

AMERICANS IN FRANCE GIVEN GREAT RECEPTION GOING TO THE FRONT

FORMER SANFORD RES- IDENT WRITES TO WINTER PARK POST

F. Ellison Adams, editor of the Winter Park Post and well known in Sanford where he resided with his mother for some time is now in France with the ambulance corps and writes the following interesting letter to the Post from the front:

Hotel Du Palais, Court La Rheine, Paris, France, Jeudi, 4th July, '17. Here I am back in beautiful and "gay" Paris after the many years I have been away. Of course it is different from what it was, because now it is a city of soldiers, soldiers in all manner of uniforms and from all parts of the world—and yet it is the same belle ville that it always was. It is gay, of course, for how could it be otherwise when men who have been at the front for months come here to rest and forget! Yes, it is gay, but not light-hearted. There is the same air of Comraderie and unconventionality that has always existed here; the same delightful artistic and romantic atmosphere characteristic of its people and expressed in the historical architecture of their adored city.

Today, the 4th of July, hundreds of thousands of the populace lined the boulevards and streets to see several companies of American troops recently landed in France march by in parade. Our manly officers on their fine horses and our "boys" in the ranks were good to look upon, and they were wildly cheered by the French. Everywhere in the crowd one hears such expressions as "Ah! les sont des beaux garçons!" "Les officiers, ces des soldats!" and for the band, which they particularly liked they said, "Ges la belle musique."

France is counting on us to play a great part, a very great part, in this war. It is up to us. As I sailed out of the harbor of New York on my way over here I had a long look at the Statue of Liberty. The Goddess of Democracy was facing our steamers; and in fancy I read her farewell message in her eyes: "I am counting on you, my sons," she said, "forget not the great principles you are going out to defend. And remember, when you reach the distant shores of France, I shall still be standing here, trusting in you to represent me truly in that foreign land." Her expression seemed to me to be one of great kindness and love and sympathy and trust; and if I could send her a message now, I should say "you need have no fear of disloyalty or failure of duty on the part of your sons who have reached this side. We are here to fight for, and if need be, to die for the beloved principles of humanity for which you stand."

Paris is filled with our soldiers and our sailors. They are everywhere—in the streets, in the cafes, at the theatres, in the hotels, and sight-seeing together in victorias; and they are allowing the spirit of France to filter into their hearts. It is amusing to hear them battling with the difficulties of the French language. But the French girls are helping them along in the art of conversation. The American soldiers are very popular with the ladies.

Those of us of the "American Volunteer Red Cross Motor Ambulance Corps" who have but recently arrived from America will be at the front in a very short time. I include myself in the number. They say I have an exciting time ahead of me. I did not expect a tea party.

The Corps I am with, which is known also as the Harjes-Norton unit, is a splendid outfit. The men are fine fellows and they are doing fine work. The many honors conferred upon members of the various divisions of the Corps by the French Government gives to the "American Volunteer Red Cross Ambulance Corps" an enviable position in the great military fighting "machine" of the Allies. Any man may well be proud to be a member of this Corps.

Winter Park! In fancy, I see our beautiful town—its stately pines, its green lawns, its bright flowers, its blue lakes, its homelike dwellings, and of course its dear people—away off there in restful Florida, a blessed haven of peace! My! how sheltered and far away it seems from this grim war arena of the world! And yet, I know that everyone there is doing something in one way or another to help end the struggle. And what they are doing is invaluable. They would soon realize that if they were here!

I'll write again soon, from "Somewhere in France."

Sanford Dentist
Dr. W. E. Housholder, who has been practicing dentistry in Sanford for the past thirteen years has leased offices in the Shelly block over Hankins drug store and will open up business in a short time. Dr. Housholder is a substantial citizen of our neighboring town and comes with his family, his wife and two boys to make his home among us, and it goes without saying that they will receive a cordial welcome. Dr. Housholder has leased the Green cottage in the Fuquay addition. —Daytona Journal.

New Drug Store
E. D. Mobley, the popular prescription clerk at the store of L. R. Philips & Co., of this city for many years has decided to embark in business for himself and for the next two months will be in the room in the Imperial Theatre building corner of Magnolia and Second streets. Mr. Mobley will handle the school books and supplies and a full line of drugs and sundries.

Dr. Mobley will have permanent quarters in the new First National Bank building, as soon as same is completed on Park avenue where he will install an up to date drug emporium and handle books and stationery. His many friends wish him success in his new venture.

Rube Allyn Entertains
Rube Allyn, humorist, lecturer, impersonator and former newspaper man was here Wednesday and gave one of his incomparable entertainments at the Baptist Temple for the benefit of the Home Guards. The Guards were there in force and a goodly array of people greeted Rube after he had been introduced by R. J. Holly.

Capt. Herring made a few remarks about the Home Guards and what they represented and Mr. Allyn started his talk with a statement about the great purpose of the Guards and their value to the community in time of war.

His entertainment included a repertoire of everything in wit and humor and pathos and he lifted his audience from the darksome dungeon to the sunlight of Riley and Nye.

His impersonations of the Irish and other personalities were simply great and the hour was most thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Rube Allyn can be assured of an audience wherever he goes because there is only one Rube Allyn and he lives at Sarasota in the state of Florida.

The Home Guards realized a nice sum from the entertainment and Rube made enough to buy a pair of purple socks with which he will shock the newspaper men tomorrow at Orlando.

Married
On Thursday, Aug. 9 at the home of Mike Stoneff on Celery avenue, Peter Koliff and Miss Beneke. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Steinmeyer of the Methodist church. The happy couple will make Sanford their future home and will engage in farming.

Rebekah Lodge Meets
A good number of enthusiastic members were present at the regular meeting of Seminole Rebekah Lodge on Tuesday evening, Aug. 14th. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Venable, Mrs. Jas. Hall, Mrs. Minnie McDonald and Mrs. Wells were initiated into the mysteries of the degree and four more applications for membership were received. After the meeting delicious refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. The lodge is growing and expects soon to be one of the banner lodges of our state. —Secy.

ERADICATION OF THE TICKS IS POSSIBLE

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FAVOR PROJECT—CAT- TLE MEN DID NOT

The majority of the cattle men of Seminole county are in favor of dipping vats and financial support from the county. The county commissioners are in favor of the county assisting in making the dipping vats but have never been able to get the cattle men together on the subject and do not know just what they want.

This was brought out at a meeting in the court house last Wednesday morning when the cattle men and several of the county commissioners and others were called together to meet with S. Y. Ramsey, federal agent for the counties of Osceola, Orange and Seminole.

Mr. Ramsey has charge of the dipping of cattle under government supervision and is anxious to get county supervision for Seminole county, this being the only one of the counties left in the middle tier of counties that has not gone into the official dipping of cattle for the eradication of tick ticks.

The meeting Wednesday was called for the purpose of investigating the government and county aid and find out if any help could be expected in the county in a financial way. Hon. O. P. Swope of Oviedo acted as chairman and R. J. Holly as secretary of the meeting. Mr. Kilbee and W. S. Hand stated the object of the meeting and Mr. Swope explained that as far as the county commissioners were concerned they were absolutely unable to do anything this year as the budget had been made up and there were no funds that could be drawn upon for the money. He also stated that the board had been in favor of assisting the tick eradication but at the meeting held some time ago the cattle men themselves had asked that the county should not take steps at this time to eradicate the tick as they could not agree upon the methods and many objected to the government regulations that forced the owners to dip every 14 days for a certain period.

This seemed to be the rock upon which the cattlemen split and is still a bone of contention. Mr. Ramsey explained the situation in a nut shell calling attention to the fact that after all the surrounding counties get county and government assistance and erect dipping vats that Seminole will be quarantined and if our cattle get across the line the owners will be arrested and fined and it is now a case of dip or fence and they can take their choice.

Seminole now has five dipping vats and Mr. Hayden will erect another on Beardall avenue that will be open to the public, making six. All the cattle men need to do is to get together on the subject and build enough more to cover the territory and let the proposition be a county supervision and the tick will be eradicated, the quarantine will be lifted, the government will assist us in every way and Seminole will take her place in the ranks of tick-free counties.

A committee was appointed to take up this matter at once and the chair placed the following gentlemen on the committee: Joe Cameron, T. W. Prevatt, Walter Hand, J. F. McClendon, James F. Hixon. This committee will visit the various cattle men of the county and form an association that will meet with the county commissioners at their next meeting and outline some feasible plan for the cooperation of the cattle men and the commissioners and the government for the absolute eradication of the tick and the manner of raising the necessary funds for the same and holding a county election to vote on the question of tick eradication.

Yes, Alexander, the Lord loves you, but He will not chase you all over the country trying to pound it into your thick skull.

Don't bank too much on the smiles and kisses you are going to get from the French lassies, son. The fighting is done on the trenches, and not on the boulevards of Paris.

CANADIANS PUSHING ON GAIN POINTS

ALLIES ARE GETTING CLOSER TO MINING CITY OF LENS

London, Aug. 16.—Troops of the entente allies in Flanders attacked the German positions today on a wide front east and north of Ypres, in Belgium. The official report of Field Marshal Haig says that progress is being made.

On the Lens front, where the Canadians yesterday captured Hill 70 and made further progress in the environs of the French mining center, all German counter attacks, the official statement adds, were repulsed.

Paris, Aug. 16.—French troops in Belgium, attacking today, in conjunction with the British on both sides of the road between Steenstraete and Dixmude, captured all their objectives and crossed the river Steenbeke, the war office announced today. Further progress is being made along the river.

The French made an attack on the Alsne and captured German trenches on a front of one kilometer. Four German counter attacks were repulsed.

Paris, Aug. 16. The French statement follows:

In Belgium after violent and most thorough artillery preparations we made an attack at dawn this morning in conjunction with the British army on our right. With superb spirit our infantry made the assault on the enemy positions on both sides of the road between Steenstraete and Dixmude, capturing all objectives and crossing the Steenbeke. Our troops are making progress on the right bank in contact with our allies.

South of allies a vigorous attack made us master of a system of trenches on a front of one kilometer which was held strongly by the enemy. Four German counter attacks on our new positions were repulsed easily and 120 prisoners, one of them an officer, have been counted. In the region of Huterebe monument we also made progress, taking a score of prisoners.

In the Champagne and on both banks of the Meuse heavy artillery fighting continued. We made a surprise attack near Louvemont, taking seven prisoners. There is nothing of importance to report on the remainder of the front.

Our bombarding airplanes last night and this morning threw many bombs on enemy establishments and east of the Houthulst forest and also on the railway station at Lichterwald.

During our attack in the region of Allies and Hurbise our aviators were not deterred by the bad weather from flying very close to the ground and our infantry moved forward and turning their machine guns on the shelters and reserves of the enemy.

London, Aug. 16.—According to the Daily News, some wounded American soldiers from the western front have just arrived at the hospital at Bath.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—Neither the War nor Navy Department has any information on the reported wounding of American troops on the western front. Prompt official announcement is promised when information is received, provided it is not incompatible with military interests.

Copenhagen, Aug. 15.—The German commercial submarine, the Deutschland, which visited the United States before this country entered war has been converted into a war submarine, according to German fleet gossip.

The Deutschland is said to have been fitted with six torpedo tubes, and will soon leave for the Pacific to operate against traffic from San Francisco. The informant says Germany's submarine losses number twenty or twenty two.

Germany has 300 submarines, it is said.

Will Bring Down Flour
Washington, August 15.—The Food Administration prepared today

SECOND DRAFT CALL MADE FOR SEMINOLE TO FILL FIRST QUOTA

to take over the entire 1917 wheat crop if necessary to stabilize prices throughout the year. It formed a $50,000,000 corporation with all of the stock held by the Federal Government to buy and sell wheat at the principal terminals.

The move was the first of a series to be taken to reduce the price of bread. Millers already have agreed to put themselves under voluntary regulations and are working out with the Food Administration a differential of profits. Distribution of flour by the wholesalers and the baking of bread will be taken up next.

The hope of the Food Administration is to establish a scale of prices from the farm to the grocery store, eliminating undue profits and ending speculation. The maintenance of a standard price for wheat, its officials believe is the first and most necessary step.

In announcing formation of the wheat corporation, the Food Administration also has made known the personnel of the committee which will fix a price to be paid for this year's wheat yield, and the names of thirteen men who will act as purchasing agents for the corporation at terminals.

The wheat corporation will be put under the Administration's grain division. Its chairman will be Herbert Hoover and its president Julian Barnes, a Duluth exporter. The price fixing committee will be headed by President Garfield of Williams College and will comprise twelve members, representing producers and consumers.

The wheat corporation will handle all allied grain purchases and will do the buying for the American Government.—If found advisable it also will serve as broker for the milling interests, purchasing wheat for the flour mills to keep the market steady. The allies will be required to purchase flour instead of wheat, on the theory that manufacturing costs will be reduced and American industry encouraged.

All of the grain men who are taken into the Food Administration's grain division will dislocate themselves from business interests and will give their entire time to the Government without remuneration.

Authority to license grain elevators and milling concerns was given formally to the Food Administration in a proclamation by President Wilson. Mr. Hoover hopes that operation of the licensing system will make unnecessary any extensive purchases for the allies. He believes a staple export price and proper supervision of exchange dealings will do more than anything else to keep prices on a constant level.

Death Follows Speeders

Two young men speeding on Daytona Beach, the beach being narrow at the time and compelling a close run next to the ocean, struck a little child who was paddling in the surf, knocked the little thing a long distance and tried to escape by crossing the sands, but stuck and hid them nearby until arrested. The little child died shortly after being struck. About time some notice is taken by reckless drivers. We call especial attention to the negro devil-may-care speeders one meets on almost every road. Black speeders are no worse than white speeders, but neither are they as dexterous or respectful of the rights of others. When we meet a speeder we always look for the color and govern accordingly.—Orlando Citizen.

Sweet Potatoes for Army

Washington, August 11th.—For some weeks Senator Park Trammell has been active in efforts to get sweet potatoes placed on the authorized ration list of the United States Army. Today when he again called at the office of the Quartermaster General he was informed that sweet potatoes had been added to the list. There will be an immense sweet potato crop in Florida this year and with the additional market available which the army purchases will provide the sweet potato growers in Florida should be assured a ready market for their crop, Senator Trammell says.

Among The Theatres

At Lyric Tonight
 "Fate's Boomerang" will serve to bring Mollie King, star of "A Woman's Power" back to the screen after an absence of several months, in which time she has been working hard on several big features which will shortly be released on the World Film program. In "Fate's Boomerang" Miss King plays the role of a little mother of the hills and her work is nothing short of marvelous. It is a story that is strong in plot and action, a feature acted by an all-star cast in an atmosphere second to none. The scenes were taken in the mountains 2,500 feet above the sea and are most interesting and picturesque. "Fate's Boomerang" will be the feature shown on the screen at the Lyric tonight.

Mollie King, star of "Fate's Boomerang," the World Film feature which will be the attraction at the Lyric theatre tonight is supported by one of the strongest casts ever assembled for a World picture, the supporting stars including June Elvidge, Charles Gotthold, Harry Redding, Charles Dungan and Frank Goldsmith. It was directed by Frank H. Crane and produced by the Paragon Film Company.

"Fate's Boomerang" with Mollie King in the star role, is one of those stories of the mountains and forests which always strikes a responsive chord wherever shown. In this picture Miss King has a story somewhat on the lines of "Tess of the Storm Country," but still more pathetic and playing the part of the little mother of the hills, gives a dramatic interpretation seething with love, sentiment and the true, noble instincts so prominent in the omen of the early west. "Fate's Boomerang" will be the attraction at the Lyric tonight.

"The Courage of Silence."
 The gowns throughout yhr Vitagraph Blue-Ribbon feature, "The Courage of Silence," starring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey which is to be at the Lyric Theatre on Thursday are most beautiful.

One dinner gown which Miss Joyce wears very attractively is a black panne velvet. It is made in one piece without trimming of any description. The waist is very low so that the velvet falls over the arms where it is fastened by black jet ornaments corresponding with one attached at the waistline. With this very becoming gown the black-eyed beauty carries a large black feather fan.

Her riding habit too is very attractive. It corresponds of a short riding skirt and a long tight fitting flare coat of black broadcloth. With this habit Miss Joyce wears high boots and a soft check hat which is held on by an elastic band. Her waist is a striped cotton with a high collar through which she ties a black ribbon.

Chloey, who plays the devoted wife of Mr. Morey, also finds opportunities to delight her audience with charming clothes. One afternoon dress is fashioned from a peacock blue taffeta with a combination of chiffon and about the neck she wears an exquisite hand made lace collar. A negligee of ivory satin is made attractive by an overdress of orchid chiffon which matches her slippers. Throughout the "Courage of Silence" offers many fashion hints.

At Lyric Thursday.

Alice Joyce "Bluffed It."
 When the popular Vitagraph star, Alice Joyce, found it would be necessary for her to ride horseback in some scenes in the Blue Ribbon feature, "The Courage of Silence," in which she is starred with Harry Morey and which is the attraction at the Lyric Theatre Thursday, she smiled whimsically.

Finally her fellow players prevailed upon her to tell them the cause of her smile and she related the following story:

"My first work before the camera," she said, "was done on the back of a frisky broncho. The Kalem company was having a great deal of trouble in finding a girl who, photographed well and who could ride. When I heard about it I decided to try my hand, although I had never ridden a horse in my life. Whatever saved me from dangerous falls I don't know but I was successful and I have been in pictures ever since."

Marguerite Clark in "Little Lady Eileen" at the Star Wednesday

Miss Joyce now rides extremely well and she appears to excellent advantage in her trim riding habit in this highly dramatic story.

The Faith Cure.

"Mamma," said little Betty, "my kitty is sick and I have been trying to give her some of my medicine, but she won't take it." "Of course not," replied her mother. "Cats never take medicine when they are ill." "Well, I declare!" exclaimed Betty. "Who'd think a little like that would use the faith!"

Flying Moth Not Destructive.

When a woman opens a closet and a moth flies out she thinks, as a rule, that the moth has been eating her clothes. As a matter of fact, however, the creature does its eating in the grub stage, and is harmless when it has become a flying thing—save that it will produce a ravenous progeny.

 DAVIS, ROBERT W., Register.

This advertisement appeared first in last Friday's Herald. Since then I have sold another of these ten acre places and have a party considering two more. Better get yours this week. You will be pleased with them if you will go with me and see them.

Can You Raise $150?

That Much Money Down and as much more each year for three years will buy you 10 Acres of some of the choicest flowing well land in the Sanford Trucking District and it should be worth double that amount long before your three years are up.

Sanford is the Best Trucking Place in the United States Today

The Sanford Board of Trade
 recently stated that we shipped 3000 car loads of vegetables out of here last winter and spring and that the returns from these 3000 car loads brought our farmers $2,200,000.00.

This Money
 came from about 2000 acres of improved land. Can you imagine anything more profitable?

Mr. Sanford Man
 have you watched the trend of things here for the last two years? Time was when there were a few improved or partly improved places around here and there that could be bought way below their value. Can't be done now. Every one of those places have been bought up and are now in the big profit paying class. Improved farms are higher priced this summer than for many years and they are constantly advancing. If you don't believe it just go out and try and buy a good one.

Well What About It?
 Just this! THE NEXT BIG UPWARD MOVE WILL BE ON OUR WELL LOCATED UNIMPROVED LAND. I'm no prophet, but it's my business to watch these things and the signs all indicate an upward movement. Most of our unimproved land is held at $100.00 to $150.00 per acre now. Ask the owners or their agents if this isn't true. And IT'S WORTH IT TOO—that's the big point.

What's My Proposition?
 Just this. I control a few 10 acre tracts of extra choice trucking land that I can sell at $600.00 each with $150.00 down and $150.00 each year at 6 per cent interest. Or I can give a liberal discount for all cash.

These Tracts
 are well located, good roads, close to loading tracks, from four to six miles from the business part of Sanford. They are near good productive farms which have been in cultivation for years and paying big profits. This is a guarantee of quality if one is needed.

The Way To Judge
 these tracts is to see them. Don't let anyone fool you into the belief that they are inferior. They are equal to any land offered by any one at any price. They are worth more but as agent I am giving you the advantage of conditions and I get my commission for selling them. No need for me to ask you more when I can sell you these places for $60.00 per acre. Titles are perfect and abstracts will be furnished.

I Have Sold Two of These Tracts This Week to Sanford Men men who live here and know. I can sell you one too if you will go with me and see the unusual bargain I am offering.

I Have Only a Few of These Ten Acre Tracts at this price and they should all sell in the next few weeks. You should see them soon if you are interested in an investment that should pay you handsomely.

Liberty Bonds
 Perhaps you did the patriotic act of buying a Liberty Bond. I hope so. It was surely the proper thing to do if you were in a position to buy one. But that may have tied up your savings and at a low rate of interest. If so I will offer to accept Liberty Bonds in full or in part payment for one or more of these tracts. You helped our government, now help yourself by getting a farm here at Sanford while they are offered you at half value.

If You Live in Sanford
 let me show you these tracts. If you don't live here write me at once about them. Delay will lose this particular opportunity.

Write The Sanford Board of Trade for general information about Sanford and Seminole County—the best Florida offers—but remember if you want one of these particular bargains you must get it from me and be quick about it.

Woman Tennis Champion Hopes To Regain Her Form of Last Season

ALTHOUGH Molla Biles, world women tennis champion, has met her equal in some of the matches she played this season, her admirers say that before the season is over she will be the undisputed national women's tennis champion. Her game has been highly spectacular, but she has had many breaks against her.

EVERS ENJOYS A PANNING BEE

Was Ready With Answer For Brooklyn Fans.

LIKES VERBAL HOSTILITIES

Brooklyn Rooters, Especially Those Who Sit Behind Visiting Players' Bench, Liked to "Ride" the Scraggy Little Leader of Braves, and He Fairly Reveled in Repartee.

Whenever Johnny Evers went to Brooklyn for a series between the Braves and the Superbas at Ebbets field the Brooklyn fans and the former Boston captain made it a holiday. The Brooklyn rooters, especially those who sit behind the visiting players' bench, liked to "ride" the scraggy little leader of the Braves, and the "Pride of Troy" fairly reveled in exchanging repartee with all and sundry who attempted to match their wit against his. Johnny said it was the same all over the circuit, but he found the Ebbets' stadium the most raucous.

The regulars still recall the incident in one of last year's games when an error by Evers in an early inning gave the Superbas a lead of one run, and the fans kept up a continuous chant: "Johnny lost the game! Johnny lost the game!"

This continued until the ninth, when, with men on second and third and two out, Evers came up and slammed out a single that won for Boston. As the Braves came in from the field after the Superbas had been retired scoreless in the final half they fled back of Johnny and sang in chorus as they paraded in front of the grand stand.

"Johnny lost the game! Johnny lost the game! Yes, he didn't!"

During a spring series many fans gathered behind the Boston players' bench and resumed verbal hostilities with Evers, who was nothing loath. It was just pie for the bunch which occupies the front row and coaches the Brooklyn players when the Superbas got a four run lead on Jess Barnes in the first game of the double header.

"Oh, Johnny," yelled one fan, "when are you going to win a ball game?"

"Why, we're going to win this one," shot back Evers. "We're only kidding you fellows along till the ninth."

"Yes, you are!" was the reply. "Why, you're bound for the Old Men's home."

"Sure I am. But don't you wish you were getting mine?"

Johnny referred to his salary, of course, and it was a temporary knock-out. But the fan took the count of nine and came back with:

"You're not long for this life, Johnny. Your feet are hurting you."

"Yes, but I'm doing pretty well with my tongue. That's keeping me in the game."

Along came that ninth inning and the great Boston rally in which the Braves knocked Wheeler Dell out of the box, piled up five runs and won the game. Coming back to the bench from the coaching lines, Johnny faced the "deft little managers" who had jogged themselves hoarse trying to encourage Dell and then to have him taken out; and said in a sepulchral voice:

"Well, didn't I tell you we were kidding you along? We waited until the ninth and then took the game."

CAMP WOULD CONSULT GRADS.

Dean of Yale Gridiron Authorities Has Plan About Athletics.

Walter Camp, dean of Yale gridiron authorities, comes forward with a suggestion. In order to settle the question as to whether football shall be continued this fall he recommends addressing a circular letter to alumni of colleges asking them to subscribe to seats provided they favor the retention of the game.

"By adopting this means," states Mr. Camp, "the university authorities would know positively what they can afford to expend in preparation and in time to act understandingly, and their word would be accepted loyally if they determined that conditions in the fall made it inadvisable to have football. No one is desirous of forgetting the serious business at hand, but a clearer understanding of the situation would help on all sides. The chances are that such a course would clear the way for football and general athletics of a character less dependent upon large expenditures, but quite enough to furnish interest and relaxation from what would otherwise be too depressing influences."

ASKED FOR 3 PLAYERS: GOT 1

Williams Was Pitcher, Infielder and Outfielder.

The manager of the Quincy team of the Third League wired Scout Charles Barrett of the Detroit Tigers: "I need a pitcher, infielder and outfielder."

"He is on his way," answered Barrett. "His name is Williams."

Cicotte Has Yanks' Number.

When the Yankees beat Eddie Cicotte June 12 it was the second time in two years, during which time Eddie had faced the Yankees twelve times, winning eight, losing two and getting no decision in two. His previous defeat was on Aug. 12 of last year, when he was knocked out of the box in four innings.

Salt Means Much to Health.

"If the human race should be deprived of salt even for a period of a few months," said a physician, "we would not only lose a natural healthful incentive for our food, but disease, with all its attendant ills, would spread with such relentless speed as to defy the efforts of the most skillful doctors of the land. Ailing persons frequently refuse sugar, but they seldom turn up their noses at common salt. That is because there is in the body a deficiency of chloride of sodium, and nature intuitively excites the desire for it. Salt is essential to health and life and is as much a food as bread or flesh. If there is no wish for salt in a person doctors uniformly conclude that disease in some form is lurking unsuspected in the system."

"There Is a Tide In the Affairs of Men"

By OSCAR COX

I am not an educated man and have no knowledge of literature, but I once heard or read the following statement: "There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." This is my literary stock in trade. Since it applies especially to my case it is quite sufficient for me.

From my boyhood I was averse to hard work. By hard work I mean drudgery. I think that if I had been born the president of a manufacturing company I might have managed it admirably. I question if even lack of experience would have downed me. The reason I believe this is that when fate finally boosted me into a responsible position I took to the duties as a duck does to water.

My inclination, so far as I was aware of what I wanted, led me to adopt the profession of a tramp. I began my career in this line at eighteen years of age and followed it for four years. There was something so attractive for me in it that even now I don't look back to it with the horror it merits. Its very discomforts were at times attractive. Real tramping—I mean by foot—did not interest me. My favorite method of getting out of a district I had worked dry into one sufficiently far from it that I would not be recognized as an offender was hanging on to the under part of a railway car.

And it was here that the tide of my affairs took me up and carried me on to fortune.

One day I was riding on the bottom of a car. I was located under the baggage car, which was next behind the express car. Suddenly while passing through an open field the brakes were applied and the train came to a stop. I expected that it would proceed in a few moments, but it didn't. I heard a shot forward. This suggested to me that the train might have been held up. I put my head out where I could get a glimpse of what was going on. I couldn't see much before or behind, but one thing I saw very plainly—a masked man with an enormous revolver in his hand hurrying past to the rear.

A short distance ahead of me—the express car was directly over it—was a cattle guard. It occurred to me that from it I could see without being seen. I made my way to it, dropped down and hid behind a fence beside it. From between the boards I had a good view of what was going on.

The engineer and fireman were climbing down from the locomotive cab, being induced to do so at the point of two pistols in the hands of one man. He drove them back, where he was joined by another man. I could see no more train robbers and believed that the rest of the gang were going through the passengers for their valuables. One man was hammering at the rear door of the express car. It was evidently locked, and he could not open it. Another man climbed up beside him, and they consulted as to means of forcing the door. Both scanned the ground beside the train for some implement by which to effect their purpose. One of them spied about 100 yards from the car a log.

Both men jumped down and hurried toward this implement.

Here came the opportunity of my life. What other robbers there were were in or about the rear cars. The engine and express car were unguarded. Like a flash of lightning an idea entered my head. I was not ten yards from the rear end of the express car. Leaving my hiding place, I got under the car, crawled to the rear end, mounted the platform and released the brake. This I accomplished without the men who were going for their battering ram seeing me, for their backs were still toward me.

Jumping down on the side of the train that put it between them and me, I made a dash for the locomotive, climbed into the cab and turned on the steam. The men had reached the tie and were lifting it on to their shoulders. They had barely succeeded in doing so when they saw a widening gap between the express car and the train. Dropping their burden, they ran for the part that moved. One of them ran so fast that he tripped and fell. The other kept on and, catching the handrail on the rear platform of the express car, managed to swing himself on.

It seemed reasonable to suppose that he would climb over the car and shoot me as he came. I had no weapon, so I prepared for defense with a chunk of coal. But I did not need it. The man did not appear. The noise of the engine and car prevented my hearing anything that might be going on in my rear, but after having run some five or six miles at sixty miles an hour the gong in the cab sounded a signal to stop. Not knowing who had given it, I kept on, but presently rounding a curve I saw the express agent on the platform of his car. I slowed down, and he came forward. He told me that when the train moved he ventured to open the front door and then the rear door of his car. He held a cocked revolver in his hand and, seeing a robber on the rear platform, shot him before he could defend himself.

I had saved $20,000 dollars from the robbers. Being asked what the company could do for me, I said I would like a job that would keep me moving. They made me conductor of a gravel train and boosted me rapidly. I am now president of the road.

GRUB CALL "SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE"

America's fighting boys took their appetites to France with them, and they went with much eagerness the bugle call to "chuck," which these men, photographed in France, are blowing. America's liberality to her soldiers has aroused interest in France. Each man is allowed daily a big field ration.

Version of "Star-Spangled Banner." The third line of "The Star-Spangled Banner" has had two variations. Bryant, in his "Library of Poetry and Song," gives it "Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight, and Steadman, in his "American Anthology," makes it read, "Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the clouds of the fight." No version of the song makes the line end with "night" instead of "light."

HER MASTERPIECE By MARTHA M'C. WILLIAMS.

The king would have flouted in if he had been privileged to wear petticoats. Being restricted to trousers, he expressed his discomfiture by rather waddling strides and a heavy flop into the corner of the settee. There, after a minute, he placed his head in his hands, and swore—under his breath—because the duchess lolled in a long chair a little way off. She was not a real duchess, of course. The nickname ran back to the days of pigtails, when he had been King Muttly-gob, the Duchess of Two Sticks, though an unfeeling word had called them, commonly, Davey Mutton and June Lee. Only children and close neighbors, they had been all but inseparable until the era of college. Janet went first, being a year the older. Then Davey went, and thus it happened that they had not met for five years. "Swear out loud! It's more relieving," Janet said after a minute, with a soft, suppressed giggle. "Or, better still—tell me about it. Does true love's course refuse to run smooth for lack of an obstacle?" Davey cried, sitting up with a jerk: "How did you—how could you guess?" "Didn't—certainly—knowing the other party in interest as I do," Janet flung back. Davey shook his head at her. "It's bad enough to have you reading law, though you don't mean to practice," he said. "I won't have you talking it at me—I want to forget there's such a thing."

TEMPERANCE NOTES (By the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

MAINE SAVINGS. Under this heading the Boston Herald some time since commenting on the savings bank's deposits, said, "It is a good showing for Maine. Can any other state make the claim? No depositor in a Maine savings bank has ever lost a dollar that he deposited there. It is to be noted, moreover, that the savings banks by no means represent all the savings of the Maine people that are at interest. The savings departments of the trust companies have 60,322 depositors with deposits of $20,000,000, or twice as much as the demand deposits in the same institutions. The national banks have millions in their savings departments, and the 11,820 shareholders in the loan and buildings associations have to their credit an accumulated capital of $4,380,000. These and other totals make a glowing for the thrift and industry of Maine people that no state can better."

atendantly refused to legalize the grandshop. In population Maine ranks as the thirty-fourth state in the Union. But on June 30, 1916, the deposits in her savings banks amounted to $74,423,088.03, a total exceeded by only 11 other states. The number of depositors—228,596—represents nearly one-third of the total population of the state, including men, women and children. Only ten states exceed Maine in the actual number of depositors. The total proportion of depositors to population is equalled by only five states. Deposits in building and loan associations amounted to $5,558,263, with 12,713 depositors. Add to this the savings deposited in trust companies and national banks, and the per capita individual deposits amount to $244.50 for every man, woman and child in the state.

WHY NOT MAKE THE STATE DRY? Claim is made that the death rate of New York troops was the lowest of all those that served on the Texas border, and the reason—prohibition of intoxicants. Not only could a soldier not take a drink of anything—not even the "near" beer permitted at the army canteen—but he was forbidden to enter any place "where liquor is displayed for use or sale."

If a number of men who wear M. C's after their names are not left in the bullrushes at the next primaries, then we will confess to a lack of knowledge of the temper of the people. Congress was called together to act quickly in an emergency, but they have frittered away valuable time and made our task harder. The people have become disgusted.—Apalachicola Times.

Bullrushes is a good place for them as they seem to like it.

H. H. McCreary has sold the Gainesville Sun, one of the best newspaper properties in the state to the Pepper Printing Co. To the new owners who are old friends we wish to extend the right hand of fellowship and friendship. We worked with all three of them, Pepper, Welsh and Tomkies and it will be like talking to them to read the Sun, and especially the locals from Oliver J. Farmer, who was our friend in the old days while he was editor of the Levy Times Democrat. Success to the new editors. May they thrive and prosper and keep the Sun up to the same high standard as it has always been under Editor McCreary.

GOVERNMENT FREE ADVERTISING

Publishers generally, seeing the injustice of repeated requests for free government advertising, are asking frankly why the system is continued. J. P. Coughlin, publisher of the Waseca (Minn.) Herald publishes this editorial:

Our government does not expect the railroads to transport troops or supplies without pay. Our government does not ask the steel or powder plants to furnish munitions free nor the farmers to furnish food for the army without paying them for it, but our government has no hesitancy in demanding that newspaper publishers give columns and pages of space each week to assist in the war program without a cent of compensation. It requires skilled labor, modern machinery and high priced material to produce this publicity for the government. Is there any sane reason why it should not be paid for?

Newspaper men are as patriotic as other citizens. They have bought Liberty Bonds and donated to the Red Cross and other laudable organizations as far as their means would permit, but their patriotism ought not to be imposed upon. A rich government like ours should pay for its advertising, instead of begging it. England and Canada have set an example in this respect. They paid the newspapers for their advertising and got splendid results. Uncle Sam might well follow their example.

PUSH THE FAIRS

Our people should not permit themselves to become so engrossed in the war and kindred subjects as to neglect ample preparations for the county and neighborhood fairs this fall. We may be tempted to think we are too busy to attend to them but in this we will commit a grave error.

A county or neighborhood fair is not a luxury, nor an indulgence, but one of the most important institutions of any community. It is as essential to the best interests of the industrial life of the community as is the school to the intellectual, or the church to the spiritual life. Its educational influence is only limited by the energy with which it is pushed.

In these days, when the need is urgent that production be stimulated to the maximum, every agency that tends to arouse enthusiasm and a desire to excel should be carefully fostered. This the county fair does as no other institution does or can.

We should bend every energy to getting together this fall, the most complete exhibit of the products of the country that it is possible to assemble. We will need the stimulus of the inspiration in the years to come. The need for record production will not end with this season. Unless all signs fail, the productive agencies of this country have a strenuous time before them for many years to come.

Let us center every energy on the main issue—preparedness—and PUSH it to a SUCCESSFUL conclusion.

HARRY MCCREARY RETIRES

It must be some satisfaction to Editor Harry McCreary to retire from active service after editing the Gainesville Sun for some thirty-five years or more. And especially as in that period of years he has buried so many opposition papers, has passed through so many tilts of various kinds and has made good with a big G and now retires from the game with a comfortable bank account and no cause to worry, for aside from making money annually he evidently received a good price for the property and can keep the wolf from the door for some time to come. And yet there is a pathos, a forlorn feeling, a sadness that is inexplicable about a newspaper man retiring. Most of us wear out instead of rusting out and we hope to see Harry McCreary engage in active business of some kind that will keep him up to the standard. All of us would like to have a little vacation—all of us want a change—all of us want to sell for the joy of being free for a short time and free to ease the public as we would take great pleasure in doing if we dared run amuck on the libel laws, but how many newspaper men would like to think that their life work had ceased, that they would never write another line, that they would drop out of sight and mind forever after they retired from the editorial tripod. And so we say to our old friend, Take a rest, you need one and it is well earned, but don't fall out of sight completely and while you are resting take a trip over the state and visit all of the brethren. It will do you good and we would like to see you.

TRAINED SOLDIERS FOR OUR COUNTRY

One of the most vexatious problems confronting fathers and mothers of healthy sons is the boy problem. That problem begins when the boy is big enough to move around, associate with other boys and pick up information. But when the boy is eighteen, and on the threshold of manhood, the problem becomes serious and often alarming.

The father is usually too busy making the family living to give his boy the companionship he needs. And at that age of boyhood there is little a mother can do.

With obligatory universal military service—a big democratic army, which is a great national college as well—the government can step in and help solve this problem.

Most boys choose their careers by chance. Their entire future often is determined by the first job they get. Not many can go to college. Too many have to grab the first available job when they leave the ward school, to help the family make both ends meet.

If the army were made a great national college, where boys could be prepared for a trade, a profession or a business career while getting military training, most parents would be anxious for their boys to get a chance at that training.

They would know the best scientific knowledge would be applied to the physical health of their boys, and that the government was paying for an education parents couldn't afford.

They would know their boys would be subject to a wholesome discipline few parents are capable of directing or enforcing.

They would know the physical, mental and moral health of their boys was receiving careful expert attention.

And if these soldier pupils were paid by the government three dollars a day, parents would know the boys were sure of a fair start when their services ended.

And the government could well afford this. It would know that universal training means this country will always be prepared for any national emergency—prepared with a trained citizen soldiery fit to defend our country from any danger.

The government would know our military strength would be as great as our economic strength, and that we could enjoy peace because we would be so strong and so well prepared that no other nation or combination of nations would dare attack us.

Our great and powerful navy, backed up by a national democratic army always fit to fight would be good assurance against war. And that is insurance that those who would have to do the paying could well afford to pay for.

This nation cannot escape the responsibility that goes with its vast resources and wealth. It can prepare to meet the dangers that will always threaten. It must be strong military nation. But we must be strong in a democratic American strength.

Make military service universal and obligatory. Make the army a great national college. Pay pupil soldiers three dollars a day during their term of service. Keep America safe for democracy.—Tampa Tribune.

CHANGE TO ENLIST

Two Very Good Branches of the Service Again Open for Enlistment

Two thousand men are wanted immediately for the Quartermaster Corps of the National Army. This is the first time this branch of the service has been open for enlistment in several months, and those desiring service of this nature should apply at once, as this opportunity will be open for a short time only. Clerks, cooks, buglers, mechanics, etc., are urgently urged to enlist in this corps.

The field artillery is again open for enlistment for 40 men from the state of Florida. This is a very good branch of the service and promotion is fast. Those desiring this branch of service should enlist immediately owing to the small number to be accepted.

Registration is no bar to enlistment. Any man who has not been notified to appear for physical examination by the examining board, may volunteer.

Apply to the nearest recruiting station for enlistment.

Third Quarterly Conference
Will be held at the Methodist church of this city next Sunday and Monday. The Rev. Dr. J. D. Sibert, the presiding elder will preach both morning and evening Sunday. This will be a specially interesting occasion. Those who have heard Dr.

Sibert will be pleased to know he is here and preaches next Sunday. The business session will be held on Monday, the hour to be announced on Sunday. All are invited to hear Dr. Sibert.

Eleven thousand acres of land about Hastings is now planted in corn and sweet potatoes, and 4,000 acres more will be added by December, according to Mayor H. S. Bowden, of that $5,000,000 potato town. St. Johns county will do her part in feeding the people during the war, he declared. Every farmer is busy clearing land for the next great Irish potato crop.

Help the Home Guards by attending the humorous lecture of Rube Allyn, Baptist Temple Wednesday night this week.

Word comes from Tracey McCuller that he has joined the army in Texas and will be in the quartermaster's department. Tracey will know how to feed the Sammys all right.

No. 666 will cure Malaria or Bilious Fever. It kills the germs. 86-35t

United States soil is no place for traitors who would betray the country to the men who expect to levy a war debt upon Uncle Samuel.

Tomorrow night! The event of the season! Rube Allyn the Great. At the Baptist Temple. Benefit Home Guards.

Rub-My-Tiam—Antiseptic. Antidote—Kills pain, stops putrefaction. 86-35t

The Sanford contingent of Co. C of the Orlando troops were here last Saturday on a visit and their many friends were glad to see them looking so well. They have not received their uniforms yet but they look like soldiers.

Come out to the Baptist Temple tomorrow night and hear Rube Allyn.

If you can't be an officer in the army maybe you can be a private in the rear ranks.

Rube Allyn, the premier entertainer and platform lecturer was in the city Friday and will give one of his entertainments in the Baptist Temple Wednesday night.

Woodland Park is open only Saturdays. To let on week days. 92-tf

Mrs. C. O. Codrington, wife of Editor Codrington of the DeLand News and Mrs. Ernest Rowland of DeLand were in the city Saturday enroute to Orlando.

Miss Alma Saint returned Friday from several weeks pleasantly spent in St. Petersburg and Tampa.

Mrs. T. A. Brotherson and sons, Ernest and Tom are spending well earned vacations at Coronado for a few weeks where they will enjoy fishing and bathing.

Reginald Holly is now the night clerk at the Hotel Carnes and will be there until September first at which time he will enter Marion Institute, Marion, Alabama.

Ernest Gormley left Saturday for St. Louis where he will join the regimental band of the Missouri troops and will leave in a few weeks for France. Ernest is a good boy and his many friends here hope he will get back safely after the war is over. He is the nephew of Mrs. W. M. Haynes of this city and a former member of the Sanfordband.

Mrs. M. J. Hoolehan and two sons Vern and Wooding of Jacksonville returned home Friday afternoon after a three weeks visit to Mrs. J. F. Hoolehan and relatives.

M. J. Hoolehan came down for three days while his wife was here. Everybody was glad to see old Mike's face again in Sanford. Mike says "This is where I spent my boyhood days. I do love dear old Sanford. I want to come back some day." He works for the Seaboard shops in Jacksonville.

Mr and Mrs Ralph Chapman and H. T. Russell and family have returned from their automobile trip to Kansas City. They made the entire trip with no mishap and found the exception of the Cumberland mountain between Chattanooga and Nashville. They thoroughly enjoyed the trip in every particular.

News From the Front The following wire was received yesterday from Tampa. A fine 9 pound boy was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Raines and Mrs. O. W. Brady. We are all doing well and do not intend to let the boy go to war on the first call.

LIBRARY CALL BIG RESPONSE MANY BOOKS

that furnish not only entertainment but contain interesting articles about men and affairs as well. For that reason all story magazines like Red Book, Popular and others are not solicited.

For the next box and only books and 1917 periodicals. It is hoped that we can send at least one box every four weeks.

The Library is open every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at 3 p. m. On other days the books can be left at the home of P. M. Elder on Oak avenue.

Let us give of our best. Keep carefully the magazines, so that the boys in camp will feel intuitively our friendliness and the cheer which comes on opening a fresh, discovered periodical a hint of the greater cheer within.

We are all proud of Mr. Josselyn's words. Dr. Hyman's management, seconded heartily by collectors and contributors brought results.

We thank him, Mr. Holly, Mrs. Householder, the Woman's Club and every one who helped in anyway.

The remainder of the magazines collected and not needed by Mr. Josselyn (the all story magazines and the publications for women such as Delinators) will be placed where they will give pleasure. A large donation has been made already to the county home.

Motherhood Assists Itself Alice Joyce, Vitagraph's popular star, plays with Harry T. Morey in "The Courage of Silence," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature which is to be shown at the Lyric Theatre Thursday.

In this dramatic and decidedly different story Miss Joyce has most of her scenes with the two delightful children who are cast in the play. Before work on the production was finished these children, Mildred May and Willie Johnson were her devoted slaves and looked forward eagerly to their work with her.

When she gathered them into her arms in the story it is easily seen that her action is sincere. She talks and plays with them as though she were really enjoying herself. And she was. Perhaps the fact that Miss Joyce is in reality a mother with heart and soul wrapped up in tiny Alice Mary Moore, accounts for her devotion. At any rate her scenes with the kiddies in this film are most attractive and are sure to please her many friends. Lyric Thursday.

PUBLICITY PULLS PROGRESS

"PRODUCING NOT PROMOTING" BOARD OF TRADE RESULTS

(BY THE SECRETARY)

Rube Allyn, impersonator and humorist will be at the Baptist Temple Wednesday evening, 8:30 o'clock, Aug. 15th. This is a program arranged by the Board of Trade for the benefit of the Seminole Home Guards. The admission is 15 and 25 cents. You will get more than an hour's wholesome entertainment and the proceeds go entirely to the Home Guards toward equipment. The hour named is so arranged as not to interfere with the regular prayer meetings of any church.

Regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the court house tonight. Many matters are to come up. You are invited to be present and present any matters of betterment or progressiveness that you have in mind.

Under date of the 11th inst. the Florida Farms and Homes Inc., writes the Board of Trade in regards bonded warehouses throughout the state and refers to the Federal Reserve Banks as affiliating. Their letter and plan will be read at the Board of Trade meeting tonight and the matter opened for discussion.

The Tampa Tribune of the 13th points out the tourist possibility for South Florida the coming season and advances the belief that the coming season will outdo all others for tourists and urges that people interested prepare for their reception.

Dr. W. M. Harper, Osteopath, is a new member of the Board of Trade. Dr. Harper intends making Sanford his permanent home and in so doing declares his desire to help boost Sanford and to assist in the progressive work going on.

The Birmingham Ala. Chamber of Commerce in writing their appreciation of the reciprocal relations existing between theirs and the Sanford Board of Trade adds:

"Be assured that if any of your members are ever in Birmingham they will find the latch string hanging on the outside and a hearty welcome awaiting them at the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce."

Anyone contemplating an auto trip anywhere in the southeastern states and as far north as Michigan can secure guide maps and routes at the Board of Trade office. This service is free to members.

Liberty, N. Y., a village, is so pleased with the results of municipal ownership of her utilities that they are sending out cards showing costs, cooperation and dividends. In 1915 the village was bonded for $95,000 in order to establish municipal ownership. In 1916, more than $48,000 was paid toward liquidating these bonds in addition to running expenses, maintenance, etc. Lake City, Fernandina, St. Petersburg, say it pays and just ask Jacksonville what her dividends were in 1916 from her water, light and gas plants.

The two Sanford ladies ranking as Al extemporaneous speakers are Mrs. Terbeun and Mrs. Ernest Householder. Don't know where or how they get the data but they keep posted and abreast of the conditions and things as they find them.

Miss Minerva Tinker publicity agent for the Oldsmar, Co., near Tampa, called at the Board of Trade office Friday in the interest of her Company. Of course the married men can't move to Oldsmar but ten to one all the bachelors approached will hike off in that direction on the first train.

Additional statement of paid up members will appear in the Board of Trade space in the Herald Friday, the 17th. The membership is increasing daily. The producers and growers are showing their appreciation of the Board of Trade efforts and success in the freight rate case and are re-instating. They realize the value of cooperation.

President Dutton of the Board of Trade left last night for his vacation. He will probably be away for three weeks or a month. Quite a bit of his vacation time will go toward boosting Seminole county and his method of procedure always brings results.

War News Summary Paris, France, Aug. 14.—The Germans attacked last night on the Aisne front in an endeavor to retake the trenches captured by the French Saturday. Today's statement says they were repulsed with heavy losses. The statement follows:

"Between Cerny and Croignes the enemy's artillery developed pronounced activity especially in the sector south of Allies. Germans attacked in vain at the point at which we captured trenches on August 11. They were repulsed with losses and obtained no results.

"In the Champagne east of Rheims in the Champagne case of Rheims, in the region of the Casque and the Teton, and on the left bank of the Meuse there were spirited artillery actions. Two surprise attacks by the enemy at Courieres wood and Bezonvaux were repulsed by our fire. Elsewhere the night was calm.

"Two German airplanes and a captive balloon were brought down yesterday by our pilots. Three other enemy machines were forced to land, having been severely damaged."

London, England, Aug. 13.—Two of the German machines which yesterday evening raided the English southeast coast watering places were destroyed by British naval airplanes. The official statement issued by the government today says that one of the machines was a Gotha triplane and the other was a seaplane.

London, England, Aug. 13.—There is nothing special to report on the Franco-Belgian front, says today's official communication.

London, England, Aug. 13.—In reply to a question in the house of commons today Foreign Secretary Balfour said Greece was now formally at war with the central powers.

In a statement at the time of the reassembling of the Greek parliament last month Premier Venizelos said Greece was in the war with the entente. No formal declaration to this effect was considered necessary. The Venizelos government having been established at Salonika before the deposition of King Constantine, having declared war and placed troops in the field.

Amsterdam, Holland, Aug. 13.—According to the Taegische Rundschau of Berlin, the booty captured by the Germans up to July 26, includes 12,156 cannon, 11,655 rifles, 3,352 machine guns, 2,298 airplanes, 186 balloons and three airships.

Goes to France Walter A. Radford, son of Mrs. G. A. Radford will leave about August 29 for France. Mr. Radford has been in training at Ft. Meade for the past three months. Mrs. Radford is looking forward to next week when Mr. Radford will spend a few days with his people before leaving for the front.

Baptist Church—Wednesday Night The pastor of the Baptist church will speak on next Wednesday evening at 7:30 on the subject, "The Judgments which come to Man." This lecture will take place in the assembly room on the first floor on account of the Home Guard entertainment at 8:30 on the second floor.

B. Y. P. U. Meets The Flake B. Y. P. U. met in the Baptist Temple Sunday evening at 6:30, in the regular Sunday session. All present enjoyed a splendid program rendered by Group 1, of which Mr. A. A. Wainwright is Captain.

After the service those present at both unions assembled in the auditorium and enjoyed a short song and prayer service, after which the pastor, Rev. Geo. Hyman gave a short talk from a verse of Scripture quoted by one present. "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, 'I have no pleasure in them.'"

It was a delightful service in view of the fact that the room was in darkness during the entire time.

All are welcome to attend our union and help us in the study of His word, also to view the new tableaux each Sunday evening from now on.

Called for Train Capt. George G. Herring has been called to take his place in the Officers' Reserve Corps in training at Ft. Oglethorpe and will report for duty on August 27th. Ralph Wight is an alternate and will probably be called some time during the month also.

Capt. Herring has been the capable instructor of the Home Guards here and he will be missed not only by the guards but by his legion of friends, but his country calls and being a military man he cannot resist. That Capt. Herring will be accepted goes without saying for he is one of the best qualified men in this part of the south, having had years of military experience and his recent work with the Home Guards has kept him active in the new regulations.

Ralph Wight is also a man of military experience and is the bugler of the Home Guards and a well drilled man. He will undoubtedly be called and although he can claim exemption from draft feels that he should go to the front.

The best wishes of their many friends will go with these men.

Rube Allyn Wednesday Night

Rube Allyn has been secured by the Sanford Board of Trade to deliver one of his humorous sketches at the Baptist Temple Wednesday night at 8:30 for the benefit of the Home Guards and at the small price of twenty five cents everyone should go to the Temple and hear this great entertainer. Everyone has heard of Rube Allyn but this is his first appearance here and he comes to assist the Home Guards. The money is for a good purpose and a big house should greet Rube Wednesday night.

In the Habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Perkins brought by one Darling who was arrested and fined for loitering in Lake Concord, Judge Perkins today decided the ordinance invalid and the prisoners released. The city will probably appeal.—Orlando Reporter-Star.

Thirty-seven head of cattle have just been brought into Broward county. These are some of the cattle bought for the farmers by aid from the bankers. A number of hogs bought the same way will arrive soon. This importation of livestock into the county comes as a response to the activity fathored by the county agent.

A former Philadelphia society woman has begun farming in the Florida Everglades. The past season she shipped 100 carloads of Irish potatoes, she has 1,200 acres planted to corn, and is now planning to put the remainder of her 2,000 acres into other crops.

There are six silos going up in Marion county, and six dipping vats either being built or contracted for. The farmers in Marion county expect to save a lot of corn as silage. One farm is putting up 800 tons of silage this year.

Nails and Teeth Not Poisonous. Nails and teeth of animals are not in themselves poisonous. A scratch or bite from a dog or cat may prove poisonous, but only because some impurity or germ has been deposited in the ugly wound that results. When a serpent bites it discharges a special poison, which is secreted from glands.

Early Use of Lead. In Job 19:24 is an allusion to the use of lead to fill carved inscriptions upon stone by pouring the molten lead into the cavities of the letters to render them legible and at the same time to preserve them from the action of the weather.

Lights Frighten Fish Away. Norwegian experiments with fishing with the aid of electric lights lowered into the sea have been failures, the illumination apparently frightening the fish away.

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH, "HELL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

The Successful Man
If you think you are beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't.
If you like to win but think you can't,
It's almost a cinch you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost,
For out of the world we find Success begins with a fellow's will—
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you are outclassed, you are;
You've got to think high to rise,
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.

Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the one who thinks he can.
—Exchange.

We have but recently witnessed an event in this country the like of which the world has never before seen—at least, the world of our knowledge. We have witnessed the entrance into the ranks of a nation's fighting men, of ten million soldiers, waiting for the call to the colors. We see today an army of nearly two million men actually under arms, equipped and assembled, ready to do or die in their country's service.

It is an amazing sight, America, the peaceful; America, the cradle of toleration, the nursery of justice and right—America in arms and springing to the fray!

And the strange feature of the case is, it has astonished even Americans themselves. We have been so long accustomed to hearing ourselves referred to as a sleeping giant that we had come to so regard ourselves. We had thought that the affairs of the outside world concerned us not, and that we were sufficient unto ourselves.

But today sees the giant awake. A little groggy, it is true, but rapidly assimilating the power and might that will sweep everything before him when once he gets his stride. It also sees him shorn of his provincialism and taking his rightful place in the world—a man of power and might among men of power and might.

And being awake, we find confronting us one of the most stupendous tasks that ever confronted a people. We find ourselves the probable deciding factor in a world war, the balance of power that shall make this earth a safe place of abode for all men—a world in which RIGHT and not MIGHT shall reign.

And with this great task before us, we are going about our preparations as beings a people who have not only confidence in their own powers, but a full appreciation of the magnitude of the task as well. While we have not proclaimed it broadcast, yet deep within the hearts of our people there is a firm determination that the sword shall not be sheathed until the cause of humanity has triumphed over the forces of oppression and tyranny. There is but one sentiment heard from the lips of all people: "WE MUST WIN."

Therein lies the meaning of the quiet, deep, but deadly purpose of our people. We must win for humanity's sake. And when were our people ever called upon to perform a task for humanity that they failed? Our millions who have answered the call have come cheerfully. They have stepped forward with the fullest appreciation of the work before them, but also with supreme confidence in their ability to perform that task. This is the spirit that conquers, and it will conquer in this instance.

Soldiers of America, never in history could it be more truly said that "the eyes of the world are upon you."

I wish the girls who are out in autos at night would not stand in front of the lights when my chauffeur is driving by. He is liable to ditch the car at any time.

It is easy for people with no children to stand around and talk about stout hearts and dry the tears and all that stuff but when you have a child that is going to the war it means something and don't you forget it. The parents know what it means and the person that talks about taking it easy and don't worry and all that stuff has no children of his own to go to the front. The real horror of war is coming home to us and we are going to cry just as much as we darn please about the boys going, whether it is patriotic or not.

There is just a little tang of politics in the air. Maybe it is a touch of early fall and maybe it is a touch of the politician but anyhow I have been touched already and will tell about it later on.

And by the way politics will soon bring out the ticket for the city offices and from the aldermen now to be elected there is a strong probability of having three of the city commissioners that will be elected after the next legislature meets for this city will have the commission form ere long.

And then after the commission form of government will come the plan for municipal ownership of public utilities and many other good things that go with the new plan of operating the city on business lines. The laborer is worthy of his hire and there is no real plan for city government except to pay three men real money for managing the city as a business.

The man who moulds public opinion will have to be a man who has done enough moulding to make a showing for himself. In other words the man who tells you how to run the government should be a man who represents something in the community.

Sometimes when you hear certain people talk about what they would do in this and that case you wonder how Sanford ever amounted to so much while they were away.

When I go through the magnificent fields of corn and other staple crops over Seminole county I feel a great sense of gratitude to the men who made the campaign for preparedness and urged the people to plant these crops. The corn crop of Seminole county is one of the bumper crops in the state and has given this country more favorable criticism than any similar crop that has ever been grown.

Did you ever stop to think how few men in this city are actually engaged in doing something for their fellowmen? The great majority are engaged day and night in making money for themselves and never have been known to do a kindly act or turn their little finger for anyone. And yet they imagine they are good citizens.

News to Her.
"What was the farmer talking about?" asked the first city girl.
"A whiffetree," said the other.
"Well, I've studied botany, but I never heard of a whiffetree. Sounds like his idea of a joke."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Flat Foot.
A treatment suitable, with but slight modification, for all cases of static foot trouble (flat foot), from the early cases which are often described as "weak ankles" to the most severe cases, where there is old standing structural change, is described by Dr. P. B. Rath in the Lancet. The treatment consists of attention to footwear, attention to position in standing and walking and regular daily exercises. Whether boots or shoes are worn, whether they button or lace, they must be the shape of the feet. The inner side of the boot where the big toe lies is kept straight, so that the end of the boot is opposite the big toe and not opposite the second or third toe. This is to insure that the big toe is not pushed out against the other toes and has plenty of room in which to act. The soles should be a sixth to a fourth of an inch thick, the heels broad, an inch or less in height.

MYRIADS OF DEADLY 3'S TO BLAST ROAD TO THE RHINE OVER GERMAN TRENCHES

Uncle Sam Will Use Fieldpieces in France Similar to French 75, British 3.3 and the "Field Fritz" Maximum Range Seven Miles. High Explosives Main Ammunition—Shrapnel and Gas Will Also Be Employed

Men and women of America, meet the Yankee "three!"

He is blood brother to the French "seventy-five," a near relative of the British 3.3 and a twin of the German "three."

Sounds like higher mathematics or "Alice in Wonderland" or mere nonsense, doesn't it? Well, it's nothing of the kind. It is a force that is to blast the way to victory if the expectations of the war department are to be realized, writes a Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press.

The Yankee "three" is the standardized field gun of the United States artillery. It is being turned out in thousand lots for the biggest artillery drive that the world has known.

I must walk warily and speak guardedly in telling how the Yankee "three" and the things that go with it figure in the new artillery plans of the war department. There is so much that is dramatic that there is a temptation to overstep the bounds of prudence. A reporter has been urged to tell any one of a dozen things which are big news, but which cannot be told without giving information to the enemy.

I have therefore carefully and conscientiously deleted everything that should remain untold, and I find enough remains of news that is interesting, exclusive and timely to warrant this article.

First I will tell the story of the Yankee "three." It is a beautiful and a terrible weapon, racy in its slim lines, even more effective than the French "seventy-five" in the efficiency of its execution.

It was born in 1904 and was conceived wholly in the United States. The bureau of ordnance of the war department after labored studies devised the essential mechanism, the spring devices that take up the recoil and keep the gun constantly "on the target."

"75" German Discard.

The French "seventy-five," as almost every one knows, is a German discard. The French ordnance bureau took it and after long study perfected it. The French have turned out enormous quantities of the "seventy-five" and have made it their most effective war arm. The caliber of the "seventy-five" is 2.95 inches. The Yankee "three" is three inches exactly. The British standard field gun is 3.3. The "field Fritz," as the German gun has been styled, is like the Yankee gun, three inches exactly.

While our allies look to us to furnish food by the shipload for their peoples and their armies, airplanes by the thousand and other aids in the great war, the greatest of all their demands is for artillery and for the munitions that go with it.

Artillery in its broadest sense means the Yankee "three" and the three kinds of shell that are its food. These are the high explosive, the shrapnel, and the gas shell. Of these three preference is being given to the high explosive shell.

American productive genius is being called upon to send as many of the "threes" to the battle line as the output of all the Teutonic allies combined. This huge output is already within sight, and it will soon be exceeded. When the time for the great spring drive to the Rhine has arrived, say the middle of next March, the United States will have enough "threes" at the front to smother any artillery resistance that the Germans may oppose and to wipe out any system of trenches that may stand in their path.

Output Is Enormous.

I am not permitted even to estimate that enormous output. It is sufficient to know it will be the greatest gun production record that has ever been made.

As I have said, the high explosive shell will be the one produced in the greatest number and used most extensively on the battle front. The reason for this is that most of the shellings will be directed against the trenches. Kitchener made his monumental mistake in heaping up shrapnel shells before the fiasco at Neuve Chapelle. He reasoned that as shrapnel had won for him in Egypt it would prove equally effective against the Germans.

Shrapnel, as every soldier knows, bursts in the air by the operation of a time fuse and is effective against troops moving over open ground. As K. was to learn, it is of little effect against entrenched troops.

When the barrage of shrapnel burst above the German trenches the steel helmets of the German soldiers protected their heads against the falling bullets. The charging lines of British soldiers expected to find heaps of dead in these trenches. Instead there came murderous fire from rifle and machine guns and such a play of bayonets as wrought havoc among the British. To add to the slaughter there were grievous mistakes in the thickness of some of the shell cases and in timing devices of others, with the result that the shrapnel burst prematurely among the ranks of the charging Britons.

French and British artilleryists immediately pointed out Kitchener's misjudgment. They showed that high explosive shells which burst upon contact were the shells that should have been used upon the trenches. That plan was fixed thereafter in the British army as it had been from the beginning in the German and French armies. It was a bad mistake and one that will not be repeated by American artillery. That is the reason why our proportion of shell output will be at least five high explosives to one shrapnel. There will be literally millions of these high explosives in our output. Ammunition dumps back of the American lines will be small mountains, and in these mountains will be lasting power sufficient, if well directed, to wipe out every foot of trench along the great Hindenburg line.

The gas shell is something that has not been revealed in all its details and will not be until after the war. It is to be one of the big surprises of war for "Friend Fritz." Both the quantity of production and the constituents of the gas are to remain a secret.

I asked Colonel Edward P. O'Hern, who is in charge of ordnance production, what will be the principal use of the gas shell. By way of answer he told me what the Germans have been doing with it for more than a year and what the British and French are doing with it now. It is like a certain patent medicine. It works while you sleep. The technique is to shell the trench with the gas shell at a time when most of the men are sleeping the sleep of the "dog tired" of the trench weary. The burning projectile then releases its deadly content, and death comes in a sudden choking smother that is more frightful, more painful than any drowning could be.

All three of these shells will be used in the Yankee "three." The ordinary range is to be five miles, but by elevation the effective range can be raised to seven miles.

Safety First in France.

The theoretical limit of the Yankee "three" is 20,000 rounds. Then the gun must be refilled because of the erosion that has taken place in the gun chamber. As a matter of fact and as a safety protection the gun to be used on the French front will be refilled after 10,000 rounds have been fired. Premature explosions of shells in the gun, and other causes of damage make necessary the 10,000 round limit as the line of safety.

Like the French, German and British field guns, the Yankee "three" will take up the recoil without disturbing the sighting of the gun. It will fire twenty shots each minute. The allowance is one second for the discharge, two seconds for the recoil, escape of gases and the reload, a total of three seconds for the entire operation.

Those who work the gun will never see what they try to hit. A battery commander who will be perhaps two or three miles away and in a position to observe the hits will direct over the telephone the working of the gun. Before him he will have a plotting board upon which will be a circle divided into 3,000 degrees. Each gun will have on a quadrant of the same plot. A range finder, usually one of the battery, will help in the working of the gun. The battery commander, knowing the location of the gun, will direct both the distance to which the shell will be hurled and the direction of the shot. For instance, he will order the telephone "927 degrees, 3,800 yards."

The gun crew will place the gun over the 927 mark, and will elevate it to the point which will enable it to shoot the required distance. The man in the saddle of the gun will immediately find a permanent mark, a tree in the rear or at the side, or any other permanent object will suffice. He will get that object in the center of his telescopic mirror and will use that to aim by.

Then the battery commander will commence to bracket—that is, he will direct the first shell to be fired over the target and the second shell short of it. He will gradually decrease this distance until the shells are falling directly into the trench. That gun then being upon the target will serve as a marker for other guns along the line.

OFFERS $1,000 REWARD.

American of German Parents Wants Bombs Dropped on Berlin.

To the first American aviator to drop bombs over Berlin Sigmund Saxe, president of a chemical company of New York, will give a $1,000 liberty bond.

Although his mother was born in Germany and his father, who was born in Poland, was of German extraction, Mr. Saxe made this offer. He also has many close relatives living under the Kaiser's rule. He is a native of this country.

"Remembrance of the Americans lost on the Italian front prompts me to make this offer," wrote Mr. Saxe. He told a reporter he regarded the sinking as an outrage against civilization which should be avenged.

"I believe in reprisals to let the Prussian people have a taste of their own wicked methods," he said. "It is the only way to bring home to them the horror of their acts. The raids on London were barbarities. The only way to stop them is to fight Germany with her own weapons."

Origin of the Matinee.
Whether or not we have to look back to the fifties for the first matinee, there is at least little doubt that the invention has not attained any general popularity when the seventies were reached. I am reminded that the Bancrofts, who were responsible for many innovations that have since become the vogue, did not institute afternoon performances until 1870, after they had been in management eleven years. The Bancrofts, if not the inventors of the matinee, were certainly the first to pay full salaries to those who took part in them.

Not until 1878 did the matinee become a fixed and regular feature of even the Bancroft management. It was a byproduct of "Diplomacy," the success of which made any means of providing additional performances acceptable. Sir Equire Bancroft has put it on record that at the beginning the matinee was a much more costly affair than it is now, as frequent and separate advertisements and announcements were necessary to make it known.—Westminster Gazette.

Not Supernatural at All.
There used to be a belief that rats never went on a ship that was destined to founder at sea. This has a fine supernatural ring; but, as a matter of fact, has a good deal of truth at the bottom. Unseasoned vessels in the older days were likely to be leaky and contain much bilge-water. The rats would naturally abandon such damp quarters for a drier berth.

Spirit Photography.
A famous French psychologist is quoted as saying that not only does the soul exist after death, but it can be photographed and he has written a book to prove it. He presents in his volume conversations with departed spirits and also their pictures, but if he thinks he is an original discoverer he has much to learn. "Spirit photography" is an old art—or should it be said, trick?—so old that it seems to have gone out of fashion in this part of the world. It may be added that the photographs seldom made the "spirits" beautiful.

Items of Interest for the Man Behind the Plow

Get the Hogs in Condition
Unless hogs are in good physical condition they will not respond readily to heavier feeding, and consequently they will not make the daily gains in keeping with the amount of feed used. It is very essential that hogs be put into that good condition before the heavier feeding begins, says J. M. Frost of the University of Florida experiment station.

The two classes of pests most likely to be found on unthrifty hogs are worms and lice. The lice can be killed by dipping the hogs and the worms may be eradicated by a system of treatment in keeping with the kind of worms to be dealt with. Lung and kidney worms may be rendered less troublesome if the pastures and feeding pens are rotated and the sleeping quarters are thoroughly disinfected. Smoking the hogs, causing them to cough violently may give some relief from lung worms.

If the herd is affected by stomach and intestinal worms a good vermifuge or turpentine will remove them, and the same sanitary measures as recommended above should be used.

Whatever is the cause of an unthrifty condition in the herd remove it whether you are going to put the hogs on heavier feed to get them ready for the market or not. A hog is just a hog, but he responds to good treatment the same as any other animal.

Don't Hog Your Corn
"Hogging" corn is an easy and simple way to feed it. While this method of harvesting a corn crop is growing in favor of some of the northern states, the University of Florida extension division is not advising it for Florida corn. Corn matures in Florida at a time when many other cheaper feeds are available.

If you have been following the recommendations made by the extension division in bulletin No. 7 you now have beggarweed and cowpeas available for pasture crops, have planted sweet potatoes and are getting ready to plant Essex rape. The sorghum and cowpeas planted in July will be ready for feeding in September and October. Your peanuts, chufas, and cassava, planted in April and May will furnish hog pasture for the last three months of the year. The rape and barley will be ready for feeding in December, and if planted in sufficient quantity will carry your hogs well into April. Corn is selling too high on the market just now to make it a profitable hog feed, and hogging it down is not to be recommended.

Are Castor Beans Poisonous?
Inquiries have been received at the University of Florida experiment station relative to the poisonous nature of the castor bean. Most of these can be answered by a reference to W. A. Henry's "Feeds and Feeding," which says:

The castor bean and the pomace remaining after the oil has been extracted contain a deadly poison. Castor beans or pomace accidentally getting into feeding stuffs sometimes cause mysterious deaths. Car-niven reports that exposing castor oil cake to the air for five or six days or cooking the seeds or cake for two hours destroys the poison."

Castor bean pomace is a by-product of castor oil factories. Its chief use is for fertilizing purposes. It is generally less rich in plant food constituents than cottonseed meal, containing about 5.5 per cent of nitrogen, 2 per cent of phosphoric acid and 1 per cent of potash.

Fresh Meat for Poultry
One of the many advantages of the colony house system of poultry raising is that the birds have ample opportunity to find animal food, such as bugs, worms, grasshoppers, etc. This is a very necessary part of the diet if you are raising poultry for the eggs they will produce, says the University of Florida extension division. If you have movable houses for the flock place them near fields likely to harbor destructive insects; this will protect the crop and at the same time provide the necessary animal food.

If your flock is penned up, do not neglect the meat constituent of the ration. Beef scrap or meat meal is sold as a by-product from packing houses. But another source of meat supply may have been overlooked in your town; the local butcher. If you have a flock of considerable size it will pay you to get a good bone cutter and buy the meat scraps and green bones from your butcher, cut them up and feed them to your birds.

Fresh green meat is undoubtedly the best kind of animal food. Lean meat furnishes the protein so necessary in the egg laying ration and without which the fowls will not maintain their customary health and vigor. Another source of fresh meat is from rabbits, the killing of which will reduce the number of crop destroyers.

Are Your Cowpeas Troubled?
Are your cowpeas showing signs of insect raids? If they are you are likely to find the pod-weevil or the pumpkin bug, or both, attacking them. Little can be done now in the way of poisoning them, says J. R. Watson of the University of Florida experiment station, you will have to go through the field and

The idea once held that a man must have something different in his herd or else he would have to compete with his neighbor when it came to selling, is apparently all wrong. The more good animals of one kind in a community, the more buyers, and consequently, better prices.

Do Your Hogs Pay?
If you are keeping books on your herd of swine you may be surprised at the result; that is, if you have not been careful in selecting your breeding stock. The University of Florida extension division has been advocating the use of breeders from large litters, and unless this practice has been followed you will find that the sows are not as profitable as you had anticipated.

pick the insects off the plants by hand. This is not so slow a process as it may seem at first, says Mr. Watson, for an active boy can collect most of the bugs from an acre in a comparatively short time. Take a pan, or some other wide mouthed vessel, and pour into it an inch of water and onto this a film of kerosene. In the early morning or on a cool, rainy day when the bugs are sluggish, walk along the rows and knock the bugs into the pan. This is a sure way of killing both the pumpkin bugs and the pod weevils.

Cooperative Livestock Breeding
One of the best ways to increase the value of a good animal is to have more like him. Few buyers will go a considerable distance to see one horse or one cow; if there are several of that kind in the neighborhood the buyer will be attracted there. Most buyers figure on making a shipment and shipping one animal is not always economical. The University of Florida experiment station recommends community breeding, meaning thereby that all livestock in the community be of the same breed and type. Choose the breed or type that has been successful in the community, and then advertise your holdings as fast as you develop a surplus.

Leaves on Tall Trees.
Trees that grow the highest have the most pointed leaves.

Origin of Garden Carrot.
Wild carrot, or Queen Anne's lace (Daucus carota) is thought to be the plant from which the cultivated garden carrot originated. The garden carrot, if allowed to grow unmolested for several years, gradually loses the highly developed crown-tuber for which it is valued as a vegetable, and becomes indistinguishable from the ordinary wild carrot.

A Youthful Philosopher

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Will I have decided to break our engagement?"
"What have I done to?"
"You have done nothing. My decision arises simply from worldly wisdom. You have no income except what you earn in the way of salary. In case you lose that we will be beggars."
"How do you know that this is worldly wisdom? How do you know but that my marriage with the girl I love will prove a stimulus which will lead to fortune?"
"I don't, but I know that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."
"Who is the bird in the hand?"
"No one. I am simply breaking with you on account of lack of provision for marriage, not that I have a more advantageous offer."
"You will not lack for offers."
"Nevertheless my heart is yours."
"Well, Lucy, I commend this worldly wisdom of yours, though it comes

"They say that of three men who go to the war only one returns."
"That may be, but it is my duty to go."
"Why is it your duty to go to the war?"
"Because I am an able-bodied young man. It is the duty of all such to respond to their country's call."
There was a silence between them for some minutes, at the end of which she said:
"By this act you have widened the breach between us."
"I did not suppose there was a breach between us. I thought that you did not wish to incur the responsibilities of matrimony without a permanent income."
"Yes, and now you are going where there are two chances in three of your being killed."
"In the one case it is a matter of choice, in the other a case of duty."
"When do you go abroad?" she asked mournfully.
"Tomorrow afternoon about 4 o'clock, I suppose. But you must not say anything to any one about our sailing. Nobody in America is to know it."

"There is no obligation, there is no duty."
"I care nothing about my duty. You and I are one, and even the war itself cannot separate us."
He caught her in his arms and when he released her called in a stentorian voice:
"Orderly, go find the regimental chaplain and ask him to come here at once."
The chaplain came, and the two who had already been one in heart were made one in law. A few hours later when the regiment marched to the ship that was to bear it to France, attended by mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts, these two, a bride and groom, walked hand in hand.
"What an inglorious ending of your eighteen-year-old philosophy!" remarked the groom. "Nevertheless it was true wisdom."
"It was true nonsense," replied the bride.

UNCERTAINTY IS BASEBALL LURE

Full of Thrills For Both Players and Fans. SURPRISES ARE NUMEROUS

Standings Show That There Have Been Many Upsets in Present Season. Timely Hit, Unusually Error and Ninth Inning Rally Put Spice and Variety into the Game.

Baseball is popular for a good many reasons. It is a sport without a peer, for one thing, and it stands in a class by itself, because no other sport, with the possible exception of the English game of cricket, is anything like it. It is a sport for both players and fans. It is full of thrills and, above all, is wholly un-bored.

Just one of the very biggest factors which contribute to the popularity of baseball is the uncertainty of the game. Every game of ball that is played bristles with uncertainties. Every season brings forth surprises, because players and teams so often do the unexpected thing. The fan can never be dead sure of anything in baseball, and the same applies to the player, the manager or the team.

The timely hit, the untimely error, the unexpected mental lapse of a player, the ninth inning rally and a hundred and one other things which happen on the diamond mark the uncertainty of baseball and put spice and variety into the game.

The present season has been a season of many thrills and many upsets to date. And if one stops to consider the original source of unusual interest in baseball this year—a year of war—it can all be traced to the freakish, uncertain nature of the King of pastimes.

Take a snapshot of the standings of the clubs in the two big leagues, and you will find the pennant races somewhat jumbled up when compared to the "advance-dope" you had when the season opened. The Giants, true to predictions, are proving a big factor in the National league this year.

Look at the heroes of 1914, the Boston Braves. Last season, they figured strongly in the race for the pennant, and they were touted as the real stumbling block in the path of the Giants, but the Braves are away down there wallowing around in the second division. The champion Dodgers were counted on for a better showing than they have made, and the Cubs and Cardinals have provided big surprises by giving the foremost pennant contenders a tough argument. A second glance at the Braves recalls the fact that they have produced two big surprises in three years.

In the American league the two Sox teams are living up to preseason predictions. But the rest of the entrants have succeeded in knocking the props from under the dope pot that was put on to hold as the curtain went up.

The unexpected showing of both seasoned and rookie pitchers, the batting feats of unheralded sluggers and the dismal work of others who were expected to shine all go to show just how little the baseball fan can depend on the grand old dope as it is hashed up on paper.

Yeh, Steve, the old game is popular for a good many reasons, but no one predicted just what would happen this year, and no one will ever be able to do so.

Curiosity of Language.
The Greek word for iron, sideros, is the same as Latin for star, now called sun. But how did this happen? The good Greeks centuries B. C. had no spectroscopes and were not aware that iron exists in a billion suns. This curiosity of language was noticed by linguists once spectroscopists proved that iron is seen in every direction in the sidereal (iron) universe.
