Congressmen Turn Juvenile As End Of Session Is In Sight

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON, July 23, (AP)—Congress goes home this week, and your legislators are acting like a bunch of kids just before school is out.

One reason for the disorder is that congressmen, like every one else, get restless off the job.

Which may explain why during this last minute drive to get through by Saturday Senators have discussed such red-hot issues as what makes a watermelon sweet.

And why the House has had to consider the amount of damage done to the state of W. H. Red.

Orchard grass (rusted by weevils) $100. Corn (less added barrels at $4 a barrel) $122. 378 bushels (trellis, at a dime a bushel) $378.50.

But in all this rush it's interesting to note that senators still act like senators.

Senator Wherry (R-Ohio) has the check of keeping Republican senators in line. The hour was late and he was trying to shoe the members out when the name of Kenneth Royall came up for confirmation as Secretary of War.

While Wherry, the Senate's champion jitterbug, jittered and mumbled, himself senator after senator got up to pay a Royall platitude.

Waterway System In France Is Restored

PARIS, (AP)—France has restored 99 per cent of her inland waterway transport since the war. J. Dubreuil, chairman of a French transport committee, has announced.

Of 12,000 boats on inland streams, 2,000 were destroyed and 5,000 damaged during the war, he said.

He pointed out that the inland system's 3,700,000 tons was 900,000 tons more than the seagoing merchant marine and that Paris's port traffic of 14 million tons surpassed even Marseille's eight million tons of goods handled.

of the Polish people generally for the balance of this calendar year.

He said imports of medical supplies and supplementary foodstuffs for special groups appear justified and that some imports of grain seed and fertilizer would be helpful.

The State Department said in its announcement however, that such special items could be supplied through private relief organizations and other sources, such as the international emergency children's fund. The announcement added:

"In view of the above and of the fact that the funds are available, the relief program for Poland is being discontinued for the balance of this calendar year."

Jury Indictment

a special subcommittee to Milwaukee to make further inquiry into the 11-months long Allis-Chalmers strike.

Subsequently, Hartley submitted a report to Clark with the request that he take "such action as might be appropriate."

The committee report said that there was also "substantial evidence" that Robert Huse, another official of the UAW local, also had testified falsely. Huse was not mentioned in the indictment. He is now president of the local and is chairman of the honorary president.

Christoffel was indicted on six counts. He had a series of questions by committee counsel and committee members concerning any connection he might have with the Communist Party.

The indictment said Christoffel replied negatively when he was asked if he "knew Ned Sparks and Fred Hale." The grand jury said Christoffel "knew both Sparks and Hale and for a number of years had been intimately associated with them in connection with the activities of Communism and the Communist Party."

with sufficient evidence that Papy had offered anything of value for the legislators' votes on any matter, particularly the anti-bookie bill.

They also contended the testimony failed to show any offers made to Odham in "lawful money," and said there was "uncertainty" on the part of Odham "as to statements attributed 'by him to Papy.'"

The motions for directed verdicts were not argued, and the Judge denied them without prejudice to their renewal after the defense has finished its presentation.

tion between June, 1945, and January, 1947.

She testified that four other union officers may have been Communists and that to her knowledge 10 were not members. She also told the committee that there is a Communist group active at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, headed by Junius Scales, a student. She said she had attended Communist Party meetings at which Scales was present.

Among union officials she testified were members of the Communist Party at the time of her employment, was Edwin McCrea, international representative of the food, tobacco and agricultural workers.

Before the hearing McCrea issued a statement asserting the committee is trying "to break the union."

He declared the House Committee "is trying to do something the richest and most powerful member of the tobacco trust could not do."

Meanwhile, a House Judiciary Subcommittee approved a bill that would open the way to American citizenship for Victor A. Kravchenko, former Soviet official who has publicly renounced Communism.

Kravchenko, who testified to the House Un-American activities committee yesterday that all responsible Soviet officials in the judicial group he fears for his life if he is not given the protection accorded American citizens.

He said he had not told Crowe he would vote against the bill "all the way through the Legislature," and added he had gone to the Jacksonville legislator within 20 or 25 minutes after his conversation with Papy and told him he intended to vote for the bill when it came before the House for final action on passage or defeat.

Camp's statement was given almost entirely in response to direct questions from state and defense attorneys in contrast to the testimony of Rep. Bralley Odham of Sanford yesterday. Odham frankly was interrupted by the defense and by Judge W. May Walker for expanding his replies beyond the questions that were asked.

Johnny Cromwell Has 25 Years Of Flying

Johnny Cromwell, noted stunt flyer, and husband of the former Gracie Lewis of Sanford, is reported to be still thrilling spectators with his aerial circus. He has completed 25 years of safe flying and recently put on an aerial show at Salisbury and Monroe, N. C. One of his stunts is to fly upside down, controlling the plane with feet and knees and with hands held outside.

Mrs. Cromwell, who was noted in Sanford for her paintings, wrote that she intended to paint some landscapes but would have to wait for the weather to get better as it has rained nearly everyday. They live at Mathews, N. C.

Dutch Drive

P. M. Yesterday to occupy Tambora, Krawang and the little coastal town of Tjilamaja. This column was headed for Cheribon, about 130 miles east of Batavia.

Meanwhile, the Dutch and the Indonesians charged one another with using Japanese in the conflict.

A Dutch military spokesman said the Dutch were bombing republican-held airfields because the Indonesians had at their disposal fairly large numbers of Japanese flying instructors, a good many Japanese fighter planes and Japanese-trained Indonesian pilots. He said Dutch objectives all were military ones.

A Batavia dispatch said the Indonesian News Agency Antara reported Japanese were used by the Dutch in western Java and that two of three crewmen who bailed out of a burning Dutch plane over Palembang, were Japanese. The Dutch in Batavia dismissed this charge as "nonsense," saying the Indonesians probably mistook native troops from the island of Ambon for Japanese.

London, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said that Britain was determined to seek an end to warfare in Indonesia "at the earliest possible moment" and was working on several possible solutions which he did not disclose.

Well-informed diplomatic sources said that either India or Australia might ask the United Nations to investigate the dispute between the Netherlands and the Indonesian Republic.

Pathan Problem To Plague Men Of North India

New DELHI, India—With the renewal of Afghanistan's claim for the return of Pishal territory in India's turbulent northwest frontier the future government of that rugged border territory probably will find it their biggest problem to keep the lawless and bloodthirsty Pathan in check. Possible Afghan intrigues and the unexplained and sudden replacement of the Russian ambassador in Kabul lend support to the belief in political quarters that a period of great turmoil may be ahead of people living west of the lazy-flowing River Indus.

Whether the Pakistan dominion government is able to control the frontier province depends on the strength of the hold which Khan Abdul Ghaflar Khan, the "Frontier Gandhi," Congress Pathans' leader, has over the frontier people after Aug. 15, the day of the transfer of British power to Indian hands. The frontier Congress is making capital out of the Pathans' ingrained hatred of Punjab with their new slogan of "Pathanistan."

It is predicted in some quarters that the "Frontier Gandhi" is likely to pay a visit to Kabul in the next few months although inquiries show that no application for a passport has been made.

Optimistic, Pessimistic Questions Posed By Jap Treaty Proposal

Britons Are Urged To Stagger Work Hours

LONDON, July 23, (AP)—The Minister of Labor, George Isaacs, announced yesterday that government compulsion would be applied, if necessary to force the introduction of staggered working hours in British industry as a means of averting another fuel crisis this winter.

"The well being of the nation is at stake," Isaacs told the House of Commons, adding that almost daily electricity cuts would cripple industry unless one-third of the daily peak load is consumed outside normal day-shift hours.

Isaacs repeated earlier appeals, thus far unanswered by the great majority of industries and trade unions, for the voluntary introduction of night work, little practiced in British factories during peacetime.

Jerusalem Undergoes 8th General Alarm

JERUSALEM, July 23, (AP)—Grenades were hurled at a British military truck in Jerusalem yesterday, raising fear of a renewal of the wave of violence which in four days has taken five lives and injured 29 persons in the Holy Land.

Approximately 90,000 of Palestine's Jews remained under a British-imposed dawn-to-dusk house arrest, but little hope of peace was in sight. Irqas Zaaki Leumi, Jewish underground organization, appealed to members of the other underground groups, its military truck in Jerusalem to join in its offensive against British rule.

Today's attack caused no casualties. But general alarm sirens, the eighth such alarm in four days, sent troops to action stations, and security compound gates were quickly closed as armed cars dashed through the streets of Jerusalem. The attack occurred near an army pay station in an area where other attacks were made on military installations in the past three days.

Optimistic, Pessimistic Questions Posed By Jap Treaty Proposal

BY RUSSELL BRINES
TOKYO, July 23, (AP)—There was a mixture of optimism and pessimism in diplomatic circles here recently as the ability of the 11 allied nations to settle with relative speed what General MacArthur has termed the "minor" problems of a Japanese treaty.

The complicated territorial questions which have been such a handicap in Europe will be absent when work begins on the Pacific treaty. So will some of the political problems.

Even so, diplomats believe it will take a minimum of one year to write a final treaty after negotiations are begun, probably of the proposed preliminary conference.

As usual, the progress of the negotiations may well be determined by Russia's attitude, and the diplomats were split on their predictions of probable Russian cooperation. Some regard as an encouraging sign the fact that Moscow has approved the recent Far Eastern commission policy statement.

Here are some of the main questions which diplomats expect to arise during the conference: Japan's future control—Peace delegates must decide what type of supervision is to be exercised over Japan after the treaty is signed and what if any restrictions are to be placed on her return to the family of nations.

On this subject there has long been a basic cleavage between occupation headquarters and some of the allies, notably Russia, Australia and New Zealand.

Reparations—Little progress has been made in solving this complex problem during prolonged discussions by the Far Eastern Commission, and the Western nations still are divided among themselves on the amount of reparations to be taken from Japan as well as on the distribution.

Japan's future economic position—Far Eastern Commission policy permits Japan an industrial potential equivalent to the years 1930-34, but to be effective this needs considerable clarification and the delegates may be called on to fill in the details.

There is also a policy clash possible in this between the United States and some British Commonwealth nations and Russia.

Territorial questions—The Cairo, Yalta and Potsdam agreements stripped Japan of her overseas empire, but the peacemakers must formalize the status of Korea, Formosa, Manchuria, the Kurile Islands and Sakhalin. They also must decide which, if any, of the small islands around Japan will be returned to the Japanese.

In addition to these major problems, the war left a host of time-consuming details to be untangled, ranging from the overhaul or rewriting of prewar treaties to clarification of patent rights.

This figure, of course, has to be concurred in by both the House and Senate, but the prospects are exceedingly good at the moment for obtaining all the money that is necessary for bringing deep water to Sanford's front door.

Most of Sanford's present day troubles are due to growing pains.
There is a housing shortage because there are more people here wanting houses than ever before.
There is a parking problem because there are more cars. There is a financial problem (for the City) because there is more work to do taking care of more people, and because the more people who buy houses the more property is exempt from taxes on account of homestead exemption. As "growing pains" these are all to the good, but some remedy for them will have to be found.

As the Papy trial gets under Odham is seeking to prove his in the interest of good govern-bery, good government cannot possibly survive. But it is one thing to be offered a bribe, it is another thing to prove it. Were there any witnesses to the offer?

Is there any documentary evi-can be answered only in the trial itself and which may provide the answers to Papy's guilt or innocence.

Advertisers should know that the reason newsprint is scarce is because of booming newspaper circulation all over the United States. People are reading newspapers today as they never have before. In our own case our circulation has almost doubled since before the war. Almost every newspaper in the United States reports some increase in circulation. Though there is some criticism of newspapers today because they are controlled by big business, by capitalists, by advertisers, or "because they devote too much space to world news, not enough to local publicity" or "because they publish too many comics, or not enough," still on the whole they must be giving the public what it wants. There is no law compelling anyone to buy a newspaper.

Making A Man Of Him

The age over which the juvenile courts have jurisdiction has been raised in many states to 18 or even higher. This fact was brought out in a meeting of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges in Chicago.

A half century or more ago, a fourteen- or fifteen-year-old was considered a man, and given a man's duties and responsibilities. He had faced life and grappled with its practical problems. He knew that no wood-chopping meant no warmth and that no crops and no well-developed livestock meant no food in the house.

The judges concluded that modern life does not teach a child cause and effect in any such practical way, and thus he is still a child at 18. If true, this is a sad commentary on modern life, and it seems unnecessary. There are many ways of learning about cause and effect beside chopping wood and hoeing corn. Any intelligent parent with the will to do so can see that his child faces the consequences of his acts, and that he learns to stand on his own feet and make his own decisions. The trouble with the children coming before these judges is that they do not have intelligent, conscientious parents. So perhaps the judges are right in raising the age of maturity.

Trying to educate parents is beginning too late in the day to do juvenile delinquents much good. But making it plain to everyone that parenthood needs preparation, and is not to be entered into "lightly and unadvisedly," may have results in the long run.

Young United States

The death recently in Elliston, Va., of 85-year-old Mrs.
Pearl Tyler Ellis, breaks a link that was only one generation removed from Washington's day. Mrs. Ellis, daughter of a second wife, was the 14th child and last surviving offspring of one-time President John Tyler, who was nine years old when Washington died. Tyler's Virginia family knew the general and Tyler probably had met him.

Originally a Jeffersonian, Tyler broke with the Democrats to become vice president in 1836 under William Henry Harrison. At the latter's death a month later, Tyler became the tenth president of the United States. In his administration, colorless generally because of party opposition to the chief executive, Texas was annexed and the Maine-Canadian boundary set. Tyler presided at the unsuccessful peace conference in Washington in 1861. Before he died, the next year, when Mrs. Ellis was a few months old, he saw his peace hopes dashed by the Civil War's fury.
Such a life as that of Mrs. Ellis, so close to the beginning days of the republic, brings home once more the fact that this, after all, is a very young nation.

More School Children

As a result of our rocketing birth rate during the war and postwar years, more than 5,000,000 children will be added to the elementary school population of the United States during the next decade, according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

When school opens this fall, there will be about 2,500,000 six-year-olds eligible for admittance to elementary school, and the number will increase each year until it reaches nearly 3,300,000 in 1953. The company calculates that the total elementary school age population will increase from its present 18,200,000 to more than 23,400,000 in 1956.
The number of children eligible to enter high school will decrease this year and next, but thereafter the trend will be reversed and their number will jump from 2,200,000 in 1949 to more than 3,200,000 in 1961. The situation is considered sufficiently serious to call urgently for "planning along practical lines in order that adequate provision be made for the education of the new crop of children."
"This is particularly necessary in areas where schools are already overcrowded," the Metropolitan points out, "and where, even now, there is a shortage of teachers."

SANFORD FORUM

Sanford, Fla.

The Sanford Herald
City
Gentlemen:

Mrs. Newby, daughter and I have just returned from touring the Pacific Northwest by auto, covering 9737 miles, passing through 21 states. During this mileage, we had one detour less than one-half mile over paved highway, and another, where a culvert was being put in, around which the detour was less than one quarter of mile, which had been paved before work began on the culvert. In two or three towns we detoured around two or three blocks on paved streets, where streets were being paved. In many cases and miles roads were being repaved, one half of road being repaved, so as not to inconvenience the public or detour them.

On three occasions, in conversation, I was advised that these states always gave first consideration to the public, before beginning work on the highways. And on one occasion, was advised by a road building contractor, that it was specified in his contracts, that the public must be taken care of,

and not inconvenienced, before any work was begun. All along I thought of the many detours, miles and miles out of the way, and over lime rock and asphalt, and rough dirt roads, we would have had to make had we made this mileage in our own state of Florida.

Where it is costing the Florida Motorists and Tourists coming into the state, thousands of dollars, in making detours, and having the lime white wash and asphalt cleared from their autos. Our State Road Department seems to have the public be damned; attitude. It seems the Road Department is years behind the times in repairing and rebuilding roads, and could learn a great deal from other states.

Yours truly,
J. T. Newby.

cial worker, was the mother of a

WE'VE BEEN WITH YOU

We are twelve years old this July.

Yes—way back yonder in the year 1935, a capitalist moved to Florida from another State. He purchased property in Sanford and in other cities in Florida, and one day he mentioned to the first fire insurance rates in Florida were considerably higher than in his home State, and he thought perhaps the reason for this was that the mutual fire insurance companies were not active in Florida.

He had carried most of his insurance in Mutual Companies and induced us to take on the representation of mutual fire insurance companies, giving us the names of the mutual companies he had had satisfactory dealings with in his home State.

This is why we started a Mutual Insurance Agency in Sanford—way back yonder in July, 1935.

Our ambition has been to build up an agency devoted to the task of providing good insurance protection for the people in Seminole County at a saving.

That we have to some extent at least succeeded in doing this is indicated by the fact that today we have the pleasure of serving over five hundred customers, most of whom bought insurance from us because our agency was recommended by a loyal customer.

To our customers belongs the credit for the growth of this Agency—for without their Loyalty and support throughout these twelve years—it just wouldn't have happened.

To them, we are duly appreciative and we want them to know that we fully recognize the fact that this is truly their insurance agency—for they have made it so—they have saved more money on their insurance than we made writing the insurance—we have been MUTUALLY benefitted knowing each other.

We take this means of thanking our customers publicly for their loyalty and support during these twelve years.
