

Cuts Endanger Sewage Project

Federal budget cutting and uncertainty about anticipated federal reimbursement of money already spent for planning the Sanford regional sewer plant expansion could leave Sanford holding the bag for $80,000, at least for the next six months.

City Manager Warren Knowles will tell the city commission at its 7 p.m. meeting today the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) some months ago verbally approved a $15,000 grant for sewer plant expansion planning. The city has spent $80,000 of that sum already. But, Knowles said federal reimbursement for that amount is $20 million in other projects in the state is being withheld.

"...Their cut off of funds leaves the city out on a limb," Knowles informed the commissioners in a memo.

EPA officers advised Knowles toward the end of last week that EPA "is out of 1979 funds" for projects in the state. "I am concerned we will have difficulty going into... plant improvements and increased capacity because the federal grant portion will be drying up," Knowles said.

"It could mean 100 percent local financing, instead of 75 to 25." Under the grants Sanford was to receive, 75 percent of costs would be funded by the federal government with the city to provide from local money 25 percent of the costs.

Knowles told commissioners in the memo that Dick Smith, chief of the state Department of Environmental Regulation, said he returned from an Atlanta meeting with EPA with bad news. "Funds have been cut off and the fiscal year 1980 funds will not be available until after October."

Knowles said Florida is to receive $128 million in funds but EPA is deferring those grant awards.

The city manager said it appears the funding cannot be stopped for the $80,000 the city has already spent. Knowles told the commission he has been advised to document a request for this money from the federal government. It could be as late as October before the reimbursement is received. — DONNA ESTES

Meeting With Graham 'Fruitful'

Lake Mary and Sanford city officials came away from a meeting with Gov. Bob Graham in Tallahassee Friday encouraged and optimistic that the state will assist the municipalities in gaining federal and state funding for a variety of projects.

"The outlook was positive," said Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore today. "The state officials were encouraging and optimistic," he said.

"It was a good and fruitful meeting," said Lake Mary City Manager Phil Kubles.

The meeting was arranged by Sanford and Duluth, Minn., millionaire industrialist and entrepreneur Jeno Paulucci. Local officials who attended were Moore and Sanford Commissioners John Morris and David Farr and Kubles and Mayor Walter Sorenson of Lake Mary.

Moore said among Graham's staff members who participated in the meeting was Joan Hagen, head of the state's Department of Community Services.

Mrs. Hagen cautioned the group that there are 66 other counties in the state searching for state and federal money.

Moore said the Sanford requests included funds to determine the feasibility of the proposed "Golden Age" multi-story building in the downtown section. The center would include office space, meeting rooms, parking areas. The center would function on a year-round basis and be self-supporting.

Also requested was funding for the acquisition and development of a 25-acre park in the southwest section of the city. The park would be built within walking or bicycling distance of the industrial area for employees there," Kubles said.

"In each case, we were given instructions on when to contact," Moore said.

The mayor said the Sanford delegation was supportive of Lake Mary in its attempts to get money for its interceptor line to link up to the Sanford regional sewer plant.

Kubles said Mrs. Hagen assured them she would make it a point to come to Lake Mary and would send necessary staff members to provide technical assistance to the city.

"We told them our top priority was the sewer interceptor to Sanford to take care of the industrial area of the city. We told them we want to attract new industry to create new jobs and as a side benefit new homes would be built within walking or bicycling distance of the industrial area for employees there," Kubles said.

Elections Supervisor Camilla Bruce's sons, daughter and daughter-in-law display receipts from Seminole County showing they paid back funds they received for working during the county's last election. Left to right, they are Rob Bruce, Caroline Bruce, Dick Bruce and Pat Nuckolls. The total paycheck: $32.50.

Bruce's Kin Return Funds

Seminole County Elections Supervisor Camilla Bruce's two sons, daughter and daughter-in-law this morning paid back the $32.50 they earned working at the polls during the last election.

Bruce said Friday she might be "in the soup" for allowing her children to be paid by Seminole County for helping out. Florida statutes prohibit public officials from hiring relatives. Mrs. Bruce said the work was for such a short time she didn't think anything was wrong.

Her children stated today they felt the law was to prevent relatives being hired in place of others who might want the jobs. They said they did not think anyone else wanted jobs they were doing for just one night.

"For years my friends and family helped out on election nights without being paid because there was so much to do and the county couldn't afford to hire anyone to do it," Mrs. Bruce said. "They didn't keep anybody from being hired."

Rob Bruce, who paid back $10, and Dick and Caroline Bruce and Pat Nuckolls, who paid back $7.50 each, said they will be back next election night whether they get paid or not.

Seminole Circuit Court Clerk Art Beckwith said the money "will go back into the county's general fund, where it came from."

Red Cross Officials Visit American Hostages

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Two International Red Cross officials entered the occupied U.S. Embassy today to visit the American hostages and check on their health.

Herald Schmid de Grunecq, permanent representative of the International Committee of the Red Cross, walked inside the compound, accompanied by Dr. Bernard Liebeskind, a physician after 1 p.m. (4:30 a.m. EST) and were still inside at 3:30 p.m. (7 a.m. EST), a spokesman for the Muslim militants holding the hostages told UPI.

The spokesman confirmed that the two Swiss members of the Red Cross were meeting the hostages but he could not say when they would leave the compound.

The two-man Red Cross team was accompanied by Iranian Health Minister Mousa Zafargar, Tehran's religious leader, Hojatoleslam Mohammad Ali Khamenei and Iranian Red Lion and Sun Red Cross official Mansour Shamas.

The Red Cross mission followed meetings last week between President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh and envoys of the European Common Market countries and Japan.

At those meetings, the envoys expressed concern about the well-being of the hostages and asked the Iranian officials to specify a date for the captives release.

No date for the release was offered. Ambassadors of Britain, Italy, Belgium and Holland left Tehran today to report to their governments on the weekend talks. Other ambassadors were due to leave within the next few days.

The departure of the ambassadors for "consultations" left open the possibility that the governments would wait for the outcome of today's visit to the embassy.

The Red Cross team is expected to prepare a report on the health of the hostages and submit it in confidence to the Iranian and U.S. governments.

At a meeting with envoys from nine European Economic Community nations and Japan, Bani-Sadr disclosed a visit was imminent and said the group would be able to see "all the hostages."

Previous visitors to the hostages, now in their 163rd day of captivity, have never seen all of the hostages, raising questions about exactly how many there are and whether they are all still alive or in the embassy.

President Carter has turned down requests from at least a dozen Iranian diplomats that they be allowed to stay in the United States and not be expelled, Newswatch Magazine said. The magazine said one diplomat said his wife was being treated for cancer and another claimed his 12-day-old son was too young to travel.

The magazine also quotes sources close to the Iranian Revolutionary Council as saying government officials find it "impossible" to explain complex issues to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and that the fiery religious leader cannot work full-time because of health problems.

According to Newswatch magazine, Carter is considering expelling some or all of the Iranian citizens still in the United States and even electronically jamming all of Iran's internal communications, including radio and television signals.

The magazine also said one of the hostages, Michael Meierinko, had tried to escape shortly after the embassy takeover November 4 and had been placed in solitary confinement.

In another initiative to end the crisis, Pope John Paul II sent individual messages to Carter, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, Bani-Sadr and Khomeini, the Vatican said.

In Washington, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher told ABC's

"Issues and Answers" that the United States hopes its major allies will decide by next week to join in economic sanctions against Iran.

President Carter has told interviewers he has set "a specific date" reportedly in May, for allies to join America in sanctions against Iran.

In another development, Bani-Sadr flew to Kermanshah, near the Iraqi border, to inspect Iranian armed forces in the tense region following days of sporadic fighting.

The deposed shah of Iran has been offered sanctuary in one of South Africa's independent black homelands and is considering the move, a Johannesburg newspaper reported Sunday.

In a front page report, the Sunday Times said the offer extended by tribal republic of Transkei included full citizenship for the former shah and his family, a permanent bodyguard and the choice of three luxury residences.

LIBRARY WAR OF 1980

Sanford's Ready To Seize Building

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission is being urged to close the book on the old post office building-county library controversy at its 7 p.m. meeting today.

City Manager Warren Knowles, after discussions with Mayor Lee Moore, is recommending the commission take three actions today including:

- (1) Vote to notify the county that the city's offer of a free lease for the building and two adjacent lots expires at 5 p.m. on April 30, 1980, if a new lease has not been fully executed, returned and in the hands of the city clerk by that date and time.
- (2) Instruct the city attorney to draft an abrogation (abolishment) resolution as outlined by the federal government; authorize the mayor to sign the resolution and authorize the city's payment of the final abrogation fee.
- (3) Instruct city personnel to secure possession of the city building at First and Palmetto at one minute after midnight on Sept. 30, 1980, unless an executed lease with the county is on file with the city at that time.

In a lengthy memo to the city commissioners, Knowles informed that he discussed the problem the city has with the county over library service with an officer of the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA).

The city acquired the building from the GSA in 1963 for use as a library. The building under a reverter clause in the deed must see that the library operation is continued there until April 14, 1983 or the building's ownership will revert to the federal government.

The city leased the library facility with its 40,000 books to the county in 1969. The county acquires a proposed lease to the city on April 1. The county proposed lease called for ownership of the building to revert to the county at the county's option in 1983. The proposed lease was submitted to the city two days before the 180-day notice provision for canceling the lease would have expired.

The city commission at a special meeting April 2 ordered that a notice of lease cancellation be delivered to the county immediately. Knowles said at the time the city would lose ownership of the 40,000 books on Oct. 1, 1980, the city could not put on notice of the lease cancellation. He said the city could not own any books and if the county discontinued library service there.

At the same time the city sent to the county a lease agreement executed by Moore continuing the offer to lease to the county the building for library use for $1 annually.

The city did not agree to turn over ownership of the building to the county.

Earlier last week the county commission decided to take the next 90 days to look at possible alternative locations for the downtown Sanford library and agreed to inform the city that the county will not vacate the library on Sept. 30 "under any circumstances."

County Attorney Nikki Clayton said the only possible termination date of the current lease is Oct. 1. If the contract is carried to its termination date of Oct. 1, 1980, the lease stipulates that the books, materials and items of equipment become the property of the county, she said.

Miss Clayton told the board the city's attempt to cancel the lease effective Sept. 30 seemed to be an effort on their part to avoid losing the books. "The books are the property of the county," she said.

County Wants To Boost Downtown

By DIANE PETRYK
Herald Staff Writer

The city of Sanford and Seminole County are currently involved in a squabble concerning the fate of the county's downtown Sanford library. The county runs the library; the city controls the building.

The result of the tug of war which has been going on between the two jurisdictions will probably be the loss of a downtown library for Sanford and city officials will only have themselves to blame, say some county officials.

Long ago, the city ran its own library. In 1963 the city obtained from the federal government a building at the corner of East First Street and Palmetto, formerly a post office, in which to house its library. The federal government agreed to give the building to the city if the city used it for a library for at least 20 years.

But the city discovered it was costing a lot of money to run a library.

In 1975 it agreed to let the county run the library and entered into a contract stipulating at the expiration date of the contract, Oct. 1, 1980, "all books, materials and items of equipment" contributed by the city "shall be transferred to the legal ownership of the county and the city shall retain no legal rights therein."

The contract also stipulates that either party may cancel the contract early if notice is given 180 days prior to Oct. 1 of each year, to take effect on Oct. 1 of such year.

In what was apparently a last minute effort to hang on to its books, the city April 2 served notice on the county to vacate the library by Sept. 30.

Not only is such action a clear violation of its contract with the county and smacks at bad faith, it is contrary to the best interests of the city, county officials say.

County officials would like to maintain a library in the downtown Sanford area, despite recommendations from their own planners that the library should be located closer to the center of population in the north area of the county. Such a location would be in the vicinity of Sanford Plaza.

But to help the downtown Sanford area the city is willing to keep a library at its present site.

County officials note, however, to make the present library site adequate will require expansion and renovation. The county says it does not want to spend money for capital improvements unless it owns the building it is fixing. It is asking the city, when its 20-year-deal with the federal government comes to fruition in 1983, to deed the building to the county.

"Why should we give the county an asset of the city of Sanford?" asked Sanford Mayor Lee Moore.

The answer, says the county, is for the same reason the federal government agreed to give it to Sanford, to help provide a worthwhile service.

If the county now picks up the ball and provides the library service, why shouldn't it get the building the federal government donated for that purpose, argue county officials.

The county, in the last five years, has helped the city earn that building by providing the library service the city no longer wanted to spend the money to provide.

The county's proposal to the city offers a reverter clause which says if the county does not use the building for a library for at least 20 years, then the county would either pay the city the unamortized value of the building or give it back to the city.

The city has so far rejected the county's proposal and offered

It Is Carter's Worst Blunder

The Carter administration, infamous as few others in American history, for its all-around incompetence, has laid perhaps its biggest blunder on the U.S. economy.
Bad news piles upon bad news for the stricken consumer. Recently the ever-climbing prime interest rate reached 20 percent — the highest in U.S. history.

With unemployment among adult men climbing to the highest levels in three years — more than 13 percent in the stagnant construction industry — the anticipated national recession seems to be at hand, heralded by the "stagflation" that defies conventional economic theory.

At that time, inflation had dropped to 4.8 percent and the prime interest rate was 6.5 percent. At that time, the dollar was worth about 30 percent more than it is today.

Mr. Carter's belated and trumpeted campaign against inflation is largely cosmetic and has been labeled "dishonest" by some economists.

Inflation is indeed a peculiarly political thing. The preceding Ford administration provided the obvious answer to inflation if Mr. Carter really wants to do something about it.

Some 1,500 youngsters are expected to take part in the elementary school competition which is slated for April 19 and the middle school competition which takes place at the Silver Hawk track on April 23 and 24.

Competition begins at 9:00 a.m. on all three days with awards and trophy presentations following each day's competition.

Khomeini: True To His Form

Credit him at least with consistency. In declining to nudge the Tehran hostage crisis toward a resolution, Ayatollah Khomeini has been true to his form.

As usual, Washington pointed the finger at everyone but itself. The government's hired-gun economists erroneously blamed most of the high inflation rate on large price increases for gasoline and other energy products.

Even so, Alfred Kahn, the presidential anti-inflation adviser, warned that government moves will not dampen inflation until summer.

Although the Carter administration's political instincts this election year have suddenly made it aware of the inflation peril, the "trouble" that Kahn confesses is no act of God.

But likely also at some cost to Iran and Khomeini. Iranians, to be sure, have responded with heightened revolutionary fervor.

The Nigra, however, must be getting progressively lower as the same confrontation script is repeatedly replayed.

Khomeini has been remarkably successful to date in letting others take the falls for his repeated failures to provide post-revolutionary Iran with much more than rhetoric.

Such as the recent first-person report of an audience with the news that Khomeini is not the "lunatic" envisaged by most Americans.

Well, there are various definitions of "lunatic," one of which is "gives up his sanity as a result of a fit of pique."

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A big tender bobs in the Gulf of Mexico five miles from the towering, red and yellow steelwork of Cognac rig, the world's tallest and deepest offshore oil drilling platform.

Drillers — a notch above roustabouts and roughnecks — generally draw more than $20,000 a year. Cognac's rugged crews and Cajun kitchen is another morale booster.

And on the giant rig, four, 28-man "survival capsules" resembling flying saucers are poised for the awful moment when fire or blowout sirens might signal an urgent escape by sea.

An U.S. Geological Survey notice on the bulletin board near Cognac's spacious and immaculate living quarters is another grim reminder of the hazards of offshore drilling.

Somewhere in the Gulf last year, it said, eight men died in a fiery cloud that engulfed their rig when drillers hit high-pressure natural gas at 14,815 foot depths.

The nation's huge appetite for domestic energy claimed two more lives in March in a prodded explosion and fire, triggered by a gas blowout at a Pennzoil rig off Galveston, Tex. Another 29 were injured.

But a "blowout" of pressurized gas or oil suddenly forcing its way up the drilling column despite all precautionary measures is not the only risk of offshore drilling — the new frontier of energy exploration.

A howling North Sea storm battered Dutch Phillips Petroleum's Alexander Kieland platform in the Ekofisk Oil Field on March 17, picking 200 men into the sea.

At Cognac, an hour's flight from New Orleans, safety procedures call for evacuation of the platform at the approach of a hurricane. The rig is designed to withstand 70-foot seas and 140 mile an hour winds, but helicopters are forbidden to land on the rig's helipad when winds exceed 35 miles an hour.

The hard-hats who earn their living in offshore drilling receive seven days shore leave for every week they work. They are well paid for the risks.

Energy Program Flawed

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's whole energy program is based on a faulty appraisal of the world oil situation provided by the Department of Energy.

Sloppy research and pure guess work by DOE's supposed experts gave the president a distorted view of the world's oil supply and demand for it, contends a staff report that has been suppressed for eight months.

The DOE not only refuses to acknowledge that it lacks the means of collecting accurate data, it insists that its demonstrably false projections last year were correct, the report says.

The Carter energy policy "is based on the assumption that the world experienced a significant shortage of oil during the first quarter of 1979, and that the world may experience many significant shortages of oil in the near future," states the report.

The staff findings were based on extensive interviews with petroleum experts as well as on internal DOE documents. My associate Dale Van Atta has confirmed the key findings.

"Since the shortage due to Iran was not significant, and at worst only a temporary aberration in the international petroleum system, the rationale for the Carter energy plan is flawed," the Kennedy report states.

During the 10-week period when Iranian oil supplies were cut off — from December 1978 to March 1979 — DOE spokesmen insisted, with Chicken Little hysteria, that the Western world was experiencing a shortage of 2 million barrels of oil a day.

Those three assumptions were DOE's gasmen's view of what world oil production would be, what world demand would be and what existing stockpiles would be drawn during the winter.

Sanford's Ready For Library

county if we provide library service through Oct. 1," she said.

In his memo Knowles said he discussed the problem with the federal agency. He tells committee members "it is recommended — the city commission adopt a formal resolution asking for abrogation (abolishment) of conditions" of the deed restrictions for the old post office building.

Knowles suggests the effective date be as soon as possible. Since the deed lease is now cancelled, the new lease as offered, is all that remains for continued use after Sept. 30, 1980.

"The reason must be stated such as 'county's discontinuance of public library services at this site,'" Knowles said. He said the city commission should authorize expenditure of city funds for the "abrogation fee."

The city manager estimated the abrogation fee would be about $10,523.96. After payment of the fee, the city would have clear title to the property for any use, except a sale of the property, until April 18, 1983.

"There would be no strings," Knowles said. "This would relieve the threat of the county's pull out and the city's loss of an asset worth approximately $150,000."

"The library lease and offer of a new lease to the county would still stand. If the county pulls out and relocates its public library service, it is a political matter for them to answer. If they wish to stay, they already have a signed lease that needs only their execution. Since the old lease is now cancelled, the new lease as offered, is all that remains for continued use after Sept. 30, 1980," Knowles said.

"If the city commission wishes to pursue the matter, it should submit the old lease to the court for a judicial review as to who owns the city books at a lease agreement with a provision for funding the building to the county in 1983.

The city's proposal, as pointed out by County Commission Chairman Bill Kirchoff, asks that the city manager be consulted concerning any improvements to be made to the building.

"In Volusia County," Kirchoff said, "if we have a situation where the county runs libraries situated in city owned buildings. When the roof leaks or a light bulb needs to be changed the county has to call the city. And the city replies: 'What do we care?'"

"It would be easier and more efficient for the city to deed the building to the county."

In view of the recent statement, however, that looks unlikely.

Commissioner Richard Williams said the county should now analyze the feasibility and desirability of vacating the building.

The commissioners indicated they are interested in maintaining a library in downtown Sanford, but must seriously consider that it might be cheaper to rent a building elsewhere than make the necessary improvements on a building the county will not own.

"If we stay we could end up making the improvements and then being kicked out by the city — like they are trying to do now," Kirchoff said.

Mayor Moore's position that city residents are also residents of Seminole County and entitled to county library service without giving up a city asset doesn't hold water, according to the county.

The city's asset, the old post office building, was earmarked to be a library. The county has seen to it that it remained one. It does not morally belong to the city unless the county goes back into the library business. And that would be a costly proposition, county officials pointed out.

Even if the city should succeed in forcing the county to relinquish the book, the city commission contributed to the library operation, County Librarian Jean Rhein said it would be "a meager collection."

The city was maintaining its library on a shoestring; just before it turned over its books to the county, according to Kirchoff. Few books had been recently added to their aging collection.

Over the years, books that were unused, out-of-date, worn out or deteriorated were culled from the library collection. No one knows exactly how many books are left that originally belonged to the city, but Kirchoff said all you have to do is see how few are left in it to go to the library and pick up a few books.

Stamped on the inside it will say Orange or Seminole County Library System (those are the county's books) or City of Sanford Library.

The city's original lease with the county stipulated that the city books, could be called based on professional judgment of the city manager.

what date and to also file an injunction to prohibit the disposal of any further library books and for the county to account for those books disposed of since 1975. I cannot see the value of doing so, other than settling a legal point, and this is not my recommendation," Knowles said.

"If the city commission wishes to insist on a public library facility at this site, even at city expense, then you may wish to settle the legal points prior to Sept. 30 to determine books ownership. Such duplication of public library services would not be double taxation. If the county did not provide library service to the north end, it would be double taxation," Knowles said.

"Any paring of the county antics would serve only politics since the county has done an excellent job in demonstrating to the public that it is the county commission that is playing games with taxes and the public library service at First and Palmetto. If the county commission wishes to discontinue or relocate public library services, it is their function to do so and for the county commission to answer to the voters for the loss of the city's loss of an asset worth approximately $150,000."

"The library lease and offer of a new lease to the county would still stand. If the county pulls out and relocates its public library service, it is a political matter for them to answer. If they wish to stay, they already have a signed lease that needs only their execution. Since the old lease is now cancelled, the new lease as offered, is all that remains for continued use after Sept. 30, 1980," Knowles said.

"If the city commission wishes to pursue the matter, it should submit the old lease to the court for a judicial review as to who owns the city books at a lease agreement with a provision for funding the building to the county in 1983.

The city's proposal, as pointed out by County Commission Chairman Bill Kirchoff, asks that the city manager be consulted concerning any improvements to be made to the building.

"In Volusia County," Kirchoff said, "if we have a situation where the county runs libraries situated in city owned buildings. When the roof leaks or a light bulb needs to be changed the county has to call the city. And the city replies: 'What do we care?'"

"It would be easier and more efficient for the city to deed the building to the county."

In view of the recent statement, however, that looks unlikely.

Commissioner Richard Williams said the county should now analyze the feasibility and desirability of vacating the building.

The commissioners indicated they are interested in maintaining a library in downtown Sanford, but must seriously consider that it might be cheaper to rent a building elsewhere than make the necessary improvements on a building the county will not own.

"If we stay we could end up making the improvements and then being kicked out by the city — like they are trying to do now," Kirchoff said.

Mayor Moore's position that city residents are also residents of Seminole County and entitled to county library service without giving up a city asset doesn't hold water, according to the county.

The city's asset, the old post office building, was earmarked to be a library. The county has seen to it that it remained one. It does not morally belong to the city unless the county goes back into the library business. And that would be a costly proposition, county officials pointed out.

It is unlikely the city will be financially able to put together a worthwhile library without the county's help.

As one county commissioner said, "logic is probably not going to settle this issue."

BERRY'S WORLD

FLORIDA PARENTS OF STUDENTS VACATIONING THERE

Maybe He Shoulda Gone Last Year

Some people, believe it or not, actually file their income tax returns weeks and months ahead of the dreaded April 15 deadline. These people are normally well off, and they have their own accountants and they use their refund checks to go to resorts in Mexico or the Caribbean.

(You may be asking, "What is a refund check?") Don't bother. It would only confuse you.

I feel sorry for those people, because they do not realize what fun and excitement they are missing by not waiting until the last minute to have their income taxes prepared.

There are many things you can get from waiting until the last minute to get your taxes done or to read a issue for the annual Movie Dance and Fish Fry.

Practitioners, like myself, enjoy the pleasure and danger of living on the brink of possible disaster. Only a few days remain before the 15th, but I haven't even bothered to look for my W-2 form yet.

"That's because I can do what I always do — wait until the very last minute to get my taxes done, and pay a visit to Artie (Three Fingers) McQuirk's Friendly Tax Service and Fuel and Recreation Hall."

You would love Artie's place. Get your taxes done, about a little more or maybe talk to Artie about important sports questions like pool spreads.

This is a special year at Artie's, in celebration, Artie has had a absence. Ask where Artie has been, and one of his friendly gons, or associates, will answer simply, "On his long trip. What's it to you?"

There are many things you can get from waiting until the last minute to get your taxes done or to read a issue for the annual Movie Dance and Fish Fry.

Loophole, however, is all the offices are in trailers sitting in shopping center parking lots. What I am audited and come back to shop. Loophole looking for help and there is a shopping center carnival where the trailer would be parked?

Then, there's H&R Block. The man in the three-piece suit, seated in a comfortable chair, comes on the screen and tells you all the reasons you should use his tax service.

Reason No. 11 for using H&R Block Tax Service: If the IRS calls you in for an audit, we'll give you a new day for your appointment. Artie and his trained staff of professionals offer even more:

All preparations and consultations are strictly confidential, as Artie says, "One peep about who filed this return, and you'll sleep with the fishes."

All possible deductions are taken. Artie is very careful here. One year he missed some deductions for one of his best clients, Cray

Carlo (The Shark), DeBogatis, and Crazy Carlo (deducted two of Artie's fingers as a penalty).

Each member of Artie's staff has spent years learning about taxes. One spent 10-10-20 in jail learning you can't hide the 90¢ you picked up in a land fraud deal.

If you are indicted and thrown into the slammer, Artie'll send you cigarettes and reading material once a month until your release.

If you do happen to get a refund check, Artie insists you bring it to him to be cashed. You pay only a small service charge of 30 percent.

If you attempt to cash your refund check elsewhere and take a little trip to Mexico or the Caribbean, Artie will have a member of the staff consult with you further when you return and your tax problems will be over. Permanently!

Directing The Oscars

Awards Show Veteran Pasetta Says It's A 'No-Win' Situation

HOLLYWOOD — The Oscars mean excitement to millions. But to Marty Pasetta, the Oscars mean (a) a headache and (b) an almost total lack of sleep for about three days.

Pasetta is the director of tonight's ABC telecast of the Oscars. This will be the ninth year that Pasetta has directed the big Academy Award show.

Even though award shows are growing up like mushrooms on a rich, moist lawn, there is no question in Pasetta's mind that the Oscars are the undisputed king of the award show ball.

"I don't think that anything can take the shine off the Oscars," he says. "They all keep trying but none of them — Emmys, Tonys, Grammys, whatever — can compare with the Oscars."

As the director, Pasetta sits in his control room — a trailer parked outside the Music Center in downtown Los Angeles — where he has a bank of 48 monitors to watch constantly. They reflect what is coming in from 17 cameras, 23 tape machines and live other sources.

And, of course, he has to be prepared for anything, from the Indian princess Marlon Brando sent in his stead to the pre-Arab utterances of Vanessa Redgrave.

His problem, at times of moments, is should he cut those people off — which he can easily do — or let them rant out? He can start his problem, he says. "With Redgrave, I had to make an instant decision — should I cut her off? You're

Karen Rhudy, R.C. Powell Repeat Vows

Karen Gaye Rhudy and Randy Charles Powell were married April 11, at 7:30 p.m. at Trinity Baptist Church, Apopka. The Rev. Jack Stotie of Jacksonville, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Fulenwider Sr., 283 Dogwood Drive, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Powell Sr., 112 Lynhurst Drive, Longwood.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal gown of sheer organza fashioned along the slim silhouette. Venise lace appliques embellished the bodice and outlined the Queen Anne neckline. The same lace was repeated on the full sheer sleeves and sweeping chapel train.

A lace headpiece secured her veil of illusion. She carried a vine of yellow roses and coral orchids.

Sharon Colley was the matron of honor and Cheryl Sprague was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cindy Popwell and Sharon Avrett. Carol Ann Colley was the junior bridesmaid and Michelle Bralts was the flower girl.

Each wore a light green gown with a sheer print jacket and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and daisies.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were David L. Powell Jr., Steve Brewer and Mike Tolson. Junior ushers were Alec Colley and Brian Colley. Daniel Colley was the ring bearer.

Following the reception in the church fellowship hall, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon to Miami Beach. They will make their home in Sanford where the bride is employed as a secretary and the bridegroom, a printing machine operator.

Volunteer Looks Forward To Tuesdays...

Appears Like A Guardian Angel

"You just can't imagine how much I look forward to Tuesdays," says Irene Putzig of Longwood, a participant of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

She's not the only one who looks forward to that day. So does Mary Woodruff, teacher at Rosenwald School for Exceptional Children where Mrs. Putzig appears like a guardian angel every Tuesday with a bright smile and an eagerness to help.

At the school where some 200 mentally handicapped children from all parts of Seminole County attend, volunteers like Mrs. Putzig gently and patiently assist the teachers as they focus in on the development of self-help and day-to-day living skills for the students who range in age from 3 to 21.

Patiently, the 63-year-old volunteer helps a 13-year-old count change—over and over again...until comprehension is apparent through a broad smile across the student's face.

She then aids another young boy in his writing. "Once a week she works with him on those words," says Mrs. Woodruff. "He really has made great progress due to the amount of time Mrs. Putzig spends with him. Although Mrs. Putzig has done considerable volunteering in her past with organizations like Boy and Girl Scouts, she says, "This is my first experience with anything like this, and it is very rewarding."

over-burdened teachers. "One of the things I have appreciated about Mrs. Putzig is that she is able to work independently. One day we had an emergency and I had to be out of the room. She and my aide were able to do beautifully. She has really been a great help," Mrs. Woodruff added.

The dedicated RSVP volunteer, in her third year of service at the school, works with small groups and individual students as she helps them learn to count, to tell time, and most important, to learn personal information such as their address and telephone number.

Mrs. Putzig, the mother of two children and three grandchildren, worked part-time in a large department store when her children were teenagers, and now returns to Au Gres, a little fishing community in Michigan every summer.

With the arrival of fall and the ringing of the school bell, Mrs. Putzig's heart returns to the children. "Aren't they great children?" she asks. "Now you can see why I'm so enthused." — JOAN MADISON

The Art Of Bullfighting Defended

DEAR ABBY: This is in protest of your ignorant evaluation of a time-honored art which you labeled "the brutal and bloody business of torturing and killing animals for sport and entertainment—bullfighting."

What an outrageously ethnocentric remark! Bullfighting first appeared as early as 2,000 years before Christ. Since then it has flourished in Spain, Portugal and Latin America. For centuries, kings and noblemen as well as commoners have involved themselves in the sport.

Abby, as a foreigner, it is unfair for you to criticize the customs of another country. In Spain, bullfighting is considered an art, not merely a sport. When you say the animals are "tortured," it shows that you don't know anything about bullfighting. The bulls used in the arena are bred especially for their ferocity to kill men! It takes enormous skill and courage for a 175-pound man armed only with a cape and sword to face a wild bull weighing 2,000 pounds. And when the time comes to kill the animal, the men often kill the bull with a single thrust of the sword! (Tell me that chasing a fox with a pack of trained dogs, to kill each other for sport, entertainment—and money! And when you get right down to it, ice hockey is a "brutal and bloody business," too. And so is football. Think about it, Abby.

NORTH DAKOTA FAN: I've thought about it, and I still disapprove of any sport (spectator or contact) in which blood (animal or human) is spilled.

DEAR ABBY: I don't see anything wrong with bullfighting. They feed the bulls well, let them live for four years and then put them in the ring where they are killed instantly. I think putting animals in a zoo is more cruel.

C. FERNANDEZ: DEAR C: More wrote to defend bullfighting. In fact, to my amazement, a high school teacher of Spanish in Delavaria, Ill., instructed the entire class to write to me to protest my answer and defend the "art" of bullfighting. Read on for more about the controversy.

DEAR ABBY: What have you got against bullfighting? OK, so it's outlawed in the U.S. But how about the brutal and bloody sport that's making millions of dollars—called boxing?

Those in the ring are not animals, they are human beings, and they are in there

Research Throws Body At Cancer
 By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Science Editor
 A Baylor research team has devised a way to unleash the body's natural defense against cancer and is now attempting to perfect the technique to see if it works against human breast cancer.
 The new anticancer approach manipulates the immune system and has produced striking results in dogs, rapidly killing cancer cells and shrinking mammary tumors in two-thirds of the animals treated.
 "We have observed a profound tumor-killing response that is rapid in onset and of substantial magnitude and quite specific for tumor sites that is, sparing uninvolved mammary tissue," said Dr. David S. Terman, 39, professor of immunology at the Baylor College of Medicine.
 His animal findings, reported in the February issue of the Journal of Immunology, have just been confirmed by a series of independent experiments directed by Dr. Albert Desiderio of the government's National Cancer Institute.
 Over a 60-day observation period in the cancer injection study, tumor diameters in three dogs decreased by 10 percent or less of the pre-treatment sizes and the tumors in a fourth animal shrank by 75 percent. Two other animals exhibited less response.
 Despite the encouraging results with animals, Terman said in an interview, "The step from dog to human is a giant step and must be taken with great caution. There is a very, very long way to go before we are looking at a viable, safe and effective approach to the treatment of cancer."
 If the process is found to be safe and effective for humans, it would mark a significant advance in a field many scientists have long thought would pay off in the war against cancer.
 Immunotherapy today is a distant fourth behind surgery, radiation and chemicals in the arsenal of cancer doctors.
 Desiderio said the process also may open a whole new area of research into ways to detect specific cancers and identify which kinds of cancer they are.

White House 'Cruel' Says Soviet Press
 MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet press said Sunday the U.S. Olympic Committee was forced to support a boycott of the 1980 Moscow Games because of "cruel" and "merciless" White House pressure.
 "In order to impose its will the White House acted in the spirit of the worst times of McCarthyism," the Tass news agency said.
 An English-language broadcast over the world service of Radio Moscow also accused the Carter administration of relentless arm-twisting of American athletes.
 Neither Tass nor Radio Moscow reported that the White House had proposed the boycott in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. The Soviet press has been careful to keep the two issues separated.
 "There was no reference to the Afghan crisis in either dispatch Sunday and no reason was given for the U.S. action."
 "I said the overwhelming majority of U.S. sportsmen and 'broad sections of the public' oppose the boycott and that American athletes 'are being sacrificed to the political intrigues of the White House.'"
 Capt. George Drer, Lake Mary, a retired sea captain who went to sea at 13, will share some of his experiences with the Sanford News Club at the noon luncheon meeting Thursday to be held at the Holiday Inn, Sanford.

Tolerance To Beer May Be Alcoholism

DEAR DR. LAMB—Could you send me some information that I could pass on to two friends who have had problems with drinking problems? Both of the wives insist that their husbands are not alcoholics but having had experience with one, I'm inclined to disagree. One man is in his 30s and the other is in his 50s. Both work at jobs where they can have a can of beer at hand at all times.

Neither one consumes much hard liquor but each one drinks at least 12 cans of beer every day, week in and week out. Food is secondary to the beer. Neither one seems to get intoxicated and can carry on a normal conversation. Both men apparently do their jobs satisfactorily.

At the end of the day, it's not unusual for either one to fall asleep the minute he relaxes in a chair and it's almost impossible to arouse him. Knowing what can happen to them, I'm concerned for both of the families.

DEAR READER—You're a good and true friend and you have adequate reason to be concerned. If the situation is as you describe it, both men are alcoholics. A standard can of beer contains about the same amount of alcohol as a standard cocktail mixed with one jigger of hard liquor.

Individuals who drink considerable amounts of alcohol over long periods of time develop a tolerance to it. That, in itself, is a warning sign that addiction to alcohol has occurred.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-6, Alcohol Can Be Hazardous To Your Health. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. The Health Letter I'm

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm wondering if you could put my mind at ease. My daughter will be 16 in a few months but she has never had a period. She is developing normally in all other areas and is healthy and has no ailments. I'm wondering if I should take her to a doctor now or wait a few more months.

DEAR READER—If your observation is correct and she's developing normally in all other ways, I think you can safely wait a while. Figures show that approximately 5 percent of girls have their first menstrual period between age 16 and 18 and 1 percent don't have their period until between age 18 and 20. A normal late onset of menstrual periods does not indicate any disease and it's just one of nature's variations.

WIN AT BRIDGE

nely with a deuce of hearts lead. South wins with dummy's jack and starts out by leading a spade to his jack and West's queen. West shifts to the five of clubs and dummy's queen is covered by East's king. South ducks; clubs are continued. South wins the third club and cashes the ace and king of diamonds to get the bad news about that suit.

Alan: "Here is where we probably separate real life from fiction. South can make his contract if he plays his deuce of spades. West will have to play his ace and South will collect his nine tricks."

Oswald: "Theoretically, the play is correct. South knows that West held four diamonds and at least three clubs. There also was a high probability that he held four hearts which left him with just two spades. Thus, spades will break 4-2. South needs two spades to come to nine tricks. The only way he can get them is to find West with an original ace-queen holding and South takes his one chance."

Alan: "I wonder if any expert in real life would manage to make three notrump with today's hand. The contract is normal and with 29 high-card points should be a cinch, but it isn't."

Oswald: "Things start out

No Charges To Be Filed In Sanford School Paddling

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

No charges will be filed in the Sanford Middle School paddling incident, says Chief Assistant State Attorney Chris Ray, head of the Seminole County state attorney office.

Ray said Monday afternoon the evidence turned over to him by Sanford police was not enough to indicate anyone was guilty of assault or child abuse in the March 27 incident in which a student underwent emergency surgery following a paddling by Dean of Students Ronald Hunt.

But Sanford Middle School Principal Dan Pelham said the paddling was administered as an alternative to expulsion from school for James Lettau, the student needing surgery, and that other students also given corporal punishment that day.

Sanford Police Sgt. W.F. Bernosky Friday turned over a file to the state attorney office asking Hunt be charged with battery and claiming Lettau was severely bruised by the five strokes of a 12-inch wooden paddle.

Pelham's physician Gonzalo Huanan called the paddling a contributing cause to the need for emergency surgery 30 minutes after the paddling. But the major cause of Lettau's injury was a minor congenital weakness aggravated by the force of the paddle, he said.

Pelham said today the four students were given corporal punishment a day after they threw objects at a school custodian seated in the doorway of the custodian's building.

Previously, school officials have said the four were only accused of throwing rocks and candy at the building itself.

While Pelham refused to discuss the four students' past records, school regulations allow expulsion only after two earlier suspensions, or the commission of a major offense.

Pelham said he had been withholding this information prior to today pending completion of the police investigation.

"I suspected all along this is the way it would turn out," Pelham said. Hunt has never before been accused of any incorrect behavior at the school, he said.

But Bernosky says he has evidence Lettau was severely bruised by the paddling, saying it appeared to be a case of child abuse.

Last week, Bernosky said he feared the investigation would stall because of its sensitive nature.

Bernosky, out of town on an unrelated police matter, was not available for comment today.

Sanford Wants Deal On Library

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The consensus of the Sanford City Commission Monday night was clear.

They want a lease document, approved by the county commission and executed by the county chairman Bill Kirchoff, assuring that the county will continue to operate a public library in the old post office building at First and Palmetto through April 1983. The city will agree to almost any terms.

Commissioner Eddie Keith put it succinctly. "I will do almost anything to keep the library downtown."

County Commission Chairman Bill Kirchoff said there is no way at this point to assure continued operation of the facility beyond April 1983. He said county staff during the next year will be studying the feasibility of library service at the current location or at other downtown locations versus moving the service to a more central location.

He said while he would like to see the service remain downtown, the current location will be considered as only one alternative.

Kirchoff said a lease agreement with the city with a clause giving the county ownership of the building might weigh in the study in the downtown location's favor.

Although he brought with him to the city meeting a modified copy of a lease agreement, rejected by city commissioners two weeks ago, Kirchoff said the proposal had not been approved by his colleagues.

He said during a meeting earlier in the day that county commissioners had varying views about a lease with the city. Kirchoff said Commissioner Dick Williams wanted to discuss it further. Commissioner Bob French wanted to study it for another week. And Commissioner Sandra Glenn wanted a 20-year lease with the city assuring continued operation of the library service at the current location.

Kirchoff said he had discussed Mrs. Glenn's proposal with County Attorney Nikki Clayton and that Miss Clayton said the county commissioners cannot count beyond two years. Although the county commissioners said they would approve a lease without a cancellation clause, Kirchoff said Miss Clayton's opinion is that any lease with the city must include a right of cancellation for both the city and the county.

"If you can't have a lease for more than two years, how would the county commit to three years?" asked Mayor Moore, pointing to the agreement proposed by Kirchoff. Kirchoff said he would not agree to a lease without a cancellation clause. Kirchoff said Miss Clayton's opinion is that any lease with the city must include a right of cancellation for both the city and the county.

"When they send us an executed agreement, we'll talk turkey with them," Sanford Commissioner Julian L. Stensrud said this morning.

As far as the 40,000 city-owned books which were in the library when the facility was leased to the county in 1975, Mayor Moore told his colleagues, "We've got to be realistic about what existed in 1975."

"If any of those books still exist, they would be leather-bound encyclopedias which are out of date," said Moore.

During a brief recess in the meeting following Kirchoff's appearance, Commissioner John Morris conferred with Kirchoff about the hallway outside the commission chambers.

When the meeting was resumed, Morris told his colleagues he asked Kirchoff to research county records to determine how the county executed a 99-year lease with the city of Longwood for city property on which a medical clinic is located if the county can only execute two-year leases.

Iranian Militants Pledge More Visits To Hostages

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Modern militants holding American hostages said today humanitarian organizations such as Amnesty International would be allowed to visit the captives.

A militant spokesman made the statement after two Red Cross officials examined the captives' health and living conditions on Monday. One of the Red Cross members, Dr. Bernard Liebeskind, went to Geneva today to report his findings to the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Liebeskind and Harold Schmidt of Geneva, International Red Cross permanent representative in Iran, said the Americans were in generally good condition.

"They said they saw all the hostages — now in their 16th day of captivity — but gave no total number as part of an agreement with the militants for the supervised visit."

"I can tell you that roughly they are in good condition as regards their health," the Swiss specialist in internal medicine told reporters at Geneva airport.

"I have messages with me," he said. "They will be sent to the States, to every family within a few days."

A militant spokesman was asked today whether the militants would allow other international humanitarian organizations to see the hostages. He replied that they would.

Asked whether Amnesty International could be allowed to visit the Americans, the spokesman replied in the affirmative.

Japanese Ambassador Tadamasa Wada meanwhile has asked President Bani Sadr to arrange for a visit to the hostages by envoys of the EEC and Japan.

Tehran's religious leader, Hojatoleslam Sayed Ali Khamenei, told the newspaper Jomhuri Jahani today that the living conditions of the hostages were "even better than I thought." He did not elaborate.

Khamenei was among four Iranian government officials who accompanied Grunck and Liebeskind on the 10-hour tour of the confinement quarters for the 50 hostages.

Yushey, in an interview broadcast this morning on ABC-TV, said of Grunck and Liebeskind, who left today for Geneva, were carrying messages from the hostages to their families.

"According to the hostages themselves, they have regular sport sessions and use a large library which the students made available to them. One of the hostages runs the library."

"A number of the hostages hold the American government, Carter and the shah directly responsible for their situation," Khamenei said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter called the visit "a plus for the hostages themselves," but added that anything less than their release "is a mask for the central reality, which is that they are still being held prisoner."

In New York, Michel Veuthey, an International Red Cross representative, said "we think we've seen all of them (the hostages)."

Court Requires Warrant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that the Constitution requires police to obtain a warrant before entering a suspect's home to arrest him.

The ruling was a 5-4 decision. Justice William Brennan wrote the majority opinion. Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote the dissenting opinion.

The case involved a police officer who entered a suspect's home without a warrant to arrest him. The officer was charged with violating the suspect's Fourth Amendment rights.

The Supreme Court ruled that the police officer's actions were unconstitutional. The court said that the Fourth Amendment requires police to obtain a warrant before entering a suspect's home to arrest him.

The ruling is a significant victory for civil liberties advocates. It means that police officers must now obtain a warrant before entering a suspect's home to arrest him.

The ruling also means that police officers must now obtain a warrant before entering a suspect's home to search for evidence. This is a significant victory for civil liberties advocates.
