WIN AT BRIDGE

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
transfers to two spades and rebids two notrump. He might well have dropped the bidding at two spades, but his 10 of trumps caused him to go ahead.

What causes boils? I'm all mixed up because people are telling me so many things. I don't know who to believe. I'm 17 years old and don't want to spread the rest of my life like this.

When you transfer with a bad hand you follow up the transfer with a pass. When you transfer and want to bid game, just bid it.

When you transfer with a partner a choice between game in suit, or in notrump while not actually forcing to game your rebid is two notrump.

Long, Confusing Race Has Begun

Some of the current crop of presidential aspirants have been barnstorming for more than two years, but it generally is agreed among political observers that the presidential election year begins in earnest largely in the holiday season over. One of the many bellwethers is the timing of the Federal Election Commission that as of Jan. 1 all of President Ford's appearances at political functions will be counted as efforts in his own behalf.

Nobody expects the 1976 campaign to be a bed of roses. Political ecologists like John Gardner of Common Cause already are warning candidates gratuitously to avoid demagoguery. And as far away as England The Guardian gloomily declared recently that the United States of America is embarking on a "prolonged, bitter election campaign" in which "the portents have never been so ominous nor the outcome so potentially dismaying."

Editors of The Guardian assert that the economic troubles are forcing us into "politics of disillusion" and that this, in turn has "already blown the steam out of American foreign policy and, before long, may mire (our) financial recovery."

The imponderables of 1976 have been recounted three and again. The field of candidates is crowded, reflecting largely the economic troubles and that this, in turn has "already blown the steam out of American foreign policy and, before long, may mire (our) financial recovery."

Despite the turbulence, however, we believe that the worriers and doomsayers are overstating the case. While it is true that the American political process is in one of its transitional stages for any number of reasons, it also is a fact that there is no substantial radical element in favor among American citizens. The signs that Americans instead favor the middle of the road are abundant and, in the long run, will not be lost among the candidates.

Nevertheless, like many other Americans, we yearn for a way to move faster toward Nov. 3 when the election is over, a mandate is established and at long last the nation can set a course.

System Outdated?

The Civil Service system, long synonymous with good government, has fallen under attack as too rigid, too cumbersome to be compatible with modern management methods.

Diehard supporters of the so-called merit system like to point out that career members of the bureaucracy resisted efforts during the Watergate period to subvert the federal machinery for political ends. It must be conceded, however, that the bureaucracy has been equally resistant to progress toward more worthy goals.

The sternest critics of civil service, mostly at the state and local level, contend that systems are hopelessly archaic and inflexible, hamstringing elected officials in implementation of policies they were elected to carry out. Chicago, Minnesota and Oregon have scrapped Civil Service boards and switched hiring, firing and promotion functions back to elected leaders.

But there must be a better way of restoring efficiency to government than drifting back to patronage and the tyranny of machine politics.

A less narrow approach to personnel policies by Civil Service boards would allow better utilization of talent and provide a means of trimming deadwood from the bureaucracy.

And it would preserve the essential safeguards against political manipulation of public jobholders.

BERRY'S WORLD

Late FBI Chief Manipulated Everything

WASHINGTON—We have been digging into the secrets of the late J. Edgar Hoover, whose abuses of power made him the most formidable and feared bureaucrat in the history of the republic.

Only a complete exposure of his abuses can prevent them from happening again. He built his enormous power by manipulating the press and maligning his critics. Thanks to carefully publicized human strengths and carefully hidden human failings, he appeared as a man of action fighting the forces of evil.

More than 40 years of planted press notices transformed his bulldog visage into a national symbol. His staccato speech and stern mannerism completed the image.

Writers who dared to criticize Hoover wound up on his hate list, which was far more deadly than the FBI's most-wanted list.

JOHN CUNNIFF Study Committee Needed

NEW YORK (AP)—Julius Shiskin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is among those who would like a labor commission appointed to review concepts and procedures used in developing official employment statistics.

Nevertheless, Shiskin, who is responsible for gathering and reporting the figures, generally defends present concepts and techniques as sound, if sometimes imperfect. A review is needed, he feels, to satisfy critics.

Doubts about the figures have grown this year. Some of the jobs rate fell the true level and meaning of unemployment is poorly understood, and that the figures are badly understated.

Shiskin, whose ability and integrity are highly regarded even by most critics, concedes there have been problems with the measurements, but he maintains they do the job, and that the official jobs rate — 4.3 per cent in November — is a good measure.

"It has multiple uses," he said. "It's a good economic indicator. It's an excellent measure of economic performance. And it is also a good indicator of economic and psychological hardship."

The procedures used by Shiskin are largely a product of the Committee to Appraise Employment and Unemployment Statistics, created in 1961 and chaired by the Gordon Committee.

Shiskin has also been a member of the committee since its inception. He has accepted its recommendations. Still, he concedes some serious changes have developed since then, such as an increase of women in the labor force and the extension of jobless benefits, both of which might tend to change procedures and interpretations.

Gordon, an economist at the University of California-Berkeley, believes another committee should be created partly because the distribution of many millions of dollars in revenue sharing depend upon local job statistics, which at best can be trusted only "cautiously."

Alfred Teller's criticisms have been of a different nature. Teller, now a Census Bureau employee, declines to comment from that position, but during his years at Georgetown University he attacked what he felt was subjective questioning and analysis.

Among his many criticisms was that a lot of people would rather say they weren't looking for a job than admit to a questioner that they were ill. He found this to be a self-protective device to eliminate themselves from the labor statistics.

Through his research and that of others he found a curious recurrence: Many of the reasons people give for not being in the labor force have a cyclical nature, developing as alibis and excuses when jobs are hard to get.

But this wasn't enough to placate the irascible FBI chief. He also ordered every index in the FBI checked for derogatory information about Lowenthal. He seized upon a vague tie with a communist-front group, which was spread through FBI field offices to the media.

Association, declared, "The most effective way to help consumers is to encourage them to become well informed and to buy intelligently. The consumer protection agencies should be concentrating on helping buyers to protect themselves against being cheated instead of penalizing legitimate businessmen."

Vaughan further stated, "The real fraud is being perpetrated by governmental agencies that promise so much to the American consumer, but fail to deliver. All these people are doing is confusing the public and snarling all of us in needless red tape."

We don't know what all the red tape is that Mr. Vaughan is talking about, but then we're not in the used car business.

And we still think a blanket of the FTC to give the entire used car business a black eye. After all, there are bad apples in other businesses, too, but that doesn't mean that everyone in that same business is guilty of unfair or fraudulent practices.

Maybe that's what's wrong with this world today — we're so quick to judge all by the actions of a certain few. After all, the guy who lives in a glass house.

Congratulations to all the fine people and we wish them well in their new positions.

RAY CROMLEY Chop Head To Kill The Snake

WASHINGTON—Organized crime costs your family and mine $110 million a year — $50 billion nationwide.

It's expanding into legitimate businesses and forcing the corruption of officials and police. Yet, we're lambasting our attacks on the syndicates — going after insignificant targets, ignoring the jugular.

No syndicate can operate on any important scale for any length of time without large payoffs to officials or police, usually both. So long as these authorities go free, or if only a bribe recipient here or there is caught and jailed, a clamp-down on organized crime is impossible.

Investment capital and working capital are essential to any major syndicate operation. But, if you attack on organized crime, in the main, ignore these truths.

We are so obsessed with the thought we must catch the man actually running, dog, stealing, strongarming or hijacking, that we end up with a barrel of small fry and, in total, a few billion dollars worth recovered from the $50 billion the syndicates take home.

The men can be replaced at a dime a dozen. And the syndicate losses from law enforcement officers represent a minuscule percentage of taxes most of us pay.

There are, as indicated above, only two roads to effective syndicate busting.

Some men must be found to search out and identify criminally acquired monies which is not so difficult as it sounds. And all such money, whether invested, even in legitimate enterprise, is to be confiscated. This may prove exceedingly difficult but there are laws which, in the main, would make this possible.

Further, there must be provisions for fines so large that syndicate operators, once caught, would have to dig so deeply into their capital and the capital of their associates, they might find a comeback next to impossible.

Typically, fines today are so small in comparison with profits, convictions normally put no crimp in the illegal operations of large or middle-sized syndicates.

It isn't enough to merely recover stolen goods.

Even the arrest and conviction of middle and upper rank syndicate management hardly gives pause to the operations. The top men are seldom caught and even more rarely convicted.

Moreover, it is money that makes the operation go. More men will always be available for the syndicate if the money is there to pay them.

The second emphasis must come in a vastly expanded drive to determine what officials and what police are receiving bribes.

Worry less about numbers of cases and small convictions. Worry more about drying up large amounts of syndicate capital. Shoot for the big deal, then much of the smaller crime may fall by the wayside.

blowing its importance. This infuriated Hoover, who ordered an all-out investigation of both the Fund and its head, Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins.

The FBI chief directed his subordinates to prepare a monograph ripping Hutchins to pieces. They became so impressed with Hutchins from their research, however, that they produced a mild monograph. Down came immediate edit letters to the piece, making it suitably derogatory, on pain of being censured.

The second, more vicious monograph was leaked to the press.

Another famous scholar, Henry Steele Commager, also offended the great G-man. Hoover fired off pink sheets to field agents, directing them to smear Commager. The use of pink paper was understood to mean they should destroy the message after reading it.

A recalcitrant former agent, Jack Levine, was railroaded out of the FBI by Hoover, but struck back with an article railing the FBI chief. The vengeful Hoover blocked Levine from getting a job at the Justice Department and similar smear campaigns were run against former agents Bill Turner and Bernard Connors.

Rockets, Mortars Hit Beirut In 'Worst Night' Of War

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Christian and Moslem guerrillas subjected Beirut to its worst night of mortar and rocket fire since the start of the civil war nine months ago.

"An average of three mortars or rockets exploded per minute from midnight onward," a police spokesman said. He reported that 59 persons were killed and 125 wounded during the night but said this count was incomplete.

The foreign ministers gathered Thursday for a brief public session at which four of them condemned South African military intervention in the civil war in the former Portuguese territory. But they said nothing about Soviet or Cuban intervention.

The OAU spokesman said a private session that followed lasted an hour because little preparation for the meeting of government heads Saturday was required. He explained that any decisions would have to be made by the government heads.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—African foreign ministers were meeting informally today "to narrow areas of differences" in preparation for the Organization of African Unity's weekend summit meeting on Angola, a spokesman reported.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that Communist party leaders met Thursday night at the Great Hall of the People. There was speculation that the central committee of the party was deciding on Chou's successor.

Observers believed the choice was sure to be Teng, a protégé of Chou who was purged in 1967. Ford said Chou "left his imprint not only on the history of modern China but also on the world scene." Nixon said "only a handful of men in the 20th century will match Premier Chou's impact on world history."

Teng and Chou were students in France together in the early 1920s and organized a branch of the Chinese Communist party there in the formative years of the Cultural Revolution. Lin Piao was killed in 1971 in a plane crash in Mongolia, reportedly after an unsuccessful plot to assassinate Mao, and Teng reassigned two years later to a post as vice premier for Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia.

The news of Chou's death was announced to the Chinese people by a radio broadcast early today. The people of Peking were reported stunned and subdued even though they knew for months he was gravely ill.

Messages of condolence came from all over the world. Among the senders were former President Nixon, who worked with Chou to bring an end to two decades of Chinese-American hostility, and President Ford.

China Mourns Death Of Chou En-Lai

TOKYO (AP)—China today began a week of mourning for Premier Chou En-lai amid expectations that Teng Hsiao-ping, his year-old first deputy, will succeed him as premier.

Chou's more powerful second deputy in the Communist party hierarchy may go to 38-year-old Wang Kang-wen, a vice chairman of the party and the boy wonder of Chinese politics.

Chou, China's premier since 1949 and one of the outstanding statesmen of the century, died Thursday at the age of 78. The announcement of the death was delayed for 16 hours. He had been in the hospital since he had a heart attack in May 1974, but cancer was given as the cause of death.

The Chinese Embassy in Tokyo said the funeral would be held in Peking Jan. 15. Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, announced a 107-member funeral committee headed by Mao Tse-tung, the 82-year-old chairman of the revolution, returned to power in 1973 and has been running the government since the premier became ill.

Miller: One Bad Shot, Trails Gilbert By Four

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Johnny Miller's fantastic string of successes in the Arizona desert had led every round of every tournament in this state since Jan. 12, 1974 — came to a watery and woeful end. "It was an easy seven," Miller said with a half-hearted reach for humor in a completely humorless situation. "Not only did I hit in the water, I had to three-putt on top of it," said Miller, bitterly disappointed, completely subdued, almost in tears and speaking just above a whisper. All his troubles were centered on the 460-yard, par-four 18th hole of the Tucson National Golf Club course.

SEMINOLE ON ATTACK

Chase the ball seems to be the name of the game in soccer, and Seminole High did the best job Wednesday night, besting Spruce Creek, 7-0, on goals by Billy Lee (two), Skip Burdette, Chris Pletcher, Bobby Dugger, Daryl Sanders and Bobby Kelly. Seminole's defensive standouts included Virgil Jenkins, Ricky Mann, David Parker and Dan McIntosh. Seminole plays again Saturday at 8 in a home game against Apple.

College Draft, Scouting System Key For Cowboys?

DALLAS (AP) — For the third time in six years the Dallas Cowboys have made the National Football League championship game thanks to the collegiate draft and a superb scouting system. There are 12 rookies and nine free agents on the team Dallas takes to Super Bowl X. Only running back Preston Pearson, ironically obtained from Pittsburgh, and World Football League linebacker Warren Cape were not picked by the Cowboys computers and scouts. Brantley, a former baby photographer, had a hobby of drafting football players in 1960 when Dallas became an NFL expansion team. His knowledge impressed Tex Schramm, now club president, and owner Clint Murchison. And since his inception, Dallas has been an innovator: team that built itself through the draft. Dallas' success with a scouting system called "Quads" which feeds information into a computer system named Optimax Systems Inc., a subsidiary of the Cowboys and owned by Murchison. There are five fulltime scouts in the Cowboy organization. 1974 season was conducted by Bill Thomas, running back Dave Edwards and Capone; free safety Cliff Harris; place kicker Tom Fritsch; and receivers Percy and Ron Howard.

Seminole, Oviedo, Brantley Home; Lyman, Naval On Road

The high school basketball beat goes on tonight with five Seminole County fines in action, featuring a Five Star Conference matchup in Sanford between Seminole and Daytona Beach Mainland. Oviedo is home against Spruce Creek, while Lake Brantley tries to shake its slump in a home encounter against Metro Conference member Orlando Boone.

Calder Requests Fewer Dates, None For Charity

MIAMI (AP) — Calder Race Course has shocked state racing officials by asking for 14 less racing dates for the 1976 summer meeting than the track had in 1975 and requesting to charity dates at all. Last summer, the track operated a 120-day regular season plus six extra days that benefited 90 charitable organizations, state universities and the University of Miami. Under Florida law, Calder can apply for a maximum of 120 regular dates and 14 charity and scholarship days, which was not mandatory. Tom Smith, the Lions' head coach, used the final 15 minutes of his Oct. 28 decision victory over then-third-ranked Mike Baker, and his overall record to 45-47, with 17 KOs.

Free Throw Contest Set For Saturday

Free throw shooting contests are scheduled. Basketball enthusiasts will have a penchant for hitting the charity toss for their choice. The Knights of Columbus have a tournament at All Saints Church and the Elks Club is staging this at the Sanford Middle School. Both begin at 6:30. In the Knights of Columbus event, youngsters 11-14 are eligible, boys 15-18. This is a county championship, to be followed by advancement into district, regional and state tournaments. Contestants shoot 10 free throws, with the winning contestants going into the second round to shoot 15 free throws. If a tie still exists, they will shoot a free throw.

Haywood, Gregg Split Up

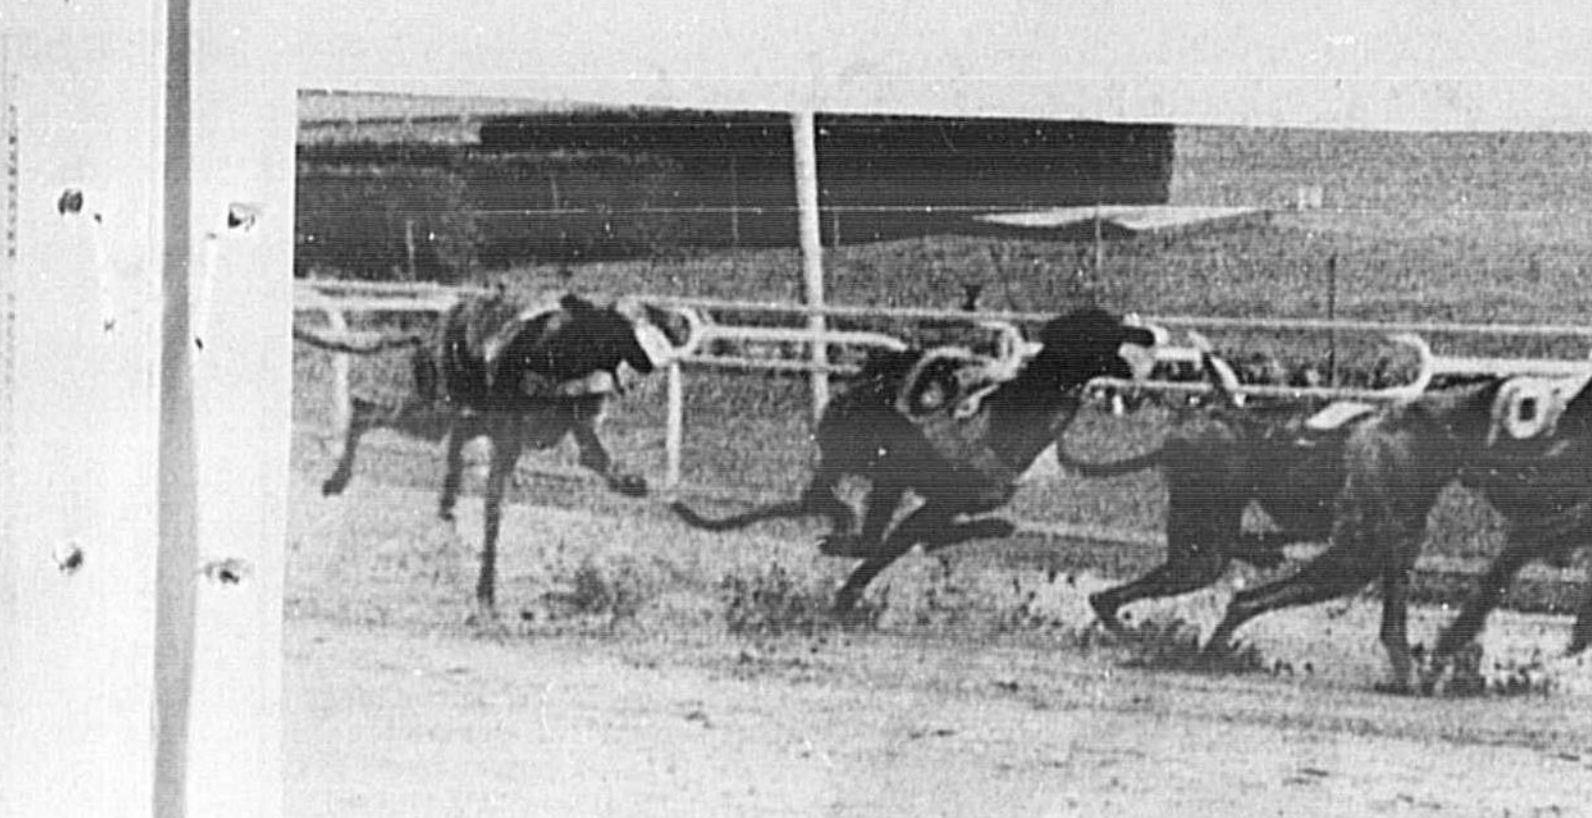

In the Elks group, youngsters 8-11 will shoot four free throws, with the winning contestants going into the second round to shoot 15 free throws. If a tie still exists, they will shoot a free throw.

Dora Loses To Crooms

Ed Hudson came up with an outstanding performance in the backyards Thursday night and sparked Crooms High's freshmen to a 45-31 victory over Mount Dora. Hudson had 16 rebounds — most of them on offensive rebounding situations. Chris Gillmore added 10 points to the Crooms attack.

It's Au Revoir For Jordan, Conover In American Bowl

TAMPA (AP) — The North-South American Bowl Saturday marks the coaching line for two collegiate football bosses: Ralph "Shag" Jordan of Auburn and Al Conover of Rice. Jordan, 65, has the head coaching job for the south. Conover, 37, is one of his assistants. Jordan, who's coached Auburn for 25 years and has been wanting to leave since 1973, said he's convinced he's making the right move. "I'm going on 66 and with the Lord's permission, I have a lot of time to live to go," he said. "I'm going to be a coach in the speaking, the recruiting, the meeting with alumni, the coaching. It's a young man's game." Conover announced his decision to leave Rice last week, saying he was equipping to accept a private business offer. "I am going to be a boss farmer," he says. "And after

Baseball Reserve Clause Moves Up On Court Docket

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A major test of baseball's "reserve clause" moved up on the federal court docket Thursday when a judge's suggestion that the old dispute between players and club owners be settled at the bargaining table fell on deaf ears. The owners did not respond to the proposal and Judge Oliver who had said he hoped to avoid lengthy litigation, set the court timetable during an afternoon session. The court here finds itself dealing with the greater issue of baseball's reserve clause as the result of grievances filed last fall by two pitchers, Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally. Messersmith, who was with the Los Angeles Dodgers, and McNally, with the Montreal Expos, maintained they were free agents because they had not signed contracts before last season. Team owners claim perpetual rights to players' services until they trade or release them. They point to a provision of their contract with the players association saying if a player declines to sign a contract by March 10, "the club shall have the right by written notice to renew his contract for the period of one year on the same terms."

Oviedo's Frosh Stops L. Howell

OVIEDO — The Oviedo High freshman team used a lightning-fast defense to stop L. Howell, 10-9, in the second period to win its first game of the season, 35-57, over Lake Howell's ninth graders. The Lions came into the contest with a mark of 0-3 as compared to a record of 1-4 for their South Seminole neighbors. After the first eight minutes of play the score was deadlocked, 10-10. That's when the home team broke the contest open. In the second period, not only did the Lions bang home 20 markers but they were able to hold the Lions hung to a scant five points. Tom Smith, the Lions' head coach, used the final 15 minutes of his Oct. 28 decision victory over then-third-ranked Mike Baker, and his overall record to 45-47, with 17 KOs.

Wells Named 4th In Ring Ratings

ORLANDO — Irish Gene Wells of Orlando is now the fourth-ranked junior middleweight boxer in the world, according to the latest ratings released by The Ring magazine. Wells broke into the world ranking at 154 pounds, following his Oct. 28 decision victory over then-third-ranked Mike Baker, and his overall record to 45-47, with 17 KOs.

The Cincinnati third baseman picked up in a dinner in Iowa based "Bible of Boxing" and the World Boxing Association recognize Korea's Yuh Ja Do as world champion. Ohio, who holds the World Boxing Council title, is rated No. 1 contender by The Ring and the WBA.

A Staple Around The World—Humble Potato Dresses Up Into Fine Fare

By NANCY BOOTH
Herald Correspondent

Graciously, colorless and unimpressive object at best, the humble potato is perhaps the most important vegetable in the world today.

It appears on our tables more frequently than any other vegetable. This is due in part to the many varied ways it can be prepared.

A little known fact surrounding the potato is that it was taken from South America to Europe as late as the 16th century. There it met with considerable resistance and was used mainly as a botanical curiosity. Chafed from all over Europe, taking a cue from the wealthy, refused to acknowledge its potential.

By the 17th century, the impoverished Irish, being the first to recognize its nutritional value, proceeded to cultivate it, so that it soon became the most important crop of their country.

In the middle of the 19th century, the gifted French chefs and in a small part, the Germans came to their senses and began to create a repertoire of dishes which still please us today.

Presently, all of us, the rich, the poor, and the in-between, can look to the humble potato for an ever ending source of culinary dishes, at a reasonable price.

The ways to cook and prepare a potato are legion, but I must confess, that one of my favorites is not to cook it at all! Many at a time, as a child, while my mother was preparing supper, along with my brothers and sisters, I would confiscate a potato, wash it, peel it, salt it, and eat it with relish!

We have all prepared potatoes in more ways than we can count, but here are two recipes you may not have tried.

SHREDDED POTATO PANCAKES WITH CHIVES OR SCALLIONS

4 med. baking potatoes (peeled and covered with cold water)

Fresh chives, enough to make 2 Tbsp. finely cut or use the green top of a couple of scallions to make 2 Tbsp. finely chopped

2 tsp. salt

2 for the batter

and 1 to sprinkle over finished pancakes

Freshly ground pepper

2 tsp. butter

3 Tbsp. vegetable oil

One at a time, pat the potatoes dry with paper towels and grate them on the shredding side of a grater into a large mixing bowl. Do not drain off the water that will accumulate around them. Quickly stir in the chives, or scallions, 2 teaspoons of salt, and a few grindings of black pepper. (Cover them with plastic

WOMEN

Evening Herald, Sanford, FL Friday, Jan. 9, 1976—1D

Wrap, if they must wait. But if they are allowed to rest for more than 10 minutes or so, they will turn an unpleasant brown.

Combine the butter and potatoes dry with paper towels and grate them on the shredding side of a grater into a large mixing bowl. Do not drain off the water that will accumulate around them. Quickly stir in the chives, or scallions, 2 teaspoons of salt, and a few grindings of black pepper. (Cover them with plastic moths into thin cakes about 3 inches in diameter, and fry them over moderate heat for about 3 or 4 minutes on each side, turning them over gently with a large metal spatula.

As they are done, remove them to paper toweling to drain. Proceed to shape, fry and drain the remaining potatoes similarly. Serve at once, sprinkled with the remaining salt.

FRENCH POTATO SALAD

2 lbs. sm. new potatoes (the same size)

4 Tbsp. chicken stock (fresh or canned)

2 tsp. salt

1 tsp. dry mustard

4 Tbsp. wine vinegar

Freshly ground black pepper

1/2 cup olive oil

About 4 scallions, (including 2 inches of the green stems to make 1/2 cup thinly sliced)

Parsley (1/2 cup)

Scrub the potatoes under cold running water, then drop them into a large pan of boiling water (enough to cover them with about 2 inches) and boil them briskly, uncovered, until they can be easily pierced by the point of a small knife. Don't overcook them, or the potatoes will fall apart after they are sliced. Drain and peel them while they are still hot, holding them one at a time in a towel if necessary to protect your hands. Slice them immediately into 1/2 to 3/4 inch rounds and place them in a large mixing bowl. Pour in the chicken stock and stir the potatoes gently with a rubber spatula until they are thoroughly moistened.

Mix together in a small bowl the salt, mustard, vinegar and a few gratings of black pepper. Pour it over the still-warm potatoes and again toss them gently to coat well. Then let them rest for about 10 minutes, stirring once or twice. Little by little, stir in the olive oil. Add the scallions and parsley, mix well (gently to prevent the potatoes from crumbling) and taste for seasoning. Add more salt if needed. Serve at room temperature. If you must refrigerate, be certain to remove the salad at least two hours before serving.

Coping Today Happy New Year In Cosmic Asylum

By JOANNE KOCH
Herald Services

Family life in the last quarter of this century is beginning to take on the quality of science fiction. What once seemed like bizarre predictions for the year 2000 from futurists, now begin to seem quite feasible.

Based on current scientific advances, some likely possibilities are brain augmentation, which would allow people wired to a computer to increase their IQs; cloning, or the reproduction of an offspring which is an exact genetic replica of another human being; reni-womb, the practice which would enable a mother who cannot or does not wish to go through pregnancy to hire a surrogate mother, have the fertilized egg implanted in her womb, brought to term and then returned to the genetic parents.

Now that tests during pregnancy allow the parents to know the sex of the fetus, as well as other characteristics, parents can exercise choices which have never been available to humans. Already, reports have filtered in, parents who have chosen to abort a fetus which was female because they wanted a boy. If this trend continues, we could well have an overabundance of males in the year 2000. Men's advice columns and magazines geared to making men more attractive to the opposite sex would flourish. In 25 years, this columnist might well be filling the following report:

"The January issue of the hot new magazine 'Beta: Masculinity and Fatherhood' is chock full of advice to the man trying to cope with the current shortage of females. Keep abreast of the latest automated root and computer equipment for the home, one article suggests. Another hint for the man seeking to find fulfillment as a husband and father is to master the art of nurturing children by taking special fathering courses. A good father needs to be a dandy father. Grooming tips, men's at home fashions and ten-minute candlelight meals for two are all included in the January issue. Nothing the recent case of the polygamous woman who married men in eight different states, the magazine's Husband Advisor warned that sharing a wife was not likely to make for long-lasting happiness."

While George Bernard Shaw may not have been accurate when he charged that other planets use this one as a lunatic asylum will no doubt persist into the next quarter century. And Americans will continue to feel the need to escape. The new route that may be open to them, according to some predictions, is likely to be liberation. Liberation pills inducing prolonged sleep and providing time-released nourishment could pose a special kind of threat to the American family which might appear in the papers like this:

"Children beset with emotional or academic problems have been gobbling liberation pills at a startling rate. Some students have liberated throughout finals week; others go under for a whole quarter. But the problem is not confined to the young. Fathers facing middle age, mothers facing menopause and many parents who simply face their children's adolescence are now choosing to use this liberation. In one rare case both parents liberated for two months when their unmarried teenage daughter insisted on keeping her octuplets. Can children be taken from the custody of parents who liberate for more than a week? Should those parents be charged with neglect? What about parents who force their children to liberate with them or liberation en famille as it is called?"

On the other hand, our interplanetary travels may prove one as a lunatic asylum. Happy New Year, fellow inmates.

COLLECTOR SAVORS HER COLLECTION

What's the use of owning a beautiful dinner service if you never get to use it, is the attitude of Depression glass collector Sara Myers of Sanford, as she sips coffee from a cup in her Green Cherry collection. Mrs. Myers, assisted by her husband, Ed, and son, John is preparing for the Fourth Annual Sanford Depression Glass Show to be staged Jan. 21 and 22 in the Sanford Civic Center. Approximately a half-million dollars worth of glass is expected to be on display to delight collectors and amateurs alike. (Herald Photo by Jean Patterson)

Motivate 'Old Dog' To Learn New Tricks

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to teach a 51-year-old man to speak correct English? Joe (not his real name) went only as far as the fifth grade, and his grammar is terrible.

I have corrected him in private, but he makes the same mistakes repeatedly in public, which I find very embarrassing.

Most of my friends are well educated (so am I), and when Joe and I are in their company, I keep hoping he won't talk much because he is sure to say, "He don't" or "We was."

He is a fine-looking man of good character who has made a remarkable success in business, but this one fault is too big to overlook.

I guess what I really want to know is: Can a 50-year-old man who is smart in many matters learn proper grammar at his age? Or is it too late?

JOE'S LADY FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A smart person can learn anything he wants to learn if he's sufficiently motivated. The questions here are, "Does JOE think he needs to learn?" And if not, how important is this fault to YOU?"

DEAR ABBY: That letter from ALL WORE OUT IN L.A. gave my husband and me a chuckle. It was from that poor old wife who wanted to know where she could buy some salt peter to slip into her husband's food.

Salt peter must be one of those delayed-action chemicals because they gave it to my husband in World War II, and it just started to take effect last year! Sign me.

PLENTY OF SLEEP IN ALTADENA

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I recently moved into a new home. We love the place, but we're having trouble with our landlord.

He keeps dropping in on us unexpectedly. I have told him several times that he is welcome anytime, but to please telephone us first.

Tonight at 10 p.m., this landlord came over to introduce us to his son! I was in my undershorts watching TV on our bed, and my wife wasn't dressed, either. That nifty man used his passkey and walked right into our bedroom!

Abby, we like our privacy, but how do you tell a man who is 45 years older than you are to please be a little more respectful of your privacy without seeming disrespectful to him?

STATEN ISLANDER

DEAR ISLANDER: Get a "Do Not Disturb" sign and hang it outside your door. If he drops by unexpectedly again, "respectfully" point it out to him.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I'll bet many secretaries would like to have answered.

In this day of no discrimination and Women's Lib, etc., how does one address a letter to an office of mixed sexes?

It used to be correct to say, "Gentlemen" or "Sirs," even though the writer knew there were women in the office.

My boss suggested that I write to "Dear Abby" for a real good answer.

SECRETARY...OVER 40

DEAR OVER: Try "To whom it may concern." If that strikes you as being too impersonal, how about "Ladies and Gentlemen"? If that's too formal, skip the salutation (it doesn't mean anything, anyway) and get right on with the message.

How To Make Ends Meet

Q. I've tried to make ends meet, but I can't manage. How can I get ahead? A. I've found a way to get my needs met, and it always works. I take my life as it comes. The only time it fails is when I fail to work it; when I don't follow its principles...
