After Outburst, Probe

Manning Cautioned, Dennis Satisfied

Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning has been cautioned about his recent behavior at a city commission work session and City Commissioner Lynette Dennis said today she is completely satisfied with that.

Mrs. Dennis said she picked up City Administrator Ron Waller's report on the matter from her box at city hall Saturday. She had requested Waller probe an incident that occurred Jan. 15. At a work session that day Manning made an outburst against Commissioner Dave Gunter which Dennis called unprofessional and scary.

She requested the report at the Jan.

19 city commission meeting and requested Waller report back "as soon as possible." At a subsequent meeting, Waller refused to comment on the investigation because of "pending litigation." Later he said he should have said "possible litigation." At the March 2 commission meeting Waller promised

Mrs. Dennis he would submit the report in writing by March 6.

Waller said in the report that he has given Manning a "caution" for his action at the work session in accordance with the city's personnel policy.

Shortened River Festival Draws 5,500

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Squishy ground, the pungent whiff of barbecue, and talent blended beneath a moody sky Sunday at the St. Johns River Art Festival in Sanford.

And there was art of every medium. Graceful art, vigorous art, funny and enchanting art, much of it created by local talents, who like other exhibitors, had to scurry more than once to protect their creations from showers and gusts of wind. The displays followed a winding, damp cedar chip exercise trail at Ft. Mellon Park.

Sponsors, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the Sanford-Seminole Art Association, say about 5,500 people turned out Sunday for the festival that was shortened to 1-day after being rained-out Saturday. Sunday's activities featured about 160 artists and ran 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Watercolor flowers on silk replete with dew drops was the entry of Anna Chen of Winter Springs. Her exacting orchids and gladioli unfolded gracefully with texture. Next to her, was Walt Ringo, also of Winter Springs, whose vigorous use of color in oil was uplifting. Ringo's canvases, many of them huge by several feet, displayed still life and a homey, warm piece of a woman hanging clothes.

Ada Johnson, of Longwood, also had her water color of flowers and birds on display, one work of which incorporated the frame as part of the drawing. And using the untraditional medium of cut paper was Jean Madden of Lake Mary, who had some color pencils work on hand but displayed her snipped paper forte. Landscapes and abstract in colored paper was her theme.

Paye Sidel, of Sanford, entered watercolor seascapes, and wildlife on wood. Nearby was Sanford artist Ashby Jones and his landscapes, one with an enchanting vibrant yellow sky. Dorothea Stroenider, of Sanford, entered warm Florida landscapes in water color.

Participating in his first exhibit was Sanford police officer David Semones, who entered pen and ink wildlife, subjects clearly drawn but with the accuracy of photographic illustration. A frog on a branch, whales in water, a lion and elephant — black and whites that needed not color.

Photographer were also present in the show including shots and landscapes by former Sanford City Manager Warren

With a whittle bit of pluck, Sanford native Eddie Hughes displays a surrealistic carving among more conventional renditions Sunday during the St. Johns River Arts Festival in Sanford. Hughes, a Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy, was one of several carvers and members of the Sanford-Seminole Art Association who had their works on display at the annual event.

"Pete" Knowles, who works graced city hall. Near him was Altamonte Springs photographer Cheryl Evans who displayed uncommon photos of common items such as shoes and torn, frayed pockets. Another Altamonte Springs photographer in the show was Bob Yon.

Pastels were Bettye Reagan's medium lending impressionistic imagery to the Sanford woman's ideas, such as the streaking clothes on a racecar driver of yore on Daytona Beach. Realistic and abstract Carvings by Ed (Hughes) also of Sanford, stopped spectators. A can of 'possum meat along with akunk and 'possum skins helped.

Three styles were exhibited by Joy Cumbaa-Snyder, of Sanford. A large oil landscape danced with impressionistic color and Joy. Her portraits, including one of herself, were toned and rounded. Her flower still life was meticulous and inviting. John Porter, of Sanford, also showed a wide range of work from a graceful landscaph contour to intense abstracts, or a singled browned blade to a woman changing into an intense flower still life.

Jamille Haddad displayed fused glass with abstract patterns and themes, visual rhythms, patterns and a cubist face.

Wood was also the medium of Thomas Monroe, of Orange City, with carved birds, and Jake Williams, of Lake Mary, who carved a number of rural Ma's and Pa's and ole hound dogs. Wood sculpturing was entered by Gordon Grampp, of Longwood. Grampp entered what appeared to be the only relief in the festival and had realistic and abstract sculptures on display.

Jan Williams and Janet Krikorian, both of Longwood, exhibited oils. Ma. Williams birds, and Ms. Krikorian soft Florida scapes. Also in oils and from Longwood was Dorothy Raby with seascapes.

Jim Koenig, of Oviedo, entered large water colors, scenes of modern cowboys and gigantic stills of bananas. Phyllis Graham, of Winter Springs, entered buildings in pastels, and Margaret Temple, of Sanford, offered realistic, almost illustrative oils of farm workers.

Vicki Ferguson, of Altamonte Springs, found herself telling visitors that some of her works were not abstract but anamorphic, that is visually distorted in two directions. One woman asked if one of her anamorphosed drawings, among many well-rendered undistorted works, was a "squashed bunny."

The anamorphic drawings, which are curved and lengthened out of likeness.

Ferry Disaster Probes Begin

53 Dead, 81 Still Missing

ZEEBRUGGE, Belgium (UPI) — Divers plunged repeatedly into the icy English Channel today to try to recover the bodies of more than 80 ferry passengers believed trapped inside the Herald of Free Enterprise that became a "floating coffin."

The British and Belgian governments and the ferry company opened separate investigations Sunday into the incident.

In London, a ferry company spokesman said a crewman who allegedly claimed responsibility for Friday's disaster off Belgium is in shock and should not be taken at his word.

Provincial Governor Olivier Vanneste said another survivor had been found from the worst North Sea maritime disaster since World War II.

Vanneste said the unidentified man originally was counted among the missing but officials determined Sunday that he had returned home in Britain Friday night within hours of being rescued.

"There are always such hopes that more survivors like this will appear," Vanneste said, explaining other survivors may have found their own means to get home.

The Herald of Free Enterprise had 543 people aboard and Vanneste said the latest toll of the disaster stood at 409 rescued, 53 dead, and 81 missing. The ferry capsized into 30 feet of water within a minute just a mile off Zeebrugge en route to Dover, England.

Although the cause remained a mystery, the chief of Zeebrugge's port said a faulty ballast system may have caused the 8,000-ton British vessel to capsize in calm waters in the English Channel.

Other speculation ranged from poor design of the vessel to a problem with the ferry's bow cargo doors moments before it put to sea. One survivor said crew members even used sledge hammers to close the doors.

Assistant boatswain Marc Stanley, 28, the man allegedly responsible for shutting the ship's water-tight bow doors, was reported by a London newspaper to have screamed, "It's my fault, it's my fault. I didn't lock them properly."

"We are not in position to contradict what he is saying," a spokesman for the Townsend Thoresen ferry company said. "The man is distressed. He is in shock and I don't know that anyone should take what he says as his word."

Daniel Kaakebeen, spokesman of the Dutch salvage company Smit International, said most of the bodies in the partially submerged 435-foot ferry are trapped in the hold of the ship.

"They are difficult to reach because they were trapped by cargo which heaved over when the ship capsized," Kaakebeen said. "Divers spent the whole night and early morning inside the ship and we are doing everything we can to recover the bodies first."

Kaakebeen said it would take up to 35 days before the

Fire Damages Restaurant

A fire started by overheated cookers caused about $50,000 damage to an Altamonte Springs barbecue restaurant early Sunday morning. No one was in the restaurant when the fire broke out at around 3:15 a.m., said Seminole County Fire Investigator Bob Christian.

The fire, at Barney's Barbecue, 1049 E. Altamonte Drive, started when grease on a rotisserie and the kitchen's walls was ignited by the overheating cookers. The rotisserie, a grill with an electrically turned spit, was used to cook ribs and chicken, said Christian.

About $50,000 in damage resulted, he said. The kitchen suffered heavy fire damage and extensive heat and smoke damage were reported throughout the entire restaurant, Christian said.

Nine firefighters responded to the call and had the fire under control within a half hour, according to reports. Two units from Altamonte Springs and one from Seminole County were at the scene.

Christian said it's a routine practice for barbecue restaurants to let enclosed cooking chambers burn themselves out during the night, but in this case too much heat apparently remained in the unit and ignited grease in the immediate area.

The fire damaged the kitchen's roof, walls, rotisserie, range system and all kitchen appliances, he said. Heavy smoke and heat damage were reported in an adjacent kitchen area and the dining room.

Study: 80% Of Today's 12-Year-Olds Will Be Victims Of Violent Crime

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 80 percent of today's 12-year-old Americans will be victims of violent crime at some point in their lives and about half will be victimized twice or more, a government study warns.

In addition, about two-fifths of the nation's young people are likely to be injured during a robbery or an assault before they die.

In a study released Sunday, the Justice Department's Bureau of Statistics based projections on the average annual victimization rates from the bureau's National Crime Survey for 1975 through 1984. The lifetime cited begins at age 12 because younger children are not interviewed in the survey.

Noting the survey results, bureau Director Steven Schlesinger said, "The chance of being an assault victim is much greater than the risk of being a robbery victim. The likelihood of being a robbery victim is also much greater than the chance of being a rape victim."

"It should also be noted that if crime rates change in the future, the risks of becoming a crime victim will also change," he said.

Based on rates in the survey, the agency predicted 83 percent of Americans now 12 years old will become victims of an attempted or completed violent crime during their lifetimes and about 50 percent will be victimized two or more times.

About 30 percent will be the victims of an attempted or completed robbery, the study said — half of the blacks now at that age and one in four of the whites. Seven of every eight will suffer a personal theft three or more times during their lives.

Chances of being raped are one in 12 for a white female and one in nine for a black female, the study said, using data from 1973 to 1982 in that category.

The chance of becoming the victim of a violent crime during the rest of one's lifetime declines rapidly with age — 72 percent for today's 20-year-olds, 53 percent for those now age 30, 38 percent for those age 40, 22 percent for those age 50, 14 percent for those age 60 and 8 percent for those now 70.

But the survey said about 40 percent of those now age 12 are likely to be injured during a robbery or assault in their lifetimes, and seven of every 10 households will be burglarized at least once during any 20-year period.

Panel: Strength Lemon Law

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Car buyers in Florida have a better than one-in-11 chance of buying a lemon, according to a Senate committee that recommends establishing a state-run arbitration board to handle warranty disputes.

Floridians who pay an average of $12,000 for new vehicles and get lemons would be more likely to get refunds if they could complain to such a board, the study by the Economic, Community and Consumer Affairs Committee said.

Currently, consumers must submit new car warranty disputes to uncertified manufacturer-run arbitration programs that "are neither fair nor expeditious and refuse to voluntarily release information relating to their arbitration decisions," the report said.

The state Division of Consumer Affairs has subpoenaed manufacturers' records relating to arbitration decisions to enable the agency to evaluate the programs.

The Senate contends the Florida lemon law adopted in 1983 needs to be strengthened. A proposed bill drafted by the ECCA staff calls for the state to settle disputes between car buyers and manufacturers, with the process funded by a $1 fee on each new car sold.

Robert Cucchi, of Ford Motor Company, said that plan could leave the state with a bureaucracy that hurts manufacturers and does little to help consumers.

"We'd probably consider the bill onerous and not necessary," he said.

Deputy Attorney General Walter Dartland disagrees. The former Dade County Consumer Advocate said a good arbitration program is the key to a good lemon law and that Florida's system, which allows manufacturers to use their own arbitration boards, is not working.

"We've given them four years to make it work, and the companies have fallen short," Dartland said. "There's mass confusion out there."

The Florida law labels as a lemon any new car that has been repaired three times for the same problem and has been out of the commission for 15 working days. The committee staff has proposed the law be changed to allow for four repair attempts and give the manufacturer 30 days. They also have suggested an arbitration board be established under the auspices of the Attorney General's Office.

More often than not, the report said, consumers are told to let the manufacturer attempt one more repair on the car.

Sisters Settle For $10 Million

TITUSVILLE (UPI) — A wrongful death suit brought by two sisters after their parents died in an automobile crash will receive $10 million Friday in what is believed to be one of Florida's largest announced out-of-court settlements.

One of the plaintiffs, Moira Ruff, then 17, drove up to the accident shortly after it occurred in 1984 and saw her mother Mary, 50, dead and father Howard, 53, dying.

"There is no amount of money that can compensate that young lady for that horror," attorney Jack Scarola said Sunday. "Believe me, they would trade 10 times their settlement to have their parents back."

Howard and Mary Ruff of Melbourne were killed while driving to church in their Volkswagen van.

Sisters Martha, then 15, and Moira Ruff filed their suit against the Holiday Inn Oceanfront in Melbourne, Bennigan's of Melbourne and the estate of Julianne Hebert, a 17-year-old model who also died in the crash.

Their parents were killed when Hebert's Datsun 280Z ran into the Volkswagen van.

Their suit, filed in Brevard County Circuit Court, said the Holiday Inn and Bennigan's were largely responsible for the accident because bartenders and waiters at both establishments served drinks to Hebert. At the time the legal drinking age was 18.

7-Year-Old Wins Against 7-Eleven

An Orange County jury awarded a 7-year-old Winter Springs boy $42,000 for psychological trauma following his arrest in 1985 on a shoplifting charge.

Daniel Baruch was awarded the sum by a six-member jury after a three day trial that ended Friday.

The boy's mother, Jyl Baruch-Van Dusen, 31, maintained that since the April 1, 1986, incident, the boy has had a psychological disorder that gives him digestive problems.

The boy was arrested for shoplifting a 42-cent package of gum at a 7-Eleven in Winter Springs. He was taken to the police station, and according to reports, was photographed and fingerprinted with the permission of his mother. Two days later, after publicity, the store's parent company, Southland Corporation, dropped the charges.

At the time of his arrest, the boy reportedly said to the store manager that he was too young for anyone to do anything to him for taking the gum.

The case was heard in Orange County because Southland has an office there.

Spring's Over, Winter's Back

United Press International
Days of record warmth came to an abrupt end as an arctic cold front swept across the nation's midsection en route to the East today, spreading snow and dropping temperatures nearly a degree a minute in the Midwest.

"The party is over," the National Weather Service said in a Sunday night statement that also reported 137 record highs had been reached nationwide since Wednesday. "It is back to winter in the northern Plains."

In Jamestown, N.D., winds gusting to 40 mph dropped wind chill temperatures to 42 below zero today, while snow fell from western Nebraska, across South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado and freezing rain chilled Kansas.

As the high-pressure system pushed across the central states Sunday night, the temperature in Milwaukee plummeted from a record high of 70 degrees to 41 degrees in 30 minutes. A heavy snow warning covered eastern Colorado and light snow dusted the Nebraska panhandle.

Forecasters predicted snow would reach the New Jersey coast by tonight. Highs were expected to be in the 40s and 50s today after soaring into the 70s Sunday in the Northeast, where sun worshippers streamed to beaches and state parks.

A lakeshore warning was in effect for the southern and western shores of Lake Michigan and southern Lake Superior as near gale-force winds were expected to whip waves up to 12 feet high, causing flooding and beach erosion. Chicago crews reinforced sandbag barriers to keep the waves from spilling onto Lake Shore Drive.

Forecasters warned Michigan residents to prepare for the cold and wind today, saying, "Lawn chairs and barbecue grills that are still outside after our last couple of warm days should be secured as well as anything else that could blow around."

The influx of arctic air kept temperatures dropping throughout the day Sunday in the northern Plains, where readings were in the 70s and low 80s Saturday.

Residents of Huron, S.D., shivered in 21-degree temperatures and wind chills of 17 below Sunday night after a high of 80 on Saturday. A 15-degree reading and 30 mph gusts made for a wind chill of 45 below in Grand Forks, N.D.

However, not everyone was upset about winter's return.

"It's good to slow spring down until we are ready for it — maybe in April," said Paul Walte, a climatologist in Des Moines, Iowa. "It's a good thing to slow up the budding and leafing. If this warm weather were to go on it could lead to apple blossoms."

Snow Sunday reached from central Colorado and Wyoming to eastern Montana and western North Dakota, while freezing rain and light snow fell in central and western Nebraska. Billings, Mont., picked up 2 inches of snow.

Rain extended from western Montana across eastern Idaho and northern Utah.

A livestock advisory was posted over central Montana and northern Wyoming.

At least 35 record highs were set in 32 cities Sunday in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware and Maine.

SCHOOLS

IN BRIEF

2 Lake Howell Seniors Named National Merit Finalists

Lake Howell High School Principal Dick Evans said that Richard A. Duggan and Samantha K. Hendren were named finalists in the 1987 competition for merit scholarships in the National Merit Scholarship Program, a distinction that places them in a very select group representing fewer than one half of one percent of American high school seniors.

He said the program is privately financed by grants from over 800 independent sponsors who share with the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). Even though this nationwide academic competition is the largest of its kind, NMSC's funds are limited and will only offer Merit Scholarships in 1987 to about 44 percent of the finalists, Evans said.

6 Students Plan Trip To USSR

Six Lake Mary High students will go to the Soviet Union July 8, 1987, for three weeks to take part in the American Soviet Youth Exchange Program, principal Don Reynolds said. The students are: Judy Zissman, Kendra Lott, Mike Locke, Jody Weisburg, Stacie Hays and Kathie Wells who are all juniors and were chosen by the Social Studies Department for this program.

Homework Help Provided

In order to assist parents and teachers, Jackson Heights Middle School began March 2 a homework assistant program after school that is patterned after a program at another nationally recognized middle school of excellence, principal Bobby Rainey said. Sellman Middle School in Cincinnati, Ohio, offers a similar program called Helping with homework through Encouragement, Leadership and Positive reinforcement (HELP) that offers students a time to work on homework in the presence of a certified teacher.

Lakeview School Plans PTA

Lakeview Middle School's local school advisory committee (LSAC) will meet at 7 p.m. March 10 at Lakeview with Diane Thornton, Seminole County Council of PTA's president, speaking about starting a PTA at Lakeview in the 1987-88 school year, assistant principal Fred Burnett said.

Lakeview is also planning two programs as part of their Cultural Enrichment Program for 1986-87, Burnett said. The programs are Don Herbert's "World of Energy" from the Mr. Wizard TV series on March 13 and The Southern Ballet Theatre's presentation on the history of dance will be held on March 10 for grades seven and eight.

Minority Plan Announced

The Office of Graduate Studies at the University of Central Florida has received funding for 18 minority students to attend the university beginning this summer, a UCF news release stated. Fifteen black students will be selected for a special summer program for which each will receive $1,300 to cover tuition, books and other fees. Each student is expected to take at least one graduate level course and work with a faculty mentor, or two courses.

In order to participate, students must make application to UCF and must have taken the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) or Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT). There is an April 3 deadline.

Reading Incentive Program Begins

By Genie Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

Seven Seminole County elementary schools will take part in a reading incentive program beginning today.

The program, sponsored by Friendly Restaurants, is to encourage recreational reading among elementary school students.

The program, "Treat Yourself to a Book," rewards children with Friendly Restaurant's ice cream cone certificates and adds books to the schools' media centers at no cost to the school.

When a child completes five books, one cone certificate will be awarded; and when a child completes 12 books, his name will be placed on a bookplate inside a new library book donated to the school by Friendly's in recognition of the child's accomplishment.

The seven schools participating are Bear Lake, Sabal Point, Idyllwilde, Hamilton, Sterling Park, Casselberry and Longwood. This is the second year that Seminole County schools have participated in the program.

Once a child has completed a book, a school volunteer, a teacher or an administrator will have "an informal book chat" with the student to insure comprehension and verify that the student read the book, Myrna Walters said. Mrs. Walters is the school district's consultant/coordinator of elementary reading and language arts. She said that children in kindergarten and first-grade who participated in last year's program "showed a decided increase in reading fluency." She said many parents of children in the program wrote letters stating that their children changed TV viewing habits at home and read more. Also, children developed a more positive self-concept when they knew there was a book with their name in it placed in the media center, Mrs. Walters said.

A Friendly's overview of the program states that the program is targeted to elementary school children because they are at a critical educational time for building interest, enthusiasm and positive reading habits. The program hopes to "enrich and enliven children's recreational reading experiences."

The program is scheduled to run for seven weeks and anyone

School Board Readies Suit Against Parents

The Seminole County School Board this week will notify the parents of five students accused of vandalizing a Seminole County elementary school that they are being sued.

The board decided Feb. 11 to sue for $9,400 damage caused at Spring Lake Elementary in Forest City in June, the most costly vandalism incident in the district's history.

However, board attorney Ned Julian Jr. said that according to Florida statute, certain governmental agencies, including school boards, are only authorized to sue parents for damages caused by willful or malicious acts of children up to $2,500. Without that statute, Julian said, generally speaking, parents are not liable in damages for actions of their children. He said the parents of the five students accused of the vandalism would be sued for one-fifth of the total damages. One set of parents who had two of their children involved in the vandalism would be sued for two-fifths.

Circuit Judge Robert McGregor, who is trying the five students, told Julian last month that he was concerned that the board would not hold the parents responsible for the vandalism and Julian said he then recommended the board sue because the parents could afford to pay. Julian said, "Generally parents of children who do this don't have it, but in this case, there is potential for recovery."

Julian said that he had received a settlement offer from the attorney of one set of parents involved and has made a proposed offer to settle the claim. If it works out, Julian said, the parents would be dismissed from the lawsuit.

The other parents who will receive notices from their county sheriff's department this week are Darlene Tabaczka, Altamonte Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Rodriguez, Altamonte Springs and Theodore Harl and Christine Keith of Ormond Beach. The Rodriguez' had two children involved in the vandalism incident.

Walter Meriwether, Jr., board risk manager, said, "I've been risk manager for 10 years, and I've never seen such a mess," referring to the damage done at the elementary school when he arrived there the Monday after the weekend incident which occurred sometime between June 6 and 9.

The one elementary school student and four middle school students involved gained entry to the school through the skylights, Meriwether said. He said there was damage to the carpeting from paint and syrup that had been left over from a kindergarten demonstration and since the carpeting could not be cleaned, 456 square yards of it had to be replaced.

The school's entire labor force, including teachers and aides, pitched in with the maintenance department to clean the mess up, Meriwether said. Seven school trophies were damaged and a four-and-a-half foot plant was destroyed. A storage cabinet was broken from the base and glue and paint were spread around in the kindergarten area, he added. In the second-grade area, marshmallow cream was poured on the carpeting and a large terrarium containing plants and dirt had been thrown around the room. Also destroyed was Scott-Foresman school math material, a two-foot pioneer statue that was a gift to the school and a typewriter. A Florida flag was damaged and an American flag was stolen, he said. "Parents ought to know where their children are."

Meriwether said the board has insurance through Lloyd's of London and other insurance companies that pick up damage over $100,000 up to the replacement cost of a building and its contents. Damage up to $100,000 is paid for out of taxpayer's money, he said. "So this is all taxpayer's money that we're trying to get back."

B-1 Bomber's Cost Rathole

Critics of the B-1 bomber — the plane Ronald Reagan resurrected after Jimmy Carter had correctly canceled it as a turkey — said it represented an obsolete conception from the start.

Newly developed Soviet look-down radar and other technological advances, they said, would curtail the plane's effectiveness as a swift, ground-hugging weapon able to sneak in under Russian defensive screens. We may never know whether that argument is right, but it now appears Carter's judgment was sound for other reasons.

The administration contends the B-1 is necessary as an interim weapon to fill the gap between the retirement of the aging B-52 and the deployment of the radar-invisible Stealth bomber, which won't be available until the 1990s. Ironically, however, we now learn that the Air Force isn't likely to have the B-1 fully operational before the arrival of the Stealth.

Although the first 31 of 100 B-1Bs have been delivered, the plane is so unstable that it's virtually impossible to control for midair fueling. Somewhere along the way, as so often happens in the development of weapon systems, engineers added 41 tons to the weight of the plane for which they had not made allowance in earlier flight simulations.

The bomber's terrain-reflecting radar, meant to allow the plane to hug the ground out of sight of enemy radar, doesn't work right. And the Air Force has revealed that electronic jamming devices designed to foil Soviet radar do not perform their function and will have to be replaced.

Because there are other problems that the Air Force is not sure it has fully identified, it wants another $600 million and four years to try to make the plane work.

Even more money will probably be required; the cost of replacing the faulty radar-jamming devices alone could run to $1.75 billion. That's on top of $28 billion already spent on a weapon whose ability to penetrate Soviet defenses is at least questionable.

At this point, there may be little choice but to spend the additional money. But the B-1 fiasco points up anew how weapons systems, even those poorly conceived, can gain a political momentum that has little to do with real defense and a lot to do with the defense industry and poor leadership at the White House and Pentagon.

Mixed Blessings

Back in Washington the ship of state is losing its officers and some of its crew. This always happens toward the end of an administration, but the desertions began earlier than usual this term.

When President Reagan began his second four-year stint, several of his best advisors left for less-pressured or higher-paying jobs. That was to be expected. Recently, however, White House spokesman Larry Speakes and presidential aide Mitchell Daniels left. The latter had been feuding with chief of staff Donald Regan.

White House image promoter Pat Buchanan also left, and arms control negotiator Richard Perle says he will quit soon. These are among the better-known names.

The departure, under pressure, of Donald Regan has opened the door for the entrance of Howard Baker as White House chief of staff. The change may offset the disadvantages of losing experienced personnel in the waning years of a presidential term. Baker's Capitol Hill experience, political acumen and honest humor will serve the president well during these days which he must find to be trying.

It is natural for White House staff members to look for good jobs at the end of a term. But their service with a president ensures that their services will be in demand. In return for this they owe their president loyalty to the end. Deserting the administration at this time amounts to disservice to the nation and the presidency. Joining the administration at this time is truly service beyond the call of duty.

Paradox-Gate: Lame Duck Or An Eagle

The release of the Tower Commission Report on the Iran-contra scandal has yielded a new round of freestorming journalism. Can this presidency survive? Can Ronald Reagan govern?

It all sounds quite cataclysmic. I don't believe it. The story has been wrenched out of perspective by the failure to absorb a basic idea: that two or more things — sometimes contrary — can happen at the same time.

Consider: The report says Reagan was disengaged and lost control. Therefore, free-lance foreign policy cowboys like Oliver North and John Poindexter did things on their own. True, Reagan is a hands-off president. Yet, regarding Iran, these free-lancers were doing just what this disengaged president wanted done. Reagan thought the opening-to-Iran, including the arms-hostages trading, made sense. I don't think so. You may not think so. But Reagan did, and, surprise, it happened. Reagan also wanted arms to get to the contras so they could survive while the Congress was dithering. Guess what? Arms and money got there. So: Two things were operating simultaneously. A disengaged president. And a president who made things happen.

Was he in charge or not in charge?

And what about the scandal itself? It was stupid. We sold arms to a terrorist nation while publicly lecturing others not to do so. Money may (or may not) have been diverted to the contras illegally (or legally).

Scandal? Yes. But how big? Suppose we rank scandals on a severity scale of 1 to 10 with 10 the worst. Let's assign a 5 to the 1961 Cuban Bay of Pigs fiasco. We backed a rebel army and left them hanging out to dry. Many were killed and wounded. Fidel Castro ended up more solidly entrenched than ever. A Russian presence was established in our hemisphere. That's 5.

Think about Vietnam. In order to get South Vietnamese president Nguyen Van Thieu to endorse the Paris peace accords, Richard Nixon made a promise. He said that if North Vietnam broke the accords and frontally invaded South Vietnam, he would use American air power against the north. Watergate arrived, the North Vietnamese attacked, Nixon couldn't and/or didn't respond. South Vietnam was subjugated, and our friends were killed, imprisoned or became "boat people" fleeing a new communist tyranny (read "The Palace File" by Nguyen T. Hung and Jerrold L. Scheeter). Ranking? 7.

On this scale, where is Iran? Well, what happened? Bad guys (Iran) fighting other bad guys (Iraq) got some arms. America's diplomatic honor was tarnished. Ranking? Two. So, again: several things true at once. Scandal, yes; big scandal, no; small scandal played as big scandal, yes.

Or consider Lt. Col. Oliver North. He says things that aren't true. That is called lying. He may have committed illegal acts. He may be a power-hungry, hyper-macho loose cannon. He may go to jail. Something else: He helped give the contras sustenance when there was little other sustenance available. Someday when there is a free Nicaragua, there may be a spot in Managua called "Plaza Oliver North." Bad guy? Good guy? Both?

And then there is the lame duck argument. Reagan's wounded; he's crippled; he can't control the agenda. True, he's hurt. But out of the action? The president of the United States is a powerful man.

AIDS And Plague Parallels

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the Black Death descended on 14th century Europe some people reacted with terror, others with heroic deeds of self sacrifice, while still others wondered if the senseless deaths were God's retribution.

The spread of AIDS in the 1980's, dubbed by some as a modern plague, has brought out similar reactions in people, a noted theologian says.

Roger L. Shinn, a professor of ethics at the Union Theological Seminary and past president of the American Theological Society, said many historians are comparing the modern AIDS epidemic with the bubonic plague, which wiped out an estimated one third of Europe's population in the 1300's.

"But there are some major differences too," Shinn said at a recent conference on AIDS sponsored by the Montefiore Medical Center.

"AIDS has produced near panic, as did the Black Death," he said. "But with AIDS, accurate knowledge reduces panic whereas in the Middle Ages, accurate knowledge only increased panic."

"The more people knew about the Black Death, the more they had to fear," he said of the highly contagious plague.

Historians believe it originated in China and was carried to the West by flea-infested rats on trading vessels. The bubonic plague wiped out whole families, even whole villages in a matter of days.

Shinn said most people in the Middle Ages shunned people with the plague, as some people today avoid patients with the fatal acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Mothers abandoned children, husbands abandoned wives and religious leaders fled from those stricken with the disease, he said. Yet letters and other documents indicate some people selflessly nursed the sick, even though they put their own lives in danger.

"For every account of physicians hiding in terror there are descriptions of physicians desperately trying to help their patients," Shinn said.

He likened their efforts to doctors and nurses who treated AIDS patients early in the 1980's, before researchers were certain the disease spread primarily through the exchange of blood and by sexual contact.

Shinn said people today, as they did in the 14th century, wonder why they are being stricken with an epidemic of death.

OSS Used Condoms To Destroy Trucks

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — If the Smithsonian Institution is looking for a sure-fire exhibit to amuse boys of all ages, it couldn't do better than to borrow the CIA's historical "dirty tricks" collection now under lock and key at the agency's headquarters in Langley, Va.

The display would bear a sort of perverse resemblance to the show window of a Times Square joke shop. But instead of rib-tickling whoopee cushions, joy buzzers and fake ink stains, the flimsy devices developed for the Office of Strategic Services during World War II were deadly serious. They were designed to commit murder and mayhem behind enemy lines or otherwise help OSS agents carry out their dangerous spying and sabotage missions.

Here are some examples, either from the CIA collection or as described graphically in a yellowing copy of "OSS WEAPONS," a manual produced in June 1944, just

ROBERT WAGMAN

Bush Flees Fallout

BOSTON (NEA) — For the last six years Vice President George Bush has portrayed himself as being among the closest of the president's friends and the man destined to continue the Reagan revolution.

It is almost painful to watch Bush now as he frantically tries to distance himself from Irangate and its aftermath.

On the day that Ronald Reagan faced the greatest crisis of his administration — the release of the Tower Commission report and the sacking of Donald Regan — the president drew together "his closest advisers and friends" to figure out how to respond.

Conspicuous by his absence was George Bush.

When the decision was made to bring Howard Baker into the White House to clean up the mess, the vice president was in Boston to start a campaign swing into New Hampshire. He seemed to be trying out a new campaign theme that sounded suspiciously like "Ronald who?"

First, in a speech before a group of businessmen in suburban Boston, and later at stops in New Hampshire, Bush both blasted and tried to explain away the attempt to swap hostages for weapons.

"Trading hostages for arms is wrong," Bush said. The administration, he said, was "reaching out to moderates, and it became, according to the Tower Commission, trading arms for hostages and, of course, that is not our policy. That was wrong."

"I watched the president day by day, proudly sitting at his side while he agonized over the hostages," said Bush. "But efforts in 1985 and 1986 did not work," he added, "and, in some cases, were clearly wrong."

While the vice president was asserting his negative view of the arms deal, his staff took pains to point out that the Tower panel had not singled out Bush for criticism and, in fact, had barely mentioned him at all in its report.

Bush, the report said, had no part in the decision to swap arms for hostages and did not know of the complicated wheeling and dealing that Lt. Col. Oliver North was involved in.

But, at the same time, neither Bush nor his staff addressed what appears to be a clear implication by the Tower Commission that the vice president, as a member of the National Security Council, was present at many of the key meetings in which decisions were made.

While Secretary of State George Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger made their opposition known in no uncertain terms, Bush is portrayed as being almost totally silent.

So the question remains: If he is as close to the president as he says, and he did not agree with the policy, why didn't he voice his opposition?

Bush and his staff were clearly relieved that he had not been singled out by the Tower Commission. But Washington insiders think he will not be treated so lightly in the still-continuing congressional investigations or by the special prosecutor.

Evidence so far uncovered suggests that Bush and his staff had clear ties both to the contras and to the various private-aid networks supporting the rebels. And as a former CIA director — many of whose present staff were former CIA officials — Bush has many back channels into the current CIA that might have alerted him to what was going on.

It seems likely that his current attempt to distance himself from the Iran-contra affair will become central to his campaign effort in the coming months.

DICK WEST

Vaccine Against Ennui?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After the successful launch of a weather satellite, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration commented that meteorologists were "jumping for joy from Hawaii to Maine."

Weather forecasters rarely jump for joy for any reason. When they do, it usually is because a late season snowstorm they had predicted came to fruition, thus wiping out the fruit crop.

When I saw NOAA's prediction that a new $55 million satellite would be operational in time for this year's hurricane season, I fell to wondering why the meteorologists didn't jump from Maine to Hawaii.

Could it be because a spring fever epidemic may be spreading in that direction, which, the last time I looked out the window, was westward?

This spring's outbreak of lassitude promises to be every bit as widespread as the influenza that health centers were warning us about last fall. Yet comparatively little is being done to check the spread of spring fever.

Thus far, there has been no campaign that might persuade us to take shots.

My worries about spring fever sprang from forecasts that a sick-out by school bus drivers soon would spread from Maryland to Virginia.

If the sick-out did leap across the Potomac, I worried, what would keep it developing into a full-scale epidemic.

Worrying about such things is a thankless task, I realize, but somebody's got to do it. Otherwise, we would all be at the mercy of researchers who are preoccupied with AIDS.

The dire prospects outlined above should engage the attention of communicable disease specialists, but it appears they couldn't care less about how communicable spring fever is.

At any rate, I understand little is being done to prevent its enhancement. And those who figure Congress will step into the picture are leaning on a weak reed indeed.

At this point, Congress is more concerned about revenue enhancement.

With both Congress and the administration failing to get involved, how do we keep spring fever from affecting every man, woman and child in the United States?

Well, try saying "No" for a change.

as Allied troops were invading Normandy:

— A "psychological harassing agent" with the jocular name of "Who, Me?" It was a small tube containing a "liquid chemical of violent, repulsive and lasting odor" — in plain English, a stink bomb. But it wasn't designed for pranks in an elevator. Here's how the "Who, Me?" was to be used, according to the OSS manual: "It is to be squirted directly upon the body or clothing of a person a few feet away. The odor is that of occidental feces, which is extremely offensive to the Orientals. Very good use of this agent can be made by native patriots in crowded markets and bazaars to create disturbances, attack morale of enemy guards and divert attention from other activities."

— The "Dog Drag" was another smelly device, which deposited a "persistent aromatic" scent when dragged behind an agent "to throw trained dogs off the scent of their quarry." The drag kit "can be particularly useful in disguising the operator's trail to a hidden storage point or other revisited spot." The device would presumably discommodate Nazi bloodhounds without burning their sensitive sniffers as the British favored hot-pepper trick did.

— Explosives and incendiaries for use against people and inanimate objects were disguised as harmless, everyday objects. "Some were made to resemble chunks of coal and logs — with startling results when an Axis soldier placed them in a roaring fire," one description notes, adding: "Others were made to look like animal droppings and were used as land mines."

— "Capsule H" was a sort of delayed-action Molotov cocktail, consisting of a small plastic capsule filled with powdered sugar, potassium chlorate and buckshot (for weight). It was usually placed in a bottle filled with sulfuric acid and gasoline. The acid would eat through the plastic in about two hours, "igniting the powders with a brief hot flame," bursting the bottle and spreading the burning gasoline.

— The "Caccolube" was a simple but effective device to disable an enemy vehicle. It was a condom filled with abrasive powders and crushed walnuts, and was dropped into an engine crankcase. "After the engine heats up," the OSS manual explained, "the hot oil will deteriorate the rubber sac and free the compound into the lubricating system."

"When circulated through this system, the compound fuses and welds the moving metal parts of the machinery. Slipped into a truck, the Caccolube takes effect after the truck has been driven from 30 to 50 miles. It reacts so thoroughly on pistons, cylinder walls and bearing journals that the vehicle is not only thrown out of service but the engine is destroyed beyond repair."

This lethal "lube job" replaced the original effort using sugar, when it was discovered that sugar actually promoted better engine performance in the vehicles of that era.

Negotiators Cautious On Quick Medium-Range Missile Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. arms negotiators are sounding a note of caution amid a flurry of activity that has raised expectations and heightened speculation of a superpower agreement to get medium-range nuclear missiles out of Europe.

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., predicted Sunday that political pressures on President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will help produce a treaty on intermediate nuclear forces "within the next four months."

But Ambassador Max Kampelman and Maynard Giltman, who handle the Euromissile discussions for the United States, insisted such talk was premature and asserted Reagan is interested only in reaching the right agreement — not a quick one.

The White House has seized on movement in the INF talks in Geneva during the last week as part of its campaign to portray Reagan as engaged in state affairs at a time when the Iran arms-Contrat scandal has damaged his credibility and public approval rating.

Talk of a breakthrough in Geneva began last week when the Soviets dropped their insistence that Reagan accept curbs on his "Star Wars" anti-missile program, the Strategic Defense Initiative, before progress can be made on medium-range missiles.

Mountainman Captured In Town

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Even his father was disgusted when he heard that Claude Dallas, the deadly mountain man believed hiding beside lonesome campfires deep in the wild country, was arrested with his arms full of groceries outside a Southern California convenience store.

"He would have been better off in the hills of South Carolina," snorted the fugitive's father when he learned his son had been nabbed by the FBI as he ambled out of a Stop'n'Go store in Riverside Sunday.

Dallas was booked into the Riverside County jail on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. There was no immediate word on whether he would have a hearing today.

Dallas — a solitary cowboy, trapper and poacher — turned killer when he shot down two Idaho game rangers at his back country camp in 1981. The subject of two books and a television movie, a man some said was born 100 years too late, he was serving 30 years for manslaughter when he broke out of the Idaho state prison nearly a year ago.

NASA Dedicates Supercomputer

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — A new NASA supercomputer system driven by a powerful "brain" immersed in an aquarium-like environment guarantees U.S. dominance of aeronautics into the next century, space agency scientists say.

NASA scientists contend the Numerical Aerodynamic Simulation system, to go fully on-line with a dedication ceremony today, is the world's most advanced supercomputer for researching aircraft design with a capability of making 250 million computations per second.

The system will be used initially to develop a national aerospace plane by the year 2000 that can fly from Washington, D.C., to Tokyo in two hours at speeds exceeding 8,800 mph.

New Test Detects Colon Cancer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Preliminary results show a new chemical test could prove a boon in detecting colon and rectal cancers in early, curable stages and may signal a precancerous condition in people with no physical signs of a tumor.

The inexpensive test is so quick and easy to perform it could be on drug store shelves next to home pregnancy tests, said Dr. Abulkalam Shamsuddin, a pathologist at the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

Shamsuddin, presenting a paper today at a meeting of U.S. and Canadian pathologists, said although larger trials are necessary to confirm the usefulness of the test, "I fully expect this test will be mass marketed — either to physicians or the public — and will find colon cancers and find them much earlier than they are usually reported."

Second Catholic Priest Slain

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Police said an "intensive investigation" so far had turned up no link between the stabbing death of a retired priest and a similar slaying of a Roman Catholic cleric less than two weeks earlier and about 2 miles away.

Police said Sunday they did not have a suspect in either death — both of which involved a priest found stabbed and bound to a chair in a church rectory where there were no signs of forced entry or robbery.

Monsignor David Herlihy, 75, was slain between 1 a.m. and 2 a.m. Sunday in St. Matthew's Church, police said. The Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of the church, found the body tied to a chair at about 3 a.m.

On Feb. 24, the Rev. Joseph Bissonette, also bound to a chair, was discovered stabbed and beaten in St. Bartholomew's Church, some 2 miles away from the site of Herlihy's death.

Helicopter Opens Assaults In Florida's War Against Medfly

HIALEAH (UPI) — A state helicopter began a four-week assault on Mediterranean fruit flies by spraying 590 gallons of pesticide over a residential neighborhood northwest of Miami.

The three-hour blitz by a Department of Agriculture helicopter Sunday covered a nine-square-mile area in Hialeah with a mist of malathion and a chemical sex bait.

Weather permitting, the aerial spraying will be repeated for the next three Sundays, and then hordes of sterile male Medflies will be released to stop breeding attempts and a possible infestation.

Aerial spraying had been scheduled to begin Thursday, but high winds and heavy rains forced daily postponements. Even with Sunday's sunny skies and mild winds, the weather still managed to force a 45-minute delay.

100,000 Bikers Pack Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Bike Week drew 100,000 motorcyclists to Daytona Beach's avenue of sand during the 80th annual influx of cycle gangs and organized crime detectives.

Bike Week, which began Feb. 28 and ended Sunday, follows the Daytona 500 and precedes Spring Break and has attracted motorcycle enthusiasts to a city that reluctantly welcomes waves of unruly visitors and their spending money.

Herald Of Free Enterprise

...Horror

ZEEBRUGGE, Belgium (UPI) — "I've lost my little baby!" a man wailed in anguish after identifying his child in a makeshift morgue where victims of the Herald of Free Enterprise's ill-fated voyage lay in flower-covered caskets.

Other relatives of victims came quietly in twos and threes, leaning on each other for support, to identify the bodies of loved ones killed when the vessel capsized and rolled onto its port side in the frigid waters.

For the relatives of the 53 victims pulled from the ship's wreckage, the mourning can begin in earnest. For the families of 82 victims still believed trapped in the cold steel hull of the ferry lying half-submerged off the Belgian coast, the wait continues.

The wreckage of the British channel ferry itself became a curiosity as it rested in calm seas offshore, its hull exposed but difficult to see clearly without binoculars.

Tens of thousands of people created a traffic jam Sunday, their cars lining all waterfront roads. They were young and old, carrying babies, pushing strollers, taking pictures, walking dogs, most of them bundled up against a chilly March wind.

Related Story, 1A

discussing Friday's accident in Flemish, French, German and English.

"They want to see the catastrophe for themselves," said Alain Nageis, 26, who was walking a tiny dog. "This is the biggest thing to happen around here in a long time."

Red Cross volunteers in olive-green uniforms staffed emergency centers around the city of 30,000, cooking meals, throwing blankets over the shoulders of grieving people, carrying caskets and offering comfort.

At a gymnasium in the city of Zeebrugge, 51 corpses lay in brass-studded, flower-bedecked wood coffins on the floor. Relatives first checked a list posted two blocks away at the city hall to see if their loved ones were among the dead.

Those who found names on the list were driven in Red Cross vans to the gym, where they filed through a doorway draped with black cloth to the coffins, some open, and some closed, until they found who they were seeking.

Most of the families wept little but looked somber, strained and worn. Those who did not find a relative on the list must wait until the other bodies are brought in during salvage work. Officials say that could take several days.

Once a body was identified — about half were Sunday — the casket was loaded into a van and driven away to be shipped home.

"I've lost my little baby!" yelled one young man on his return to city hall to sign a form that he had made positive identification.

The man punched a van and charged a television camera crew yelling, "get that camera out of my face or I'll shove it down your throat."

His wife, overcome with grief, had to be led into the building by Red Cross officers to keep from collapsing.

But that was not the norm, as the British showed emotional restraint. One man injured in the tragedy, a huge blue bruise above a swollen eye, wandered aimlessly around the neighborhood after learning of a relative's death. When asked to comment, he said, "not interested."

"If this had been a Belgian ship, there would have been a scene of hysteria of Belgians demanding more information," said city official Bob Warmier. "The British keep their grief inside."

...Heroism

LONDON (UPI) — A terrified girl rescued from the Herald of Free Enterprise mumbled, "I don't want to die. I've been a good girl," as icy English Channel water cascaded into the stricken ferry off the Belgian coast.

As water "rose like a horror film" inside the vessel Friday evening, people shouted "they loved each other" and prepared for the worst while struggling to save themselves and fellow passengers from the frigid waters.

Survivors described unsuccessful attempts to save wives, children and the handicapped as the car ferry bound for Dover, England, with 543 people aboard turned on its side 1 mile off Zeebrugge, Belgium. At least 135 people are believed to have died, most of them trapped in the cabin.

One British soldier told how he struggled to hold onto a friend until he could hold on no longer and his buddy slipped like a frozen weight into the sea, probably to his death.

"He was so cold he couldn't stay afloat," said British soldier Peter Williamson, 28. "I held on to him for as long as I could, then had to let him go. He weighed too much. I just couldn't hold on any longer, my hands were freezing. It was terrible but there was nothing I could do."

Another soldier, Stan Mason, 23, dragged his 4-year-old daughter Kerry to safety by carrying the child by her clothes in his teeth despite his own crippling spinal injuries. He lost his wife Katherine in the chaos.

"All of a sudden the ship went over," Mason said. "I reached out and grabbed Katherine's arm but she slipped out of my grasp. I got hold of the baby between my teeth and climbed up over tables and chairs, all the time looking in the water for Katherine."

Martin Hartley, 8, of Cotmanham, England, escaped the ship with two broken legs but discovered he had lost his entire family — his mother and father, his grandparents and his aunt.

Survivors recalled the scenes of chaos and heartbreak as relatives and friends disappeared in the icy waters. Tables, broken glass, kitchenware and bodies flew through the air as the ship capsized.

Some fights broke out as panicked passengers tried to escape the rising water. But there were also scenes of heroism.

College student Rebecca Carbley, 18, said her grandmother disappeared after trying to help an invalid in a wheelchair.

"The ship was going over and I don't think she realized what was happening," she said. "A wheelchair suddenly went past with someone in it. My grandmother instinctively put out her hand to stop it. She was carried with the wheelchair down the ship and we didn't see her again."

Truckdriver Graham Green described the chaos as the water came rushing in and the four-decked ship started to list.

"We climbed on tables and chairs, but the water was rising up like a horror film," he said. "Some people smashed straight into windows and must have died instantly."

"We were watching the water and were sure it was going to come up over our heads. I tried to prepare to die," he said. "People were reaching for each other and shouting that they loved each other."

One of the most touching rescue stories was told by passenger Susan Hames, 33, who plucked a 9-year-old girl named Clare to safety from the sea and then comforted the terrified sobbing child on a ledge of the ship above the rising water line.

"I pulled her up," Hames said. "She was frightened she was going to die. She kept saying, 'I've been such a good girl. I've never told any lies. Why should I die? I don't want to die.'"

A 14-year-old British girl who suffered a heart attack was "brought back from the dead" by doctors after she was pulled from the icy water.

The unidentified girl's body temperature plunged to 70 degrees — a level below that at which death is recorded. But Belgian doctors operated on her for four hours and saved her life.

Sean Trower, 27, of Dorking, England, was planning to board the ferry but missed the ship when Belgian police locked him up Friday for fighting in a restaurant. "I never thought I was lucky before," Trower said.

Iran-Contrat Probers Seek Records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Investigators in the Iran-Contrat scandal are digging into the tough unanswered questions, with special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh seeking an "exhaustive" new stack of White House records and lawmakers ready to decide this week about granting immunity to major witnesses.

Walsh is apparently expanding his criminal probe with confidence he has overcome legal obstacles thrown at him by Lt. Col. Oliver North, the fired White House aide trying to halt the investigation.

Walsh has submitted an "unbelievably extensive" request for White House and National Security Council documents potentially totaling hundreds of thousands of pages of material, The Los Angeles Times reported today.

The request, termed the largest of several made recently, opened a phase of the probe in which Walsh is seeking new evidence instead of sifting through documents already reviewed by congressional intelligence committees and the president's Tower Commission, the newspaper said.

Administration officials would not discuss details of the classified request, but among the documents sought are NSC computer messages written by people now believed to be only distantly linked to the scandal, the newspaper said.

"It's the most exhaustive request I've ever seen anywhere," one senior administration official told The Times. Another source termed it "massive."

The New York Times said today investigators in Walsh's office expect to indict "current and former government officials" for violations of a broad range of federal laws under focus in his investigation, including conspiring to defraud the government, obstructing justice and making false statements to the government.

The Times, citing knowledgeable unidentified law-enforcement officials, said Walsh had not ruled out anyone, including Reagan administration officials.

Walsh pressed ahead today in a federal court hearing on his motion to dismiss North's constitutional challenge of the law by which special prosecutors are appointed. North also challenged last week's decision by Attorney General Edwin Meese giving Walsh a parallel Justice Department role as a precautionary tactic.

3 Champs Lift 'Noles To SAC Title

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole High got a combined strong effort from its experienced lifters and four ninth graders en route to the Seminole Athletic Conference Tournament championship Saturday at Lyman High.

Coach Dave Mosure's Seminoles finished with 36 points compared to 35 for Lake Howell, 31 for Lyman and Lake Brantley, 29 for Lake Mary and 28 for Oviedo. It was the first ever conference title for the Seminole High weightlifting squad.

"We felt we had a good chance but knew it was going to be close," Mosure said. "All the kids did a good job for us. And if they stick with it, the future looks real good."

Seminole advanced five lifters to the State Weightlifting Meet on March 21 at Port Orange Spruce Creek.

The 'Noles crowned three SAC individual champions Saturday with junior Bernard Burke winning at 148 pounds with a 260 bench press and 220 clean and jerk for a total of 480. Oviedo's Rodney Thompson was second with a state qualifying total of 475 (280 bench, 195 clean and jerk).

At 181, senior Rick Kelley took first with a total of 505 (290-215) while junior teammate Steve Warren was second at 500 (290-210).

Weightlifting

At heavyweight, senior Chris Smith turned in an impressive meet despite a sore shoulder as he claimed first place with a personal record total of 680 that included a 390 bench and 290 clean and jerk. Oviedo's Andy Palmer was second with a state-qualifying total of 610 (340-270).

"In heavyweight, there are 400-pound plus benches being executed in the Tampa and Penacola areas and their jerks are around 300," Mosure said. "But I think Chris (Smith) has a chance to do really well at state."

Senior Dwayne Willis took a second place for the Tribe as he totaled 510 (280-230) pounds at the 165 division. Lyman's Jon Bolander was first at 515 (285-230).

Mosure, who coached a South Miami High team that took second in the state in 1977, said the 'Noles have a chance to do well at this year's state meet.

"We're sending five guys to state against teams that have qualified as many as nine lifters," Mosure, who was named

SAC Coach of the Year, said. "It's going to be tough, but I think our kids will be competitive."

The Early Line: Competitive '87 In SAC Baseball

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

It seems as though every time baseball season rolls around, the Seminole Athletic Conference teams appear to be in a class by themselves. If Friday's SAC slate was any indication, the county looks more competitive than ever.

Now that all of the teams have begun conference play, coaches and critics are starting to get an idea of what to expect.

The team to beat in the SAC is undoubtedly Lake Mary. The Rams are 8-0, and ranked second in the state 4A poll. Mary has all of the ingredients to be a championship team: strong pitching, aggressive hitters, sturdy defense, and most importantly, a good team chemistry and strong confidence.

Lake Mary, 1-0 in the SAC, had a strong week as the Rams beat a pesky Lake Brantley squad, 7-6 in nine innings, and crushed seventh-ranked Orlando Colonial, 14-8.

The Rams will have another tough week as they will travel to Seminole on Wednesday for a SAC contest. They will host Lyman Friday afternoon.

Lake Mary may be the favorite to win the SAC, but if the Rams take the Oviedo Lions lightly, they could be in serious trouble. The Lions, 5-0 and 2-0 in the SAC, are ranked second in the state 3A poll, and have a veteran ball club.

"I think that we can play with anybody," Oviedo coach Howard Mable said. "The conference is tougher than ever this season, but I think that we'll be very competitive."

Mable deserves a lot of credit for the Lions' success. The hard-working coach has done a fine job with Oviedo in the past few years. Oviedo hasn't gotten the respect that it deserves in the past few years, but Mable is changing that quickly.

Oviedo has one of the county's top pitchers in senior righty Scott Bowers. Bowers, 3-0, has been nothing short of awesome so far this season as he has given up just four hits in his three victories.

Bowers threw what he called a "sloppy" one-hitter last Friday against Lyman as the Lions claimed a 3-1 win. Mable will take a one-hitter whether its sloppy or not.

Oviedo possesses one of the nation's top players in senior Mark Merchant. Merchant, a switch-hitting outfielder, is attracting scouts at every game and is considered one of the best prep players in the nation.

Oviedo will host a pair of SAC games this week as the Lions will entertain Lake Howell on Wednesday, and Seminole on Friday. The Lions already have a win over Howell as the Lions defeated Howell, 7-0, earlier in the season.

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks have been up and down so far this season. Howell started the season by winning its first three games. The Hawks then proceeded to lose their next four. Howell has now won three in a row making their record 7-4 overall and 1-1 in the SAC.

"We have been a streaky team," Lake Howell coach Birt Benjamin said. "We are playing well now, and I hope that we can keep it up for awhile."

Howell has another top pitcher in senior righty Greg Hill. Hill, 4-0, has looked strong so far and is staying ahead of the hitters.

"I'm not a real fire-baller," Hill said. "But I try to stay ahead. My control has been good so far, and that's important."

Hill tossed a four-hitter last Friday leading the Hawks to a 6-2 win over Seminole. "I'm getting a lot of offensive support," Hill said. "The guys have been hitting well for me."

Howell will have a busy week

Seniors Control All-SAC

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Seniors Roderick Henderson and Jerry "Stick" Parker, two reasons Seminole marched through the Seminole Athletic Conference schedule unbeaten, were voted first-team positions on the All-SAC Basketball Team released today by Oviedo coach Dale Phillips.

"There were a few surprises," Phillips said.

The squad, selected by the six SAC coaches, had five seniors on the first team. Henderson, a 6-4 swingman, and Parker, a 6-1 guard, were joined by 8-4 Oviedo forward Robb Hughes, 6-1 Lake Brantley forward Brent Bell and 5-10 Lyman guard Robert Thomas.

Henderson averaged 16.2 points and was among the leaders in every statistical category. Parker averaged 15.7 points. Hughes averaged 12.3 points and 7.1 rebounds. Bell was the county's leading scorer with 18.2 points. Thomas was second in assists with 5.6 and averaged 13.8 points.

Seminole's Bill Klein, whose squad finished 25-8, was SAC Coach of the Year. Seminole posted a 10-0 record while winning its second SAC title.

The second team was nearly as impressive. Seminole junior Andre Whitney joined Lake Mary's 6-1 senior Oscar Merthle and 5-10 junior Terry "The Cat" Miller. Lake Howell's 6-3 Steve Johnson and Lyman's 6-2 junior Craig Radzak.

Whitney led the county in assists (6.7) and steals (3.7). Merthle led the county in rebounding (10.2) and averaged 14.4 points. Miller averaged 12.6 points while Johnson averaged 8.6 points and Radzak scored Seminole's Jerry "Stick" Parker slams home two points against Lake Howell in the district tournament. Parker and teammate Roderick Henderson were voted to the All-Seminole Conference Basketball first team by the SAC coaches. Henderson also made the first team last year.

14.1 points. The honorable mention list included Seminole's junior forward Walter "Tipman" Hopson, senior guard Michael Edwards and junior center Craig Walker. Walter led the county in blocked shots (3.8) and was second in rebounding (9.8). Lake

NIT Selects FSU, Jacksonville

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cleveland State, the surprise team of the NCAA Tournament last year, Sunday was among 30 teams accepting bids to the National Invitation Tournament. Florida State and Jacksonville were teams selected from Florida.

The field for the 32-team competition will be completed Monday. It is believed defending national champion Louisville and Washington will be the final two entries in the tournament, which started in 1938.

Cleveland State defeated Indiana and St. Joseph's in the first two rounds of last year's NCAA Tournament before losing to Navy. The Vikings, 24-7, will open NIT play at Tennessee-Chattanooga on Thursday.

The tournament opens Wednesday at various sites. The first three rounds will be played across the country and the semifinals and finals will be

Also accepting invitations were James Madison and Montana State but their first-round opponents have not been determined.

Ohio State defeated Wyoming 73-63 in last year's championship game. Both the Buckeyes and the Cowboys made the

Clock, 3-Pointer To Breed Parity

Basketball

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — NCAA basketball committee chairman Dick Schultz predicts the presence of the 3-point goal and 45-second clock will generate a more competitive NCAA Tournament.

"We think it's going to be a very competitive field," Schultz said Sunday after his committee finalized the 64-team field.

"Nothing is easy, I'll tell you that, and this year was not any different. With the combination of the 3-point play and the 45-second clock, in combination for the first time, we had more parity than we ever had in the game of basketball."

Schultz's committee made top-rated Nevada-Las Vegas, No. 2 North Carolina, No. 4 Indiana and No. 7 Georgetown the tournament's top seeds for the regionals. UNLV is No. 1 in the West, North Carolina in the East, Indiana in the Midwest and Georgetown in the Southeast.

The tournament begins Thursday night and ends March 30 in the New Orleans Superdome. Participation is worth $200,000 a school and Final Four teams will receive more than $1 million.

The Atlantic Coast, Big Ten and Southeastern conferences each placed six teams and the Big East had five. More than one-third of the tournament's teams come from those four leagues.

UNLV, 33-1, earned its fourth consecutive NCAA bid by capturing the Pacific Coast Athletic Association tournament and will open Thursday in Salt Lake City against Idaho State.

North Carolina, which tied UCLA's mark of 13 consecutive NCAA Invitations, opens in its home state Thursday, facing Penn at Charlotte. The Tar Heels, 29-3, and ACC regular-season champion, won the 1982 NCAA Tournament, the last time New Orleans hosted.

The Midwest appears the toughest region, featuring three of the nation's top-eight teams — No. 4 Indiana, No. 5 DePaul and No. 8 Temple. The West boasts No. 1 UNLV, No. 6 Iowa and No. 10 Pittsburgh.

Four teams play first-round games at home — Syracuse at the Carrier Dome, DePaul at The Rosemont Horizon, Arizona at McKale Center in Tucson and Alabama-Birmingham at Birmingham-Jefferson Civic Center. Last year, Louisiana State upset Purdue and Memphis State at home en route to the Final Four.

Louisville became the 16th NCAA champion that failed to reach the tournament the year following its title. The Cardinals lost to Memphis State in Sunday's Metro Conference tournament final. Memphis State is on NCAA probation and ineligible for postseason play, leaving the Metro Conference without an automatic bid.

Emotional Rams Trounce Colonial For No. 1 Fan

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

An emotional Lake Mary team used a 10-hit offensive attack and a solid relief effort from Sean "Flake" Flaherty to keep its unbeaten streak alive Saturday with a 14-8 victory over Orlando Colonial at Orlando.

The Rams played without coach Allen Tuttle who missed the game due to the death of his father, Robert Allen "Tut" Tuttle Sr., Saturday morning. The elder Tuttle had complained of dizziness after Lake Mary's victory Friday afternoon. He suffered a heart attack and passed away Saturday morning, according to coach Tuttle.

The elder Tuttle was the Rams' No. 1 fan and never missed a game. Visitation will be tonight from 7 to 9 at the Brisson Funeral Home on Ninth Street in Sanford. The funeral service will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. at Brisson Funeral Home.

"The boys pulled it out for me," Tuttle said Monday. Assistants Charlie Reynolds and Larry Holbrook coached Saturday's victory.

The second-ranked (Class 4A)

Baseball

Rams improved to 8-0 for the season and return to Seminole Athletic Conference play (1-0) Wednesday at Seminole. Colonial now stands at 8-2.

Lake Mary picked up eight runs in the first three innings Saturday but it wasn't enough as Colonial put up seven runs over the same span off Lake Mary starter Anthony Laszalc. Flaherty relieved Laszalc in the third and gave up a run in the fourth but shut the Grenadiers out over the last three frames.

Lake Mary nailed down the victory by scoring three runs in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Ryan Lisle led Lake Mary at the plate as he was 3 for 4 with a home run and two RBIs. Eric Birle was 2 for 2 and drove in two runs. Shane Letterio was 2 for 4 with a double and Kelly Hysell stroked a solo homer in five at bats.

RAIN CANCELS PAIR

Saturday's other action, Port Orange Spruce Creek at Seminole and Orlando Lake Highland at Lyman, was rained out. No makeup dates have been finalized for either game. Lyman returns to action tonight at 7 at Daytona Beach Manland.

SAC RESUMES WEDNESDAY

The Seminole Athletic Conference race heats up again Wednesday when Lake Mary (1-0) travels to Seminole (0-1) for a 3:30 p.m. game, Lyman (0-1) journeys to Lake Brantley (0-1) for a 7 p.m. clash and Lake Howell (1-1) treks to Oviedo (2-0) for a 7 p.m. battle.

Destiny Vs. Dynasty

Winter Park Halts Washington's 60-Game Streak For State 4A Crown

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

WINTER PARK — It was destiny against dynasty in the finals of the Class 4A State Girls Basketball Tournament Saturday night. And, in the end, it was Winter Park's destined Lady Wildcats who jolted seemingly invincible Pensacola Washington, 70-69, before 2,801 fans on the Lady Wildcats' home floor.

Junior guard Mimi Jones, who finished with a game-high 26 points, hit four consecutive free throws in the last 15 seconds as Winter Park, 31-1, triumphed in its first appearance in the state tournament.

The Lady Wildcats' victory also snapped a state-record 60-game winning streak by Washington. The last time the Panhandle power had been beaten was the state semifinals in 1985.

Winter Park trailed by as much as 11 points in the second half but came back with a near-flawless fourth-quarter performance to upend the defending champions.

"There is no quit in this team," Winter Park coach Kerry Patrick said. "The girls weren't worried when we were down by eight at the half. They knew they could come back."

While the dazzling offensive performance of Jones led the Lady Wildcats' championship charge, senior forward Jennifer Scherer and senior center Heidi Wutscher played impressive underneath. Scherer capped off a tremendous post-season with 17 points and seven rebounds while Wutscher pumped in 15 points and grabbed eight boards.

Flashy senior point guard Astrid Soulette was the key that turned Winter Park's offense. Soulette, a transfer from San Francisco, handled Washington's full-court man-to-man pressure without any trouble and handed out six assists. Senior forward Lynn Parks and senior reserve forward Helle Ljungstrom also turned in key contributions for the Lady Cats.

All-State guard Chris Davis gave Pensacola Washington the early lead as she hit continually from the outside. Davis scored 15 of her team-high 21 points in the first half as Washington built a 39-31 lead.

Washington took its biggest lead at 11 points, 44-33, early in the third quarter on a three-point play by senior center Robyn Husted who finished the game with 19 points.

Winter Park worked its way back with patient play on offense, determined defense and dead-eye (9 of 9) free throw shooting. The Lady Wildcats, behind five points in the last 1:30 by Jones, pulled within one, 53-52, going into the fourth period.

The lead changed hands four times in the first six minutes of the fourth quarter with Sabrina Wallace's offensive rebound and layup giving Washington a 65-64 lead with two minutes left to play. Winter Park then committed a rare turnover that led to a breakaway layup for Wallace and a 67-64 Pensacola lead.

Winter Park closed within 67-66 on two free throws by Jones with 1:29 and it stayed that way until Scherer came up with the biggest defensive play of the year for the Lady Wildcats. Pensacola Washington had control of the ball and was trying to break Winter Park's half-court trap when Scherer stepped in front of Wallace and intercepted a pass with 55 seconds remaining.

Wutscher missed the front end of a one-and-one with 37 seconds left, but Joann McWilliams did the same for Washington with 25 ticks left on the clock. Scherer rebounded the missed free throw and outletted to Jones who dribbled down court, drove the lane and was fouled by McWilliams with 15 seconds left to play. Jones sunk both free throws for a 68-67 Winter Park lead.

Washington then hurried the ball past halfcourt and signaled for a time out with nine seconds remaining. Unfortunately, Washington had no time outs remaining and a two-shot technical was called. Jones hit both free throws to nail down the championship for Winter Park.

"We knew we had no timeouts left," Washington coach Ronnie Bond said. "It (time out) was just a reaction by one of our players."

N.C. State Rises To Occasion, Tips Tar Heels In ACC

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Once again, North Carolina State is responding to the challenges of March.

The Wolfpack, a perennially strong postseason team, earned their way into the NCAA Tournament Sunday with a 68-67 upset of No. 2 North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament final.

"If you look at the last few years the team always does well in a do-or-die situation," Wolfpack guard Quentin Jackson said. "I can't really say why but we always seem to play better when the pressure is on."

"I just hope the usual late-season peaking continues this year. We've won six in a row now — another six would be nice."

Vinny Del Negro hit 2 free throws with 14 seconds left and the Wolfpack, seeded sixth in the ACC tournament, hung on to tag North Carolina with its first league loss this season.

N.C. State gained its first ACC tournament title since 1983 and 10th overall in the event's 34-year history. The triumph brought the Wolfpack an automatic berth to the 64-team NCAA Tournament, a bid N.C. State was in danger of not receiving before the ACC event.

The Wolfpack, 20-14, will play Florida of the Southeastern Conference Friday at the Carrier Dome in Syracuse, N.Y. North Carolina, 29-3, will meet Ivy League champion Penn Thursday in Charlotte, N.C. Both

Basketball

North Carolina and N.C. State are in the East Regional.

"State looked better to me than they did in December (when they were ranked in the top 10)," said Smith, whose team had beaten the Wolfpack this season by 18 and 17 points. "Maybe this is '83 all over again."

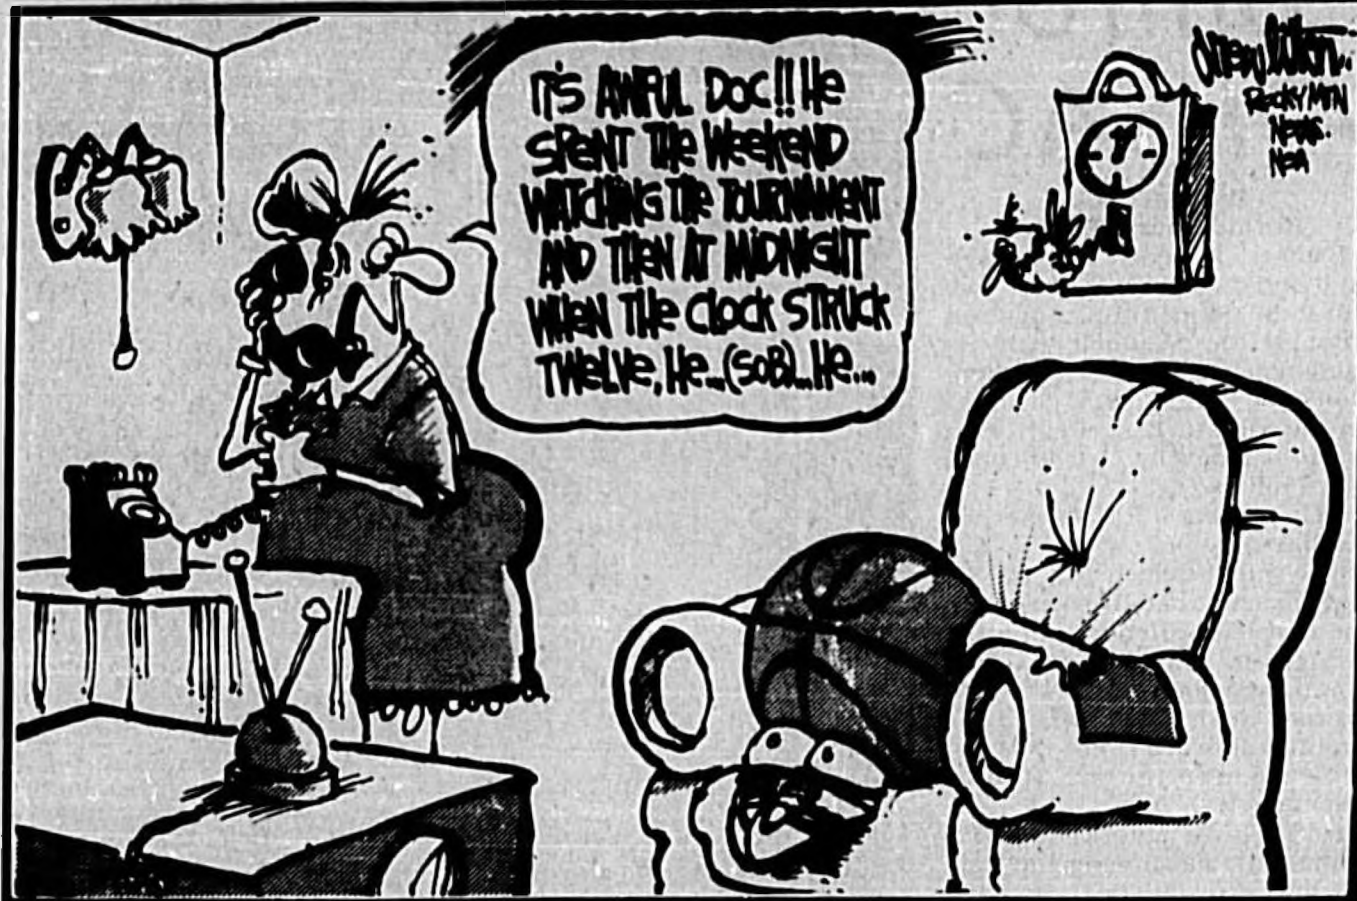

Big East
At New York, No. 7 Georgetown applied zone pressure and received 25 points from Reggie Williams to down No. 11 Syracuse 69-59 and win the tournament. The Hoyas, 26-4, have won the tournament in five of its eight years. Sherman Douglas scored 20 points for Syracuse, 26-6.

"I've never had a team that surprised me like this team has surprised me," Georgetown Coach John Thompson said.

Big Eight
At Kansas City, Mo., freshman Lee Coward sank a jumper from the foul line with four seconds left to lift Missouri over Kansas 67-65 in the tournament finals. Missouri, 24-9, was paced by 26 points from Derrick Chievous. Kansas, 23-10, received 31 points from Danny Manning.

East Coast
At Towson, Md., Bucknell beat Towson State 86-74 to win its win, lose & DREW first ECC tournament. Mark Atkinson scored 16 points for Bucknell, 22-8. For Towson State, 14-16, Billy Leonard hit for 27.

At Louisville, Ky., Marvin Alexander had 18 points and 9 rebounds as Memphis State defeated Louisville 75-72 — the Cardinals' worst loss in the 12 years of the tournament. Memphis State is on probation and ineligible for the NCAA Tournament. The selection committee snubbed defending national champion Louisville, 18-14.

Pacific-10
At Los Angeles, Pooh Richardson struck for 21 points and Montel Hatcher added 20 to lift

No. 16 UCLA, 24-4, over Washington 78-64 in the finals of the inaugural Pac-10 tournament. Chris Welp had 25 points and 13 rebounds for Washington, 18-14. The loss cost the Huskies an NCAA bid.

"I can't argue with our not being in the tournament," Washington Coach Andy Russo said. "Our problem this year is inconsistency. We never quite got over the hump."

Southeastern
At Atlanta, No. 9 Alabama played strong defense and made its second-half foul shots to beat Louisiana State 69-62 in the tournament finals. Derrick McKey scored 16 points and Terry Conner 15 for the Tide, 26-4. Nikita Wilson fired in 26 for LSU, 21-14.

"I think one of the things that makes us very good is we've been pretty consistent," Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson said. "We try to stay away from peaks and valleys."

Southwest
At Dallas, Winston Crite tossed in 16 points as Texas A&M continued to surprise by ripping Baylor 71-46 in the tournament finals. The Aggies, 17-13, entered the SWC tourney seeded last and losers of seven of nine. Baylor was seeking its first NCAA appearance in 37 years.

"I feel very foolish," A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said. "I should have gone to Vegas this week instead of wasting my time at a basketball tournament."

Mishaps, 6 Marks At Indoor

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Two mishaps involving world-record holders and six world-record performances highlighted the first World Indoor Track and Field Championships.

American Greg Foster became entangled with Canadian Mark McKoy Sunday during the 60-meter hurdles final, causing both to fall and allowing American Tonia Campbell to win in 7.51 seconds.

"Greg stumbled off the second hurdle and came into my lane and hit the back of my leg and arm," said McKoy, who was leading when the bump took place at the fourth hurdle. "It looked like he just lost his balance. These things happen. Sometimes you win. Sometimes you fall."

After two world records on the opening day and three more Saturday, there was only one world indoor mark set Sunday. Bulgaria's Stefka Kostadinova established a world high-jump best with a leap of 6-feet-8 3/4 (2.05 meters), bettering her own world mark by half an inch.

Sunday's accident came two days after Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, the world indoor record holder, fell in a 1,500-meter qualifying heat and failed to make the finals. On that same day, Foster set a world record of 7.48 seconds in the 60-meter hurdles.

McKoy suffered a bruised hip Sunday after running straight into a hurdle during the collision. Foster, who made no comment after the race, fell onto McKoy and suffered a deep cut to the back of his left leg.

"I don't blame Greg. It's not his fault he got off balance," McKoy said. "You are all keyed up going into the race. When you clip a hurdle at that speed, there is nothing you can do."

Campbell admitted he did not expect to beat Foster and McKoy, but said his victory was not tainted by the fall.

"In all honest effort, I was running for third place," Campbell said. "Now, they will say 'Tonia Campbell won, yeah, but...' That's not fair to me. How many times do I have to be a world champion? What do I have to do to prove myself?"

"I will wear this crown proudly. People will say if they hadn't fallen, I would not have won. But they did. And I won. It's my day. This is a beautiful and a violent sport. Falling is part of it."

There were 20,971 spectators, the largest crowd ever to attend an indoor track meet. The total was 948 more than Saturday's, which broke the attendance mark of 18,325 set at last year's Millrose Games in New York.

World-record holder Sergel Bubka won the pole vault, but missed three attempts to increase his world mark of 19-feet-6 1/4 (5.95 meters) by half an inch.

Other winners Sunday included Americans Kirk Baptiste (200 meters) and Mike Conley (triple jump). Ireland's Frank O'Mara (3,000 meters) and East Germany's Sabine Busch (women's 400 meters).

The four other world records set in the event were Canada's Ben Johnson (6.41 seconds, 60 meters), East Germany's Helke Drechsler (22.27 seconds, 200 meters), Mikhail Schennilov of the Soviet Union (18:27.79, 5,000-meter walk), and Olga Kriahlop of the Soviet Union (12:05.49, 3,000-meter walk).

Non-Thinking Mecir Nets Lendl — Graf Rolls On

KEY BISCAYNE (UPI) — Miloslav Mecir says he rarely thinks about his tennis game.

The 22-year-old Czech says he doesn't ponder being the world's best player, doesn't set goals and doesn't seek advice. Before playing top-seeded Ivan Lendl in the Lipton International Players Championships final Sunday, Mecir said he didn't think about his last meeting against Lendl, a straight-set defeat in the U.S. Open finals.

Refusing to dwell on his game paid off Sunday for Mecir as he defeated Lendl

Tennis

7-5, 6-2, 7-5 to win the $112,500 first-place money for the two-week tournament. Lendl, the world's No. 1 player and a semifinal loser to Pat Cash at the Australian Open, earned $56,250.

By the time Mecir reached the interview room at the International Tennis Center, it seemed he had forgotten about his victory. Instead of a gleaming smile or emotional outbursts, Mecir acted as if he was bored by the whole affair of beating the world's No. 1 player.

"I never was ambitious to be No. 1," Mecir said. "I just go out and try to do my best. I'm just glad (his career) is always going forward."

Lendl won last year's Lipton by defeating Mats Wilander in the finals.

In Saturday's women's final, Steffi Graf of West Germany routed Chris Evert Lloyd 6-1, 6-2 in a 58-minute rematch of last year's Lipton final, won by Evert Lloyd. Graf's forehand and service returns proved too strong for Evert Lloyd, who held serve only once in eight tries.

Graf, 17, who moved past Evert Lloyd into the No. 2 spot on the computer rankings last week, earned $150,000 while Evert Lloyd made $60,000. It was the second straight tournament victory for Graf, who won the Virginia Slims of Florida last month. She has yet to lose a set this year. The men and women had an equal prize-money pool, but the women chose to distribute it differently.

Earnhardt Captures Miller, Misses Waltrip's Challenge

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Dale Earnhardt said he was disappointed a duel against Darrell Waltrip failed to take place Sunday at the Miller 400.

"I was hoping that Bubbles (Waltrip) and I would hook it up again today and give the fans their money's worth, but he just wasn't around at the end," said Earnhardt after his victory Sunday at Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway. Waltrip had dropped out with fewer than 50 laps to go because of transmission trouble.

Earnhardt came away from the same event last year with a fine and season-long probation for reckless driving after colliding with Waltrip in the final lap.

Sunday, Earnhardt captured the lead midway through the 400-lap race and warded off a mild challenge from Geoff Bodine down the stretch to win by three car lengths. It was Earnhardt's second straight victory in a NASCAR Winston Cup race.

Racing

Earnhardt, the defending national points champion, powered his Chevrolet to an average speed of 81,521 mph on the half-mile oval for his 22nd career triumph. On March 1, Earnhardt won the Rockingham 500 at the North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Earnhardt, who recovered from a spin-out on the eighth lap, gained the lead from Bill Elliott on Lap 232 and was not seriously challenged after that.

Bodine finished second in a Chevrolet, and Rusty Wallace was third in a Pontiac. Elliott claimed fourth in a Ford and Terry Labonte finished fifth in a Chevrolet in the $336,180 event before a standing-room-only crowd of about 30,000.

Dale Earnhardt won the Miller 400 Sunday.

The victory snapped a first-place tie between Earnhardt and Elliott in the points race. Earnhardt now has 530 points to Elliott's 510.

Bucs Earn State Berth

WEST PALM BEACH — Thirty-eight points is a nice output. Especially when it does not come from all-star Mike Polite.

Daytona Beach Mainland received a career-high 38 points from Kenny Mackeroy en route to an 84-69 thumping of Palm Beach Gardens to capture the Section 4A-3 Basketball championship Saturday night before 3,301 fans at West Palm Beach Community College.

Mainland (24-5), which whipped Lake Mary to take the District 4A-9 Tournament crown, advances to the Class 4A State Tournament at the Lakeland Civic Center. Coach Dick Toth's Bucs will battle Miami Senior at 3:30 p.m. Thursday. Senior nipped defending state champion Hialeah Miami Lakes, 61-58, Saturday.

Mackeroy, meanwhile, said his 38-point outburst was made possible by Palm Beach Gardens' attention to Polite. Polite took just one shot in the first quarter as the Gators broke to a 22-15 lead.

Polite and Mackeroy, though,

Basketball

scored 17 of the Bucs' 19 second-quarter points to forge a 34-34 deadlock at halftime.

"They were keying on Polite," Mackeroy, a 6-4 junior forward, said. "That left it open for me. I got a real quick step to the basket and I used it."

Toth said his club had the "jitters" before the game but figured if it did not get down by 20, it would be all right. "The halftime score satisfied me," he said. "I'd like to be even with 18 minutes against anybody with this team."

The Bucs began to pull away in the third period. Senior guard Derrick Henry tossed in a jumper at the buzzer to push Mainland ahead, 58-50, at the end of the period.

Mackeroy went wild in the final eight minutes, breaking away for three dunks.

Polite finished with 16 points. Henry chipped in 12 as did smooth-shooting Veryl McIntyre.

UCF Job Survey Discloses Grads Stay Close To Home

Results of the latest annual employment survey of recent University of Central Florida graduates indicate that Florida taxpayers are getting a good return for their investment to higher education.

The report just released by the UCF Career Resource Center shows that fewer than 3 per cent of graduates from July 1985 through April 1986 have left the state in search of employment.

Data contained in the survey is based upon a 39 per cent response from 3,200 bachelor and masters degree recipients during that period, said James Gracy, resource center director.

The reluctance to leave Florida is nothing new for UCF graduates, said Gracy. The extremely low rate in the latest survey would also indicate a steadily improving area job market for college graduates, he said.

As in previous reports, engineering graduates with bachelor's degrees reported the highest starting salaries, with a $26,598 average. Computer science majors are close behind at $25,848.

The average annual salaries of graduates in UCF's six colleges are $20,161 for bachelor's degrees and $24,855 for master's degrees, increases over the previous survey of 2 per cent and 7 per cent, respectively, for the two groups. The relatively low figures reflect a national trend, said Gracy.

By far the greatest number of graduates who responded to the poll live and work in the five counties — Orange, Seminole, Brevard, Lake and Osceola — that are home to the majority of the student body. Nearly 77 per cent who replied fit that category.

The 1985-86 survey marks the 17th year that questionnaires have been sent to UCF graduates.

Junior Woman's Club Gives $$ To Educational Center

The Junior Woman's Club of Sanford, Inc. recently contributed a $200 donation to Hopper Exceptional Education Center.

During the summer of the 1984-1985 school year and under the leadership of Donald Ricci, director of Exceptional Student Education, Hopper Exceptional Education Center was created at the site of the former Hopper Elementary School. The purpose of Hopper Exceptional Education Center is to first serve as a least restrictive environment for autistic and severely emotionally disturbed children. The Hopper Center also serves as an office for various exceptional education support personnel and is the site of the Instructional Materials Library.

The Junior Woman's Club of Sanford, Inc. adopted Hopper Center last year in an attempt to help the facility with their much needed service it provides. The center is in constant need of library books, games, puzzles and typewriters (either manual or electric). If anyone wishes to donate any of the above items, please contact Beth Freeman of the Juniors at 323-5340 or 323-2755.

Ms. Freeman said, "The Juniors will be happy to arrange for these items to be picked up, if necessary. This will be an on-going project of the Juniors for the 1987 year."

DAR Observes Flag Day

The flag, to be flown in front of the museum, is one that has flown over the capitol building in Washington, D.C. It was obtained through the courtesy of U.S. Congressman

Bill McCollum.

Mrs. Robert Riesser and Mrs. William Flannery, members of the St. Johns River chapter, NSDAR will be special guests and will be in costume as they present a program on the American flag, immediately preceding the program for the DAR chapter, Mrs. Riesser and Mrs. Flannery, will present the same program at Longwood Elementary School.

Visiting Daughters in the area are invited to attend the meeting.

Postal Service Honors Employee

The Employee Involvement-Quality Work Life Team and managers of this installation at the United Postal Service, Sanford, has selected David L. Henderson, a full-time letter carrier, as "The Outstanding Carrier of Quarter 1 1987."

According to Robert D. Kelly, officer in charge, Henderson was recipient of the honor because of his daily work performance, attendance and high standard of service provided customers during that period.

Handbook IS Source Of Help For Families Of Mentally Ill

DEAR READERS: In 1982 the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry, of which I am an honorary lifetime consultant, invited me to join its Committee on Psychiatry and the Community, whose current project was to study the problems of caring for a mentally ill family member at home. GAP's 200 members are among the nation's most eminent psychiatrists and I felt privileged to sit among them. Eager to contribute, I ran the following in my column:

"CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If a family member has been diagnosed as 'mentally ill' and is living at home, please write and tell me what problems this has created for you. Your firsthand experiences are needed for an important study."

Dear Abby

My readers didn't let me down. I received hundreds of letters, relating in detail what family life is like with a chronically mentally ill person to care for at home. They described their weariness, anger, grief and shame, their sacrifices and round-the-clock responsibilities, the emotional strain and the financial drain of caring for a mentally ill child or adult.

Many said they felt frustrated and disappointed in their doctors, the government's agencies, and the legal red tape encountered when asking for assistance.

The message of these letters was loud and clear. The families of the chronically mentally ill cannot carry the burden alone. Nor should they be expected to. Many of their letters were 20 and 30 pages long — written, a few pages at a time, over a period of weeks. Some were tear-stained. I read them all, then passed them along to the psychiatrists who answered each one in an effort to help these family members cope with their problems.

These psychiatrists, who had been trained to remain emotionally detached from the problems of their patients, read the letters in stunned silence. Some wept openly.

Their study took four years to complete. After reading the final report, I was so impressed with its content and clarity, that I suggested they offer it as a handbook to psychiatrists, psychologists and psychiatric social workers, as well as family members who must care for a chronically mentally ill child or adult at home.

The members of the committee agreed, and a book was born. The title: "A Family Affair: Helping Families Cope With Mental Illness." It is now in most bookstores, priced at $9.95. If your bookstore does not have it, it can be obtained by sending (check or money order) $10 plus $1 for postage and handling to: Brunner/Mazel Publishers, 19 Union Square West, New York, N.Y. 10003. (New York residents must add the appropriate taxes.)

Which Meats Are High In Cholesterol

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — How do fish, fowl and red meat compare in their fat and cholesterol content?

DEAR READER — The answer to your question depends on the cut and type of these animal-source foods. Animal fat is highest in cholesterol; therefore, red meat contains more cholesterol than does fowl or fish. However, some lean cuts of unprocessed meat can be trimmed and cooked without adding excessive quantities of fat to the diet.

Bird fat also contains cholesterol, so fowl must be thoroughly cleaned and trimmed by the cholesterol-conscious consumer. Judging from the enormous amount of fat in many commercially raised chickens, this could present more of a problem than red meat to some dieters. However, in general, fowl is less rich in cholesterol than is red meat.

Several years ago, scientists were concerned that cholesterol in fish, especially shellfish, might present a problem for people with high serum cholesterol. This does not appear to be true because other components of fish oil seem to lower cholesterol and have a protective effect.

Therefore, red meat contains more potentially harmful cholesterol than fowl and fish. Yet with selective buying and prudent preparation, the cholesterol-conscious consumer can enjoy a balanced diet that contains all three substances. To give you more information, I'm sending you a copy of my Health Report on Cholesterol. Others who want a copy of this Health Report should send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to ask for UNDETERMINED CHOLESTEROL.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Are there some types of foods that build muscles? My muscles are flimsy, even though I walk quite a bit.

DEAR READER — Muscles are made up primarily of protein, so eating protein provides the necessary building blocks to form muscle. However, to grow and thrive, muscles also need exercise and carbohydrates. Exercise increases muscular strength and bulk; carbohydrates provide the energy source for muscular work.

In order to improve "flimsy" muscles, you will have to eat a balanced diet and commit yourself to a program of muscular development. Such programs are available through school athletic departments, fitness centers, YMCAs, YWCAs and so forth. Walking is a good all-around exercise, but it will not appreciably build muscular strength or bulk.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

A Swiss team event is a series of short matches (usually seven deals each). One significant deal can therefore have an overwhelming effect on the outcome.

When today's deal came up as the final hand of a match, South knew his team was behind. Although he was playing strong no-trumps (15-17), he upgraded his three 10s and bid one no-trump with only 14 points. The response was a transfer bid, and when South dutifully bid four spades, his partner, who also knew they were behind in the match, simply jumped to the slam — a reasonable approach if one is desperate. If the opponents can take two diamond tricks, they may not judge to lead the suit. Here a diamond lead would have solved declarer's problem immediately, but no such luck.

After winning the club lead, South drew trumps, along the way cashing the heart ace and ruffing two hearts in dummy. He also played out all his high clubs and a few more trumps. Eventually he had to lead a diamond. Since the defenders had not fallen asleep, it had early become apparent to them that South's view of the diamond position would be crucial. Cleverly attempting to hoodwink South, West signaled early with the diamond 10, as if he had the ace. So what should declarer play when East follows low on a low diamond from dummy?

In fact, declarer went right up with the king and made his contract. He followed a very good rule. When your experienced opponent acts as though he has a key card (here, the diamond ace), you'd better believe that he does not have it.
