

Sanford Theater News for the Coming Week

RAY MILLAND, playing an airplane builder and test pilot of his own planes, emerges from a crackup in this thrilling scene from "Men With Wings," the Technicolor epic coming Sunday to the Ritz Theatre. His pal, Andy Devine, helps him from the wreckage.

Latest Technicolor Film Is A History Of Aviation's Rise

The dramatic story of the men and women pioneers of the air—a generation which includes such great names as Wilbur and Orville Wright, Glenn Curtiss, Blériot, Lindbergh, Amelia Earhart, Wiley Post and Howard Hughes—is told in Paramount's new aviation epic in Technicolor, "Men With Wings," which opens next Sunday at the Ritz Theatre.

Although most other examples of the genre have been glorified war and sea epics on the screen, "Men With Wings" marks the first time the story of the heroes who developed the airplane from the "flying bicycle" of the Wrights to the super flyers of the present day has been told. Through the eyes of three of its leading characters, played by Ray Milland, Andy Devine and Louise Campbell, "Men With Wings" traces the history of aviation from its first flight at the dawn of the twentieth century down to its present-day triumphs.

The picture opens with mankind's first triumph against the air, the historic flight of the Wright Brothers above the dunes at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, in 1903. The only reporter witnessing the great event is a small town newspaperman, played by Walter Abel, the father of Miss Campbell, whose enthusiasm starts his young daughter and her two young friends, MacMurray and Milland, on their aviation career.

As the dramatic story of "Men With Wings" unfolds, the three friends are carried forward in the torrential surge of aviation's progress. The outcome of flying's struggle for life at the opening of the century means success or failure to them. The World War, when the machine they have built threatens to destroy civilization itself, means life and death. Swept along by a force they cannot even explain, they rush on through boom days of the twenties, with Miss Campbell playing a sparkling romance between a young aviator whom Barker has taken under his wing, and Barker's daughter, who believes herself an orphan whose father was killed at the battle of Verdun.

Uproarious Comedy Gives New View Of Conduct In Prison

The usually somber, gray walls of a state prison are transformed into a background for uproarious comedy in 20th Century-Fox's "Up The River," due to open Tuesday at the Ritz Theatre.

Announced as a continuation of music, broad comedy situations and once the football fall for dear old "Pen" the film features Fred Tom Foster, Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks, Slim Summerville, Arthur Treacher and Bill Robinson as inmates of a stretch-hall penitentiary whose they have a radio in every cell and gates that are usually fully revolving doors.

The cycle of grand prison melodramas with their solemn and worthy messages of social reform has almost run itself out in the opinion of Alfred Werker, who directed "Up the River."
"And that," says Werker with a gleam in his eye, "leaves the prison gates wide open to farce!"
So Werker and his cast walk right in, and in a spirit of pure boisterous fun, turned out a picture which is reported to be one of the funniest comedies of recent months—even though it is, as Werker admits, "socially unconscious."

According to Werker, the story focuses on a group of inmates—some of them taking post-graduate work at Rockwell Pen, which boasts the best football team in the "Big Pen Conference," and a warden who'd do anything to see his boys win.
Lovely Phyllis Brooks is seen as the sweetheart of Tony Martin. Both of them are serving time, innocent victims of a confidence racket. During a performance of the "Big Pen Conference," Tony's team—Foster and Treacher—stage a break so that they can cheer Tony's and Phyllis' name on the outside. This accomplished, they return to their Alamo State Jail in time to enter the final quarter of the season's big game.
An interesting highlight of the production of "Up The River" is the fact that Tony Martin, Preston Foster and Arthur Treacher, who play on the team, all have had actual football experience, although Treacher's knowledge of the game was limited to rugby, and in the film he plays center.

PRESTON FOSTER, Arthur Treacher and Slim Summerville (left to right) are all members of the screwball-and-chain gang, who are out and in so often that the warden wants revolving doors for prison gates, in "Up The River," the 20th Century-Fox prison comedy opening Tuesday at the Ritz Theatre.

Joe E. Brown Laugh Modern Day Version Star Of Latest Hit Of Cattle Rustling Flirting With Fate At Ritz Thursday

Seldom, if ever, has Joe E. Brown been as generous with his humor as in "Flirting With Fate," a side-splitting, rib-ticking comedy conception which moves with pace and tempo and manages to leave in the laughter with a goodly sprinkling of thrills.

As the harassed manager of a vaudeville troupe stranded in South America, Brown proves once more to audiences of the Ritz Theatre, that he is past master of pantomime, clown prince of hilarity and an athlete of no mean skill.
He is aided by the story which is more than a framework upon which to string laughs. Solidly constructed, it adds to the comedy by building bigger laughs through suspense.
Again, the star has been given the most capable cast ever to perform with him. In Leo Carillo, he has a running-mate who adds breeziness, gallantry and a dashing dandyism to the film. In the role of a lovable bandit chieftain, What happens when a bold racketeer tries to rule his spirited young son by the same methods he uses in the underworld is shown in the new Akim Tamiroff drama, "Ride a Crooked Mile," opening Thursday as the new attraction at the Ritz Theatre.
In one of the most unusual roles he has ever played, Tamiroff will be seen as the bold, law-defying super-racketeer, who rules his underlings with a hand of iron but needs his match in his stalwart twenty-year-old son, Jeff Erikson, plays the young man who is forced to choose between the authority of his parent and his honor as a member of the United States army. Frances Farmer, a girl whose romance with Erikson Tamiroff opposes.
The story of "Ride a Crooked Mile" was written by John C. Stoffit, a former Kansas City newspaper reporter, who bases his plot on the activities of "Boss" Eastman, in the southwest region of Kansas.

The Bumsteeds Are Six Guns Make "Law Newest Comic Stars West Of Tombstone" To Invade Filmland In Thrilling Story

The Bumsteeds—Blondie, Doc and Baby Dumping—are in the movies! The popular characters of Chic Young's famous comic strip will be seen in Columbia's "Blondie," first of a projected new series, starting Thursday at the Ritz Theatre.

Portraying Blondie is Penny Singleton, vivacious young musical comedy star of "Good News," "Follow Through" and "Hey Nonny Nony." Doc's role is taken by Arthur Lake, an old hand at portraying comic strip characters, whose most notable role previously was "Harold Teen." Seen as Baby Dumping is four-year-old Larry Simms, a screen neophyte whose previous major distinction is that he's the living image of his comic strip counterpart.
"Blondie" takes the Bumsteeds over the well known bumpers, both financial and domestic. The complications are satisfactorily ironed out, however, and peace reigns again in the happy life of the

Just what case will be taken by Stanford in the newest move was uncertain last night. He has maintained that there has been no strike at his plant, that the pickets walked out on him when he attempted to put an "seasonal adjustment" or "pickering scale" from a "spot" to "piecing" basis. He has maintained that in order to keep faith with growers with whom he had contracted to purchase their fruit, he had to employ pickers to resume operations and the CIO men refused to return to work on the basis which he offered.

Walker States Citrus Brings Lowest Prices

Testimony Given At Hearing On Proposed Marketing Agreement For Industry

1,000 Fruit Men Attend Parley

Secretary Of Trade Group Foresees Even Larger Crops

LAKELAND, Dec. 12 (AP)—Mary H. Walker of Lakeland said today that Florida oranges, grapefruit and tangerines this season have been bringing the lowest prices in the history of the state's fruit industry.

Walker, secretary and manager of the Florida Citrus Producers' Trade Association, testified at a public hearing called by Secretary Wallace on the proposed citrus marketing agreement designed to control interstate shipments, regulate the quality of the fruit sent to outside markets and bring growers and shippers better prices.

Approximately 1,000 fruitmen heard Walker declare that "pink" prices and a record crop had brought the industry face to face with a serious situation.

Walker presented a lengthy statement augmented by a number of statistical reports which outlined the present situation as complicated by the fact that every town factor points to still larger crops for the coming five to ten years.

He said the Florida orange and tangerine crop had increased about 11 percent over last season and grapefruit crop 25 percent.

As hundreds of fruit men began assembling for the session, indications were that much of the testimony to be submitted to the AAA would involve suggested volume control of Valencia orange shipments.

The pact as drafted by shippers and grower groups calls for control and size regulation of orange, grapefruit and tangerine movements and for Valencia volume control.

Although both groups agreed some form of an agreement was needed to prevent market congestion and bolster prices depressed by a bumper fruit crop, there was a sharp division of opinion on the projected control provisions.

Growers generally sought volume regulations for Valencia while shippers, especially cash buyers, expressed opposition to any volume restriction of the Valencia crop.

The Florida industry operated last year without an agreement. Under the proposed new pact, growers and shippers each would nominate eight members to a committee and alternate for appointment by Secretary Wallace to one-year terms. The grower group would handle administrative problems. Marketing restriction and quota recommendations would be made by the shippers' committee. Marketing orders would be issued each week during the season by the secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Wallace also would fix a levy on interstate fruit shipments to finance administration of the agreement.

Sanford May Be Principal City On Inland Canal

Cross State Waterway To Tampa Is Party Favored In Report

In the event that certain proposed inland waterways for Florida are constructed, Sanford will become a key city on a system of inland canals with water north to the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean.

The War Department reported today favorably toward the proposed canal improvement of a waterway from the St. Johns River at near Sanford to Tampa and Tampa Bay. The report was received by the Board of County Commissioners from United States Army Engineer J. E. Bain of Richmond, Va.

The proposed navigable route through the heart of Florida's citrus producing section is being given the backing of large citrus growers and shippers.

Completing the picture for an intra-coastal canal is the proposed St. Johns River Canal from Sanford to the East Coast, and the proposed $115,000,000 port at Cape Canaveral, which is being backed by numerous prominent leaders over the State and was given the endorsement of the Seeminle County Commission at its last meeting.

A group of Army Engineers spent some time here with members of the St. Johns River Improvement Association and Senator C. O. Andrews Saturday discussing the proposed canal route to the East coast which, according to present plans, would open into the Indian River at a point near the proposed port from which products could be shipped in international commerce.

It has been pointed out that these proposed canals not only have a commercial value in affording transportation but also have flood control and drainage features.

For the proposed water route to Tampa, the canal would follow inland waterways, small lakes and rivers, from the St. Johns River to Tampa Bay, necessitating little dredging through the open, flat country enroute.

While the proposed improvement for the upper part of the canal did not receive the recommendation of the engineers, the report provided that any interested parties have the privilege to appeal the conclusion of the department.

The report from Col. Bain reads in part as follows: "It having come to the notice of the undersigned that you have expressed an interest in the pending proposition for the improvement of a waterway from the St. Johns River at or near Sanford, Fla., to Tampa by way of the Kissimmee and Alafia Rivers and Tampa Bay, you are hereby informed that I have followed a quarrel."

Membership In National Body Urged; For $127,000 Loan State Heads Adopt New Set Of By-Laws And Grant Is Turned Down By PWA

An address by Philip C. Ebeling, president of the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce, in which he outlined the growth and development of the national organization, and the annual winter conference of the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce which was held in Sanford, Fla., Sunday.

At the morning luncheon which was presided over by the President of Miami, state president, a new set of by-laws and charter amendments were adopted which provided for the organization making for more efficient operation.

A large number of delegates from all parts of Florida were present for the winter conference during which Ebeling addressed the group.

The official opening of the conference was held at the Hotel Commodore headquarters, Saturday night, when the official opening of the new hotel, which recently had been placed under new management, was being celebrated. The hotel had been closed for some time because of the water damage caused by the late season's heavy rains.

Head from the free press will be held in the afternoon at the hotel. The hotel had been closed for some time because of the water damage caused by the late season's heavy rains.

At the time of the conference, 200 persons on the program and hundreds of low guests were either in their rooms or looking out of the dining room.

When the local first department announced a call to the hotel, made by Manager T. R. Archibald, the dining room on minutes' notice.

Manager Archibald said no food had been made to distribute the evening, most of which was carried by water. The flame was confined to the one room he said.

Chief Cleveland said, "The only trouble we experienced in handling the blaze was in turning off the water once it had started to flow, because the huge eight-inch valve never having been used since installed 11 years ago could not be turned by hand."

In his address at the closing dinner, Mr. Ebeling reviewed briefly the work of the National organization and spoke on the trends of activities for the coming year. Speaking on the subject "Why Local Clubs Should become members of the National Organization," the national president outlined six points in his argument.

He stressed the necessity of having a centralized organization which makes for greater efficiency in the growth and development of the Junior Chamber. He said that at present the national organization has nearly 500 local clubs and that memberships are increasing at the rate of three weekly.

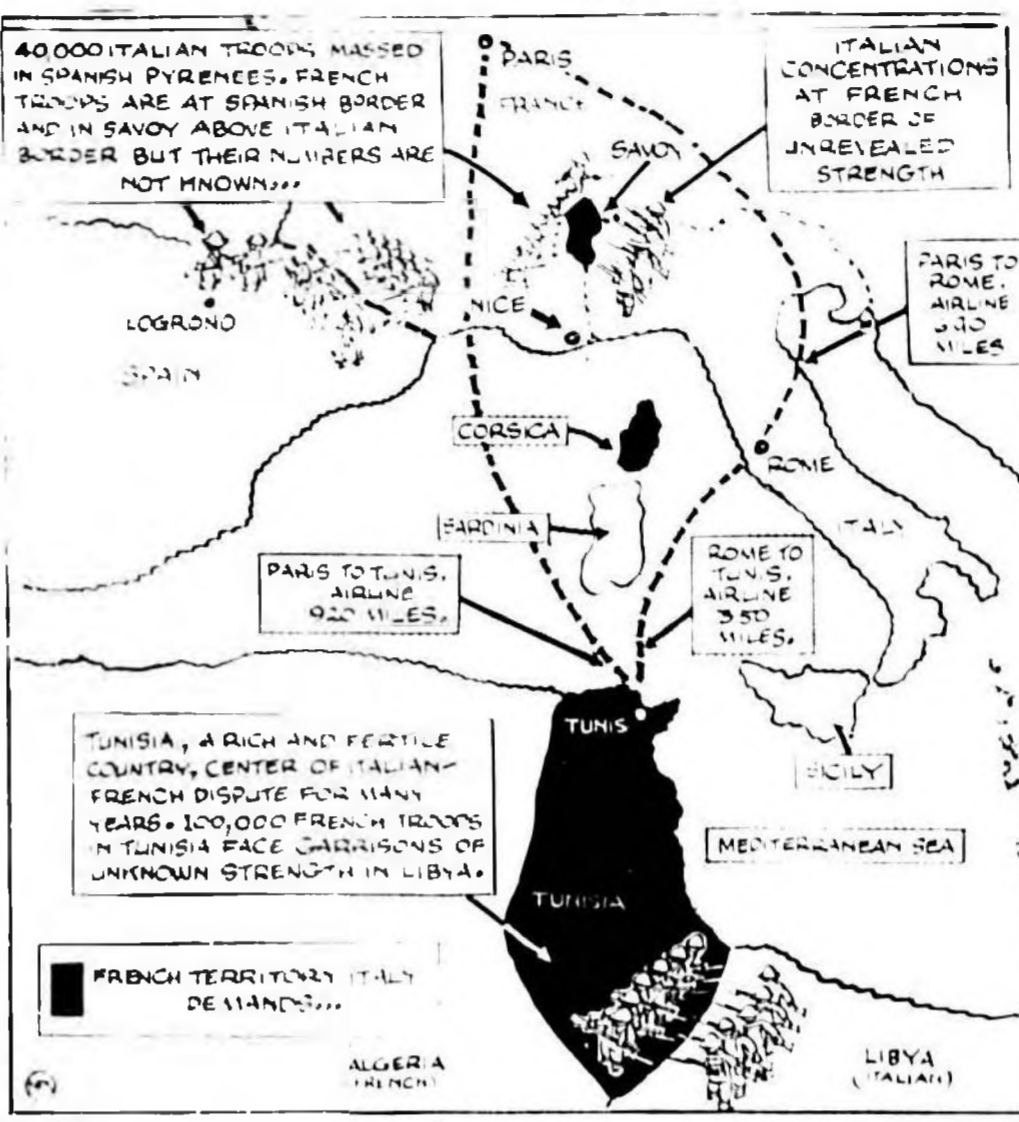

A huge hallelujah cake was cut in honor of the National president at the dinner.

At the business session, State President Smith pointed out that the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce received its first impetus in Sanford 14 years ago when the first club in the state was formed. He said there are now more than 5,000 members in 40 Florida cities.

"Blind" Driving

London's famed "pea soup" fogs and the white blankets of condensed vapor, which have made the Newfoundland Grand Banks the bane of mariners, had nothing on the atmospheric condition, which prevailed along the highways of Seminole County Saturday night and which made navigation by motor car an experience resembling an ant's perambulation through an angel food cake.

It seems that the condensation of vapor in fine particles of water near the ground became mixed with smoke, arising from woods' fires and smudge pots, causing an impenetrable fog. Not in the memory of many Seminole County residents has there been such an unholy alliance between the atmosphere and the ordinary hazard of motoring.

Not only was it very difficult to locate the highway and to steer a course down one-half of it, but visibility was at such a low ebb, headlights and rear lights could not be seen except at extremely short distances. This condition, added to the usual dangers of night driving, resulted in several accidents and many narrow escapes.

That there were no more mishaps than there were was due to the innate common sense of a majority of drivers, who recognized the menace and adjusted speeds accordingly. By and large, motorists slowed down to a walk and crept along at such a reduced pace that a sudden stop could be effected instantly. Only occasionally did some smart-aleck loom out of the impenetrable mark and sass by on his dangerous way.

To be able to hear traffic and not see it, to be able to feel the road under you and not be able to locate it, is an experience that most of us will not wish again. We have had our fill of driving through a can of condensed cream.

Under The Green Cork Tree

It is now twenty years since Joel Chandler Harris gave us the best of his delightful Uncle Remus stories, but the years have only brightened the memories of Brer Rabbit, as the current observances for Mr. Harris in Georgia show. Brer Rabbit, a wily fellow forever defeating the fox, has only one thing in common with Ferdinand the Bull, the latest applicant for a place of honor on the growing list of folk-annual favorites.

The common denominator of Ferdinand, Brer Rabbit, and, indeed, most of the other animal favorites, is an emotional pose which permits them to be themselves. Thus, Ferdinand, a great lovable beast who likes only to smell the flowers, was able to vanquish his environment and refuse to be tormented merely because it was expected of him.

Ferdinand first came to public notice in song and story. Now, he has advanced considerably in the circle of his friends through the medium of a Walt Disney animated film. He lampoons a human trait that doesn't allow people to be content in verdant fields, shaded by cork trees and enveloped in an aura of sweet grass, daisies, and clover. Because he does his job so well, Ferdinand deserves his place with Mickey Mouse, the Three Little Pigs, the Little Red Hen, Donald Duck, and, yes, the clever little Rabbit-fellow who dined about in the daydreams of kindly, whimsical old Uncle Remus—Christian Science Monitor.

$20 To Be Given Merchants With Best Decorations

 Last year only one prize was given, a prize of $10 presented by the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. This was won by the Yowell Company and from all appearances this store is in the running for the first prize again this year. However, there will be keener competition for the prize money this year than last because merchants are apparently making greater effort to arranging attractive displays.

The first prize will be $20 and the second prize will be $15 and the third award will be $10.

As an incentive to housewives to arrange attractive decorations in their homes, the Sanford Garden Club is again sponsoring the out-of-doors Christmas Decoration Contest, according to Mrs. Harry Heeren, chairman of the committee for this activity.

Although the list of the prizes was not announced, Mrs. Heeren stated that 15 worthwhile prizes will be given. She said that the prizes will be awarded for individuality in effectively lighting out-of-doors Christmas trees, doorways, pools and ensembles.

"What a magnificent spectacle it would be," she declared, "if everyone on Park Avenue would join in arranging attractive Christmas decorations. It would shed a beam of Valerine cheer on all travelers on Sanford's main thoroughfare," she concluded.

LETTERS TO SANTA

As Christmas nears, children of Sanford and Seminole County are turning their attention to the good old saint who pays all good children a visit on Christmas Eve and leaves them candy, nuts, and best of all toys for which they have longed all year.
In order that Santa Claus might know what each wants more than anything else, numerous letters are penned to St. Nicholas who is now making preparations for his annual visit. The Sanford Herald will publish all letters to Santa in this column.
Dear Santa Claus:
We are 3 little boys, Robert and Joe Hall, and Daniel Reynolds. David is our half brother and is 14 months old. Robert is 5 and Joe is 4 years old. Our daddy is dead. Dear Santa:
I have been a very good little girl all year and have done what my Mama told me. I would like a "Donald Duck" that runs in a kiddie car, a rocking horse, a "Shirley Temple" Doll, and a tea set. I would like some nuts and candy. Remember all the other little girls and boys. Thank you dear Santa.

Sanford, Fla. December, 1934
Dear Mother:
I have been shopping downtown all afternoon and bought the most gorgeous things for all our nice folk at B. L. Perkins men's store. Their table of gifts just knocks your eyes out when you enter the store. Everything imaginable for men and lots of novelties that are new this season.
Bought Elmer a beautiful silk robe for $10. That black haired salesman told me confidentially that it was a $14.50 robe now reduced. And speaking of pajamas! you must see them. All the colors of the rainbow and then some. They're Manhattans and B. V. P.'s and really worth the money.
When you come up for the Holidays we will buy the rest of our gifts from them. They're the nicest store in town to do business with, and they really are an authority on correct men's wear. You won't have to take the elevator because it's all on the ground floor.
Love,
Jennie.
