty and abuse continue through this generation, and as years go by the mother becomes no more equipped to care for her child than she was as a frightened teen-ager. The new teen mother is shown nurturing her child as she was nurtured: screaming, hitting, belittling and degrading him.

If the ad writers get really creative, they might borrow from the real-life case chronicled in HBO's documentary "Child of Rage." Here, a little girl was starved, beaten and raped before she was adopted at the age of 19 months. By the time she was 6, she had to be locked in her room to prevent her from harming her family. She tortured animals, molested her brother and thought of killing her adoptive parents.

Journals reflect Wright's career

FORT WORTH, Texas — The private journals of former House Speaker Jim Wright reflect, in very human terms, the kind of titanic struggles that regularly go on behind the scenes between a Democratic Congress and a Republican president.

Sometimes it can be reduced to a dinner invitation.

In his journals, which our associate Dale Van Atta had unprecedented access to, Wright accuses former President Reagan of being "partisan in the pettiest of ways," even though he cut a different public persona. Wright wrote on Nov. 2, 1981:

"He wants to punish in petty ways. He wants to punish those who didn't vote with him. He wants to — well, little bitty ways like inviting people to state dinners that they have for visiting heads of state. The last two of them haven't had a single Democrat invited. ... Since Margaret Thatcher was here — they haven't invited any of the Democratic leaders of the House or Senate to any of these dinners at the White House."

More often, the struggles were weightier, leading Wright to intone dourly about Reagan being a "frightening man."

In March 1982, Wright recounts a small group meeting of Democratic leadership with Reagan after he presented his budget. Wright records that he told Reagan the Democrats had strived for a bipartisan approach, including an agreement that the deficit was too high, and then suggested that Reagan curtail some of the tax cuts larded out the previous year.

Reagan replied that tax cuts were required to stimulate the revival of the economy. "This is his belief, his glib, simplistic belief," Wright wrote later. "I guess out of good manners, I didn't say, 'Mr. President, the damn thing has been in effect now for over a year and hasn't produced the results you claimed.' I didn't say that. You don't talk that way to a president. ..."

Sometimes Wright lashed out at members of his own party, whom he accused of caving in too easily. Back on Aug. 1, 1981, when the Democrats were getting rolled, Wright penned: "I am stunned at the manipulative skill and at the weakness of my colleagues. Like tall reeds, they blow and away with the slightest breeze."

Wright thought the Democrats were at times outmaneuvered by the actor president. But he adds that he's not denouncing actors. "All of us are actors to some degree or other in this business. He (Reagan) learned in those days (Hollywood) what lines get applause."

Initially, Wright wrote Reagan off as a "slick, glib salesman." But he later revised his opinion, believing that Reagan had for so long repeated his lines that he had come to believe them. "It is like a catechism ... something that you repeat every Sunday in church until you can recite it by heart and to question any of that article of faith would be to commit blasphemy."

But Reagan the actor could also spring to life and spar with the best of them. On April 29, 1982, Wright recounted a closed-door session on Capitol Hill with Democratic leaders, Reagan and a knot of aides. Once again, the negotiations bogged down over taxes and what was seen as Reagan's obstinacy to stay the course on the economy.

"It wasn't a shouting match, but it was a very vociferous and heated discussion between the president and Speaker (Tip) O'Neill. Speaker O'Neill made it clear in the very beginning that he wasn't intimidated by the president's presence in the room. ..."

Sometimes Wright lashed out at members of his own party.

Long forgotten is Walter Lippmann's old warning.

Will we take back democracy?

We live in a country whose political institutions and government do not seem to be working for the benefit of most of its citizens, and we can't figure out why. As of next month, when William Greider's new book, "Who Will Tell the People: The Betrayal of American Democracy," is released, no one will have an excuse for not knowing. Greider is a veteran newsman with a young man's idealism and a mature one's understanding. What he has crammed into 448 pages is part tough-minded reportage, part clearly reasoned indictment and, from beginning to end, a clarion call to the American people to take back their democracy.

If you believe that the "mess in Washington" is the fault of one political party or the other, this is not the book for you. But if you believe the situation requires a thundering jeremiad that calls the entire governing elite to account — Republicans, Democrats, the press, industry, labor and special interests of all stripes — this is your moment.

Or, at least, it is so long as you're willing to accept that you share in the responsibility for what is rotten in the system — which means most of the system. Greider systematically lays waste to what he describes in order to lay the groundwork for restoring what he loves, a functioning system of democracy, which remembers that the people — all the people — are the point of the exercise. But he never lets us forget that we, the people, must exert ourselves over time if we are to clean out the muck he rakes into such a lowering pile.

These are among Greider's observations: "The American people know that 'electoral politics in the age of mass communications serves as an elaborate mask — concealing what goes on in government from the untutored mass of voters.' Behind the mask is a process that is dysfunctional in democratic terms and, what is worse, 'neither Democrats nor Republicans nor their allied interests has any incentive to remove the mask (and perhaps much to lose if they did).'"

"Who Owns The Democrats?" asks one chapter. The answer: "economic interests that are most hostile to the party's main constituencies." There is no party organization on the national, state or local level worthy of the name in what was once described as the "party of average working people." The Democrats "might more accurately be described now as the party of Washington lawyers."

"The Republicans have crafted a somewhat different approach, 'a hegemony of monied interests based on the alienation of powerless citizens.'" Republicans know how to tap into the "corporate culture of mass communications," from raising the big money to crafting the Big Message. It is a "racist populism," Greider says, with the raw materials of success drawn from "enduring social aggravations — wounds of race, class and religion, even sex." At the end of day, however, the Republican Party is still what it has always been, a "party of conservative clients."

If government isn't working for the people, does it work very well for anyone? It is to laugh, Greider would answer, particularly if you are General Electric.

The chapter on "Citizen GE" alone is worth the price of admission. Corporations have "seized the political ground left vacant by citizens, the political parties and other mediating institutions." GE sits on the tallest mountain of them all. All corporations are ideally suited to "the permissive culture of the grand bazaar." GE, with its "wingspan ... almost as broad as the government's," is ruthless in pursuit of its own interests, diverse in its reach and incredibly skillful in its manipulation of the government that supposedly regulates its behavior.

If Greider is too honest to try to pretend that there is a white hat party and a black hat party, he is also too honest to gloss over the failures and slippery rationalizations of his own profession. Washington's journalists repeatedly fail to tell the people that their interests are being subverted by a government supposedly elected to serve them. Generally, the capital press corps "operates in an incestuous climate" where symbiotic schmoozing with the powerful and famous is taken as a right. Long forgotten is Walter Lippmann's decades-old warning that "the most important forms of corruption in the modern journalists' world are the many guises of social climbing on the pyramids of power."

Despite everything, Greider has a guarded faith in the possibility of democratic renewal. Examining the way some citizens have rediscovered that effective "politics begins in personal relationships," he offers examples of participatory democracy in Texas as models for wider emulation. No dewy-eyed optimist, he concedes that at best "this enterprise will take time — years of patient rebuilding by people everywhere."

Cosby Show may have desensitized whites to blacks' problems

By JEFF BOWEN
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — By featuring a wealthy black family, "The Cosby Show" may have desensitized whites to the problems of many other blacks, according to a study funded by actor Bill Cosby himself.

The situation comedy aims to avoid black stereotypes by depicting a wealthy black family. But it actually desensitizes whites to racial inequalities, because it shows blacks enjoying the same opportunities as whites, the study says.

"If black people fail, then white people can look at the successful black people on 'The Cosby Show' and say they only have themselves to blame," said Sut Jhally, a communications professor at the University of Massachusetts.

Jhally and colleague Justin Lewis have written a 200-page study on the social effects of the NBC show. The study is to be published in a month.

The show, seen by more viewers than any sitcom in U.S. television history, will broadcast its final episode Thursday.

The researchers said Friday they picked the show, which began in 1984, because it was the first all-black program to avoid racial stereotyping. Cosby plays a wealthy doctor with a lawyer wife.

When they began, the two professors at the Amherst campus wrote to Cosby, who holds a doctorate in education from the University of Massachusetts. He responded with a $16,500 grant.

The professors interviewed about 200 people of varying economic and racial status in the Springfield area. They watched the show in homes and answered questions about their impressions.

The professors said nearly all the whites they interviewed believed affirmative action is no longer needed.

The professors called that attitude "enlightened racism."

Cosby couldn't immediately be reached for comment, but David Brokaw, a Los Angeles publicist who has worked with Cosby for 17 years, disputed the study's findings.

Rotary, community rally for Earth

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary Rotary Club set out to celebrate Earth Day this weekend by bringing the community together in the sunshine.

The people of Lake Mary were very supportive. Residents of other Seminole County communities came out as well.

According to Roger Campbell, president of the Rotary Club, the activities drew people from all over the community and he believes the club will attempt another program like this next year.

"The Rotary Club takes on a number of themes each year, such as education, youth and the environment," he said. "We believe this celebration will be one we'll keep doing every year."

More than 400 people rose early to take part in the 5K run which began at 7:30 a.m.

Awards were presented to nearly 300 of the runners who finished in the top ten spots in the various age and gender categories.

"We wanted to honor as many of our participants as possible," Campbell said.

Ed Thomas, director of the Seminole County YMCA and a Rotarian, tried to organize a softball tournament to wrap up the day's events, but was a little disheartened when only two teams showed up Saturday afternoon.

"The other four teams just couldn't pull together enough players," Thomas said. "But the game we did have was a good one."

In that game, the team representing Blair Construction Company of Sanford beat a group of players from the City of Lake Mary by a score of 17 to 12.

"It was a good game," Thomas said. "They all had a lot of fun."

The Rotarian Earth Day organizers said that was the point of the whole event: to have fun.

"I think that everyone out there did that," Thomas said.

As the result of a friendly wager, the members of the Lake Mary employees' team will have to do a total of 50 hours of community service. City officials have not yet decided on what that work should be.

Thomas believes that with better advance publicity and organization the softball tournament will be a better one at next year's event.

He said he had no takers for the proposed volleyball tournament.

"Volleyball is a good-looking body sport," he said with a laugh. "It's not something for the Rotary Club. Maybe that's something Gold's Gym can do."

uled for June 23.

The county expects to receive nearly $2 million in federally-allocated CDBG money this year. The balance of the allocation will be used for reserves and expenses to operate the program.

The delays caused by the reallocation of nearly $750,000 in previous Midway drainage and paving grants last year to replace the community's water system are noticeable in the board's recommendations. The county reallocated $115,000 which was to be spent to build sidewalks on 21st Street and portions of Sipes Avenue and Midway Road to Midway Elementary.

The CAB recommended spending $60,000 to build sidewalks on only the Sipes Avenue and Midway Road portions and another $60,000 to design the street paving and sidewalk project for 21st Street. County community development planner Buddy Balagia said 21st Street paving, drainage and sidewalks will cost nearly $400,000.

In other recommendations, the CAB proposed granting $14,000 to the Sanford Christian Sharing Center for a pickup truck to collect food for its food distribution program. The CAB also recommended granting $125,000 to the Rescue Outreach Mission of Sanford toward the construction of an emergency shelter for homeless families.

The CAB recommended granting $6,500 to the Seminole Community Volunteer Program for a walk-in cooler for their Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program at Zayre Plaza. Another $7,500 was recommended for the Christian HELP Foundation for a freezer for their food program.

A request for $300,000 for Sanford's housing rehabilitation program and $75,000 for Longwood housing rehabilitation, but the county is developing a $750,000 housing program that will be shared with the cities. The CAB did authorize $120,000 to operate the housing HOME program. The federal HOME program grants money for projects, but not administrative expenses.

Other recommendations include:

• $100,000 for emergency housing repairs countywide. Sanford and Seminole Self-Reliant Housing Inc. may be asked to distribute the grants for such problems as burst water pipes or leaking roofs.

• $120,000 for Sanford and the county to administer the HOME program.

• $20,000 to the Sanford Housing Authority for administration of HOME grants.

• $50,000 for demolition of dilapidated structures in low-income neighborhoods.

• $40,000 to design the Dubois Street paving project in Bookertown west of Interstate 4.

• $245,000 — the largest allocation — to pave two streets, Dixie Way and Harrison Avenue, in Lockhart's subdivision in the Southwest Road, Airport Boulevard area.

to comment on the possibility of a move to Lake Mary, the number of jobs that may be produced or the payroll figures.

A request for rezoning of the property is scheduled to be brought up before the Lake Mary Planning and Zoning Board tomorrow night. The land is currently zoned A-1, Agricultural. The request is for a redesignation to M-2A, Heavy Commercial Industrial.

Although adjacent property is zoned for heavy commercial industrial use, it is not within the city of Lake Mary. City Planner Matt West explained, "This is the first request for said zoning since the M-2A district was created in 1969."

According to West, "the request is consistent with the Comprehensive Plan Land Use Designation of Industrial."

The P&Z Board is scheduled to meet tomorrow night, at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of the Lake Mary City Hall.

Plantation

"We could potentially develop it," said Shields. "That decision hasn't been made yet."

AMCOR, during the mid-1980s, sought to build 1,200 homes on the tract south of Markham Road and lying between Markham Woods Road and the Wekiva River. Residents, river preservationists opposed it. Ultimately, county commissioners agreed with them and said that was too many homes and voted against it in 1980. AMCOR appealed to the governor and Cabinet, which supported the county in 1980.

AMCOR returned the following year with a 400-home proposal that "clustered" homes onto lots smaller than one acre in size.

One acre or larger lots are the norm for most areas west of Orange Avenue in the northwest section of the county. Residents continued to oppose the proposal, saying no lots smaller than one acre in size should be permitted.

Environmentalists accepted the proposal, since it provided for a "buffer" of forestland between homes and the river. It was the first development to cluster homes along Markham Woods Road. At least two more have followed.

Commissioners approved the project in 1980 and after nearly three years, approved the master development plan for Plantation last month. Shields said the approval was necessary to make the project marketable.

Summer recreation programs to begin

By MIKE PFERFAMP
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The summertime recreation program in Lake Mary is getting ready to roll. Summer camp registration will open today.

The camp will run for an eight week period from June 15 until Aug. 7, and will include a variety of recreational and entertaining events.

Parks and Recreation Director John Holland explained, "We have a limit of 60 children who can sign up, so we are opening the registration to Lake Mary residents only."

The cost for the eight week program is $75 per child payable at the time of registration. For weekly enrollment, there is a charge of $10, plus $20 per week.

Holland explained, "The program will have mostly fun things such as arts and crafts, field trips, songs, games, dancing, and guest visits by talented individuals from around the area."

He added, "At the end of the period, they've usually had a variety show to put on for all of the parents, and this is something everyone seems to look forward to every year."

Although the registration is limited, Holland commented, "As of Monday, May 11, if we have not filled the program with Lake Mary youths, we will open the registration to non-residents." He said the price would be the same.

Registration can be made at the Lake Mary City Hall during regular hours of operation.

Scholarships to be presented

The 1992 Lake Mary — Heathrow Festival of the Arts will be awarding $15,000 in scholarships to graduating students from all six Seminole County high schools and Seminole Community College, Lake Mary, Seminole, Lyman, Lake Brantley, Lake Howell and Oviedo High Schools will receive funds for scholarships.

This year, as part of the children's program the festival plans to involve all elementary, middle and high schools. John Blair, co-coordinator of the fine arts at Seminole Community College has added his support. More than 500 students will present their art at the festival. Four cash awards as well as certificates will be presented. Blair also agreed to bring teachers in to work in the children's area. They will demonstrate hands-on arts and crafts and their schools will receive funding for their respective art classes.

The festival will be Oct. 3 and 4 at the beautiful L & L Acrea Ranch as in the past. The L & L Ranch is located ¼ mile west of I-4 on Lake Mary Boulevard across from the Heathrow community. Free parking will be available on and off site. Admission to the festival is $1 per person and free to children under age 5.

Committees are still organizing and interested volunteers should contact JoAnne Lucas, Chairman at 333-1570.

Student receives help

One of our Lake Mary families has received an outpouring of help from the community. Heather Powell, a fifth grader at Lake Mary Elementary, has a 2-year-old sister, Brittany, who has lymphatic leukemia. Heather told school officials about her sister, and about her critical need for blood transfusions. After publishing the family's plight in the school newsletter, "The Flipper Flash," many parents and friends found it in their hearts to donate blood for Brittany. Will and Terry Powell report that Brittany is still going to chemotherapy, but she is in remission now. The blood she needed was there for her. Will and Terry say thanks to all concerned citizens who helped.

Children share and care

An interesting event took place at Lake Mary Elementary in Bill Peoples' class. They started a project called "Children Sharing With Children." It culminated on March 16, when the students in Peoples' class actually talked to their Russian pen pals on the telephone. A lot of guests were there to witness the exciting event. The children of Lake Mary Elementary collected by themselves and from local charities $2,050 to pay for the shipping and handling of over 650 pounds of school supplies for Russian students. Many thanks to all the parents who talked with your children about sharing and caring for others. This was a very time-consuming project, but was such a huge success that Peoples said he would not trade the looks of accomplishment on the faces of the students for anything.

All in the family

The Hawkesses and Hays move to Heathrow. It all started when Thad, the youngest of the four Hawkess' children left the family in Northeastern Ohio in pursuit of his first pro tennis position at Heathrow Racquet Club. He thought he was leaving the family. However, a year later, his slater, Sherry and her husband, Cal, visited Heathrow. After two days, they called mom and dad and told them to put the house on the market. "We're all moving to Heathrow." Now Norma and Bob Hawkes are retired, avid tennis players and the "social directors" for Willowbrook in Heathrow. Sherry and Cal Hay reside in Breckenridge Heights with their four daughters ranging in age from 21 down to 12.

Thad has adjusted to having his family nearby again. Thad is currently the head pro at the Grand Cypress Resort and on April 4, married Jennifer McKibben from the Heathrow Racquet Club. The newlyweds will reside in Willowbrook right "next door" to mom and dad!

Native plants added to course

In recent months Heathrow Country Club and Kathy Gehr have been working closely with the Native Plant Society to develop landscaping plans to incorporate native plant materials. Currently four large native plant beds have been added to Heathrow's 13th green which backs up to a protected wooded sanctuary and a natural 15 acre lake.

Save the arts

Many area people have rallied to save field trips for Seminole County school children. Due to budget cuts, the school board has canceled all school financed field trips for the 1991-92 school year. This includes all elementary school field trips to: Florida Symphony Orchestra, Southern Ballet Theatre, visits to the Orlando Museum of Art and the Orlando Science Center. A fund-raiser to help restore these programs is scheduled. The goal of $30,000 will go directly to the school board targeted specifically for these field trips.

For many children, these are once-in-a-lifetime experiences. For others, a cultural and superior education for which Seminole County has always been known. The fund-raiser to benefit Seminole County school children is Sunday, May 3 at the Racquet Club at Heathrow, 1550 Lake Mary Blvd.; Heathrow from 4-6 p.m. The program will feature the Orlando Opera Company, Florida Symphony Orchestra String Quartet with exhibits by the Orlando Museum of Art and the Orlando Science Center. Cash bar. Only those interested in donating, R.S.V.P. Joanne Lucas 333-2357. If you cannot attend, but wish to make a donation to this worthy cause, make checks out to: S.A.F.E. (Seminole Arts for Education), in care of Seminole County School Board, 1211 Melonville Ave., Sanford 32771. Please help to restore these programs and save the arts for children and save children for the arts.

The following people are trying to help this worthy cause: Cathy Bauerle, president-elect, The League, Inc. and Council of 101; John Blair, fine arts coordinator, Seminole County School Board; Dr. Karen Copp, cultural arts coordinator, Seminole Community College; Alice Gilmore, education director, Florida Symphony; Carrie Haumiller, cultural arts coordinator, Seminole County PTA Council; Linda Meller, PTA president, Tusawilla Middle School; Robin Jensen, education director, Orlando Opera Company; Jennifer Kelley, county commissioner; Walter Kovshik, development director, United Arts of Central Florida; Joanne Lucas, chairman, Heathrow Arts Festival; Jeanne Morris, school board member, Seminole County; Dr. Mary Palmer, College of Education, U.C.F. and project director, A.C.E.; Karen Peters, Florida Symphony, member and league liaison; Sondra Quinn, executive director, Orlando Science Center; Barbara Riggins, artistic director, Southern Ballet Theatre; Dr. James L. Schott, president, United Arts of Central Florida; Robert Swedberg, director, Orlando Opera Company; Susan Rosoff, curator of education, Orlando Museum of Art; Kip Watson, general manager, Southern Ballet Theatre and chairman, Arts Services Council.

Help find 'Best Mom' in county

The Sanford Herald is searching for an area mom deserving of our annual 'Mom of the Year' title. We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges. Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special mom a plus. Your nominee need not be your own mom. Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County. Here's how to enter: Write us a letter about a special mom, telling us why she's so special. Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include the nominee's name, street address, city, and daytime phone number at the top of your letter. At the end of your letter include your name address, daytime phone number and age, if under 18. Deliver or mail to "Mom of the Year," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, Fla., 32771. There is no maximum length limit on letters. Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday, May 1. The top three winners will be featured in the Mother's Day edition of the Herald, Sunday, May 10.

SANFORD — She's been around the good earth all her life.

The Seminole County Agricultural Center, a division of the Florida Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Florida, welcomes Tricia Thomas as this week as the new county urban horticulturist.

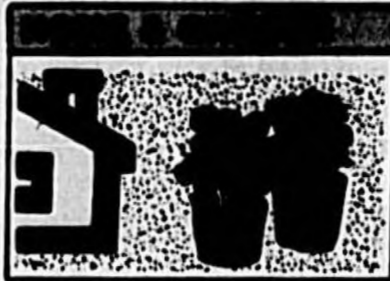

Armed with a master's degree in horticulture from Auburn University, Thomas brings a wealth of both knowledge and experience to her new position. It began when she was born.

"I grew up with farming as a family business in North Alabama," she says.

Thomas worked briefly in the computer industry before returning to Auburn University. She received her bachelor of science in ornamental horticulture in 1988.

Thomas moved to Central Florida with a landscape maintenance firm and also worked in the foliage industry as a grower.

Most recently, she has taught classes at Valencia Community College. Classes include Ornamental Plant Maintenance, Introduction to Horticulture and Arboiculture for Disney Gardeners.

Thomas will assume responsibility for the county's Master Gardener Program, in which county residents can solicit gardening information by telephone or by bringing soil samples to the center across from Flea World on 17-92. Master Gardeners volunteer their time to participate in the program that is free to residents. Training is provided.

Thomas will also serve as guest speaker for area clubs. She will continue to write a weekly column on local gardening for the Sanford Herald. The column had been written by experienced Master Gardeners Betty Canavino, Mary Becker and Kathy Krasnoff until the horticulturist position was filled. Thomas' column will appear next Monday. Questions and comments can be directed to Thomas at the Agriculture Center, 323-2500, ext. 5559.

IN BRIEF

Cancer support group meets

Support, Hope and Recovery, S.H.A.R., meets every Monday afternoon at 5 p.m. at Central Florida Regional Hospital in the far corner of the dining room. This is a self help support group for all cancer survivors, whether in treatment now or finished with it. Call 324-8737 or 322-7785 for more information.

Spring Fling coming

The Hillhaven Healthcare Center, Mellonville Avenue, will be having the annual Spring Fling Saturday, May 30, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The public event will feature arts and crafts, refreshments, a yard sale and a raffle of a specially painted piece by resident E.B. Stowe.

With the proceeds going to benefit the special needs of the Hillhaven Healthcare Center's residents, the day will provide many opportunities for the public to enjoy the facility, staff, residents and their families.

The Hillhaven Healthcare Center is part of the Hillhaven Corporation, which is one of the nation's largest providers of quality long-term health care. Operating in 38 states, Hillhaven Corporation employs more than 40,000 people in 360 long term care facilities.

Eat some spaghetti

The Fire Women Auxiliary Volunteers of Chuluota are putting on a spaghetti dinner on Sunday, May 3, 4:30 to 7 p.m. at the Chuluota Civic Center, 7th Street and Avenue B. A bake sale will run in conjunction with dinner. Adults, $3.50; children, $2.50. Call Eva Lamoureux at 365-5118 for more information.

Publicity procedure

The Sanford Herald welcomes organizational and personal news. All items submitted for publication to the People section must include the name of a contact person and daytime phone number.

- Type releases double-spaced in upper and lower case, and write in narrative style (third person).
- Do not abbreviate.
- Keep releases simple, but include necessary details—club or person name, date and time of event (if applicable), place, cost (if any), etc.
- Submit organizational releases no later than two weekdays following the event.
- Submit advance notices at least one week prior to the preferred publication date, and requests for photographer at least one week prior to the event.

There is no tactful way to end relative's nery begging

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife are very staunch believers in their religion. Last year their church had their 14-year-old son send out letters to not only friends, neighbors and relatives, but to friends and relatives of his grandparents as well. The letters requested a $100 donation to help send this boy to a two-month religious camp in Europe to help spread the word.

To say that we were aghast is to put it mildly. Everyone felt that if his parents wanted him to have this proselytizing experience and training, they should foot the bill themselves. (They can well afford it.)

My parents told my brother that they don't approve of this begging, and it's embarrassing to have their neighbors and relatives approached. Well, my brother ignored their wishes, and this year their son has sent letters again — this time for a two-month religious retreat in Colorado!

Is there a tactful way to put an end to this begging without causing a serious rift in the family?

AGHAST: DEAR ABBY: I know of no "tactful" way to tell anyone that he has a lot of guts hitting on his relatives, friends and neighbors for donations to send his son to a religious retreat — especially when he can foot the bill himself.

And don't worry about causing a "serious rift" in your family. Nery people need to be told when they have gone too far. To cave in to their demands would only invite more of the same. Trust me!

DEAR ABBY: I recently read a letter in your column about a restaurant regular who gets offended by servers who ask, "Do you want any change back?"

I have been a waitress for 15 years, and I've asked customers that several times if (1) I am extremely busy — asking will save time and steps — or (2) the change is obviously 15 percent.

Now this may sound rude, but it's not meant to upset anyone, just to clear the air. Oftentimes, they don't mind, and actually seem to appreciate it.

I wasn't surprised that the person who wrote that letter was from Ontario. It's a tired old joke that a canoe tips easier than a Canadian.

SLINGING HASH IN FLORIDA
DEAR SLINGING: Never having slung hash in Florida — or any other place for that matter — I can neither agree nor disagree with your evaluation of Canadian tippers. Perhaps some readers who have traveled or slung hash in Canada will write to let me know.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more limerick? If so, here goes my all-time favorite:

A wonderful bird is the pelican.
His beak holds more than his belly can.
He takes in his beak
Enough food for a week
But I'm darned if I know how
The helican.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your article on "Forgiveness": I had an older brother who had given me genuine cause to hate him since I was 12 years old. (I am now 75.)

After reading your article, I cut it out and sent it to my brother with a note signed, "With Love, Your Sister."

Within two days, he called me long distance. Time doesn't always heal — but forgiveness does.

HEALED IN TAMPA, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago, for reasons known only to himself, my brother shot and killed his wife, then turned the gun on himself, leaving behind their two young children who witnessed this terrible scene.

Abby, my brother was not a violent man. He was only looking for a way out of a very painful situation. I forgive him
