Merchants say ho, ho, ho

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - As holiday shoppers rush to pick up last minute gifts, merchants are smiling all the way to the bank.

Compared to the same time last year, Luis DosSantos, a manager at Toys R Us in Sanford, is seeing more customers. During the holiday season the store has been staying open until midnight, however, today the store will be closing at 8 p.m. to allow employees to spend time with their families, DosSantos said.

Customers are traveling in from all over, but mostly from Sanford, Lake Mary and Deltona, he said. There is no typical customer profile because all ages have been shopping at his store, DosSantos said.

So far, the busiest shopping day was last Saturday, but he expects to see large crowds coming out today to check out everything from dolls to video games.

"At this point everything is selling," DosSantos said. "It's been great."

According to the store manager, some of the most popular toys include Volcano Blowout, which features a racetrack going through a volcano. The toy appeals mostly

US Postal Service warns against scams targeting elderly

From Staff Reports

WASHINGTON - The United States Postal Inspection Service is warning travelers to check on the well being of elderly relatives — the financial well being that is. "Instead of spending their autumn years enjoying financial security and independence, seniors may be thrust into a winter of fear and anxiety over their financial future," said Kenneth Hunter, Chief Postal Inspector. Some seniors are too embarrassed to divulge their plight, fearing that family members will be convinced that they can no longer manage their own affairs.

Often, the senior victims accumulate a houseful of letters, postcards and packages. As the victims are re-targeted by successive pitchmen, their telephones will be ringing off the hook and their mailboxes will be overflowing.

Family members may not have access to their parents' checking, saving or charge card accounts until their parents are ill or unable to attend to their own financial affairs. It is then they discover the extent to which their parents have been victimized.

Signs to look for: 1) Look

In a recent investigation of a Vancouver lottery promoter, whose mailings reached millions of Americans, Postal Inspectors' in-depth analysis of 880 victims determined that their average age was 74. Of these, 192 lost an average of $50,000 each. One victim lost $329,000. The promoter and nine associates were indicted in Seattle in October, 1997 on 145 criminal counts of money laundering and transporting gambling material.

PBS historic saga of Central Florida includes Sanford

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Sanford will be one of 22 cities in seven counties featured in a documentary chronicling the history of Central Florida.

The pilot episode for "Central Florida Memories" will be a joint project directed by Pat Fitzgerald, a professor at Seminole Community College. The Central Florida Consortium of Higher Education, a group representing seven community colleges and the University of Central Florida, will oversee the project, which will be broadcast on WMFE-Channel 24. Regional historical associations will serve as advisors, said Bob Lewis, project coordinator.

"The idea started 10 months ago when a 100-year old pamphlet was found... It describes Sanford as the Damascus of the South," Lewis said.

The 60-minute pilot is slated to begin in January with five 30-minute episodes to follow. The series will cover five eras - the Indian Wars, Steamboat, Railroads, Automobiles and Tourism, and Space.

The goal is to get period pieces and photographs into broadcast videos, said Lewis adding that the college suggested the expanded series with Sanford and a starting point.

The consortium is seeking funding from outside sources including county and municipal governments. Once the group raises $60,000 the series will go into production with a planned broadcast in August 1998, Lewis said.

The entire cost is $125,000 with half of that amount coming from SCC and WMFE, said Fitzgerald, who has been involved in many local documentary projects over the past nine years.

The episodes, which will be scripted by local historians, will include about 15-20 min-

Christmas, from kids at Pine Crest

Christmas
Christmas is laughter,
Christmas is cheer,
Christmas is being with your family
For the best time of the year.

Everyone get ready
For all the fun and games,
Eat your breakfast for the day,
And sit down next to the flames.

We all open presents
Some people ride bikes,
Some people go for a walk,
Some get in pillow fights.

Then we come inside to eat dinner,
And before all the fun comes to an end
Play a game to see who's the winner,
Soon the next day will begin.

New book reveals the 'real' Florida

PALATKA Looking for a way to escape the rat race and get away from the ever-expanding urban areas of Florida? Planning to spend some time off and wondering where to go while avoiding the crowds?

A new 122-page book just published by the St. Johns River Water Management District may be just the thing to help you get back to 'old Florida'.

The District has updated its popular Recreation Guide to District Lands. The new book lists 41 properties including more than 418,000 acres in northeast and central Florida purchased by the District for preservation. All of the lands included in the book are open to the public for recreation.

The book includes maps of each parcel with icons showing access sites and recreational uses such as hiking, horseback riding, nature study, canoeing, boating, camping, fishing and hunting. Also included are a glossary of terms used in the book, hunting information, and a list of contact phone numbers for additional information for each property.

"These lands were purchased to protect the state's natural resources. They belong to the taxpayers and we want to make sure they are available for the taxpayers to enjoy," said Jack Eekdahl, director of the District's Division of Land Management.

Eekdahl pointed out that 98 percent of all District-owned lands are open for public recreation. Many of the properties are also used as outdoor classrooms for high school and junior high students through the District's Legacy environmental education program.

The largest property listed in the Recreation Guide is the 49,650-acre Three Forks Marsh Conservation Area west of Palm Bay in Brevard County. The smallest is the 203-acre Prairie Creek Conservation Area off SR 20 east of Gainesville in Alachua County.

This second edition to the guide is 32 pages bigger than

Santa gets a little help from RSVP

For the 24th year in a row, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program held their Christmas store for Seminole County children. RSVP held this year's Christmas store at Highlands Elementary in Winter Springs. Children from Highlands, Hamilton, Casselberry, Midway, English Estates and Goldsboro Elementary Schools came to the Christmas store. About 1,250 children in all visited the store. While the children were in the store, they were serenaded by the Central Florida Senior Kitchen Band (upper photo). The band played some great holiday songs and even let some of the children join in on a few numbers. Volunteer Jim Milson (lower photo) helps Katherine Coronado pick out a present for her sister.

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas...

Loadin' up the truck and taking the bikes to the kiddies. Seminole County firefighters pick up a shipment of bikes from the Sanford Toys 'R Us Thursday, Dec. 18. The bikes will be distributed to needy kids through different charities. From left to right, firefighter Randy Smathers, helper Patrick McManus and firefighter Mike Johannmeyer do what they can to spread holiday cheer loading a truck up with precious cargo. For years, the Salvation Army has done its part by bringing the needy a bit of the holidays. Jane Scott and her husband, the Rev. to younger boys, he said. Another hot seller is the Sleep and Snows Ernie.

"It's like Tickle Me Elmo was last year except with this one you press on his stomach and he sleeps and snores," DosSantos said.
For very young girls, the Finger Nail Salon has a major appeal, he said.
Of course, DosSantos said, electronic toys including Nintendo 64, are selling well for all ages.
Across the street at the Seminole Towne Center, merchants remain optimistic.
Mall traffic is up significantly over the same time last year, according to marketing director Martha Mannarino.
"We're very optimistic about the season and very pleased," Mannarino said.
Christmas Eve, she said, is typically a very busy day. As of 9 a.m., mall traffic was decent. Mannarino said she expected crowds to pick up by noon and peaking at about 3 to 4 p.m. The mall will remain open until 6 p.m. to accommodate shoppers, she said.
Retail sales are up over last year at JCPenney, according to store manager Phil Wack.
"We'll have a gain over last year with a profit improvement," Wack said. Although he would not disclose any figures, he said the percentage increase was in the single digits.
Wack attributed his store's positive performance to the increased mall traffic and good management. Sales have been ahead all month and the inventories are very good, he said.

"This is a growing mall and we've had a year to determine what customers want," he said.
The busiest day at the department store was last Saturday. Because of the way the retail calendar is set up, Wack said sales from today are like a free day. "It's all plus business."

Hot items include jewelry, and men's and children's clothing.
"All in all it will be very good this year," he said, adding that the store will be open at 6 a.m. Friday to accommodate those with returns, gift certificates, or wishing to shop.
Always the popular gift, books sales are also up from last year, according to Lisa Jonas, manager at Waldenbooks at the Seminole Towne Center.
"The traffic count is up and I think there are more people out there," Jonas said, adding that she expected large crowds today all the way through closing at 6 p.m.
Typically, Jonas said, people buy an average of five to six books for those on their shopping lists.
As with most years and probably even more this year because of the movie, Jonas said anything on the Titanic goes quickly. Also, for the younger set, anything on the Hanson Brothers and books by horror master R.L. Stein are big sellers. The most popular fiction is by writers Anne Rice and Danielle Steele. Non-fiction topics appealing to readers include cooking, history and biographies.
"It's been busy, hectic and good," Jonas said of the holiday shopping season.

Hors d'oeuvres: Tray bon!

By Marilisa Catta

Here's a holiday gift for you: recipes for the prettiest, most delicious hors d'oeuvres you'll find this season, courtesy of Chef Michel LeBorgne at the New England Culinary Institute in Montpelier, Vt.

Hors d'oeuvres have never been my strong suit. I put all my entertaining energy into the main course (and/or dessert) and usually can think of nothing but a bowl of salsa and chips for a munchie. Salsa and chips are fine, but they don't quite do justice to the coming feast. The hors d'oeuvres here are pretty and tempting and will reflect the care you take in being a party host; they would also be standouts at a cocktail party, a New Year's Eve champagne soiree, or even a neighborhood pot-luck.

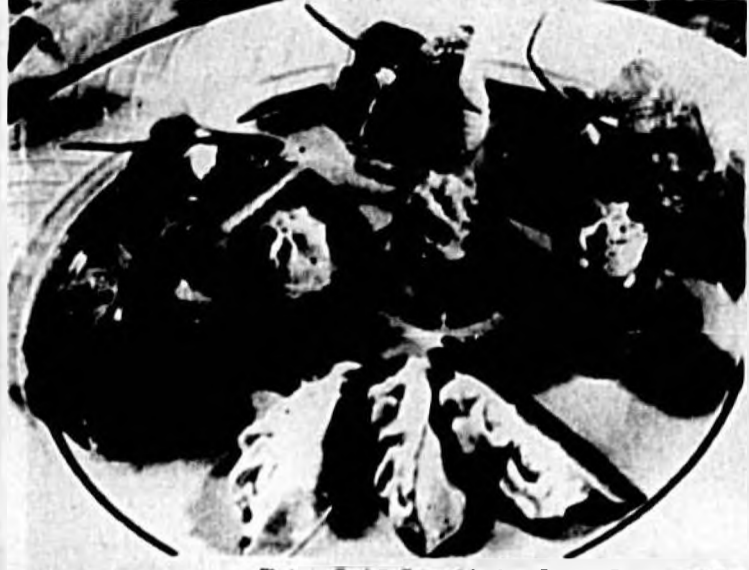

The recipes require some delicate work (scooping out cherry tomatoes, slicing snow peas) but, as Julia Child has said, "If I can do it, ANYONE can." Aside from a bit of patience, you will also need a pastry bag.

Since working with Chef Michel, I have become extremely fond of pastry bags, which are much easier and neater to use than a spoon when putting creamy purées in delicate places (such as cherry tomatoes and split snow peas). I bought a Wilton brand "starter" set for under $10, and it has gotten me through scores of gingerbread men and gingerbread houses, as well as myriad other cookies and hors d'oeuvres. My advice is to use disposable, see-through plastic pastry bags (they came with my set). Set the bag, with the appropriate tip assembled, in a tall drinking glass, and turn down a "cuff" of about 2 to 3 inches. Then spoon in your filling, push it gently toward the tip, and tie the bag closed with a twist. (This will keep the filling from oozing out the top). Then, pipe away! You'll be amazed at the results.

Here are some other ideas for easy munchies:

— Softened cream cheese topped with store-bought red pepper jelly (also called jalapeno pepper jelly) and served with crackers (or puree the cheese and jelly and pipe onto crackers).

— Small skewers of broiled chunks of boneless chicken breast, served with bottled Thai dipping sauce. (It's even better if you marinate the chicken, refrigerated, in a mixture of lime or lemon juice, olive oil, and minced garlic overnight.)

HORS D'OEUVRES will reflect the care you take in being a party host.

— Quesadilla wedges: Top a flour tortilla with canned refried beans, grated cheese (pepperjack is nice) and chopped jalapenos (if desired). Top with a second tortilla, cut into wedges and bake 8 to 10 minutes in a 425 degree oven.

— A 2-to-1 mixture of chevre and cream cheese, puréed with lots of freshly ground pepper and piped onto crackers.

— An antipasti plate assembled from cans and jars: marinated artichoke hearts, olives, hunk of fresh mozzarella, smoked oysters, smoked mussels and anchovies. Serve with toothpicks.

— Bread sticks or chunks of cantaloupe wrapped with very thin slices of prosciutto.

STUFFED CHERRY TOMATOES

- 12 cherry tomatoes, rinsed and stemmed
- Salt to taste
- 3 ounces ham
- 1/8 teaspoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- Dash of Worcestershire sauce
- 12 thin slices cucumber (optional)

With a very sharp paring knife, or serrated tomato knife, slice off the top of the tomatoes and discard. Using a demitasse spoon, scoop out the seeds and discard. Sprinkle salt on the bottom of the tomato "bowl."

In a food processor (preferably a mini food processor) fitted with a metal blade, puree the ham, curry powder, mayonnaise and Worcestershire sauce. You can use a blender, but chop the ham up well first.

Put the puree into a pastry bag fitted with a large start tip (No. 21 will work nicely). Pipe the ham mixture into the tomatoes. Place each tomato on a cucumber slice (if desired), and serve.

Yield: 1 dozen

— Recipe from Chef Michel LeBorgne, New England Culinary Institute, Montpelier, Vt.

SALMON AND POTATO CHIPS

- 4 tablespoons (1/4 cup) cream cheese, at room temperature
- 1 tablespoon horseradish
- Squeeze of lemon juice
- 12 whole potato chips
- 4 ounces salmon, in 12 thin slices
- 12 thin pieces of chive (optional)

In a food processor (preferably a mini-food processor) fitted with a metal blade, or in a blender, puree together the cream cheese, horseradish and lemon juice. Put the puree into a pastry bag fitted with a large start tip

Spreading spirit of Santa brings joy

DEAR ABBY: I was disappointed in your response to "Grandma in Saratoga Springs" regarding her grandson's belief in Santa Claus. I don't disagree that the truth should be told, Abby, but how the truth is presented can make all the difference in the world in the eyes and heart of a child. The truth about Santa was shared with me in such a wonderful way, there were no bad feelings — only a lifetime of inspiration.

When I asked if there really was a Santa Claus, my mother responded, "Santa isn't a real person who lives at the North Pole, but the Santa we see on TV, in stores and at parties is a reminder of the Santa 'spirit,' which spreads joy and happiness. Daddy is Santa Claus, and Mom is Santa Claus, and Grandma and Grandpa are Santa Claus. They buy you gifts and do nice things for you because they love you and want to make you happy. Now that you're old enough, you, too, can be Santa Claus."

I was, and am, Santa Claus. At first, part of being Santa was keeping the illusion of Santa alive for the younger children. I got to stay up late, and it was my job to wrap the stocking stuffers and stuff the stockings. It meant drinking the milk and eating the cookies left for Santa. Trying to make the carrots left for the reindeer appear "reindeer-nibbled" was more difficult, and not as desirable.

As I have grown older, the Santa spirit has grown and spread. In college, my dorm mates and I played "Secret Santas," delivering goodies and little gifts to each other during finals week. Later in life, I'd drop off a batch of Christmas cookies to the nearest fire or police station as a thank-you. I made my way to my parents' house on Christmas Eve. You can be Santa Claus while shopping — whistle Christmas carols, wear sleigh bells that jingle while you walk, smile at those you pass — be kind and patient with store clerks.

I love being Santa Claus because there is so much joy in giving. It's better than any present you can receive. I hope that my Santa spirit will be with me throughout the year, and that others will find the same joy that comes from being Santa Claus.

A JOLLY ELF IN ASHTABULA

DEAR JOLLY ELF: I'm certain that your Santa spirit will be with you throughout the year, and many readers will be inspired by your spirit of giving. Thank you for an upper of a letter.

DEAR ABBY: I have aunts, uncles and cousins I never see because we have nothing in common. I also have two siblings who detest me, and the feelings are mutual.

I have built my own "family" over the years, and I'm much closer to them than to my blood relatives, excluding my parents, with whom I am very close.

My problem is that it seems like the world expects — and insists — that you be close. Comments like, "But he's your brother!" make my blood boil. Why do they insist that I like people I wouldn't bother with if I met them on the street or at a cocktail party?

I'd much rather give my love and compassion to people I care about than be a hypocrite just because of an accident of birth. Is it such a sin not to like a family member? Abby, please respond, as I respect your opinion.

BEEKMAN PLACE

DEAR BEEKMAN PLACE: It is not a "sin" to dislike a family member. However, it is interesting that you have cut yourself off not only from two siblings, but also from aunts, uncles and cousins, and I cannot help but wonder why you are avoiding the majority of your family.

DEAR ABBY: I have started this letter many times, not finishing it because I know the answer to the advice I seek. I am a 48-year-old woman, married to a wonderful man for 10 years.

For the last 21 years, I have been having an affair. It started when my first marriage came apart. My lover is a handsome younger man. Over the years I divorced, he married, I remarried, he became a widower — and we continued our affair.

To our family and friends, we are old friends. We are thrown together for all occasions and no one has ever suspected. As the old song goes, "Daytime friends, nighttime lovers."

I know this affair must end. It has to, before we hurt and disappoint our families and friends. I love him and always will. But I need to know how to end it after all these years.

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: The first step is to tell your lover exactly what you have told me — that you want the affair to come to

(No. 21 will work nicely). Place the potato chips on your serving platter. Put a piece of salmon, folded, on top of each chip and pipe on a dollop of the cream cheese mixture.

FILLED SNOW PEAS

- 12 snow peas, rinsed and drained
- 2 tablespoons (1 ounce) blue cheese, at room temperature
- 2 tablespoons (4 ounces, or 1/2 cup) cream cheese, at room temperature

Using a very sharp paring knife, cut off one tip of each snow pea on a diagonal. Starting at this diagonal cut, slice the snow pea along its "seam." Take your time — it CAN be done!

In a food processor (preferably a mini food processor) fitted with a metal blade, or in a blender, puree the cheeses together. Put the puree into a pastry bag fitted with a large start tip (No. 21 will work nicely).

Put the split snow peas on your serving platter. With one hand, hold the snow pea open, and pipe the cheese into the snow pea with the other.

Yield: 1 dozen

— Recipe from Chef Michel LeBorgne, New England Culinary Institute, Montpelier, Vt.

SCALLOPS WITH BACON

- 6 pieces lean, smoked bacon
- 1 dozen large sea scallops, raw

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Cut bacon slices in half, so you have 12 pieces.

Cook the bacon until well done but not so crispy that you can't wrap it. Drain on a plate lined with paper towels.

Wrap each scallop with a half slice of bacon, and secure with a toothpick. Place on a baking sheet and bake for 3 to 5 minutes, until scallop is done to your liking (do NOT overcook). Transfer to a warm serving platter and serve immediately.

an end. Ask him to help by limiting the number of social occasions when you will be thrown together. (An eligible, attractive widower must get many invitations, not to mention offers.) You are both adults, and with mutual cooperation you can eliminate the opportunities to succumb to temptation.

The alternative would be to tell your husband what has been going on all these years. That, I guarantee, would end it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Have a merry Christmas, but also keep in mind: If you're drinking, do not drive; if you're driving, please do not drink.

Wal-Mart as a good neighbor

Wal-Mart maintains its stance as a good neighbor in the communities in which the stores are found, including Sanford, by donating a portion of the sale proceeds from designated days and hours. Left: Joella May, a parent representative for the Seminole High School Chorus, accepts a $1,500 check from Wal-

Mart Manager Gary DeCorq. The chorus relies on fund-raisers to help defray the cost of travel and uniforms. Right: Wayne Gray, director of Teen Challenge in Sanford, accepts a $1,914 check from Wal-Mart Assistant Manager David Crane. Teen Challenge is a residential facility offering guidance for troubled teens.

While the guide lists only properties owned by the District, other state-owned lands are shown on maps when they are adjacent to District lands.

The District manages approximately 425,000 acres of land throughout its 19-county area. Since 1979, the District has acquired and managed environmentally sensitive land to provide flood protection, protect water supplies, restore and preserve water bodies and maintain wildlife habitats.

Scams

for unusual quantities of mail proclaiming the recipient "a guaranteed winner," appearing to contain checks, or selling lottery tickets; 2) Look for unusual quantities of packages containing inexpensive "gifts", trinkets, or useless merchandise; 3) Listen for a steady stream of unsolicited telephone calls from fast talking pitchmen who insist on speaking to your host, but won't talk to you; and, 4) Look for signs of financial distress, such as unpaid bills, overdue notices, or drastic cutbacks in subsistence items.

Most seniors are reluctant to discuss their participation in what others characterize as scams. They may prefer to discuss them only with their most trusted friends or spiritual advisor. Seek help among these family friends and associates.

To prevent further losses, arrange for an unlisted telephone number and for a trusted friend to go through the mail each day and examine suspicious promotions. Offer to help balance the checkbook and to review credit card statements.

This will determine if there is a serious financial drain that needs to be plugged. Postal inspectors urge active intervention by family or friends in the affairs of seniors where victimization by fraud is evident. If the mail is being used to further any scheme to defraud the elderly, report the matter to the nearest postal inspector.

Unsung Heroes

By Kellie Werner

Every player knows the statistician

SANFORD - Everyone is familiar with the coaches and the players on their school's basketball teams.

Some are even familiar with the assistant coaches and cheerleaders.

Except for their friends, however, not many are familiar with the statisticians, who are a very important part of a basketball team.

Especially if the statistician isn't a student at the high school.

For the past 17 years or so, Sanford resident Jeannette Stufley has been keeping scores and tallying statistics for the boys and girls basketball teams at both Crooms Academy and Seminole High School.

"I started doing the stats when my son was in ninth grade," Stufley explained. "That was back in 1980. I don't think I really expected to still be doing it now but it has just become sort of my job."

While her son was at Crooms Academy, then called Crooms High School, Stufley took over the statistician duties and also began teaching her two daughters, Sandy and Stacey, who were in middle school, how to keep the books. She then followed her son to Seminole High School and became the stat keeper for that school.

It was then that Stufley realized, after looking over the books for the girls' team, that no one was keeping accurate stats or compiling the information in a manner that was understandable.

She made a deal with her daughters. If they would keep the books for the boys, she would take over the responsibility for the girls.

To this day, on any given night at any in-county game, Stufley is still with her team.

And her daughter, Stacey, still keeps the books for the boys after working all day with the county.

"When Coach (Sylvester) Wynn took over for Coach Mac (Ernie MacPherson) when he retired, I really thought about retiring myself," Stufley recalled. "But Wynn gave me that look and I knew that I had to stay with the team."

Sports is nothing new to Stufley, who was a physical education coach at the middle school level at Sanford Middle School for three years. Her husband was in the Navy and relocated to Sanford in 1963. Stufley stopped teaching when she and her husband began a family, but they decided to make Sanford their permanent home.

One of the things that has kept Stufley with the team for so long, besides the need for her, is the kids.

"I thoroughly enjoy what I do," Stufley explained. "I love following the kids, even after they graduate. I check on them, look forward to seeing them when they come home for visits and if they send me schedules of their college games, I go out and see them play. I just really enjoy seeing the kids play."

Too often, residents of the community donate their time and efforts to fill needs in the schools. Stufley has gone above and beyond by donating her time and concern to the basketball teams of the city for almost 20 years.

And there are no plans for that to stop anytime soon.

Spanish River wins first Target title; Three SAC teams finish in top five

By JEFF BERLINICKE

LAKE MARY - Advantage, Lake Brantley. Although the Lady Patriots lost in the finals of the Target Soccer Classic, featuring 16 of the best girls' soccer teams in the state of Florida, 2-1 last night in the championship game to two-time defending state champion Spanish River, they finished better than the five other Seminole County teams which competed and gained a leg up for the rest of the season.

Lake Brantley came into the season with a young team, picked by many to finish somewhere behind Lake Mary and Lake Howell in the middle of the Seminole Athletic Conference pack.

But Lake Mary's loss yesterday, coupled with the Lady Patriots' march to the finals, sent out a message not to give up on Lake Brantley yet.

Lake Brantley came into last night's game undefeated at 7-0 but found a tough match in powerhouse Spanish River. The Sharks scored first, despite Lake Brantley's control of the play early in the first half. The Lady Patriots had a chance to draw first blood when defender Maggie Tullia had an open net but sent the shot just wide.

Spanish River capitalized at the 32:10 mark when Lindsay Yonadi scored on a crossing pass past Lake Brantley goaltender Sabrina Bonaparte to make it 1-0.

Lake Brantley continued to dominate the ball and missed on several scoring opportunities. Early in the second half, Lady Patriot forward Ginger Sellick sent a perfect breakaway pass to a streaking Sarah Cockrell, but the shot was just wide.

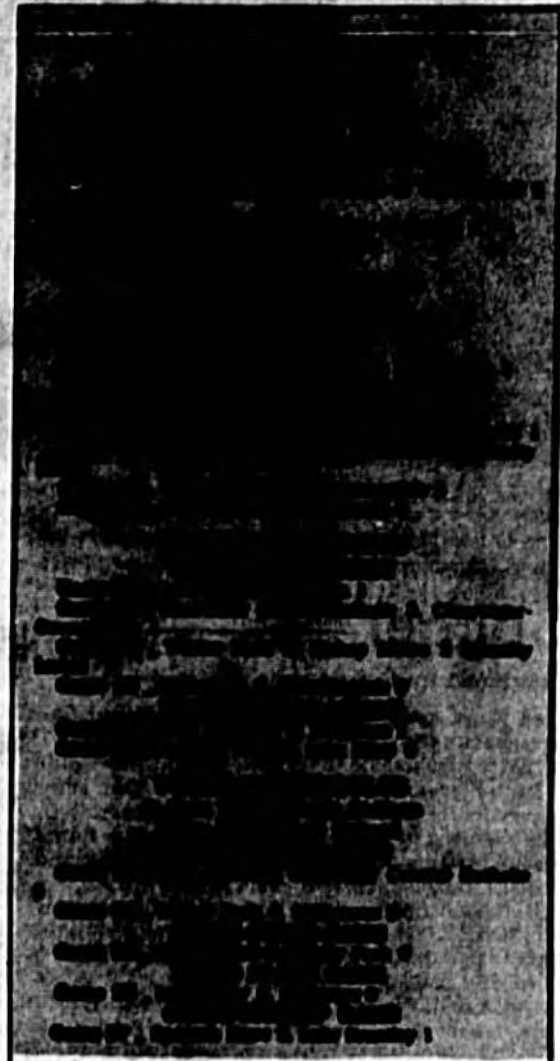

Finally, Lake Brantley was able to capitalize when Ashley Smith scored on a header at the 16:02 mark of the second half to know the score. Lake Brantley almost went up for the first time in the game but a Tullia shot was saved. A few minutes later, Lake Brantley had another shot on a penalty kick but the ball was sent well of the goal.

Finally, Lake Brantley's luck ran out when Yonadi scored her second goal of the night on a high, arcing shot past Bonaparte and Lake Brantley never mounted another serious challenge.

For Lake Brantley the loss was bitter-sweet. It was the first of the season, and the team played without coach John Schaefer who missed the game due to an illness, but it also proved that they drew the first strike against a strong host of Seminole Athletic Conference rivals.

"I'm proud of the way we came out," said acting coach Tim Harper. "It is good experience for the rest of the season. I didn't know what to expect but we did the best we could."

Lake Brantley has been almost unable to practice due to damage to its fields from the re-

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Do not count on uncertain events to help you succeed today. If you're going to make your mark in the world, it will be by exercising your initiative.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) It might be easy for you to be misunderstood today if you appear arrogant or demanding. Use caution and don't let your image be trayed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An often extravagant friend might draw you into an expensive development today you didn't anticipate. Control events, don't let them govern you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Agreeing to something about which you are doubtful could be an error in judgment today. Do not make commitments without a factual base.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your imagination will provide you with many reasons for doing things differently from others today. Take care to check each rationalization for validity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you count too heavily upon Lady Luck today, she might be off elsewhere when needed. Be self-sufficient and an example-setter, not a dependent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Neglecting family obligations today will not only make you feel guilty, it could create complications that affect others more than yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The advice you'll get others today for managing their resources will be prudent and sensible. Do not ignore your own counsel when handling your money.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Placing too much emphasis on your own interests today isn't a popularity builder. Do not do anything that makes you look the something you aren't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In order to make the tale you're telling more appealing, you might be tempted to embellish the facts. Beware: you may be asked for proof!

Overlapping holidays

By Phillip Alder

It was not only Christmas Eve but also the first day of Hanukkah. Rabbi Sam Shapiro referred to this in his sermon at the shul, adding that the world would be a more peaceful place if only all religions would be tolerant of others' beliefs.

On their returning home, the Rabbi's wife, Lucyle, said, "That was an excellent sermon, darling. However, today we are allowed to wage war ... over the bridge table against our daughters."

In this deal, the Rabbi led the spade queen against three no-trump. Elyse, the declarer, could see seven top tricks. She could play for East to have the heart ace, but surely it was better to go after three club tricks.

"There must be some safety-play here," commented Elyse as she played a club to dummy's ace and a club back to her queen. However, West won with his king and led the spade 10. Then, when Elyse played a heart to her king, the Rabbi won with the ace and continued spades to defeat the contract.

After some discussion about how to handle the clubs, Judy said, "I think I see the answer. After winning with the club ace, return to hand with a diamond and lead the second club from there. If West discards, you will eventually finesse your nine to get home. But what does Dad do here? If he wins with his king, you have three club tricks. If he ducks, you win with dummy's jack and play a heart, setting up your ninth trick."

"Well done, Judy," said the Rabbi. "It's as if a light went on in your head. And on the festival of lights, too."
