DeBary stores evacuated

Two stores were evacuated for approximately two hours yesterday afternoon because of a natural gas leak. No serious damage was reported.

According to Volusia County fire administrator spokesman Bobbie Stevens, "We were called to the Winn Dixie shopping center on Highway 17-92 shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in response to a gas line apparently left turned on in the Peking Mandarin Restaurant.'

Stevens said, "The restaurant was closed at the time. Florida Public Utilities came and turned the line off, although we had to make a forced entry through the ceiling of the busi-

Three engine companies and 15 fire fighters responded to the call. By 3 p.m., the two adjacent stores were allowed to reopen for

Stevens reported no damage other than to the roof of the restaurant where firemen had to break open for access.

Couple dive into marriage

MUNISING, Mich. - The bride wore white, the tanks of air on their backs

So did the 20 guests at their wedding Sunday, held 80 feet beneath the surface of Lake Superior on the deck of a sunken steamship.

Charter boat captain Pete Lindquist read the ceremony, then Kerry Bruce Whipple and Kerry Sue Krone exchanged vows with the aid of underwater communications equipment.

But with the masks, the traditional kissing of the bride was out of the question. "So we embraced and rubbed regulators," said Whipple, 29, a Lansing scuba diving instructor.

He met Krone, a Lansing travel agent, about eight years ago. They made their first scuba dive seven years ago - on the same site where they took the wedding plunge Sunday.

Ring lost in '49 found

HUME, Mo. - An engagement ring lost 43 years ago turned up Monday as a man was hoeing his onion patch.

"It was just laying there on top," Elwood Liggett said. "If I hadn't seen it, I would have hoed it under again."

Luckily, "when you hoe you keep your nose to the ground," the 63-year-old said.

SANFORD - Tri-County Transit operators are considering the addition of an Interstate 4 express route between Orlando and Lake Mary and expanded services in the Sanford area.

The review is part of efforts by the Or-ange-Seminole-Osceola Transportation Authority to increase ridership by making improvements to the central Florida bus service.

OSOTA executive director Paul Skouteles said the agency is preparing their first five-year plan to establish service improvement goals. Skouteles said a survey last year of 1,200 Seminole and Orange County households indicated more people would use buses if service were expanded.

Skouteles and OSOTA chairman Jacob Stuart were acheduled to brief Seminole County commissioners today on long-range goals. OSOTA officials are scheduled to return June 23 to present cost estimates for the improved service Skouteles said an I-4 express route is one major project OSOTA planners are studying. Such a route would provide non-stop service from as far north as Lake Mary to downtown Orlando.

Dick Thomas, Seminole County's transportation planner, said the service would probably not be located further north than Lake Mary because I-4 traffic levels begin to reduce north of Lake Mary. According to state highway planners, an average of 30,768 vehicles per day drives west on I-4 south of State Road 46. But 36,013 cars per day travels west south of Lake Mary Boulevard.

Thomas said if the express route is begun, a park and ride facility would also be developed to enable commuters to park their cars and take the bus to work.

Thomas said the county has also asked OSOTA staff to review increasing the number of stops on Route 39, which serves Sanford on U.S. Highway 17-92. Thomas said the county has requested the cost to increase the number of local stops on the □See Bue, Page SA

Memorable day for veterans and racial harmony

Sanford recalls those who died

SANFORD - Veterans and members of many other organizations listened to the sound of "taps" and a rifle salute in honor of their fallen friends yesterday. The annual Memorial Day services hundreds of participants and onlookers to Sanford's Memorial Park yesterday morning.

The event got underway shortly after 10:30, with a parade down First Street to Park Avenue, then north on Park to the lakefront. It was sponsored by the Seminole County Area Veterans Advisory Council. DAV chapter 30 served as the host organization.

While at least 150 persons were involved in the actual march, many waited at the lakefront for the beginning of the services. Bill Hill, chaplain of the American Legion and a World War 2 veteran observed. "This is our day, the day for those who were in the wars, and a time for those of us who returned, to pause and think about those who didn't, and the sacrifice they made.

Don Walton of Lake Mary, a navy veteran who spent many years at the Sanford Naval Air Station commented, "Events like this really make me think back and remember some of the great friends we made during our service years."

Music for the parade was supplied by the "Dixieland Rascals" of American Legion Post 53. The 13 musicians rode on the back of a flatbed trailer, playing the songs of the various military organizations and familiar marches.

In addition to the Disabled American Veterans, other organizations included men and women representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars. American Legion, Fleet Re-serve, and auxiliaries from most of the organisations. Also involved were members of the Jr. ROTC. Boy

City weighs charter changes

By MICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - The Lake Mary City Commission will hear charter change recommendations this week. A special meeting for a review has been called for Thursday even-

The city's charter has not been updated since 1987. The city staff had made some recommended changes last year, most of which were in specific wording. They were never officially adopted.

In late March, the city established an eight member committee to study the city charter and make recommendations. The committee has had seven meetings, and believes their findings are ready for presentation and discussion by the commission.

Members serving on the Charter Review Committee include Bill Greene, John Hauck, Tom Mahoney, John McMenamy, Tom Powers, Sheila Sawyer, Lowry Rockett and Craig Spearman. Six of the members were appointed by the Commission. Rockett was added due to his chairmanship of the City's Planning and Zoning Commission, and Spearman through his chairmanship of the Lake Mary Business Advisory Committee.

One major change recommended by the committee is the length of term for city commissioners. The present city charter calls for two year terms with no limit on the number of consecutive terms. The recommended change increases the term of office to three years, but places a six consecutive year limit on how long a commission member may serve in that capacity. Rockett had previously commented, "I expect many of the changes we will be proposing are strictly an improvement or updating in the actual wording." An example is the committee's recommended change in the section dealing with powers of the city, where the words

"this state." were changed to "the State of Florida."

Another suggested change is in section 4.03 of the City Charter dealing with the "Powers and Duties of Mayor". In the original charter, the mayor is identified as "the Chief Executive Officer of the City." In the proposed changes, the wording declares the Mayor as "the ceremonial head of the city.

A later suggested change calls for the identification of the city manager as "the Chief Administrative Officer of the City.

Another change would elimate the authority of the mayor to call for special meetings. In the past, either the mayor or three or more members of the commission could call for such a meeting. The committee has removed the word "Mayor" from that section.

Since the Charter Review Committee completed its work. Lake Mary City Attorney Ned Julian has presented two additional changes he will be recommending, based on legal aspects. One calls for a provision to be given to the city to vacate and/or abandon platted but now owned alleys, streets, easte-

Jurors deadlock; judge says press on

FORT LAUDERDALE — Jurors in the federal racketeering trial of Yahweh Ben Yahweh and 15 followers were told to keep deliberating today even though they repeatedly told the judge they were deadlocked on Monday.

U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger unged them to reconsider their opinions about the case despite five notes from the jury, one of which said they couldn't agree on any of the counts for any of the defendants.

"You've had the words 'hung jury' said to you. You've had the word 'stuck.' And now you have the word 'standatill." said Yahweh's attorney, Alcee Hastings. "I would have to ask for a

But Roetiger said it was too soon to abandon five months of effort. The jury started deliberating Saturday. The trial began in January. "All that means is that we start over with another jury and do this thing all over again," Roettger said. "I can't imagine there's another witness somewhere who will spring forward with either a smoking gun for the government or a silver builet for the defence."

Advocates: Order endangers Haitlans

MIAMI - President Bush's order to return Haitian boat people without letting them make a case for political asylum is essentially a death sentence for some, refugee lawyers told the Miami Herald for today's editions.

"We have a refugee emergency in our own back yard and we have closed our doors," said Bill Frelick, senior policy analyst for the U.S. Committee for Refugees, a private advocacy group. "It's a dangerous and frightening precedent."

Bush acted after the tent cities at Guantanamo reached their capacity last week, saying his intent was to discourage Haitians from daring the risky voyage to this country, which they often do in dangerously overcrowded boats. The executive order issued Sunday compels Coast Guard crews to head straight to Haiti with any boat people intercepted at sea. Those wishing to apply for asylum are directed to the U.S. Embassy in Port-au-Prince. But a visit there would be dangerous, some advocates told

"If you walk into the embassy, you're marking yourself as an opponent of the military and the de facto government." said Bill O'Neill, deputy director for the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights in New York. "People are identifying themselves as opponents."

Further, there isn't sufficient staff at the embassy to process thousands of time-consuming claims, advocates said.

PENSACOLA - The trial of 11 defendants accused of using a massive Florida Panhandie land desi to derraud 9102 milli from savings and loan associations completes its fourth month

At least another month of testimony is expected, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Ben Beard. The trial was scheduled to resume Tuesday in U.S. District Court after a three-day recess for the Memorial Day weekend.

The defendants, all from Florida and Texas, are accused of fraudulently obtaining loans that contributed to the failures of Hill Financial Savings Association of Red Hill, Pa., and Vision Banc of Kingsville, Texas. The money was borrowed for the $182 million purchase of 20,800 acres of woodlands near Point Washington and pristine sugar-white beaches at Topsail Hill, both in Walton County.

The state last week agreed to buy 18,000 acres of the forest and 320 acres of the beach property from the Resolution Trust Corp., the federal agency responsible for selling the assets of failed savings and loans. The deal is contingent upon approval this week from U.S. District Judge Roger Vinson, who is presiding over the trial.

FORT LAUDERDALE -Bummer ion I a welcome time of year for everyone; thousands of Floridians who depend on the tourist and snowbird business for their jobs will spend the season out of work.

"I was hoping to stay on all year. But it was really getting alow. I could see it myself," Some said. "I don't want to take just anything. But with the economy, it's just a matter of survival."

Most tourism jobs lest all year. At 1991's peak in March, restauranta, hotels and attractions employed 113,200 people in Broward and Palm Beach counties, state figures show.

In the dead of August, 97,000 still had jobs. But 16,300 jobs vanished.

Restaurants cut 7,800 of 72,000 jobs. Tourist attractions and recreation areas dropped 5,500 of 21,000 jobs. Hotels dropped 2,900 of 20,000 jobs. Jobs in these industries fell more sharply than in others.

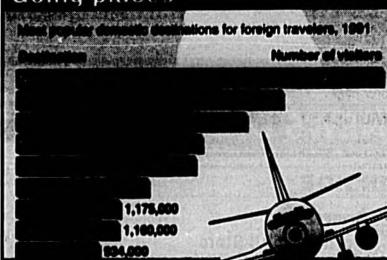

"Cutting back is a reality." said Jack Miller, general manager of the Howard Johnson Hollywood beach hotel, which has not laid off anyone so far this

"If we only have half the hotel full, we only need half the maids to clean them," Miller said. "The workers come to this business understanding that their employment is based on how many people walk through our

Narcotics arrest made

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies arrested Robbie Dewayne Char. 27, of 106 Whispering Court. Sanford on Saturday. A deputy reported seeing Char in a vehicle, talking with another person believed to be a narcotics dealer. As the deputy approached, the man on foot ran, and Char fled in his vehicle. The officer stopped Char at Jewett Lane and Airport Boulevard. The deputy reported finding drug paraphernalia in the vehicle, and a white rock substance in his wallet. The material was later proven to be cocaine. Char was charged with possession of cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Multiple theft charged

Sanford police arrested Elwell Perrell, 24, of 29 Lake Monroe Torrace Saturday. Perrell's mother, Altamese Lewis, had reported her TV set and her automobile had been taken without her permission. Perrell was located in the automobile at 13th Street and Olive Avenue. According to the police report, he told officers he had taken the TV to sell, to obtain money for cruck. Ferrell was charged with grand theft and grand theft, auto.

Man reported in disorderly condition

Robbie Spivey, 31, of 1200 W. 22nd Street in Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Sunday at a convenience store located at 303 E. 25th Street. Police were responding to a suspected case of retail theft. Officers said when they attempted to seek the man's identity, he responded in a loud voice, and at first refused to identify himself. Spivey was charged with disorderly conduct/intoxication, and resisting arrest without violence.

Domestic violence charged

Sanford police arrested Jeffrey Blaine Drennen. 29, of 1112 8. Oak Avenue Sunday. Police report he was in an argument with a girl friend at 1905 W. 4th Street, and struck her with a mop bucket and soap bottle. Drennen was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Multiple license suspensions

Sanford police arrested Tim Joe Spain, 30, of 350 Golf Cove Court, Sanford, on Saturday. An officer heard tires aqueeling in a parking lot at Airport Blvd. and 25th Street. Spain's car was stopped at Old Lake Mary Boulevard and Airport Blvd., where he was charged with driving with a suspended driver's license. A computer check revealed he had 13 previous suspensions of his licenses.

On balance

For almost two decades, Democratic leaders in the Senate and House viewed a proposed constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget as a heretical notion. But now that the federal debt has escalated to astronomical proportions — and voter unhappiness with Congress has kept pace — the leadership of both chambers suddently has embraced the idea.

The most recent convert to the cause of fiscal responsibility is House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., who predicts the amendment will be approved by Congress this year. In the Senate, Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, is pushing for a vote by June 1.

If approved by two-thirds majorities in the Senate and House, which seems likely in this season of voter disontent, the measure would be signed by President Bush. It then would have to be ratified by three-fourths, or 38, of the state legislatures to become part of the Constitution.

Sen. Paul Simon. D-Ill., the amendment's sponsor, warns that the country is courting disaster by wading deeper and deeper into debt.

The total national debt is $4 trillion — a staggering 100 percent increase just since 1966. This year's $400 billion budget deficit is a tremendous drag on today's economy and in the living standards of future generations, who ultimately will have to pay for it.

Simon's amendment would require the President to submit a balanced budget at the beginning of each fiscal year. Under the proposal, expenditures would not be allowed to exceed revenues except in time of war or unless a "super majority" of three-fifths of lawmakers voted to increase the debt limit.

Simon's measure could be strengthened, however, by incorporating an amendment drafted by Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., to make it more difficult for lawmakers to balance the budget simply by raising taxes. The Kasten proposal would require a three-fifths vote of the Senate and House to boost taxes above the rate of economic growth. This fiscal safeguard would help restrict increases in government spending, which have been the principal cause of the deficit.

By now, it is clear that Congress cannot be counted on to balance the books even when it promises to do so.

A good example is the diasastrous 1990 budget deal, which was supposed to produce significant spending cuts and thereby reduce the deficit, in exchange for a huge tax increase. But instead of limiting federal spending, the agreement drove outlays higher and higher, producing today's record deficit.

The strong anti-incumbent sentiment percolating throughout the country may be the prime reason for the change of heart on Capitol Hill. Mitchell and Foley never have been models of fiscal restraint. But the runaway national debt is the most glaring example of Congress' failure to solve pressing national problems.

The concept of requiring a balanced budget is not a new idea. Thomas Jefferson even lamented the absence of a constitutional restraint on federal spending. He stressed that the government should "consider ourselves unauthorized to saddle posterity with our debts, and morally bound to pay them ourselves."

In 1986, when the Senate was in Republican hands, it fell one vote short of gaining the two-thirds majority necessary to approve a balanced budget amendment. Four years later, the House was only seven votes shy.

Today, the votes appear to be there, and certainly the time has never been better to attack the federal deficit.

Europe 1992 is 'yesterday's future'

LONDON — Every so often some phrase coined in the rough-and-tumble of political debate proves so apposite that it takes on a life of its own and succeeds in influencing events far beyond its author's wildest dreams. Examples abound in American politics, from FDR's "one-third of a nation" to Ronald Resgan's "welfare queen." (George Bush seems to have a special knack for inventing expressions he later comes to rue: "voodoo economics," for one; "read my lips" for another.)

Margaret Thatcher may have come up with this sort of rhetorical winner in her recent speech at The Hague, Netherlands, where she denounced the Jacques Delors vision of a politically united Europe as "yesterday's future." Mrs. Thatcher's British critics, including certain anonymous John Major supporters in the Conservative Party, promptly dismissed her as a "spent force." But her hero, Winston Churchill, was supposed to be a a spent force too, when he launched the term "Iron Curtain" at Westminster, Mo., in 1946. The rest is history—and only recently concluded history at that.

Certainly, it is far from clear that the current debate in Europe, over the required unanimous ratification of the Treaty of Maastricht by its 12 signatory nations, is going to end in an unqualified triumph for the "federalists." For starters, polls suggest that the Danes may reject it in a piebtacite to be held on June 2. If they don't. Irreland may, soon thereafter. Either development would require complete renegotiation of the treaty.

But even if the treaty is ratified by all countries concerned, the marriage will suffer the traditional instabilities that follow shotgun weddings. Neither Germany, France, nor Britain, for example, is likely to countenance for long a situation in which any Third World immigrant who can bribe or forge his way into Portugal or without undergoing further passport inspections.

The concept of a united Europe — a unitary state — has a long and honorable history, including Churchill's sonorous postwar endorsement of it ("Let Europe arise"). But Mrs. Thatcher was dead on target when she told her audience at The Hague that the concept, in its simplistic form runs squarely against the grain of recent history, which is a monotonous chronicle of the upwelling of nationalist sentiments long buried and presumed dead. It is not political union that the nations of Europe need, but economic relations freed of tariff and regulatory restrictions.

George can't live without nukes

Fifty-five days after the Bush ascendancy, Vice President Dan Quayle promised the new management would pursue "well thought-out agendas" because "quick fixes are often bad fixes."

I thought he was talking about caution and restraint and prudence. It never occurred to me that what he really meant was lethargy and torpor and stupefaction.

For the past six months, we have been faced with a crisis that could pulverize the planet, and George Bush has just wrapped up a plan that might resolve the predicament seven years from now.

I refer to the recently completed agreements with the former Soviet republics, which inherited hundreds of strategic nuclear bombs when the empire collapsed. The new nations are now official parties to the START treaty, which George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev initialed in July 1991. The agreement gives the republics of Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Belarus seven years to destroy their nukes or transfer them to the Russian republic where they are supposed to be dismantled.

So what does all this really mean? It means that after the START pact is approved by the parliaments of the four republics, after it is ratified by the U.S. Senate, after it is signed by all parties and after the terms of the treaty have been fully met — seven years after the signatures are affixed — the United States and Russia will only have 18,400 strategic weapons left.

I can't speak for you, but I feel a whole lot safer realizing this.

I know, I should be praising Bush for a brilliant diplomatic achievement. I'm sorry, but I think he has moved with the agility of a giant ground sloth on this matter. He has within his purview the potential to rid the globe of the threat of nuclear destruction and he is diddling it away.

Why hasn't he confronted humankind's greatest menace in the same way he challenged Saddam Hussein? Why hasn't Mr. Foreign Policy at least attempted to raily world leaders to the greatest cause of modern time? Cajoled them, pressured them, sweet-talked them into seizing this moment to hammer out a universal nuclear disarmament agreement? For once in his life, why can't George Bush display a modicum of the vision thing?

Many experts believe it could be done. In an article for The Washington Post, Arjun Makhijani of the Institute for Energy and Environmental Research and Katherine Yih of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War suggested that the principal nuclear powers — the United States, Russia. Britain, France and China — first agree to remove all warheads from delivery systems and store them in internationally monitored repositories.

The authors continued: "Removing weapons from worldwide patrol would reduce the threat that near-nuclear weapons states feel from the nuclear weapons powers, which they use as justification for pursuing their own nuclear weapons programs." Thus such undeclared nuclear nations as Israel, India and Pakistan might be coaxed into storing their plutonium and enriched urant.

and enriched uranium under international supervision.

If that sounds too utopian for you, consider a couple of things that Bush could do unilaterally. He could announce the United States will forego nuclear testing for the rest of the year, as Russia and France have already done. He could accept Russian president Boris Yeltsin's offer to retarget weapons — simply point them away from each other.

And why doesn't he? I have two

Who knows score on death penalty?

On a springtime Monday, the 18th of May, the governors of Virginia and New York announced the latest of their decisions about life and death. Never has there been a day that so clearly defined the best and worst of which we are capable.

In Richmond, Gov. Douglas Wilder announced he'd permit the execution of a man convicted of rape and murder. Never mind that new evidence wasn't considered and a

Supreme Court appeal wasn't heard due to a tough-luck technicality: a defense lawyer missed a filing deadline — by one day. (The court later met. by one minute, an 11 p.m. execution deadline, denying, 7-2, a stay to hear the evidence.) Hear Wilder's reasoning:

"I have not seen any evidence that would prove actual innocence. ... The facts of this case could have justified the verdict that was reached. It's not a question of whether my judgment would

this century

In Albany, Gov. Mario Cuomo announced his 10th veto in 10 years of a bill to reinstate the death penalty. Hear Cuomo's reasoning:

"Recent events, which triggered riots around the nation, have vividly and forcefully revealed the fallibility of our present system. The public is troubled by a jury verdict that appears on its face to be inconsistent with otherwise compelling evidence. Now, more than ever, we should appreciate that even the best of all justice systems can, on occasion, fail. The death penalty offers the prospect of compounding such weaknesses through the tragic and irreversible consequence of the state mistakenly taking a life in the name of Justice."

Once, Democrats Wilder and Cuomo viewed capital punishment similarly. They opposed it. They said it killed disproportionate numbers of blacks and other minorities unable to afford the best of counsel. Wilder saw the issue in a new light about the time he saw his political future in a new light, as he pondered running for governor. Now only Cuomo argues that executing murderers "does not deter murder ... does not undo the loss to the victim's family and friends, has been disproportionately applied to minorities. ..."

In a 1989 speech, Cuomo eloquently discussed his determination to lead by example, not polls: "Clearly, there is a new public willingness to return to the official brutality of the past, by restoring the death penalty." Cuomo said. "... Savage murders of young, bright and committed law enforcement people, and other citizens, enrage us

He drew a blue line through the argument that execution deters murder: In the decade preceding 1977, New York had the death penalty and 80 cops were killed; in the next decade, when there was no death penalty, 54 cops were killed.

Then, as now, Cuomo urged his hard-line compromise: "Life Imprisonment Without Parole — a proposal which protects society without requiring that society itself commit an act of violence or risk executing an innocent person."

At least 23 people were executed in America this century — but later proven innocent, he says. "And tragically, New York state ... holds the record ... with eight wrongful executions since 1905." He listed the names:

"Charles Becker. Frank Cirofici. Thomas Bambrick. Stephen Grzechowiak. Max Rybarczyk. Everett Applegate. George Chew Wing. Charles Sberna."

Court clears way to let states tax mail-orders

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court today cleared the way for Congress, if it chooses, to let states tax mail-order sales. The ruling could have an enormous impact on American business, state treasuries and millions of consumers.

In a case from North Dakota, the court said states may, with congressional approval, force out-of-state catalog companies to collect the taxes - sales or use taxes - that their in-state customers owe on mail-order purchases.

The high court in 1967 banned states from imposing tax-collection obligations on businesses that have no physical presence within their borders.

The ruling 25 years ago said that imposing such obligations would violate out-of-state companies' due-process rights and interfere unduly with interstate

Although states have always been legally able to tax consumers for mail-order purchases. they have no means of enforcing such laws if they cannot collect the taxes from the merchants.

Today, the court unanimously reversed that part of its 1967 decision that said such taxcollection obligations violate due-process rights.

But by an 8-1 vote, the court and imposing such obligations — without congressional ap-proval — still interferes unduly with interstate commerce.

Russia reveals Communist Party's old role in terrorism

By ALAN COCPURMAN Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW - The Soviet Union supplied arms to Palestinian terrorists for attacks on American and Israeli targets in the 1970s, according to secret documents newly released by the government of Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

On the eve of a court hearing on the legality of his ban on the Communist Party. Yeltsin began to release the contents of a top secret "special dossier."

Among the first documents released are papers detailing the promotion of terrorism by the Communist rulers of the former Soviet Union during the waning decades of the Cold War.

Western governments often accused the Soviet Union of backing international terrorism in the 1970s and '80s, but internal documents proving in the "special dossier."

high-level involvement by the Communist Party had not previously been made public.

Russia's Constitutional Court today announced it would consider the legality of Yeltsin's 1991 decrees liquidating the Communist Party and nationalizing its property. The court also said it would examine whether the party was ever legal to begin with.

If the court rules the party was invalid from the start, it would in effect validate Yeltsin's decrees and quickly derail the Communists' challenge of them.

Yeltain issued the decrees after hard-liners in the party, military and KGB tried to seize power in last August's coup.

The Russian business weekly Commersant reported Monday that Yeltsin's government began last week to declassify the estimated 1 million documents

"A great deal is at stake," said Dr. Rebecca Goldburg of the Environmental Defense Fund. "Industry has asked FDA to open an easy regulatory path that would put genetically engineered foods on grocery shelves without any notice to consumers when they are buying genetically engineered foods."

But Dan Wagster of Calgene said company has "every intention of labelie the tomatoes as genetically engineered.
"It is both important to do for consum and it's a real marketing advantage," said. "These tomatoes are going to be a superior product because of the technology we've been able to apply."

The new product is designed to be as fresh, tender and juicy as any tomato ripened on the vine — and available to consumers all year around.

Calgene scientists have found a way to allow the tomato to ripen on the vine — picking up the desirable natural flavor — and still remain hard enough to be packaged and then shipped long distances.

Alan Goldhammer, director of technical affairs for the Industrial Biotechnology

Association, said the industry recom-mended that the policy put foods into various categories depending upon how far they vary from the original product.

"If you are using biotechnology to move material from one corn species to another corn species then that's analogous to traditional plant breeding," he said.

But if you wanted to take the droughtresistant properties of a plant not esten by humans and inject it into corn so that corn can be grown in Arisona, then there are more safety questions, he said.

We are your neighbors, and we have everything you want from a local bank: friendly, knowledgeable staff that take the time to get to know their customers, with convenient locations and banking hours. And our rates on deposits are always competitive.

You can also count on SunBank for strength, stability, and security. Our assets exceed $33 billion, our market capitalization of $3.8 billion is the 7th highest in the country, and we've been in Florida since 1934. Most of all, we're always nearby when you need us, with over 334 locations throughout Florida, and more importantly, 3 locations in the Sanford and Lake Mary area.

You've probably read that a bank in our neighborhood has been bought and will soon be closing its local offices. We know how that can affect a community, particularly those members that appreciate the convenience of banking locally. To make it as easy as possible to open a checking account with a local bank, we're extending a special invitation.

Bring in the remaining checks from your current bank and open a SunBank checking account. We'll not only replace your old checks with personalized SunBank checks, but you'll receive six months of monthly service charge-free checking!

As a SunBank customer, you'll enjoy Peace of Mind Banking - our special brand of service that you can't get anywhere else. You'll also have access to a full range of competitively priced products and services, including the comprehensive All-In-One and Portfolio Banking accounts that feature banking cards and credit cards with no annual membership fee.

All of us at SunBank are proud and pleased to be meeting the banking needs of Sanford and Lake Mary. And we look forward to working with you for many years to come.

Speakers included clergy, law enforcement and elected of-ficials. Het does and grants sode ficials. Hot dogs and orange soda were served. Speaker the Rev. H.D. Rucker was slightly disappointed that blacks far outnumbered whites at the rally.

"I'd like to say I like what I see. I can't say that wholeheartedly. I don't see the unity we're talking about. We need reconciliation before the unity among the races brings peace," he said.

Williams said, she too, would have liked to see more whites attend the rally.

Rucker suggested city and church involvement in solving the unemployment problem that particularly plagues black men. "Teens need jobs. Adults need obs. Unity comes when the haves help the have-nots. We're not asking for a handout. If the haves would free up some resources, the have-nots can help themselves," Rucker said.

He said the city could convert abandoned buildings into recreational centers and into shelters for homeless and drug abusers. Unemployed people could be hired to run them. He said there are over 100 black churches in Sanford. If each church created one job, 100 unemployed people would be working.

"I think we're headed for a long, hot summer," he said.

In an emotional moment, speaker Antonio Redden made an impassioned plea to the audience to "turn to your neighbor and give them a hug for unity."

From the audience, Joe Forbes, who is white, trotted rms outstretched to Redden. who is black.

"We talk about it a lot. It's very important that Abbie understands how and why people are different," Mary said.

Abbie shyly acknowledged that her friends, black and white, are much the same. They all have different skin and hair color, but they all pretty much like to play outside and laugh and sing.

"Also concerned more whites had not attended. Harris said." You know, Sanford is a beautiful place, a wonderful place with giving people. But it's got a cancer of racial insensitivity. That can change with the

Leno jumps in after Carson-skewering Quayle

President Dan Quayle — but added his own distinctive touches on his first night as host of "The Tonight Show."

Leno, 42. stepped from behind a purple curtain — not the Technicolor one favored by Carson — smiled his trademark goofy grin and was met by thunderous applause from the studio audience binning night.

Monthly night.

Raising his hand for quiet, he quipped, "Let's see how you all feel in 30 years" — a reference to Johnny Carson's retirement Friday after 30 years as host of the late-night talk show.

New band leader Branford Marsalis unveiled a high-octane jazz-and-funk theme song to replace the blasting, big band sound of Doc Severinsen's

In his opening monologue, Leno milked a theme that Carson got lots of mileage from last week — Quayle's criticism of the CBS television show "Murphy Brown" for portraying single motherhood as an acceptable lifestyle.

"This is "The Tonight Show," Leno said. "The one TV show that Dan Quayle hates even more than 'Murphy Brown.'" His first guests were comedian Billy Crystal.

singer Shanice and CBS economic correspondent Crystal sang a song called "Dear Mr. Leno," a parody of Bette Midler's ode to Carson on his next-to-last show.

"You made me first guest, I didn't want to do it, my agent really blew it," he sang.
Less winced as Crystal uttered several mild vulgarities on the show, which was being brondcast live to the East Coast.

The live broadcasts are to continue this week ecause of NBC's coverage of the National solutional Association playeffs. Carson routinely sped the show three hours before it aired.

Bhanice sang her bit single, "I Love Your inde," and Krulwich offered a lighthearted xplanation of how American corporate executives are overpaid.

While the show's format remained loosely the same, the feet was decidedly different. He concluded his monologue with a taped segment fun at imprisoned hotel magnate Leona Helmaley. Marsalia and his band received ample time on camera, in contrast to Severinsen's largely off-camera duties as band leader. And Leno's tone was self-effacing and conversational, while Carson favored sharp and witty repartee. A new set featured Romanesque arches and pillers and a backdrop depicting the Los Angeles constline. Leno has actively recruited harder-edged bands, including "The Black Crowes," who are scheduled Wednesday. Careful not to dialodge the public spotlight surrounding Carson's final show, the network waited until he was gone to launch a massive commercial campaign over the weekend promoting Leno.

Wind profilers improve weather forecasts

WASHINGTON - Lying on your back in the middle of a field, looking straight up, pro-vides a great view of what the sky is doing. So scientists have adapted that idea for a new collection of wind-watching radars - with better weather forecasts as the result. "If you don't know which way the wind is blowing, you're not going to make a very good forecast," says Alexander E. MacDonald, director of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Forecast Systems Laboratory in Boulder.

The new wind profilers tell forecasters not just which way the wind is blowing, but how fast it's going — crucial information for people trying to anticipate the development and movement

The machines look like 40-foot by 40-foot bedsprings, but they can measure wind direction and speed several miles straight up.

And they do it every few For years weather observers have been collecting high-level wind information by sending up balloons. But that is done at scattered sites and only every 12 hours. A lot can change between balloons.

So, over the last two years a "demonstration" network of 30 wind profilers has been installed.

at a cost of $16 million.

And the weathermen say it's a

Indeed, MacDonald said scientists would like to see the network extended to the East and Gulf coasts and Caribbean to improve hurricane tracking. and to Alaska to better study incoming winter storms.

The new machinery is detailing the little-understood lowlevel jet winds that move weather as little as 500 yards in the air, it helps warn pilots about dangerous turbulence in clear skies and has sharply improved forecasting storms, reports Rick D. Ewald of the National Weather Service in Kansas City. In addition MacDonald said the improved forecasts can help aircraft plan routes to save fuel and help farmers by giving them better predictions of wind, temperatures, freezing rain, dew, evaporation and heavy snow and MacDonald tells of the March 9 blissard in the Denver area, for example.

Traditional forecasts called for 4 inches of snow. Forecasts based on wind profiler data predicted 20 inches. It was a 20-inch snowstorm.

The radar sends an electronic pulse straight up and then listens to 't echo back from moving air overhead.

By measuring the time a series of pulses takes to come back, the radar can determine wind speed and direction at various levels.

And by sending out a sound pulse, and measuring how air molecules overhead are displaced by the sound wave, the machine can also determine air temperatures overhead. MacDonald explains.

The first operational wind profiler was installed two years ago in Boulder, Colo. The final one went into operation earlier this month at Blue River, Wis.

The network is concentrated in the central states because that is the region of the most active weather, from tornado alley in Texas and Oklahoma north to blizzard country.

Information from the machines is funneled into a hub in Boulder and from there fed to National Weather Service offices for use in making forecasts. As meteorologists continue to use the information their skills should Improve, MacDonald

Should a national profiler network be established? The machines are costly. MacDonald noted. He suggested that an East and Gulf Coast network would be important in making better forecasts of where hurricanes will go.

Spring football schedule

SANFORD - Seminole High School will host the Spring Football Jamboree Priday, May 29th at Thomas E. Whigham Pield starting at 7 p.m. Admission will be $3.

The first and second quarters will have Lake Mary playing Lake Brantley, Oviedo and Lake Howell will square off in the third quarter, Seminole will face Lake Howell in the fourth quarter and Seminole and Oviedo will play the fifth and final quarter.

Sunitays sweep deuce

ORLANDO - Pinch-hitter Ray Ortriz hit a grand slam in the seventh Monday to lead Orlando to a 5-1 victory in a sweep of a Southern Lengue doublehender against Chattanooga. Earlier, designated-hitter Dan Masteller hit a solo homer in the bottom of the seventh to give Orlando a 4-3 victory in the first game of the Memorial Day doubleheader with the Lookouts.

In the first game, Al Newman (3-0) got the win, while Chattanooga reliever Jerry Spradlin (0-2) took the loss.

CORAL GABLES - Miami's 5-1 win over Notre Dame was a dream come true.

"That was their goal in September, to get to the College World Series," said an ebullient coach Ron Fraser. "And they're here. It was mine, too, and I thank them for taking me for a great ride."

Jeff Alkire's four-hit pitching and Chad Rupp's two-run homer sparked the win Monday, giving the Hurricanes the Atlantic Regional title and a berth in the College World Series.

For the soon-to-retire Fraser, the trip to Omaha will be the 12th in a sterling 30-year career, including national titles in 1962 and 1965. This year's team is too-ranked (53-8).

Fourth-seeded Notre Dame (48-15) had reached the final by defeating South Carolina 11-2 in an earlier semifinal. The Irish were bidding for their first College World Series appearance since 1967.

Alkire (13-2) pitched to the minimum 18 batters in the first six innings before allowing a double to Greg Layson and a run-accoring ground-out to Craig Counsell. gest and

SANFORD - Is this Sanford's year to win it

The 1992 Little Major League All-Star team has been announced and it appears to be one of the strongest teams ever put together by Sanford.

Six of the 15 players tabbed for the team come from the Korg U.S.A. Expos and K-n-D Trailer Hitch Red Sox that had a combined 28-4 record this season (25-1 in the regular season).

Chaz Lytle, Ned Raines and Alex Jacot were named from the City Champion and National Division winning Expos that went 15-1, while Antonio White. Terrance Perkins and Trelits Smith were named from the city runners-up and American Division champion Red Box.

Lytle and Perkins both won games in the City Championships, while Raines is extremely fast and a good hitter and Smith and White both have Coaching the team will be the Expos coachin staff of Manager Charlie Lytle and coaches Jeff Small and Tom Boyd. While the trio will lead the team into battle in the Sub-District Tourn next month. Lytle has invited all of the head coaches from the Little Majors to attend practice and lend help and advice on their former players.

Also named were Terrance "TUG" Daniels from the Railroaders Cubs, Chad Sheffield and Barry Porter from the Rinker Materials Dodgers, Bruce Carter from the Sunniland Corporation Pirates, Terrel Hunt from the Cattle Ranch Cardinals, Brian Seelbinder and James Drake from the Fisher, Laurenace & Deen Blue Jays. Brent Templeton from the Sanford Ace Hardware Orioles and Robert Hampton from the Disabled American Veterans Royals.

Pitcher-catcher Terreil Jackson, catcher-outfielder Craig Stevens, third baseman Lloyd Dixon and pitcher-outfielder Jason Wildermuth will represent the Cardinal team that went 12-1 in the regular season and swept the City Championship in two straight games. Willie Williams, Terrance Jenkins and Robert Dickerson were named from the Royals.

All-Star manager Tommy Keiger also had four of his players picked for the team. His Moose Lodge Pirates finished the season 11-2 and missed the city playoffs by one game. George Beasley, Quintin Hunt, Alexis Acosta and Ryan Colgate were the Pirates named.

Also voted to the squad by the league's coaches were Cliff Branch from the Woodman of the World A's, Adrian Knight from the Security National Bank Blue Jays, Tony Lewis from the Hungry Howie Cubs and Matt Mehalko from the Templeton Roofing Expos.

First 13-year-old "Prep" team set

By SEAN (MITTH) Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD - The first ever all 13-year-old All-Star team has been named to represent Sanford in the upcoming Babe Ruth League Tournament in DeLand.

Figuring that most all-star team will be made up of 14 and 15 year olds, the Babe Ruth organization came up with the Prep Division so that deserving younger players can get recogni-tion and experience for next year.

Leading the team will be a quartet of players that were major contributors to the Knights of Columbus Cardinals team that finished 14-1 and won the City Championship and National Division titles for the second straight year.

Pitcher-first baseman Richard Hadger, who threw a one-hitter in the final game of the City Championships, infielder Robert Randall and outileiders ivory Peterson and Byron Deese were named from the Cardinals.

Also voted to the team were Tommy Raines from the American Division winning Rotary Club Royals, Marcus Bensley from the National runners-up Moose Lodge Pirates and Bart Dixon, Albert Harris and Major Fisher from the American runners-up Kiwania Club Oriolea.

Completing the 15-member squad are hardhitting Walter Bryant from the Hungry Howie Cubs. Brett and Bartt Counts from the Templeton Roofing Expos and Aaron Knight and Pablan McKinney Knight from the Security National Bank Blue Jaya.

Cardinals assistant Robert Smith will manage the team. Because of business committments Cardinals head coach Otis Raines will not able to manage the team, but will be an assistant, along with Dean W. Smith and Dean L. Smith.

St. James nabe rookie award

INDIVIVIOR James was named the first female and the oldest driver ever to win Rookie of the Year honors in the Indianapolis 500. The 45-year-old St. James, who finished 11th, was the only one of seven rookies still running at the end.

Official results and earnings were also announced a day after the race. They showed both winner Al Unser Jr. and runner-up Scott Goodyear completed 500 miles at an average speed of 134.477 mph. Unser, who earned $1,244,184, finished in 3 hours, 43 minutes, 5.148 seconds. Goodyear, who made $609,333, was 0.043 seconds back at 3:43:06.191. The previous record for a close finish was 0.16 seconds by Gordon Johncock over Rick Mears in 1982. Al Unser Sr. was third and Eddie Cheever moved up from sixth to fourth after a one-lap penalty was reversed by the U.S. Auto Club. The official results also credited four-time winner A.J. Foyt with one more lap completed, moving him from 10th to ninth.

A heavy thunderstorm kept Pete Sampras and Jennifer Capriati from completing their firstround matches Monday, while John McEnroe never even got on court.

McEnroe, playing in possibly his last French Open, was scheduled to follow Capriati on center court for the last match of the day.

Organizers thought McEnroe was a worthy center court attraction. Not so for Courier, who was relegated to court No. 1.

Help find 'Best Dad' in county

The Sanford Herald is searching for an area dad deserving of our annual 'Dad of the Year' title.

We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges.

Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special dad a plus. Your nominee need not be your own

Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County.

Here's how to enter: Write us a letter about a special dad. telling us why he's so special.

printed legibly. Include the nominee's name, street address, city, and daytime phone number at the top of your letter.

Hockey player still skates through life

By BOL PROMIAN Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Canadian native Walter Mills, 55, doesn't let any grass grow under his feet since retiring from his career, as a professional hockey player. He will sell you a used car at his lot on Sanford Avenue. And you can probably catch him, if you can, on his rollerblades.

"I can't remember when I couldn't skate." he said.

When he was 15 years old. playing league hockey in the midget bracket in New Brunswick, Canada, Walter was spotted by Phil Watson, then coach of the Quebec Junior Frontanac team, and signed to a player's contract.

"In those days, a scout or coach would give you a card to sign, and that bound you to whatever team he represented until you were released," he said. "If you wanted to play for somebody else, you had to negotiate a release from your contract."

Not to be denied. Walter played hockey there for the oldest league in Canada, the North Shore Hockey League. His new teammates were grown men on their individual career paths either up or down from the National Hockey League. He continued to move from team to team, he said, until he was 27 years old when his professional hockey career ended.

During the 1959-60 season, while playing for the Windsor Maple Leafs, a skate penetrated his left calf, causing a lasting injury that worsened with time.

he said. Despite cortisone injections, he eventually realised the injury would hamper any chance to perfect his skills and advance professionally beyond

"In those days we didn't have skate guards and helmets," Walter said. "There were no masks for goal tenders, and the only protection you had was your skill with skates and the stick." For this dangerous undertaking he was paid the mini-mum wage of $6,280 per year. he said.

His injury didn't prevent his participation in the 1964 New Brunswick Senior Hockey League Championship game be-tween the team with which he ended his career, the Fredericton Capitals, and their opponents, the St. John Mooseheads. He remembers that game with particular fondness, since one of the members of the opposing team was Billy Donovan, who also covered the sport for the local paper.

"They had written articles about how they were going to kill us," Walter said. The Capitals won the first match, but their victory was recalled when it was learned that one of the Capital players had played in four rather than three games. exceeding his eligibility by one dame. A rematch was set and tempers were high.

Walter, a rowdy player at all times, said he was known as the clown prince of hockey. When he spotted his nemesis on the ice before the game, he skated out and clipped Donovan, who sailed into the air.

"A Nova Scotia referee gave us a warning." Walter said, but his move seemed to inspire the Capitals, who went on to win the contest 7-to-3, and then advanced to capture the Eastern Canadian title.

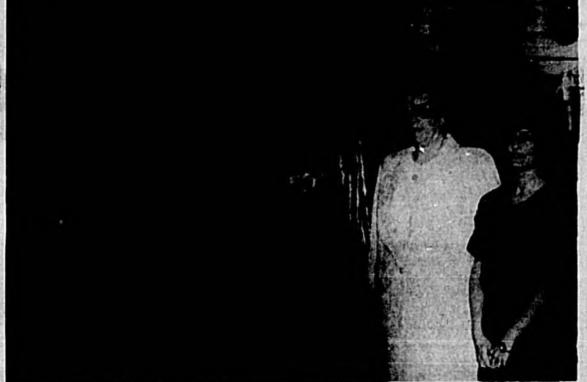

Billy Donovan went on to become editor-in-chief of the Journal-Telegraph newspaper. Walter said. "And I gave him something to write about."

When his professional playing career ended, he spent another two seasons coaching the Fredericton team, while raising standard bred horses and selling cars at his brother's Canadian lot during the off-season. In 1967, he came to the United States via the Ben White Raceway in Orlando, and traveled the horse racing circuit for a number of years before joining a Longwood car dealership as a salesman. Seven years ago he leased the lot at 2621 South Sanford Avenue, and opened his

Child should be raised by loving people

DEAR ABBY: I work in a hospital. Two of our social workers have had a longstanding lesbian relationship. Recently, one of them had artificial insemination and gave birth to a baby boy.

I know that many children are raised by their mothers with very little parental input from their fathers, but I feel that the raising of this boy by a lesbian couple cannot be in the best interest of the child. I am left to ponder the extreme selfishness of these two women, and the motive of the physician who enabled this pregnancy.

If the gods first make mad those they wish to destroy, we must be well on our way.

OLD-PASHIONED IN GLENDALE DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: Some people have further to go than others. I commend the physician who enabled the pregnancy and believe it is always in the best interest of a child to be raised by two people who love each other.

What's American?

In world economy, 'U.S. made' means less

NEW YORK - What's an American product?

Is it a TV made by U.S.-based Zenith at a Mexican plant? A a California factory half owned by Toyota? A Gap polo shirt sewn in Honduras from cloth cut in the United States?

To truly be American, you can't drive a Chevrolet Lumina sedan (assembled in Canada), eat at Burger King (owned by a British company) or buy grocer-ics at the A&P (German-identical products on a store shelf may be imported or domestic depending on when they were ordered. Seemingly American brande often are foreign owned. And foreign brands can be made in the United States.

In fact, many economists, trade experts, manufacturers and business people believe that in a world of international trade and multinational corporations. increasingly there's no such thing as an "American" product.

hey also say the question
misses the point. What matters today is where goods are made, the type of jobs they provide, the benefit to communities and the advantages for consumers, not whose flag flies over corporate headquarters.

"Almost any one product weighing more than 10 pounds and costing more than $10 these days is a global composite. combining parts or services from many different nations," said Robert B. Reich, a Harvard political economist.

"Decades ago, 'Made in America' meant something," he said. "Today it's more deceptive than helpful."

A frenzy over American-made goods has erupted in the weeks since President Bush's acrimonious trade mission to Japan. With impassioned rhetoric and anti-Japan commentary. the debate reflects a worried nation locked in an election-year

Members of Congress have backed legislation to protect the U.S. auto industry. Business groups have aired "pro-American" ads. Companies have to buy American cars. Cities and towns have canceled orders to Japan.

"We're losing our shirts in this country. We're losing our dresses too," begins a television ad by the Crafted With Pride in the U.S.A. Council, a textile industry marketing group.

The ad shows a seemingly endless line of people snaking across a countryside to a city unemployment office, implying 500,000 U.S. textile jobs have been lost to foreign countries in the last decade.

"The worst part is we're doing this to ourselves," the voice-over says. "Because we're buying so many imports. The time to look out for ourselves is now. Buy American, and we won't have to throw in the towel."

Some of the hysteria has backfired. Town leaders of Greece, N.Y., discovered that a Komatsu Ltd. excavating machine they rejected was made in the United States and a John Deere Co. model they chose instead used an engine from

In the 10 days after Bush's trip, domestic sales of cars and trucks made by the three big U.S. automakers fell 5 percent. Sales of Japanese cars made in North America rose 22 percent.

So which is more American? A Chrysler Eagle Summit made at Mitsubishi's Diamond-Star Motors plant in Normal, Ill., containing 52 percent U.S. parts, or a Toyota Camry made in Georgetown, Ky., with 74 percent American parts?

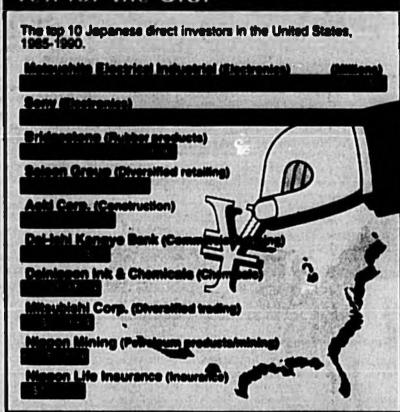

And what constitutes an 'American" part anyway? The question can be carried to almost ridiculous extremes. Is it where the ore was mined? Where the steel was forged? Where the part was molded?

For all their bellyaching about

Japan, the Big Three often fail to note that Ford owns 24 percent of Mazda, GM owns 38 percent of lauxu and Chrysler owns 11 percent of Mitsubishi Motors. Ford owns Jaguar outright, GM owns Lotus. Chrysler owns Lamborghini.

And the Big Three continue to import parts and raw materials such as steel from Japan (though Chrysler said last week it would end all steel imports by 1994).

It is not abnormal for an automobile assembled in Yen for the U.S.

Which Japanese firms have spent the most to buy or invest in U.S. compenies and properties? Metsushita, the biggest spender, funneled over $5 billion into American enterprises from 1985 to 1980. Sony ran a close second.

America to contain parts from the United States, Japan. Korea and Mexico. GM's Chevrolet division — the "Heartbeat of America" — imports most of its Geo line. Ford makes Mercury Tracers in Mexico. Chrysler's Dodge Colts are made in Japan.

In addition to tens of thousands of jobs, foreign automakers have provided revenues that have invigorated

Toyota is paying Georgetown, Ky., more than $1 million annually for 20 years in lieu of taxes. Nissan, whose 4-year-old Smyrna, Tenn., plant employs 4,300 people, paid the town $1.25 million last year — about 20 percent of its budget.

Smyrna also hosts a Canadian-owned Better-Bilt Aluminum Products Co. factory, which employs 700 people, and a French-owned Square D Co. electronics plant with 375 workers. That blue-collar town ien't complaining about foreign investment.

"R's a helluva lot better to buy Nissans that are made in Serbirna, Tennessee, than ones made in Zama, Japan," said Sam Ridley, the town's 72-year-old former mayor, who negotiated the deal with Nissan.

"We're only making them for Americans, that's what I say, Made by Americans, sold to Americans with a Japanese name and product," said Ridley, who is no Japan apologist. He fought in World War II and volunteers that "I still call 'em Japs."

Many economists agree that what's important is creating jobs in America — regardless of who creates them - because that improves the economy.

Location means jobs, which means standard of living," said Howard Rosen, an economist at the Institute for International Economics in Washington. "Standard of living is the ultimate measure of economic success. That's what this is all about."

But foreign plant ownership does have other consequences.

American unions, for one, have lost some power as traditionally non-union Japanese auto companies have opened plants. U.S. automakem have lost market share to the stiffer competition.

Foreign companies also can gain a stranglehold on an industry, such as Japan's nearmonopoly in making flat screens for portable computers, said Laura D'Andrea Tyson, a trade expert at the University of California at Berkeley. Companies enjoying such dominance could control supply and price. she said.

And since most Americans don't own stock in foreign companies, they don't earn dividends or other shareholder benefits from foreign-owned plants.

U.S. manufacturing jobs have been disappearing for decades, from 34 percent of the total employment force in 1950 to 17 percent in 1990, federal statistics show. The job losses including 1 million in the last two years - partly reflect cheaper labor costs overseas.

That's devastated some industries, particularly textile manufacturing. Imports of cotton, wool, synthetic fibers, textiles and apparel have risen 27 percent since 1965, according to the Commerce Department.

"There are social costs that are associated with this that are monumental," Tyson said. She said the nation needs more retraining and other programs for dialocated workers. Economists say the trend toward multinationalism is only growing. In many respects, companies like International Business Machines Corp., Grand Metropolitan PLC, Siemens AG and Sony Corp. are American. British, German and Japanese in name only.

"They build their products all over the world. They ship across borders." said Bruce L. Townsend, who advises companies on international manufacturing for Coopers & Lybrand, an accounting and consulting firm.

Going TV shopping? Good luck finding sets made in America

NEW YORK - Looking for a TV and want to buy American? Good luck.

Many sets carry labels that sound all-American: Zenith. General Electric, RCA. Sylvania. Magnavox and Quasar. But in fact, almost none are entirely domestic products, based on who owns the company or where the sets are made.

Zenith Electronics Corp., the last U.S.-owned television company, is moving final assembly of all its large-acreen sets to Mexico, where it has assembled many of them since 1985. Its smaller sets have been imported for years.

A number of other foreign companies also produce sets in this country, including Sharp Electronics Corp., Toshiba Corp. and Sony Corp.

Zenith Chairman Jerry Pearlman said that despite the fact his company is moving TV assembly from Missouri to Mexico, the new arrangement continues to benefit the U.S.

Counseling may help

18-year-old grandson responds quite badly during a full moon, is there any connection between his deplorable behavior and the

DEAR READER: For centuries, the cycles of the moon have been blamed for various human behaviors. In particular, ancient people believed that s was related to a full moon. (Remember that "lunacy" is derived from the Latin word for "moon.") This myth has been perpetuated over the centuries, the latest manifestation being werewolves, who supposedly change from human to animal form during the full moon.

I am not aware of any valid scientific study showing moon-related behavioral changes.

Nonetheless, this fantasy is well-rooted in folklore. I'm con-vinced that this phenomenon may be a self-fulfilling prophecy: If someone believes his activities are related to lunar phases, he will behave that way. Rather than blame a celestial body for your grandson's "de-plorable," cyclic behavior, you should consider taking him for counseling. With therapy, he will begin to understand that he (not the heavens) is responsible for his behavior. This realization may enable him to make the necessary changes in his attitude, without his family having to resort to the more drastic, traditional treatments; a stake through the heart or a silver bullet.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Because of undue wear-and-tear of the tibial and fibular ligaments. I now have an extremely unstable knee. Can surgery correct this?

DEAR READER: Yes, it will but I cannot judge which surgery. The condition you mention, which is usually due to an injury, leads to instability of and pain in the knee. In its mild/moderate form, rest followed by physical therapy will allow for healing and eventual return to normal. S orthopedic surgeons may have to operate to repr

However, severe forms of lig amentous damage may not heal in these cases, total knee re placement (with an artificial

By Phillip Alder
Declarer thought things were going swimmingly on today's hand, but then suddenly there was a nasty turn of events. However, it didn't discombobulate him for long.

If you would like to test yourself, cover the East-West cards and plan the play in six hearts. West leads the spade South's opening bid showed a good 20 to 22 points. Many players have a 20-21 point-range for their two-no-trump opening bid. I think this is wrong. If you have a balanced 20-point hand with no five-card suit, you should usually open with one of a suit. You can rarely make a game unless partner has sufficient values to rake up a onelevel response.

North's three-diamond response was a transfer bid. showing at least five hearts.

South jumped to game because his hand was so suitable for play in hearts. And North jumped to alam because he thought his partner could make it.

Declarer won the spade lead with the ace, drew trumps ending in hand, and ruffed his spade loser in the dummy. He played a diamond to his ace and cashed his three club winners ending in diamond, but East discarded a

"Oh no!" he thought words to that effect.

Then he realized he had no problem. He just played the diamond four from hand. West won with the nine but was endplayed. If he returned a diamond, it would be into South's K-J tenace. If he led his remaining black-suit card. declarer would ruff in one hand and discard his diamond loser from the other. Either way, the slam was guaranteed.
